Teacher rehired

Pickets' protests effective at O-G

When members of the Owen-Gage School Board arrived at their meeting Monday night they were greeted by about 60 picketers, protesting what they felt was a forced resignation of a high school teacher.

At 8:00 p.m. the protesters, students, parents and teachers of the school district put away their signs, went into the meeting, and voiced their opinion about the resignation of Catherine Kropewnicki, a high school special education teacher.

Kropewnicki had turned in her resignation at the March 11 school board meeting. Her resignation stated she was leaving Owen-Gage to seek employment elsewhere or to further her education. At that meeting, Kropewnicki refused to comment on what events led to her resignation and if she was pressured to resign. The board tabled a motion to accept her resignation until they had an opportunity to investigate the situation.

At Monday's meeting, Don Dorsch, Owendale, presented the board with about 300 petition signatures, asking the board to request Kropewnicki to withdraw her resignation, and that the board grant her tenure. On the March 11 agenda, Kropewnicki, a second-year teacher, and five other teachers were to be voted on by the board for tenure or an extension of their probationary status. All were approved, except for Kropewnicki. Because of the resignation the board did not act on her tenure.

Owen-Gage Superintendent Ronald Erickson addressed the audience, about 125 students, parents and teachers, explaining that the board and the voters of the district have worked hard to see that Owen-Gage has been allowed to continue to operate. He added that the board members have risked personal liability to keep the district from being absorbed into other school districts.

"I am not sure how much animosity there is out there towards the board, but they have worked long and hard to see that the best decisions were made," Erickson said. "And so that is why it is extremely difficult to look out there and see many, many of those people who fought hard for this school, now seemingly to be on the other side."

Audience members told Erickson that they were not against the school, or the board, but they wanted the board to address the petitions presented to them. "We will discuss this, and everyone will have an opportunity to say what they want to say," Erickson said. "If we are in error, we will make a change."

"There is a teacher here, her job is on the line," Dorsch, holding the petitions, said. "They are backing that teacher because they heard her side of the story. We are not against the school, and we are not against this board. We came to support this teacher. She's a good teacher with very high recommendations from you and Mr. Wright (Owendale High School principal)."

Several audience members asked Kropewnicki if she was being forced or pressured to resign. "At the time I resigned, I was put under pressure," Kropewnicki said, speaking publicly for the first time. When asked if she wanted to stay at Owen-

Gage she said, "yes."

Board member Pat Goslin explained that at the last meeting Kropewnicki refused to comment on her resignation. He asked if she would tell the board why she resigned.

She explained that she received a letter from Erickson stating that he would recommend she be dismissed.

"Mr. Wright (not at the meeting) proceeded to tell me that I had the potential to be an excellent teacher...he told me Mr. Erickson had me pegged as a troublemaker," Kropewnicki said. She added that Wright recommended she not fight Erickson's decision and that Erickson would make it impossible for her to get another job.

Kropewnicki said that a discipline problem, a fight between two students at the start of the year, and a letter from Wright reprimanding her for having students sitting on her desk, were cited by Erickson. Later on Kropewnicki explained students were sitting on her desk, discussing a personal problem. Please turn to page 16.

CRAWFORD ROAD at the intersection of Kelly Road, southeast of Cass City, was a veritable lake Saturday afternoon. Area residents said the water was as high as they had ever seen it. It was Monday before the water receded and the corner was passable again. (More pictures, page 9).

Candidates file petitions for school board posts

Monday was the final day for persons interested in running for a school board position to turn in the required petition signatures to be placed on the June 10 school board election ballot.

On the Cass City School District board of trustees, the positions of Ben Hobar and Thresa Burnette are to expire June 30. Hobar turned in his petition. Burnette is not seeking reelection. Allan Hartwick, Deford, has decided to seek a position on the board. The school will not have a millage or bond request on the ballot.

In the Owen-Gage School District, the positions of Leona LaFave and Joseph Warack will expire this year. Both have turned in petitions for reelection. Also seeking a position on the board is Mary Ann Abbe, Gageton. There will not be a bond or millage request on the ballot.

In the Ubyly School District the position of Julia Heilig will expire. She will be uncontested in the election.

The school board has not decided if they will put a millage request on the ballot. A request for a two-mill increase was defeated at a March 26 special election. The board will decide if the millage request is to be placed on the ballot at an

April 15 school board meeting.

In the Kingston School District, four candidates will be vying for two positions. Incumbent Louis Wenzlaff, Kingston, is seeking reelection. Janet Grieve has decided not to seek reelection. Richard C. Lance, Kingston, Jeff Newton, Mayville, and Marlene Powell, Kingston, have also turned in petitions to be placed on the June 10 ballot. A four-mill, one-year renewal request will be placed on the ballot.

All positions are four-year terms. Petition forms with at least 20 signatures had to be turned in to the school district superintendent's office Monday by 4:00 p.m.

Sap to syrup, kids see it all

Eighty-five third grade students from the Campbell Elementary School had the opportunity to see, taste and smell how the maple syrup they pour on their pancakes is produced. Recently the students of Mrs. Lovejoy, Mrs. Iseler and Mrs. Tuckey's classes were taken on a "real" field trip to the James Tuckey Jr. farm, to see how maple trees are tapped, and how syrup is produced from the clear sap.

Tuckey and his father, James Tuckey Sr., have been producing syrup from the maple trees that grow on his Cedar Run Road farm for five years.

Tuckey learned how to make maple syrup on his grandfather's farm in Canada. "It was always a lot of fun," Tuckey recalled about helping his grandfather.

At the end of February, as soon as the weather begins to warm up, the Tuckeys start tapping the large maple trees.

Tuckey drills a 7/16-inch hole, three inches deep, into the tree, then drives the metal tap in. Tuckey explained that only a small amount of the sap that the tree produces is taken, so the tree is not damaged. A small maple tree may only have one tap. A large tree, 24 inches in diameter or larger, may have five taps.

Tuckey explained that during the day the temperature has to be about 32 degrees or warmer before the sap starts to run. "It is kind of finicky stuff," Tuckey said. The sap may run when the temperature is below freezing, if it is a sunny day, and the wind isn't blowing. "The first sap of the season is always the best sap," Tuckey said. "It has a higher sugar content." Early sap requires less boiling to produce syrup. Sap taken later in the season, bud sap, has a lower sugar content, and is used for candies and cookies. Tuckey said because the late sap requires more boiling time, the syrup has a dark color, like molasses. Syrup that is produced from early sap has an amber color. The Tuckeys take sap only during the early part of the season. "We do it for a hobby, so we don't push the season," he added.

Tuckey has 262 taps in his maple trees. From these taps he will produce 30 gallons of syrup this year. Normally they produce 50 gallons a year.

Because the sap is about 80 percent water, it takes 40 gallons of sap to produce one gallon of syrup. The sap must be boiled for about 10 hours to produce six gallons of syrup. Tuckey explained that sap begins to boil at 210 to 212 degrees, depending on the weather conditions. It must be heated seven more degrees before enough of the water has been evaporated to produce syrup.

The syrup is then poured through a paper and a cloth filter, and taken to the house to be sterilized and bottled.

Tuckey is finished with this year's syrup production. He has to stop to get ready to plant crops to feed his dairy herd.

"It's a hobby, and it is relaxing, but it doesn't complement dairy farming," Tuckey said.

FIELD TRIP - 86 third grade students from the Campbell Elementary School, Cass City, took a tour of the James Tuckey farm to see how maple syrup is gathered and produced. James Tuckey Jr. bores a hole in a maple tree to hang another pail for sap collection.

WHEN OWEN-GAGE school board members arrived at their meeting Monday night they were greeted by students, parents and teachers, carrying picket signs protesting the resignation of special education teacher Catherine Kropewnicki.

Contract renewed

Wright ouster fails

Wayne Wright's future as Owendale High School principal was put to the test Monday night, when board member Donna Salcido made a motion that the district not renew Wright's yearly contract.

The motion, made at the regular April board meeting, was seconded by board member Joseph Warack. After seconding the motion, Warack explained he has been told that Wright has been telling "different tales," and that he doesn't like that.

Salcido said there are too many conflicts, and that Wright tells students one thing, and parents another.

Only a few moments earlier, Salcido made motions to renew administrative contracts for Superintendent Ronald Erickson and Gageton Elementary School Principal William Britt. The board unanimously approved a new one-year contract for both. The board policy is to grant only one-year contracts to administrators. Both Britt and Erickson were at the meeting. Wright was away on vacation. All three administrators were granted a salary increase at a November school board meeting.

Board members Jack Brinkman, Pat Goslin and Leona LaFave, along with Erickson, and several members of the audience offered their support for Wright.

Brinkman said that he didn't feel it was right to discuss it when Wright was not at the meeting to defend himself. Brinkman added that while Wright may have made mistakes, "he has his good points, too." "I think he has done a super job in the capacity he was hired in," LaFave said.

After several minutes of discussion between board members and the audience, Salcido withdrew her motion to not renew Wright's contract.

Brinkman made a motion that Wright be given a one-year contract. Goslin supported the motion.

Goslin added that he felt Wright was doing an "excellent job" as principal at Owendale. "I don't want to sit here and take a chance of losing him," Goslin said.

The roll call vote ended in Wright's favor, 5 to 2. Salcido and Warack cast the no votes.

Also at the board meeting, Kim Olszak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Olszak, was named as student of the month. Olszak has been a Student Council president, class president, was elected the 1984 Homecoming Queen, and has participated in high school sports for four years.

Deering Packing loss set at $250,000

Harold Deering, Mayville, estimated the loss in the fire that completely destroyed Deering Packing Co. Monday at $250,000.

The plant, located at 4808 E. Mayville Road, a mile northeast of Silverwood, was in flames when fire fighters from Clifford arrived. The Mayville department was called to assist.

The Deerings, who live about 40 rods from the plant, learned about the fire when they were awakened by a phone call to tell them about it.

It was so bright in our room, from the fire, Deering said, that we didn't need to turn on the light to see that the clock said it was 3:19.

Deering, the owner of the plant, reported that there was only a little insurance on the building.

The cause of the fire is under investigation. Deering said that he is uncertain about future plans for the plant. Deering is a former resident of Deford and was a well-known farmer in the area. GRASS FIRE The Elkland Township Fire Department responded to a grass fire at the Jim Dorland residence, 691 W. Deckerville Rd., Cass City, Tuesday at 11:45. Please turn to page 13.

"If It Fitz...."

Buying a senator

By Jim Fitzgerald

Soon after Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., formed the Fairness in Media committee to buy CBS-TV, Don Rice of Mount Vernon, Ohio, formed the Committee to Buy Jesse Helms.

In a January letter reportedly sent to one million conservatives, Helms urged them to "become Dan Rather's boss." He accused CBS of being "the most anti-Reagan network" and called for a "national crusade" to buy enough CBS stock to gain control and "end CBS's bias forever."

Rice responded with a press release circulated to a limited audience (printing and postage costs totaled $20). It said: "The Committee to Buy Jesse Helms has issued a nationwide appeal to political liberals and anti-smoking activists to contribute as much as they can for a Jesse Helms buy-out."

"According to buy-out coordinator Don Rice, Jesse Helms has been controlled by the far-right crackpots and the tobacco interests long enough. There are others in this country who would like to use his continuously-operating mouth to voice their concerns...It is in the interest of free speech that we want to buy Jesse Helms. We believe that if we were to own him, we would be able to guarantee a more balanced presentation of political viewpoints."

"Rice also spoke about the question of money. 'Contrary to popular opinion, Jesse Helms is not a two-bit politician. He's big business, and we're going to have to raise a lot of money if we expect to gain control of him. As an investment we think Jesse Helms would be much more profitable to own than, say a television network. Just ask the tobacco growers.'"

The press release concluded with the committee's slogan: "Isn't it time you owned a senator?" I read it six weeks ago, before going on vacation and losing touch, and I was doubtful.

Helms is a Bible-thumping pro-lifer who fights for the inalienable right of embryos to become people and fights even harder for the tax-subsidized right of the tobacco industry to sell its products — and kill people. Campaign contributions enabled him to spend $13 million to be reelected to his $60,662-a-year job last November. I figured he would be a hard senator for the liberals to buy.

I was right. Last week, a second press release arrived from The Committee to Buy Jesse Helms. It said: "The campaign to raise money for a Jesse Helms buy-out is over. A red-faced Don Rice, buy-out coordinator, ruefully made the announcement at a hastily-called press conference. He admitted the entire project was ill-conceived and poorly executed."

"The fact is," he said, "no self-respecting person was willing to donate a dime. A lot of people jokingly said they would contribute, but when push came to shove, the money just wasn't there. It turns out that the only people who want to be associated with Jesse Helms already own him." "Rice had thought that by owning Jesse Helms, he could turn him around and use him as a spokesman for liberal causes. 'But my friends disabused me of that notion,' he said. 'They convinced me that Jesse Helms does more good for the liberals exactly where he is — as a mouthpiece for the far-right crackpots.'"

Rice is a 40-year-old freelance typesetter. "When asked about future plans," according to the press release, "Rice announced that he is looking for a buyer for the movie rights to the story of his short-lived career as a political wheeler and dealer."

BECKY DILLON read the Easter story to a large group of children at the Salem United Methodist Church, Cass City, Saturday afternoon. After the story time, the children played games and had an egg hunt in the church basement.

Movie Time at library

Friday, April 19, at 1:30 p.m. the Rawson Memorial Library will be holding their senior citizen Movie Time.

The first movie shown will be "Circus Town," a 48-minute feature about Peru, IN, the former winter quarters of six circuses. Peru has since become the home for many retired circus performers. The film follows young children who are just beginning with their circus career, right up to their first performance.

The second performance will be "Australia's Unusual Animals," a National Geographic film. No description is available.

The third feature, "Guinea Pigs is Pigs," is a 16-minute feature about an express agent who refuses to bend the rules on shipping guinea pigs as livestock instead of as pets.

There's good news and bad news for fans of the Detroit Tigers in 1985.

The good news is that the team promises to be in the race all season long. The bad news is that you may have trouble getting in to see them play.

1985 promises to be like 1969 at Tiger Stadium. At least for the first few months of the season.

For most games and all of the week-end games there were no choice or semi-choice seats available.

This year promises to be worse. In 1969 the management would have been glad to sell you a season ticket. This year the demand has been so heavy that the sale of season tickets has been dropped. Sorry, no more available.

Monday's opener was, of course, a sellout. At the opener and during the world series you won't find many fans at the games.

True fans that are there are mostly in the bleachers.

The good seats left after season ticket holders are satisfied are gobbled up by persons with pull.

Governor James Blanchard said the other day that Monday was his first opener. Never had pull enough to get good seats previously, he explained.

You'll find many of the "opener fans" leaving around the sixth inning or so. After the media hype is over and all that is left is the ball game, why stick around? Did you notice during the world series last fall that some of the fan enthusiasm was missing?

If you come for the first game and the last game and have at most a very casual interest in the outcome, it's hard to get too excited about it all.

As one of the peons and true fans that attends games, it bugs me that there isn't equal access to tickets even after season ticket holders are satisfied.

It doesn't have to be that way. Bill Veeck, who ran very successful baseball franchises in Cleveland and Chicago, refused to yield to pressure and gave ticket preference to the ordinary fan in the world series.

The pressure for tickets this summer promises to be greater than it was after the Tigers were world champions in 1968.

It will be worse because baseball has been growing in popularity again after a decade or so when it faded a bit in public acceptance.

Although finding good tickets will be next to impossible for key games this summer, it beats the alternative. Losing.

In August and September in 1969, the Tigers were out of it and there were seats to be had in all the choice locations. Any Tiger fan will tell you that history just couldn't repeat again in 1985. No way. Could it?

Rabbit Tracks advertisement with a rabbit illustration and author John Halre.

Time flies. It was 11 years ago this week that President Richard Nixon walked down Main Street in Cass City. For most of us it was a new experience. A revealing experience. When it was certain that the president was to march down Main Street, everyone working at the Chronicle figured to have the best spot in town to watch from vantage points at an upstairs window.

How little we knew. Days before the walk was scheduled, secret service men descended like locusts on the town. Look out the window. Ha! You couldn't even stand near a window and a rifleman was on the roof of every building.

A week before he came we were required to go to Saginaw to get press clearance which proved to be of not much use. It meant we got to be first behind the ropes when the action started.

Most of the people were saying that they didn't think much of Nixon, but still respected the office.

Saturday, Cass City will have a new postmaster. It is William J. Zinnecker who will take over Saturday. Previously, Zinnecker was superintendent of postal operations in Cass City. The department has been under the direction of Betty J. Mason, officer in charge, since Grant Gaspiet retired earlier this year.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile is scheduled in Cass City Tuesday, at Hills and Dales General Hospital. Hospital authorities say that there is a shortage of O positive blood. The Bloodmobile will be at the hospital from 1 to 7 p.m. Appointments can be made by calling 872-2121.

It's hard to imagine how the Chronicle would get along without the help of interested readers. This week we received calls from Kay Warner and George Wright cluing us in about the flood conditions in their neighborhoods. Worst they ever saw, both told us when they called.

I was too slow on the trigger to snap the picture, but it's worth telling about anyway. When I sloshed out to take a picture of the flooded road Saturday, a muskrat swam serenely by and disappeared into grass that was peaking through the water from a flooded fence row.

Rawson Library offers video cassette service

The Rawson Memorial Library is celebrating National Library Week, April 15-20, by offering a new VHS video cassette service.

Video cassettes may be checked out from the library for three days for $1. For those who don't own a video player, one may be rented from the library for $3 for 24 hours. Rules and regulations for renting the video player and cassettes are available at the library.

There is also a list of all the cassettes that the library has to offer.

Rawson Memorial Library is also a member of VIEWS, a group of libraries that rotate collections of video cassettes. The video cassettes stay in the library for one month, and then are traded to another library, and new video cassettes are received. Titles in this month's collection are:

"Blackbeard's Ghost," "Breaking Away," "The Dead Zone," "Gandhi," "Missing," "The Muppet Movie," "Ordinary People," "The Right Stuff," "Scavenger Hunt," and "Tex."

A television set and a video player are also available for use in the library by organizations and groups. On days when there is no school, if five or six children get together and ask to see a video recording, the librarian will play a video cassette for them.

Other items available at the library in addition to books are magazines, large print books, paperbacks, pamphlets, travel guides, maps, tourist information, phonograph records, cassettes and Polaroid cameras. Items that can be used in the library but not checked out are reference materials, historical materials, high school yearbooks, plat books and old photographs. The library also has a record player and cassette player that can be used in the library, and a copy machine for public use.

Be sure to visit the library during National Library Week, says Barb Hutchinson, librarian.

Old Faithful

Old Faithful is getting tired. Yellowstone's famous geyser, which has spouted every 69 minutes for almost a century, now makes visitors wait as long as 100 minutes between eruptions, reports National Wildlife magazine. An earthquake is partly to blame, say scientists, but so are tourists who persist in dropping objects into the geyser, thus reducing its water supply.

Ray Armstead Jr.

Bad Axe Councilman Floyd Booms was elected as chairman, and Harbor Beach City Clerk David Dickinson, secretary. Approximately 58 elected and appointed municipal officials attended the annual meeting.

PROOF by Dick Francis (mystery). Tony Beach, a young widower, fights his grief by keeping busy at his wine shop and maintaining social contacts, activities that also help to quell the consciousness that he isn't brave like his forebears, honored war heroes. But Tony is equal to the challenge of rescuing victims of a tragic accident, teaming up with a stranger, Gerard McGregor, private detective. Later McGregor consults Tony as an enologist whose expertise the detective counts on as he tries to find hijackers of tankers filled with spirits. The police also request Tony's cooperation when they get reports of adulterated whiskey and wine at a local boite, the Silver Moonance. The cafe's steward is murdered in an unimaginably cruel way, a circumstance that increases Tony's fears. He continues to work with McGregor, nevertheless, even after they narrowly escape hired killers.

THE NANTUCKET DIET MURDERS. It is the middle of winter in Nantucket; more or less well-to-do widows who call themselves "Les Girls," gather to welcome home an old friend, Eugenia Potter, an erstwhile member of the group who now resides in Arizona and Maine. Their latest subject for talk is the arrival of a charismatic diet doctor, the mysterious Count Tony Ferencz, who has Les Girls all in a flutter and looking better than they have in years. No sooner has Eugenia arrived, however, than strange events begin to occur. An elderly lawyer, Oscar deBeveraux, is found dead of an apparent heart attack, and his secretary, Edith Rosborough, is stricken by a fatal, apparently allergic attack at a birthday party in her honor at the Scrimshaw Inn. One of the group, Beth Higginson, thinks she may be inadvertently responsible by accidentally substituting deadly herbs for safe ones. It is up to her friend Eugenia to clear up the mystery.

NOCTURNE FOR THE GENERAL by John Trenhaile (fiction). Former KGB intelligence chief Povin, now betrayed by his own deputy and marked for death, languishes in an Arctic detention camp. He is, however, an unwitting key to the "Chance Medley" code that his former boss, KGB chief Kazin desperately wants to break. Kazin sends divorcee and career officer Inna Karsova to interrogate Povin. The ensuing father-daughter attraction, though part of Kazin's plan, has unexpected consequences. British operative Sir Richard Bryant meanwhile presses his own counterplot to get Povin "out."

McLeody Days

By Bill McLeod

Friday I had one of my biggest newspaper problems flaunted in my face. Spelling.

I interviewed Kelley Champagne, the top speller of all intermediate school students in the area. I sat in awe as the sixth grade student spelled words that would take me hours to find in the dictionary.

I always wish that I had developed that rare ability to sound out and spell a word. In elementary school our spelling tests were corrected by other students. Another classmate (who says there is no honor among thieves, I will protect his identity until death) and I always used to correct each other's paper. For being such a lousy speller, I always got a decent grade in class.

Needless to say, when the school had a spelling bee, my friend and I never developed leg cramps from standing up too long.

Publisher John Haire and I have debated whether being a good speller is hereditary, or if a person is taught how to spell. Basically I feel that spelling is like music, either you got it, or you don't.

I can remember many nights sitting at my desk, going through a dictionary trying to find the correct spelling of a word that I can't even pronounce. There have been many occasions when the dictionary has taken a short flight across the room. At other times, I have called friends to look up the word for me. I haven't had to resort to calling the Rawson Memorial Library yet, but that's just because it is always late at night when I need help.

The terrible thing is, after all the effort I put into trying to catch my mistakes, a few, well maybe quite a few, still slip past me.

Fortunately, at the Chronicle, we have a system that works very well. The typesetter is a good speller, and the proofreader is even better. Few mistakes get by.

For me, this hasn't always been the case. At my first newspaper in Indiana, I wrote the stories, set the type, and then proofread the copy. It was like the blind leading the blind.

John Haire keeps saying that a person can make himself a better speller. He claims he did. I'll update this column in a few years, and we will see.

THE CASS CITY Intermediate School winners of the mathematics competition for sixth, seventh and eighth grade students were (from left), eighth grade: Shannon Lowry and Janet Koch; seventh grade: Judy Matthews and Mike Bills, and sixth grade: Chris Fruendt and Chris Herringshaw. The students will compete in the regional competition at Delta College, April 13. The mathematics competition is sponsored by the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

2 injured in auto accident

A Cass City man and a Unionville man were injured in an automobile accident April 4, three miles south of Unionville.

According to the report filed by Tuscola County Sheriff's Department Deputy Paul Strasz, Drew Guernsey, 29, 4593 N. Seeger St., Cass City, was westbound on Dickerson Road, when he pulled out in front of a vehicle driven by Robert Hempton, 7648 Forest Rd., Unionville. Hempton, 24, was southbound on Unionville Road.

According to the report, Hempton was unable to stop in time. The impact of the accident forced his vehicle off the road, traveling about 25 feet into a field. The accident happened at 6:40 p.m.

Hempton was treated at the Bay Medical Center, Bay City.

Guernsey sought his own treatment. Guernsey was cited for failure to yield right-of-way.

Deputy Richard Hofmeister reported that Nancy J. Rands, 18, 4362 Brooker St., Cass City, was not injured when she lost control of her vehicle while attempting to avoid a small animal. According to the report, Rands was eastbound on M-81, when she applied the brakes to avoid the animal. Her vehicle slid into a ditch. The accident happened Sunday at 9:45 p.m.

Deputy David Kennard reported Daryl L. Ostrander, 31, 6266 Deckerville Rd., Deford, was not injured when the steering wheel of his vehicle was jerked from his hands, causing him to lose control of the vehicle and strike a tree. According to the report, Ostrander was southbound on Washington Street, near Noble Street, Kingstons, when the accident happened Monday at 12:20 p.m.

Letter to the editor

Parent concerned about bus safety

Letter to the Editor,

Last week, Thursday, my son rode the C.C. School bus home. That day, he was hit on the head with a glass bottle. The right side of his head and ear bothered him the rest of the day. He was not cut. Whether it was accidental or plain mischief is neither here nor there. The older student had no business with a glass bottle on the bus.

Both my sons say the older students fight on the bus a lot, and that they lift the younger children in the air, hitting their heads to the top of the bus.

I phoned the Dept. of Transportation for CCPS. He was concerned over the mishap. He said, "It shouldn't have happened." The children were transported by a substitute driver that day. He would look into the matter.

How can we protect our children? I feel the elementary children should be transported separately. Or, a responsible adult placed on the buses to chaperone the children. A bus driver can't drive and discipline a bus load of children.

A concerned parent,

Haag injured in Saturday accident

A 21-year-old Cass City man was treated and released from Hills and Dales Hospital Saturday morning after he drove his vehicle into a ditch to avoid hitting a deer.

Huron County Sheriff's Department deputies reported that Brian L. Haag, 6651 Huron St., Cass City, was eastbound on Sebawang Road, about three miles east of Owendale, Saturday, at 5:30 a.m. when the accident happened. According to the report, Haag entered the ditch on the north side of the road, and he struck a small driveway and a mailbox post. He was taken to the hospital by a private vehicle.

Home improvements funded by HDC

The local Weatherization Project, funded by the Department of Labor, is operated by the Human Development Commission. In fiscal year 1983-84, there were 483 homes weatherized in Huron, Lapeer, Sanilac and Tuscola Counties.

Together with Detroit Edison and Consumers Power, HDC gave ceiling insulation to an additional 218 homes.

Since the program's beginning in 1976, a total of 3,311 homes have been weather insulated.

Since 1977, $8 million has been spent in the four-county area through HDC for home improvements. Included, besides weatherization, was home rehabilitation/repair work and home loans, along with the 32 unit Croswell housing complex for low-income seniors.

These programs and services have been possible through the cooperative efforts of the local county units of government in Huron, Lapeer, Sanilac and Tuscola Counties and through the village of Caro and the city of Crosswell.

HEALTH TIPS
Secondhand smoke affects health
The year 1984 marked the 20th anniversary of the first Surgeon General's report which brought national attention to the health hazards of smoking. During the past two decades though, few studies have been made on the effects of involuntary (or secondhand) smoking on the health of the nonsmoker. However, with increasing nonsmokers' rights legislation in several states, the problem of secondhand smoke is getting the attention it deserves. In a recent issue of the American Review of Respiratory Disease, the professional journal of doctors who care for lung patients, physicians described their concern about the health effects of secondhand smoke. Children of smoking parents were shown to suffer most from exposure to secondhand smoke. The authors of the article discussed numerous studies showing that children of smoking parents are more likely to develop chronic lung illnesses. They warn that parents of children with asthma should definitely not smoke because they could trigger an asthma episode, or "attack."

Studies have also been performed linking respiratory problems in the unborn child and the tendency to develop childhood lung diseases with mothers and mothers-to-be who smoke. Few conclusive studies have been performed directly relating lung illness and involuntary smoking in adults. The authors are quick to point out that secondhand smoke is an irritant clearly affecting some people more than others. Persons already suffering from chronic respiratory ailments such as emphysema and chronic bronchitis are especially vulnerable to the harmful effects of involuntary smoking. Lung cancer is more likely to occur among the nonsmoking spouses of heavy smokers than when neither spouse smokes. Since a vast majority of our time is spent indoors, a healthy indoor environment is essential.

For more information on secondhand smoke, please call your American Lung Association of Michigan toll free at 1-800-292-5979 or write ALAM, 403 Seymour Avenue, Lansing, Mich. 48914.

double play combination. "I think that this is where he belongs," Gyrko said about Whitaker playing second base. Gyrko, a retired farmer, lives at 1646 E. Akron Rd., Caro.

Gyrko follows the Tigers closely during the season. Monday he listened to the game on the drive to Cass City from his rural Caro home. Gyrko tries to watch all of the Tiger games that are broadcast on television. This year he hopes to attend his first game at Tiger Stadium. He feels that this might be the year he makes it because he has recently retired from farming.

OK overtime to speed farm loans

Farmers Home Administration has been authorized an additional $30,000 to pay overtime to FmHA personnel to help speed up farm loan processing, according to State Director Calvin C. Lutz.

"These funds, which are in addition to our normal overtime allotment, will help us get more operating loan funds into the hands of farmers in time for spring planting," Lutz said.

"FmHA county supervisors and their staffs in 40 county offices around the state are working as fast as possible to process loans under the FmHA's normal farm loan programs as well as handling the more than 2676 requests for loan reviews under the debt restructuring initiatives. This overtime will help speed up processing of all these loans," Lutz said.

"In addition to the overtime authorization, we have hired 28 temporary employees to help FmHA county offices process loans," Lutz said. We are completing the hiring of another six temporary personnel. The Soil Conservation Service, the Extension Service and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service have offered several of their employees from around the state to help FmHA in county offices.

Champagne to compete in statewide spelling bee

At the ripe old age of 12, Kelley Champagne has proven herself as the best speller of all intermediate school students in the five-county area. Champagne earned the title by first winning the Cass City Intermediate School spelling bee, then defeating the 16 best spellers from intermediate schools in the five-county area.

Champagne now has the opportunity to prove her ability in a state-wide competition that will pit the sixth grade student against the top intermediate school spellers from all over Michigan. In her last two spelling bees, Champagne has been able to outspell students that are two years her senior.

"It comes pretty natural with her," Kelley's mother, Susan Champagne said about her daughter's spelling ability. "She gets straight A's in spelling and she doesn't have to study."

This is the third year that Champagne has entered into spelling competitions. Each year she has improved.

As a fourth grade student at the Deford Elementary School, she finished fifth at the Tuscola County Skill Center spelling bee. Last year, as a fifth grade student, she finished third in the Cass City Intermediate School spelling bee.

Champagne explained that she breaks complicated words down into syllables, then spells the syllables as separate words. As an example, she spells the word autonomous "auto-nomous." For a difficult word, such as sphygmomanometer, she memorizes the spelling until she can picture the complete word in her mind. She is then able to recall the spelling.

"I have been devoting a little more time each day to studying my spelling," she said. Since the competition began, she has been studying spelling word lists for about an hour each day.

"She has gotten a lot of support from the school," Kelley's father, Dave Champagne, said. Her teacher has given Champagne time to practice during the school day. After school her mother goes over the word lists with Champagne for about a half hour each evening.

Whenever Champagne misspells a word on the list, her mother marks the word for extra practice.

"I have learned a lot of new words by helping her," Susan Champagne said.

Being a good speller is hereditary in the family. Susan Champagne said she was a good speller, and Kelley's younger brother, Matt, a second grade student at Deford Elementary School, is able to spell some of the easier words on Kelley's word study lists.

During the final round of the regional spelling bee recently held in Lapeer, Champagne correctly spelled "isogram" and "zonation" to win the competition.

She will compete at the April 17 state-wide spelling

Melanie Joles to compete in Grand Rapids

She is the granddaughter of Nathan and Esther Joles of Gageton and Chuck and Mary Gramer of Lapeer. She is in the second grade at Bach-Killmanagh Lutheran School.

The winner of the pageant will receive a $1,000 savings bond, crown, banner and round-trip flight to the National Pageant to compete with other state winners.

bee competition held at Lawrence Institute of Technology. The spelling bee is sponsored by the college, and the Detroit News.

If Champagne wins the state competition, she will qualify for the national competition in Washington, D.C. The contestants and their parents will receive a one-week vacation in the nation's capital.

Bird behavior

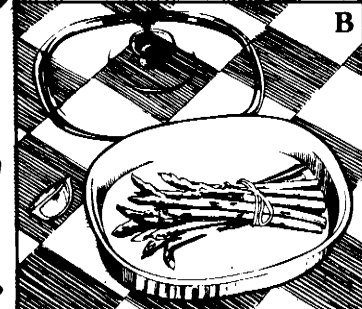

Maggie birds follow one of the more unusual displays of bird behavior, says International Wildlife magazine. After the death of a fellow magpie, the flock assembles, then one by one, or in groups of two or three, the magpies swoop down to peck at the dead companion. According to an Idaho State University researcher they conduct these elaborate funeral "rites" to find out what killed the magpie and to see which of them died, so they will know how the death will affect the pecking order.

SWOOPING IN TO the parking lot at Colony House Tuesday noon was Mrs. Paula Blanchard, wife of Governor James Blanchard. The first lady made the quick trip to Cass City to address an estimated 325 members of the Farm Bureau District 6 Women's Association. Greeting her after she stepped off the helicopter was Marvin Winter, Colony House owner.

AROUND THE FARM
Eliminate hazards
By Bill Bortel

Farmers need to stay healthy to maintain a successful operation. Eliminating farm machine hazards is one way to minimize the risk of an accident.
"Operating machinery is always potentially hazardous, but risks can be reduced by recognizing the hazards and taking steps to avoid them," says Howard Doss, Extension agricultural safety specialist at Michigan State University.
Most machine hazards can be eliminated by simply disengaging the power, shutting off the engine and waiting for all moving parts to stop moving. Basic safety measures when handling farm equipment include making sure shields or guards are properly installed before using equipment. Remember, part of the cost of the machine went into safety research, design and hardware. Get your money's worth by using it.
Not all of a machine's functional components can be shielded, however. Operators need to recognize these areas and try to stay away from them.
Most agricultural machinery has some common hazard areas involving moving parts that operators should recognize. Shear cutting edges, like those on rotary shredders and cutters, usually can't be shielded, so they are areas where injury could occur. Pinch points -- places where two objects move toward each other -- are found on belt drives, chain drives and feed rolls, and can cause injuries by drawing in or crushing fingers, hands, arms or legs.
Unprotected rotating shafts, such as those found in augers, are dangerous in two ways. They can either draw someone into the machinery or entangle loose clothing or hair. Once a person is caught in a rotating shaft or wrap point, the more he or she tries to pull away from the moving part, the tighter the item wraps.
Accidents can be caused by objects thrown from such machinery as rotary mowers, straw choppers or shredders. Heavy objects are thrown the farthest from this machinery. A rock that flies out mixed with the hay or straw being cut may injure someone. Knowing the directions that objects can be thrown from the machine and avoiding that danger zone will reduce accident risk.
Slipping and falling is the most common farm accident. Many injuries can be avoided by using the steps and handholds provided on machinery, taking time to remove buildup of slippery materials and wearing shoes with slip-resistant soles. Jumping off equipment should be discouraged.
Most accidents are caused by human error. Those errors can be nearly eliminated by recognizing hazardous situations and taking the proper precautions to reduce risks.

Lamb sale Saturday at Sandusky

Thumb Sheep Breeders will hold their annual club lamb sale Saturday, April 13, at the Sanilac County Fairgrounds in Sandusky. A pre-contest judging clinic will be held, starting at 10:30 a.m. In addition to reviewing what to look for in selection of quality lambs, Gary Weber, Cooperative Extension Service Area Livestock Agent, will be providing feeding and disease prevention tips. A judging contest will be held at 11:00 a.m. for everyone interested in participating. There will be three divisions and trophies will be awarded to the winner of each division. The divisions are: youth, 13 and under; youth 14 and 18, and adults, 19 and over. The three classes that will be judged are club lambs, ewe lambs and yearling ewes.

In addition, a trophy will be awarded for a special class, the Trifecta. In the trifecta, judging scores, as well as scores on identifying parts of the lamb, wholesale cuts and record analysis, will be added together for this special event.

At 1:00 p.m., approximately 40-50 club lambs along with 10 to 12 ewe lambs and yearling ewes will be auctioned.

Thumb Sheep Breeders represent breeders from Huron, Sanilac, Macomb, St. Clair and Lapeer Counties.

For more information on the sale, call Stanley Jackman at 313/679-2279 or Rich Trepkowski at 517/658-8193.

Following a trend started by food stores in major cities, the Cass City IGA Foodliner this week announced that, effective Monday, there is a 30-day price freeze.

Mrs. Greg Hanselman and children, Misty and Adam, of Deckerville and Mrs. Steven Eyer and Jennifer visited their grandmother, Mrs. Lilah Wilhelmi, Saturday afternoon.

The Deford Craft Club will meet Monday evening. Hostesses are Theresa Sugden, Carolyn Rutkoski and Frances Kloc.

TEN YEARS AGO

Heavy snow, piled into mountainous drifts by high winds, brought activity in Cass City and the tri-county area to a standstill Thursday. The storm forced Tuscola County Sheriff's patrol cars off the roads early Thursday morning, along with County Road Commission crews. Officially 17 inches of snow fell in the county.

The Ladies Aid of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church met Monday. Seventeen members were present. Mrs. Gloria Ouvry was received into membership. President Linda Voss presided over a business meeting and Judy VanDellen led devotions.

A Deford woman has graduated at Lackland AFB, Tex., from the technical training course for U.S. Air Force law enforcement specialists. Airman First Class Shirley R. Henrichs, daughter of Mrs. Betty Maynard of Deford, was trained in security and law enforcement. She now goes to Kinchloe AFB, Mich., for duty with a unit of the Strategic Air Command.

Lions Clubs of District 11-D held their spring conference Sunday at Chesaning, with 403 members present. Attending from Cass City were Past District Governor and Mrs. Al Witherspoon, Treasurer and Mrs. Jim Guinther and Secretary and Mrs. Ron Keegan. The women represented the local Lions Auxiliary.

25 YEARS AGO

The Gagetown Farm Bureau met Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Hobart.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kehoe, Steve and Terry were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hewitt of Detroit.

George Clara and Orville Mallory of Croft-Clara Lumber Company recently completed a comprehensive dealer training course for Pruden clear span buildings at Pruden Products Company, Evansville, Wis.

A district forensic contest was held at Cass City Elementary School Tuesday. There were four schools competing. Winning the local contest makes some Cass City students eligible for the next contest. They are Margaret Matuszak, Bonnie DeLong, Marilyn Erla and Grant Zinnecker. James Rawson was the master of ceremonies. The Cass City team was coached by Mrs. Brewster Shaw. Sandra Bassett was time keeper.

A Cass City school bond issue to be placed before the electors April 25 calls for the addition of 1.75 mills for 10 years. It will be used to add four more rooms, library and restroom facilities to the grade school. Passing of the issue would increase the debt service to 4.25 mills, one of the lowest in the Thumb area.

Linda Adams
Arts director

The Caro Arts Society announces the appointment of Linda Adams of Cass City as the first Executive Director of the local arts group.

Adams is a graduate of Central Michigan University and has worked with the MSU Cooperative Extension Service for the past four years. Her time as an extension home economist has given her valuable management and teaching experience. "We look forward to Linda helping the Caro Arts Society grow and expand to meet the needs of Tuscola County," says John Hunter, president of the CAS Board of Directors.

The hiring of the director was made possible by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts. Adams will work on a part-time basis for CAS and also complete her responsibilities with the Cooperative Extension Service on a part-time basis through May of this year. Her hours at the Arts Society will be Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8-3 p.m.

Adams will be available to speak to individuals and groups about the Caro Arts Society. For more information, call her at 673-5266.

MS branch

Each year, the Michigan chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society presents an award for public relations and communications. This year, the Greater Flint Area branch received the award for the second year in a row.

The award is presented to the branch where public relations activities increase the awareness of multiple sclerosis and the work of the MS society.

Multiple sclerosis, a disease of the central nervous system that is often confused with muscular dystrophy, strikes nearly 200 people a week in the U.S. and Michigan has one of the highest incident rates, according to John Pyles, Public Relations chairman.

First track meet Monday

Grezeszak looking for a good year from Hawks

Coach Doug Grezeszak is usually high on his teams' chances of winning all the honors on any given spring, and this season he is more confident than ever over the chances of his girls' team and is guardedly confident about the boys.

He feels that the boys' team has an excellent chance of repeating as Thumb B Association champion, an honor won last year for the first time in 20 years. He says Cass City has enough talent to win it all despite the loss of Greg Bliss, a premier sure punt winner in the distances, and Mike Mid-dough, tops in the long jump and hurdles. Gone, too, is Scott Hurford, the top high jumper in 1984.

Part of Grezeszak's optimism stems from the caliber of play in the Thumb B. It promises to be weak this season, the coach says.

He looks for Vassar to be tougher and sees Marlette much improved. We could finish anywhere from first to fifth, Grezeszak says, because we have an attitude problem on the team.

Some of the players failed to come out for track and others may have their season "end prematurely," the coach said grimly.

Expected to anchor the team are four lettermen. Kevin Bliss and Del Kostanko will show the way in the distances and Joe Viney and Bryan Beecher are the Hawk hopes in the sprints. Jeff LaBelle is the top middle distance man.

Grezeszak has a roster that originally included 48 candidates. Already about eight of these athletes have dropped out of the program, he reports. For that reason we will delay team pictures until later in the season, he added.

GIRLS' TEAM

We should make it five years in a row that the girls have won or shared the Thumb B Association track championship, Grezeszak says.

We should win, he adds, even though we lost four athletes who made it to the state finals last season.

Start with Lori Calka and Jamie LaRoche, tops in the sprints and long jump. The pair dominated the long jump and it may be awhile before Cass City produces two athletes as good in any one event.

Also qualifying for the state were Kerry McIlrath in the middle distance and Lynn Schmidt in sprints and high jump.

Last year the team was first in the Thumb B Association league meet to share the conference crown, was third in the regionals and sixth in the tough Central Michigan University relays.

Credit the foreign exchange student program for part of the optimism by the coach. Karianne Henni and Henriette Fankhauser, exchange students, are running the distance events and are doing very well.

Cathy Britt and JoAnn Steely are back to help in the shot and discus. Adding strength to the middle distance events and the relays will be Britt, Chris Tuckey and Jeanne Marshall. Dawn Schmalz is a premier hurdler.

The coaches have a gleam in their eyes when they watch Gilly Bryant perform. She was first in the Caro Meet of Champs in the quarter mile and qualified for the state finals. She has worked hard this winter and coaches are looking for big things from her in the half mile this season.

Freshmen who have shown promise are Katy Scollon, distance; Holly Steinbauer and Teri Wilson, sprints.

David McPhail wins two silver medals at Special Olympics

David McPhail proved that he has the "right stuff" to compete in international Olympic competition. David, 12, son of Charles McPhail, 2676 Englehart Rd., Cass City, won two silver medals at the 1985 International Special Olympic games recently held in Park City, Utah.

A student at Highland Pines, David was one of 24 students from Michigan who competed against 800 students from 14 countries. Michigan students earned 48 bronze, silver and gold medals. David earned his two medals in Alpine Skiing Competition, intermediate division. He competed in downhill, giant slalom and slalom events.

David's coach, Dick Salo, Grand Rapids, described David as being one of the "up and coming special Olympic stars." During one race, David struck something in the snow, and was spun around in a circle. He was able to regain his composure, and finish second, earning him one of his two silver medals. This is David's second season of skiing.

David earned the right to represent Michigan at the International Special Olympics when he won a bronze medal at the Michigan Special Olympics earlier this year.

David's expenses during the five-day Utah trip were paid for by the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation, sponsors of the Special Olympics. The foundation receives funding from individuals and corporations.

David was also given a complete ski outfit from a

JIM HILLAKER won a trophy and $100 for taking second place in the Tuscola Area Bowl Down Cancer bowling tournament at the Charmont March 19. Hillaker, 6930 Van Dyke Rd., Cass City, bowled a 769 series. He carries a 135 average.

Deford home entered

Tuscola County Sheriff's Department Deputy James Compo reported that a house at 1696 Phillips Rd., Deford, had been broken into.

Compo was called to investigate the house by the owner's daughter, Dorothy M. Campbell, 5560 Bond Rd., Deford. According to the report, her father recently died, and she didn't know when the house was last checked. Compo investigated the house Sunday at 4:59 p.m.

An entry door to the house had been kicked in. Nothing was reported missing.

Grass fire

Fire Chief Jerome Root said the fire was started by an unattended fire in a trash barrel. The barrel did not have any screen covering. The fire spread to the ground and burned off about three acres of grass. There were no damages reported.

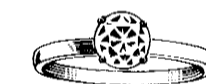

The department responded to a Detroit Edison transformer fire April 5 at 12:15 p.m. The fire was out when the department arrived. The transformer was located at the corner of Germania and Severance Roads.

Missouri increases taxes

The prevailing attitude in the "Show Me" state of Missouri seems to be, "Show me a good cause, and I'll willingly pay more taxes," says National Wildlife magazine. In both 1976 and 1984, as other tax-raising measures were defeated, the citizens of Missouri approved increases in the state sales tax to fund conservation programs. So far, no other state has followed suit.

Wright had been in her classroom for about 15 seconds that day.

Kropewnicki said that she later asked Erickson to sit in on her classes and evaluate her performance. "He responded, quote, 'I walk the halls enough to know what is going on in your classroom,' end of quote," Kropewnicki said.

Goslin asked Kropewnicki if she would withdraw her resignation. She agreed, and discussions on Erickson's recommendation that she not be granted tenure were opened. At Kropewnicki's request, the discussion was held in open session.

Erickson recommended that Kropewnicki not be granted tenure because of her failure to discipline students, failure to meet standards, and inadequate teaching techniques.

Erickson explained that Wright makes the evaluations of the teachers, and from those evaluations Erickson makes his recommendations.

Dorsch asked how often Kropewnicki was evaluated, and where the evaluation reports on her were. Dorsch explained the teacher's contract requires four evaluations a year, that are to be presented to the teacher.

Erickson said that there were no evaluation forms on Kropewnicki. He had a letter from Wright, reprimanding her for having students sitting on her desk.

"Is that the time Wright evaluated her? When he walked in there for 15 seconds and seen the kids sitting around the desk. Is that when she was evaluated?" Dorsch questioned Erickson.

Erickson explained that he and Wright had been in the room several times. "I wrote nothing down," Erickson said.

Goslin asked members of the audience if they had talked to Wright about teacher evaluations. One woman said that Wright told her he didn't have time to make evaluations.

"If he says that, then I think he should make time," said board member Jack Brinkman.

Owen-Gage Teacher's Union Representative Manuel Thies explained the evaluation forms are not meant to destroy a teacher, but to help correct any problems.

Kropewnicki said that Wright had been in her classroom about five times during her two years at Owen-Gage.

The possibility of granting a third year probationary period for Kropewnicki was discussed.

Erickson and Kropewnicki both agreed against it.

Board member Donna Salcido made a motion that Kropewnicki be granted tenure. When put to a roll call vote, the audience applauded when board member Joseph Warack cast the majority vote in favor of Kropewnicki. There were no votes cast against keeping the teacher.

After the meeting Erickson was asked how he feels about the board overturning his recommendation. "That is their prerogative. They've done it before, and they will do it again."

Kropewnicki said she was satisfied with the decision, and she was very pleased that residents of the school district supported her.

DON DORSCH, Owendale, presented petitions, and his opinion on Owen-Gage school board members at the Monday night meeting.

ABOUT 125 teachers, parents and students were at the Owen-Gage school board meeting, airing their opinions on the resignation of high school special education teacher Catherine Kropewnicki. Seated (third from left), Manuel Thies, Mike Kropewnicki and Catherine Kropewnicki.

Dear Brother Willie:
This time I've got you, smarty.

I sent for a book on investments. It's called "How To Do Everything Right," and it cost me $16.95. Already it is paying for itself. Nevertheless I am going to charge you for half the cost of this idea, which is fair enough, for then we will both save money.

I will tell you this slick stunt and you can pay me later. I quote from the book:

"Try buying short maturity bonds at a discount on full margin. This lets you convert the interest payments into a capital gain since they can be postponed to the bond's maturity."

"EXAMPLE: Buy a low-face-value bond currently selling at $900. Put up $300 and borrow $600, which is tax deductible. In two years when the bond matures, you will have a $100 capital gain plus the interest."

When you're through blushing for taking advice from little old me, send me half the $16.95, whatever that comes to.

—Baby Sister

Income in two years:

Interest on $1,000 bond at 5%.....$100
Less tax of 35%, net.....$65
Capital gains of $100, less tax.....$65
Net after-tax income in 2 years.....$151
(Capital gains tax is based on 40 percent of the gain bracket of 35 percent we assumed.)

Since you borrowed $600 for 2 years, figure:

Cost of borrowing $600 for 2 years at 13%.....$156
Less deduction in income tax, net after tax cost.....$101

You take in $151 after tax, and it has cost you net $101. You've made $50 in two years on the $300 of your own you invested. That's 8.3 percent per year, after tax. Big deal.

It would be simpler to invest your cash in tax-free bonds. You avoid going into hock and get the same net return even in a two-year bond.

Organic Growers slate meet at Kingston hall

Dear, dear Baby Sister:
The only thing that "How To..." book has done is to show you how to part with $16.95.

I will spell it out, dropping in a few words and figures the author conveniently left out.

So you buy a discount bond. Not a "low-face-value" one as your $16.95 book says; all bonds have a $1,000 par or "face" value. The discount bond in our example has a coupon or interest rate of 5 percent. You buy it at 90, which means you pay $900 for it. In two years it's worth $1,000.

You get part of your income from the 5 percent coupon and the rest from appreciation — from $900 to $1,000.

It figures out to an annual yield of 10.7 percent before taxes. Assume a tax bracket of 35 percent. Now we spell it all out:

The next meeting of the Thumb Area Chapter of Organic Growers of Michigan will be held Thursday, April 18, at 7:30 p.m. at the Kingston Firehall, located a quarter mile south of the blinking light on M-46.

Guest speaker will be Marvin Longuski, an Agricultural Technology Instructor at St. Clair County Community College, Port Huron. His topic will be "General Gardening and Horticulture."

For more information call Joe Doerr 313-235-6324 or Dennis Lasceski 517-269-7980.

The word queue is the only word in the English language that is still pronounced the same way when the last four letters are removed.

Killer chemical

The chemical that killed more than 2,000 people near a Union Carbide plant in Bhopal, India — methylisocyanate — is not regulated as a hazardous air pollutant in the United States, reports International Wildlife magazine, even though it is manufactured here.
