It's back to square one as zoning change rescinded

At a Cass City Village meeting Tuesday night, trustees decided to rescind a motion they made to the village council, requesting changes in the home occupation ordinance.

The proposed ordinance changes stem from a Sept. 20 commission meeting, hen trustees requested anley Woodhause of Vilican-Leman and Associates. Inc., Southfield, the village's planning consultant, to review the home occupation ordinance, and recommend changes.

At a Nov. 20 planning commission meeting, trustees approved four proposed ordinance changes to 's sent to the village coun-

Woodhause proposed that Commission home occupations shall be located within the house, and shall not occupy any garage or accessory structure. Modifications to the house that change the residential character of the structure are not allowed. Display of merchandise, products and services or window displays are not allowed.

The original ordinance states there shall be no alteration in the residential character or function of the house, nor shall any garage, accessory building or parking area be used.

Woodhause's third proposed change would allow a nonilluminated nameplate, not larger than two square feet to be placed in the front yard. The present ordinance states the nameplate may be attached to the building.

Woodhause recommended that no more than two people shall at any one time be employed with the home occupation. The present ordinance states that no more than one assistant employee shall be employed, providing that family members shall not be counted as employees.

Trustee Curt Strickland said that when planning commission and village council members met recently, village attorney House Clinton recommended the ordinance remain the same.

"Clint's (House) opinion is that our ordinance, the way it is now, is appropriate," Strickland said.

Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie said that in the past 12½ years the vil-

School board nixes June millage vote

While a request for additional taxes for curriculum enrichment is far from dead, it now appears certain that Cass City School District taxpayers will not face a millage election immediately.

The school board Monday, at its regular meeting, was advised by Supt. Don Crouse that any millage request that would be placed on the ballot in the regular June election would have to be decided in April.

The board does not want to make any decision until the report from the Citizen's Advisory Committee is completed in June.

According to Crouse, the group has worked hard to present a list of school needs and rank them in order of priority.

He said that members have indicated that top priority items will probably be addition of an elementary physical education teacher and expanded elementary counseling ser-

A June report by the Advisory Committee means that the earliest curriculum enrichment could be achieved would be the second semester next year. That's because it normally takes nearly three months to conduct an election.

QUESTION CHARGE

The board is questioning a sharp increase in the budget for the Regional Educational Media Center (REMC). The center furnishes film clips and other teacher aids to schools in Huron, Tuscola and Sanilac

Director Don Richards has requested an increase from $208,300 to $275,652, about 32 percent. Crouse feels that is too much for one year and suggests that spreading the increase over two years would be more

While the total budget from all sources is up 32 percent, the amount that Cass City would pay more than doubles from $3,096 to Richards will be invited to attend the next meeting to discuss his request.

While the REMC request is on hold, three other changes concerning curriculum were approved.

Laura Schinnerer asked for a change in the reading series for special education. New books for grades kindergarten to fourth for

$1,408; fifth and sixth for $427 and 7th and 8th for $420 were approved. Students in grades 10, 11 and 12 can attend summer vocational classes at Tuscola Area Skill Center. There are two 12-day sessions running for five hours daily. Each session completed earns the student one-quarter of a credit.

An agreement was reached with the Tri-County Bargaining Association to pay teachers for pre-kindergarten testing. Teachers will be paid $11.17 for each two students tested in 1984-85 and $11.73 in 1985-86. It takes about an hour to conduct two tests

Based on the number of students in kindergarten this year, the cost of the testing will be about $475.

NEW PROGRAM

Karen Wallace reported on a new program at the school whereby members of the National Honor Society act as tutors for other high school students. She said that 26 students volunteered to be tutors and 21 students are receiving tutoring. There are five more tutors available when needed.

When a tutor has worked for 10 hours, a pin will be awarded. After that, each additional hour will bring other recognition, Wallace

DNR brine rule raises no dust

A new Department of to use either rock salt or Natural Resources order that will eventually prohibit the use of brine for dust and ice control on Michigan roads, is not expected to affect Tuscola County residents this summer. It may cause an added expense to the county road commission during the winter, when brine from county owned wells is used to melt ice.

Mike Gleeson, road superintendent for the Tuscola County Road Commission explained that last summer the county used only calcium chloride for dust control. It was the first year the county did not use brine. Gleeson explained that they switched to chloride because the brine was not effective at controlling dust, and because they were anticipating the new DNR regulations.

According to DNR reports, the brine from oil and gas production will eventually be phased out over the next three years because of possible groundwater contaminations.

sult of oil and gas production. The five county owned wells are old, and will be tested to see if they meet DNR guidelines.

During the winter the brine has been used on county primary and secondary roads. On state highways the county uses the more expensive rock salt.

Gleeson explained that if the county is not allowed to use their brine for ice-control, they would be forced liquid calcium chloride. "Both are a lot more expensive than brine," Gleeson added.

Last year, when the county switched from brine to liquid calcium chloride for dust control, they accepted a low bid of $285 for each 1,000 gallons of chloride, from Bay Dust Control, Bay City. Each 1,000 gallon unit will control dust on one mile of road. "We did it last year,"

Gleeson said about using calcium chloride on the roads. "It is a lot more expensive than brine, but it does do a better job." The county paid $150 of the $285. Townships that agreed to have the chloride applied, paid the rest. Last year, Novesta Township paid $2,100 to have the calcium chloride applied in front of each house in the township.

Clerk Nursie Kloc said the chloride is more effective, and lasts longer than the brine that was previously used. "Two applications of that (chloride) is supposed to make a good hard surface," Kloc said. Township Ellington Supervisor Jack Kappen said he feels the chloride treatments are a waste of money for the township, because they do not last. Ellington did not use chloride last year, and it is not planned for this year.

Kappen said that he read articles on possible health and water runoff problems from the chemicals used for dust control.

"Why take a chance," Kappen said. "I would rather have a little dust in my lungs instead of some chemicals.'

Elkland Township has not been using brine or chloride.

Zinnecker, 49, spent the first 13 years of his career as a mail carrier and counter clerk. He has been Superintendent of Postal Operations for the past seven years. His service with the Cass City Post Office was interrupted for three years, from 1954 to 1957, while he worked for another government agency, the United States Army.

"I just tried to learn as many aspects of the business as I could," Zinnecker said about earning his recent promotion. He added that he had a good boss to teach him, and good people to work with.

At the swearing in ceremony, Loren C. Glover, Manager/Postmaster for the Management Sectional Center, Saginaw, congratulated Zinnecker on his appointment, and thanked Glaspie and Officer in charge, Betty J. Mason, for a job well done.

Postmasters from Marlette, Caro, Deford, Clifford, Clare and Unionville attended the swearing in ceremony.

Mason will return to Saginaw to serve in a supervisory position, and eventually to another officer in charge or postmaster's position.

"It has been a pleasure to work here," Mason said. "I hate to leave.

Slate CF Bike-A-Thon

The Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is staging a Bike-A-Thon May 18 at the Lions pavilion in Cass City. The goal is to raise money for people who have cystic fibrosis (CF).

Only 25 years ago, children with CF rarely lived long enough to enter grade school. Now, due to research accomplishments and improved treatment, nearly half of all CF babies will live past the age of 21. But there is no test to identify a CF carrier and there is no cure for the disease. "That's why the need for funds is so crucial," said Harry Roth, chairperson of the event. "We could use the help of every child and adult who would like to participate actively or sponsor those who do.

"Just come to Deford Country Grocery or phone 872-3196 or 872-4018, to get sponsor sheets," said Roth. "Then go to your relatives, friends, neighbors, schoolmates or coworkers and get them to pledge a certain amount for each mile you achieve. The idea is to get as many sponsors as possible so that a lot of people are paying for your efforts.

It was a two-man bull session pitting a liberal against a conservative. Not an ultra liberal and not a staunch conservative, but two guys who leaned in opposite directions.

I guess we still do, but the gulf between us has shrunk. That was apparent when we started talking at lunch about a recent newscast over public television.

According to the reporter, the $4 billion increase in Federal spending for basic war related research was greater than the EN-TIRE budget for basic medical research for cancer, heart disease and other similar killers.

We agreed that our priorities are askew. As a conservative he would probably approve more defense spending than I, but the gap has narrowed.

What concerns both of us is the seemingly wider gulf between the haves and the have nots. More rich people, more poor people and comparatively fewer in the middle class.

What really bugs me, he said, is the number of people that have worked all their lives and suddenly find themselves without a job. Or with a job that won't them enjoy the minimum standard of living that the vast majority of Americans have en-

These people can't afford insurance or any protection at all. We have to do something about that.

Looking at it from the perspective of the guy without a job, or with subsistence level work, you question where the guys with jobs in the auto plants and the steel plants are coming from.

It must rub them raw when they hear of all the complaints givebacks and recovering what was lost through contract re-negotiations.

Every time big unions negotiate more benefits and high wages it makes it that much harder for the subsistence level employee. Or for that matter the worker in other industries where wages are about half of that of auto workers.

Spending money on deprobably won't change these inequities. But a determined look for solutions by the government just might.

That $4 billion tossed away for war research might bring some astonishing results if channeled towards solving the basic problems facing the unemployed and the underemployed.

Even if the results were zilch the country would be no worse off than it is when billions are spent for guns that are obsolete almost before the contracts are signed and our tax dollars start flowing away.

Emily's day

By Jim Fitzgerald

It was the supreme test for the grandfather who claims it is easy to make a three-year-old granddaughter be a good girl all you have to do is give her everything she wants and do everything she tells you to do. Emily and I spent an afternoon together in a shopping mall.

I bought her popcorn and pop, a cheeseburger and french fries, Tootsie Roll and chocolate milk shake. I said it was OK when she spilled the shake all over her shirt, and I didn't panic when we lost her purse. When she ran 10 stores ahead of me, I continued to push her Cabbage Patch doll in a stroller, even though people kept looking at me strangely. I stood in line for 20 minutes so Emily could have her picture taken sitting on the Easter Rabbit's lap, and when she wasn't satisfied with the first photo, I went back and did it again. Our only reason for being alive on that day was to see "The Care Bears Movie," and I agreed to sit in the very first row. To see the screen, I had to look straight up. This hurt my neck, but I told myself I was getting in shape for taking her to the fireworks next

The Care Bears are a bunch of animals who believe in unilateral caring about everybody. They might be a communist plot except they also believe in selling their bodies for reproduction on everything a capitalistic society can manufacture for children. Mickey Rooney narrated the movie, playing the role of a devoted father and husband, and I kept myself awake by trying to recall the names of the nine women he has married since he was Andy Hardy.

During the scary parts, Emily scrunched her face against the back of the seat so she wouldn't see what happened on the screen. She ordered me to do the same thing and I did. I figured if I hid my face, none of the pretty young mothers in the audience would recognize me as the same strange old guy they saw outside pushing a doll in a

As a confirmed non-shopper, this was my first extended tour of a shopping mall, and I was unprepared for the unlikely stores into which Emily led me. Rather than simply saying no, as though I weren't a sappy grandfather, I told Emily the heartwarming, born-free story about when her Uncle Nerd was a little boy and received a live bunny for Easter. I told her the little bunny was terribly unhappy living in a cage, but when it was allowed to run around the house like a cat, it went to the bathroom everywhere except the bathroom. So we took it to a forest and set it free to roam and be happy with other free rabbits.

"Boy," Emily said, "if I had a rabbit that pooped in the house, I'd get a car and run over it.'

McLeody Days

Each year at this time it is a safe bet that I have "made several hundred practice casts in my back yard, getting ready to head for my favorite fishin' hole. It is also a safe bet that by now every tree branch in the neighborhood has at -least 30 feet of fishing line Thanging from it. That's one of the nice things about being out on a lake, I seldom get hung up on a tree Þranch.

fancy turns to....fishing.

There are always a few things that I can count on at the start of each fishing iseason.

The first day of fishing, no matter how early I get up, it will be at least 9:30 a.m. before I get the boat in the water. I can never seem to remember to buy a fishing license until I have falready driven to the lake. A quick rush to the nearest tackle shop and I am ready. My old Johnson 10-horse boat motor will start on the first pull, when it is in a trash can full of water. As soon as I push away from the dock, I will flood the motor, foul both spark plugs, and will soon find myself hopelessly drifting into the lake.

My trusty oars, left in the summer, will snap off as soon as they hit the water. When the shoreline becomes a small brown streak on the horizon I will to start the motor, and throw out the anchor. After about 10 seconds, as the last of the anchor line is sucked over the side of the boat, it will dawn on me that I forgot to secure the anchor rope. Fortunately, I have scuba diving friends who pick up a few extra bucks selling anchors they find at the bottom of the river. I am sure I have purchased the same anchor three times.

Eventually I will swallow my pride, and accept a tow back into shore from another fisherman.

Now comes the fun part, backing the trailer into the water to retrieve my boat. After about a half-hour of sweating, straining and threatening to leave the boat for someone else, I finally get close enough to drag the boat on the trailer. Much to the "Rolaids" of the other fishermen, I hightail it out of their way.

Early in the afternoon I drag myself back home to the warmth and security of my family.

Diane greets me with her usual "How's fishing?" "Not bad, but I only caught a few. Not enough for a meal, so I gave them to another fisherman," my standard line. I figure I have spent bottom of the boat all last about $1,000 on a boat, motor and trailer, fishing licenses, and tackle during the last five years. Since then, the only fish dinner we have had was at the Red realize my futility in trying Lobster.

Government should change spending habits

How do you feel about the present use of federal income tax money, and are the forms too difficult to fill

"Truthfully, I am against the whole system," said Tim Phillips, 79, Cass City. "I don't like it, and it is too complicated."

Phillips has his tax forms filled out by a tax preparing firm. "I never fill them out. They are too complicated for me," he added.

Phillips said that at one time he felt that a straight tax, where everyone paid the same percentage of tax would be a good thing. Now he isn't sure if that is the answer. He explained that if big businessmen and corporations have their taxes increased, then they will pass it on to the consumer. "It's a rip off," Phillips said about how the tax structure is set up.

Phillips criticized President Reagan's use of federal tax dollars, explaining the money spent on defense is not the answer to the world problems, adding the U.S. Assigned to a remote base, he is given the nebulous duty of traveling to the surrounding villages every day to dole out free vitamins and pills to the natives. His driver, an enlisted man named Tom, is the antithesis to David's scholarly naivete. Tom is young but tuned in to the toughest intricacies of the war. As the two men make their rounds to the villages on the distant outskirts of the base, they begin to learn that the terror of the war is closer to them than they

INSIDE, OUTSIDE by Herman Wouk (fiction). For Israel

David Goodkind, a middle-aged special assistant to President Nixon during Watergate, life consists of the

"inside" world of piety, clannish Jews and reverently observed traditions, and the gentile "outside" world, rife childhood as dominated by his parents, people to whom being Jewish "meant everything." Although Goodkind dutifully follows the precepts of Judaism, he prefers the name David to that of Israel, and he joyfully ends his Talmudic studies when he is accepted at Columbia University. There he transgresses for the first time by taking an exam on a Jewish holiday; even more calamitous is his romance with an Irish showgirl. Not until late in his life, when Goodkind realizes that the heritage he nearly abandoned is as essential to his happiness as is his pride in small town in upstate New York, Justin Stokes has begun her 14th summer. She is confused, adrift, overwhelmed by the loss of her extraordinary and beloved grandparents, and by the absurd death of her charming father in an automobile accident; her gracious home and secure life in her native Virginia have suddenly dissolved. Justin and her childish, self-effacing mother have been grafted onto the household of a well-meaning aunt with an acute business sense but no cultivation. Living nearby are the DeVanes, the last of an old Huguenot landed family. It is Justin's nurturing friendship with Ursula DeVane, the richly multifaceted older woman, who sees possibilities in the girl and undertakes to induct her into the world of mind and art, of culture and sensibility.

$5 million loaned to beginning farmers

The Michigan Family Farm Development Authority made low-interest loans totalling more than $5 million in 1984 to qualified beginning farmers through the authority's bond program, Authority Executive Director Donald J. Schaner reported.

The loans are made to beginning farmers with net worth of less than $250,000, as long as they can qualify by having farming experiappropriate background and sufficient training.

Schaner said that of the money loaned in 1984. nearly three-fourths was used for improvement and/ or purchase of agricultural land. The remaining 26 percent helped with the purchmachinery and ase of equipment.

Under the program, qualifying farmers may borrow up to $250,000 for land and improvements and $125,000 for depreciable property, such as machinery and equipment.

To achieve Dean's List recognition, students must earn a 3.0 grade-point on a 4.0 scale your chances of surviving an automobile crash increase by 50 percent. In an accident, at any speed, there rarely is enough time to react. A seat belt makes the difference.

Safety experts say that as many as 300 lives could be saved annually and more than 21,000 serious injuries prevented now that Michigan has a mandatory seat belt law. Traffic fatalities decreased by 20 percent in Australia and by 17 percent in Ontario with implementation of their mandatory seat belt laws. Experts predict similar improvements for Michigan.

These are the kinds of points Michigan physicians, as members of the Michigan State Medical making as they have encouraged state residents to wear seat belts.

Robert D. Burton, MD, MSM^r vice-speaker and chairman of the Michigan Coalition for Safety Belt Use said, "the doctors of this state really feel that road trauma has reached epidemic proportions and see the new seat belt law as necessary in preventing injuries."

Common arguments against seat belt usage can easily be dispelled:

Seat belts get in the drivers' way. No. In contrast, seat belts help drivers regain control of a car thrown out of control. The belts keep drivers in their seats, and behind the wheel.

Seat belts are only needed on long trips and at high speeds. Wrong! Most accidents happen

When wearing a seat belt, within 25 miles of home at speeds of less than 40 mph. Seat belts are needed for any distance, any speed.

Seat belts trap people inside the car. To the contrary, statistics show that when occupants are thrown from the car their chances of being killed are 25 times greater.

Seat belts can't be effective because they aren't tight. Seat belts work with pendulum mechanism that is activated only when the car pitches sideways, suddenly stops or moves violently. In any other case, the belts allow free move-

Government shouldn't intrude on the motorist's freedom. The case for buckling up is so overwhelmingly Society (MSMS), have been convincing that there should be no need for government to be involved. But the government must have traffic safety laws -- like speed limits and driving on the right side of the road -to promote public safety. These are similar to the requirement for seat belts and are accepted for their important safety contribu-

> Effective July 1, 1985, motorists' seat belts will be checked when they are stopped for primary traffic offenses. All front seat passengers must be wearing properly adjusted seat belts. Unbelted occupants will be fined $10. In 1986, the fine will increase to $25.

Not only will seat belts: save lives, they will save an' estimated $200 million in Michigan's insurance and health costs.

Lack of depth problem for O-G girls' and boys' track teams

Owen-Gage track coach Dick Glidden expects that his lack of depth on both the boys' and girls' track teams will hurt the Bulldogs this Glidden explained that only seven girls will be competing on the track team. The boys' team will not be competing in several events this season, including pole vaulting and the team does not have a regular high jumper. This season Glidden will be counting on Bill Kuhl, Dave Rembert, Gabe Milbocker and Stu Stirrett on the 440 relay team. The 880 relay team will be Reid Goslin, Ron Susalla, Rembert and Stirrett. For the two-mile relay, Goslin, Stirrett and Susalla will be joined by Mike Mandich.

Mandich and Stirrett will also be competing in the low hurdle events. Steve Root and Milbocker will run the 100 yard dash. Root will compete with Goslin in long jump competition.

John Shope and Ed Dohring will compete in shot putting events. Bill Ashmore will throw the discus and compete in the two-mile run. Dohring will also throw the discus this year.

Glidden is counting on Root in the sprints, and Goslin in the longer running events this season. Glidden expects the girls' track team to be 100 percent improved over last year.

He said Rilla Milbocker, a freshman, did a "fantastic job" at a track meet

O-G track schedule 12 vets anchor softball team

Owen-Gage coach Judy Campbell will have 12 seasoned players returning this year to pick a starting lineup for the 1985 season.

Campbell expects that Peck, with most of last year's players returning this season, will be their toughest competition in the Thumb D League. Last year the Bulldogs finished with a 7-10 overall season record.

Retford Linda scheduled to play first base; Shelly Ellicott, second base; Kathy Johnston. shortstop, and Marsha Lopez will play third base. Jennifer Hellebuyck is expected to be the starting pitcher and Cindy Enderle will handle the catching assignments.

In the outfield Kim Olszak is scheduled for left field; Marci Enderle, center field, and Deb Engelhardt will play right field.

Campbell said Johnston, Hellebuyck and Cindy Enderle are expected to be the power hitters for the Bulldogs.

Hellebuyck, Olszak and Engelhardt are the fastest base runners for the Bulldogs.

All home games will be played at the Gagetown village park.

Walt Harrison, the new Owen-Gage baseball coach will be hoping to improve on last year's 4-12 season

"I think we have a good team," Harrison said about his 15 member squad. "Overall we have good team speed, and a good hitting team."

Harrison will be counting on Reid Goslin to handle the pitching duties for the Bulldogs this season. Goslin throws a fastball, curve and change up. Catcher John Shope and third baseman Ron Susalla will be back up and relief pitchers. "The big guy throws darts," Harrison said about Shope's pitching ability.

Harrison, an insurance salesman from Cass City, has not had a chance to see the other teams in the Thumb D League play, so he is unsure who will be the tougher teams for the Bulldogs this season. Now that the season has begun he plans on doing some scouting around the league.

"The team says that Carsonville-Port Sanilac will be tough," Harrison said, adding that Peck has beaten Sandusky already this year.

Defensively, Harrison expects to use Stu Stirrett at first base; Bill Ricker, second base; Matt Ricker, shortstop, Ron Susalla, third base; Kellin

Taking stock

Among the other messes created by the bust-up of AT&T are a lot of itsy-bitsy shareholdings for hundreds of thousands of people.

One new holding company of midwestern Bell companies - now called Ameritech — has 150,000 accounts with only one These 150,000 share. shareholders will get $6 a year in dividends. It will cost the company $10 a year to service these accounts. All will have to get an annual report, which they will throw away. They'll get four checks by mail, each for $1.50 apiece.

Some banks will charge for these deposits. If they aren't put in the bank, stores will hesitate to cash them. They are classified as "third party" checks, and stores don't like such things, even if Bell Telephone wrote them.

So what to do? Mind you, the cost of these 150,000 checks four times a year for piddling amounts, is $10 per account, or $1.50 million. The cost of course will get down to phone bills in due course. And this is only one of the seven Bell companies resulting from the break-up of old Ma Bell.

Four of the Bell companies have been offering to buy back shares if fewer than 50 are owned by a person. The others will likely follow along.

In a typical company of Bell, 83 percent of the shareholders own fewer than 50 shares, and their total results in only 17 percent of the stock.

The buy-back procedure will be expensive, too, but at least it will get the misery done with.

I've wondered why the companies didn't first use a much simpler method the reverse split.

It isn't used very often, hang-up on making the share price less. Typically if shares get around 50 or 60, companies like to split 2 for 1. They think this will bring in more stockholders, because the price will be cheaper.

I doubt if it works this

IBM has 769,979 stockholders, and its price is $125 per share. Before some splits, its price was around $500, and everybody and his cat owned some.

Now Ameritech could get rid of its 150,000 shareholders with only one share by doing a reverse split -- say 1 for 2. For every two shares you have, you get one, but of course the value is doubled.

Here comes the gimmick: If you own fewer than two shares - namely, one - then you are paid off in cash at the market price or a price set by the company. In any event, you'll not lose money.

Presto! One hundred and fifty thousand accounts which have cost $1.5 million a year to service are gone. For all the seven Bell companies, the savings could be $10 million a year, just paying off the one-share stockholders and getting them off the list. If the Bell Companies are paranoiac about their stock being twice the price (with half as many shares) then let them make a fractional reverse split — say 9 shares for every 10 owned now. Since the one-share people would be getting only 9/ 10ths of a share, they'd automatically be paid off in

In passing, old-timers will remember when the parent company, ol' AT&T was in the 160 range for a quarter century. Then it split 3-1. It was the most widely-held stock in America, and it was priced because companies have a at 160. The server arms off Poll companies if you're curious

Replacing windows can save dollars

Letting energy escape from your home is like throwing money out the window.

Poorly designed or deteriorated windows can cost you up to a third of your air conditioning and heating expense. By installing aluminum replacement windows, you can cut your energy bills while improving the appearance of your home.

Heat always travels from a warmer area to a colder one. It leaks in during the summer and seeps away in winter. The loss of energy occurs in two ways: Conduction (traveling through solid objects such as a pane of glass) and infiltration (leaking through the cracks).

Conduction can be held in check by installing double-glazed replacement windows, which have two panes of glass problems, pests or diseases before they do extensive damage.

The following seven common houseplant problems and solutions are from the new book, "Ortho's Complete Guide to Successful House-

Problem 1

Lack of Light: This problem is indicated by weak and spindly new growth with large gaps between the leaves. Plants bending their stems and leaves in the direction of available light is another sign of lack of light.

Solution: Gradually move the plants to a brighter location, keeping them well watered. If a brighter location is not available, provide artificial light.

Problem 2

Sunhurn or Bleaching: Dead tan or brown patches on leaves exposed to direct sunlight is a sign of sunburn.

Sometimes the plants will remain green, but the growth is stunted.

Solution: Move the plants that cannot tolerate direct sun to a shaded area, or reduce the light intensity with curtains or window shades when direct sun shines on the plants. Trim damaged leaves and keep plants

Problem 3

Too Little Water: With this problem, leaves are small and may dry and become brittle. Growth of the plants may be stunted. Bleached areas may occur between the veins.

Solution: Water plants immediately and thoroughly. If the soil is completely dry, add a bit of wetting agent (which you can buy at garden centers) or soak the entire pot in water for a couple of hours.

Problem 4

Too Much Water: Plants fail to grow and leaves may wilt, lose their glossiness, and become light green or yellow. The roots are brown and mushy without white tips.

Solution: If the plants are severely wilted without white root tips, discard them. Less severely affected plants should not be watered until the soil is barely moist. Provide good drainage to prevent this problem by using light soil mixes.

Problem 5

Nitrogen Deficiency: With this problem, the oldest leaves-usually the lowest ones-turn vellow and may drop. Growth is slow, new leaves are small, and the whole plant may be stunted.

Solution: For a quick response, apply a foliar fertilizer, such as RA-PID-GRO Plant Food. Fertilize houseplants with a 5-10-5 fertilizer, added at regular intervals.

Problem 6

Aphids: Aphids, tiny, non-winged, green, soft-bodied insects, cluster in the buds, young stems, and leaves, Leaves curl, are discolored, reduced in size, and may be coated by a shiny or sticky substance.

Solution: Use an indoor plant insect spray containing Orthene, resmethrin, or pyrethrins.

Fungus Gnats: These small, slender, dark insects will fly around when plants are disturbed. They frequently run across the foliage and soil and may also be found on windows. Roots may be damaged, and seedlings may die.

Solution: Spray with a household insect spray containing Diazinon? Repeated applications may be

One of the benefits of having a patio is that it is a good lawn substitute. Gardens plagued with crabgrass and other weeds suddenly look well-groomed when a patio is installed. But once you've got a beautiful patio, how do you maintain it? Although the maintenance of a patio compared to a lawn is remarkably easier, there still is some upkeep

$20 DOOR PRIZES will be given away FREE every ½ hour. It seems that a home isn't considered complete if it isn't equipped with a patio. In fact, with more and more people heading out to the patio for barbecuing, relaxing, playing and partying, it's as if American homes have literally been turned inside out. Homeowners usually let their imaginations run free when creating their patios. The possibilities are endless: Greenhouse patios, bonsai displays, saunas and hot tubs, dining areas and lounging spots, poolside retreats and project rooms. You can create quite a different at-mosphere depending on the surface of Grass and weeds will easily sprout up even in the most well laid plans. As a result, the brick, concrete or stone surface of a patio may loosen and existing cracks can worsen. The best solution is to pull out the unwanted growth and treat these areas with a weed killer to prevent the weeds from growing back.

maintenance is relatively simple. Cracks in brick surfaces can be filled with mortar. First clean out the crumbled material with a screwdriver or other such tool and then fill the crack With a brick patio, the repair and aintenance is relatively simple.

Water damage on brick surfaces is also quickly remedied. These white, powdery mineral salt deposits are pushed to the surface by the moisture build-up underneath the brick or con-

Ideally, you should try to pinpoint the source of the moisture. Then, to remove these white deposits, use a wire brush and muriatic acid to scrub off the stains. Follow the directions carefully because muriatic acid is a corrosive poison.

Bricks which soak up water and then chip apart when freezing temperatures hit can also be a problem. Replace the damaged bricks, mortar the new bricks into place, and then coat the patio with brick scaler. Some patios may be made by layering bricks over a base of sand, which can become loosened after constant exposure to wind, rain or hosing. Smoothing out the sand base beneath the surface and then refilling the cracks with new sand will bring the patio back to its original beauty.

Concrete repair

Concrete patios can also be repaired by the conscientious do-it-yourselfer. Cracks or holes in concrete are often due to settling or eroding ground below the patio surface. For small repairs, use a ready-to-mix cement that has a bonding agent in it. For much larger repair jobs, it is more economical to purchase plain concrete and then add it to a bonding agent vourself

Gravel or crushed stone patios that are built on a slope have a tendency to slide away with rain. Rake the stones back into place and then line the edges with boards to help keep the gravel in place.

A flagstone patio can look clean and crisp. However, with wear and tear, flagstones can become easily chipped or split. When this happens, clean the stone, coat each matching surface with an epoxy resin, and fit them together.
Be sure to wipe off any excess resin immediately and then weight the flat stone until the joint has completely

An easy-maintenance patio does not have to be dull or uninteresting. There are many ways to bring an exotic or fanciful touch to your patio without investing all of your spare time in groundswork.

Ridge vents are designed to provide a continuous opening along the entire ridge line of a pitched roof, ridge vents prevent rain and snow from entering the attic, but allow for an ongoing exchange of air between the attic and the outside. For maximum efficiency, the ridge vent must be used with the undereaves vents. Installed in the roof overhang on both sides of the house, the undereaves vents serve as the intake areas, allowing fresh air to flow into the attic while stale air flows out through the even more energy-efficient.

Energy costs continue to rise on a yearly basis, and experts at the Certain Teed Home Institute suggest that additional insulation is still one of the homeowner's best weapons for fighting rising monthly energy bills.

While most attics and garages can be insulated by a do-it-yourselfer in one afternoon, maximum energy savings are obtained by insulating an entire house. To properly insulate inaccessible areas such as side walls, a professional home insulation contractor should be consulted.

The CertainTeed Home Institute has found that many homeowners are concerned about how to select an insulation contractor. In response to this, the Home Institute has confired the following answers:

What exactly is an insulation contractor.

An insulation contractor is a professional who is specially trained to properly install insulation, to determine where to add insulation, and to advise how much insulation is required to give the best return on an investment in energy conservation. Looking in the telephone book under "Insulation Contractors" or "Insulation Materials" is a good place to begin. Contacting a local contractor's association or How do I locate an insulation contrac asking your friends or neighbors who've had their homes insulated is also a good step.

Once I've identified local insulation contractors, how do I know who's responsible?

Any qualified insulation contractor will provide: Credentials, references, written estimates and high quality products.

How do I check an insulation contractor's credentials?

Start by contacting the Better Business Bureau. They'll tell of any complaints against a particular contractor. Local contractor associations, can also be of assistance in this area. They can tell you if the individual is a member in good standing.

Most important, ask the contractor for references. If he's well established in the community, he should have a list of satisfied customers that he would feel confident to have you contact. Talk with some of the people on the list to get their opinions of the contractor's work and professionalism.

Yes, by all means do. Take firm estimates in writing of the work that is to be done from several insulation contractors before selecting one. Also, get the types of the materials to be used by brand name and product description in writing as well. The easiest way to avoid disappointment and misunderstanding is to have everything spelled out clearly before the

Should I obtain firm estimates before

oduct that me

Yes, by all means. Like the estimate, it should include materials to be used and a completion date. Guarantees on workmaship and the product warranty should be clearly defined.

The contract should also indicate that the contractor carries both casualty and liability insurance. The price for labor and materials should be stipulated with payment arrangements outlined.

Most agreements call for paying some percentage of the total at the beginning of the job and the remainder after the project has been completed to your satisfaction.

Fentons blend old with new to retain charm in home restoration

If Tok Cha and Demian Fenton of 6331 Hoadley Road, rural Cass City, do everything around the home that's planned, the set of golf clubs that nestles story brick home this year won't be used much this summer

It's not that the couple, who moved to the area from Clarkston, haven't done any work since purchasing the home and five acres about a year ago. It's the complete transformation that's started and will be continued all summer and. perhaps, for several summers and winters to follow, that promises to occupy all their leisure time.

The solarium is nine feet wide and 26 feet long. Imbedded in the slanting roof are 7 insulated glass windows that are normally used for sliding door panels. Each is 35 inches wide and 180 inches long. They are taped and calked and have proven to be watertight this winter.

When more heat is needed, the newly installed fireplace helps. It's built into the corner of the inside wall of the solarium and is a feature of the rebuilt north area of the home.

Fenton is a long-time employee of Detroit Edison and the lighting in the home is what would be expected, considering his job

In the solarium there are several small spotlights that are directed into the room from high along the inside wall of the addition. All the lights in the home can be adjusted, dim to bright, to suit whatever activity is in progress.

The furniture reflects the motif that the Fentons are working to establish. The rooms are loaded with antiques. One of the finer pieces is an antique oak bed with dresser. It ties in nicely with the solid oak floorthat will be preserved when all the remodeling is over.

With the kitchen-dining room area complete, the next projects for the couple are the bathrooms. New fixtures and remodeling of the Homes that combine the charm of traditional appearance with the low maintenance of up-to-date building products are much in favor among consumers these

One such building product is solid vinyl siding. That's why it is so popular in home remodeling, says the Vinyl Siding Insti-

Since it has color clear through, vinyl siding won't peel, rust, pit, flake, blister or corrode. It will remain new-looking for detergent and water. And it comes in a wide range of colors, designs and textures to suit most architectural styles.

Additional benefits

Vinyl siding also eliminates the cost, time and bother of painting every few years, and is available with a complete line of matching accessories, including shutters, fascia, downspouts, gutters, soffits and other solid vinyl trim to help reduce exterior maintenance.
