Schools mull new incentive payment

by Wayne Kamidoi

Five area school districts, including Cass City, are eligible to receive financial rewards as part of a bid by the state to improve student-pupil ratios in kindergarten and first grade.

However, being out-of-formula means being out-of-luck for three area districts when it comes to cashing in on the newly-implemented class size incentive plan.

The incentives are worth up to $10.3 million statewide — more than $60,000 in the area — and districts can begin qualifying in the fall. It is part of the $1.8 billion school aid bill passed by the state legislature in early July.

School districts qualify for the grant if they have a combined average class size of less than 25 students in kindergarten and first grade. They also could qualify by reducing class sizes at least by five percent below 1984-85 levels. If either of the criteria is met, districts can receive $8.35 per pupil based on their total K-12 enrollment.

For example, the Caro School District will garner more than $19,000 next year in state aid because its average class size in kindergarten and first grade is less than 25, Superintendent Paul Dressel said Friday.

The new program will be extended to second and third grade during the 1986-87 and 1987-88 school years. The average Michigan public school classroom in 1983 had 22 pupils. Only Utah (27) and California (24) had higher numbers, according to Tom Farrell, assistant superintendent for public affairs for the Michigan Department of Education.

"K through three are the critical years of educational development. Smaller classes mean more time can be spent individually with students," he said.

About 170 of the state's 570 school districts are left out in the cold, however. Among those are Unionville-Sebewaing, Owendale-Gagetown and Uby — all are out-of-formula school districts and are ineligible to receive the grant. Out-of-formula districts receive very little state aid. They are forced to rely heavily on local property tax revenue.

"(The plan is) highly discriminatory and we're highly opposed," USA Superintendent William Dodge said Friday. USA would have qualified for almost $9,000 because its average class size is less than 25, Dodge said.

"We're out-of-formula, so we don't cash in. We think we should get just as much as the other school districts do," Uby Superintendent Dave Landeryou said.

Kingston Superintendent Jerry Laycock said his School District will apply for the grant, as will Caro. Kingston will generate about $8,000 through the program. To receive the grants, school boards must apply to the state Department of Education by Oct. 1.

Superintendents at Cass

City and Mayville are undecided about applying for the grant. Feasibility will play a factor in their decisions.

"We'd be losing. We won't have any fund equity," Mayville Superintendent Larry Geiger explains. "If we have to spend $16,000 (to hire an additional teacher) to get $11,000. It sounds like a sale my wife goes to." Class sizes average between 25 and 27 at Mayville, Geiger said.

Cass City Superintendent Don Crouse said Tuesday morning "there's not too much question" as to whether his school district will apply. The addition of a kindergarten section should bring the class average below 25, he said.

Another sizeable grant developed last year awards aid to schools providing an "acceptable" curriculum, which includes such areas as fine arts and computer education. USA and Uby meet those curriculum requirements but are not eligible to receive the $28-per-pupil incentive. Caro reaped about $65,000 last year under that program.

By excluding the out-of-formula districts, the Michigan Department of Education is attempting to equalize the financial support school districts receive. Please turn to page 6.

THE ADVANTAGES OF IRRIGATION on the Satchell Farm become apparent when comparing the corn in an irrigated section of the field to a corner where the water does not reach. At right, Bill Satchell examines a stalk of corn over seven feet tall, with two ears already sprouting silk. On right, Bill's son Paul stands in a corner of the field, where the corn is less than three feet tall.

Wheat crop excellent

Corn critical as area dry weather continues

"Dry, dry and dryer," is how Bill Bortel, Cooperative Extension Service Director for Tuscola County, described the current crop conditions throughout the county.

Bortel said the one-quarter to one-half inch rain that has fallen in parts of the county "hardly does the corn any good."

"It will take a half inch to fill the cracks," Bortel said about the dry corn fields. "We need an inch (of rain) for the corn."

The rains that have fallen in the area may not be enough to satisfy the corn's needs, but they have helped the county's dry bean crops. "They're little. They don't need that much water," Bortel said about the dry beans. "Corn, when it is shoulder high, takes so much water." Bortel estimates the ground is losing about one-tenth of an inch of water daily from the moisture required to grow the crop and evaporation from high temperatures. Bortel described the cool temperatures at night, and the heavy dews as a "blessing" for the crops.

One crop that has fared well, despite the dry conditions is the wheat crop. "It turned out really well," Bortel said, adding that yields from the 44,000-acre Tuscola County wheat crop are expected to range from 60 to 75 bushels per acre. He added the dry weather conditions have made for an excellent harvest this year.

Last week, red and white wheat was selling for $2.80 per bushel, 40 cents below last year's price.

The hay crop is also suffering from this year's drought conditions. "The hay (crop) is getting slim and slimmer," Bortel said. "It takes moisture to grow hay."

"The sugar beets are doing respectable. They are holding up better than I thought they would," Bortel added. "They haven't suffered as much as the corn." He expects the beets will be somewhat smaller this year because of the lack of moisture.

SANILAC COUNTY

With the corn crop in Sanilac County at the critical ear development stage, Rex Sieting said it is important the area receives a good rain over the next two weeks.

Sieting, director of the Sanilac County Cooperative Extension Service, said the county is "hurting all over (for rain), but a few pockets are critical." He explained that a six to eight mile wide area, from Sandusky to Peck, has received only .2 inch of rain in the past seven weeks. He added that other areas of the county have been more fortunate. The southeastern part of the county had a one-inch rain last week.

The heavy soils in Sanilac

County, which often cause problems during wet years, are helping farmers this year. "I don't see anything outstanding. Most (crops) are about average," Sieting said.

He added that some corn fields are developing at different stages this year because during the spring planting there was not enough moisture to germinate seeds. Sieting explained that in these fields, while some of the corn was about eight inches

Corl loses foot in auger accident

A Deford man was seriously injured when his foot was severed in a silo auger accident Friday at 7:17 a.m.

According to a report filed by Tuscola County Sheriff's Department Deputy James Jashinske, Michael R. Corl, 26, 1920 Dodge Road, Deford, had his left foot severed above the ankle after he slipped into a silo auger. Corl was working at the Harold L.

Deering farm, 97 S. Crawford Rd., Deford, when the accident happened.

He was taken to Hills and Dales Hospital by the Cass City Ambulance Service. After he was stabilized he was airlifted to the University of Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor. Michael's father, Glen, said his condition is improving. Friends can send cards in care of the hospital.

Farm friends come to aid of accident victim Muntz

When a 20-year-old Cass City man was seriously injured in a grain elevator accident last week, neighbors and friends rolled up their sleeves and pitched in to take care of the family's wheat harvest.

The volunteer workers, driving four combines and a large assortment of trucks and wagons harvested about 90 acres of wheat on a farm owned by Howard and Janet Muntz. Their son, Terry, had his foot severed in a grain auger at the Gagetown Agri Sales Inc. grain elevator July 16 at 8:30 p.m.

Deputy Ron Begeman of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department reported Terry Muntz's foot slipped through a grate covering an elevator auger. The foot was severed between the ankle and the knee. Members from the Gagetown and Elkland Township Fire Departments were called to free him from the auger. An acetylene torch was used to cut the auger apart. After cutting the auger, emergency crew workers took a bearing support out and were able to free Muntz from the auger pit. Dr. June MacRae was called to the scene to assist.

Muntz was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital by the Cass City Ambulance Service then transferred to St. Mary's Hospital, Saginaw. He was later airlifted to the University of Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor.

A hospital spokesman said Terry Muntz is listed in fair condition as of Monday.

Farmers volunteering to help the Muntz family harvest their wheat crop were: Jack Laurie, Pat Goslin, Ben Hobart, Brad Goslin, John Doerr, Dave Milligan, Al Seurynck, Dick Ziehm, Keith Goslin, Wayne Dillon, Bob Dunn, Ken and Red Osentoski, Maurice Winchester, Paul Burdon, Craig Enderle, Mike Powell, John Kroop, and the Gagetown Agri Sales elevator. Casey Patterson, Terry's grandfather, also helped.

"If It Fitz..."

A grandfather's perspective

By Jim Fitzgerald

Because of what happened to Michele, I am remembering how sweet it was to be 15 years old, with school out for the summer, with my first real job, and finally old enough to drive the family car.

Michele is my oldest grandchild. Last Saturday, while riding her bike near her home in Frankenmuth, she was hit by a car.

The big advantage of being a grandparent is you're usually not around when something bad happens to your grandchildren. You hear about it later, over the phone, often after the worst part is over and you can be immediately assured no one is going to die.

Generally, a grandparent doesn't have to receive that first terrifying call saying a child you love has been injured; the call that puts the sudden feeling of raw fear in your stomach, somehow more tangible and frightening than the worst physical blow. Grandparents usually aren't required to rush to the hospital and wait in anguish for the first report from a doctor.

Parents have to do all that awful stuff, and it's a good thing. I am no longer up to the job. I can remember doing it when I was a young parent. We lived right across the street from the hospital and some years, I'll swear, my kids went there more often than they went to the bathroom. But I can't remember how I stood the strain; how I kept from crumbling under the certain knowledge that my family enjoyed no special dispensation from God and it was entirely possible that someday I could be called to the emergency room for something a lot less funny than a two-year-old son falling headfirst into a can of house paint.

I think most 30-year-old parents are simply too young to know better; too far removed from their own mortality to worry about anything fatal happening to their children. Grandparents have been around long enough to know no one is safe; long enough to know life is unfair; otherwise there would be some way to transplant broken bones from a granddaughter to her grandfather.

My summer plans didn't call for much more than sitting around and reading a lot, and writing a little, and watching some baseball. But Michele's summer was going to be something special. She had her first job, in an ice cream store, and she was going to earn money to spend on cool clothes. She was going to complete driver's training and, on her 16th birthday in August, take legal control of her mother's car.

But now everything has been put on hold. Michele's left wrist was badly broken when the car knocked her loose from her bike. She will be wearing a cast for many weeks, and won't be able to do all the great things she wants to do.

It could be much worse, and we should be grateful. That's what grandparents and parents always say when a kid is hurt or sick. I can't even write how much worse it might have been for my beautiful Michele. But I also can't help realizing she must think this summer has turned out plenty rotten enough for her.

I was her age the summer I got my first job — also at a soda fountain. And that was the summer I was first allowed to drive my father's 1940 Plymouth. It was a marvelous time and I would have been devastated by an injury that put me on the bench.

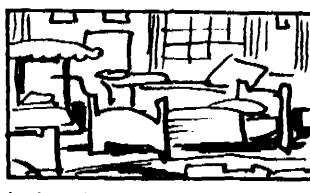

But it would be OK this summer. I'm too old to hear the first report on my granddaughter's traffic accident, but just the right age to sit around and do nothing for two months. I never wanted to wear my baby son's paint can for him, but I want to wear Michele's cast for her. Grandfathers should be allowed to do things like that.

Like an overprotective parent, Big Brother is smothering us with too much kindness, trying to exert too much control over our lives.

In its attempt to protect our rights, the rights of others are being trampled.

They are being trampled by skyrocketing insurance costs that have forced bars, doctors and others dealing with the public to curtail or quit business.

In recent weeks, stories telling about a riding stable and three bars forced to the sidelines by insurance costs have dotted the pages of the media.

In Traverse City, a popular bar stopped selling liquor because insurance for $2 million worth of liability would have cost $180,000 per year.

Another told about nearly 50 percent of doctors quitting delivery of babies because of liability costs. All symptoms of a growing malady.

There's no doubt that individuals need protection in our courts against firms or persons from whom they suffer injury through negligence or indifference.

The water gets murky when you try to determine when this right stops.

Certainly if a bar sells liquor to a minor or booze that is contaminated or has a building that is kept in condition that makes an accident probable, it should be made to pay.

And what about the guy that gets smashed and goes out and kills someone with his car? Doesn't the victim deserve some protection and isn't that what the Dram Shop Act is all about?

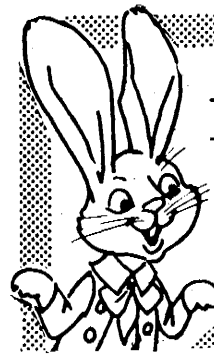

That was what it was meant to do. The trouble is there are many, many drinkers who appear perfectly sober and can't pass a blood test.

We need to go back to placing the responsibility where it belongs. On the drinker. Do as they do in many European countries. Drunk drivers go to jail. Period. The designated non-drinking driver is a fact of life there.

We need to make it costly for anyone starting frivolous suits. Expensive for the lawyers and their clients.

When damage suits become so frequent and so costly that companies turn down insurance for officers of corporations because of implied liability, an overhaul of the system is plainly necessary.

We all need protection under the law, but lately it also seems sure that we need protection from it.

(And anyone else can get to help.)

Susie has returned home and with luck at home she will stay.

Susie is the pet lioness that was raised from a cub by the Marvin Winters. Because of complications involving liability, the Winters gave her away to a "good home" in the Shrine Circus.

That proved to be in error and she was sold instead to an individual who had trouble making her mind.

Marvin Winter heard about it and went to the new owner, who was amazed when Susie did all the tricks taught her and immediately recognized Winter after about seven months.

Anyway, Susie is back home now and the Winters say they will do everything they can to keep her.

It took several years, but I had it down pat. How to spell D-O-U-G-R-E-Z-E-S-A-K. And now he ups and leaves.

I'm sorry about that and really sorry that he's leaving the system. Doug, the track coach, was enthusiastic and hard working, although maybe a little over sensitive.

It was Doug, the teacher of chemistry and physics, that will be hard to replace. He took those tough academic courses and built up class interest and enrollment by extra effort and work far beyond the call of his contract.

Ah, the computer age. I had to use information service for the first time in a while to get the number of Ferris State College.

May I help you? asked the operator. Sure, and I told her the number needed.

Click went a button and a record came on with the proper number. I'll repeat that just like the recording did the number. By some wizardry of electronics a button is pushed and you end up talking to a recording. Weird.

For awhile when Albee Hardware closed, rumors were rampant that Perry Drug was going to open in the Albee building.

That proved to be false. But, confided a realtor, Perry Drug is opening in Caro in the building vacated by another hardware.

Who's the luckiest fellow in Cass City? After this week many would point to Phil Robinson. The genial Phil picked five of the six numbers correct in last week's Lotto drawing and collected $2,267.

It will come in handy for a trip we have planned to the west coast, he says.

Just as we were going to press Tuesday morning we learned that Jim "Doc" Johnson of Cass City is in a position to challenge the Robinson claim. He also correctly picked five of the six numbers in the Lotto.

Yale Rubber forced to pump pollutants

A court order asking Yale Rubber Manufacturing Co., Sandusky, to pump groundwater from wells at the plant site to halt the flow of pollutants toward Sandusky's municipal wells was approved Friday by Sanilac County Judge Allen Keyes, a court official said.

A hearing for a preliminary injunction was scheduled for Tuesday, but the City of Sandusky and Yale Rubber came to a mutual agreement Friday afternoon. With the agreement, Tuesday's hearing was waived, the official said.

Attorney General Frank Kelley filed a five-count lawsuit last week against Yale Rubber after three of Sandusky's five wells were found to be contaminated by volatile organic chemicals emanating from the plant.

Low levels of toxic chemicals were discovered in late June causing the shutdown of three wells. The Department of Public Health said levels are still considered low and the water is safe for drinking.

Ozone layer

The Earth's protective ozone layer, which absorbs high levels of radiation from the sun, is at serious risk from worldwide chemical use, reports International Wildlife magazine. While aerosol spray-can use of chlorofluorocarbons has declined by 82 percent over the past decade, their use as refrigerants, insulating material and solvents has increased by more than 70 percent. The EPA estimates a 20 percent depletion of the ozone layer, possible in less than 40 years, would result in 3.7 million more cases of skin cancer each year in the U.S.

Rev. Cliff Jordan new minister at Missionary Church

Rev. Cliff Jordan, the new pastor of Missionary Church, Cass City, isn't about to make any big changes just yet.

"The first year they can react to me instead of me changing everything and confusing everybody," Jordan said.

No stranger to the Thumb area, Jordan replaced Rev. Robert Taylor, who departed to Illinois. Jordan was the pastor at the Missionary Church in Deckerville for 12 years.

"We were good friends. I'm hoping to build on what he did."

Jordan, who was born and raised in Flint, has been married for 18 years. He and his wife, Linda, have three children. With the church comes a new school for Ann, 17, Tim 13, and Deb, 10.

"She's excited, but dreading it at the same time," Jordan said of Ann, who will be a senior at Cass City High School in the fall.

Jordan said there will be about 70 or 80 persons attending service in Cass City as opposed to about 50 in Deckerville.

"The more people that are there, the more excited I am about it," said the 43-year-old Jordan.

The move to Cass City was a last-minute decision for Jordan. He said he enjoyed his years in Deckerville, but he comes to his new home with the same intentions he had when he moved to Deckerville.

"When we went there, we thought we'd die or retire there. We have the same intentions here," he said.

His first service was July 14 and Jordan said the toughest part was not knowing anyone's name. But luckily, he said, "they were a patient group."

Jordan, Koepfgen Road, Cass City, graduated from Bethel College in Mishawaka, Ind., with a bachelor of arts degree in biblical literature.

HEALTH TIPS

Physical changes that indicate pregnancy

Some women say that they just know. Other women don't even suspect anything until they have missed several menstrual periods. For most women, however, there are certain physical changes that do signal pregnancy.

The most obvious sign of pregnancy is a missed menstrual period. If you miss a period and have not been using contraception or using it irregularly, it's a good idea to see your doctor for a pregnancy test and examination. Other common symptoms can be breast tenderness and swelling, fatigue, slight weight gain, an increased need to urinate, and an enlarging abdomen. It's not unheard of to have light spotting or bleeding around the time of your period. So if you think you had a menstrual period but still have signs of pregnancy, make a doctor's appointment.

It's a good idea to wait at least two weeks after your missed menstrual period before having a pregnancy urine test. By that time, if you are pregnant your body will be producing a hormone—human chorionic gonadotropin or HCG—which is measured by both the home pregnancy tests and tests performed in the doctor's office. Although the home pregnancy tests are fairly reliable, they are sensitive to heat and vibration, and there is a slight chance of the test reading "not pregnant" when you are.

Your doctor, in addition to performing a blood or urine test, also will do a pelvic examination. If a woman is pregnant, the opening to her uterus will be slightly bluish and there will be some softening of the uterus.

If you are pregnant, your expected due date will be figured from the date of your last menstrual period since the date of conception is often unknown. Taking the date of your last menstrual period, count back three months then add seven days. If your last menstrual period began Jan. 1, your estimated due date would be Oct. 8. Of course, any due date is just a good estimate by your doctor, as only a small number of women actually have their baby on that day.

Although your pregnancy isn't apparent to anyone in the early stages and may not seem real to you, it's important to know definitely if you are pregnant. The earlier you know, the earlier you can begin prenatal care and begin to take care of yourself, especially by avoiding alcohol, smoking, and unprescribed drugs that aren't good for you or your baby.

Moose return

Here's a moose of a story. There's evidence the charmingly homely creature early French explorers dubbed "l'original" has returned for good in the Northeast, says National Wildlife magazine. Yes! More than 25,000 moose now live in Maine. That's a ten-fold increase over the past 50 years.

New books at the library

THE FOURTH DEADLY SIN by Lawrence Sanders (fiction). Edward X. Delaney, former chief of detectives in New York City, comes out of retirement for the third time in order to solve the murder of wealthy psychiatrist Simon Ellerbee, who was done in with a ballpeen hammer. The victim's widow supplies Delaney with a list of six of her husband's patients — four men and two women — all of whom exhibit a potential for violence. Delaney tracks down the suspects but isn't fooled in the end by the sweetness of Ellerbee's wife, especially after he discovers that she is aware of the late doctor's sleazy affair with one of his patients.

CARPENTER'S GOTHIC by William Gaddis (fiction). Sorely beset Liz bravely bears the heavy burden of her husband, hard drinking, foul-mouthed, brutal Paul Booth, a badly damaged Vietnam veteran, disabled more in spirit than in body. A scamp, bagman, killer obsessed with the jackpot, he figures the percentages even while making love. Up to the eyeballs in debt (Liz is an heiress whose estate is hopelessly knotted in litigation), the driven Paul fashions himself into a "media consultant" to the electronic evangelist Reverend Ude and his crusading Voice of Salvation radio station and his visions of a satellite TV empire for converting the world. Paul is also involved in African mining schemes mired in moral turpitude. In the midst of this turmoil and confusion, into Liz's life drifts the geologist McCandless who owns the "carpenter's gothic" Hudson River house she rents. Liz is ripe, as fine as Paul is coarse, forlorn, ill-used, long suffering; she enters into an affair.

WOMEN'S RITES by Beverly Byrne (fiction). This story follows the paths taken by two high school girls from a working class suburb of Boston. After graduation, Maria Trapetti fulfills a vow made when she was 13 and enters a convent, aided by her youthful parish priest, Father DiAnni. Her best friend, Barbie Korman, is being groomed for a modeling career but on the eve of success she succumbs to the fast talk of a cheeky college athlete. Their subsequent marriage fails quite dramatically, and Barbie, though Jewish, turns to Father DiAnni for comfort, conceiving a child whose paternity she keeps secret. Moving to Manhattan, Barbie meets Philocles Williams, an attractive, brooding Mafia lawyer. Maria, meanwhile, leaves the church to write a bestseller based on the journal of an 18th century Spanish priest banished to the island of Lanzarote. The island is also at the root of mystical experiences revealed to Barbie over the years, and its pervasive influence draws the two women and the now embittered fallen priest into a healing vortex that washes away all pain and doubt.

"If It Fitz..."

A grandfather's perspective

By Jim Fitzgerald

Because of what happened to Michele, I am remembering how sweet it was to be 15 years old, with school out for the summer, with my first real job, and finally old enough to drive the family car.

Michele is my oldest grandchild. Last Saturday, while riding her bike near her home in Frankenmuth, she was hit by a car.

The big advantage of being a grandparent is you're usually not around when something bad happens to your grandchildren. You hear about it later, over the phone, often after the worst part is over and you can be immediately assured no one is going to die.

Generally, a grandparent doesn't have to receive that first terrifying call saying a child you love has been injured; the call that puts the sudden feeling of raw fear in your stomach, somehow more tangible and frightening than the worst physical blow. Grandparents usually aren't required to rush to the hospital and wait in anguish for the first report from a doctor.

Parents have to do all that awful stuff, and it's a good thing. I am no longer up to the job. I can remember doing it when I was a young parent. We lived right across the street from the hospital and some years, I'll swear, my kids went there more often than they went to the bathroom. But I can't remember how I stood the strain; how I kept from crumbling under the certain knowledge that my family enjoyed no special dispensation from God and it was entirely possible that someday I could be called to the emergency room for something a lot less funny than a two-year-old son falling headfirst into a can of house paint.

I think most 30-year-old parents are simply too young to know better; too far removed from their own mortality to worry about anything fatal happening to their children. Grandparents have been around long enough to know no one is safe; long enough to know life is unfair; otherwise there would be some way to transplant broken bones from a granddaughter to her grandfather.

My summer plans didn't call for much more than sitting around and reading a lot, and writing a little, and watching some baseball. But Michele's summer was going to be something special. She had her first job, in an ice cream store, and she was going to earn money to spend on cool clothes. She was going to complete driver's training and, on her 16th birthday in August, take legal control of her mother's car.

But now everything has been put on hold. Michele's left wrist was badly broken when the car knocked her loose from her bike. She will be wearing a cast for many weeks, and won't be able to do all the great things she wants to do.

It could be much worse, and we should be grateful. That's what grandparents and parents always say when a kid is hurt or sick. I can't even write how much worse it might have been for my beautiful Michele. But I also can't help realizing she must think this summer has turned out plenty rotten enough for her.

I was her age the summer I got my first job — also at a soda fountain. And that was the summer I was first allowed to drive my father's 1940 Plymouth. It was a marvelous time and I would have been devastated by an injury that put me on the bench.

But it would be OK this summer. I'm too old to hear the first report on my granddaughter's traffic accident, but just the right age to sit around and do nothing for two months. I never wanted to wear my baby son's paint can for him, but I want to wear Michele's cast for her. Grandfathers should be allowed to do things like that.

The Haire Net

Like an overprotective parent, Big Brother is smothering us with too much kindness, trying to exert too much control over our lives.

In its attempt to protect our rights, the rights of others are being trampled.

They are being trampled by skyrocketing insurance costs that have forced bars, doctors and others dealing with the public to curtail or quit business.

In recent weeks, stories telling about a riding stable and three bars forced to the sidelines by insurance costs have dotted the pages of the media.

In Traverse City, a popular bar stopped selling liquor because insurance for $2 million worth of liability would have cost $180,000 per year.

Another told about nearly 50 percent of doctors quitting delivery of babies because of liability costs. All symptoms of a growing malady.

There's no doubt that individuals need protection in our courts against firms or persons from whom they suffer injury through negligence or indifference.

The water gets murky when you try to determine when this right stops.

Certainly if a bar sells liquor to a minor or booze that is contaminated or has a building that is kept in condition that makes an accident probable, it should be made to pay.

And what about the guy that gets smashed and goes out and kills someone with his car? Doesn't the victim deserve some protection and isn't that what the Dram Shop Act is all about?

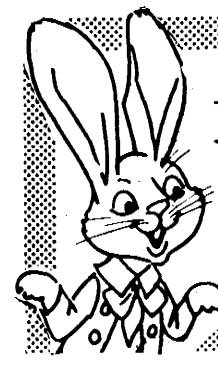

That was what it was meant to do. The trouble is there are many, many drinkers who appear perfectly sober and can't pass a blood test.

We need to go back to placing the responsibility where it belongs. On the drinker. Do as they do in many European countries. Drunk drivers go to jail. Period. The designated non-drinking driver is a fact of life there.

We need to make it costly for anyone starting frivolous suits. Expensive for the lawyers and their clients.

When damage suits become so frequent and so costly that companies turn down insurance for officers of corporations because of implied liability, an overhaul of the system is plainly necessary.

We all need protection under the law, but lately it also seems sure that we need protection from it.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire
(And anyone else he can get to help.)

Susie has returned home and with luck at home she will stay.

Susie is the pet lioness that was raised from a cub by the Marvin Winters. Because of complications involving liability, the Winters gave her away to a "good home" in the Shrine Circus.

That proved to be in error and she was sold instead to an individual who had trouble making her mind.

Marvin Winter heard about it and went to the new owner, who was amazed when Susie did all the tricks taught her and immediately recognized Winter after about seven months.

Anyway, Susie is back home now and the Winters say they will do everything they can to keep her.

It took several years, but I had it down pat. How to spell D-O-U-G-R-E-Z-E-S-Z-A-K. And now he ups and leaves.

I'm sorry about that and really sorry that he's leaving the system. Doug, the track coach, was enthusiastic and hard working, although maybe a little over sensitive.

It was Doug, the teacher of chemistry and physics, that will be hard to replace. He took those tough academic courses and built up class interest and enrollment by extra effort and work far beyond the call of his contract.

Ah, the computer age. I had to use information service for the first time in a while to get the number of Ferris State College.

May I help you? asked the operator. Sure, and I told her the number needed.

Click went a button and a record came on with the proper number. I'll repeat that just like the recording did the number. By some wizardry of electronics a button is pushed and you end up talking to a recording. Weird.

For awhile when Albee Hardware closed, rumors were rampant that Perry Drug was going to open in the Albee building.

That proved to be false. But, confided a realtor, Perry Drug is opening in Caro in the building vacated by another hardware.

Who's the luckiest fellow in Cass City? After this week many would point to Phil Robinson. The genial Phil picked five of the six numbers correct in last week's Lotto drawing and collected $2,267.

It will come in handy for a trip we have planned to the west coast, he says.

Just as we were going to press Tuesday morning we learned that Jim "Doc" Johnson of Cass City is in a position to challenge the Robinson claim. He also correctly picked five of the six numbers in the Lotto.

Yale Rubber forced to pump pollutants

A court order asking Yale Rubber Manufacturing Co., Sandusky, to pump groundwater from wells at the plant site to halt the flow of pollutants toward Sandusky's municipal wells was approved Friday by Sanilac County Judge Allen Keyes, a court official said.

A hearing for a preliminary injunction was scheduled for Tuesday, but the City of Sandusky and Yale Rubber came to a mutual agreement Friday afternoon. With the agreement, Tuesday's hearing was waived, the official said.

Attorney General Frank Kelley filed a five-count lawsuit last week against Yale Rubber after three of Sandusky's five wells were found to be contaminated by volatile organic chemicals emanating from the plant.

Low levels of toxic chemicals were discovered in late June causing the shutdown of three wells. The Department of Public Health said levels are still considered low and the water is safe for drinking.

Flees from Cuba in 1968

Perseverance pays for new doctor

by Wayne Kamidoi

Beatriz Moreyra and her two teenage daughters went shopping together for almost six years. The purpose was the same; the destination was the same.

It was not a spending spree at the local K-Mart for back-to-school clothing.

The mother and her daughters went shopping for freedom at the Jose Marti International Airport in Havana, Cuba. Time and again they were denied what they were trying to purchase — refuge from communist Cuba and a chance to be reunited with Ernesto, husband/father, who had to flee the country in 1962 for fear of his life.

Perseverance paid off for the Moreyras as on July 22, 1968, their flight to freedom was reality.

Seventeen years later, one of the teenage girls, who could not speak a syllable of English and knew nothing of America, is not doing too badly for herself these days. Beatriz Martin, M.D., has recently opened an office practicing in internal medicine located at 4672 Hill St., Cass City.

Dr. Martin earned her B.S. degree at the University of Miami, where she graduated cum laude and earned her M.D. at Michigan State University. Martin is the only internist in Cass City. Internal medicine is the diagnosis and treatment of adult diseases, ranging from headaches to undetected cancer, she said.

The road to freedom was not an easy one for Martin. Because of the defection of her father, who was an aviator for a commercial airline, the Moreyras were blacklisted by the Cuban government. Anyone in the Ernesto Moreyra family was not allowed to leave the country.

"To punish him for what he did, they punished the family. We were stranded there," explained Martin, who said their family went to the airport about every six months "just to try."

With only five pieces of clothing each, they decided that sweltering July day in '68 was the time "just to try" to shop for freedom. Martin remembers "the day I'll never forget" very vividly.

"We finally got out through a mistake. There was a new guy in the airport checking the passports, and he didn't know the procedures. He didn't check our name," she said.

"Until we landed somewhere out of Cuba we could have still been sent back. We were scared. We just kept praying no one would find out. My mother told us to sit still and be ignored," Martin said referring to the atmosphere of the flight headed for Mexico City. Several Cuban diplomats of the Communist Party were on board the same plane to make matters even more intense.

"When we landed, my mother pushed us out of the plane and we started running. It was a miracle. We were free," Martin said. "I learned you should never give up, that's the bottom line."

After four months in Mexico City, Martin moved to Miami to reunite with her father.

Language proved to be no barrier for Martin, who in less than a year would be the top 11th grade English student at Miami Beach High School.

"I sat down for hours with the dictionary, watching television, and sitting and listening to people talk on the bus. I bought a paperback novel and I underlined all the words I didn't know and looked them up," said Martin, whose vocabulary and voice articulation are excellent.

She and her Cuban-born husband, Raul, have adapted to being an "American" couple, but the Martins still retain some of the customs of their homeland.

"We do follow some of our traditional customs, but we've identified with the American culture. It's a combination of both, and it's very interesting," Martin said.

The Martins live at 6311 Virginia St., Cass City.

The small-town living in Cass City is something a little new to Martin. Her domain has either been the urban hustle and bustle of Miami or the college-town hoopla of East Lansing.

"I didn't know anything about Cass City," said Martin, who also admitted not knowing where Michigan was prior to being accepted to MSU's medical school. "My first impression when I drove through the city was very good, and it still is."

CASS CITY'S NEWEST DOCTOR Beatriz Martin is all smiles as she looks forward to practicing her profession, internal medicine, in her new hometown.

Suspects in drug theft being sought

Huron County Sheriff's Department deputies are searching for information about two men wanted for questioning in connection with a break-in of the Wright Pharmacy, Sebewaing.

According to Det. Sgt. Dave Neuendorf, the pharmacy was broken into Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. An undetermined amount of valium, liquid morphine, Demerol and Talwin, all prescription drugs, were taken during the break-in. The thieves gained entry into the building by prying open double doors, then prying open the pharmacy door.

Neuendorf is searching for two men, a 20 to 25-year old white male and a black male in his late 20's. According to the report, these two men purchased a pry bar and long handled screwdriver from a local hardware store, then went into the pharmacy later that day to purchase some items. Blue paint from pry marks on the door matches the paint on the pry bar they purchased.

The two men wanted for questioning were seen driving a late model silver-gray Z-28 Camaro.

The driver of the vehicle, the white male, is described as 6 foot tall, 175 pounds with light brown hair. He has a subtle southern accent, and was dressed in a pullover shirt and jeans. The passenger, a black male with light complexion is 5'-7" tall and flabby.

Store clerks described both men as very friendly when they purchased the items.

Det. Sgt. Neuendorf feels the men are not from the area, and local pharmacy employees should be on the lookout for anyone fitting the description.

To report information on the suspects, contact the Huron County Sheriff's Department at 269-6421.

THE ZONTA CLUB of Cass City honored four charter members during a luncheon at Charmont, Cass City, July 16.

The honored guests were presented with a life membership card and a yellow rose.

Field Day looks at progress

An historical look at 30 years of progress in agriculture is a highlight of the Dry Bean and Sugar

Beet Field Day Aug. 20 at the Saginaw Valley Research Farm.

Field day activities include tours of five research sites, which begin at 1:30 p.m., as well as the historical portrayal. The program will be repeated at 6:30 p.m.

Research being conducted at the farm includes dry bean and sugar beet variety development, fertilizer trials, tillage studies and soybean culture.

The 30 years of agricultural progress will be illustrated by poster displays on dry bean and sugar beet culture, by a variety of machinery displays of new and old equipment, and by a series of variety plots that will compare old with new varieties of dry beans and sugar beets.

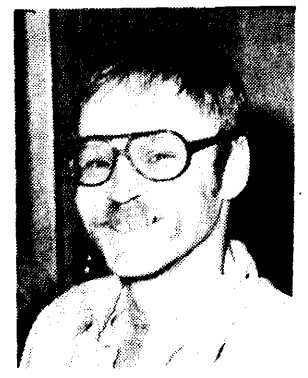

The field day is sponsored by the Michigan State University Agricultural Experiment Station and the Cooperative Extension Service in conjunction with the Michigan dry bean and sugar beet industries.

The research farm is located one mile east of M-52 on Swan Creek Road, which is between St. Charles and M-46.

Details of the field day may be obtained by writing to Donald Christenson at the Department of Crop and Soil Sciences, MSU, East Lansing, MI 48824.

McLeody Days

By Bill McLeod

Electronic communications became commonplace at the McLeod household last week when Diane brought home several talking books for our son Andrew. The talking books, which probably aren't new, have a cassette tape that reads the story to him.

At the sound of the beep, Andrew turns the page, and is able to read (well, look at the pictures) along with the cassette. Quite to my surprise, at the end of the story Andy is usually on the last page of the book.

I guess the talking books are a better source of entertainment than most television programs, but I am not thrilled about having a stranger read my son a story. So far they have only been used sparingly, and never at bed time. Diane or I reserve the rights of reading him the last story of the day.

The only problem is Andy seems to like the talking books better. I hope it is only the novelty of something new. I must admit, the guy does have a better reading voice than I.

The talking book does lack the personal touch though. Whenever I read a bedtime story, I always throw in a few yawns, and take my glasses off to rub my eyes, just to set the bedtime mood. Of course there is no substitute for a good-night kiss and hug, and the book can't get him a glass of water, or retrieve a Care-Bear that fell to the floor.

It looks like my job as a parent is still safe.

The books are proving to be invaluable on a long car drive, when entertaining a two-year-old becomes an impossible job. Because Diane and I wear seat belts, and Andy is strapped into a car seat behind us, reading a story, or even turning around to pick up a toy that has slipped from his grasp is a difficult task in our economy car.

Two other gifts that we bought Andy this summer reflect back to a time when I was a child, an Erector Set, and Lincoln Logs. He's not old enough for the toys that were favorites of mine while growing up, but we found them at a garage sale, and another good deal like that may not come along again.

I feel a lot more comfortable with the talking book, knowing that in a few years Andy will be able to play with toys that will spur his imagination and creativity.

Mount St. Helens

Life is slowly returning to Mount St. Helens. According to Ranger Rick magazine, scientists have found tiny "pockets of life" that had been sheltered from the hot ash and gases by rocks and fallen trees. These "pockets" provided a safe haven for many small animals and plants which have begun to grow in number again.

Cass City cops league title

With a record of 11 and 3, a team of 14-year-old boys from Cass City took first place honors in Thumb area Pony League competition this summer.

Coach Rev. Harry Capps explained that this season they played teams from Frankenthum, Unionville, Reese, Sebawaing, Mayville, Pigeon and another team from Cass City.

Rev. Capps said they won the first game of the playoffs, held July 12 in Unionville. The next day they played four games in 90-degree heat, only to lose the final game to a team from Sebawaing 7-4.

Rev. Capps added that by the end of the final game, the players were suffering from playing four games in one day, and from the heat. One of the regular pitchers, Mike Randall developed a sore arm and pitched for only one inning. He was replaced by Jurgen Roth, who pitched for the first time in the season.

Other pitchers used during the five-game playoff tournament were: Jeff Krol, Brent Beecher, Eric Erickson and Paul Tuckey.

Your neighbor says

Fun, food and bargains galore at sidewalk sales

The Cass City Sidewalk Sales with all the fun, the food and the bargains was another success, according to Jim Wilson, Cass City.

"It brings a lot of people out and allows them to mingle in the streets and see people you haven't seen for awhile," Wilson said.

"It brings the community together," he said.

The corner of Main and Seeger was the hub of activity Friday afternoon, as hot dog sales at the Girl Scout tent were sizzling. Alongside the wiener tent was a raffle for an all-terrain vehicle sponsored by the VFW Post in Cass City.

"It's been real busy and we've had some very nice people stop by and pick up tickets," Wilson said.

The proceeds from the raffle along with other fundraisers, Wilson said, will be used to construct a VFW hall, three miles south of Cass City.

Wilson, 6674 Severance Rd., Cass City, is a student at Saginaw Valley State College. He said he would like to continue his education at Michigan State or the University of Michigan for a doctorate in psychology.

Folks in record numbers flocked to Cass City Sidewalk Sales last week end, according to merchants participating, who called it the best in history.

HELPING draw residents were various events. The New Laurel and Hardy was one of the attractions. There were plenty of good things to eat. Laura Osantowski, left, enjoys a hot dog bought at the Girl Scout tent. She is the daughter of JoAnn Osantowski, 6673 Severance Rd., Cass City.

SENIOR CITIZENS

Argyle Senior Citizens met Wednesday, July 17. The meeting was conducted by Gladys Kritzman. Happy Birthday was sung to Mildred Hunter and Theresa Grifka.

Bingo was the entertainment. First prize was won by Eleanor Bowers, second prize, Ruth Armstead, third, Mildred Hunter, Mary Ann Konkel, Theresa Grifka and Normaleen Navarro, Pennies, Gladys Kritzman, Eva Laming, Leona Doerr and Marie Seton.

Lunch was served by Irene Rockowski, Doris Quack and Mary Reihl. The next meeting will be Aug. 21 at St. Joseph Catholic Hall, Argyle.

Mr. and Mrs. Voyle Dorman were callers of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kipp and Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Harttel last week.

Dividends up for Chemical Financial

Robert B. Bennett, chairman of Chemical Financial Corporation, reported net income for the second quarter of 1985 of $1,662,000 or $1.31 per share. This represents an increase of 9.8% over net income for the second quarter of 1984 of $1,514,000 and an increase of 7.4% over net income per share of $1.22 for the second quarter of 1984. Chemical Bank, Cass City, is a member bank of this corporation.

Training program offered

Allen Health Care, with its corporate office in Cass City, has announced its plan to train older workers to be trained home companions. "The reasoning behind this new program is two-fold: The first being that persons 55 and over have a significantly higher rate of unemployment and secondly, Allen Health Care has identified a local labor shortage of qualified home companions," says Debra Blank, RN, Director of Nursing.

The classes will be offered at no cost and no federal funds will be used. The classes will be conducted by a registered nurse and topics covered will include vital signs, emotional support for the terminally ill patient, job duties, diets and other relevant areas. Graduates will receive a certificate of completion and should be eligible for employment as a trained companion aide.

For further information call Allen Health Care at (517) 872-4452.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Behr of Argyle, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Palmer and Todd, Mrs. Iris Behr of Sandusky, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Haskin, Millie Fleetwood, Mrs. Bob Moore and Stephanie and Kathy Gibbard were Tuesday evening callers at the Dale Leslie home. Cake and ice cream were served in honor of Ann's 16th birthday.

Mrs. Don Smith and Julie spent Monday overnight with Mr. and Mrs. Gene Czpla of Plymouth. Tuesday they attended orientation at Eastern Michigan University at Ypsilanti for Julie.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold McComb of Detroit were Monday visitors of Mrs. Luella Smith.

Mrs. Jerry Miller was a Tuesday caller of Marie Meredith.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Groombridge were Friday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Voyle Dorman.

Monica Smith and Stephanie Phetteplace were Wednesday guests of Mrs. Don Smith.

The adults of Shabbona United Methodist Church attended the Chesaning Showboat Thursday evening, July 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Voyle Dorman visited Mr. and Mrs. Joe Billot Tuesday.

Donnie Smith spent Friday night and Saturday visiting Kevin Smith.

The Pioneer Group will meet Thursday, July 25, at the Shabbona RLDS Church annex. Potluck dinner will be at noon. Bring a dish to pass and table service.

Mr. and Mrs. Voyle Dorman were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Groombridge.

Miss Marie Meredith, Mrs. Betty Mackowiak, Mrs. Ryerson Putterbaugh and granddaughter, Candice Cherniawski, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Moore and family and Monica Smith attended the Eastern Michigan District reunion, near Lexington last week. Others attended Sunday.

SMITH REUNION

The families of the late Ed and Cassie Smith met at Evergreen town hall Sunday, July 14.

There were 74 present at the potluck dinner at noon. A ball game was held followed by races for the children after which ice cream and cake were served.

Families came from Bad Axe, Bay City, Saginaw, Port Huron, Crosswell, Peck, Vassar, North Branch and locally.

The next reunion will be the second Sunday in July at the same place.

Clarence Smith is president and Helen Bentley, secretary and treasurer.

*****

Mrs. Marion Kritzman McBride of Scottsdale, Ariz., was a Saturday caller of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Hoagg. The UMYF have returned after a trip to Apalachia Service Project.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat McCloskey entertained at a cooperative dinner at their home Sunday. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Vern Geister and Mark, Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Franklin and family and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith. The birthdays of Vern Geister and Dawn and Leigh Franklin were celebrated.

Mrs. Arnold Paolucci of Filion and granddaughter of Bad Axe were Thursday callers of Mrs. Luella Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Loeding.

Gun Club asks why event ignored

Dear Mr. Haire:

The membership of the Cass City Gun Club is perplexed and disappointed regarding your attitude toward our organization. We are a non-profit, family oriented club. When we have an activity planned, such as the Muzzleloading Rendezvous held during the week end of July 6 and 7, you refuse to cover the event in your paper. We had coverage in the Bay City Times and the Huron Daily Tribune, papers that are many miles away from Cass City.

It is hard to understand why the local hometown newspaper refuses to cover events that occur very near Cass City. Is the reason for this an anti-gun position on your part, or is it because you feel that Cass City Gun Club events do not merit coverage in your paper for another reason we have yet to define. Or, perhaps it is because your paper is too crowded with events much more important as to leave no room for coverage.

The Cass City Gun Club is a civic minded organization. We donate one breakfast per year to the Jaycees and the Lions Club for their fundraising. We also donate our clubhouse, facilities, and grounds to the 4-H Livestock and Jr. Wranglers. In addition our club members have been teaching Hunter Safety for thirteen years and over 500 young people have been taught the course during those years. Further, Cass City area softball teams use our softball facility for practice when space is not available in town, and the public makes use of our rifle range, at no charge. Lastly, the public will be welcome to use our archery range, under supervision, which will be completed in the near future.

We are proud of our club, are working hard to better it, and it is difficult to understand why a Cass City organization such as ours is treated in the manner it is by your paper.

Please print this letter, as well as an honest response.

Sincerely,

Cass City Gun Club
Members
Charles McPhail,
president

EDITOR'S NOTE -Ordinarily the Chronicle only comments on letters to the editor when a point needs to be clarified or there is an error in fact. We feel the readers should have the last word. However, since you have asked, we will comply.

The Chronicle's only notification of the Rendezvous was a handbill brought in by a salesperson for an ad that was submitted too late for publication. The handbill said that the event was sponsored by the Tribune.

If the event had been discussed with our editor in advance, a decision regarding the event would have been reached.

Saturday and Sunday events are more difficult to cover as editors and publishers like to have time off on week ends, too. (Sometimes participants furnish information and pictures to help out. The girls' softball picture in this issue was received from a manager.)

Although it is true that I am anti-handguns in homes and for restrictions on sale of all weapons without a waiting period and permit, it in no way has anything to do with news coverage. Reader interest is the determining factor for claiming available space in the paper.

Finally, the Chronicle applauds the Gun Club for its civic work and hopes that better communication in the future will result in mutual benefit to the Gun Club and the paper.

TBA outlines position on insurance

Dear Mr. Crouse:

As you are no doubt aware, the Michigan Education Special Services Association (M.E.S.S.A.) has a new health and hospitalization program which is being underwritten by Blue Cross. While the program is different in some respects from the current Super Med II program, changing programs would save the Board approximately $18,000.00 in the 1985-86 school year alone. The Cass City teachers and the Tri-County Bargaining Association would be willing to agree to switch to the new program if the savings generated could go into educational improvements.

We note with great interest that the Citizen's Advisory Committee recommends that the Superintendent undertake a study through the principals to improve classroom conditions. It is our firm belief that one component of such an improvement must be firm restrictions on class size. We also believe that these conditions will be enhanced by the implementation of the Advisory Committee's recommendations; the addition of certified Physical Education Instructors at the elementary and intermediate level; a certified Librarian at the elementary school level; an elementary Counselor, and Remedial Reading at the intermediate and high school level are worthy of Teacher, Board, Administrative and Community support.

However, these require a long term investment of resources. The monies to be saved from the insurance are clearly short-term. We would, therefore, suggest that the monies be utilized to provide each elementary classroom with appropriate learning equipment to enhance computer skills, and adding computers as a teaching tool at the elementary and intermediate level. Finally, we are aware of the fact that teachers need up-to-date Audio-Visual equipment, classroom furniture, and laboratory equipment.

Please be advised that we are prepared to sign an agreement to change underwriters in the hope that the monies could be used for these short-term investments.

Sincerely,

Sheldon L. Markley,
Executive Director
Tri-County Bargaining
Association

Editor's Note: Although this letter was addressed to the school superintendent, it was submitted to the Chronicle by the writer for publication.

Bicycle stolen from Cass City home

Cass City Police Officer Kenneth Schott reported that a bicycle valued at about $100 was stolen Sunday night from a Cass City home.

According to the report, a Raleigh Racer 20-inch silver bicycle, with a black seat, was stolen from the James A. MacTavish residence, 4280 Leach St., Cass City. The bike was last seen Saturday at 11:30 p.m. It was reported missing Sunday at 2:15 p.m.

Walbro Corp. announces net sales of $19.2 million

L.E. Althaver, president and chief executive officer, Walbro Corporation, reported consolidated net sales of $19,269,000 for the three-month period ended June 30, 1985, compared with $18,466,000 for the same period in 1984. The company posted net earnings of $971,000 compared with earnings of $982,000 for the second quarter of 1984.

On a per-share basis, earnings for the second quarter were $.33 based on an average of 2,943,436 shares outstanding. This compares with per share earnings of $.36 for the second quarter of 1984 based on 2,736,286 shares outstanding. The larger number of shares outstanding during 1985 is the result of a successful public offering of 600,000 shares of Walbro common stock in May 1984. The above information is restated to take into account the two-for-one split of Walbro common stock which occurred May 28, 1985.

For the first six months of 1985, sales totaled $38,437,000 compared with $36,285,000 for the same period in 1984. Earnings for the first six months of 1985 were $1,994,000 compared with $1,725,000 for the same period in 1984.

Per share earnings for the first six months of 1985 were $.68 based on an average of 2,940,657 shares outstanding. This compares with $.68 per share based on an average of 2,536,286 shares outstanding for the first six months of 1984. This data has been restated to take into account the two-for-one split mentioned previously.

In announcing the second quarter results, Althaver noted that year-to-date 1985 sales are up 6 percent from those of last year, while earnings are 16 percent above last year for the first six month period. "With increased business scheduled for the coming automotive model year, we expect the performance of the company in the second half to be even stronger," he added.

Althaver pointed out that sales of throttle bodies for the automotive industry, while strong, will not reach anticipated levels until late in 1985, due to delays by automakers on certain new applications. Shipments of electric fuel pumps for automotive fuel injection applications began increasing in the second quarter and will remain strong with new model introductions in the second half of 1985, Althaver said.

The Walbro executive noted that a softening of consumer sales in the lawn and garden and marine outboard markets has adversely affected sales of the company's lines of small engine carburetors. Delays of some automotive industry projects have reduced sales of Walbro's custom manufactured products. "We anticipate some strengthening of these late in the year," Althaver said.

Dr. Nahernak joins Green dental clinic

Cass City man injured in one-car accident

A 27-year-old Cass City man was treated and released from Hills and Dales General Hospital after he was injured in a one-car accident Sunday at 2:30 a.m. According to the report, Kent L. Childs, 4090 Little Rd., Cass City, was southbound on Crawford Road, near Elmwood Road when his vehicle went into the ditch on the east side of the road.

Tuscola County Sheriff's Department Deputy Patrick Woidan reported Childs told him he swerved to miss a deer, and went into the ditch.

The report states Childs failed to negotiate a jog in the road, and went into the ditch on the west side, drove back across Crawford Road, and went into the ditch on the east side, striking a culvert. Childs was issued a ticket for careless driving.

Deputy James Jashinske reported there were no injuries in a two-car accident July 17 on M-81 near Spence Road.

According to the report, a vehicle driven by Patrick G. Newsham, 27, 600 N. Walnut St., Bay City, collided with a vehicle driven by George L. Bushong Jr. Both vehicles were westbound on M-81, as Bushong, 36, 5722 E. Cass City Rd., Cass City, began making a left turn, he was struck by Newsham, who was attempting to pass. Bushong was towing a 22-foot boat. Bushong told Deputy Jashinske he had his turn signal on. The report states the turn signals were in working order. The accident happened at 8:00 p.m.

Newsham was issued a ticket for improper passing.

AUTO-DEER ACCIDENTS

Deputy Woidan reported a vehicle driven by Jay J. Bismark, 24, 8534 Fifth St., Minden City, struck a deer

Saturday at 6:00 a.m. Deputy Woidan reported Bismark was westbound on M-81, near Crawford Road, when he struck the deer. Bismark was not injured.

Deputy James Compo reported a vehicle driven by Betty J. Kulling, 42, 1371 Spence Rd., Deford, struck a deer July 18 at 8:40 a.m. Kulling was northbound on Cemetery Road, one-half mile north of Shabbona Road, when she struck the deer. She was not injured in the mishap.

Cass City Police Officer Dave McComb reported Charles L. Brown, 23, 4150 Robinson Rd., Cass City, was not injured when a deer ran into the side of his vehicle July 18 at 8:02 p.m.

Brown was westbound on M-81, near Crawford Road, when the accident occurred.

Speakers and tapes stolen from vehicle

Detective Ron Phillips of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department reported that two tape player speakers, a carrying case and 20 tapes were stolen from a vehicle in the Huntsville Trailer Park, Cass City, July 12.

Det. Phillips reported the speakers and tapes, valued at $100, were stolen from a vehicle owned by Michael Groosbeck, 6244 Lake Side Dr., Cass City. The report states the thieves were unable to remove a tape player mounted inside the vehicle.

Bison problems

Like many big animals, bison like to scratch their hides on tree trunks or rocks. It helps keep them clean. This habit proved a problem for 19th century communications across the North American West, says

International Wildlife magazine. Telegraph poles looked just like trees to itchy bison. The shaggy animals scratched, poles and lines went down and the telegraph crews were busy repairing the mess.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

The July meeting of the Cass River Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. Elsie Thompson and Miss Georgia Thompson. Devotions were led by Mrs. Harriett Rayl.

Twenty-two were present Sunday for a reunion of the winter short-course class of 1947 of Michigan State University held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Stilson.

Cass City 9th grader Jon Meininger was named the camp free throw champion at the Grand Valley State College Basketball Camp.

The rain and wind storm which hit Cass City about midnight Sunday wreaked damage all over the upper Thumb. A Detroit Edison spokesman said Tuesday afternoon about 150 customers in the Cass City area were still without power.

TEN YEARS AGO

Mark D. Schwartz, 17, became the first Eagle Scout from Gagetown Troop 589 during special installation ceremonies held Monday night in Gagetown. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Schwartz of Lincoln St.

Fire destroyed a tool shed at the Robert MacAlpine farm north of Cass City, late Thursday afternoon. Fire chief Jim Jezewski said the fire probably started from a spark from the engine of a back hoe inside the shed. Damage was set at $15,000.

Miss Christine Craig of Mt. Pleasant and Ron Decker of Big Rapids spent the week end at the Harold Craig home.

Pam Harris of Cass City displayed her pet, Fred the crayfish, who took top honors as most unusual pet during Saturday's pet contest held at Quaker Maid.

The Tigers kept their perfect league record intact last week, pounding out a 27-15 win over the Cubs in Girls' Little League softball. Pitcher Terri Agar took the win over Cindy Ware.

25 YEARS AGO

Stanley Beach, a graduate of Cass City High School, has been awarded a commission as a chaplain in the U.S. Navy. He is married to the former Ellen Sickler and the couple has a daughter, Laurie.

The annual Doerr family reunion was held Sunday at the Don Doerr farm north of Cass City. Thirty-eight relatives attended.

The Shabbona Methodist Youth Fellowship met Monday evening at the Gene Chapin home with Wanda and Audrey Bader as hostesses.

Coaches of the Little Majors all-star teams that will play at homecoming are Harry Paul, Dr. William Selby and Ken Maharg. Managing the other team will be Elmer Kehoe, Fred Leeson and Jim Mark.

35 YEARS AGO

To better serve the needs of Cass City, the Detroit Edison Co. will, on July 31, open a new customer's office on Main St. Herbert J. Ludlow will be in charge.

The Alger Freiburger family is spending the week at Sand Point, near Caseville.

Rate of population increase in Cass City during the past 10 years is nearly double that of the nation as a whole. Since 1940, Cass City shows almost a 30 percent gain.

At an all-officers joint meeting in the Presbyte-

Retiree group meets at park

Cass City Retired Persons met July 11 at the Lions pavilion in the Cass City Park.

Verna McConnell was honored with a birthday cake and songs.

Rose Worstell gave the table grace and America the Beautiful was sung in unison.

President Marion McClorey called the meeting to order. Minutes of the June meeting were read by Frankie Anker and the treasurer's report was read and accepted.

Mrs. Onalee Heltsley was accepted as a new member.

Election of new officers will be held at the regular meeting Aug. 8.

Edna Simcox, Margaret Beckett and Rose Worstell are in charge of arrangements.

Blood pressure readings will be taken at the Lutheran Fellowship Hall Aug. 8 at 11:30 a.m.

Owen-Gage Club holds picnic

The Owen-Gage Senior Citizens met at the Owendale park for its annual picnic Thursday, July 18, with 56 present including several guests, some old members and Sister Nancy Ayatte IHM, who led prayer before the meal.

A short business meeting was held. A get-well card was sent to Mary Blondell. Door prizes went to Bernadine Good and Les Munro.

The meeting adjourned to Owendale School where nine tables of euchre was played.

The next meeting is a regular business meeting when blood pressure readings will be taken Aug. 1 at St. Agatha's parish hall in Gagetown.

tall, other rows of corn had not yet broken through the top surface.

Sieting said Sanilac County farmers are just beginning the wheat harvest, and he expects yields to be near or just slightly below average. Anticipated averages are 60 to 70 bushels an acre.

HURON COUNTY

"The crops are looking average, we just need some rain," said Huron County Cooperative Extension Service Agent Jim LeCureux.

LeCureux explained that farmers who took off the first cutting hay in early June are getting a good crop of second cutting, because the ground had enough moisture to keep the hay growing. But farmers who took the first cutting off late in June are now looking at a smaller than average second cutting.

"The beets are coming along OK," LeCureux added. "Everything hinges on the rain." He said the beet fields that were replanted after the original crop was destroyed by severe winds in early June need a late fall to fully develop. He explained the replanted fields were planted about one month later than an average crop, and an early frost could damage them.

To help the corn through the critical ear development stage, LeCureux feels the area needs about one inch of rain a week for the next several weeks. He has not heard any reports of insect damage or diseased crops in the county.

He added that the wheat crop looks about average. He estimates about 20 to 25 percent of the wheat had been harvested as of last week.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

The visitor was Ed Sinclair, retired overseas executive of Mobil Corporation.

We were enjoying the grand view from our 6th floor apartment (Penthouse Minus One) when we noticed a rather big oil slick moving in with the tide.

"Smells like diesel," said Ed. We suspected the fuel docks 200 yards up-tide from us, but on inspection, the slick didn't start there. It began abeam of our apartment. And there was a lot of the stuff, diesel fuel, or whatever, and it kept coming and coming. It gave no signs of getting smaller.

Up north you'd suspect someone's fuel oil tank had sprung a leak, but they don't have such things in our area. Neither Ed nor I are worrywarts, but we felt it might be something serious, and at least worth reporting.

Whom to call? I deferred to Ed. Whoever was going to be on the other end would, should be impressed by a mogul from Mobil reporting an oil slick. Just in itself, it ought to make news.

He figured the sheriff's department would be the logical one to call.

The number had been changed from the one in the book. The second number didn't answer. A third number from information finally got something beside a recording.

"Call the Coast Guard," the deputy told Ed.

Ed, as an old sailor and resident on the Intracoastal knew that the Coast Guard had no jurisdiction here.

"Besides," he said, "the only number is for Air and Sea Emergency Rescue."

Then he tried the Delray City Police at my suggestion.

"They won't do anything," Ed said.

He was wrong. They did do something — they told him to call the Bomb Disposal Squad emergency number.

"But we don't have a bomb," argued Ed.

"You should call them, and not us, said the representative of Delray's Finest.

So he called the Bomb Disposal Squad.

"Why are you calling us?" they said.

"I didn't want to," moaned Ed.

"Call the Coast Guard," they said.

Ed hung up.

I had another idea: The Environmental Protection Agency.

The directory gave an 800 number for Federal Information.

"Good, it'll at least be free," said Ed.

This number in turn produced another 800 number if you wanted to report Oil & Chemical Spills — 1-800-424-8802.

Now we were getting somewhere. Although it was Saturday night, there was someone besides the janitor to answer calls — in fact, an efficient and smart woman.

After 15 minutes of questioning Ed, she learned the width and length of the slick (Ed was able to give it both in yards and in meters); a description of the color and consistency; (green and yellow — smells like diesel); its origin ("I don't know"); its location ("just above the Linton bridge"); the city and state; the zip code (33444) and Ed's name and phone number.

Ed offered his blood type (A) and his mother's maiden name as supplemental details.

"I'll include all this in my report," said the Duty Officer of the Oil & Chemical Spills division of the Environmental Protection Agency of the United States government.

"Sounds very thorough and helpful," I said over Ed's shoulder, where I had been eavesdropping on the conversation. "Ask her to stop over and have a look at the slick, and have a drink."

"She's in Washington, D.C."

Next morning the slick was gone. But the report will be there for posterity.

William Myers is a former country editor and financial advisor who lives in Delray Beach.

Monroe goes on 4-H tour of Japan

Darin Monroe, 15, Cass City, will be spending a month with a Japanese family through the Michigan/Japan 4-H/LABO program.

"The exchange involves young people, ages 12 to 18, in a true cross-cultural experience," said Peggy, Kuhr, Tuscola County 4-H Youth Agent. "4-Hers learn to understand and appreciate other people and cultures by participating in the normal day-to-day activities of their host families."

Monroe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Monroe, 3560 Phillips Rd., Cass City, left Saturday for Japan.

During his stay, Monroe will take part in a LABO camp and local LABO parties with Japanese youths. He will also have an opportunity to tour Japan with his host.

The 4-H/LABO exchange, initiated in Michigan in 1974, is coordinated jointly by the LABO International Exchange Foundation and the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service 4-H Youth Program.

Saginaw youth dies in accident

A 16-year-old Saginaw youth was killed Sunday night when a vehicle he was a passenger in left the road and flipped over in a drainage ditch.

Five other passengers in the vehicle were taken to the Bay Medical Center, Bay City, for treatment for lacerations and contusions. One passenger, William B. MacArthur, 11, remains in serious condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

According to the report, filed by Trooper Or Johnson of the Michigan State Police, Caro post, the vehicle, driven by Elizabeth E. MacArthur, 48, 3684 W. Winfield Dr., Saginaw, went off the west edge of Ringle Road in rural Akron Township. As she brought the vehicle back onto the road surface, she lost control, and flipped over into a drainage ditch on the east side of the road. She was treated and released from Bay Medical Center. Matthew Bartels, 16, 4440 W. Winfield Dr., Saginaw, died from injuries suffered in the accident.

Passengers in the vehicle, James B. MacArthur, 39, and Lisa M. MacArthur, 14, both of 3684 W. Winfield Dr., Saginaw, and Robin A. Barris, 14, 4440 W. Winfield Dr., Saginaw, were released from the Bay Medical Center after being treated for lacerations and contusions.

Irrigated crops excel despite dry weather

While all farmers throughout the state are concerned about the current drought conditions, farmers with irrigation systems appear ready to cash in on their investments.

"That's our insurance policy," Bill Satchell said about one of three irrigation systems used to water about 500 acres of the Satchell Farm. "We're basically guaranteed 150 bushels (of corn per acre)," he added.

Satchell and his brother, Mike, operate the 1,200-acre Satchell Farm, located east of Caro. The Satchells, dairy and cash crop farmers, first started irrigating crops seven years ago.

Satchell explained that most of the 500 acres they irrigate are fields that are primarily sand, a soil that dries out quickly. Satchell feels that by irrigating, they are able to increase average yields from about 75 bushels to about 150 bushels per acre.

On the Satchell Farm they are able to draw water from two sources, the Cass River, and an 80-foot deep, eight-inch diameter well.

The water is drawn from the river by a 40-horsepower electric pump that brings water to a second, higher pressure boost pump that forces water to the 660-foot long overhead irrigation systems. Water from the river, and the well, is pumped through about 10,000 feet of underground pipes. These eight-inch diameter underground pipes feed water to several points throughout southern portions of the farm. These points, called pivot points, are located in the center of the fields.

Satchell said a 40-acre square field is the ideal size for their irrigation systems. He explained that because the 660 foot system travels in a circle, they are able to reach all four sides of the field from the pivot point. In square fields, crops planted in the corners do not receive water. These corners serve as a reminder to Satchell of how important the irrigation system is to his crops. In the dry corners the corn was only about two feet tall, while corn in watered areas was over seven foot tall.

Satchell said they are capable of pumping 750 gallons of water per minute through one of the overhead sprinkling systems. Nitrogen is added to the water to fertilize the crop. To put one inch of water on a 40-acre field the system runs for 24 hours.

After a field has been watered, Satchell unhook the 660-foot long overhead system from its pivot point, and transports it to another field. He estimated they will water each corn field five times this year. If the drought continues, he may water until the end of August.

In addition to irrigating corn, Satchell has also irrigated his bean and wheat fields.

This year he averaged about 75 bushels of wheat per acre, five to ten bushels above county-wide averages. The fields were irrigated only one time this summer. Satchell is now preparing to plant a sorghum type crop on the wheat fields. He is planting the sorghum to compensate for a poor second-cutting hay crop. He explained the second-cutting hay, planted on ground that wasn't irrigated, produced only about one-third of a normal yield. The sorghum, which is also used for cattle feed, can be planted this late in the year, only because he is able to provide the needed moisture. "Without water, you're done for the year," Satchell added.

Satchell estimated the total cost of the irrigation system is about $150,000. Electrical costs are estimated at $5 per acre for the season.

He feels the additional yields more than make up for the cost of the system. Last year he harvested 40 bushels to the acre dry beans off irrigated fields. Normal yields throughout the county last year were 18 to 22 bushels per acre.

Another type of irrigation that some farmers are using is called an Irrdrain system, where water is returned to the ground through the same tile used to drain the fields during wet periods.

According to Dale

Truemner of Advanced Drainage Systems, Inc., Bad Axe, in some areas, where the fields are flat, existing tile can be used to irrigate the field.

Sheri "Jake" Elenbaum has been using the Irrdrain system for three years. About 200 acres of his 700-acre beef and cash crop farm are set up for irrigation. He grows sugar beets and corn on the irrigated portion of his farm, located three miles north and one mile west of Owendale.

Water is pumped from three eight-inch diameter wells into the field tile. At the end of the main outlet is a control valve that regulates the height of the water table in the field. Elenbaum said that in low spots in the field, the water table may be only a few inches below the surface, while in high spots, the water table may be 18 inches below the ground. Crops are able to draw the needed moisture from the water reserve.

"Ours is such a low investment," Elenbaum said. "It's so simple to put in."

In some fields Elenbaum has put in additional rows of tile, between existing tile, to provide more water. Last year on irrigated fields he grew corn that averaged 161.7 bushels per acre. The corn, which had a maximum yield potential of 160 bushels per acre, was planted at a rate of 23,000 plants an acre. Because he was able to provide the additional water, this year he planted different, higher yielding types of seeds that allow him to grow 29,000 to 33,000 plants per acre.

Elenbaum's beets averaged 29 tons per acre last year on the irrigated fields. The county average is about 22 tons an acre. He explained that electricity costs to power the pumps is expected to be $15, one-half ton of beets per acre, to provide water for 45 days of irrigation. He has been irrigating daily for the past three weeks, running the pumps 16 hours per day.

Elenbaum added that another advantage of the underground irrigation system, as compared to an overhead sprinkling system, is the sun does not evaporate the water.

Gary Flynn of Advanced Drainage Systems said that on ground that isn't flat, like on Elenbaum's farm, the Irrdrain system can be used, but different zones must be designed for the tile field. He explained a different zone should be used for every one to two foot drop in elevation.

The cost of installing an Irrdrain system is estimated to be about $150 to $200 more per acre than using regular drainage tile. Flynn explained it costs more because additional rows of tile are needed. The cost of installing regular drainage tile ranges from $300 to $450 per acre.

Flynn said that as a rule of thumb, where two rows of tile are used for a regular drainage system, three rows of tile should be used for an Irrdrain system.
