Union, school battle over insurance cash

The Michigan Education Association has changed insurance carriers resulting in lower health insurance rates for affiliates of which Cass City Teachers Association is one.

The teachers want some of the new lower rates passed on to them and the Cass City School Board is adamant in refusing the request.

The issue was discussed at the regular board meeting Monday at Cass City High School. It's a stupid position (for the teachers to take), Trustee Dick Wallace said. When we pay teachers' health insurance and the price goes up in the contract during the contract period, we don't ask the teachers for rebates.

Now for the first time the cost decreases and the teachers want a rebate.

Supt. Donald Crouse was asked to determine costs if Cass City is forced to join other districts and challenge the teacher position in courts.

The position is expected to be clearer after a meeting slated Wednesday between the superintendent and a union representative.

Several other issues involving teachers and curriculum were decided.

Karen Wallace will be the public speaking and drama teacher next year. Her art classes have only four sections next year and she is expected to be able to handle two speaking-drama classes with about 30 students each.

Wallace said that if she took over the courses she wanted to remove it from the "step-child" position it has had in recent years. To do it, she said, new texts were needed as the ones in use were 17 years old. The new texts will cost $900.

A pass-fail policy for grades 7 and 8 was adopted. It outlines the basis for promotion and acceptable ways of making up work. One major provision is that a student failing three or more classes will be retained in the same grade.

Debbie Martin told the board that the new wave in teaching foreign language was to use a computer and to abandon the foreign language lab. Previously she had asked that the lab be repaired, but the administration held up the project when Martin discovered the new method of presenting the work.

Doug Grezeszak, chemistry and physics teacher and track coach, has resigned to accept a teaching position in Fremont.

ROOFING BIDS

Two bids for more roof work at Campbell Elementary School were received. Low bidder was H & H Insulation and Roofing of Elkton for $7,995. The high bid was $9,000. The low bid was considerably over the estimate of $6,000.

CONTRACT SIGNED

The board ratified a contract with the Operating Engineers as expected. The contract with the cooks, custodians and bus drivers was presented at a special meeting Monday, July 8. Please turn to page 12.

ELKLAND TOWNSHIP FIREMEN used the Jaws of Life to cut the top of the vehicle off to free Alicia Bliss and Stephanie Burns from a vehicle after an accident Wednesday night.

Three injured in crash

Stephanie Burns mending after emergency surgeries

After two operations, Stephanie Burns is recovering from multiple injuries suffered in a two-car crash Wednesday night. The 16-year-old Cass City girl was one of three injured in the accident.

She is a patient at St. Mary's Hospital, Saginaw, where the first operation was performed Thursday morning to repair internal injuries, her father, Jack Burns, said. Friday she was taken off the critical list and was in serious condition.

The second surgery was performed Sunday to place a steel plate in the arm where bones were broken. She still suffers from a fracture of the pelvic area which will be attended to at a later date.

Burns said that the attending surgeon told him that expert care by the Cass City Ambulance Service and wearing seat belts saved his daughter's life. Friends can send cards in care of the hospital, he added.

According to the report, filed by Sgt. Leonard Huff of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, a vehicle driven by Alicia M. Bliss, 16, 6785 E. Main St., Cass City, was eastbound on M-81, near Crawford Road. For an unknown reason she lost control of the vehicle, crossed the center line, and collided with a westbound vehicle driven by Sharon M. Matthews, 29, 4630 Hadley Rd., Decker. The Matthews vehicle collided with the Bliss vehicle in the passenger's side, forcing the vehicle against a guard rail on the north side of M-81.

It took firemen from the Elkland Township Fire Department more than an hour to free Bliss and her passenger, Burns, from the vehicle.

Bliss, Burns and Matthews were transported to Hills and Dales General Hospital. Burns was later transferred to St. Mary's Hospital. Matthews is listed in fair condition. The hospital is not allowed to release information on Bliss.

All three persons were wearing seat belts at the time of the accident. Bliss was issued a ticket for careless driving.

The Tuscola County Sheriff's Department deputies were assisted by Cass City Police Officers and a deputy from Sanilac County Sheriff's Department. The injured were transported by the Cass City Ambulance Service, and Collon Ambulance Service, Caro.

School board debating millage for curriculum

An informal discussion Monday night at the regular meeting of the Cass City School Board indicates that the district will probably ask the voters for a very small tax increase for curriculum improvement.

It's sure that the request will not be over one mill if and when it is presented and it probably will be for a half or three-quarters of a mill. A mill is $1.00 for every $1,000 of state equalized valuation.

The dilemma facing the board is trying to implement some of the recommendations of the Citizens Advisory Committee without antagonizing the taxpayers with a tax request.

Among the many recommendations of the Committee, the board feels that the most urgent are remedial reading in the elementary grades, physical education in the elementary grades and counselor in the elementary grades.

Supt. Donald Crouse said that each of these proposals would require an extra teacher and that adding a teacher costs about $24,000. Since a mill raises about $100,000 in the district enriching the curriculum with the three additions would cost about three-quarters of a mill.

If the board does decide to go ahead and find out if the taxpayers want to pay for curriculum enrichment it will need to act at the August board meeting to be in time to get any passed millage on this year's tax rolls.

There's a good deal of pessimism among board members about whether or not any tax increase, no matter how small, can be passed this year.

I can tell you, Ben Hobart said, that the guys that are driving the tractors aren't going to be receptive to any tax.

Allan Hartwick said that there probably was a 50-50 chance in the Novesta area. It all depends if we are offering what the people really want, he feels.

If the millage would pass, the quickest that additions could be made would be the second semester of 1985-86.

Tuscola County workers settle for small raise

Union workers of the Tuscola County courthouse and the county commissioners have reached an accord on a wage contract that will increase employee salaries $600 over the next two years.

According to Tom Abbey, county attorney, all courthouse union employees will receive a $200 raise during the first year of the contract, effective July 1, 1985. During the second year they will receive a $400 raise. Before the raise, the lowest paid courthouse employee, a beginning clerk typist, received $5.18 per hour for an annual salary of $10,774. The highest paid employees, juvenile probation officers and appraisers, with three or more years' seniority, earn $8.35 an hour, for an annual salary of $17,368.

"The financial conditions of the county certainly entered into negotiations, and they were taken into account by both parties when entering into the agreement," Abbey said, referring to the current financial crisis the county is now facing.

"The commissioners recognize the detrimental impact this may have on the millage election, but they also recognize their obligation to their employees and their obligation to run the county in a business-like manner," Abbey added. He explained the commissioners realize they "have to run the store," and look after their employees, even though they are facing an upcoming millage increase election.

The county commissioners are seeking a 1.5 mill increase at a Sept. 10 election.

The increase amounts to less than two percent for the first year of the contract, less than the inflation

3 years' probation

Melba Garza sentenced

The final chapter in the 1976 murder of a 17-year-old Caro baby-sitter was written in Huron County Circuit Court Friday when Melba N. Garza admitted helping her brother dispose of the body of Robin D. Adams.

Garza, 25, Caro, was sentenced by Judge M. Richard Knoblock to three years' probation on a charge of being an accessory to murder. Her brother, Melvin Garza was found guilty of the first-degree murder of Robin Adams Feb. 15, following a five-day jury trial. Judge Knoblock sentenced Melvin Garza, 28, to spend the rest of his natural life in prison. The only chance that Melvin Garza has for a prison release would be a governor's pardon.

At the time of her brother's trial, Melba Garza was also facing a first-degree murder charge. The charge was reduced as part of a plea bargaining agreement. Robin Adams was reported missing Aug. 22, 1976, from a Caro home where she was babysitting. It took law enforcement agencies more than seven years to find Adams' remains in a shallow, sandy grave in Indianfields Township. The body was discovered Oct. 10, 1984, on what would have been Robin Adams' 26th birthday.

In testimony during Melvin Garza's first-degree murder trial, Det. Sgt. Daniel Miller of the Michigan State Police

Small world department: Aaron Asher, son of the John Ashers in Florida, attended a camp recently and the counsellor wore a T-shirt telling about Brewster Shaw, astronaut.

Because the Ashers hail from Cass City and Brewster Shaw does, too, Aaron asked if the counsellor came from Cass City.

The answer was yes and Aaron said that he used to live in Cass City, too. The counsellor is Mark Shaw who now lives in Florida and his parents live in Cass City.

Further discussion revealed that Mark knew David Asher, the youth's uncle.

We've a champion in our midst and chances are you never knew it. It's Jim Hobbs who finished in the top 10 in the annual Mackinac Island stone skipping contest. Hobbs managed 15 skips on one of his tosses. Wow!!

Another piece of the friendly deer puzzle fell into place the other day. Regular readers will recall that it all started when a picture of the deer on the Jim Milligan farm was published.

Later the John Grahams identified the deer as one they raised from a fawn and identified by "warts" on its neck.

Now Chet Muntz says that deer received a little friendly loving care from his wife the year before it visited Jim Milligan.

There were sore spots on the neck and my wife smeared it with ointment, he said, and we have pictures to prove it.

The good news is that census reports show a "fair to good" count of pheasants this summer. The bad news is that the downward trend in Michigan's wild pheasant harvest is continuing.

The season's bag limit is four pheasants in possession. (You should be so lucky.)

ELKLAND TOWNSHIP FIRE CHIEF Jerome Root Jr., surveys the damage of a fire in a wheat field owned by Charles Carpenter, 7724 Severance Rd., Deford. The fire destroyed about three acres of wheat.

Firemen respond to wheat field fire Saturday

In addition to responding to a request for assistance at an auto accident July 10, the Elkland Township Fire Department stayed busy last week, responding to three fire calls, and two false alarms at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Fire Chief Jerome Root Jr. said the first false alarm was set off by a child Saturday at 6:57 p.m. The second alarm, about 30 minutes later, was accidentally set off by a hospital maintenance man working on the alarm system.

Saturday afternoon, the fire department responded to a fire that destroyed about three acres of wheat in a field owned by Charles Carpenter, 7724 Severance Rd., Deford. Chief Root said the fire started in a rubbish pile behind a barn, and spread to the 20-acre wheat field. Root said the cause of the fire is unknown, but he feels it may have been started by the sun shining through a piece of glass, igniting the dry grass around it.

The fire was reported by a neighbor, Gerald Mathewson. The field is located on the corner of Lamton and Severance Roads. Friday, firemen responded to a car fire at the corner of DeLong and Cemetery Roads that did an estimated $100 damages to a vehicle driven by Susan Wakfield, 6204 Lakeside Dr., Cass City.

The fire was started by a carburetor backfire in the 1973 Dodge. No injuries were reported.

Thursday, July 11, firemen responded to a grass and brush fire at the Dan Toner residence, 4117 Doerr Rd., Cass City. The fire was started by a spark from a burn barrel. No damages were reported.

Frivolous lawsuits

By Jim Fitzgerald

In view of recent hijack headlines, you're not going to believe this one. An area man, charging his privacy was invaded, is suing a huge airline and two airport employes for $1 million.

During the so-called invasion of privacy, a loaded gun was found in luggage the man was attempting to carry aboard an airliner. I heard about it from Detroit lawyer Barry Wetherington, who represents the airline. I'm not mentioning any other names because the case is still pending and, in the interest of unbiased justice for all, I don't want to influence the outcome by identifying the lawsuit as one of the more outrageous examples of a society gone loony tunes under the auspices of the American Bar Association.

It all began a few years ago when airport security officers decided the man in question fit the hijacker profile. Of course, the particulars of this profile must remain confidential; otherwise, potential hijackers would know enough to stop shifting their eyes and chewing their briefcases.

SUED FOR DOING JOBS

Suffice it to say the security people did an excellent job. The loaded gun was found and its owner was subsequently found guilty and fined $1,000. Also, it was discovered that when arrested this time, he was already on parole for previous violations of gun laws.

It certainly appeared that society had won a justified victory and the guntoter had received a deserved penalty. But that was according to criminal law. Civil law is a whole other ballgame where practically everybody is welcome to play, no matter how tattered their credentials.

The gun-toter actually found a lawyer willing to represent him in a $1 million lawsuit charging it was an invasion of his privacy to prevent him from taking a loaded gun aboard an airliner.

It is impossible to believe the outcome of this lawsuit will be anything other than a court order that the gun-toter and his lawyer be carried away by men in white suits. Otherwise, there would be precedent for believing airports and airlines have no right to protect passengers by searching luggage, and security personnel should be penalized for being good at their job.

Frivolous lawsuits are common in this litigious society, of course. There are few bigger growth industries than the one comprised of contingency fees and out-of-court settlements to cut legal expenses. But c'mon. There has to be a point beyond which no member of the bar association will step to make a buck. There has to be a time when even the most open-minded judge will close his court to greedy fools.

REACHING THE LIMIT

That point and time certainly should be provided by a lawsuit seeking $1 million in damages for a man who claims his privacy was invaded by airline and airport employes who found a loaded gun in his hand luggage.

Lawyers tell me one of the great things about this country is that anyone can sue anyone. Sure. And one of the great things about England is that plaintiffs who lose lawsuits must pay the legal expenses incurred by defendants.

Think about that. If an airline stopped you from flying with a loaded gun in your handbag, how eager would you be to sue for $1 million for invasion of privacy if you knew you might have to pay the airline lawyers for proving you were a greedy fool?

Finally, it should be noted that this is not an indictment of the entire legal profession. There are plenty of lawyers who won't take any case attached to a fee. After all, it was a lawyer who told me this million-dollar story you can't believe.

Erickson seeks post at Watervliet

Owen-Gage Superintendent Ron Erickson said Monday he would receive word sometime this week on his status for a superintendent's position in the Watervliet School District after an interview Saturday.

Erickson was among seven finalists from a list of 50 candidates to receive an interview for the post vacated by William Penny July 1. "It went well. They usually go well," said Erickson, who was the fourth of seven interviews conducted this week end in front of a search committee.

"Nothing is firm; nothing is committed. I'd be interested, however, if we could get together," Erickson said. Erickson said he was raised and was a teacher near Watervliet, located in the southwest corner of lower Michigan. Although he and his family are happy here, Erickson said he has been "pursuing other positions for the past three or four years."

Erickson expects the search to continue for about another month with the committee narrowing the field down to two or three candidates.

"That's when we'll get into the nitty-gritty. (Right now) it's no big deal," he said.

The Haire Net

Most close observers of the school scene these days look at any attempt for added taxes for improved school curriculum with about the same enthusiasm as a patient waiting to see the dentist.

They know it's good for them but unless the tooth is really aching it's not one of life's most memorable occasions.

There's no real ache in Cass City's school curriculum, but there are several soft spots that need attention.

The question that faces the Cass City Board of Education is the amount of back pocket pain the voters will accept to shore up problem areas that aren't really hurting.

It's not an acute situation as it was when the money crunch cut transportation and all extracurricular activities.

Still, if you believe what the national surveys show, there is a need to offer the students more than they receive now.

There's not too much mystery about what is needed, or, at least, what is needed most. More counseling and elementary physical education are high on the list.

That's what the Citizens Advisory Committee came up with after more than a year's study.

They came up with much more than that, but those are two of the priority items.

The committee also wants to see a widening of science and other core subjects.

The school board is on record in favor of the recommendations. It's a delicate situation.

What the trustees have to weigh is how big a bite of the education apple can they ask for? It wasn't too long ago that a recall of several trustees was in progress because of actions tied to the money crunch.

Tipping the scales in the other direction is the work of the committee. It doesn't appear likely that the board can sit on its hands and ignore any of the suggestions that will cost money.

That would be like saying to the committee that it has wasted a year and hundreds of hours working for the school.

The results of elections at Ubyl and Vassar indicate that this is not the best of times to seek more money for our schools.

There's no doubt that any request for millage faces a rocky road. The committee has told the board that it is ready to work for the money needed to make education better for our kids.

They deserve a chance to do it. If it does nothing else, it should call attention to the needs of the district.

Passing any tax levy these days is a monumental achievement. It would be a feather in the cap of the committee if the members could pull it off.

Cass City Police Officer Phillip Klaus reported that $75 cash was taken from a register at the Parkway Drive Thru after store hours July 11.

Browns play host to Dominican student

A Kingston family has played host to a youngster from the Dominican Republic for about the past month, through the Michigan 4-H/Dominican Republic Youth Exchange.

Corey Brown and his family, 754 Denhoff Rd., Kingston, had Eduardo Roman Hernandez from Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, as a guest until Saturday.

"We are excited about the opportunities for these youngsters of two different cultures to establish close relationships during the next two months," Tuscola County 4-H agent Peggy

Kuhr said. "This will be a great learning experience for both Corey Brown and Eduardo Roman Hernandez."

Hernandez was among 12 youths from the Dominican Republic who arrived June 12 for a month-long stay with their host families. The purpose of their stay was to introduce the 4-H philosophy of learning by doing to the people of the Dominican Republic.

While in Michigan, Hernandez attended a 4-H Broiler Contest June 14, a Quail Camp June 17, 4-H Exploration Days June 19-21 and a Rabbit Camp in Hillsdale.

Brown will return the favor to Hernandez by spending a month in the Dominican Republic.

This youth exchange program is made possible through a grant from the U.S. Information Agency to the Michigan 4-H Youth Program and the Michigan Partners of the Americas, as part of President Reagan's Caribbean Initiative.

Near-sellouts at big top make circus success

The verdict is in on the Cass City Rotary Club's circus and Jim Ceranski is pleased with the results.

"We definitely feel it was a success," Ceranski, chairman for the circus committee said. "It all went very well."

Under the circus big top there was seating capacity for 3,000 persons, and 2,896 tickets were sold. More than 1,300 adults attended the circus, held in the Cass City Village Park Wednesday afternoon and evening.

"The entire affair was very successful," Ceranski said, adding that support from the community and the village made the event profitable for the Rotary. The Rotary Club netted profits of $2,500 from the one-day circus. Ceranski said the profits will be used to fund community improvement projects.

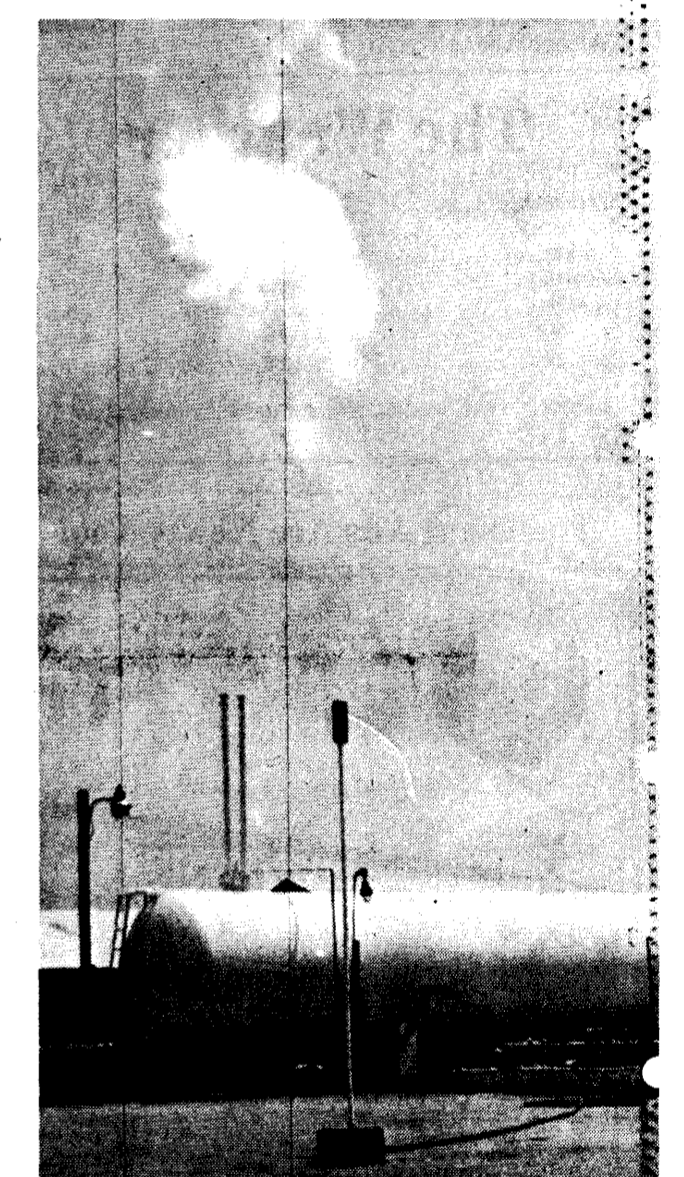

He pointed out that in the past the Rotary Club has donated money for the village tennis courts, and for improvements to the new park on Main Street. One of the projects they are considering this year is the possibility of helping pay for a new lighting system for the village softball field.

Ceranski added that another key to the success of the circus was the advanced ticket sales purchased by industry, businesses and professional organizations. Some of these tickets were given to the Department of Social Services to distribute to needy children in Tuscola County.

Local individuals adding to the performance were Police Chief Gene Wilson, who made a brief appearance as the "Elephant Rider of the Day," and Rotary exchange student, Ni Williams, New Zealand, who had the opportunity to entertain in the center ring as a clown.

Ceranski said that because the circus was so successful, he feels it should be brought back in a couple of years.

IT LOOKS like a cloud in the sky, but it's actually a fireball. Flames stretched to 40 feet as Fuelgas Co. in Cass City burned vapor from two tanks Wednesday and Thursday to prepare for the installation of new, safe equipment. It took 3½ hours each to burn out the tanks. A special team under the direction of George Lupu from Byron was in charge of the controlled burn.

Trip not a vacation

Decker receives taste of Scotland on 44-day tour

by Wayne Kamidoi

On his 44-day tour of Scotland as a member of a Rotary International Group Study Exchange, Dave Decker received a taste of Scottish business techniques, its governmental system and its lifestyle, among others.

Decker also got a taste of haggis, the traditional Scottish dish.

By description, haggis could have been eaten at the dinner table scene from Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom.

Dating back to the time of Robert Burns, a famous Revolutionary War era poet, haggis is a mixture of oatmeal, spices and "all the things nobody would eat after butchering a sheep," said Decker, 31, 4285 Woodland St., Cass City. That combination is then poured into the lining of the sheep's stomach for baking.

"It wasn't that bad," Decker confessed. "But the only way to eat it, is to mix it with mashed potatoes and turnips...and considerable amounts of whiskey."

Decker emphasized haggis is rarely eaten and the food, in general, was excellent during his trip.

An account manager at Walbro Corp., Cass City, Decker was one of five non-Rotarian men of a six-member team. The program, funded by the International Rotary Club, was designed to give young business and professional men a better understanding of another country's culture, government and thought.

It was not a vacation for Decker, as he and his group members were subjected to a rigorous schedule on the 1½-month tour that kept them on the go "from 9 a.m. until late in the evening," Decker said.

"It was difficult leaving (my family), but once we were there the pace of the program didn't allow us to think of missing home. My wife (Tomi) knew in advance it was not a vacation.

It was hard work, but enjoyable work," Decker said. He also has two sons, Eric, 6, and Kevin, four months.

One of the most intriguing stops, according to Decker, was at an IBM plant in Greenock which produces IBM personal computers for Europe, the Middle East and South Africa.

"It was an interesting example of an American company transforming into a British company. There are no Americans on the premises," Decker said.

The Michigan-sized country in the British Isles, where the number of sheep are twice the people population, was described by Decker as a "conservative and civilized nation. Their society still maintains its traditional values, where Americans have the tendency to change quickly."

During his six-week stay with 13 different host families throughout Scotland, Decker learned of the Scottish view of the United States.

"They like Americans a lot. Many of my host families have taken holidays in the U.S.," he said.

"They do not like Ronald Reagan. The reason is they don't think of him as a leader, they think he is still an actor," he added.

Television and Hollywood are very much part of Scottish life. Decker said all of the blockbuster American movies are available and the Scots "are absolutely fanatical" about nighttime soap operas, Dallas and Dynasty (pronounced dinistee there). He added Scotland has the highest percentage of VCR ownership in the world and that the Scots, who receive only four TV stations, are puzzled about Americans having the choice of more than 20 channels because of cable TV.

"They continually asked, 'How in the world could you watch all of these (channels)?' I didn't have a good answer," he said. The team attended the 100th annual Scottish Cup Final, the U.S. equivalent to the Super Bowl, Decker said. Unlike other European countries which have their own versions of Tiger Stadium bleacher creatures, soccer fans (excuse me, football fans) in Scotland do not engage in "hooliganism," which ignited the recent riot resulting in numerous deaths in a match between a Belgian and an English team.

"In 1980 Scotland outlawed drink at the games. England did not outlaw drink. Since the riot, the English have followed suit," Decker said.

There is an ethnic distinction to be made, Decker said. He pointed out the Scots are honored to be referred to as "British," but are not to be confused with the "English," its southern neighbor.

St. Andrew's Royal & Ancient Golf Course, where no golf is played on Sundays, Culzean (pronounced Cullane) Castle, the original home of the Kennedy family, and DeWar's, the distiller of the native spirit, were among the places visited by Decker.

"One of the most frequently asked questions I get since I've returned is, 'Have you returned to normal yet?' My answer to that is 'I hope not.' A program like this changes a person permanently," Decker said.

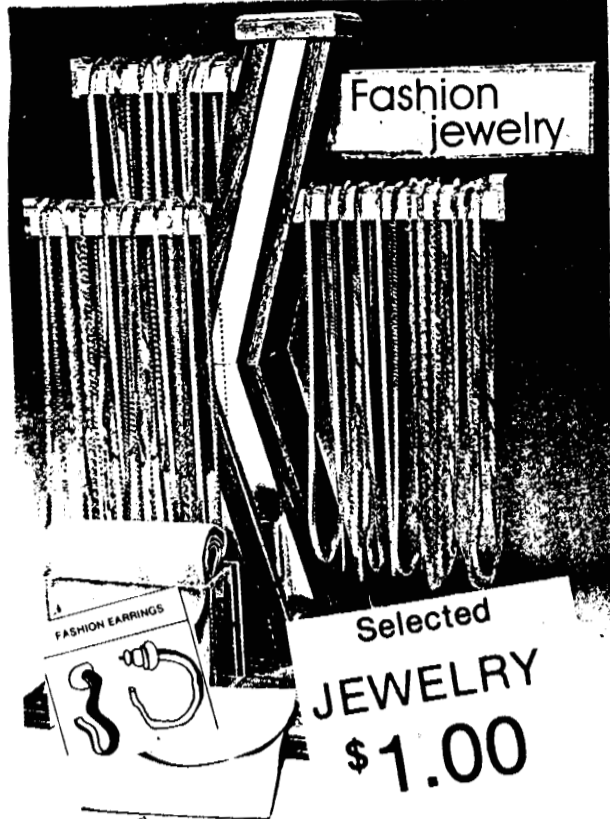

DAVE DECKER, Cass City, had the opportunity to wear this kilt of the Stewart family. Kilts cost up to $250 and are only worn on ceremonial occasions. Draped on the front of the kilt is a sporran, which functions as a purse.

Birthdays were no big deal in the past

Birthdays have changed over the years, says Verna McConnell, Cass City, who celebrated her 80th birthday Thursday.

"We didn't use to have a big event or anything. Just having the family around is good enough," McConnell said.

A big event, though, is what McConnell was in store for Thursday. Sixteen of McConnell's friends — also members of the Cass City Retired Persons group — gathered under the Lions Pavilion in Cass City Park to celebrate number 80. "I was surprised. This is the best birthday. The oldest is the best, I guess," McConnell said while cutting into her birthday cake.

McConnell said her sister-in-law, Betty Wilhelmi, was the instigator for her first-ever surprise birthday party.

Verna and her husband, Vern, have seven children, 20 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren. The McConnells live at 2977 Dodge Rd., Cass City.

Mud wrestling among Sanilac Fair events

The demolition derby, pulling contests, and a new event, mud wrestling will highlight this year's Sanilac County 4-H Fair in Sandusky.

The fair will run for seven days beginning Sunday with the crowning of the Sanilac County 4-H King and Queen and the Sanilac County Bean Queen at 7 p.m. A gospel sing sponsored by the Sandusky area churches will follow at 7:30 p.m.

A ladies' amateur mud wrestling contest is scheduled to begin July 24 at 7 p.m. at the fair. Contestants will be battling it for $750 in prize money with $400 going to the champion. Each match will consist of three one-minute rounds and be scored according to high school wrestling rules.

Mud wrestlers must be more than 18 years old. Entries will be limited to the first 32 ladies who register and pay the $5 entry fee.

There will be three days of pulling at the fair. Contests featuring "wheelie" pickups, farm and antique tractors, modified and open tractors, along with the pony and horse pulls will be held July 22, 26, and 27.

Grandstand admission for the tractor and pickup pulls is $3 for adults and pre-schoolers admitted free. Admission is free for both the horse and pony pulls. The horse pull is scheduled for July 26 at 2:30 p.m. and the pony pull for 10 a.m. July 27. The tractor and "wheelie" pickup pulls are slated for Monday at 7:30 p.m. and another tractor pull is scheduled for July 26 at 7:30 p.m.

A demolition derby will be the highlight event July 27 at 7:00. The event is sponsored by the Sandusky Lions Club and the 4-H Fair board.

The midway will open Tuesday with ticket specials running throughout the week. Livestock and exhibit judging will begin Monday at 9 a.m.

Gate admission beginning Monday is $1 a person with those under 12 admitted free.

In the early days of baseball, between 1840 and 1850, a fielder put a runner out by hitting him with the ball.

Merryweather extends quilting a step

Even though it was for only eight years, growing up on the Anker family farm in Cass City taught Joyce Merryweather things that will last a lifetime.

Quilting was one of the skills Merryweather, 57, Holly, learned in her childhood years in the early '30s at the 180-acre farm on Cedar Run Road between Gageton and Cass City.

Quilting, not the way Grandma Anker did it, but in Merryweather's own unique way.

"It shows the progression of the generations," said Merryweather, who produces painted quilts.

Merryweather's full-sized quilts are intricately painted montages of themes ranging from Garfield to the Tigers' pennant-winning season. She currently is working on a John Wayne quilt.

Merryweather said each quilt takes about a year to complete. Merryweather says she traces the picture she wants on the square and then meticulously paints it with a ballpoint pen-type apparatus. The paint is especially made for fabric and is machine washable.

When completed, Merryweather does not sell her quilts.

"How do you put a price on tender loving care and the pride you put into it? You can't," she said. Even a $300 offer for her "Love is..." quilt wasn't enough.

Merryweather does sell smaller-sized quilts to earn money for her "original, I don't make another like it" quilts.

Being proud of her work is an understatement for Merryweather, who briefly attended the now demolished Bingham Elementary School, Cass City.

"Not being able to draw and to create something beautiful and useful, and learning something while you do it is so rewarding"

she said.

So what's your best quilt?

"I think they're all the best ones. I may sound like I'm bragging, but I learned long ago that you have to toot your own horn once in a while," said Merryweather, an assistant dietician at a nursing home in Holly.

The Ankers presently in Cass City are Mrs. Irma Anker, Mrs. Frank Anker, Don Anker, Lyle Anker and Geraldine Anker. Merryweather is the daughter of the late Chester O. Lash and Belle (Anker) Lash, the daughter of Agnes and Henry Anker.

Cass City nets $6,000 refund

Cass City will be receiving nearly $6,000 in dividends this year from the Board of Trustees of the Michigan Municipal Worker's Compensation Fund.

The Michigan Municipal League will be returning $4.3 million to its 325 member municipalities with $5,669.70 going to Cass City. Caro will receive $3,920.40 and Sandusky will garner $1,371.70 in 1985.

This is the seventh consecutive year the Fund has distributed dividends to its

PWP meeting scheduled for Friday in Caro

The next meeting for Parents Without Partners will be Friday at the Brentwood, 178 Park Dr., Caro, at 7 p.m.

Tuscola County and surrounding areas are joining together to form a new PWP chapter in the area.

The guest speaker will be a local prosecuting attorney. Officers will be elected at the meeting and family activities will be discussed.

For more information, call Pat at 673-7552.

members. The Fund has returned more than $18 million over the years.

There are 325 municipalities and public agency members of the Fund, which was organized by the Michigan Municipal League in early 1977. Fund members currently are credited with a 40 percent advance premium off 1982 commercial rates for worker's compensation. The Fund members are credited or debited with an approved experience rating formula.

The Fund emphasizes loss control measures designed to reduce the frequency and severity of on-the-job injuries, and annually recognizes municipalities with good safety records.

JOYCE MERRYWEATHER, Holly, proudly displays her "Roar in '84" montage.

THROUGH THE USE of a ballpoint pen-type apparatus, Merryweather captures the look of Tiger skipper Sparky Anderson.
