Suspect arson in fire Sunday

Arson has been listed as the cause of a Sunday morning fire that caused an estimated $40,000 damages to a vacant house in Greenleaf Township.

Elkland Township Fire Chief Jerome Root Jr. said a state fire marshal's report indicates the blaze was started by a petroleum based flammable liquid that was poured on the floors of the kitchen, living room and dining room. Elkland firemen, assisted by Ubyli firemen battled the blaze for about two and one-half hours.

Root said the fire was reported by a near-by resident, Mrs. Michelle Wills, 7676 Gilbert Rd., Cass City. Her husband, Gary, noticed smoke coming from the building when he was walking to his barn for morning chores. Mrs. Wills reported the fire at 7:02 a.m.

The house had been vacant for about one month. There were no personal contents in the house. The house is owned by George Baubie, 3212 Buckner Rd., Lake Orion.

Root said there are no suspects.

ELKLAND TOWNSHIP FIREMEN responded to a Sunday morning blaze that caused an estimated $40,000 damage to a Gilbert Road home in Greenleaf Township. A state fire marshal's report indicates the fire was started by an arsonist.

No money for coaching

Ubyli cuts expenses $50,000

At a special June 26 board meeting, trustees of the Ubyli School District approved a tentative budget that is $20,098 less than last year's $2 million budget. Business manager Mark Tenbusch explained property tax revenues, and budget expenditures are projected at $1,985 million for the 1985-86 school year. Tenbusch said that although tax revenues are up slightly, about $30,000, last year's budget revenues included $44,000 from the sale of a house built by the school's building trades class, and a $24,000 fund balance carry-over. This year's budget revenues include a $4,000 fund balance carry-over.

Tenbusch said trustees agreed to cuts of $53,630, below last year's budget. The cuts include eliminating coaching salaries, cuts in supplies for elementary and high school classes, cuts in custodian expenses, and changing insurance packages.

By eliminating coaches' salaries the district expects to cut the budget by $17,880. Tenbusch explained the coaches' wages for the 1985-86 school year will be paid from ticket sales at home games.

If approved by the teachers' union, a change in hospitalization and life insurance carriers could save the district an estimated $10,000.

Cuts in elementary and high school supplies are expected to save $10,250. The district plans to cut $9,000 from the repair budget for school buildings, and save $5,500 from custodian wages. Tenbusch explained that a custodian is retiring, and hiring of a new worker, whose wages will be at the bottom of the wage scale, will account for a large portion of the savings. He added that a custodian who is receiving workman's compensation for the summer will also cut costs.

An additional $1,000 will be saved by eliminating an assistant athletic director's position.

Tenbusch said the budget will probably be revised in September, eliminating some of the cuts, if a state aid bill for additional transportation funding is passed by the legislators.

Also at the meeting, the board accepted the resignation of board member Terry Haupt. Haupt said he is moving out of the school district. He has served on the board for two of his four-year term. The board will appoint a replacement at their regular July 8 meeting.

The board agreed to sell two 1973 Ford school buses. The buses, each with about 150,000 miles on them, were sold for $172 and $337.

The board paid high school band director Wendell Honsinger $1,087 to compensate for conducting the band at festivals, concerts, and band contests.

Trustees agreed to send a letter of congratulations to Ubyli High School senior Faye Janowiak on being elected as the state president of the Future Homemakers of America.

The concept of one jail serving the needs of Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac Counties is not receiving a warm welcome from the sheriffs of Tuscola and Huron Counties.

The idea has been suggested to Sanilac County Commissioners by a special task force to investigate ways of solving state correction code violations in the 30-year-old Sanilac County jail. According to Sanilac County Administrator John Dean, the jail, opened in 1955, was not built for today's jail code standards. Dean explained the jail does not have sufficient holding cell space, and lacks a segregation cell. The jail has two holding cells, but only one is approved for prisoners. The other needs extensive, and expensive, improvements before it could be used.

Dean explained that state codes require 15 square feet for each prisoner in a holding cell. The holding cell at the jail can only accommodate three prisoners in the 56-square-foot space. State codes also require an 80-square-foot segregation cell. Sanilac County Sheriff John Osborn said they have not had any lawsuits because of the conditions in the prison, but they could be in "very bad shape" if legal action were taken against the county over their code violations. Osborn said that estimates to bring the existing prison into compliance are from a high of $1.3 million to a low of $700,000. Cost of new prison construction is estimated at $30,000 to $50,000 per cell.

Tuscola County Sheriff Paul Berry said that he has not been officially contacted on the proposed three-county jail, but has heard about it. He added that he is not in favor of the idea. Berry said that under state constitution, the sheriff is the keeper of the county jail. He feels the county should keep its individuality.

The Tuscola County jail is capable of housing 38 male and eight female prisoners. Because there are not enough prisoners from Tuscola County to fill the separate female area, Berry rents out space to other counties. Tuscola County charges other counties $26 per day to house a prisoner. Berry said that is enough to "break even." The county jail houses females from Sanilac, Huron and other counties in need of jail space.

"There is always somebody looking for extra beds," Berry said. Presently he is housing women from Kent County.

Berry pointed out that he has to have enough matrons to operate the female part of the jail, so he tries to operate it at top capacity to make it cost effective. "That's income to the county," he said. "I think it's a benefit."

When the male population is down, Tuscola County also accepts prisoners from other counties. Berry said if he has a need to house an additional prisoner from Tuscola County, and the prison is full, he has an agreement where he can return an out-of-county prisoner, eliminating any overcrowding.

Like Sanilac County, Tuscola County jail opened in 1966 does not meet all of the state jail codes. Berry said they lack an exercise room, and a day room for prisoners. He added that it will be up to the county commissioners to decide what they are to do about the violations.

Currently there is a bill in the state legislature that would require county jails to hold prisoners for a two-year jail sentence. Presently the maximum time a prisoner can be sentenced to a county jail is one year. The bill is designed to ease overcrowding in state prisons.

"I don't have housing for two-year prisoners here," Berry said.

Berry is against a movement in some other states where prisons are operated by private organizations, and costs are billed to the state. He explained there is too much of a chance for inhumane treatment of prisoners if the state is not in charge.

Huron County Sheriff Richard V. Stokan said the concept of a three-county jail is "worth discussing," but he doesn't feel it is a good situation.

"The interesting part is that those who are discussing it (the commissioners) are not the ones who will run it," Stokan said.

He agreed with Sheriff Berry that as long as he is liable for the prisoners he has to be in charge of the jail.

Stokan added that a three-county jail would increase transportation costs, and they would still be required to maintain a staff at the present jail for prisoners waiting for arraignment.

The Huron County jail was constructed in the early 1950's, and an addition built in 1974. The jail has a maximum capacity of 50 prisoners. The only code violation he has is the need for a second stairway to serve as an additional fire escape. He added they are trying to address the needed fire escape stairway.

Stokan is in favor of possible legislation that would place prisoners in the county jail for two years, if the state pays for the additional costs.

He explained that it is cheaper to house prisoners at the county level, and they have more opportunity to rehabilitate the prisoner at a county jail.

"They come out of there with an education," Stokan said about prisoners in state prisons. "And that is not the best for the public."

Stokan added that at a county jail, he can arrange for educational and work release program so the prisoner can improve himself, and hopefully not return to a lifestyle that brought him to prison originally. He pointed out that about 40 percent of all prisoners are sentenced to less than two years.

Huron County accepts prisoners from Kent County at a cost of $20 per day. Stokan feels they make a profit of $10 to $12 a day off each prisoner.

Stokan feels the county would need 15 to 20 additional beds to house prisoners for two years.

Fireworks permit issued

The sights and sounds of fireworks exploding in air will fill the skies above Cass City Thursday night as part of the July 4th Festival.

Elkland Township Fire Chief Jerome Root Jr. said the fire department was issued a permit by the village last week after they provided proof of liability insurance.

"We have a lot of fireworks this year," Root said. The fireworks display will start at dusk, and is expected to last at least one hour. Root added that everyone can expect a very good fireworks display.

Root said six firemen, located in the village park, north and east of the swimming pool, will be setting

Astronaut Shaw to fly Nov. 27

Cass City native Brewster Shaw Jr. will take his second trip into outer space Nov. 27 in NASA's newest space shuttle, the Atlantis.

Shaw will be the commander of the shuttle during the seven-day mission. In addition to Shaw, there will be four other NASA astronauts and two payload specialists on board.

During the flight they are scheduled to deploy three communications satellites. Two crew members are also scheduled for space walks during the flight. A NASA spokeswoman said during the space walks, astronauts will practice assembling and disassembling building components. This will be to practice for the possible building of a permanent space station.

Astronauts will also conduct tests on making drugs in zero gravity conditions.

Shaw, 39, a 1963 graduate of Cass City High School, is the son of Brewster and Leone Shaw, Pringle Rd., Cass City.

“If It Fitz...”

Machine guns for kids

By Jim Fitzgerald

All things considered, I'd rather have my grandchildren wear socks with no feet than shoot me with a motorized snub-nosed machine gun. For one thing, the socks operate without batteries.

Newspapers frequently receive letters complaining about the people pictured in advertisements for health clubs, such as Vic Tanny's. Invariably, these people have great bodies and appear to be in superb health. At first, I couldn't understand why anyone would object to looking at such handsome physical specimens.

It seems ludicrous to suggest jealousy. Only the most neurotic chubby person would protest against Cher simply because she is so skinny she has to wear tire chains to hold up her pants. After all, most people don't look like Raquel Welch or Lance Parish, so if jealousy is a widespread turn-off for audiences, who is buying all those tickets to movies and baseball games?

After giving the subject much serious thought, I decided the problem must be the socks usually worn by the beautiful people in health club ads. They are made of thick wool and reach to the knees, but they don't have any feet in them.

Admittedly, on the foot of it, that appears as dumb as earmuffs with no muffs. Everyone knows toes are more susceptible than shins to the cold. At a football game, I've never stomped my shins to keep them warm.

Many parents are probably concerned that impressionable children will see a Vic Tanny ad and cut the feet off all their socks. The specter of cold-soled youngsters breaking icicle toes while break-dancing is indeed disturbing. Cher is not going to buy them new feet, not to mention who is going to retrieve cut-off sock-foet from under beds.

However, I find sock-footless health-club ads easier to live with than ads urging children to own toy guns that look and function just like real guns that cause bloodshed and death.

A recent ad for a children's store featured an Uzi pump machine gun ("ages 5 and up") and a motorized snub nose M-16 ("ages 7 and up"). I feel compassion for the parent who must explain to a five-year-old that he or she is too young to shoot a motorized gun and must be content with a pump-action weapon that will kill far fewer people in 30 seconds.

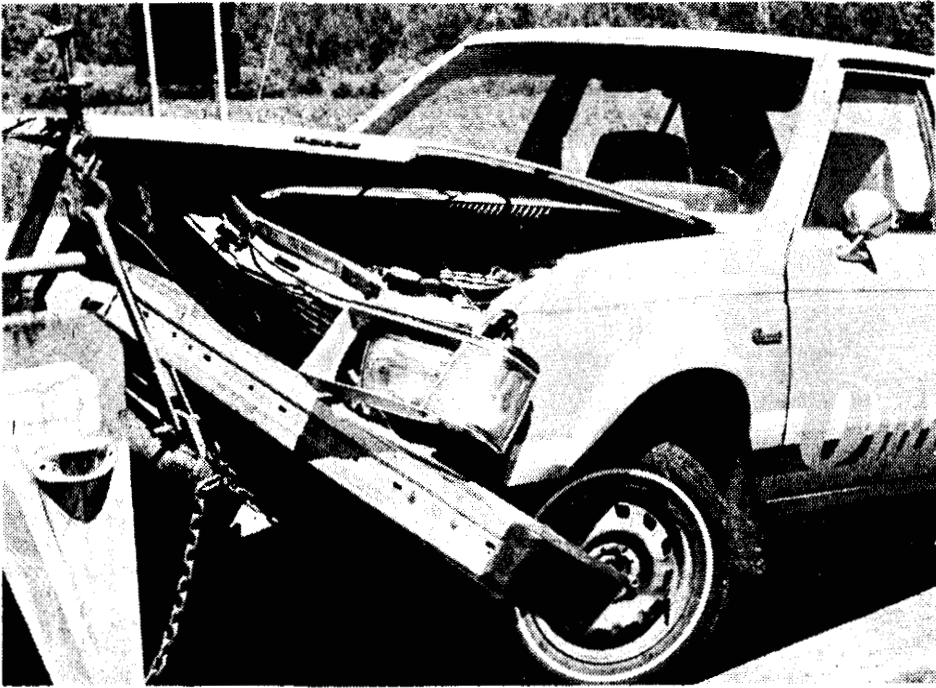

Also, in teeny-weeny type, the ad said the M-16

"requires 4 C-size batteries (not included)." Imagine the trouble faced by a parent who innocently neglects to buy batteries. Who wants to deal with a seven-year-old whose gun won't shoot? Is the poor kid supposed to suffer the humiliation of simply pointing an index finger and saying bang-bang you're dead or at least bleeding?

Don't get me wrong. I'm not saying I want my grandchildren — or any children anywhere — to have cold feet. But I do question the priorities of adults who protest ads promoting footless socks while remaining silent about ads for guns that may inhibit rather than further the important job of teaching our children how much fun it is to shoot guns that look exactly like the ones used by terrorists who hijack airliners.

I realize there are a few people who insist the danger of health-club ads isn't the footless socks, it's the obscene amount of body bared by Cher and friends. But that can't be true.

If obscenity were the question, certainly no one with half a brain would suggest that Cher's healthy thighs are more obscene than the sick idea of encouraging a five-year-old to shoot an Uzi machine gun.

WEARING A SEAT BELT paid off for Michelle Connolly, who suffered only minor injuries in a two-car accident June 27.

Connolly injured in June 27 accident

A 16-year-old Cass City resident was treated and released from Hills and Dales General Hospital following a two-car accident June 27 at 9:15 p.m.

According to a report filed by Cass City Police Officer Kenneth Schott, Michelle M. Connolly, 16, 6168 Shabbona Rd., Cass City, was injured when she made a left turn from Main Street onto Seeger Street, and collided with a vehicle driven by Richard A. Randall.

Officer Schott reported Randall was eastbound on Main Street, in the right lane, and proceeded through the stop light at the Seeger Street intersection with the green light. Connolly's vehicle, westbound on Main Street, turned left onto Seeger Street, and struck the Randall vehicle.

Randall, 17, 4916 Schwegler Rd., Cass City, was not injured.

Connolly told Officer Schott that her vision was blocked by an eastbound van that was waiting for traffic to clear before turning north on Seeger Street.

Connolly was taken to the hospital by the Cass City Ambulance Service.

The Haire Net

There were perhaps 25 members at the reunion of the class of 1940 of Pinconning High School. Of the group all but two were retired and one of them was about to step away from the work force.

All of the class members present are between 61 and 63 years old.

None was self employed and they retired from diversified fields. Several were workers in big industries, others in smaller firms. One was in middle management.

They retired for a variety of reasons. Big industry workers were granted the "silver bullet." Retirement was made so attractive they accepted it with generous separation allowances and pensions. Another was shafted because she could be replaced by cheaper labor and only after threatening a lawsuit was given what she had earned.

The question was how had retirement before the traditional age of 65 affected their lives? Were there regrets?

It was unanimous. No problems at all. Busy every day, they agreed.

What did they do to fill the hours that a short time ago was spent on the job? What makes them busy all day?

The answer to that was a little vague. Volunteer work occupied one. The grandchildren occupied another. Others just couldn't say what they did to fill the days. Lots of different things, one said.

As one of the unretired minority at the meeting, the answers didn't reassure me much about the golden years off the job.

How much of the pleasure of not working came from the ability that most of us acquire to make the most of what we have?

Instinctively, knowing that work isn't an option any more, is there a tendency to point how much pleasure there is in not working?

It's merely speculation, but the thought kept flashing by that retirement for some really was great, not so great for others.

One of the guys remarked casually that he was enjoying retirement. He also added that if he worked for himself he'd still be working.

One obvious result of all this is that there really isn't any best way to answer. It's a decision each has to make on what's best for him or her.

The easy thing to do is not make any decision at all. Just go along like always until something happens that makes a decision mandatory.

There's never been a penchant here for sound, careful planning. It's more of a what comes, comes with impulses carrying the day.

After hearing the retirement stories, there is very little incentive to change.

This information came our way too late for the progress section where it belongs. Tom Herron reports that he is starting work on condominiums for residents 50 or older. Lots of interest shown, he says, to an announcement made previously in the Chronicle.

Lambert Althaver, president and chief executive officer, at Walbro Corp., is featured in full color on the cover of the June issue of Michigan Business. Inside is a lengthy story about Walbro and its future prospects.

We've taken our copy to Rawson Memorial Library where it's available for interested residents.

Just so you won't forget, let me remind you that the Chronicle will continue to come your way a day earlier. Tuesday afternoon it will be available on most newsstands with Wednesday delivery by mail. All earlier advertising and news deadlines are in force.

Ran into Chuck Auten a couple of weeks ago in Boyne City. For you Johnny-come-latelies, Auten is a native of Cass City and ran the Ford garage in town for about a quarter of a century before retiring at an early age. He's still a few years shy of normal retirement age although he's been gone for many years now.

Since leaving town, Chuck's been in Florida and in the Carolinas, but he says that he and his wife, Lois, still haven't decided on the ultimate in retirement location for them.

Chuck's father, M.B. Auten, never had any trouble deciding where to settle. With him it was Cass City, winter and summer, first, last and always.

If a choice had to be made, the elder Auten's choice would be the one for me. Never have found a state that is as nice as Michigan.

And yes, Virginia, I love the winters, too.

Man arrested for having no driver's license

Cass City Police Officer Kenneth Schott reported that a 25-year-old Cass City man was arrested for operating a vehicle with a suspended driver's license June 26 at 10:05 p.m.

According to the report, Officer Schott observed a vehicle driven by Gary E. Nanney, 25, Main St., Apt. 1, Cass City, driving westbound on Church Street, near Seeger Street, without working taillights. When Officer Schott stopped the vehicle Nanney was unable to produce a driver's license. He told Officer Schott he left his license at home.

A check with the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department revealed that Nanney had his license suspended. He was taken to the Tuscola County jail.

Housing at the Winchesters' takes a step back into time

When Dan and Pat Winchester decided it was time for a new home, they did not choose the modern look of today's houses, but opted for a style reflecting frontier days, a log cabin home.

The building of the house was also a throw-back to the life style of America in the 1700's. About 20 friends and family members pitched in for an "old time house raisin'" June 22 and 23.

The Winchesters designed their log home, then had all of the logs custom cut to meet specifications. The logs for the 28 by 36-foot house were cut to exact size by the Mason Mill and Lumber Co., Rose City. Co-owner of the Rose City lumber company Randy Mason explained the logs for the house were cut from red pine. Each of the logs is eight inches thick, and six inches tall. Most of the logs came in eight-foot lengths.

The logs have been planed on all four sides, with the exterior side rounded to give the house the appearance of a frontier cabin. The inside of the log, which is also the interior wall, has been planed flat. The top and bottom of the logs have two interlocking tongue and groove channels cut into the flat surface. These channels prevent the log from moving, and keep air from blowing through the individual logs. A sealing caulk is liberally applied between the logs. At the end of each section of log, grooves are cut for square pegs. These pegs lock the ends of the logs in place. Several 10-inch spiral nails are driven through the logs.

Mason claims the walls have a temperature resistance factor (R-factor) of R-13, about the equivalent of a wood sided house with 3 1/2 inches of fiberglass insulation between the studs. Mason added that some manufacturers claim an R-factor of R-19 on a wall of the same thickness. "They are still studying them, they don't know yet," he said about the other companies' claims of increased R-factors.

Because the house is custom designed, and not a kit house, all of the walls of the house were assembled at the Rose City mill before they were transported to the Dutcher Road site. Mason pointed out that this insures an accurate fit. Before the house was disassembled for transporting, all of the parts were numbered so they could easily be reassembled.

"It's like putting a puzzle together," Winchester said, pointing to the corresponding numbers on the individual logs. "It's like building with Lincoln Logs."

Winchester and his crew did not need a saw to assemble the walls. All the logs fit into place. A special electrical wiring channel was cut into the third row of logs to accommodate the house's electrical needs. Holes for the electrical outlet boxes were cut at the lumber mill. In the kitchen and bathroom, additional electrical outlets, higher on the walls, were installed.

Winchester said there are more than 100 companies that produce log homes. One factor that influenced his decision was that he could design the home himself.

"I have been wanting to do this since I was 18 years old," Winchester said. It was important to Winchester that he have a site that complimented the log cabin. He chose a six-acre site on the north side of Dutcher Road, near Hurds Corner Road. The house sits about 200 yards north of the road. The house's electrical needs will be provided for with an underground line so a utility pole will not be in the front yard.

"If you are going to build something rustic, you want the right location," he said. "You don't want it in the city."

To clear the site, Winchester cut down several trees, which will be used in the house's wood burning stove this winter. In addition to wood heat, the house will have a back-up gas furnace. The house faces south, which will allow sunlight to come through two large windows on the south and west side.

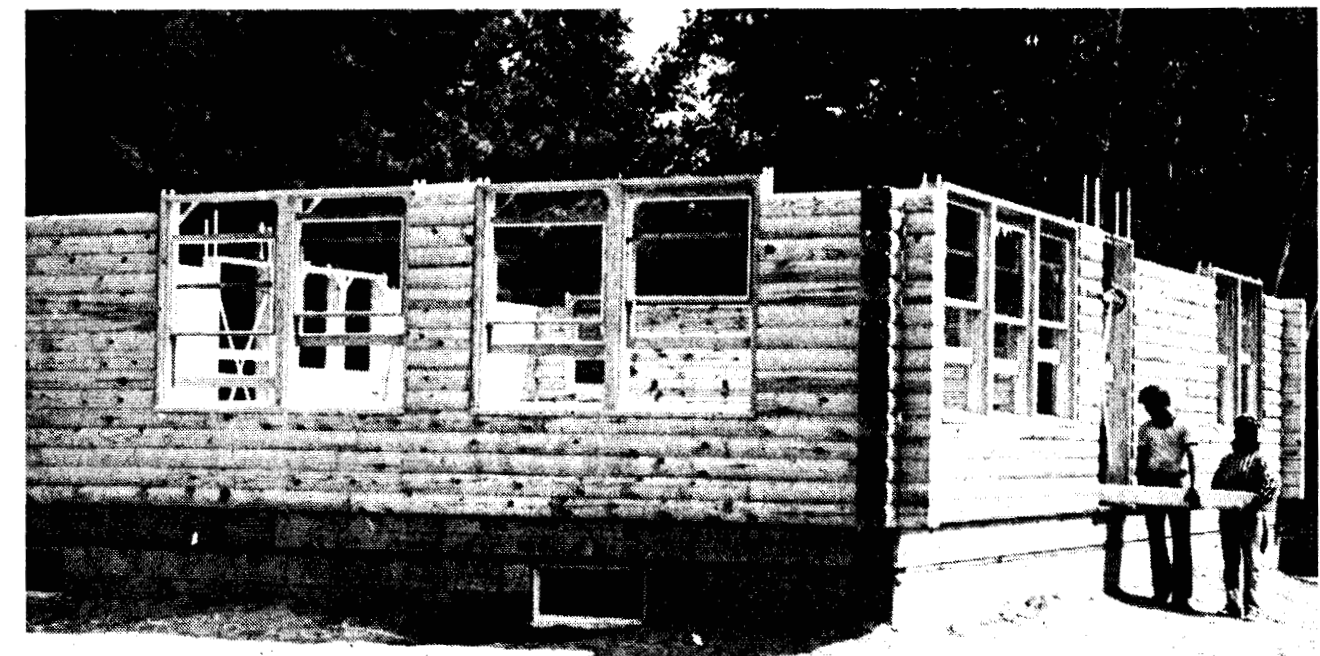

If good weather prevails, the exterior of the house should be finished this week. Winchester expects to move into the house late this summer, or early in the fall.

Winchester estimated a total construction cost of the 1,008-square-foot house to be about $30,000. This includes a full basement, and tongue and groove lumber for the floors and ceilings. Room dividing walls will match the inside of the exterior walls.

All of the exterior logs were treated with a wood preservative that resists mildew, rot and insects. The inside walls will be treated with linseed oil.

DAN WINCHESTER prepares to drive a 10-inch spiral nail into one of the logs of his new Dutcher Road log home.

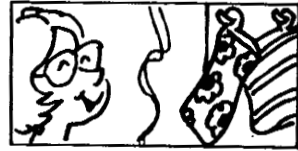

DAN AND PAT WINCHESTER carry another exterior wall log for their new log cabin style home. In 4 days most of the walls were erected.

SETTING LOGS - Dan Winchester and Randy Mason, co-owner and distributor of the Mason Mill and Lumber Company, Rose City, prepare to lock another of the eight-foot logs into place.

HELPING A FRIEND - Brian Crass liberally applies caulk between the logs of the Winchester home, to seal out air leaks.

Make an inexpensive glass case from a square pot holder. Just fold it in half and sew the bottom side. If you leave the loop on, you can keep reading glasses on a hook near where you cook.

Novesta accepts bid for sale of township tractor

At a Novesta Township meeting Monday night trustees accepted a $626 sealed bid from George Wright, 6796 Severance Rd., Deford, for the purchase of a tractor lawn mower.

Clerk Nursie Kloc said the tractor, a 16-horsepower Case riding tractor with mower deck and blade, has been used to mow grass at the township cemetery.

In other business, trustees were informed that all the calcium chloride, for dust control on the township's gravel roads, has been completed. The cost of the one-time application was $6,326.

Kloc said that all grading and graveling projects in the township, except for two miles of River Road, from Warner to Cemetery Roads, have been completed by the Tuscola County Road Commission.

Henry Rock has completed the first cutting of grass along township owned roads.

Supervisor William O'Dell will be meeting with Tuscola County Drain Commissioner Stanley Henry to see about cleaning drains in Deford.

Bamboo is not a tree. It is a wood grass.

Ox roast, beer tent to provide night of partying

It should be a night full of partying at the Colony House, 8430 N. Van Dyke Rd., Cass City, Wednesday night.

The festivities will be kicked off with an "ox roast" from 6:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. The cost of the dinner will be $5.25 a person.

"I hope the people will come out for this pre-party to the dance," co-chairman Dave Lovejoy said.

The Fourth of July Festival Committee made the move with the beer tent last year to Colony House, which is about four miles north of M-81 on M-53. The committee agreed it was a good move and hope this year's beer tent will be just as successful, co-chairman Curt Strickland said.

"We like the beer tent set-up at Colony House. People preferred it out of town," Strickland said. "Some people in town didn't particularly like it in town, so they're happy. And for the people that like to party, they still have a place to go."

The drinking will start at 9:00 p.m. but so will the dancing. Dubbed as "the area's most popular band," the Bad Axe-based band Nite Life will perform. Primarily a Top 40 band, Nite Life will "play anything," Strickland said.

Only those 21 and over will be admitted to the beer tent and there will be a $2 cover charge. Strickland hopes to have at least 500 to 600 people attend the event at the 1,000-person capacity Colony House.

Tickets for the ox roast can be purchased in advance at Thumb National Bank, Cass City, or from festival co-chairmen Roland Pakonen and Dave Lovejoy.

Fourth of July parade coordinator Gary Jones confirmed Monday that Alicia Rae Masalkoski, 1985 Miss Michigan, will make an appearance at the Ox Roast Wednesday evening. Masalkoski also is scheduled to be in the parade Thursday.

Cass City man involved in 3-vehicle accident

Tuscola County Sheriff's Department Deputy James Compo reported there were no injuries in a three-vehicle accident June 26 at 9:48 a.m.

According to the report, the three vehicles were eastbound on M-81, near Spence Road. The first vehicle, driven by Debra K. Haebler, 26, 1204 S. Bradford Rd., Reese, slowed while a vehicle in front of her made a right turn into a private driveway.

The Haebler vehicle was struck from the rear by a vehicle driven by Gregory J. Lenda, 28, 4036 Crawford Rd., Cass City.

According to the report, Lenda was forced into the rear of the Haebler vehicle after it was struck from the rear by a vehicle driven by Timothy J. Gorkowski. Gorkowski, 24, 127 Charlotte St., Bad Axe, was issued a citation for failure to stop in an assured and clear distance.

Deputy James Jashinski reported that a 43-year-old Cass City man was injured when a three-wheel all-terrain vehicle he was driving flipped over.

Phillips, 29, 4477 Shabbona Rd., Cass City, struck a deer June 26 at 11:30 p.m. According to the report, Phillips was eastbound on Shabbona Road, one-half mile east of Hurds Corner Road, when he struck the deer. ## McLeody Days

By Bill McLeod

Sunday, June 23, I finally decided it was time to give my boat, and myself, the first deep water test of the season. I have practiced with the boat in the Caro dam area several times this year, but because of motor problems I was reluctant to venture into the deep-blue waters of the Saginaw Bay. Now, with all the bugs worked out, I was ready to go where the fish are.

The weather was perfect as I left Cass City behind, but by the time I reached the bay, things had changed. The nice southerly breeze had turned into a strong off-shore wind that whipped white-capped waves on the bay.

Throwing caution (and perhaps a whole lot more) to the wind, I unloaded my 14-foot boat and prepared for a day of fishing. After a few - quite a few - pulls on the starter cord the 10-horse Johnston sprang to life. Within minutes I was chugging across the harbor area of Port Austin, safe inside the protective break wall. The water was calm, and the boat easily handled the small, choppy waves.

About 20 yards past the break wall the complexion of the bay (and my face) changed. The small waves turned into a rolling sea. My face changed from its WASPish paleness to a green about the gills, but I was determined to stay out a "little bit longer," to practice handling a boat in rough seas. About 10 minutes later, after the bottom of the boat began slapping water, I decided I had all the practice I needed. With great difficulty I managed to turn the boat around, and headed back to the safety of the break wall.

Later I learned about a boat load of people who weren't as fortunate. Their 18-foot boat swamped in the Sebawa area of the bay Sunday afternoon. Fortunately all six were rescued.

I decided if I was going to continue boating in the Great Lakes, I had better learn the safety rules of boating. I called Robert Reyes, First Class Petty Officer at the Harbor Beach Coast Guard Station.

He explained that my first mistake was not putting on a life jacket as soon as I got into the boat. Even though all Coast Guard members are taught to swim, they all wear life jackets whenever they are on a boat. My jackets were lying in the front of the boat, about 10 feet away. Reyes said that in 75 to 80 percent of all boating fatalities, people weren't wearing a life jacket.

In addition to having a life jacket for each person on the boat, a distress signal is required on all vessels on the Great Lakes. Reyes said that during the day, an approved distress flag or smoke flare is sufficient, but it is best to have a flare that gives off both smoke and light. He explained that if the boater has problems at night, a smoke flare or flag is useless. Carry a minimum of three flares. Reyes added that some people carry highway emergency flares, which are dangerous because they can cause fires.

Reyes said that if the boat has capsized, unless you are very close to shore, it is best to stay with the boat. If possible, climb on top of the overturned boat. He explained it is easier to spot an overturned boat than to find individual swimmers.

To avoid hypothermia, loss of body heat, do not remove any clothing, even if it is wet. He explained that even a wet hat will help keep body heat from escaping.

Reyes said that most life jackets are designed to keep even an unconscious swimmer's face upright and above water. This allows conscious swimmers to lie back, relax, and keep their arms close to their body, and their legs together and pulled up towards the chest. This also reduces body heat loss.

In the last two years, the Harbor Beach Coast Guard Station has not had a boating fatality in their patrol area. They are responsible for an area from Port Sanilac to Oak Beach, southwest of Port Austin.

None hurt in two-car collision

Cass City Police Officer Phillip Klaus reported there were no injuries in a June 26 two-car accident at the intersection of Oak and Huron Streets, Cass City. According to the report, a vehicle driven by Scott R. Ackerman, 28, 4677 Kennebec Dr., Cass City, was struck by a vehicle driven by Mina J. Parker, 56, 4851 State St., Gagetown.

Ackerman was northbound on Oak Street, when the Parker vehicle, eastbound on Huron Street, failed to yield, and collided with Ackerman.

Parker was issued a ticket for failure to yield the right of way. The accident happened at 12:50 p.m.

HEALTH TIPS

Elderly more prone to injuries from accidents

By C. Everett Koop, M.D.
U.S. Surgeon General

Accidents seldom "just happen," and many accidents can be prevented. Attention to safety is especially important for older persons, because accidental injuries happen more often and are usually more serious in later life.

Several factors make older people prone to accidents. Poor eyesight and hearing can decrease one's awareness of hazards. Arthritis, neurological diseases and impaired coordination and balance can make older people unsteady. Often, mishaps are expressions of mental depression or of poor physical conditioning. With age, many women develop thin, brittle bones, which may cause seemingly minor falls to result in serious fractures of the hip, wrist and other bones.

Increasingly, older adults are protecting their health by exercising, eating a balanced diet, reducing their alcohol consumption and not smoking. And I applaud their initiative; they're definitely on the right track. But most people who change their life styles for the better give little thought to a health-promotion measure that is perhaps the easiest and most effective of all. They forget to cultivate good safety habits.

Falls are the most common cause of fatal injury in the aged. Here are some steps that you can take to reduce the risk of falls in your home:

—Light all stairways and provide light switches at both the top and bottom landings.

—Be sure both sides of stairways have sturdy handrails.

—Tack down carpeting on stairs and use nonskid treads on uncarpeted stairs.

—Remove throw rugs that tend to slide.

—Arrange furniture and other objects so that they are not obstacles.

—Install grab bars on bathroom walls and nonskid mats or strips in the bathtub.

—Keep outdoor steps and walkways in good repair and free of ice in the winter.

Burns are especially disabling to older people, who do not recover as quickly as younger people from this kind of injury. By being safety conscious, however, you can do a great deal to protect yourself from a burn injury. For example:

—Never smoke in bed or when you are drowsy. (The best advice, I should add, is to give up smoking entirely.)

—When cooking, don't wear loosely fitting flammable clothing. Bathrobes, nightgowns and pajamas catch fire easily.

—Set water heater thermostats at moderate levels, so that hot water does not scald the skin.

—Decide which emergency exits you would use in case of a fire. Plan your escape route, in other words.

Can you think of any other fire safety measures? Here's a good one. Install a good lock on your front door, just one good lock that can be opened from the inside quickly. Many older people trap themselves behind multiple door locks that will be difficult to open during an emergency.

Motor vehicle accidents are the most common cause of accidental death in the 65-to-74 age group and the second most common cause (next to falls) among all older persons. Your ability to drive safely may be impaired by such age-related changes as increased sensitivity to glare, poorer adaptation to the dark, diminished coordination and slower reaction time. You can compensate for these changes by driving fewer miles at a time, driving less often and by driving less at night, during rush hours and in the winter.

If you ride on public transportation, remain alert and brace yourself when the vehicle is slowing down or turning. Have your fare ready when you board, so that you don't have to fumble for change and risk losing your balance. Similarly, don't carry too many packages; leave one hand free to grasp railings. And when you leave the vehicle, watch for slippery pavement and other curb-side hazards. Give yourself extra time to cross the streets safely, especially in bad weather. At night, it's wise to wear light-colored or fluorescent clothing and to carry a flashlight.

Many of the health problems common to older people are difficult to treat and cure, but attention to safety, especially in later life, can help you avoid a lot of those problems and keep you on the go. So, give some serious thought to accident prevention before a serious accident has a chance to occur. Good safety habits and good health go hand-in-hand.

Rev. Taylor to leave Cass City

Pastor and Mrs. Robert E. Taylor will be heading back to their roots in North Pekin, Ill.

After nine years as pastor at the Cass City Missionary Church, Rev. Taylor and his wife are leaving to become the pastor in North Pekin, where he has been gone for 25 years.

The last services which they will conduct at the Cass City Missionary Church will be Sunday.

"As we leave Cass City, we leave with mixed emotions," Rev. Taylor said. "We've made many friends not only in the church but in the surrounding community. They will be greatly missed."

The Taylors resigned as pastor of the Cass City Missionary Church about two months ago. They have been in Michigan since 1966.

"We've enjoyed our years in Cass City. On the other hand, it's a challenge and privilege to return to my home church where I grew up as a youngster, and have the opportunity to work together for the Lord with many of our old friends that we grew up with," Rev. Taylor said.

Rev. Cliff Jordan, Decaturville, will replace Taylor at the church, Elaine Taylor said. Mrs. Taylor said the selection of Jordan ran "really smooth." Jordan had been pastoring at the Wheatland Missionary, Decaturville, for the past 12 years, she said.

Fiscal agency forecasts a recession by 1987

A recently revised economic forecast released by the Senate Fiscal Agency says a recession by 1987 is growing more likely. The forecast, which is rich, combined with planned reductions in the payments to the state's so-called rainy day fund and proposed tax cuts, could complicate the writing of an already tight 1986-87 budget.

"We're thinking that (a recession in 1986-87) is a real possibility. It's coming to a point where the downside risks are greater than a few months ago, primarily because of the overvalued dollar," said fiscal agency chief economist Gary Olson.

A compromise prison construction plan reduces the payment to the state's Budget Stabilization Fund (BSF) by $60 million in 1985-86 and $30 million in 1986-87. The income tax rate will return to 4.6 percent sometime in 1986 instead of October, 1987, as under current state law.

Governor James Blanchard, who would replace lost revenue, proposed a July 1 date for the rollback, the Senate approved a Jan. 1 date with no revenue augmentation, the House Taxation Committee has voted for a May, 1986 date.

The fiscal agency revision said the economy will be slowing more in 1985-86 than it had forecast in March, but expects no complications from the tax for budget stabilization fund decisions.

Because of the slower economy, the agency projects a fund payment of $123.8 million, which is about half of the $233 million estimated earlier, and would be cut another $60 million under the prison compromise.

The lower payment, however, also helps boost the 1985-86 surplus to $406.8 million, assuming the Governor's budget targets.

Olson said the new numbers cause him to be concerned about the fund, which he said should be 7-10 percent of the general fund/school aid fund spending to adequately handle a recession.

The planned actions will leave the fund in 1985-86 with a balance of $405.1 million, or about 5.1 percent.

"I don't want to throw cold water on the prison compromise, but I've always thought the larger the balance in the BSF, the better," he said.

Olson said the tax cut proposals will have already left lawmakers with little additional revenue for a new budget.

The Department of Management and Budget has projected that a 5 percent growth in the general fund budget would be possible with a faster tax rollback, but Olson said he thinks even that is optimistic.

Reduced estimates for 1985-86 by the fiscal agency have narrowed its differences with the department, although it remains more optimistic on estimated revenues.

The revised revenue estimate is higher than its last forecast by $27.8 million in the current year and $26.5 million for 1985-86, despite lower estimated collections in most revenue sources as the economy slows.

The increase is due to higher payments in income tax returns as well as lower refund levels.

Cattle-forage day set for July 13 at Michigan State

A cattle-forage field day is scheduled Saturday, July 13, at Michigan State University's Lake City Experiment Station. The program will be of interest to dairy-men, beef producers and forage producers.

The morning program will start at 10:00 a.m. with a tour of on-going research at the station. Included will be exhibits of barley variety trials, methods of storing large hay bales, alfalfa variety trials, least-cost pasture improvement with frost seedings, low cost fencing systems for controlled grazing, no-till alfalfa and corn demonstrations, and the results of a long-term selection and crossbreeding project with beef cattle.

Following the tour, a noon lunch will be served on the station by the Missaukee County 4-H Council. The afternoon program will feature demonstrations on preservation of silage in large plastic bags, new developments in making hay, checking bulls for total breeding soundness, and management systems for grazing yearling heifers.

There will also be exhibits on controlling respiratory disease problems, new pharmaceutical products, fencing systems using high-tensile wire, computer systems for farm use, performance testing of beef cattle, artificial insemination, and equipment and machinery exhibits.

Lake City is located 68 miles southwest of Gaylord, where the Michigan Cattlemen's Association will hold their Annual Summer Round-Up at the Hidden Valley Resort July 11 and 12, just prior to the field day. Beef cattle producers are urged to attend both events.

The Summer Round-Up program will begin at 1:30 p.m., July 11, with a talk on "cattle feeding strategies for a mature beef industry" by Dr. Don Gill, well-known beef specialist from Oklahoma State University. He will be followed by Dr. Steven Rust, MSU beef specialist, who will present an up-date on current beef cattle research.

The Round-Up program will reconvene at 9:00 a.m. July 12, with a producer panel on "management programs that work for me." Next, Dr. Don Hit-zemann, DVM, will speak on "cost-effective management practices for beef producers." Dr. Gill will then talk on "management of stressed feeder cattle."

The Round-Up will conclude at 1:30 p.m. with a special program, "What's Happening to Beef Prices and Demand?" It will be moderated by Richard Lehnert, editor of the Michigan Farmer, and will feature Dr. J.N. Ferris, Agricultural Economist, MSU; Orrie VanderBoon, Ada Beef Co., Ada, and Tom McDermott, vice-president of communications, National Livestock and Meat Board, Chicago.

Additional details on the Summer Round-Up may be obtained by contacting the Michigan Cattlemen's Association, P.O. Box 746, Mt. Pleasant, MI 48858.

New books at the library

THE DOUBLE MAN by William S. Cohen and Gary Hart (fiction). Senator Tom Chandler is a reformed liberal, tough with the Russians yet a believer in civil liberties who doesn't want the intelligence agencies given carte blanche. As head of a Senate investigation into terrorism, he's privy to a tip that the murder of an old mafioso in Miami is linked to the attack on the secretary's family. Finding the link drags in the CIA, the FBI, and the KGB, and much more.

WARRICK by Marilyn Harris (fiction). As Oklahoma oil baron Tyburn Warrick lies dying, the family he has sired shows up to hover around his bed. The watchers include his estranged granddaughter Mereth through whose eyes we follow a treasure-hunt trail to multi-million dollar deals, strange bedfellows, unknown codicils and greed. Discovery, like a sudden gush of newfound oil, fuels a plot full of buried secrets and keeps afloat a large case of Oklahoma characters ranging from a posse of shrewd bankers to crackpot preachers, Indians and a beautiful black mistress.

MAIGRET BIDES HIS TIME by Georges Simenon (mystery). In early July, a heat wave burdens Paris; even so Maigret relishes his bus ride to the Quai des Orfèvres. There he learns of the murder of an old and valued informant whose association with an elusive ring of jewelry thieves the Inspector has often tried to establish. Suspecting everyone, Maigret pays particular attention to the young woman who in recent years has cared for and been cared for by, the invalid victim. With unhurried thoroughness, Maigret spends the day pursuing leads; he fits some of the puzzle pieces together, cuts the major suspects off from one another and goes home to Mme Maigret. The next day, intuition combines with intimate knowledge of the city to offer a perspective from which the picture and the sequence of events - they began with the bombing of a refugee shelter in 1940 - fall into order.

SANILAC COUNTY was among 44 counties represented when the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service sponsored County Commissioner's Day June 11 on the MSU campus.

Delegation members, from left, Rex Sieting, Sanilac County Extension director; Howard Beals, Don Decker and Della Wright, commissioners, were greeted when they arrived at Kellogg Center by Frank Brewer, assistant director of Extension for agriculture and marketing programs.

County Commissioner's Day is held every other year at MSU and provides local officials an opportunity to review Cooperative Extension Service programs and activities that are applicable to their local communities.

8-hour sleep not needed for good rest

One has to stay wide awake to uncover some of the common fallacies about sleep. For example, not everyone needs eight hours to get a good night's sleep. In fact, report the experts at the Somnia Mattress Company, some short sleepers—those who require six hours or less—experience the same amount of deep sleep as those who sleep much longer.

The machine is a portable, lightweight, and non-rusting apparatus that can turn any above- or in-ground pool 12 feet or more in length into an exercise lap pool. Only ten minutes with the machine can be the equivalent of 50 laps or more.

As a result, you can improve the efficiency of your heart and lungs, control your weight and tone up arms, back, stomach, hips and legs—all at the same time. A workout with the exerciser burns more calories per minute than a running or tennis workout of the same duration.

HEADACHES Chiropractic Helps

When I had severe back pain my friends, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reich told me about chiropractic. I went to a chiropractor in Owosso in 1968. After four treatments I felt relief. In 1973 and 1975, when I again put my back out of place by lifting wrong, I also went for chiropractic care. My doctor died shortly after that. I was referred then by another friend, Joan Hofmeister, to a doctor in Saginaw. Again I had relief but with the distance to travel and the cost I didn't go as I should have. In November of 1983 my arthritis doctor recommended me to see a neurologist because of the pain in my groin and back. The X-rays of my total hip replacement gave no indication of trouble there. The neurologist diagnosed my problem as a herniated disc and recommended chemonucleolysis to chemically dissolve or shrink the disc that causes the pressure on the nerve and carpal tunnel surgery done on my right wrist. The pain I suffered from the chemonucleolysis is indescribable. I never suffered as hard or for such a length of time in all my 63 years of life. I got no relief from prescription pain relievers. I had more pain than before the injection and it radiated down into my knee and leg. The neurologist acknowledged the fact that the injection didn't work and was ready to do surgery. I wasn't convinced that surgery was the answer. After much prayer and deliberation I was recommended by Karen Weisenbach to the chiropractic care of Dr. Pat Seiffo at The Sebewaing Chiropractic Center. She explained why I was having so much pain and was very sympathetic. She was confident that I would get relief with treatment. I went four times that first week and felt improvement after each adjustment. As time went on, less adjustments were needed. My last one was a month ago! My pain is almost completely gone. I can do most all of the work I did before and can go up steps without the help of a railing. I can also do some lifting. I am most grateful to God for the relief I have received through Dr. Pat and her chiropractic care. I wouldn't say chiropractic is a cure for all ailments, but this is the truth of my own experience.

While headaches may be one of the most distressing of human discomforts, it is not a disease, but a sign that something is wrong. Nearly every adult will at some time or another suffer simple headaches from body abuse, but more than 20 million Americans experience the painful chronic, recurring headache... a serious health problem.

The public has been generally misled into believing that both vascular and tension headaches are primarily caused by psychological - personality or emotional conflicts. As a result, Americans spend more than $450,000,000 a year on headache remedies, including tranquilizers, and millions more on medical physician fees and hospital visits.

Research has shown that most chronic headaches are caused by mechanical irritation of the nerve roots in the neck. Injury to the neck produces a mechanical derangement of the bony structures which causes the irritation of the nerve roots. The many nerves and blood vessels in the neck exert their function on the painful areas of the scalp, face, and brain, and when the body is placed under stress, the headache develops.

No therapeutic method even remotely approaches the value of chiropractic science in the correction of neck abnormalities that are the cause of a great percentage of headaches. If you suffer headaches, consult your doctor of chiropractic without further delay.

Chiropractic science offers a vital health service to the public which medicine is unable to render.

Barley meet at Mantey farm

Intensive Barley Management is the theme of a twilight meeting July 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the Jim Mantey farm located 2 miles east and 1 1/2 miles north of Akron on N. Unionville Road. The meeting will deal with high levels of management in barley. It has been found that in many cases barley can be raised at a production level that equals other grain crops at a lesser cost of production.

Extension specialists will be on hand to discuss the potentials of this grain crop and where barley may fit into livestock rations. As economics of production force producers to search out crops and management systems that allow reduced input cost with equal production potential, barley may well be one of those crops.

Auten got his dog back. The dog turned up missing while hunting in 1957 near Deford. Last week the Autens were returning from Saginaw Bay when Mrs. Auten spied the dog about four miles north of Bad Axe.

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

My old friend and No. 1 critic, Harlan Crowell of Boca Raton, was about to invest in some CATS before he called me with a question or two.

Before you think he's out to corner the local market for felines, let me explain that CATS is the acronym for Certificates of Accrual for Treasury Securities. They are zero coupon government bonds; that's all they are.

For example, you buy $10,000 par value CATS that mature in 1991. You pay about $5,000 for them. From now until 1991 you get no income because the bonds pay no interest. No semi-annual "coupons" such as other bonds have. Hence the term zero coupons.

The interest rate in this example amounts to 12 percent. Compound that for 12 years and you've doubled your investments. In this case, from $5,000-$10,000.

They're great for people or pension funds that don't pay income tax. No re-investment problems, absolute security, and a liberal rate guaranteed for the term of the bond (you can buy them maturing out to 20-25 years).

But if you pay income tax, then you must report a part of that gain (in the example, from $5,000-$10,000) each year. The tax man figures out this "imputed interest" from a formula and you pay that tax each year, even though you haven't seen any money come in.

They're a nice gift for a child who doesn't have any tax to pay. I bought some the other day for a friend's grandchild. A gift of $9700 made in CATS to a relative as custodian for the grandchild will result in the youngster getting $75,000 in 18 years.

For people like Harlan Crowell and me, the alternative is to buy zero coupon tax-exempt municipal bonds. These don't yield as much as the taxable CATS, but there's no tax to pay at all; not while you're holding them, not when you sell them or when they mature. No capital gains tax, either.

Where do you get them?

Some people have believed that geraniums could drive away snakes.

Students learn mercenary tactics

To prepare for what many experts are calling the war of the future - terrorism - some Americans are turning to special schools designed to teach a student how to beat a terrorist at his own game.

"It started out to be fun, but then it turned into holy hell," is how Frank Kieltyka, a Cass City area resident, described his three-day training session at a combat training school. He said they were the "toughest three days of my life."

Kieltyka, 27, explained that he plans on joining the National Guard, and he felt the training would give him a "jump" on the rigors of boot camp. "It gave me more than a jump," Kieltyka said. "Everybody there said it was the toughest training in the world. No military (organization) in the world trained the way we did."

The training course Kieltyka chose is taught by Mt. Clemens resident John Martin. Martin said the course offers people the opportunity to learn combat training and survival tactics.

Martin said many of the people who sign up for his course, "Survival," are planning to go overseas to fight as mercenaries. He added that a lot of students change their minds before they complete a longer, two-week combat training course. Instructors are active or former mercenaries. Most of them fought in Viet Nam.

Martin explained that it is legal to train to be a mercenary in the United States, but illegal to plan missions. He denied that there is any United States government involvement in his training program.

In addition to training civilians in mercenary tactics, he has also had special forces troops from foreign countries enroll in his courses. He added that some of the foreign troops have dropped out of the two-week course because it was too difficult for them. Out of 13 who signed up for a recent eight-day course, four quit before it was over.

Martin said that unless a student has special training, such as being a helicopter pilot or an instructor, there is very little money to be made as a mercenary. He explained that if a mercenary is hired only as a soldier, he will usually only be paid what regular troops receive.

Martin said that a lot of what they teach at the camp can be used in civilian life. He pointed out they instruct students how to read a map and compass, survive in the wilderness, and how to protect themselves.

Martin holds the classes on 600 acres of privately-owned property near the Manistee National Forest.

"The only thing that wasn't real about it was that you were in America," Kieltyka said about Martin's survival school.

Kieltyka said the first thing they were taught was to take a rifle with them wherever they went. The second thing they learned was to "hit the dirt" whenever someone yelled "grenade." Within five minutes after the course began the first grenade attack started. Kieltyka said the grenades were concussion bombs that did not throw shrapnel. He added that one grenade exploded near him, and the concussion knocked him down.

The students were taught first aid by a former Viet Nam medic, and learned how to kill someone with their bare hands from a karate instructor.

Kieltyka said they learned how to use weapons from other countries, including the most common terrorist weapons, the Russian AK-47, a fully automatic rifle, and a Russian grenade launcher.

Students were also instructed in ways to interrogate prisoners. He said the most common interrogation torture used against freedom fighters in Central America is to cut a knee cap off. He was told if they take two prisoners, and both refuse to talk, shoot one. If the other still refuses to talk, and you don't have any place to lock the prisoner up, shoot him too.

The students were given the opportunity to put their training to the test. They divided into two teams, and went to war.

During an attack, Kieltyka's team was bombed with a CS gas. He described the gas as being 10 times worse than tear gas. Before the attack was over, Kieltyka was knocked out by a blow to the back of the neck with a rifle butt.

Kieltyka's hand to hand combat training paid off only a few hours after he left the survival camp. He explained that he left his car in Mt. Clemens to go to school. When he returned, he realized he didn't have his keys. It was 5:00 a.m. He decided he would wait a few hours before he called a locksmith to make a key for him. While waiting, he was attacked by a man with a knife. When police arrived, Kieltyka was in charge of the situation.

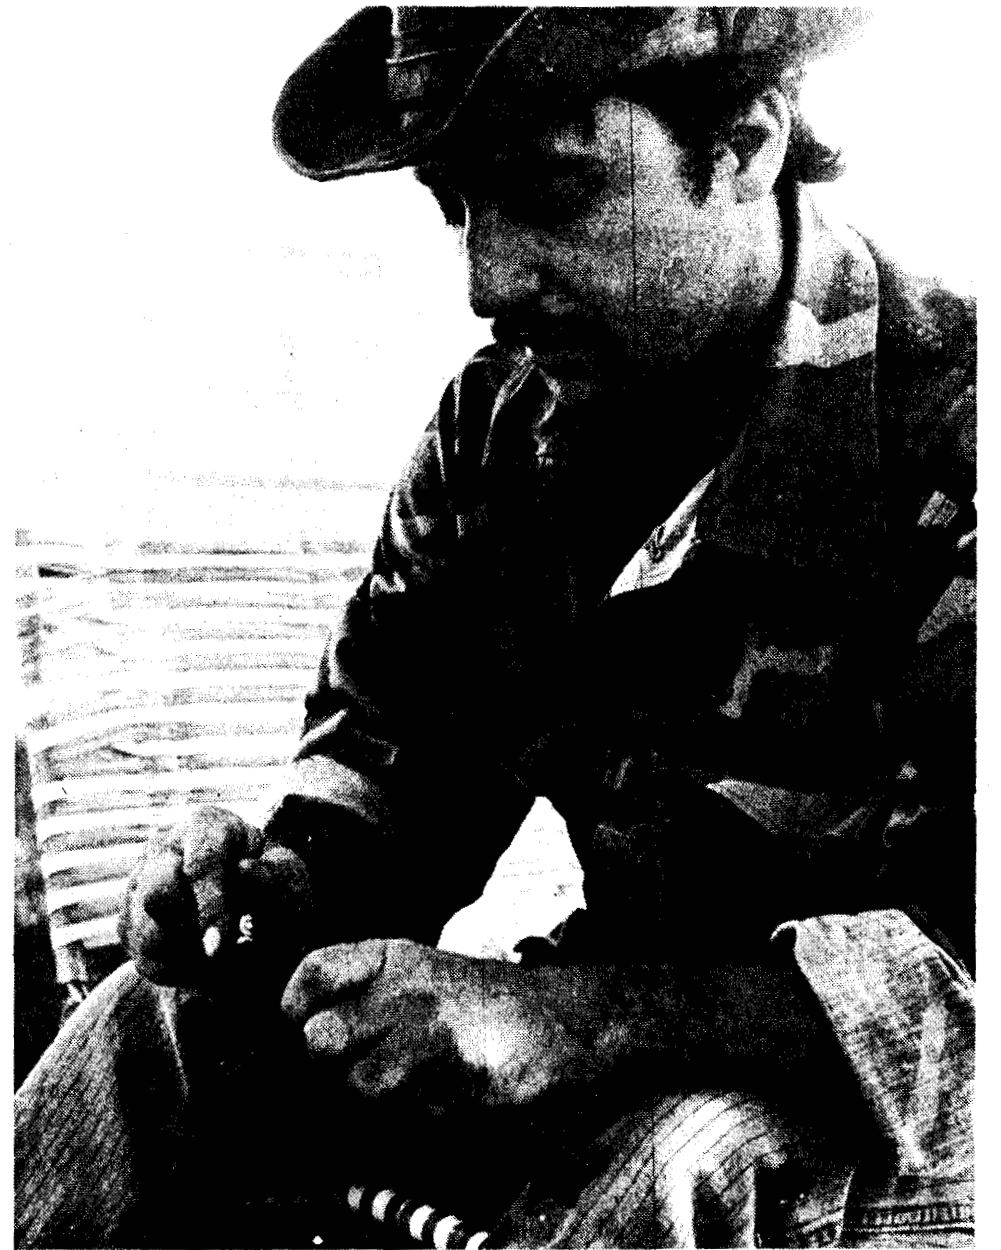

Kieltyka said the three-day course does not provide enough training to become a mercenary. Martin said most people who want to become a mercenary take the two-week course several times before going overseas.

Kieltyka said he does not have any immediate plans on becoming a mercenary, but he agrees with America's military involvement in Central America. "The government is not always right, but this is the best damn place to live," Kieltyka said. "I look at it this way, I would rather fight them (communist terrorists) down there, than in my back yard."

30-SHOT CLIP - Frank Kieltyka loads 30 rounds of 223 caliber metal piercing ammo for his semi-automatic Ruger rifle.

Corn growers to vote on promotion program

A referendum to establish a proposed Michigan Corn Promotion Program will be conducted July 8 through July 23 by the Michigan Department of Agriculture. "Ballots will be mailed to all producers of record and must be postmarked on or before July 23 to be counted," said Dr. Paul E. Kindinger, Michigan Department of Agriculture director.

To approve the referendum, an affirmative vote of at least 50 percent of the total votes cast, representing more than 50 percent of the corn production of those casting ballots is required. If passed, the Corn Promotion and Development program would provide funding for product development of corn and corn products, expansion of markets, increased consumer knowledge, research, market information, and promotion by assessing corn growers up to one-half cent per bushel for each bushel of corn sold.

By law, MDA must handle the referendum. A public hearing was held May 30 after more than 200 corn growers submitted a petition requesting establishment of the promotion program.

Producers are eligible to vote if they have grown and sold a quantity of corn valued at first point of sale, at more than $800, during any one growing and marketing season within the last three years. Each producer, partnership and corporation is entitled to one vote.

Any eligible grower not receiving a ballot may write to the Michigan Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Development Division, P.O. Box 30017, Lansing, MI 48909.

but quality will be up to par

The status of the flyover occurring depends on weather conditions and "higher priority missions they may have," Jones said.

Eight floats are scheduled to participate and will vie for the Belle Schwaderer Award, Meredith B. Auten Award, Dr. Harry Crandell Award and the President's Award for the best floats.

The Rotary Club, Lions Club, Thumb National Bank, Hills and Dales Hospital, Special Scents, the Michigan Milk Producers Association of Deford and a group from Pigeon will enter floats this year. Also entering a float will be Provincial House, the winner of the Auten Award in '84.

The newly-crowned 1985 Miss Michigan heads the list of pageant winners scheduled to be at the parade. Miss Teen Michigan, the Michigan Sugar Festival Queen and 1984 Cass City High School Homecoming Queen Missy Carr will appear along with the queen and her court of the 1985 Fourth of July Queen's Pageant.

Sally Doerr's Dance Troupe will perform its high-stepping chorus line-

"Everyone wants to have a bigger variety, but I'm not ashamed of what I've got here."

—Gary Jones,
Parade coordinator

type dancing again in the parade on a moving flatbed as will the Rocking Eight's Square Dance Club. The Sons of Scotia, a bagpipe-playing, Scottish kilt-wearing band will "make a lot of noise," Jones said.

The Cass City High School Band will march and play in the parade, but Jones said he "struck out" on getting other high school bands from the area to attend.

Car lovers can rejoice. The Detroit Corvair Club will have about 15 of those '60's-era cars here and the Thumb Area Antique Car Club will show off its wares. A group from Sandusky is bringing miniature versions of the Model T to the parade, Jones said.

State Representative Dick Allen (R-Caro), will be on hand, as will Cadet Dale Cleland, Cass City's representative at West Point. Jones said he's the pipe major in the West Point Cadet Band.

One of the biggest turna-ways from the parade, on which planning started in March, was the Shriner's Clubs, Jones said.

Only one of 17 Shriners Clubs that Jones contacted will attend. Jones said there is the national convention for Shriners in Atlanta this week.

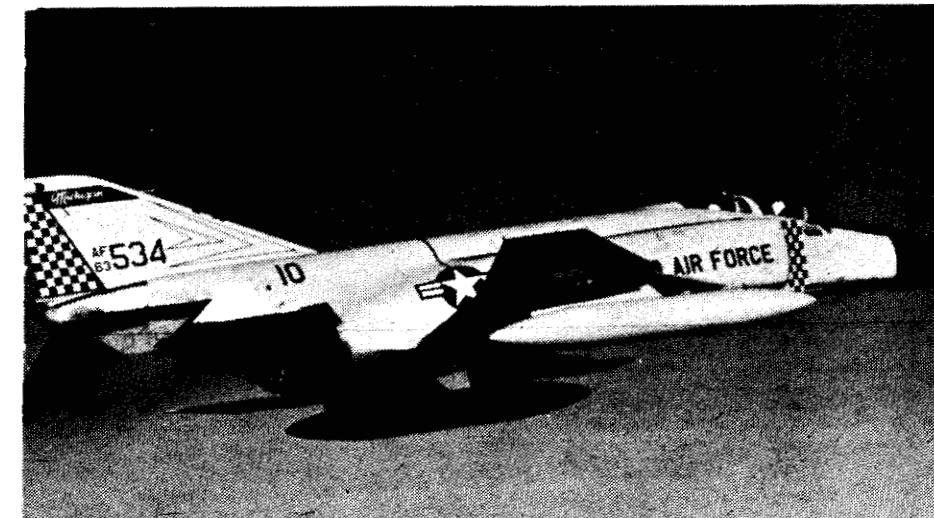

"I started in March sending out letters. I should have started sooner, because I got a lot of responses back saying they were committed already," Jones said.

Jones said he would not be surprised if he got 10 or more parade entrants at the last minute.

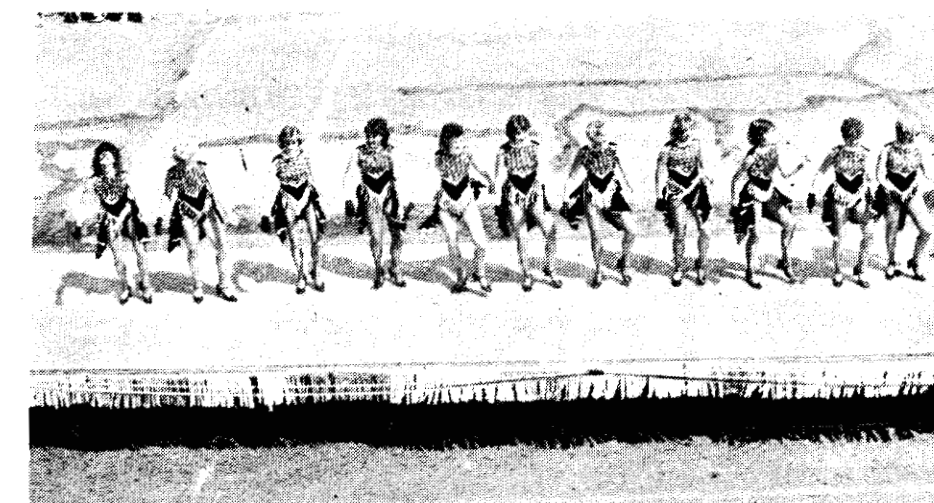

"If people want to spontaneously get in, that's fine. We want everybody," Jones said.

Festival co-chairman Dave Lovejoy said there may be fewer units in this year's parade but the quality will be just as good.

"Everyone wants to have a bigger variety, but I'm not ashamed of what I've got here," Jones said.

A NATIONAL GUARD flyover is tentatively scheduled for Thursday's parade.

SALLY DOERR'S DANCERS will be high kicking during the parade.

Festival parade may be smaller...

by Wayne Kamidoi

Variety is what this year's Fourth of July Festival Parade can offer as everything from the "world's largest mobile football" to space-age cars to old standbys, like floats, are scheduled to participate.

"There's a heckuva variety. I believe there's a pretty good cross-section," parade coordinator Gary Jones said. "I tried to get as much as I could, but I couldn't get everything."

Jones expects approximately 80 units in Thursday's parade slated to begin at 11:00 a.m. at the corner of Brooker Street and Main Street. The parade should last close to 90 minutes, according to Jones.

A U.S. Navy drill team with 50 to 75 men will march, along with a U.S. Air Force color guard and a Michigan National Guard drill team from Saginaw. VFW groups from Cass City and Vassar also are scheduled to make appearances.

"I went after the color guards and things of that nature hard because it is Independence Day," Jones said, "but there was no set theme."

Among the oddities appearing in the parade are the "Pulse" car and the exceptionally large football.

The "Pulse," developed by Owosso Motor Car, runs on a 400cc Yamaha motor and can get up to 100 miles per gallon. A pair of Pulses, which resemble F-1 bombers without wings, will scout along Main Street.

"The world's largest mobile football," as proclaimed by Jones, will be pulled by Sparty, the mascot of Michigan State University, and should provide plenty of laughs, Jones said.

One of the features Jones is excited about is a tentatively-scheduled flyover by the Michigan International Guard.

WORK HAS BEEN fast and furious at Provincial House to get its float ready for Thursday's Fourth of July parade. "Stars and Stripes Forever" is this year's theme for the Provincial House float. Putting the finishing touches on what is to be a blue sky are, from left: Laura Jimpkowski, Beatrice Dennis and Dorothy Booth.

Hot air balloons scheduled at dusk

Always a spectacle when in one's sight are hot air balloons, and three of those huge, colorful floating masses will be launched Thursday between 7:00 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. (weather permitting) north of the Municipal Park softball diamond.

Although rides to spectators will not be offered, event coordinator Paul

Chappel says "the people can watch how the balloons get ready and follow them in their cars if they like."

The balloons, two of which are owned by Ron Gauthier of Memphis, Mich., and the other by Ron Sagaert of Utica, Mich., will land in a pre-determined site, Chappel said.

Gallery recalls memories of 4th

Editor's note: With Doug Gallery's permission, the following excerpt, which appears in his book "The First Twenty Years," is being reprinted. Mr. Gallery, 80, part-owner of the Tuscola County Advertiser from 1929-1965, recounts his memories as a youth in Caro of Fourth of July celebrations.

by Doug Gallery

The annual Fourth of July holiday brings to my mind the way it used to be celebrated -- it's so different.

If there is no local municipal celebration in prospect, nearly everyone now climbs into a car and departs for somewhere else.

Even this results in plenty of excitement, as there is always a possibility that any given person may turn into one of the...casualties over the holiday.

This, however, is far from the kind of excitement that used to fill me with glee as the glorious Fourth approached.

A street carnival was usually the center of the celebration, with other attractions planned to fill out the thin spots in the day.

The main part of a carnival to an eight-year-old boy is, of course, the merry-go-round.

One year this was set up right across the street from my home.

Never having expected to have a merry-go-round practically in my front yard, I felt the proprietary interest in the contraption and spent the entire day on the lot, seeing that the machine was properly set up.

Just at suppertime, the job was completed, and I regretfully started to go home, but...

As I crossed the gutter on the merry-go-round side of the street, my ship came in! There was a dime lying nearly buried between two cobblestones in the gutter.

Some cousins were to visit us over the Fourth that year, and although I had a feeling that I should go home to see if they had arrived, I also felt that the proximity of a merry-go-round operation, and an unexpected dime, needed immediate attention.

So without wasting much time on thought, which could only have made me still later for supper anyway, I took my new-found dime in hand, bought two five-cent tickets, and proceeded to ride them out.

Then I went home to supper with a great feeling of accomplishment.

taken a back seat to "short and sweet."

The festival is simply more successful as a one-day event. We've seen the success of it." Fourth of times, the old saying, "the bigger, the better" has Dave Lovejoy said.

The past two years have been "up years," according to Lovejoy, both in the number of attendees and the revenues.

Last year's Independence Day fell on a Wednesday and this year's will be on Thursday -- not exactly prime tourist days. But the mid-week landings are actually a benefit rather than a hindrance, Lovejoy said.

"People will be working again on Friday, so they are less apt to scatter to other places. Most will decide to stay right in Cass City," Lovejoy said.

One of the reasons why 1984's festival was deemed a success was because of an approximate $3,500 budget cut. The committee decided to slash advertising costs by $1,500 and ax the fireworks show, which costs more than $2,000 to carry out, Lovejoy said.

Thanks to the Cass City Jaycees, the fireworks will be on go Thursday, thus making the holiday festival even more appealing.

Of course, Mother Nature plays her role. You get good weather, you get good festival. You get not-so-good weather, you get not-so-good festival.

"Weather is definitely a factor. We've fortunately had good weather recently," Lovejoy said.

He did, however, recall a rainstorm that washed out a chicken barbecue two years ago.

"It was bad -- put the fires right out," Lovejoy said.

There is one intangible that makes the festival seem to click.

"The thing that makes it successful is the community. It just pulls together."

You ask the people to do something and the people will do it. It makes our jobs as chairman a lot easier," Lovejoy said.

Lovejoy said the festival is in its seventh year and has yet to feature carnival rides and sideshows -- but that is just fine with him.

"We've tried to steer away from the carnival atmosphere, the commercial carnivals. Our emphasis is family activities and family fun," Lovejoy said.

"The festival is simply more successful as a one-day event. We've seen the success of it."

—Dave Lovejoy, Festival co-chairman

by Wayne Kamidoi

Amid the hoopla surrounding the Fourth of July Festival something was missing at last year's event -- a very big something.

No longer will the festival seem like a box of Cracker Jack without the toy surprise or Lou Whitaker with-out Alan Trammell.

After a one-year absence, the fireworks show is back. And it's going to be the biggest and most spectacular in festival history, event coordinator Dan Ulfing said.

As soon as dusk arrives everyone expected it."

Ulfing said the Jaycees will begin to boom.

Financial reasons forced the discontinuation of the fireworks at last year's festival, after shows in 1982 and '83 were staged. But thanks to the Cass City Jaycees, the show will go on. The Jaycees are sponsoring the event which will cost them close to $2,300 to get off the ground.

"We had a lot of disappointed people (last year) and we didn't want to see it happen again," Ulfing said.

"People were parked in the (Municipal) park and we (clean-up people) had to tell them there were no fireworks. It was like Ulfing said the Jaycees have had fund-raising projects, such as car washes and a jelly sale, to fund the fireworks. Proceeds made at the ATV races at the park Thursday will provide a portion's share of the fireworks revenue, Ulfing said.

"Right now, we've got about $1,000 to put toward it. It's definitely running us dry," Ulfing said.

As hard as it may seem, this will be only the third time in the festival's seven-year history a fireworks display will be witnessed.

"It's a return to the tradition the Fourth of July has," festival co-chairman Dave Lovejoy said. "It's nice to be able to have it back."

About $400 will have to be spent for liability insurance, Ulfing said, but Elkland Township Fire Department employees will ignite the fireworks at no charge.

"The Jaycees deserve a pat on the back. They're putting a lot of money and time into it," said grateful festival co-chairman Curt Sutckland.

Fans can expect more than 150 electrifying charges to burst into the sky, including a rapid-fire 30 to 40-charge grand finale, Ulfing said.

"You'd have to go to Saginaw or Bay City to see something like we're going to have. The show will be real good for a town our size," Ulfing promised.

Being selfish doesn't pay on Fourth

That feeling, however, became rather weather-beaten when Mother turned on the heat as to where I had been and why I was late to supper.

And when I told the story of my good fortune, the atmosphere grew torrid.

The cousins had arrived, and I was told: "You should have used one ticket and let Cousin Mary use the other. Don't be selfish!"

Well, that was a new thought to me, but I could see the logic in it, so when Mother announced that my punishment would be that I must stay at home that night while the rest of the party went to another part of town to shoot off fireworks, I agreed easily.

Staying at home meant to me that I was not even to go across the street to watch the merry-go-round (the unwitting cause of my trouble), so I sat on the front steps in the sticky July evening and listened to the music.

Feeling very virtuous about staying home from the expedition that I would have given my eyeteeth to attend, I stayed right there, without even cheating a little.

When the rest of the family returned about nine o'clock, very gay and excited about the fun they had had, Mother asked: "Where were you? Why didn't you come along? We had a fine time -- fireworks, lemonade, everything!"

"Why did you stay home?"

Were YOU ever disappointed, angry and heartbroken -- all at the same time.

At least, I learned to recognize selfishness.

Another memorable Fourth, several years later, started with a trip to the public park, with a pal, to watch a man fire a stick of dynamite, which he had fastened to a steel fence post, as a "sunrise salute."

By ten o'clock the street stands were ready to open for the day's celebration, and the carnival rides and shows had begun their raucous appeal to the public.

Hot dogs, pop, hamburgers, taffy, shooting galleries, girl shows, fireworks and politicians -- all vied for the attention of the crowd which grew denser with the passing hours.

In the afternoon a balloon ascension with a double parachute drop carried the aeronaut to a great height and finally deposited him inelegantly in the top of an apple tree about three blocks from his starting point, from which he had to be rescued by the fire department.

The Governor of the State droned on and on, apparently endlessly, about nothing in particular.

The featured drink that year was "near beer" and I had seen it advertised so much that I finally enticed two of my cronies to help me invest five cents in a bottle of it. I heard later that it was either "too near beer" or not near enough, depending on the personal likes and dislikes of the speaker.

In any case, it was disappointing to all of us, and after one sip around, we left the nearly full bottle on the counter and wrote the investment off to experience.

The evening fireworks and the following "pavement" dance were almost anticlimactical, coming as they did at the close of the day that had started at four o'clock with the sunrise salute and involved more activities than I usually found in a week.

It had been fun, all of it, but I crawled into bed with the feeling that it was probably a good idea to have only one Fourth of July each year.

Not all Fourths were like this one, of course, but they were all filled with good times and memories.

Festival's success trend

by Wayne Kamidoi

Cass City's Fourth of July Festival has been a roller coaster endeavor since its inception in 1939.

After a smashing debut year, several lean years followed. But with the success of the 1964 event, officials are hoping Thursday's festival will continue its upward climb.

"Last year was the best festival we've ever had financially," co-chairman Curt Strickland said. "And this year's should be much better."

"If it (last year's festival) wouldn't have been successful, we would have not had another -- no doubt about it," Strickland said.

On a suggestion made by Tom Proctor in November 1978, the seed for a Cass City Fourth of July Festival was planted.

Chamber of Commerce

Not since the late '20s

President Tom Herron declared himself as festival chairman and after a seven-month planning effort, the festival was a reality.

More than 15,000 people attended the first annual festival. "I received nothing but good comments about the festival," said the Village Superintendent Lou Lafontaine afterwards.

Doerr's Dancers to perform

Cass City next stop on festival circuit

by Wayne Kamidoi

A double-dip dose of dancing from the Sally Doerr Dancers is what fans will have the opportunity to digest at Thursday's festival.

After the Cass City festival, Doerr's dancers are scheduled to perform at the Farmer's Festival in Pigeon and the Pumpkin Festival in Caro. Previous stops have been at the Bavarian Festival in Frankenth and the Sugar Festival in Sebewaing.

"If George decides to step we're in trouble," Doerr Patullo, Caro, who pro- on the brakes a little hard, added, referring to George vides and drives the flatbed for all of the performances cul- on the troupe's festival circuit.

This year will mark the third appearance of the dance troupe, now in its fourth year, at the festival, according to Doerr, who is a dance instructor at the Caro Arts Society.

The 11-woman "senior" dancers will appear twice in the festival. A carefully-choreographed routine to the "Axel F Theme" from the Beverly Hills Cop soundtrack will highlight the dancers' performance in the parade.

"It's going to be done on a moving flatbed. It's very, very hard to perform. There's not much you can hang on to," Doerr said.

PREPARING FOR their performances at the festival, Sally Doerr's Dancers buff up on their moves at a practice session at the Caro Arts Society.

An Annual Report to the Thumb Community

At Walbro Corp.

Job opportunities rise with expansion

by Wayne Kamidoi

The two-year, $5.5 million project at Walbro Corp., 6242 Garfield St., Cass City, has made the offices and exterior of the small engine parts manufacturer eerily look spiffier. But it's not the look that matters. It's the facelift and addition to the manufacturing building that makes the difference.

"It will create jobs in Cass City," said Lambert E. Althaver, president and chief executive officer of Walbro. "There will be a possibility of 100 additional jobs over the next two and a half years, assuming production remains — or increases — at present levels."

At a cost of an estimated $3.5 million, 65,000 square feet of space for the manufacturing area has been created. The construction, which began last fall, consists of a 50,000-square-foot main floor in addition to a 15,000-square-foot mezzanine, according to Bill Ewald, director of purchasing at Walbro.

Althaver said the building is projected to be completed by Aug. 15, and equipment from existing plants and newly-purchased equipment will be in place by "roughly Sept. 1."

"Not only is it going to mean more jobs, it means we'll have a modern facility in one location. We'll be able to introduce and experiment with new technological advances which we haven't been able to do in the past," Althaver said. One of the most important aspects of the new manufacturing building will provide is the capability of cept in its purest form and is not entirely feasible but Althaver has a related idea. For round one, it will consolidate us in one geographic area. Looking down the road, it will create jobs. The potential is there."

EASY DOES IT

In addition to the new building's construction, improvements to the Carburor Group building and the equipment storage facility behind the municipal building.

to match that feat. "The exhibit has been gaining new ones steadily every year, but most of the people are repeaters. They say they do real well (in sales) and that's why they come back," Nicholas said.

Grant provides funds to pave street near Walbro

With the expansion of Walbro will come increased traffic. That's the major reason why the Cass City Village Council approved a Michigan Small Cities Economic Development grant to pave Schell Street, a road in the area adjacent to the plant.

The grant, issued through the Michigan Department of Commerce's Office of Business and Community Development, totaled $35,300.

The state funds will help create 10 new full-time manufacturing jobs at Walbro, according to Sen. James Barcia, D-Bay City.

"I am pleased that Cass City has secured these funds to help expand both production and jobs at the Walbro plant," Rep. Dick Allen, R-Caro, said. "In towns like Cass City, economic development projects are essential to the community's well being, and this grant will aid the community greatly in its efforts to help Walbro meet its needs."

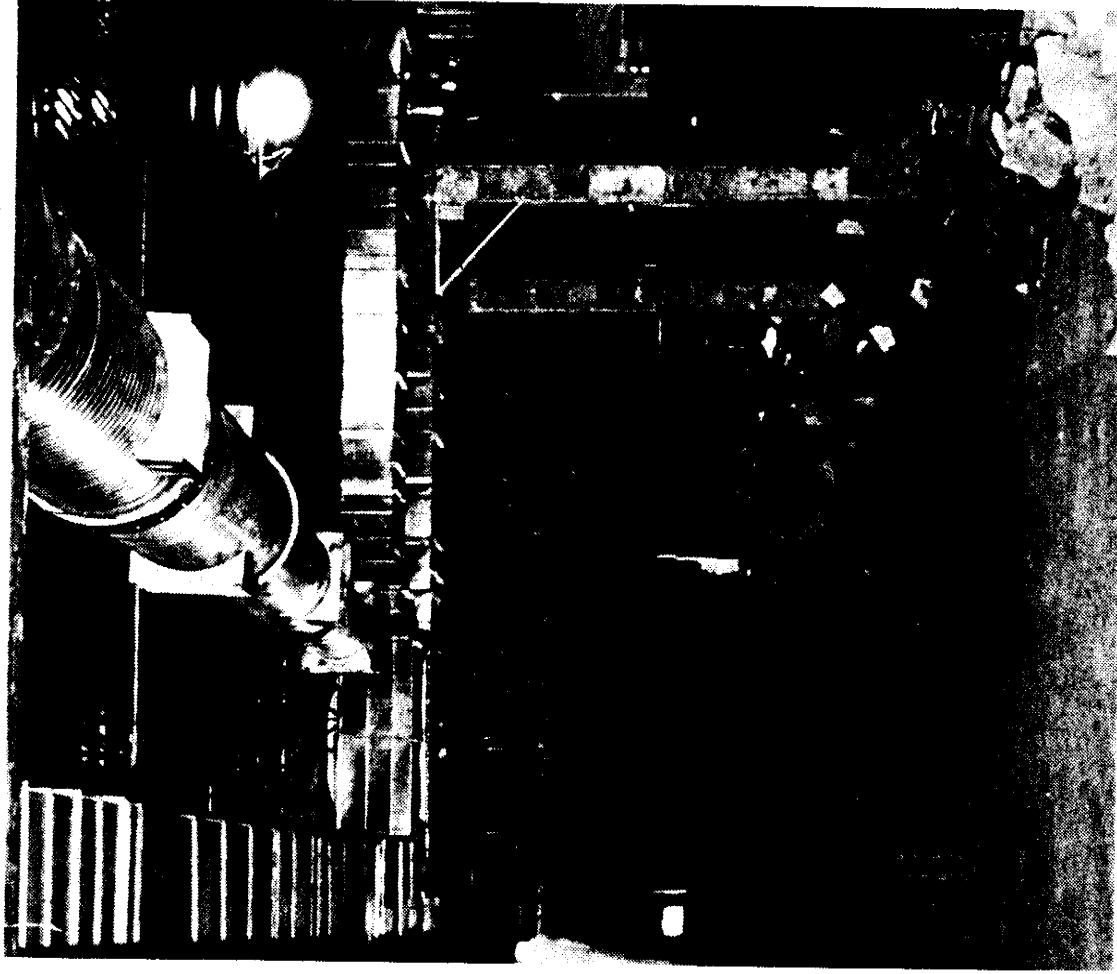

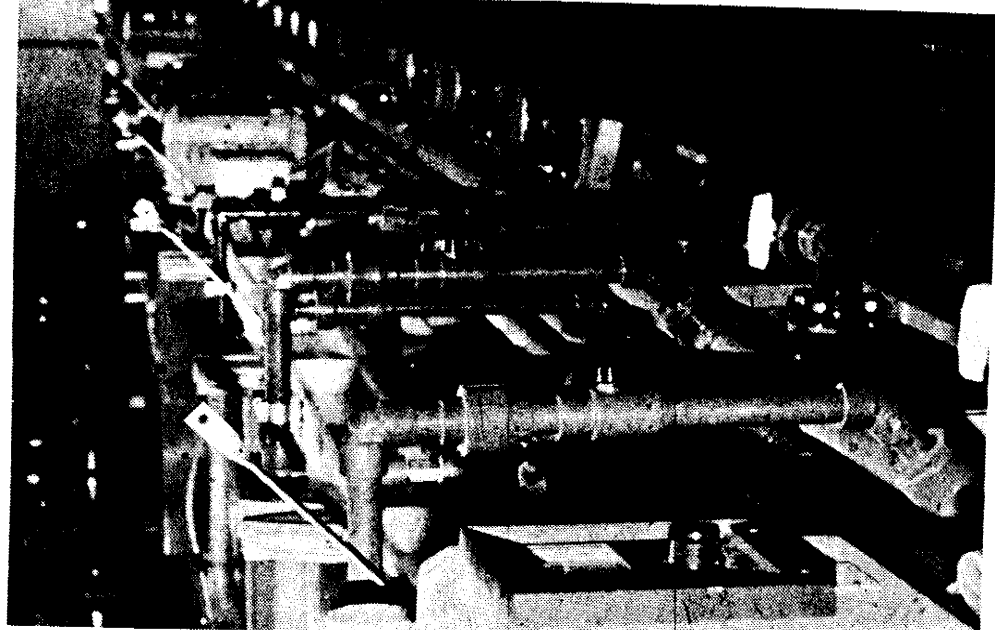

—Dick Allen,
State

A MESSAGE WORTH REPEATING

When The Lights Go Out At The Park

When the last hot dog is eaten, the last event is over and Festival number seven is history, let's remember why we celebrate.

We need to be reminded that freedom still prevails and our individual freedom is the envy of people everywhere.

A free press zealously guards that freedom. We strive to hold that tradition every week by publishing the most concise, accurate and unbiased news of Cass City and the area.

Tell us if we don't.

Music, dance make festival festive

Music and dance will be in the air at the Fourth of July Festival.

A community choir, made up of performers in the park to the pavilion because of the heat experienced at last year's event.

Rock videos on a large screen and a disc jockey will provide the fun at a teen dance in the Green Municipal Annex.

The concert, now in its fourth year, will begin at 5:30 p.m. and consist of a medley of patriotic numbers, according to Tom Thumb Singers director Andrea Hofmeister. It will be followed by performances from the Sally Doerr Dance Troupe, The Sweet Adelines and a Shriner's band.

Hofmeister stressed that anyone who wants to participate in the concert as a singer can do so.

If you've never do-si-doed your way on the dance floor, then a square dance at the Municipal Park pavilion may be the answer to learning how.

The dance, coordinated by Alvin and Juanita Burk who are members of the Rocking Eight's Square Dance Club in Caro, will run from 6:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. Thursday.

"We'll go out in the crowd and teach some basic steps."

THE TOM THUMB SINGERS perform for the sheer joy of it all. Anyone can join, says Director Andrea Hofmeister.

Annual tot run is a fun thing

The starting gun for the annual tot run will go off at 3:30 p.m. Thursday at Cass City High School track for runners up to 13 years of age.

Sign-up for the tot run will be from 2:30 p.m. until race time, event coordinator Curt Strickland said.

A one-lap race for children five and under will be held, while those six to their parent's signature in order to compete.

There will be three age groups for this year's event. A one-lap race for children five and under will be held, while those six to their parent's signature in order to compete.

More bushels, less dockage

Proven Case International Axial-Flow corn soybean combines come through every time.

Proven on millions of acres, the clear choice is a Case International Axial-Flow combine for corn and beans.

Simple rotor and threshing cage design has proven to be a grain saver in every acre. More thorough threshing, plus more efficient separating gets all the grain.

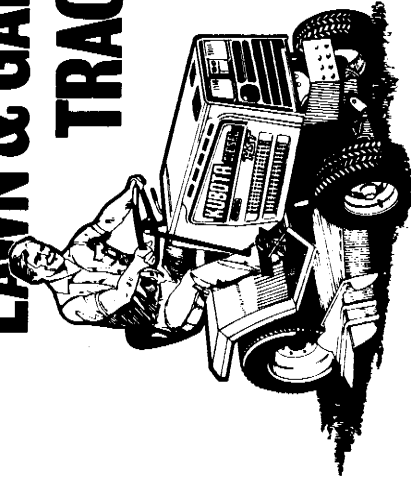

Axial-Flow has proven that it handles grain more gently to minimize cracking and scuffing. So why settle for anything less for any crop you combine? Why not bring home top price from the elevator? Stop in and look over the Axial-Flow line-up.

More clean corn and beans with any Axial-Flow:

- 1480—corn heads up to 8 rows wide. Flexible cutterbar headers from 13 to 22½ ft.
- 1460—corn heads up to 8 rows narrow. Flexible cutterbar headers from 13 to 22½ ft.
- 1440—corn heads up to 6 rows wide. Flexible cutterbar headers from 13 to 22½ ft.
- 1420—corn heads up to 6 rows narrow. Flexible cutterbar headers from 13 to 17½ ft.

HYDROSTATIC DIESEL LAWN & GARDEN TRACTOR.

Financing available at 8.5%

The top of Kubota's line of diesel lawn and garden tractors is the G3200 with its 3 cylinder 14 hp engine that runs smooth and quiet.

Its hydrostatic transmission provides ease of operation with one foot pedal control for forward and reverse, as well as speed. Maneuvering around trees and bushes is no problem. The mower is operated off the front drive shaft, not by a belt system. This eliminates the wear and tear problems of many lawn and garden tractors. Other implements and attachments will change in a flash. Work all day long, snow clearing, and towing.

Take a look at the Kubota G3200 HST and find out why Kubota owners say, "My Kubota. There's nothing like it on earth."

Nothing like it on earth.

Lumberjacks saw, throw into action

The sawdust will be flying and the saws will be cutting at the lumberman's exhibition Thursday at 2:00 p.m.

A lumberman's crew from Colwood will provide the entertainment in a series of "men of the woods" activities and contests north of the Cass City High School track.

"The fans will enjoy it," said coordinator John Matt.

who added that between 100-500 people attend at other festivals. The lumberjacks have performed in Ubyly, Caro, Mio and at the Sebawaing Snow Festival.

Competitions in chainsaw cutting and ax throwing will be the featured events.

In the chainsaw event, an eight-inch by eight-inch beam is cut through by the lumberjacks. There are two classes of chainsaws, regular and modified.

A four-inch round bulseye is the target for the lumberman in the ax-throwing competition. A maximum of 15 points can be earned in three throws. The axes can be thrown either underhanded or overhanded, Matt said.

One of the most well-known events is the two-man cross-cut competition. The winner is the tandem who can saw through the log in the fastest time.

If enough interest is generated, a rotary tiller race will be held.

The demonstration is expected to last for about two to three hours and is free of charge.

Event coordinator John Matt said the lumberjacks have performed in Ubyly, Caro, Mio and Sebawaing.

THE AX THROW (top of page) and the cross-cut saw race are two of the events that will be featured at a lumberman's exhibition. The show is scheduled to begin at 2 Thursday afternoon.

Show to put pets at center stage

Avid dog lover Judy Rocheleau says, "There's more to it than just buying a puppy," then putting it on a chain.

A pet show, sponsored by the Thumb of Michigan Dog Fanciers, starting at 1:30 at the park Thursday will not only put man's best friend to center stage, but is designed to make people more aware of pet care.

"Our club is trying to promote better care for animals. We want to let the public know that dogs are not 'dumb,'" Rocheleau said.

Anyone can enter his dog free of charge into the show and deadline is "right up until time of the showing," Rocheleau said.

Plaques and ribbons will be presented to dogs placing in the following categories: best behaved, biggest, smallest, funniest, best tail, shortest tail, longest tail, best-groomed, best-dressed and best overall dog.

Rocheleau said the number of dogs entered (19) last year was well below the entries in previous years, but the crowd was up to par.

"It (the show) draws people of all ages. It's great when the older folks say to you uptown (after the show), 'I really enjoyed it,'" Rocheleau said.

Rocheleau said the dog fanciers' club has been in existence for seven years and has a membership of about 17.

"I find it a big reward to teach and train (a dog)...then see it do a lot of things. If you spend time and patience with your dog, you can accomplish a lot," Rocheleau said.

Vacant store phase passing in Cass City

About a year and a half ago, Cass City businessmen were worried by an alarming number of empty stores on Main Street.

There were 11 stores vacant and others deemed marginal as the recession took its toll. Many older businessmen said at the time that the empty stores were not as serious a threat as they seemed.

They pointed to times in the past when business cycles had the same chilling effect on stores along the main stem.

Subsequent events proved that the older businessmen were correct. One after another the stores opened with new businesses.

Among the businesses coming to the community in the last year to fill vacant stores were three in the health care field, Allen Home Care, Pensee Home Care and Primary Vision Center.

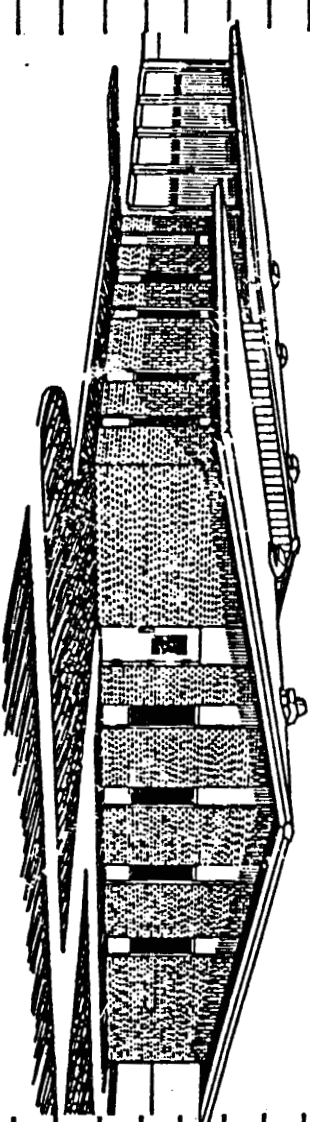

Two new clothing stores were opened, Kid's Village, for children's wear, and
