FIREMEN FROM Elkland Township were assisted by the Kingston and Caro Fire Departments at an early Monday morning blaze at the Luther Miracle residence, 6825 Gilford Rd., Deford.

Fire loss set at $70,000

A 2:30 a.m. fire Monday totally destroyed a Gilford Road home, and sent the owner, Luther Miracle, 60, to Hills and Dales General Hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation. Miracle was released from the hospital after treatment.

Elkland Township Fire Department Chief Jerome

Root estimates the loss of the building and contents at $70,000. The Kingston and Caro Fire Departments also assisted in fighting the fire at 6825 Gilford Road, Deford.

Root said when they arrived the fire had already engulfed the entire two story house. An attached garage was also destroyed. Root said the cause of the fire, which started in the kitchen area, is unknown. The firemen were on the scene for about five hours.

According to Luther Miracle's sister, Lois Bender, he was awakened by the noise of the fire. He woke up his wife Mary, and their son Mike, and they fled the burning house. The Miracle family was able to save some antique rifles, and two vehicles parked in the garage.

Bender said the family is planning to build a new home on the same site.

Negotiations continue

Milano supporters crowd court

An estimated 150 to 200 people waited in the Tuscola County courthouse lobby June 12 while negotiations were conducted to settle a legal dispute over an Akron minister's decision to teach his children at home.

Although a decision was not reached, Rev. Donald Milano's attorney, Brian Thiede feels they and the Department of Social Services are close to an agreement that will not "require anyone to give up their convictions." The negotiations were held in Probate Judge W. Wallace Kent's chambers.

The dispute is over Rev. Milano's teaching of his two children at home without a certified instructor, a state requirement. Rev. Milano, minister of the Akron and Unionville United Methodist Churches, taught his children, Tim, 11, and Donna, 8, at home during the 1984-85 school year. Rev. Milano feels that by teaching the children at home they will receive a Christian based education, something that he wants for them.

Rev. Milano said the people who waited in the lobby while the negotiations were going on were colleagues, friends, and interested and concerned Christians who came to offer their support. He added the people were also concerned about the approach that the Department of Social Services was taking in the case. Rev. Milano said the people were angered by what they feel is an "overkill" approach the DSS is using.

The DSS has requested the court issue an order requiring the children to attend a public school, an accredited private school, or have a certified instructor in Milano's home school. If the court decides there is sufficient evidence of neglect, under Michigan law, the court can order the children into a foster care home.

The Milano children are enrolled in courses offered by the Christian Liberty Academy, a Christian based educational organization in Prospect Heights, Ill. Milano and his wife Regina act as teacher's aides for the school. Tests are corrected and grades are issued by the school. The cost of the program is $200 per student for each year.

The children attend classes five days a week from 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. The school year is based on 180 days of instruction. Rev. Milano's children take courses in English, math, science, spelling, history and geography, the same as in public schools.

Rev. Milano explained the difference in the material that his children are taught, as compared to a public school's curriculum is his children's educational material reinforces the existence of God, something that is not allowed in public schools.

Rev. Milano has presented the material to officials of the Akron-Fairgrove school district, and they approved of the material.

However the state does not approve of a non-certified instructor teaching the classes.

Ironically, Rev. Milano was a school teacher in the Marlette School District for 12 years. He taught for 17 years before quitting to attend seminary to become a minister. He said he could be recertified and meet the state requirement, but that would be admitting the state has the right to require a certified instructor. Rev. Milano feels the requirement is a violation of the United States Constitution that allows freedom of religion.

Rev. Milano pointed out several verses in the Bible that he feels support his belief that he should teach his children at home. One verse that he quoted, Proverbs, chapter 22, verse 7: "Train up a child in the way he should go and...he will not depart from it."

A final pre-trial hearing is scheduled for Thursday (today) in probate court at 1:30 p.m.

Following the first pre-trial hearing last Wednesday, Rev. Milano said he feels that negotiations are leading to a dismissal in the case.

FOSTER PARENTS

Before a couple can become foster parents, they must first be licensed by the state. This requires attending an eight-hour training course.

In school curriculum

Advisory group sees need for change

The long awaited Citizens Advisory Committee report was presented to the Cass City School Board Monday night at its regular meeting and it called for extensive upgrading and enlargement of the curriculum.

Chairman Ken Jensen presented the report and told the board it was the result of 17 meetings over 12 months.

The report advises an expanded core curriculum with more math and foreign languages and greatly increased counseling service.

The committee realizes, Jensen told the board, that implementing these recommendations will cost more money.

The committee is ready to help raise the funds necessary to do so.

The committee recommends that the core curriculum be expanded from one-half to two-thirds of the total required for graduation.

It says that strengthening of literature, history, mathematics and science is needed. Emphasis should be given to foreign language, the arts, civics, non-western studies, technology, the meaning of work and the importance of health.

The committee would like to see foreign language start in the elementary school and two years of foreign language study required of all high school students.

The committee stresses the need for more and improved guidance service. It recommends that no counselor have a case load of more than 100 students.

Today, Cass City High School functions with two counselors that also have other duties. They serve 546 students.

The 643 students in the elementary and intermediate schools have one full time and a part time counselor.

The full time counselor serves the intermediate school and the part time counselor is a social service employee that spends a little less than half his time working with elementary students.

One novel recommendation suggests that all students become involved in volunteer work in the community or at school. Students could fulfill this requirement evenings, week ends or during the summer, the report suggests.

The committee recommends a change in the philosophy of the co-op program. It says that participation in a co-op program should be similar to participation in an athletic program.

Academic achievement should be tied to participation, perhaps a "firm D grade point average." The committee realizes, the report says, that the student may not be a high scholastic achiever and co-op may be the only reason the student stays in school. Regardless, the committee feels that there is merit in requiring the student to strive for the program desired.

Areas of concern outlined included the lack of review of teacher guides. The student conduct code dates back to December, 1971, and there was no notation as to whether or not this information has been reviewed or revised.

The committee reported that curriculum guides in elementary and high school were very well done, but said the guide from the intermediate school lacks performance objectives.

The board applauded the work of the committee. It will take several weeks to study the recommendations and then discussion with the committee is scheduled at a special meeting slated July 8 at the high school.

NEW REQUIREMENT

Principal Bob Stickle presented a new requirement for passing a grade. Now all students will be required to pass all basic courses which include math, English, social studies and science. Previously, one failure was allowed.

NEW BOOKS

The board also approved a request for new science books for the elementary and intermediate schools at a cost of $11,994.65.

The new texts replace those currently in use that carry a 1971 date.

Camp Tuscola prisoner walks

For the sixth time since Camp Tuscola, the minimum security prison at Wahjamega opened this January, a prisoner has escaped. All but Edward Maddox, 34, the most recent escapee from the prison, have been apprehended.

Camp Tuscola supervisor Michael D. Flintoft reported that Maddox, from the Detroit area, escaped Sunday afternoon. Flintoft explained that during a routine prisoner check at 2:32 p.m. Maddox was reported in the prison. A check at 3:15 p.m. reported him missing.

Flintoft feels that Maddox arranged for a ride with friends from the Detroit area who were visiting him Sunday. A police search of the area did not turn up any information on the escapee. Maddox was serving a prison term for parole violation. He was originally sentenced to 1 to 10 years for assault. Maddox arrived at Camp Tuscola June 13.

Maddox, a black male, is 5 feet 11 inches tall, and weighs 165 pounds.

Flintoft said that a prisoner who escaped from the camp March 12 was apprehended by the Livingston County Sheriff's Office. Please turn to page 18.

Over 300 cases of child abuse investigated in Tuscola County

When John Ecken first learns about a child being abused, he does more than feel sorry for the youth, he takes action.

Ecken, supervisor for Tuscola County's Department of Social Services' child welfare program, described his first duty is to see that the youth is protected from harm. This may require opening a protective services case to counsel and work with the parents or in more severe cases remove the child from the home.

"Our first approach is that we can help if you let us. If you don't let us, then we have a problem,"

Ecken said. "Most of the time we get cooperation."

Last year Ecken's department received 311 reports of suspected child abuse. The reports come from doctors, nurses, teachers, or by relatives, friends and neighbors. All reports are investigated. He estimated that about 25 percent of all cases reported require court intervention.

"If the harm is serious enough, to the point where it is going to affect the child physically or emotionally, we can petition the court and ask them to intervene," Ecken said. "We only petition the court if there is serious danger (to the child), and the people won't cooperate."

Of the 311 suspected child abuse reports received last year, Ecken estimates that about five percent resulted in placing the child in a foster care home.

A court order is required to remove the child from the home. In sexual or severe physical abuse cases where the case worker has decided the child is in danger, a verbal court order is sufficient if it is after court hours. The child is placed in a temporary shelter home or a foster home until more permanent arrangements can be made. State law requires a preliminary hearing with a probate judge be held within 48 hours. The judge will determine if the child stays in a foster care home, or is returned to the parents.

Ecken said the department's goal, whenever possible, is to return the child to the parents. The first step is to make a parent-agency agreement where the reasons for removing the child are listed, and what changes must be made by the parent before the child may be returned. This may require the parent to go to counseling, attend alcohol therapy programs or parenting classes that teach proper discipline techniques. Sometimes a homemaker is assigned to the case to teach the parents how to clean the house.

"The problem with foster care is the child is the victim, and the victim is pulled out of the home," Ecken said. "A traumatic experience for the child."

FOSTER PARENTS - Jim and Barb Jackson have opened their door, and their hearts, to more than 80 foster care children in their 19 years as foster care parents.

Open house for Karr, Chambers

An open house will be held from 2:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. Sunday at the Masonic Temple, 4261 Maple St., Cass City, for Shirley Karr and Cheryl (Karr) Chambers, who both graduated recently.

After being out of school for 30 years, Karr received her high school diploma through the Cass City Adult Education program.

Chambers, who is Karr's daughter, graduated from Eastern Michigan University with a B.S. degree in elementary education.

Chambers will be employed at an answering service as a switchboard operator during the summer. She is the daughter of James and Shirley Karr, 3867 N. Cemetery Rd., Cass City. She lives in Ann Arbor with her husband, Jeff, who goes to the University of Michigan Medical School.

Karr, who has four children and four grandchildren, works at Yale Rubber Mfg., Sandusky.

"If It Fitz..."

Corporate mergers

By Jim Fitzgerald

Soon, whenever I buy the two foods I like best, I will be putting money into the pockets of people who, according to overwhelming medical-statistical evidence, cause cancer and other diseases.

I think I'm beginning to see some tunnel at the end of the light.

Nabisco Brands Inc., makers of Ritz crackers and Oreo cookies, plans to merge with R.J. Reynolds Industries Inc., makers of Winston, Salem and Camel cigarettes.

For me, that is similar to learning I can't buy a ticket to a baseball game without giving financial support to professional boxing.

"Don't tell me I've already purchased many non-tobacco products made by subsidiaries of R.J. Reynolds. I know it's probably true, but don't tell me because it makes me crazy. The constant expansion and merging of mega-corporations creates terrible problems for a principled man who all his life has carefully separated the tasty peas from the yucky carrots.

Along with a gasoline bill, Boron Oil Co., sent a brochure imploring me to buy a pocketknife. The Texaco people asked me to dial a toll-free number, any hour of the day or night, and order genuine lizard shoes. Thom McAn never keeps his lizards up that late.

I can't get a Boron attendant to wipe my windshield, but I can clean my fingernails with a Boron knife. What kind of sense does that make? And now General Motors has purchased the corporation that invented Jane Russell's bra.

You may think it is far-fetched to suggest that someday a warning will be printed on Oreo packages: "The U.S. Surgeon General warns that Oreos may subsidize injury to the health of people who smoke Camels."

But I'll give you far-fetched: How would you like to be sued for spreading heart disease by buying Ritz crackers? As long as there are law schools, it could happen. If a cancer-conscious lawyer, in 1985, can successfully sue a builder for putting asbestos in an attic in 1949, no one is safe from post-paying for damages caused by corporate poisoning of the environment.

At hand, through the courtesy of a pack rat, is a 39-year-old magazine ad headlined: "More Doctors Smoke Camels Than Any Other Cigarette!" And the smaller type says: "This is no casual claim. It's an actual fact. Based on the statements of doctors themselves to three nationally known independent research organizations."

The pack rat said: "These doctors were actually mal-practicing before even seeing their patients. I wonder how many people were persuaded to smoke Camels because of these doctors' endorsements. How many might still be alive if..."

Someday all the lawyers in America will be done suing Union Carbide for poisoning all the people in India. Attorneys will be looking for new torts to tackle, and they will think of doctors who recommended smoking, which is the same as crossing guards pushing school kids in front of cars.

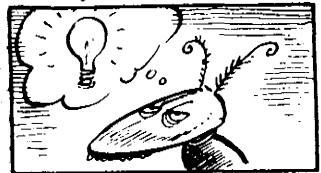

It will do no good for the doctors to claim they didn't know then what they know now. As every jury knows, ignorance is no excuse if the defendant is rich and/or insured. And once it is established that damages can be collected by the survivors of a dead smoker, the next step will be to sue the cigaret makers and everyone who supports their poisonous activity.

Oreo cookies and Ritz crackers are the most delicious food known to man. And someday I won't be able to eat them without worrying about being sued for adding to the wealth of a cigaret manufacturer. Merging corporations put us all in peril. There is, indeed, tunnel at the end of the light.

Sanilac immunization clinic hours

The Sanilac County Health Department's satellite immunization clinic in Marlette will be giving child immunizations on the second Tuesday of the month, from 9:00 a.m. to noon.

The clinic is located in the old Marlette Village Hall, 6436 Morris St., Marlette. A parent or guardian must accompany the child. A record of the child's previous immunizations is also required. The immunizations are free to all Sanilac County residents.

The animal with the largest brain in proportion to its body is the ant.

The Haire Net

It's like swimming when you take the first step into the water. Not heated water of the pool, but plain old lake water that always seems cold until you get used to it.

That's what switching to computers is for old fogies that cling to typewriters and familiar, comfortable ways of doing things.

Swimming on a hot day is really great once you get in and get wet. You know it and that's why you take the plunge.

It's that way with us at the Chronicle. We know that taking the plunge will be great once we get used to it.

It's strange that when you are young, getting into the water wasn't that big a deal. Literally or figuratively.

In a demo typesetting unit that we practiced on for a couple of weeks, Wayne Kamidol, our summer intern, took to it like a duck to water.

You can't afford not to go with computers, says our 25-year-old who is investigating various options.

That's quite a contrast to what happened when I sat down to write. Not only did it take me at least three times as long as normal to set a story, after I was finished the darn thing suddenly was wiped out.

It's not like reaching into the wastebasket and finding what was written and resetting it.

When it's wiped out in a computer, it's really wiped out. The only solution is to recompose the entire story.

That's just the typesetting end of things. Can you afford to switch typesetting modes and not switch book-keeping and inventory control, too? No-o-o-o, we say. Ye-s-s-s, says Dorothy.

She keeps pointing out previous snafus and my inconsistencies in what little I've had to do with keeping the books.

You'll expect that machine to tell you everything you want to know by just touching a button. You'll find it's not the same as hollering Dorothy, everytime you want to know anything, she says with typical wifely illogical reasoning.

We're attempting to solve that problem with a little better communication. I'm having Clarke tell her all the advantages she'll have with these machines. She'll listen to him.

Regardless, I'm sure that we're all going to enjoy the water once we jump in.

I'm keeping the trusty 50-year-old typewriter this is written on. It's not that I have any doubts, any doubts at all, about switching.

It's just that it's comfortable to have it there in case I need it to get the paper out.

'Phyllis, the friend' retires as bus driver

by Wayne Kamidol

No need for a "Mrs." No need for a "ma'am." Whether her passengers were in pre-school or in high school, they just called her "Phyllis." And that's the way she wanted it.

"The best way to do it is be just like a friend to the kids," said Phyllis Cox, Deford, who made her last hurrah June 11. She retired after 23 years of driving school buses in the area, with the last 20 for the Cass City School District.

Cox has seen it all in her years as a bus driver. Well, there was the time when little Johnny's dog decided he wanted to go to school, too. And there was the time when the pre-schooler tried to eat someone else's shoe. Cox has seen it all. Almost.

"I told the teachers (at an assembly recognizing her service) they had it easy because they could stand in front of the kids," Cox said. "I had the kids, but I had to do it with my back turned."

To go along with the thousands of bus runs "Phyllis" made, there came the sprinkle of bratty third graders, the dash of childish eighth graders, the pinch of unruly sophomores... and a whole lot of headaches.

"It wasn't easy getting up at a quarter after six, but the hardest part was disciplining the kids," Cox said.

Cox said kids have changed over the years. When her career began, it was tell the kid to sit down and tell the kid to be quiet, and the kid would sit down and the kid would be quiet.

These days, she says, it's not so easy.

"In this day, you're not allowed to touch them. The best way to keep from that is keep your hands behind your back when you do the talking," Cox said.

Busing became a part of Cox's life in 1962, the year she was to have three of her six children in college. So with room and board, and tuitions and fees in mind, it was strap on that seat belt, flick on those flashers, pick up those kids and up and at 'em at sunrise for Cox.

Cox prides herself on not only "getting the kids to where they're going" but getting them there safely -- and on time.

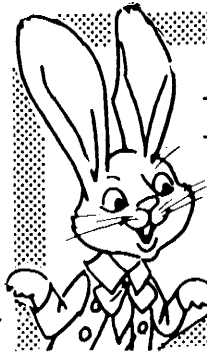

"I only overslept a couple of times," Cox recalled. Not a bad track record considering the number of runs she had made.

"It didn't take me long to get ready, that's for sure. (When you're late) it makes for a bad day, the whole day," she said.

Cox's first route was totting kids to the Deford Elementary School on one

A BUS driver in the Cass City School district for the past two decades, retiring Phyllis Cox made her final bus run earlier this month.

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

Up, up and away went those balloons released at Rawson Memorial Library last week. Reports keep filtering back from far away places.

One balloon released at 2 p.m. was found at 6:30 p.m. that night at Niagara Falls. Another was picked up at Rochester, New York.

The following day, Waterloo, Vermont, Rhode Island and Smithville, Ont., reported in.

In this computer age it's not uncommon to receive as many as six copies of the same advertising message.

Most of the time that's merely inconvenient. That wasn't the case the other day when two copies of the same message came my way from Kodak Company. It required an answer to a simple five-question survey and enclosed in each a shiny new dollar bill for my trouble.

That makes a net profit of $2.22 on the deal. (A stamped envelope was enclosed in each and only one used).

These mornings there's a tendency to look at the calendar to make sure that school just let out and is not on the verge of starting again.

It feels like September, not June.

It must be a funny feeling for Cindy McConkey of Cass City. Many times when she picks up copies of "USA Today" there her name is, big as brass as one of the bylined writers. No relation, no relation at all, says Cass City's Cindy with a chuckle.

Cass City woman injured in Friday auto accident

Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson reported that a Cass City woman was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital following a two-car accident Friday morning.

Wilson reported that a vehicle driven by Mary A. Vargo, 79, 6263 Schwegler Rd., Cass City, collided with a vehicle driven by Edward H. Deering, Deering, 67, 6872 Seeger St., Cass City, was eastbound on Main Street, near Scotty McCullough Drive, when the Vargo vehicle, westbound on Main Street, made a left turn and struck Deering. Vargo was issued a citation for failure to yield.

She was transported to the hospital by the Cass City Ambulance Service. Vargo was treated and released from Hills and Dales General Hospital.

While ambulance attendants were preparing to transport Vargo to the hospital, a vehicle driven by Lucille R. Wotton, 83, Van Dyke Rd., Cass City, struck the ambulance. Wilson reported the ambulance was parked on the north edge of Main Street when it was struck by Wotton. The ambulance had its flashing lights on.

Wotton was not injured in the accident. She was issued a citation for failure to use due caution and care.

Officer Kenneth Schott reported that Billy J. Simmons, 57, 3950 Phillips Rd., Kingston, struck a deer Tuesday at 5:55 a.m. Simmons was westbound on Cass City Road, one-half mile east of M-53 when he struck the deer. He was not injured in the accident.

ing smoke bombs in the alley behind Kritzman's, Inc. clothing store, 6447 Main St., Cass City, about 9:45 a.m. Apparently when Wells yelled to the boys, one got scared and threw a bomb in the rear of Wells' vehicle, police said. A paper bag caught on fire and a pair of men's pants burned.

Police reported a parked vehicle suffered $75 to $100 in damages Sunday morning.

Thomas Marker, 2490 E. Dickerson Rd., Unionville, told police he had parked near the Cass Tavern, 6448 Main St., Cass City, at approximately 11:00 p.m. Saturday. When he returned at 2 a.m. Sunday he noticed brackets holding the headlight in place and the grill had been damaged by vandals.

Officer Klaus arrested Gary A. Graves, 24, 2235 Chambers Rd., Caro, for operating a vehicle while under the influence of alcohol June 8 at 2:35 a.m.

Klaus reported he observed the Graves vehicle driving 50 miles per hour in a 35 mph area of Main Street, near Weaver Street.

According to the report Graves failed a sobriety test, and was taken to the Tuscola County Jail.

Officer Dave McComb reported Frank B. Holcomb, 31, 5682 Severance Rd., Deford, was arrested for operating a vehicle while under the influence of alcohol June 8 at 5:35 a.m.

McComb reported he observed Holcomb driving with his headlights off on Koepfgen Road, one-half mile south of Cass City Road.

Holcomb failed a sobriety test and was housed in the Tuscola County Jail.

Three men were arrested Friday for having open intoxicants in a motor vehicle, by Cass City Police Officers Phillip Klaus and David McComb, police said.

James A. O'Connor, 26, Clarkston, David A. Houston, 28, Pontiac, and Jeffrey Campbell, 27, Pontiac, were arrested at 11:05 p.m. Friday after three opened cans of beer were discovered in the front seat of their vehicle.

The men apparently were hollering out of the vehicle and the driver, O'Connor, was flashing the headlights on and off in the Cass City High School parking lot, police said.

All were put under arrest on the open intoxicant charge and lodged in the Tuscola County Jail.

About $15 in damages were caused Sunday morning after a smoke bomb-throwing incident involving two underage youths, Officer Kenneth Schott reported.

Clyde Wells, 6632 M St., Cass City, reported to police two boys were light-

New books at the library

SKELETON CREW by Stephen King (fiction). This second collection of King's shorter work is a hefty sampler from all stages of his career, and several stories that must rank among his best. "Big Wheels" is virtually a mainstream account of a handful of low-lives in rural Maine and in this one King's just-one-of-the-boys style is employed to perfect effect; it's a tightly controlled hilarious and macabre tale. "Beachworld" is science fiction, a genre King rarely attempts, and he has carried it off impressively with an economy of words and a sure sense of irony. "Gramma" and "The Raft" are straight-out horror stories that should have readers chewing their nails, and "The Jaunt," an SF/horror hybrid is almost as scary. Also included are "The Mist," a short novel about prehistoric creatures besieging people in a supermarket; "The Monkey," a familiar tale of a demonic toy, and two poems, one of which - "For Owen" - is quite good.

DEAD MAN'S RANSOM by Ellis Peters (mystery). After a battle between Shrewsbury and neighboring Wales, the English find among their captives Elis ap Cynan, a young Welsh lord who is of sufficient worth to trade for the Briton taken by the Welsh: Gilbert Prestcote, sheriff of Shropshire. Before the exchange can be completed, though, Prestcote dies and Cadfael, who alone suspects murder, reveals the varied motives of those on hand at the abbey where he succumbed. Chief among them is Elis, who has fallen in love with Prestcote's daughter Melicent and knows that the sheriff's hatred for the Welsh will be his main obstacle to marriage.

Bambi returns home after one-year vacation

After seeing the Chronicle story about the tame deer that visited Jim Milligan recently, John Graham, 3925 Colwood Rd., Caro, brought in several pictures of a deer that his son Joe had raised from a fawn. Graham checked with Milligan, and sure enough, it was the same deer. Graham said the deer had several distinguishing warts on its head which Milligan had noticed.

Joe Graham explained that he took over the parental duties of raising the fawn after a neighbor brought it to him. The fawn's mother had been killed by an automobile in May, 1983. A second fawn at the scene of the accident took off, and the neighbor was unable to catch it. Graham feels the second fawn died shortly after the accident.

"We fed it and raised it," Joe Graham said about the fawn he named Bambi, "but she was never penned up."

Graham nursed the fawn with a baby bottle at first. The fawn was soon suckling off one of Graham's dairy cows.

Bambi stayed on the Graham farm for about a year, then in July, 1984, suddenly disappeared. Graham explained that he would see Bambi almost every day. The deer stayed with Graham's cattle. A few days after Bambi stopped coming around, Graham heard about an auto-deer accident in the area. He thought it was Bambi. During her absence from the Graham farm, Bambi was seen by several area farmers. She never lost her trust in humans, often walking up to a somewhat startled farmer. Bambi recently returned to her original home at the Graham farm on Jacob Road, near Elmwood Road.

DINNER TIME - Joe Graham took over the parental duties of raising Bambi, a fawn whose mother was killed by an automobile.

McLeody Days

By Bill McLeod

Friday morning, for the first time in several years, I stopped and picked up a stranger who was "riding on his thumb" to Caro.

I always feel obligated to give a ride to someone out on the road. I look at it as a way to repay for some of the several thousand miles I hitchhiked during my long-haired days. But before I stopped, I gave the youth a quick lookover before I decided it was safe to let him share a ride. I'm a little more selective than drivers who used to give me a lift.

Back when I used to hitchhike, during the late 60's and early 70's, it probably wasn't any safer for me to be thumbin' a ride around the windy city, but it didn't bother me too much. I guess someone was always looking out for me.

Whenever I was hitchhiking on a long trip, I always had a sleeping bag tied to the bottom of my backpack. This way, if I got dropped off in the middle of the night, I could find a quiet spot in the country to spend the night.

One time, before I had a lot of experience, I let a driver drop me off right where I-80 and I-94 split on the east side of Chicago. I stood on the five-foot wide median for about 30 minutes before someone dumb enough came along to rescue me from the thrill-crazed commuter people. I held my ground on the narrow strip of no-man's-land while massive semi-trucks and idiots in sports cars tried to see how close they could come to the long-haired kid with his hitchhiking arm sticking straight up. There wasn't enough room for the standard out to the side approach.

One of my favorite hitchhiking stories is my roommate's ride from the Kansas City area, north towards Des Moines. Two drunks picked him up, told him they were headed for St. Louis, and let him drive. Within a mile they both fell asleep. My roommate, who incidentally came from the Bay Port area, somehow missed the cutoff to St. Louis. When he reached his destination, about 100 miles north of Kansas City, he parked the car and quietly left the two men, still sleeping.

McLeod in 1970

My favorite ride came during one of Michigan's many depressions. Unable to find work (actually not looking too hard), I was hitchhiking two-lane roads across Iowa early one spring morning. A three-piece suit picked me up and started asking questions about where I was going, and why. I told him about Michigan's unstable economy, and I was just killing time for a while. He said there was a factory in the next town that was hiring, and offered a ride to the shop.

When we arrived at the factory he took me into the personnel office, sat on the other side of the desk and gave me a job. That was Wednesday. I had to start work on Monday.

That afternoon I was on I-80 with my well-traveled thumb and my "Home to MaMa" sign waving in the wind. Three days later I moved to Iowa in my worn out van that kept overheating. I made better time hitchhiking.

Farm exhibits, equipment to highlight Ag Expo '85

More than 400 commercial farm exhibits and 16 acres of field demonstrations highlight Ag Expo '85, the largest farm equipment show of its type in Michigan.

The event, July 23-25 at Michigan State University, is expected to attract more than 50,000 people. A variety of tours and educational exhibits will round out the program.

Birds remember

Calling someone a birdbrain may not be as insulting as you think! It was commonly believed that a bird's smaller brain did not have the capacity for memory, only instinct. But according to National Wildlife magazine, birds not only remember, but may even be calculating. Nutcracker birds, for instance, are known to steal pine cones from squirrels by luring them away from the pile while another bird darts in to seize the cone.

Visitors will be able to see just about every type of equipment needed for efficient farm production.

"I'd be very surprised if a farmer went away from Expo without at least one new idea that would benefit the farm," says Bill Bickert, MSU Extension agricultural engineer and Ag Expo chairperson. "I don't know of another place in the state where farmers can see as varied and as broad a collection of the latest in farm equipment and technology as they can at Ag Expo."

The 35 acres of machinery displays will represent almost every mechanized area in a typical farm operation. Examples include irrigation systems, field machinery, dairy equipment and supplies, livestock handling equipment, grain harvesting, handling and storage systems, crop sprayers, farm buildings and seed and fertilizer supplies and services.

A wide variety of university educational exhibits are being planned for Ag

Expo. Most of these will answer questions on crop insect, weed and disease control, soil testing and erosion prevention, computerized farm record keeping, livestock health management and other farm-related topics.

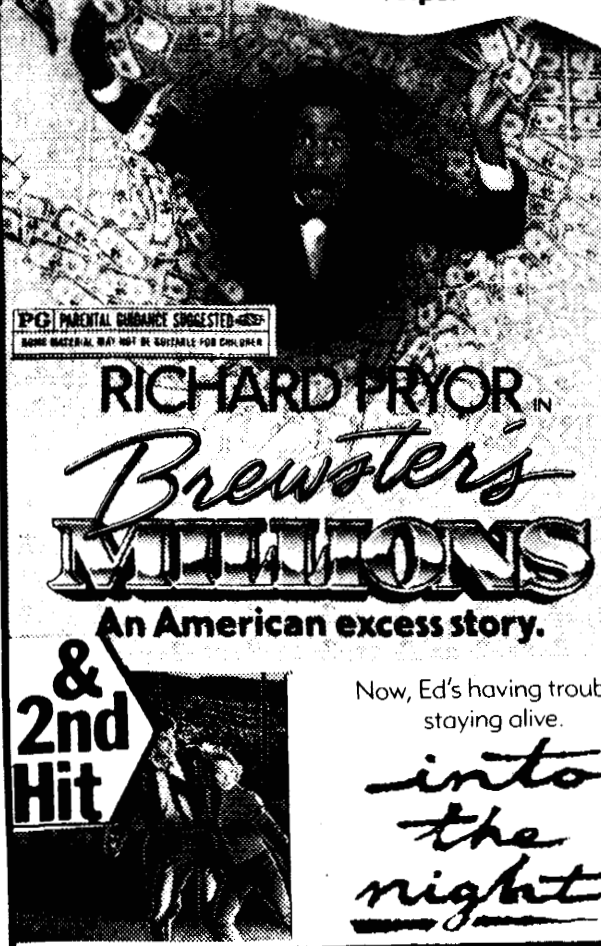

Daily field demonstrations, from 12:30 to 4 p.m., will focus on land improvement techniques, including computerized land surveying systems, tile and sub-irrigation installation, and pond building.

Other activities include selected tours of MSU teaching and research units related to farming. Free buses will carry visitors from the Ag Expo site to the field demonstrations and tours. Ag Expo is free and open to the public. Visitors will find plenty of free parking at the main Expo site, on the corner of Mt. Hope and Farm Lane. Details of Ag Expo may be obtained from the Tuscola County MSU Cooperative Extension office in Caro, states Bill Bortel, County Extension Director.

26 graduate from adult-ed program

With tough times in past, Mulrath fulfills dream

by Wayne Kamidoi

Late last summer Barb Mulrath, Caro, went to Cass City High School to see if she could get a class to hone her typing skills. Nothing more, nothing less.

But as fate would have it, her 10-minute jaunt from her home on East Caro Road proved to be something more.

BARBARA MULRATH, a 1985 graduate of Cass City High School's Adult Education program, was not to be outdone by her daughter Cynthia Maier, who graduated from Cass City High School this year.

About 10 months later, however, Mulrath will have had "a dream finally completed. No more a dream, finally a reality in my life that has been accomplished. It's been a long road but it's finally completed." And so it reads on the inside cover of the 7th Annual Adult Education Commencement program, which contains thoughts on "what graduation means to me."

Mulrath was one of 26 students that earned high school diplomas through the Adult Education Program June 11 at the Cass City High School Gymnasium.

Mrs. Mulrath, the mother of three children, was not the only member of her family to be a Class of '85 diploma-getter.

Her daughter (from a previous marriage) Cynthia Maier recently graduated from Cass City High School to turn the double play in the diploma department.

"We had a super good turnout," Mulrath said referring to the crowd at her and her daughter's June 1 open house. "I thought it was nice that we both graduated at the same time. It was different, though."

Mulrath previously had obtained educational competency through the General Education Development (GED) examination, but was a far cry from what she wanted.

"Ever since I remember I wanted a diploma. I felt cheated that I didn't have one. I have a GED, but it's not the same," Mulrath said.

Mulrath said Cass City Community Education Director Dave Lovejoy was an integral part of her return to high school.

"Anyone that comes in my door, I'll use anything I have inside myself to convince them to get their diploma," Lovejoy said.

"I didn't think I could get it (a diploma) so easily. Well, it wasn't easy, but I thought I had to get more credits," Mulrath said.

To graduate, Mulrath had to earn two and a half more credits. She did so by taking courses in speech, history and government.

"It was refreshing to have your mind work rather than just sit there and do nothing. I had a problem with history, but I found government to be enjoyable, real interesting," said Mulrath, who had to attend classes two to three nights a week.

A severe case of appendicitis midway through her sophomore year at Dearborn Heights Riverside High School, coupled with a high-school love, forced Mulrath to quit school in January 1963.

Her boyfriend of two years, however, joined the service and was to be stationed in Hawaii. Mulrath married him in March 1963. She had two daughters, Tammy Maier and Cynthia. She was divorced when Tammy was five years old. Tammy has since graduated from Temple Christian High School in Detroit.

She married Nicholas Mulrath, a plumber, in October 1977. The Mulraths moved to the area in May 1984 to move closer to Nicholas' relatives. Nicholas was born in Cass City and raised in Bach. Their son Timothy, 6, currently attends Campbell Elementary School, Cass City.

"We wanted to get away from the hustle and bustle of the city. I really like Cass City. It's peaceful," Mulrath said.

Mulrath is still determined to get that typing class she didn't get, and would perhaps like to become a teacher's aide or some capacity working with children.

Mulrath said she has had tough times in her lifetime—bad grades in high school, the divorce—and there was one person who helped her through her tribulations.

"I sent my high school counselor an announcement. And she replied 'I told you you could do it.' I went to her in high school when I had problems with grades. And I went back to her for help after the divorce," Mulrath said.

Troubles aside, "Proudly I say... I'm going to have a cap and gown of my own," reads the inside cover.

Mother/son combination graduate after long wait

Thirty years ago, Florence Sprague, an eleventh grade student at Pinconning High School, decided she had been going to school long enough, and dropped out. Twenty years later her son, Bryan, a 16-year-old tenth grade student at Owen-Gage High School followed suit, and left high school.

It took a combined total of almost 40 years, but June 11 the mother and son team walked up to a stage in the Cass City High School gymnasium and picked up a long overdue award, their high school diplomas. The pair earned degrees through the adult education courses offered at the high school.

"I was just buying time until I turned 16 and could get out of there," Bryan said about his years at Owen-Gage. He added that he worked hard on his studies during the basketball season so he would remain eligible, but during the rest of the school year he "didn't study too hard."

"I was about like everybody else. There were too many other things going on," Bryan added. "I was just bored with it."

During the next 10 years Bryan worked at several factory jobs. Many lasted only for a few weeks, then he would be laid off. "The way I looked at it, they hired a bunch of people for rush orders," he said. Bryan feels that it was cheaper for the factory to hire new workers, instead of paying overtime to the regular employees. When the order was filled, Bryan and the other new workers were laid off.

"It wasn't too hard to get another job," he said about the first few years after dropping out of school. He worked as seasonal help for the Michigan Sugar Company, Sebawaing plant, but was unable to get a full-time job. He is presently working for a commercial fisherman operating out of the Bay Port area.

"I have been all over the place," Bryan said about his search for a job. "Most of them are jobs that only last a couple of weeks, or they don't pay anything."

Bryan admitted that even with a high school degree, the job market is still tough in the area. "Five to ten years ago it (a high school degree) would have opened some doors," Bryan said. "Now college opens doors." He added that if he gets "disgusted" enough over not finding a job he may "see about college."

three nights a week the second semester.

"If you happen to be working (while going to school), it doesn't leave you too much time," Bryan explained. He earned six A's and one B while attending the adult education classes.

"If I am going to use this for a job, I wanted the best grades I could get," he said. "At least that should speak for itself."

Florence Sprague said when she first dropped out of high school in 1955, finding a job wasn't a problem. Since then health problems that will not allow her to work in most factories, and a slow down in the economy have made it difficult for her to find another job.

Mrs. Sprague explained that she worked for Automotive Industries, Owendale, for about 10 years. In 1974 the factory moved to Pennsylvania. During her last year at the factory, she had a lung and a tumor on her neck removed.

"I said I will have to change my occupation to where I won't have to work around chemicals," she said. Her doctor agreed.

Mrs. Sprague is hoping that by completing her high school degree, she will be able to find a job where she will not be subjected to dust and chemicals that are prevalent in many factories.

Mrs. Sprague would like to find a job as a cashier. She said that after graduation if she is unable to find a job, she will go to a skill center where she can be trained on operating an electronic cash register.

The 48-year-old Owendale resident said that many of her family members attended the graduation ceremonies, and they were pleased that she was graduating from high school.

MOTHER AND SON GRADUATES - Florence and Bryan Sprague were two of the 26 adults who received their diplomas at the Cass City Adult High School graduation exercises.

Poison ivy

Poison ivy may be the bane of summer campers and hikers, but many animals revel in it, says International Wildlife magazine. Grouse, pheasants, bluebirds, chickadees and other birds eat the seeds. Black bear, cottontail rabbits and mule deer relish the foliage.

"Christmas Town" to be revisited in slide show

For some it may be time to reminisce, but for most it will be a time to take a look back into history.

A slide program will be shown Monday at 7:30 p.m. featuring a peek at the days when Cass City was known as "Christmas Town, USA." Presented by the Cass City Area Historical Society, the slide show will be at the Rawson Memorial Library, 6495 Pine St., Cass City.

Colored slides of street, home and park decorations, along with a few pageant scenes, will be shown.

Slate reunion at fairgrounds

The May-Gilbert-Klauka reunion will be held Sunday, July 7, at the Tuscola County Fairgrounds in Caro.

Brown earns warfare officer designation

Navy Ensign Kevin G. Brown, a 1978 graduate of Cass City High School, was designated June 10 as a Surface Warfare Officer (SWO).

He was presented with the Gold SWO Insignia at Surface Warfare Officers School Command Detachment Coronado, San Diego.

Brown was presented this award after culminating two years of extensive training and experience aboard a Navy surface ship. To become an SWO, he had to demonstrate proficiency as an underway officer of the deck, including shiphandling and maneuvering in formation under simulated battle conditions. He also had to qualify as an underway watch officer in the Combat Information Center, detecting and tracking enemy aircraft, ships and missiles.

Brown also completed various training courses in naval operations and passed a comprehensive oral examination conducted by his commanding officer.

Brown received a B.S. degree from Michigan State University in 1983.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace L. Brown, Ubyly.

HEALTH TIPS

CPR - learn how to give the breath of life

"One of the most startling ideas in the history of medicine - that 'sudden death' can be curable - is beginning to take root in our minds. Perhaps more astonishing still is the realization that this apparent miracle can be brought about not by the space-age wizardry of high technology, nor even by the skills of highly trained physicians, but by any of us, anywhere, using no tools but our hands, our lungs, and our brains.

"What is the miracle? CPR - cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Each day people across America are performing a death defying act when they learn the skills of CPR," said Diane Krzyston, chairperson, BCLS/Heart Saver committee, American Heart Association of Michigan, and clinical instructor, William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak.

"By learning CPR you become part of a movement in scientific advancement which began to change emergency care in 1960 when researchers in Baltimore made an important discovery. They found that compressing a victim's chest along with rescue breathing helped to sustain life under certain conditions.

"These advances were reported as a medical procedure in medical journals and at a conference on cardiopulmonary resuscitation in 1966. Then in 1973, the American Heart Association cosponsored a National Conference on Standards for Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) and Emergency Cardiac Care (ECC). This was where CPR was defined as a first-aid procedure which should be taught to the general public.

Ms. Krzyston said, "Now

CPR is taught on a regular basis to the public through places of employment, community education, church and other groups. To become a heartsaver, the person takes a four hour class and is certified to administer 1 person CPR. The basic rescuer takes an eight hour class, and is certified to perform 1 person, 2 person, infant and child CPR, and the obstructed airway procedure for choking. The certification is for a period of one year, with the individual being retrained and retested annually. Classes must be taught by an AHA/MI certified instructor.

"In order to maintain our high standards, the American Heart Association has committed millions of dollars and countless hours of volunteers' time since 1960 to the development of CPR performance standards, training materials and training programs. This effort has resulted in more than 15 million people being trained in this country and many more around the world. Research, testing and evaluation of CPR indicate that if performed properly and early enough, thousands can be saved each year both inside and outside of hospitals.

"CPR can save lives. Approximately 650,000 people will die of heart attack this year. Of this 350,000 deaths will happen outside of a hospital and usually will occur within the first two hours after the onset of symptoms. Other causes of sudden death include drowning, suffocation, electrocution, drug overdose and automobile accidents. Many of these deaths can be prevented if the victims get prompt help...if someone trained in CPR provides proper lifesaving measures until trained professionals take over.

"The important point to remember is speed in starting CPR and timeliness in getting specialized medical care for the victim are the key to saving lives," Ms. Krzyston said.

"Look up the phone number of your local emergency medical service and keep the number posted by your phone...before the emergency. If you think someone is having a heart attack, call EMS. The average person waits three hours after having the first symptoms of a heart attack, and half of them die within that period.

"Everyone can benefit from learning CPR. Everyone hopes they'll never have to use their skills, but are grateful they have the necessary skills when they're faced with an emergency.

"Classes are offered on a regular basis throughout the state. For information on classes in your area, call the American Heart Association of Michigan near you."

The American Heart Association of Michigan is a United Way Agency.

The first record to sell a million copies was "Dardenella/I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles," by Ben Selven. It was put out by Victor Records in 1919.

Ubly girl seeks Junior Miss title

Michigan's Junior Miss Sharon Swartzentruber of Ubly, will take part in two weeks of receptions, rehearsals and preliminary performances in Mobile, Ala., leading to the 28th annual Junior Miss national finals to be televised live by CBS the evening of June 21. At stake during the national finals, will be scholarships and awards totaling more than $100,000. Swartzentruber is the 18-year-old daughter of Leon and Susan Swartzentruber of Ubly.

She is a senior at Ubly Community High School and plans to attend Michigan State University.

Swartzentruber and other state winners will be judged on scholastic achievement, poise and appearance, physical fitness, creative and performing arts and judges' interview.

Joslyn sentences Saginaw man to prison term

A 32-year-old Saginaw man was sentenced to up to 48 months in Southeastern Michigan Prison, Jackson, by Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Patrick Joslyn Monday on a charge of aiding and abetting with intent to commit larceny.

John E. Howard was sentenced to 24 to 48 months in the state prison after he pleaded guilty May 17 to aiding and abetting in the commission of a building larceny.

He originally pleaded not guilty to the larceny charge and a concealed weapon charge Oct. 14, 1984. The concealed weapon charge was dropped.

The charges stem from a building larceny Oct. 2, 1984 at the printing office at the Cass River Trader, 5881 Frankennuth Rd., Vassar.

In other court action, a 27-year-old Caro man was sentenced by Joslyn Monday on two separate counts.

Lee R. Collins, Rainbow Motel, Room 2, Caro, was sentenced to one year in the Tuscola County Jail for attempted larceny in a building after he pleaded guilty June 3 to the charge. The charge stems from the May 15 larceny of the M-46 Party Shoppe, 1020 W. Sanilac Rd., Caro. According to the report, Collins attempted to steal eight packages of beef snacks.

Collins was also sentenced to one year in the county jail for arson. He pleaded guilty to the charge May 6.

Collins was originally charged with conspiracy to commit arson of real property with a value less than $50. He attempted to burn a porch at his residence at 99 W. Grant St., Caro, Aug. 13, 1983.

Collins will receive 20 days credit on the larceny charge and 45 days credit on the arson charge. Joslyn recommended a residential alcohol treatment program for Collins.

In other court action Monday, Judge Joslyn:

Sentenced Horace Pitts, 1, and Rodney W. Dunes, 35, both of Camp Tuscola minimum security prison, to one additional year in prison on charges of possession of alcohol in a prison.

The charge stems from a March 16 possession of alcohol and contraband (marijuana) in a prison. The contraband charge was dismissed. The pair pleaded guilty to the alcohol charge May 20.

Accepted a guilty plea from William D. Hoseclaw, 49, 6639 S. Phillips Rd., Clifford, on a charge of attempted receiving and concealing of stolen property valued over $100. The charge stems from Hoseclaw's possession of a stolen 1980 Peterbilt cab-over truck. The truck was stolen from Associates Commercial Corp., Akron, Ohio, Aug. 20, 1982.

Hoseclaw was originally charged with receiving and concealing stolen property valued over $100. He will be sentenced July 1.

A guilty plea on a charge of attempted delivery of marijuana was accepted by the court from Charles D. Dost, 25, 1975 Murray Rd., Caro. Dost was originally charged with delivery of marijuana Nov. 10, 1983. He will be sentenced July 15. Bond continues at $15,000.

The court accepted a not guilty plea from Ted Buff, 33, 222 Plum St., Vassar, on a charge of intent to do great bodily harm less than murder. The charge stems from a knife attack on Garold V. Law Jr., Vassar. A pre-trial has been set for July 1. Bond has been set at $25,000.

The court deemed Clayton J. Fox, 43, Mayville, is competent to stand trial.

After the decision, he pleaded guilty to a charge of malicious destruction of property over $100.

The charge stems from a July 7, 1984, incident when Fox broke a window at a Vassar auto dealership.

Fox originally was charged with malicious destruction of property over $100 and a habitual offender. The habitual offender charge has been dropped.

Trial date is scheduled for July 1.

In other court action Monday, David Scott Geurin, 18, 2201 Swaffer Rd., Millington, was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail and three years' probation.

Geurin pleaded guilty April 29 to breaking and entering of an unoccupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny. The charge stems from a Feb. 16 larceny of the Caro Wrecking Co. office, 987 S. Ellington St., Caro.

Geurin also was fined $200 and had court costs of $400.

DISTRICT COURT

Monday, Tuscola County District Court Judge Richard F. Kern sentenced James L. May, 49, 655A Little Rd., Cass City, to 60 days in the county jail on a charge of operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor. May was placed on a work release program. May pleaded guilty to the charge May 30. He was arrested by Kingston Police officer Carmine Prinzo March 22. He was also ordered to pay a $273 fine, $152 court costs, and $60 to the alcohol treatment program.

Judge Kern suspended May's driver's license for two years. No driving privileges will be allowed until he completes an alcohol treatment program.

Who needs fire siren at 2 a.m.?

To whom it may concern:

It's time to change another practice that may have been appropriate years back. The fire alarm in town after 11 p.m. is unnecessary.

Why does it blow 12 to 17 times? Who needs to hear it at 2:30 or 4 a.m. in the morning? I would imagine just the fire fighters. For years it has woke and scared my children. There must be a better way. The fire fighters' phones ring in their homes already, so why the noise? Ambulance call people carry alarms with them so why couldn't just the fire fighters be notified?

I feel a lot of people would like to have it more like the other towns in the area. Also, I'm sure by morning everyone in town would know where the fire was.

Walbro announces 6-cent dividend

The Board of Directors of Walbro Corporation, at a regularly scheduled meeting, declared a second quarter dividend of 6 cents per share payable July 31, 1985, to shareholders of record June 28, 1985. The dividend will be paid on approximately 2,944,000 shares outstanding.

A two-for-one split of Walbro common stock occurred May 28, for shareholders of record May 16. The 6 cents per share second quarter dividend therefore represents a continuation of increased dividend payouts initiated in the fourth quarter of 1984. Dividends for that quarter and for the first quarter of 1985 were 12 cents per share on approximately 1,469,000 shares outstanding. Payments of 8 cents per share were made for the first, second and third quarters of 1984, for a total dividend payout of 36 cents per share for 1984.

Cass City's Cable-ettes wait . . . win state title

The wait is over...finally. After five weeks of waiting, the Cable-ettes, sponsored by General Cable Co., 6285 Garfield St., Cass City, emerged from the six-month Michigan Women's Bowling Association (MWBA) State Tournament in first place out of more than 5,000 teams entered.

The Cable-ettes' score withstood the challenge from about 200 teams in the final five weeks of the tournament to make them the number one team in the state.

The team of Pat McIntosh, Dorothy Sweeney, Florence Witherspoon, Pat Beecher and Hugo rolled a 3294 series May 10-12 in Battle Creek to bolt into the top spot of the tournament that began in February. The Cable-ettes beat a 3288 score posted by a team from Marlette, who had held the lead since the tournament's first week.

As the state champions, the five-member Cable-ettes will receive individual trophies and a first-place check of $4,000.

"The fat lady sang and we won," team member Lauri Hugo said. "It's the first time we've won big money like this."

"You never plan on doing good. You just want to have fun," Hugo said.

Well, the Cable-ettes had fun, but they "did good," too.

Sweeney will receive a "century" patch for rolling a 258 in one of her games, which was 101 pins more than her average.

The team will return to Battle Creek for a banquet honoring its victory and other top performers in the tournament.

The Cable-ettes bowl at Charmont Lanes, 6138 E. Cass City Rd., Cass City, in the Thumb Area Women's Bowlers Association, which covers the upper Thumb area.

Randee Speirs is the team's sixth bowler and did not participate in the tournament.

Accurate records make hog operations profitable

Swine operation income can be increased without raising costs, by keeping accurate, detailed financial and production records.

"We all should agree that records are the backbone of a profitable operation and that we must use this information to benefit from the time and effort spent in keeping records," says Dennis Stein, Extension Agricultural Agent of Tuscola County.

A general measure of the efficiency of a swine operation is the number of pigs produced per sow per year. Stein says comparing an operation's production records with average state performance levels can identify problem areas and help a producer set realistic production and financial goals.

Rebreeding problems -- such as disease, an inadequate number of boars or poor environmental conditions -- are indicated if the number of litters produced per sow per year is below Michigan's 1983 average of 1.73. If the length of lactation is above 21 days, a producer may not be practicing adequate selection pressure for milk production, or the nursery environment may be less than optimal.

Individual sow records will show the interval between farrowings and the ability to get sows rebred on first estrus after weaning in a continuous farrowing system.

A low number of pigs born alive per sow or per litter may reflect problems in the number of gilt replacements, diseases present in replacements or use of an inefficient crossbreeding system. An average of 16.6 pigs were born alive per sow per year and 9.6 pigs were born alive per litter in Michigan in 1983.

The number of pigs weaned will increase as the number of live pigs born grows. Improved milking ability of the sow, increased baby pig weight, and improved farrowing house environment and management also raise the average number of pigs weaned.

Reducing the mortality rate from birth to weaning to less than 12 percent will have a large impact on operation profitability, Stein says.

Financial records will provide information on the optimum feed/grain ratios, feed additive use and diet mix costs. Farrow-to-finish operations should have a feed/gain ratio of about 4.0 or less for maximum efficiency. Studies show producers may be wasting 10 to 15 percent of the feed if feed is seen on the floor.

Stein says feed costs make up about 60 to 65 percent of the total cost for the farrow-to-finish operator. Optimizing those costs can lead to substantial gains in profitability.

A good record-keeping system can be an inexpensive and profitable way to streamline operating costs and provide a form of cost and quality control.

When trying to work with your lender a good set of production records will increase your chances of getting needed operational funds. The future of your farm business may depend on your development of good record keeping programs today.

Board overrules objection

Matthews challenges student transfers

Requests for transfer of students sparked a discussion that revealed a basic difference in philosophy between Trustee Fred Matthews and the remainder of the board. The request by Fred

Hicks to have a second child enrolled at Campbell Elementary from Deford and by Phillip Rockwell to attend Campbell instead of Evergreen were approved at the Monday meeting of the board at the high school.

Matthews claims that allowing students to attend schools outside of the normal school area undermines the morale of the teachers and the school and said the board "should draw the line on allowing it."

The majority of the board indicated that as long as the parents could be accommodated without any extra cost to the district the requests should be granted.

Supt. Donald Crouse said that if the majority of the parents wanted students at Campbell then "we would have to take another look at it. But I believe that the vast majority of the parents want the students to attend classes close to home."

The transfers were allowed on a 6-1 vote with Matthews voting against them.

Principal Russell Richards reported on attendance and discipline at the high school.

He said that leaving school without permission and skipping showed little change. There were 500 cases of skipping one class and 123 students who skipped a half or a full day of school during the 1984-85 school year.

The administration policy on attendance appears to be working, Richards told the board. The number of students assessed points for infractions fell from 291 to 278 and the number of students who worked to have point reductions increased from 162 to 189.

It is significant, Richards said, that 98.9 percent of the students were not expelled for the balance of any semester and that nearly half, 46.7 percent, of the students were not assessed any points at all.

OTHER BUSINESS

A second interim budget was adopted by the board. Supt. Crouse said that it was still too early to fashion a meaningful budget for 1985-86 until more costs and revenues can be determined.

The budget does show that in the current school year that ends June 30, revenues increased from $3.798 million to $3.823 million over original estimates and projected current year costs will result in a deficit of $72,583, reducing the fund balance to $390,401 starting the new fiscal year.

Authorization for the Tuscola Intermediate District to house a hearing impaired room at the intermediate building was granted.

It will care for up to seven students and five are enrolled. Principal Robert Stickle explained. Three of the students are from the Cass City District. The Intermediate District will pay rent for the room. The amount has not been decided.

80 foster children know the Jacksons as mom and dad

During the past 19 years, Jim and Barb Jackson have opened their home to more than 80 foster care children in need of temporary parents. The children come from all walks of life, but they have one thing in common. To them the Jacksons are Mom and Dad.

"It was something that we felt like we wanted to do," Barb said about their decision to become foster care parents. "We wanted to share and take care of these kids."

Jim explained that they became foster parents back in the 1960's, when people were getting involved in various social programs. "We weren't sit-in-ers or protesters," he said. "This was our way of getting involved and being helpful."

They first became foster parents while living in Fort Wayne, Ind., a layoff, then a job offer from Walbro Corporation brought the Jacksons to Cass City about three years ago. They brought with them their desire to be foster parents.

"We had a 14 room house, and we felt we might as well fill it," Barb said about their Fort Wayne home. For a 12-year period they consistently cared for 10 children, including six of their own. The shortest a foster child has stayed with them was two weeks. One child lived with the Jacksons for five years.

After moving to Cass City, and a smaller home, the Jacksons care for three to four children at a time. To accommodate their large family, the Jacksons bought a 12-passenger van. Problems of washing clothing for 10 children were quickly solved by adding a second washing machine and dryer. They purchased a second refrigerator to store food.

During their 19-year career as foster care parents, the Jacksons have cared for children who have been sexually and physically abused, as well as economically and physically neglected. In most cases, parents of the foster child will be in contact with the Jacksons, and come to their home for visits and to pick up the child for a weekend stay.

"We have never had a problem with parents," Barb said. "We have always had a good rapport with them. We are neutral." She explained that as a foster care parent, their job is to love and care for the child. "We were not a threat to (the biological parents) them."

Jim added that it is the Department of Social Services who decides on visitation rights, and rules the parent must abide by.

"They (the parents) usually ask our advice on how to care for the kids, because they know we have the experience," Barb said.

Barb explained the goal of the foster care program is to reunite the child with his parents. "If you try to sabotage it, try to take the place of the real parents, you could run into real trouble. We don't ever try to take the parents' place. We treat them the same as ours, but we encourage good relationships with the parents."

She added that by remembering the goal, it is easier to see the child leave her home and return to their family. "You've helped the family get back together, and that's a neat feeling. The kids are so happy to be going back that you can't be sad," she said.

"I usually shed a few tears when they leave, but you still are happy for them."

Jim said that one child they took into their Fort Wayne home, David, was to stay about two months while his father recovered from alcoholism. When David's father was released from the treatment program he was unable to find a job that would support him and the child.

David stayed with the Jackson family for five years. He arrived at the Jackson home when their youngest child, Steve, was growing up.

"We went to get our picture (a family portrait that Barb wanted of just the Jackson family) taken, and when the proofs came back Steve wanted to know why David wasn't in the picture," Barb said. "The other kids came and went, but David was always there." Steve, then five years old, told his mother that David should be in the photo "because he's my brother, too."

Because the Jacksons are willing to take a large number of children at one time, they usually have older children, from ages 5 to 17.

"I really enjoy the teenagers. Of course they have the most problems," Barb said. She explained that one girl was several months pregnant when she moved in. Her mother would not allow the girl back into her own home. Barb agreed to take the child in, and also arranged a church wedding for her.

Not all of the children are returned to their homes.

Some of them are put up for adoption.

"There have been about four (foster children) that we would have loved to adopt," Barb said. One of the children, a girl who lived with them, had another family interested in adopting her. Jim said that they already had boys and girls of their own, and they asked themselves if they "should deprive someone else?" The other couple adopted the girl.

For the child that will not return home, but will be placed through adoption, the Jacksons work to prepare for a smooth transition into the new home. Barb added that one parent called to thank her for helping the child prepare for her new home.

Many of the children arrive at the Jackson home with little more than the clothes on their back. For these children Michigan has a special emergency clothing allowance. In Indiana, the Jacksons received $75 per month to care for the child. There was no special fund for clothing. Several times the Jacksons paid for the child's clothing out of their own pocket.

In Michigan the Department of Social Services pays $7.70 per day to the foster care parent of a child under 12 years old. For a child over 12, they receive $10.20 per day. This amounts to about 85 percent of the total cost of raising the child.

Barb said that one problem many of the children have is a lack of personal hygiene. She added that many children are unable to choose the proper clothing to wear. She explained that one boy would come downstairs wearing a plaid shirt and checked pants. Several times she explained to the child what shirt to choose. Barb said the boy was so happy when he finally came downstairs one morning with a correctly matching shirt and pants on.

"It's those little things that make them socially acceptable," Barb said.

In first 10 years

Cass City Junior Citizens fulfill promise

It would appear that when Cass City Chamber of Commerce members select a Junior Citizen of the Year Award recipient, they do a thorough job of evaluating their choices.

Of the 11 students who were chosen to receive the award during the first 10 years of its existence, all have moved into successful positions in their community. All but two of the award winners have left the Cass City area to make a life for themselves elsewhere.

Betty Powell, then Betty Kennedy, was the first junior citizen to receive the award. She was selected as junior citizen for 1965.

While attending Cass City High School, Powell was a student council member, and a member of the Thumb D Student Council. She was also a cheerleader and a member of the Spanish and pep clubs.

After graduation from high school in 1965, Powell graduated from a one-year business course at Northeastern Business School, Bay City. She went to work as a secretary for Walbro Corporation, and married her husband, Roy Powell, in 1967. After two years at Walbro she quit to raise her family and help on the family owned farm. The Powells have three daughters.

Mrs. Powell and her husband operate a 700-acre cash crop farm. She has served as Grant Township supervisor for the past three years.

1966 - Robert Rabideau, a Cass City High School Student Council president, and co-captain of the football team, graduated from high school in 1966. He left Cass City to attend the University of Detroit. He graduated in 1970 with a bachelor of science degree in business management. That same year he married Elaine Waszak, formerly of Caro. They have three children.

While his wife was attending Michigan State University he was employed at Moore Business Forms, Inc., Lansing. He left Moore in 1981 to start his own company,

Bowel cancer is hereditary

Hereditary predisposition for lower bowel cancer may account for over 20 percent of all colorectal cancers. Within some families, the risk may reach as high as 50 percent by age 60.

Many people are now taking greater responsibility for their own wellness. One way is by monitoring themselves for early detection of hidden blood in the stool—a warning signal of certain colorectal diseases. Capital Business Forms, Lansing. Most of the business forms that Rabideau's firm produces are used for computers and data processing.

1967 - Tim Knight was the salutatorian for his graduating class, an assistant band director and a member of the honors band while at Cass City High School. After graduating from high school in 1967, he earned a bachelor's degree in psychology from Michigan State University.

He presently works as an administrator of East Holden Hall for MSU. He was employed as a food service manager for other MSU housing complexes. He is a member of the National Association of College and University Food Services Managers, and has had two articles published about him in the Food Management magazine.

Knight is a volunteer tutor and group counselor for the Ingham County Probate Court, and is a past president of the Lansing Association for Human Rights, an organization that offers aid to battered wives and children.

1968 - Joan Maleck was the valedictorian of her graduating class, a member of the band and pep band, and a French club member. She also served as class president in her junior year.

Maleck graduated from Michigan State University in 1972, and married her husband, Steven Pierce, Coldwater, that same year.

They moved to Honeoye Falls, N.Y., where both were employed as engineers for Kodak Company. She left her job to raise their two children.

1969 - Lynn Haire was valedictorian of her senior class, and served as class president for two years. She was also a student council member and a Youth For Understanding foreign exchange student.

Haire graduated from Michigan State University with a bachelor's degree in German language. She received her master's degree in German from MSU and English from the University of Michigan.

In 1983, Haire married Larry Sroka. They live in Plymouth. She is a language coordinator and teaches German for Ferndale Schools. Haire is also in charge of developing a new language program for students in kindergarten through sixth grades. Sroka is a mathematics instructor for the Livonia School District.

1970 - Sally Geiger was valedictorian of her high school and college graduating classes. As a high school student she was also a student council president. She graduated from Central Michigan University in 1974.

After graduating from college she taught mathematics for Grand Ledge Schools for four years.

Geiger married John Spencer, a Lansing area carpenter, in 1976. She left her teacher's position to raise her family. The Spencers have two children.

She is presently working in the communications department at Michigan State University.

1971 was the first year that two junior citizens of the year, Cindy Strickland and Anne Bulen, were selected to receive the award.

Bulen was a student council president, a National Honor Society member and a foreign exchange student. She graduated from Alma College, and worked as a Vista volunteer in Colorado, teaching preschool students.

She married Mark Jacobs, a Niagara Falls, N.Y., resident, in 1976. They returned to Cass City in 1977 where she worked as a first grade teacher for Cass City Schools.

In 1978 they both joined the Peace Corps for a two-year stay in Paraguay. In 1980 they moved to New Jersey where her husband earned his Ph.D. in English literature from Drew University. She taught in a private school in New Jersey for three years.

Mark Jacobs is an employee with the United States government's Foreign Service Department. They are planning to move to Turkey this summer, and then to Bolivia next year. The Jacobs have two children.

Cindy Strickland was president of her freshman and junior class, a student council member and a National Honor Society member. She was also the 1971 homecoming queen.

Strickland graduated from Michigan State University in 1974 with a degree in education. She worked as a model in New York, and has lived in Hong Kong, Switzerland and Japan.

In 1982 she married Bob Kalupic, the owner of a restaurant in Manhattan. They have one child.

1972 - Ron Crandell began his present career of operating a gift shop in Mackinaw City during the summer of his junior-senior year. As a student at Cass City High School he was a National Honor Society member and a student council president.

After high school he attended the University of Michigan, graduating in 1976 with a bachelor's degree in American studies.

Crandell operates two family owned gift shops, The Voyageur in Mackinaw City and The Voyageur in Harbor Springs.

1973 - Kim Glaspie was a National Honor Society member, a student council president and president of his sophomore class. He graduated from the University of Michigan in 1977, and the Thomas M. Cooley Law School in 1980.

Glaspie started his law practice with the firm of Clabuesch & Glaspie, Pigeon. He opened the firm's Cass City office in 1981. He is also part owner of Thumb Realty.

He is a member of the American Bar Association, the Michigan Bar Association and the Tuscola County Bar Association. He is also active in the Cass City Chamber of Commerce.

He and his wife Jackie have two children.

1974 - Melody Bacon began planning her medical career while still in high school, working for Dr. E.C. Fritz as a dental assistant, and at Hills and Dales General Hospital as a lab assistant. While in high school she was a student council member, a class officer, an honor student and a member of the National Honor Society.

After graduation from Michigan State University, in 1978 with a degree in business administration, Bacon went to the Piedmont School of Nursing, Atlanta, GA, where she received her bachelor of science in 1981.

She is presently living in the Dallas, Tex., area, working in the Baylor University Medical Center's intensive care unit.

ing course, and their house must be acceptable. Ecken explained that if the home does not have city water and sewer, the water supply is tested by the Health Department to guarantee that it is safe. The house is also inspected to be sure it is hazard free for the children.

Interviews are also conducted with the parents to determine if they have proper discipline techniques and are of good moral character.

Ecken said a police and protective services check is conducted on the family to find out if they are proper foster parent candidates. It takes about 45 days before a foster parenting license is issued.

A foster parent is paid $7.70 per day for each child cared for under 12 years old. If the child is 12 years old or older, the foster parents receive $10.20 per day.

"One of the complaints thrown against the foster care parents is they are just doing it for the money," Ecken said. "It is not a profitable situation at all."

He added that statistics show that foster parents receive about 85 percent of the cost of caring for the child.

When the child is first taken into custody, if additional clothing is needed, a child 12 years old and older is eligible for a $270 emergency clothing allowance. For children under 12, the clothing allowance is $190. Twice a year the child will receive $91 for summer and winter clothing. All medical expenses, including counseling, are paid for by the Department of Social Services.

NOTICE

TO USERS OF VILLAGE WATER SERVICE

During the flushing of the hydrants Friday, June 21, starting at 4 a.m. there may be an abundance of crystallized iron (rust) in the water supplied to your area of the village.

This condition does not render the water unfit or harmful for consumption; however, clothing washed in this water will probably become discolored.

Check the color of your water before placing your clothing into it.

The village is not liable for damage caused by this condition.

Your cooperation will be greatly appreciated.

Kingston students attend summer recreation program

Kingston Elementary School students were introduced to a new and different classroom last week. Instead of sitting behind a desk and listening to their teacher, students found themselves paddling a canoe, catching fish, or building a sand castle.

"We run it like school, except the courses we offer are in softball, volleyball, swimming, archery or canoeing," said Kingston

Elementary School Principal Doug Kramer, naming a few of the programs offered. Kramer, director of the week-long camp, explained that classes last 50 minutes. At the sound of a bell, students may find themselves putting down a softball bat, and picking up a canoe paddle.

Kramer explained the purpose for the camp is to introduce students to as many new recreational activities as possible. In addition to learning new games, students saw films on bicycle safety and health topics such as encouraging them not to start smoking.

About 140 children who will be old enough to attend kindergarten this fall, up until they leave the sixth grade, attended the camp this year. In addition to three teachers who supervise activities, 16 high school students are employed as instructors and supervisors.

Although this is the ninth year for the program, it is the first year that the school has operated it without the help of the village of Kingston.

The cost of the week-long program, held at the Kingston Hills Recreation park, is $7.50 per child. The cost covers the fee to rent the park, and a small salary for the instructors. Children bring their own lunch, and they must provide for their own transportation.

"There are a lot of positive things about it (the camp), and the kids have a super time," Kramer said.

The week's activities ended Friday afternoon with a fishing contest. Awards went to the student with the biggest fish and the smallest catch of the day.

WHILE STUDENTS built sand castles, other children had the opportunity to learn proper canoeing techniques at the Kingston School's summer recreation program.

Could affect thousands in area

Cheese giveaway may end soon

by Wayne Kamidoi

With the continuation of the Temporary Food Assistance Program (TFAP) in jeopardy, area residents taking advantage of the surplus commodity distribution program may be dealt a severe blow.

"It (the discontinuation) would be devastating. They use our program to subsidize the rest of their groceries," said Mary Ann Vandemark, executive director of the Human Development Commission, which is the coordinating agency for the TFAP distribution serving Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac and Lapeer Counties.

The reason for concern is two of the three preliminary budgets drawn up in Washington, D.C., did not include TFAP appropriations for the 1986 fiscal year.

TFAP is a $50 million federal program designed to provide needy families and individuals with surplus commodities, mainly cheese and butter, at no charge.

The program, which began self-supported, in 1982, has received federal funds annually the past three years. Out of the $50 million allocated nationwide in 1985, Michigan received $2.2 million to carry out the program, according to Roger Lynas, state supervisor for the distribution program.

However, on the 1986 Executive Budget, devised by President Reagan, no funds were set aside to continue the surplus food distribution program.

Using the Executive Budget as a guideline, the U.S. Senate also nixed TFAP on its 1986 budget, Lynas said.

But the U.S. House of Representatives did include TFAP among its budget resolutions giving some ray of hope for its extension.

"It's anyone's guess now. It certainly looks better than it did two months ago (when the Executive Budget was handed down)," Lynas said.

To gain budget approval, a joint conference between the congressional bodies will be held to iron out any discrepancies.

"With all of the people using it, I can't see our Congress turning a deaf ear to those people," Vandemark said.

Vandemark added if TFAP is not included as one of the budget appropriations, distribution could end as early as Oct. 1, 1985.

In the four-county area, there are 3,443 eligible households registered to garner the free surplus commodities. The distributions occur every other month at 12 pickup locations (three in each county). In Tuscola County, there are pickup locations in Cass City, Vassar and Caro.

More than 100,000 pounds of surplus items, which also include rice, flour, corn meal and honey, are given away in the four county area on each distribution run, Vandemark estimated.

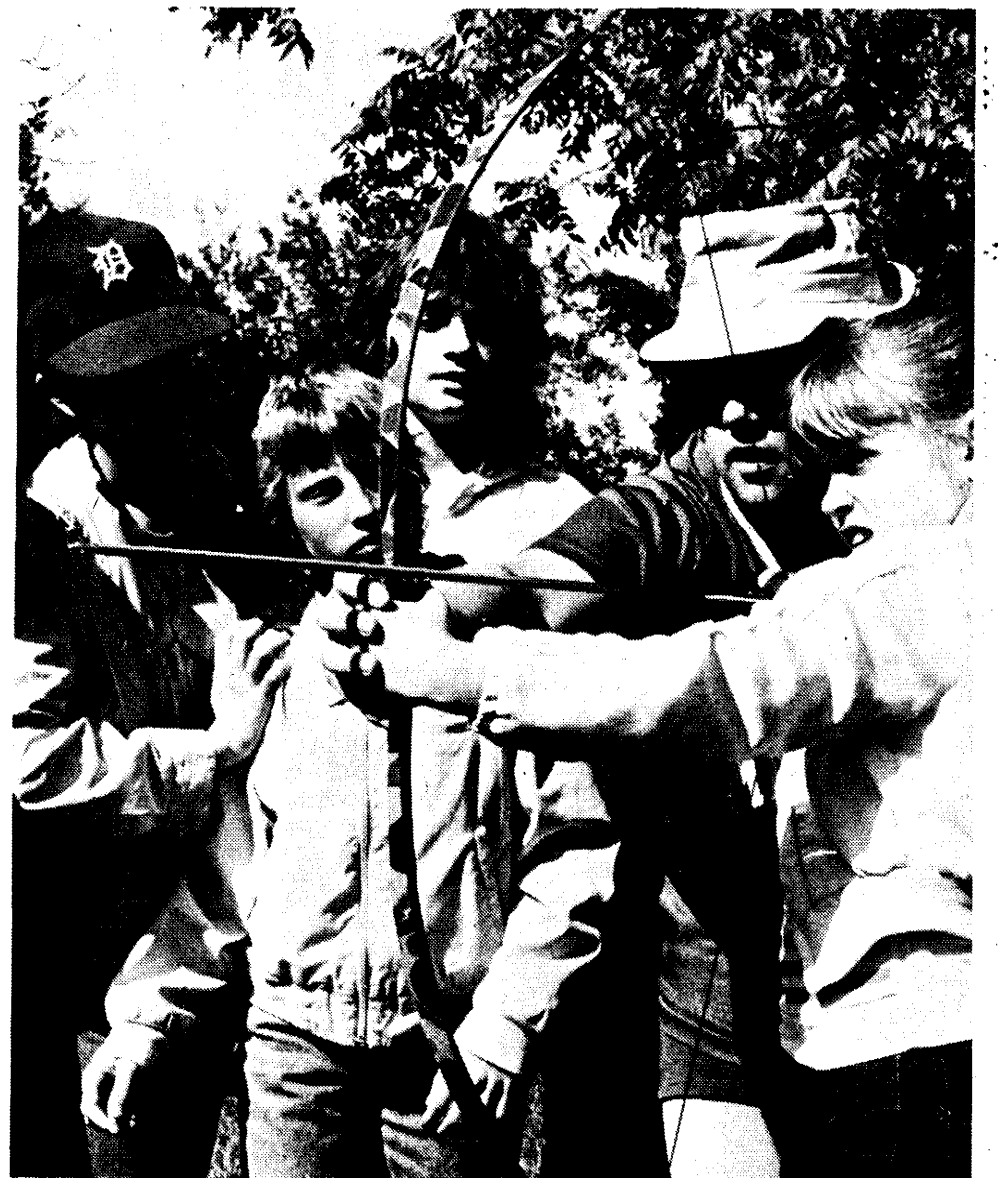

"When people start getting in line at 7 a.m., when you're going to start passing stuff out at 10:30 (a.m.), it tells you what kind of need there is for the program," Vandemark said.

"It's a highly-visible program. It's sometimes embarrassing considering how many families are eligible for it," Vandemark added.

Eligibility for the program is based on the size of a family and its annual gross income.

For example, a family of four with the head of the household less than 60 years old can earn up to $13,845 a year to be eligible for the distribution. A family of four with the head of the household more than 60 years old can earn up to $17,040 a year.

"There's quite a substantial amount of food being distributed. Whether or not there will be people starving to death (if the program ended), I wouldn't go that far," Lynas said.

TERRY STARK, a 10th grade Kingston High School student, demonstrates the proper technique of shooting bow and arrow to Mandy Clapsaddle, a fourth grade student who attended Kingston School's summer recreation program.

KINGSTON ELEMENTARY School Principal Doug Kramer treated children to a horse-drawn hay ride.

ORV accident results in two injuries Monday

Tuscola County Sheriff's Department Deputy Richard Hofmeister reported two Cass City area residents were injured in an off road vehicle accident Monday at 9:55 p.m.

According to the report, Thomas J. Harper, 15, 4205 Little Rd., Cass City, and Douglas J. Howell Jr., 19, 4200 Little Road, were riding their vehicles on private property owned by Thomas Harper's father, Larry Harper. Deputy Hofmeister reported that Harper made a turn in front of the Howell vehicle, and was struck. Both were taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital. They were treated and released.

Deputy Wayne Newton reported there were no injuries in a July 12, 2:00 p.m., two-car accident. According to the report, a vehicle driven by Thelma J. Churchill, 37, 4009 Krapf Rd., Cass City, was westbound on M-81, near Sheridan Road. As she was turning left into a private driveway, she was struck by a vehicle driven by Jeffery S. Nieschulz, 17, 60 Cook Rd., Bad Axe, also westbound on M-81. Nieschulz told Deputy Newton he was attempting to pass a van that was following the Churchill vehicle, and did not see her turning left in time to avoid the accident.

Toxic waste

City and state governments are getting tough with corporate toxic waste polluters, reports National Wildlife magazine. Some cities have organized Toxic Waste Strike Forces to investigate illegal chemical waste dumping. Corporate officers who have intentionally broken environmental laws have been fined nearly half a million dollars, given six-month jail terms and even forced to take out full-page advertisements in local newspapers admitting their guilt.

Beatrice Howard dies Sunday

Beatrice M. Howard, 59, Cass City, died Sunday at Saginaw General Hospital after a short illness.

She was born Dec. 14, 1925, in Argyle Township, daughter of the late Albert and Anna Mae (Mardlin) Lintner.

She married Arnold Groth Nov. 28, 1942 at Bad Axe. He preceded her in death Oct. 31, 1946.

She was a resident of Cass City since 1963 and had worked for Hills and Dales Hospital in the housekeeping department for several years.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. Gerald (Judith) Muntz, Bad Axe, Mrs. Kenneth (Arnoldine) Matthews, Lapeer, Dianne Cook, Cass City, Mrs. Bernard (Marie) Young, Columbiaville and Mrs. George (Gail) Kerna, Bartlesville, Okla.; three sons, Harold Groth, Flat Rock, Bradley Groth, Newark, Del., and Gerald Howard, Cass City; 14 grandchildren; one brother, Francis Lintner, Vassar, and one sister, Velma Shagena, Marlette.

She was preceded in death by one brother, Albert (Tom) Lintner.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Thursday at Zinger-Smigielski Funeral Home, Uby. The Rev. Carl A. Renter, pastor of Uby United Methodist Church, will officiate. Burial will be in the Argyle Township Cemetery, Sanilac County.

Boys "accidentally" find arrowheads

Accidents do happen. But for three Cass City youngsters, they had two accidents occur to them in one week.

Luckily, it wasn't an accident that required an ambulance or even a Band-aid.

David Bills, 9, and his 13-year-old twin brothers, Steve and Mike, stumbled upon two arrow-shaped rock formations near their home on Cemetery road in a span of seven days.

"My brother was pulling quartz.

A week earlier, in almost the same spot, the trio found a light, marble-textured arrowhead, which had a more distinct shape than the other.

Elkland board approves zoning variance request

At a June 10 Elkland Township board meeting, trustees approved a zoning variance request from Dana O'Harris, 5526 Dodge Rd., Galetown.

Clerk Norma Wallace said the variance was granted so O'Harris could open a barbershop in her home. The variance was needed because the area is zoned agricultural.

Under the terms of the variance, when the property is sold, it returns to an agricultural designated zone.

Also at the meeting, trustees approved a request to install culverts on Wilsie Road, between Cemetery and Koepfgen Roads for field access to two area farmers.

Wallace said the two farmers who requested the culverts are Dave Milligan, 6179 Bay City-Forestville Rd., and Louis Franks Jr., 6465 Cemetery Rd.

The number of culverts needed and the cost have not been decided.

Crocodiles

The newest neighborhood of the endangered American crocodile is at a place called Turkey Point, Fla., the home of a nuclear power plant, reports National Wildlife magazine. Over 10 percent of southern Florida's crocodiles live and breed in the plant's 168 miles of cooling canals.

The world "journal" comes from the Latin diurnal, meaning daily.

Junk

Is America a throw away society? According to National Wildlife magazine, each day Americans throw out 200,000 tons of edible food, junk 20,000 automobiles that would form a line of traffic more than 50 miles long, and toss out 150,000 tons of boxes, bags and wrappers.

CHESTER MUNTZ presents Charles Wright with the Mason of the Year award. Wright has been a member of the Tyler Lodge 317 since 1969.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

It was a pleasant lunch I had recently with Richard Eckhouse of Boca Raton. As investment advisors we were quite simpatico. We agreed that most amateur investors show poor results. And we felt the same way about most mutual funds, and most brokerage house recommendations. They don't turn out very well.

Dick has done detailed research to arrive at these conclusions. My conclusions are empirical.

We both handle 15 or 20 portfolios for clients, who give us authority to buy or sell as we choose without consultation. We both believe that a NYSE firm is the proper place to keep securities.

Neither Dick nor I are very optimistic about the future of common stocks, and consequently are staying out of the market.

Dick lists his goals in order of preference:

1. Safety of principal.
2. Long-term capital gains.
3. Tax savings.
4. Income (when important to the individual.)

My own goals are a little different, but not much. I liken my philosophy to that of a three-legged milk stool: It's hard to say which is the most important leg.

One leg is safety of principal, another is after-tax return, and the third is liquidity — investments that are easy to sell.

The third leg, liquidity, is the reason I don't like real estate, nor tax shelters in oil wells, for example.

Dick thinks part of a person's assets can well be in gold, as an inflation hedge.

A lot of savvy people do invest in gold for that very reason. I am not one of them. Say gold is $300 an ounce. Say it doubles in seven years and is worth $600. The $300 increase is taxed as a capital gain, say 20%. So if you cash it in, your $300 has become $540, after tax.

I would prefer to buy a seven-year zero coupon bond yielding 10%, tax exempt. In seven years this would double in price and there would be no capital gain. Meanwhile it would have that nice little feature of guaranteeing it would be worth double in 1992. Can a gold merchant assure you the same thing?

We both feel that most investors lack flexibility in their views. If they've been brought up to think utility common stocks are the thing, they never change their minds. If the family has done well in real estate, then they buy condos on spec, and for the last three years have had regrets. We had a common complaint about brokers — they recommend things to buy, but seldom suggest when to sell.

We split sharply on whether to invest in short-term bonds or long-term bonds. Dick sees great inflation ahead and with it higher interest rates, and of course, lower bond prices. He thinks three years is as far out as he wants to go in maturities.

He comes up with a lot of figures that show over the past 10 years people who bought short-term obligations (like a year out) did better than any other stock or bond investor.

I happen to feel inflation will hang around 4%, which is still historically high — twice as high as the average since 1800. Meanwhile I'd like to lock in these tax exempt yields of 10 and 10 1/2 per cent. If interest rates go up — and bond prices down — I'll retrieve some of the drop in value by being able to re-invest the income at higher rates. Dick can of course do this, too, with his short bonds, but he'll be out in the cold if rates go down and he has to re-invest maturing bonds at lower rates.

There's a handy comment to make as these arguments go on:

"Time will tell."

Meanwhile, Dick Eckhouse continues to do quite well as an advisor. What started out as a pastime some 20 years ago has now put him in an office in the NCNB building in downtown Boca. As for me, I still operate out of what used to be the spare bedroom.

Chiropractic Helps Millions!

Make Your Appointment
To See--
Dr. Pat or Dr. Vincent Today!

When health-care history books are written, the 1980s will be recorded as the decade when Chiropractic came into its own. Already the first choice for millions of Americans, Chiropractic is the fastest-growing health care profession.

We take no selfish satisfaction in the fact that the medical profession lately has begun to (reluctantly) agree that Chiropractic science is right on target in relating, as we do, the cause of many human ailments to interference with the normal flow of vital nerve energy to various parts of the body.

Doctors of Chiropractic—and their many patients who have regained good health after medicine, drugs and surgery have failed—have known all along that Chiropractic works. What we are seeing now, and encouraging, is families choosing Chiropractic FIRST, rather than as a "last resort."

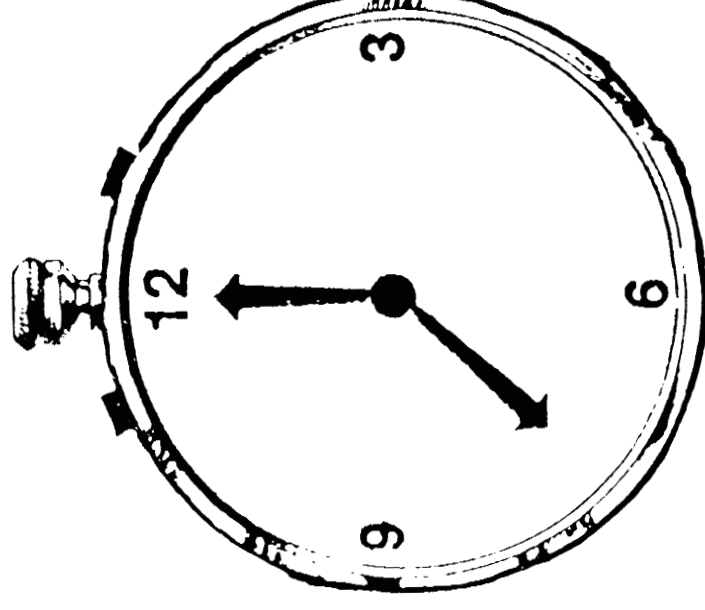

Today, there are more Chiropractic clinics than ever before. And Doctors of Chiropractic, professionally educated under higher standards than ever before, are not only helping people recover their birthright of good health; we are helping them maintain it.

CAN CHIROPRACTIC HELP ME?

There are two questions constantly asked of chiropractors by their patients. "Can chiropractic help me?" "How long will it take me to get well?" In trying to reach a justifiable and sincere prognosis (meaning what the outcome of the case will be under chiropractic care), four things must be considered.

1. AGE OF THE PATIENT. As a general rule, it can be said that the younger the patient, the greater the opportunity for recovery. The older he is the longer it will take, other things being equal.

2. DEGREE TO WHICH THE DISEASE HAS PROGRESSED. If the condition is mild, taken in its earlier stages, the recovery is more nearly assured than it would be in its later stages.

3. VITALITY IN RESERVE IN THE PATIENT. If the person has been sick a long time and his reserve force does not "come back" readily, it can be seen that the possibility for recovery is lessened. If the person has a strong reserve force, then the odds are much more in his favor.

4. TIME THE PATIENT WILL ALLOW FOR A RECOVERY TO TAKE PLACE. If the patient has a stubborn case that has been standing for is willing to grant chiropractic only a month to show what it can do. The prognosis would be grave because it would be impossible to get those slow responding forces to act quickly on an old standing condition in that space of time.

Here are two other cases. 3) Suppose our patient is ten years old. The degree of illness is severe. The patient's vitality is at low ebb. The parents are willing to grant plenty of time. Here now is a fight between chiropractic and the long odds the disease has already accomplished. The probabilities are that chiropractic can bring an early recovery. Youth and a quick "comeback" are in the patient's favor.

Case 4) Suppose the patient is 80 years old. The degree is mild in time and extent. The patient has the usual weak conditions which come from old age. The recovery, or comeback, is slower at 80 than at 60 or 40. The prognosis would be favorable, because the patient is willing to grant plenty of time. The only adverse consideration is the age of the patient, which is not a major problem because the condition is mild.

The points in conflict are the age of the pa-years and allows but one week for recovery success would be impossible, for it takes time to get well, just as it takes time to get sick. Disease grows; health must regrow. It takes time for disease or health to grow.

It appears that any patient can weigh the relative values of these four points, stack himself up against them, and form an opinion of the outcome for himself. The advantages we have over the patient in the formation of this opinion are our education and the experience in what should be done and our knowledge of patient recovery in similar cases.

OPPOSITE CASES CITED. Let us cite several hypothetical cases for illustration. 1) Suppose the patient is ten years old. The degree of illness is mild, having stood but a short time. The patient's vitality is strong. The parents are willing to give any reasonable time to show a change for the better. There should be little doubt whatever about the ultimate result in this case.

Let us assume the opposite. 2) Suppose our case is 80 years old. The degree of illness is severe, having stood for many years. The patient is quite weak. The patient, being anxious, then, the degree of the disease, and the vitality of the patient, and none of these can be changed. They must be taken as they are. So, when the question is asked, "Can chiropractic cure me?" you can, perhaps, with this explanation, put yourself through the proceeding process and be more reasonable in your approach.

Now, in regard to the second question—"How long will it take me to get well?"—there is no way of honestly answering this. No two cases are ever alike. Some chronic cases may get well quickly, and some apparently mild cases will take a long time. Some younger cases may take longer than the older ones.

WHY DO WE LOOK TO THE SPINE? The spinal column consists of the 24 bone segments, called vertebrae, together with the sacrum and coccyx. The spinal cord passes through these vertebrae, and all the great nerve trunks emit from the openings between these vertebrae, which openings are known as the intervertebral foramina. The vital life within man is carried by these nerve trunks from the brain to the various organs, muscles, and tissues of the body.

PICK YOUR INSURANCE

When budgets are tight, it sometimes seems expedient to let health care slide. This should be the LAST place in which to economize. The policy of the Sebewaing Chiropractic Life Center always has been that NO ONE IS REFUSED CARE HERE BECAUSE OF INABILITY TO PAY. We care about you, your health and your family. Listed below are a number of health plans that help pay for Chiropractic care. Check to see what applies to you-and if you need further help, just visit our clinic and talk to us. You can afford Chiropractic-but you can't afford to neglect your health!

MEDICARE

(Social Security Insurance)

LOW OPTION PLAN: On all patients covered by Medicare, we charge only the 20% Medicare does not pay. MEDICARE PAYS 80% (after deductible is met). HIGH OPTION PLAN: On all patients covered under this Medicare plan, there is no out-of-pocket cost. Medicare and Blue Cross pay 100%.

WORKERS COMPENSATION

100% PAYMENT

This type of insurance coverage pays for on-the-job injuries. Chiropractic care is covered under the Workers Compensation Law, once all forms are completed and requirements are met. You pay nothing; insurance is billed by us.

REGULAR HEALTH PLANS

These include Aetna, New York Life, Prudential, Teamsters, GM, Metropolitan, Provident, Equitable, etc., which cover most or all Chiropractic services. If your insurance company pays for Chiropractic services, you submit our monthly statements to your insurance company to receive reimbursement. If you're not sure about what coverage you have, our staff will be glad to check it for you.

CAR ACCIDENT COVERAGE

100% PAYMENT

All chiropractic services are covered by auto insurance. If you have an accident, no matter how minor, be sure to come in and let us check you. Even though you may not be in great pain, damage may have been done that could cause long-range problems. It's better to BE SAFE THAN SORRY. Your insurance will pay for a prompt examination.

BLUE CROSS BLUE SHIELD

Blue Cross will pay for all necessary X-rays, regardless of the plan that you have. If you have a BLUE CROSS MASTER MEDICAL PLAN, all you need pay is 20%. You submit receipts to Blue Cross for reimbursement.

MEDICAID

Medicaid (Welfare, ADC) covers Chiropractic office visits. Our office will be happy to accept any Medicaid patient who requests Chiropractic care. There is only a $1 charge to you as a co-payment (if necessary).
