Rains threat to big bean crop

Although Cass City area farmers did not receive as much rain as their counterparts in Genesee County, the rain could become a problem for them.

"We needed the water (this spring), now it is tough to shut it off," said Tuscola County Cooperative Extension Service Director Bill Bortel, about the recent rains that have drenched the area. "We went from extremely dry to extremely wet." Bortel added that if the rains stop there would not be a major problem, as long as the fields dry out.

"We just need good drying conditions to get into the fields and get some beans harvested," he said.

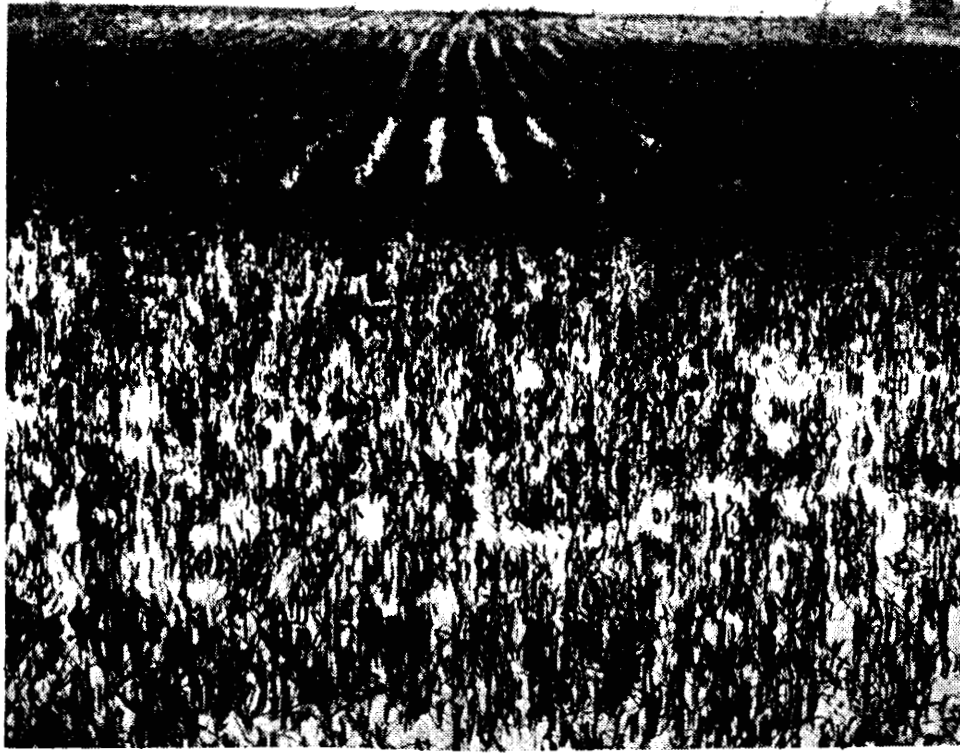

Bortel estimated that farmers will harvest a "very respectable" dry bean crop of about 14 hundred weight (cwt.) an acre. "That's the reason the price is depressed," Bortel said about the large amount of dry beans that are expected to be harvested this year. Last week navy beans were selling for $14 a cwt.

According to the Michigan Agricultural Reporting Service, dry bean production in the state is projected at 5.6 million cwt., up 34 percent over last year's production.

Bortel said Tuscola County farmers had a "good yield" on their wheat crop, with yields 60 to 80 bushels per acre.

Bortel feels the soybean crop will be good this year, "not a bumper crop, but a good crop." Sugar beets throughout the county are looking "real good" this year.

Bortel was not as optimistic about the county's corn crop. He explained it was too dry throughout much of the growing season. He is expecting yields to be down by about 30 bushels per acre from last year.

BEAN FIELDS like this one on M-81, about one mile west of Cass City, are common throughout the area after last week's 3.39 inches of rainfall.

OK one-mill tax for Ugly schools

Voters in the Ugly School District approved one of the two millage increase requests that were presented at a special election Monday.

Ugly School Business Manager Mark Tenbusch explained voters approved a one-mill, four-year increase to be used to repair roofs on school-owned buildings. The increase passed 431 to 409.

Voters rejected a four-year, one-mill increase to purchase new school buses by a vote of 471 to 363. On both ballot issues 11 ballots were spoiled. Tenbusch explained the school will have to delay purchasing new buses. The school has 12 buses with 100,000 or more miles on them.

Also Monday, at a regular school board meeting, trustees agreed to sell the Minden City Village Council for $1. Tenbusch explained the school does not have enough kindergarten students attending the school to justify the cost of operating the five-room building.

Trustees were informed by Jeff Cantor of the Cantor and Cantor CPA firm, West Bloomfield Hills, to watch their spending this year. The district finished the 1984-85 school year with a fund balance of $41,000.

Cantor also commended Tenbusch on the excellent condition of the school's financial records.

Also at the meeting, Kevin O'Connor was sworn in to replace Terry Haupt as a trustee. Haupt has moved to the Sandusky area. O'Connor will complete the last two years of Haupt's term.

The board hired Jeff Ehardt as the new band instructor. Ehardt replaces Wendell Honsinger who is retiring after five years in the district. Eugene Miller was hired as the guidance counselor. He is replacing Hilary Cook who left the school to accept a student services director's position at the new Huron County Skill Center. Cook served the district for the past 17 years.

REMC director explains need for increase in service cost to schools

Although some public school districts in Huron, Tuscola and Sanilac Counties are grumbling about a $1.20 per student increase for use of the Regional Educational Media Center's services, all 34 districts have decided to stay in the program.

REMC Director Donald B. Richards said he was originally seeking a $2.40 per student increase for additional equipment, staff and video cassettes. The school districts decided to split the increase over a two-year period, paying $1.20 more per student each year.

Richards explained last year the center charged districts $2.60 per student. This generated the Cass City based REMC about $78,000 of its total $170,917 budget. With the increase, REMC will receive an additional $36,000 this year.

Even with an increase, Richards said he feels the service is still a bargain to local school districts. He pointed out that last year, schools in the three-county area paid $62,308 for the media material they used. If the districts had rented the material from a commercial business it would have cost the schools $433,940, not including postage and handling charges. The amount is based on a $20 rental fee.

"In addition (to reduced costs for media material), they have realized a tremendous savings in equipment purchasing through our cooperative purchasing program," Richards said. Because all of the 22 REMC districts in the state have banded together to purchase equipment, they are able to buy at a reduced cost. The savings are passed on to local school districts.

Richards pointed out the cost to local school districts amounts to .00087 percent of their total operating budget.

Richards said another loss of revenue to the REMC has been a drop in enrollment in public schools in the three-county area. Since the 1975-76 school year, the student population in Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola Counties has dropped by 7,532 students. At last year's local school funding level of $2.60 per student, REMC lost $19,583 from the enrollment drop. Also during that same time period REMC's funding from federal

O-G, union reach agreement on sick pay contract clause

For almost a year the contract between the Owen-Gage School Board and the teachers in the district has been in limbo because of a disagreement over severance pay for accumulated teacher sick days. The issue was settled Monday night when board members agreed to a compromise reached at an Aug. 28 labor relations board meeting between representatives of the school and the Tri-County Bargaining Association, the union representing the teachers.

In the agreement, the school agreed to pay teachers for one-third of their accumulated sick pay, up to 120 days, based on 1/183 of their current salary. The maximum amount the board has to pay is $4,000.

At an Aug. 12 board meeting the issue of severance pay in the current contract was brought before the board by Owendale resident Don Dorsch. The problem stems from both sides having a master agreement that does not have the same contract language for payment of accumulated sick days.

The union claims their contract states teachers are to be paid for one-third of their accumulated sick days upon death or severance of employment. The board claims their contract states the teachers will be paid for one-third of their accumulated sick days upon death or retirement.

At the August board meeting local union representative Manuel Thies told trustees the difference in the union's and the board's contracts arose because an agreement was reached at the last minute, forcing settlement of the contract to be reached during a telephone conversation.

At Monday night's meeting, trustees went into executive session to discuss the terms of the compromise reached before the Michigan Employment Relations Commission. After the closed session, Owen-Gage Superintendent Ronald Erickson explained to the audience that he, high school principal Wayne Wright and board member Joseph Warack agreed the compromise would be the best way to reach an accord with the union.

Also under the compromise agreement, the board will begin paying severance pay to teachers who leave the school district this year. The agreement is not retroactive to the start of the current four-year contract, which went into effect for the 1983-84 school year. Although a contract has never been ratified by both the board and the union, teachers have been given the pay increases that were agreed on.

"I have covered 20 years of previous contracts... There was no such word," Erickson said, referring to the clause requiring severance pay for teachers. "I understand the teachers would be paid this would be appealed all the way up, and that it would cost the school district a ton of money."

"So under those kind of threats, and even though we do not like to accede to the union, just because they have a free attorney, we did make this compromise," Erickson added.

When Warack made the motion to ratify the contract he explained to the audience his reasons for making the compromise. "My feeling was, our teachers in the past, we have had good teachers that backed us, (they) went on pay freezes... In recognition of this, and as a show of good faith, I think they are deserving of this," Warack said.

The board unanimously approved the contract change.

Thies said he would have the contracts for the board to sign, and asked if the word retirement should be changed to severance, or if the agreement reached at the Employment Relations Commission should be put in the contract. He was told the word should be changed in the contract.

"When I see that contract with the word severance in, so I can check it, then we can take care of our part," Thies said.

"You bring me the three copies I gave you, then I will change that page," Wright told Thies. "Fair enough?"

Thies said he wanted all of the teachers to have a complete copy of their contract. Wright told him to bring in their copies, and he would put in the word severance, and the union could make their own copies.

COUNSELOR RECOMMENDATION

Cass City reunion brings together prisoners of war

"We were doing fine until that guy ran us out of gas," Craig said, pointing to navigator John Thompson.

Forty-one years ago the "Belle of the Brawl," a United States Air Force B-17 bomber, didn't make it back to England from a bombing mission over Berlin.

The large bomber, severely damaged by machine gun fire from German fighter planes, was making a run for Sweden, which meant freedom for the 10-man crew. After flying across much of Germany with only one of its four engines still running, the "Belle" was losing altitude.

With the Baltic Sea in sight, and the freedom of Sweden on the other side, it became apparent to the crew that "Belle" wouldn't make it across the sea. The crew, including Cass City resident Robert Speirs, made the decision to "bail out."

Also under the compromise agreement, the

All 10 men parachuted to safety, but they were soon captured by German troops. For these 10 men, their fighting part of the war was over.

This last week end, for the seventh time since they were liberated from their German captors, the men of the "Belle" met for a reunion. This time the reunion was held at Speirs' residence, Akron Road, Cass City.

Speirs said that since the war he kept in contact with Gerry Apple, a waist gunner from Ohio. In 1979, Speirs became interested in having a reunion with the Belle's crew. He had read an article in the Bay City Times seeking members of the 94th Bomb Group to establish a Memorial Association. Through the association's membership list, some of the Belle's crew members were found, including bombardier William Courtright, the mayor of Smithfield, Ohio. Courtright went to work to find pilot Jerry Craig. Courtright knew Craig came from California, but he was unable to find the pilot through the association.

Courtright decided to use another plan of attack. He pulled some "political strings." Courtright had the state police put out a "false APB" on a Jerry A. Craig. Within five minutes he found out the pilot lived in Lake Isabella, Calif.

At the first reunion, nine members of the crew attended. Only one member, gunner Lee Sawyer, could not be located. Speirs feels that Sawyer has probably died.

Since the first reunion, two other Belle crew members have died. Speirs' friend from Ohio, Gerry Apple, and gunner Lou Snodgrass, from Oklahoma. To carry on the tradition, Fern Snodgrass, Lou's wife, came to Cass City to meet with the rest of her late husband's crew.

Only one crew member, tail gunner Jessie Holt, from California, didn't make it to the reunion.

"It was frightening," said Craig when asked how he felt when he knew the plane

RONALD A. POMEROY, a Cass City resident, was injured Saturday night when he rolled his vehicle over several times after he lost control on Severance Road.

Car rolls several times

Pomeroy escapes serious injury

A 29-year-old Cass City man is listed in fair condition at Hills and Dales General Hospital after he was thrown from his vehicle in a one-car accident Saturday night.

Tuscola County Sheriff's Department Sgt. Leonard Huff reported Ronald A. Pomeroy, 29, 6474 River Rd., Cass City, was westbound on Severance Road, near Phillips Road, when he lost control of his vehicle on the gravel surface. The vehicle skidded 180 feet on Severance Road, entered the ditch and rolled and tumbled over several times in a harvested wheat field.

As the vehicle was rolling over, Pomeroy was thrown from the car. The vehicle traveled 210 feet into the field before it eventually stopped. Parts of the vehicle were found 380 feet from where the vehicle first left the road.

Pomeroy told Sgt. Huff he was driving 55 miles per hour when the accident happened at 9:45 p.m. He was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital by the Cass City Ambulance Service. Pomeroy was issued a ticket for careless driving.

Sgt. Lee Teschendorf reported five persons were taken to Hills and Dales Hospital after a vehicle they were riding in went into the ditch Saturday at 9:00 p.m.

The vehicle, driven by Elizabeth S. Numcio, 34, P.O. Box 1523, Elsa, Texas, was southbound on Brown Road, near Huron Line Road, when the vehicle slid sideways and entered a ditch on the east side of the road.

Only one passenger in the vehicle, Cindy Numcio, 14, 5110 S. Bay Port Rd., Sebawaing, was admitted to the hospital. She was released Monday.

Those treated and released from the hospital were: Elizabeth Numcio, Priscilla Numcio, 11; Rudy Numcio, 9, all of 5110 S. Bay Port Rd.; Sebawaing, and Joanna Solis, 13, Huron Line Rd., Gagetown. They were transported to the hospital by a private vehicle.

Lower auto interest rates entice truck purchase

With new car financing below eight percent on most American built cars, are you considering buying a new vehicle?

"Yes, we are thinking about trading in our old truck and buying a new one," said Joyce Hartman, a Brown City resident visiting family members in Cass City.

She explained her husband works in Sterling Heights and drives their 1981 pick-up five days a week to the city. She added, the truck has a lot of miles on it.

Hartman said they bought the truck when interest rates were high, and by buying a new truck at an eight percent interest rate they can probably end up with a monthly payment of about $130. Presently they are paying over $200 a month for their pick-up.

Hartman said her husband, Jerry, works as a mechanic for Burke Equipment, Sterling Heights, and has been steadily employed for several years. They feel comfortable about going into debt for a new truck.

Hartman and her two-year-old daughter Jayme were in Cass City visiting her mother-in-law, Melba Hartman.

The Hartmans live at 6891 LaPage Dr., Brown City.

"If It Fitz..." Cherry Coke

By Jim Fitzgerald

To keep the free advertising flowing, the Coca-Cola Co. will soon announce a recall of its newest beverage — Cherry Coke — because millions of middle-aged and older customers complained that it didn't taste the same as the cherry Coke they drank when they were young.

A new Classic Cherry Coke will be introduced. It will not be sold in plastic containers. It will be sold only in small, curved Coca-Cola glasses half full of shaved ice. The price of this Cherry Coke will be five cents and you will have to buy it from me.

I will be at Barnett's Drugstore, across from the junior college, in Port Huron. To reach me, you will have to board a spaceship piloted by Roberto Goizueta, chairman of Coca-Cola Co., and fly back to the summer of 1941. That was the summer I became 15 and Linda became 16.

Besides cherry, I also made lemon, chocolate and phosphate Cokes. No one ever ordered a strawberry Coke, but I don't know why. There was strawberry flavoring in the crock right next to the cherry, and a strawberry Coke couldn't taste any yuckier than a chocolate Coke. Lemon was best. I expect Roberto Goizueta will bring back Lemon Coke next year, and someone will discover that it is great for polishing furniture.

To make the best mixed Coke, you must begin by putting the ice into the glass. Always put the ice in first, before the squirts of Coke syrup and flavoring and before pulling the handle that sends a needle-thin burst of carbonated water against the side of the glass, never the bottom. If you don't make a mixed Coke that way, a burly pharmacist named Arnold will cuff you on the back of the head. That's because a warm liquid is immediately chilled when it hits ice, but if you put the ice in last, the drink won't cool until the ice melts, and customers will complain. Still, today, whenever I see people put the ice in last, I know they were never cuffed by a burly man who didn't go to pharmacy school to become a lousy soda jerk, dammit.

I was never idle at Barnett's. If there were no soda fountain customers, I wrapped boxes of Kotex in blue paper. Box after box after box. That's how Kotex was displayed on shelves behind the cash register. No sign or label of any kind. But women knew what was beneath the plain wrapper, and they bought it by pointing at it. Many of those women lived long enough to see sanitary napkins advertised on TV, and I hope they adjusted well.

What I remember most about the summer of 1941 is bringing pineapple-flavoring-on-chocolate-ice-cream sundaes home for my mother. Or unlikely malted milks made with butterscotch goop or bitersweet fudge. Mother was pregnant with her fifth child. I already had three sisters, including the much older Terrible Jean, and I urgently desired a brother. Mother was 41 and had already announced it was my last chance.

But Linda was born. Today she lives in Texas and recently I phoned her on her birthday. "Your little baby sister is 44," she said. She didn't have to say that.

I remember the pleasure of hugging my baby sister, the same way I hug my grandchildren all these years later. Linda was my introduction to the joys of parenthood. Also I remember that Mother, on her first night out after Linda's birth, came into Barnett's, as always the most beautiful woman in town. Boy, I was proud of her.

I haven't yet tried the new Cherry Coke in the big plastic container. But I'm sure it doesn't taste the same as the cherry Cokes I made. For that taste, you have to fly back to the summer of 1941. If Roberto Goizueta's spaceship is ready, so am I.

14-year-old driver injures two Saturday

A 14-year-old Cass City youth, driving his parents' truck without their permission, was issued three traffic tickets Saturday night when he caused an accident that sent a mother and her 22-month-old daughter to Hills and Dales General Hospital for treatment.

According to the report, filed by Cass City Police Officers Phillip Klaus and Dave McComb, the youth was westbound on Main Street, near Sherman Street, when he attempted to make a left turn. His vehicle struck an eastbound vehicle driven by Julie L. Trischler, 23, 6229 Cedar Dr., Cass City. Riding with Trischler was her 22-month-old daughter Zyndi. The mother and daughter were both treated and released from the hospital.

The youth attempted to leave the accident scene, but was apprehended by two witnesses. He was issued a ticket for making an improper left turn, no driver's license, and failure to stop and identify after an accident.

Cass City police arrest Bad Axe woman

A 20-year-old Bad Axe woman was arrested by Cass City Police Officer Phillip Klaus Sunday at 2:30 a.m. for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. Officer Klaus reported he observed a vehicle driven by Pamela A. Grifka, 20, 606 E. Irwin St., Bad Axe, driving eastbound on Main Street without any headlights on. While following the car, Klaus observed Grifka cross the center line of Main Street, near Woodland Street.

Grifka failed a sobriety test, and was taken to the Tuscola County Jail.

Old line Michigan baseball fans are almost unanimous, pulling for Toronto to win the American League East title.

Any Michigan fan worth his salt is a member of the "Hate the Yankees" club. We haven't had to have a meeting for several years now, but it looks as if we will have to call the roll again this year.

A week or so ago the Cass City Rotary Club asked residents for ideas about community projects that the club could undertake to make this a better place to live.

There was no response. It's sure that there are many of you out there who feel that Cass City needs plenty. Some of you have voiced opinions about it.

These informal opinions won't get it done, of course. Put it on paper and sign your name to it. Who knows, your idea may be the one that Rotarians have been groping for all year.

If it's raining, raining hard, this must be Cass City on the day that the Cass City Golf Club holds its annual outing.

Sunday, the event was canceled due to wet grounds. That's the first time that a postponement was necessary, but in several of the years rain ruined the day. Rain has been the rule rather than the exception.

Flu vaccinations offered in area

The Tuscola County Health Department will be offering flu clinics this fall. The vaccine protects against three flu strains, A/Philippine, A/Chile and B/USSR.

These viruses are expected to affect the United States this winter, according to the Center for Disease Control, Atlanta, Georgia.

According to a brochure I received the other day, you can learn all about "the Art of Venturing: Entrepreneurship for the businessperson" in two days for only $650.

The program is offered by the J.L. Kellogg Graduate School of Management at Northwestern University, Chicago.

As most folks know, Northwestern has lousy football teams, but great academic courses. Especially in journalism where it is one of the premier schools.

With all due respect to that august institution I feel that I can advise folks wanting to get into business quicker, maybe better and for sure a whole lot cheaper. Here, for free, is what to do:

First, a prospective entrepreneur should give himself a hard slug to the side of the head.

It's better to be a little slug happy going into business than to wait until it happens naturally.

Then figure all that can go wrong in whatever business you figure on starting and then double it.

Remember that seven out of 10 firms fail in the first three years.

If you still figure to be one of the three that succeed and not one of the seven who fall by the wayside, you're hopelessly hooked.

You can shorten the odds against failure by going into something you know about. In small business it always is a mystery to me why anyone would toss in hard-earned bucks to get into something without any experience at all.

They wouldn't try to run a machine, be a doctor, lawyer or school teacher without training.

In its own way, business is just as demanding and needs just as much training as any profession.

These greenhorns inevitably find out that there's more to it than appears on the surface.

We've had that story told over and over again in the Thumb and in Cass City.

I suspect that one reason for the optimism of folks new to business is that they can look around and see outstanding success stories. Guys that made it big in business after starting with almost nothing. The many failures disappear from the scene and are easily forgotten.

They never remember that it's easier to strike out than it is to strike it rich.

"Belle" crew members celebrate 7th reunion at Speirs' residence wasn't going to make it to Sweden.

"We were doing fine until that guy ran us out of gas," Craig said, pointing to navigator John Thompson. "I didn't know where they wanted to go," Thompson responded to Craig's joking criticism. "I didn't think they wanted to go back to Berlin."

Ironically, it was Thompson's first flight with the crew of the Belle. An experienced navigator, Thompson was put on the Belle to replace the original navigator, who was sick.

When asked what time they were shot down, Craig quickly answered, "April 11, 1944, at 3:00 in the afternoon." The date and time are etched in Craig's memory. He was able to describe the weather conditions at the time they were hit.

Craig explained American bombers made their bombing runs during the daylight, and the British took the night shift. "During the day we got to see those little black flowers that grew in the sky," Craig said about seeing the German anti-aircraft shells that exploded about their plane.

After capture the crew of the Belle were eventually taken to Stalag 17, a German prisoner of war camp about 30 miles from Vienna, Austria. One of the prisoners in the camp wrote a book about life at Stalag 17. The book later was made into a movie.

Speirs said the Germans treated the prisoners fairly well, but there was never enough to eat. He explained they relied on Red Cross packages for their meals. At times one package was split between four prisoners. One package contained enough food for one person.

"They weren't too fussy about seeing that we had enough to eat," Craig said. He added that sometimes the Germans took food from the Red Cross package intended for them.

"The best thing I can say is we survived," Courtwright said.

After about one year in Stalag 17, their German captors evacuated the prison camp as the Russian Army was about to take control of the area.

The 4,000 prisoners marched for 18 days, towards the German border, before they were overtaken by troops from General George Patton's Third Army Division. On May 2, 1945, one year and 14 days after they were shot down, the crew of the "Belle of the Brawl" were once again free men.

While Speirs was home on a 60-day furlough, the war came to an end.

The annual reunion for the 94th Bomb Group will be held in Washington this October. About 600 members from the bomb group are expected to attend the reunion. Some of the crew members of the "Belle" are planning to attend the annual meeting.

CREW MEMBERS OF THE "BELLE OF THE BRAWL," a B-17 bomber that was shot down after a bombing mission over Berlin, met for the seventh time since the war ended, at the Robert Speirs home this week end. Crew members are: John Thompson, Bob Speirs, Roland McGee, Tony Rossi, William Courtwright and Jerry Craig.

Microwaves stolen from Fuelgas Co.

Michigan State Police, Sandusky post, are investigating the theft of seven microwave ovens from the Fuelgas Company, 6466 Van Dyke Rd., Cass City.

According to Trooper Mike Salasky, the microwaves, valued at $1,337, were taken sometime after the store closed Wednesday at 5:00 p.m. and before the store opened Thursday at 7:00 a.m. Salasky said the thieves gained entry into the building by breaking a window in the front of the store.

Salasky said no arrests have been made, but they are investigating a lead on a possible suspect. Observers saw a stalled car parked in front of the Fuelgas office Wednesday.

The first Presidential news conference to be televised was held by President Eisenhower on January 19, 1955.

McLeod's Days

By Bill McLeod

Every time I go into one of the party stores in town it seems like I am always in line behind some junior high school kid buying something. The brief wait in line while they pay for the pop, candy bar or whatever doesn't bother me, but I am always amazed when they pull out a $5 bill to pay for it.

I guess I still look at growing up as a time when having money, even a quarter, was a special feeling that I seldom experienced. Excuse me, but at 33 (soon to be 34) I have already developed a generation gap.

I think growing up on a farm during the 50's was as financially difficult for us as today's farmers are facing, the only difference is we didn't have any money. Today's farmers seem to have money, just not enough.

While I was growing up, Dad always worked for the road commission, and ran an 80-acre farm after a 50-hour week of driving truck.

When my brother and I got old enough to earn a few bucks we always had plenty to do on our own farm. My folks didn't believe in allowances.

The first and only time I was ever paid for a job at home was when I was about eight. Dad offered to my brother and me $5 for pulling the mustard out of a 10-acre navy bean field. Four days later we finally finished. It was the first time I ever had any "real money" for myself.

A friend in town was amazed when I told her I used to go to town with my folks, without a nickel to spend. You soon learn the fine art of window shopping when you have empty pockets.

It was times like those that taught me to adjust to going to college, with a mad-money spending allowance of 50 cents a day, enough for a cup of coffee and a 20-cent bag of popcorn from the snack shop.

For those of you who have never faced "hard times," popcorn swells up in your stomach when you drink a lot of liquid. The nutritional value of popcorn isn't too high, but it knocked the edge off for afternoon classes.

Things got a little easier when I got a job in the college bookstore. Because the pay was lower than the salary I had before returning to college, I felt obligated to take advantage of the "perks," extra ink pens and bags of sunflower seeds that never sold.

If it weren't for some very generous church friends who occasionally brought in a bag full of "old beef" they had in their freezer, I would have forgotten what meat tasted like. During an average week I dined on macaroni and cheese three nights a week. Not the "expensive" stuff that came in a box, but the home-made stuff. Today I still feel ill when I walk past a box of macaroni in the grocery store.

When Wayne Kamidori came to the Chronicle as our summer intern, I realized that college life has changed. Instead of blue jeans and a pair of cowboy boots like I wore every day to school, Wayne always wore good looking dress clothes. During his 12-week stay in Cass City I saw him with at least three different pairs of shoes.

Although I have not been forced to eat macaroni and cheese or popcorn for a long time, I still only have one pair of good shoes. Old habits die hard.

When the Lamotte Township Fire Department needed a new fire truck, residents of the township came through, not only by passing a 0.50 mill levy, but by also working to raise the money by holding weekly bingo games. "They did a great job," said Fire Chief Art West, about the firemen's auxiliary that pitched in and ran the bingo games for the past five years. When it came time to purchase the new fire truck, the auxiliary donated $59,000 of the total cost of the $80,000 truck. The rest of the money came from a three-year 0.50 mill levy, which raised $7,000 a year.

Lamotte Township Supervisor Mike Redman said the township residents, about 1,000 strong, really came out in support of the township's fire department, adding that most rural townships do not have the up-to-date equipment they have.

The new 1,000 gallon truck, with a 1,000 gallon per minute pumping capacity, is replacing a 1955 Ford pumper with a 500 gallon capacity. In addition to a van, the township has a 1,600 gallon tanker.

"It was a lot of effort, for no pay," Redman said about the township residents who worked each Tuesday night at the bingo games. "It's nice for the township's coffers if you don't have to come up with all the money," Redman said. "They probably weren't thanked as much as they should have been."

The Lamotte Township Fire Department handles all fires inside the township, and five square miles of Kingston Township. They have a mutual share agreement with Argyle Township.

Fire Chief West explained without a township fire department they would have to rely on fire departments from Elkland and Argyle Townships, or from Kingston and Marlette.

Letter to the editor

Shabbona, Ill. is more active

Dear Editor:

Feeling quite sure that you have never visited Shabbona, Illinois, I thought I would fill you in on this town with the same name as the one nearby to where I was brought up, located 11 miles southeast of Cass City by road and perhaps eight miles as the crow flies. In a vacation trip around Lakes Superior and Michigan recently, I noted this familiar name and decided to include it on our trip.

I envisioned it as a place that had seen more commercial activities in its past than in its present. For in our town there had been a post office, bank, two blacksmith shops, general store, hardware store, creamery, sawmill, doctor, and of course, the best baseball teams anywhere on the planet! The loss of these enterprises, however, has not really detracted from the quality of life. The automobile takes the residents wherever and whenever they choose to shop.

In comparing the Shabbonas, I found in two categories at least, the towns are similar. Each has two churches and a grade school, whereupon any claim for similarity ceases. The 850 residents of Shabbona in DeKalb County, Ill., (who pronounce it Shab'ona) need not leave town to find a tavern. There are two, besides a liquor store. Buying gas is no problem either. There are four stations.

Along the busy railroad there are two fertilizer plants, a grain elevator, and a lumberyard. A post office, bank, laundry, hardware store, high school, library, car wash, gun and bait shop, supermarket, used car dealer, real estate office, attorney, restaurant, nursing home, and other commercial ventures that I surely missed, makes this a thriving community in the corn belt area.

Butch Flewellins, the hardware proprietor, filled me in with most of the above information between customers. He also mentioned that a nearby creek was dammed to make an artificial 318-acre lake where a park was established, this making it a sportsman and tourist attraction. Also this bit of history: Shabbona was chief of the peaceful Potawatomi tribe. His warning to white settlers that Chief Black Hawk was plotting to destroy them, saved those who heeded, including the Chicago settlement. (For any who may wish to know more about this famed chief, Kay Severance has a photo and his history taken from a book published in 1901 by the Ohio State Archaeological Society.)

The original name of the Illinois settlement was Shabbona Grove, which dated back to the early 1800s. It was located a few miles south. When the railroad came in 1876, activities gravitated to its present location and became the town of Shabbona. West Comanche is the main street. All other streets have Indian names.

From this account you can see that we are a distant second in commerce and public works with this enterprising and prosperous town. But do you suppose that the residents of Shabbona and Evergreen Township with its river, Cass, who enjoy the woodland and meadows abounding in deer and other wildlife, would pull up stakes and go to this other Shabbona in upper Illinois, if they knew about it? I doubt it. But I can recommend it as an interesting and friendly place to visit.

C. Louis Severance, Akron, Mich.

Three Cass City men appear in Circuit Court

Three Cass City men appeared before Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Patrick Joslyn Sept. 3 on charges of attempted larceny and larceny. The charges against the three stem from the Aug. 1 theft of gasoline from Edward Lebioda and the Aug. 6 theft of tools from George Cooklin.

Scott A. Bastian, 18, 5111 Shabbona Rd., Cass City, stood mute on a charge of larceny over $100 for the theft at the Cooklin residence, 2016 Dodge Rd., Cass City. He also stood mute on charges of breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny at the Lebioda residence, 5216 E. Severance Rd., Cass City. A not guilty plea was entered for Bastian. A pre-trial hearing is set for Oct. 15. A $7,500 bond for each charge continues.

Also charged in the Cooklin theft is Charles A. Clyne, 24, 5111 Shabbona Rd., Cass City. He was originally charged with larceny over $100. The court accepted a plea of attempted larceny from Clyne. He will be sentenced Oct. 7. A personal recognizance bond of $1,000 has been posted. Also charged in the Lebioda theft of gasoline is Edward S. Periso, 22, 5111 Shabbona Rd., Cass City. He was originally charged with breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny. The court accepted a guilty plea to a larceny in a building charge.

Judge Joslyn will sentence Periso Oct. 15. Bond continues at $5,000.

In other Circuit Court action, John S. Redfield, 17, 4940 Lorenzo Rd., Vassar, stood mute on a charge of breaking and entering an occupied dwelling. A not guilty plea was entered for Redfield by the court.

The charge stems from the June 17 theft of a chainsaw and case, two toolboxes, two gasoline cans and gasoline from Thomas Beaulieu, 5344 Swaffer Rd., Millington.

A pre-trial hearing has been set for Sept. 16. Bond continues at $10,000. Judge Joslyn accepted a guilty plea from William E. Brewer, 17, 6280 Bevens Rd., Kingston, on a delivery of marijuana charge. Brewer, along with six other county residents, was arrested in a July 25 raid by local law enforcement agencies.

Brewer was charged with two counts of delivery of marijuana. Joslyn will sentence Brewer Oct. 15. Bond continues at $5,000 for each count.

The court also accepted a guilty plea from Dennis L. Kammerer, 31, 2501 Gerou Rd., Caro, on a charge of delivery of LSD. Kammerer was also arrested in the July 25 raid by Tuscola County law enforcement agencies.

Kammerer faces a second delivery of LSD charge and a charge of delivery of marijuana. As part of the plea bargaining agreement, Kammerer is requesting the two other charges be dismissed. The court has taken the plea bargain request under advisement.

Kammerer will be sentenced Oct. 15. Bond continues at $5,000.

Judge Joslyn accepted a guilty plea from Roger L. McKnight, 27, 2010 W. Caro Rd., Apt. 6, Caro, on a larceny in a building charge.

McKnight was originally charged with breaking and entering of an occupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny. The charges stem from the Aug. 8 break in of the Charles and Mary Vennevy residence, 415 W. Frank St., Caro.

McKnight will be sentenced Oct. 15. Bond continues at $10,000.

In other court action, Richard C. Fields, 24, 125 Alexander St., Caro, stood mute on charges of resisting and obstructing a police officer, trespassing-refusal to depart and being a drunk and disorderly person. A not guilty plea was entered by the court.

The charges stem from the Aug. 14 obstruction of Caro Police Officer Paul Strasz when Fields is alleged to have refused to leave a Caro residence.

A pre-trial hearing has been set for Sept. 16. Bond continues at $7,500.

Tough Deckerville is next

O-G wins opener in final 3 seconds

If the rest of the season is anything like their first game, the Owen-Gage Bulldogs will be supplying an exciting brand of football this year.

In the season opener Friday night against Arenac-Eastern, the Bulldogs were led by a 100-yard rushing attack from fullback Mike Mandich, and a 58-yard passing game from quarterback Stu Stirrett. But if that wasn't enough excitement for the crowd on a hot, sticky September night, the Bulldogs added a grand finale by pulling out a 12-7 victory with three seconds

The final score was set up when the Bulldogs covered an Eagle punt on the A-E 40-yard line with less than three minutes left. The Bulldogs had marched to the A-E 11-yard line where they used their last time out with 42 seconds left.

Coach Arnie Besonen told quarterback Stirrett to run the ball, straight ahead, for the next four plays. After the first quarterback sneak, the Eagles knew what to expect, and tried to jam up the middle. When it came down to "push comes to shove" football, the Bulldogs proved they were the superior team. It took four tries, and 39 seconds, but Stirrett finally found himself, and the ball, on the other side of the goal line.

Besonen said when the Bulldogs take on Deckerville this Friday night, they will eliminate a lot "of the stupid mental mistakes" made against Arenac-Eastern.

Besonen explained Deckerville is using a rotating offensive backfield, where the quarterback can hand off to any of three backs.

"We've got to tackle everybody coming out of the backfield," he said. "We've got to play between the tackles."

Not only will the Bulldogs have to contend with the Deckerville backfield, they will also have to play against a two platoon team. Besonen explained Deckerville has 74 kids on the team, more players than Owen-Gage has boys in high school. The Deckerville coach will have a fresh team waiting on the bench throughout the evening.

As usual, the Bulldogs will be outweighed by Deckerville. "We are probably the smallest team in the league," Besonen said, adding that this year even Caseville has larger players.

Against Arenac-Eastern, the Bulldogs were outweighed by 12 pounds per man on the line, but as the game progressed it became apparent Owen-Gage was in better physical condition. Throughout the third and fourth quarter, the officials called time out frequently to allow injured Eagle players to limp off the field.

The Bulldog defense was led by Steve Root with eight tackles. Rick Salcido made five tackles and picked off two Eagle passes. A-E had a 183-yard offensive attack, led by Kurt Williamson with 95 yards on 11 carries. The Eagles picked up 13 yards on two pass completions. Seven Eagle passes fell to the ground.

The Bulldogs' first score came with 5:58 left in the first quarter when Stirrett capped a 70-yard drive with a two-yard jaunt. The scoring drive was highlighted by a Stirrett to Nick Pavlichek pass on a critical third down play. Mandich carried six times during the drive.

This year Owen-Gage is without an extra point kicker. They failed to push the ball into the end zone on two extra point attempts.

Arenac-Eastern scored with less than two minutes left in the second quarter when running back Ken Tumblin scored from the three yard line. The extra point kick was good. The Eagles were on top 7-6. Besonen said the Bulldogs will have to stop giving up so many yards in penalties if they are to stay in the game against De-ckerville. Against A-E they had 75 yards in penalties, including a costly roughing the kicker call. If the Bulldogs had not roughed Eagle's 10-yard line. In the kicker they would have stead A-E had a first down.

WIDE OPEN SPACES - The Owen-Gage offense was able to open large holes in the Arenac-Eastern line for Bulldog fullback Mike Mandich. Mandich rolled up 100 yards in his first game as a running back. Mandich was a center for the Bulldogs for the last three years.

State seeks more trade overseas

Nearly all states are now involved in programs of some kind to promote exports, with 30 having established overseas representation, according to a report presented at a recent meeting of the National Governors' Association.

The survey by the group's Committee on International Trade and Foreign Relations showed 49 states holding export seminars, 45 states using computers to match exporters with trade prospects and 10 states (including Michigan) are operating export finance programs to help companies with overseas sales.

Noting the record $123.3 billion U.S. trade deficit in 1984, the report said "a growing export sector is essential to the long-term health of the U.S. economy."

The report said overseas visits by governors leading trade delegations are highly successful in fostering close economic relationships.

Trade shows and regional export ventures, such as the Great Lakes Commission, are also helpful, the report said.

The report added the auto industry is the third largest source of the trade deficit (after consumer goods and petroleum products) and is rapidly getting worse, more than doubling a deficit of $35.9 billion in 1984 compared to 1982.

That has contributed to a slower growth in exports of Michigan manufactured goods.

The state ranked fifth in such exports in 1981, but had grown at about half the rate of the nation as a whole from four years earlier.

The report said an important source of trade revenue is tourism, which was the largest export service industry, contributing $14 billion to the national economy in 1984, and states can take a greater role in promoting that activity.

It further noted 43 states have travel development offices as part of agencies responsible for commerce and economic development.

Bad Axe tilt Friday rated even

Hawks fumble 7 times, still top Mayville

The offense sputtered most of the night and first game mistakes were evident throughout the game, but there was a bright spot for Hawk fans Friday against Mayville.

No, it wasn't the final score, 2-0, in favor of Cass City, although that wasn't exactly hard to take. It was the ability of the team to rise to the occasion when it appeared that victory might be snatched away in the closing minutes of the game.

Cass City, which had a terrible time holding on to the ball all night, presented the Wildcats with two golden opportunities to win late in the game.

Two of the Hawks' seven fumbles gave Mayville the chance to pull the game out of the fire. The first fumble turned the ball over on the 11-yard line.

The Hawks responded with some of their finest play of the night. A Wildcat run gained to the seven-yard line. A second slash at the line netted a two-yard loss and a third attempt found the ball back where the series of downs started.

When a field goal attempt was wide it appeared that Mayville's last chance to win had failed. There was 4:06 left when the field goal try missed.

But the Wildcats received a second chance when the Hawks fumbled again, this time on the 31-yard line.

Cass City's defense again was equal to the threat and stopped Mayville cold to take over the ball on downs and run out the clock.

Neither team was able to muster much of a sustained attack. The Hawks scored the safety with just one second left in the first quarter. Terry Friday dropped back to pass from his own six-yard line and was smeared in the end zone by Tony Yost for the only two points of the game.

Mayville had one more serious scoring threat when it marched to the Cass City 15-yard line. When the attack stalled, a field goal was tried, but the center snap was high and Cass City took over.

Cass City moved deep into Mayville territory when Jeff Lefler cut around his own left end for 30 yards and a first on the Mayville 22, but the threat ended when the Hawk fumbled.

The Hawks open their home season and the Thumb B Association season Friday when they entertain the Bad Axe Hatchets.

The Hatchets won their opener by a point over Harbor Beach. Coach Don Schelke feels that the game is a toss-up.

On defense, Ken Pasanski and Jim Hahn showed the way, with 10 tackles each. Neither team was able to complete a pass. Lefler netted 60 yards in nine tries to lead the ball carriers.

Play Bad Axe Thursday

Hawks bow to Caseville

The Cass City Red Hawks open the Thumb B Association season Thursday when the Bad Axe Hatchets come to town.

Coach Daryl Iwanovitch's charges will be looking for their first win. The girls dropped their opener against Caseville, 54-44.

Cass City jumped off to a narrow one-point lead in the first period, 10-9, but Caseville took charge after that.

At the half the Hawks trailed 23-22, and after three quarters were behind 37-31. Cass City starters were in foul trouble in the third quarter and it affected their play.

In the final eight minutes, Caseville salted away the game by outscoring Cass City, 17-13.

Shannon McIntosh led Cass City scorers while Gail Gimborski was tops for the visitors.

Law protects Great Lakes water rights

Governor James Blanchard has signed into law legislation designed to protect the Great Lakes from diversion plans and to guard their water quality.

The signing of the bills represents Michigan's first action toward fulfilling goals outlined in the Great Lakes Charter signed in February by the Governor and heads of either of the other states and Canadian provinces.

"The Great Lakes state strengthens its position of leadership in water management and protection with the enactment of these laws. We are sending the strongest possible signal to our neighbors in the region and to the Sunbelt states that we will fight diversion of our precious water resources," Blanchard said.

One act sets a three-year moratorium on diversions from the Great Lakes to areas outside the lakes' basin.

The second act adds additional representatives of the Governor and legislative leadership as members of the interstate Great Lakes Compact to restrict water diversion.

The final measure designates a new Office of the Great Lakes as the state's lead agency for protection and development of the waters while requiring studies on research needs and of an annual report by the Governor on the state of the lakes.

Changes recommended for child care

A commission on state handling of neglected and abused children, established in 1982 by then Supreme Court Chief Justice Mary Coleman, has released its final report which contains 38 recommendations.

The recommendations include making improvements in staffing quality and placing maximum time limits for each step in the juvenile justice and child care system.

"It cannot be acceptable procedure to let children drift in the limbo of the legal and child welfare systems for years and years. We cannot allow thousands of Michigan's children to grow up without family ties. We must hold the belief that it is every child's inalienable right to belong in a family," the report said.

Recommendations by the commission include reducing the number of foster care cases per worker to 25 and the number of protective services referrals per month to caseworkers to 15.

The commission also recommended that reasonable efforts be made to maintain children in their families, which would require various resources to supervise such efforts.

Visitation practices by parents should be encouraged and improved, the commission report said.

The commission also recommended a clearer definition in the quality, nature and scope of the review hearing by amending the Juvenile Court Rules, which would determine how soon the first review hearing is to be held following discovery of abuse or neglect.

Additionally, the commission recommended making available community-based child abuse prevention programs, including parenting programs.

Among the problems cited by the commission are a lack of services, counseling or other services which prevent child abuse or which prevent unnecessary removal of children from their families, a serious shortage of foster homes and a lack of clarity in legal criteria for removing children from homes.

The commission also cited time delays in termination of parental rights, court process, action in parental rehabilitation and finding adoptive parents. There are 9,624 abused and neglected children in out-of-home placements supervised by the Michigan Department of Social Services (DSS).

Included in the number are 2,634 children who have been in DSS supervised foster care for over two years.

Care for these children is estimated at over $75 million per year.

The commission also said that "the adult problems of criminal behavior and domestic violence have been linked to child abuse and neglect. Saving children will save dollars in the long run. Dollars that we invest in preventing child abuse and in keeping children in families are dollars that we will not need to rehabilitate troubled adults."

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Dear Bill:
You mentioned one time over lunch that I ought to get one of those "living trusts" — but I've forgotten all the reasons. And now that you're up in the wilds of northern Michigan, and we can't visit — would you mind writing me?

I hear trusts are expensive and they tie up your assets.

G B
Boca Raton, Fla.

Dear G B:
"Expensive" is relative. A trust could cost you $1,000, and in your case it would save you $20,000 if your estate went through the probate court.

A fellow, say 30 years old, might think fire insurance on his house was expensive. If he lived to be 80-plus, like you, and never had a fire, he would save a lot of insurance premiums. If you plan to live forever, and it looks as though you might, you'd save that $1,000 fee for drawing up a trust.

Your other point — that living trusts tie up your assets is not true. I've had my estate in a living trust for 20 years and it hasn't affected me in any way. My bank and broker accounts are titled simply "W.A. Myers, trustee," our cars and household goods are joint, and we don't own real estate.

Now let's look at the positive side:

1. Your estate will be settled much faster. Go through probate court and it's at least a year — more like 15 months, even after prodding the lawyer. My mother's estate was in a living trust. My long-time lawyer friend, Bob Taylor (who didn't need prodding), got it settled, estate tax filed, and property in hands of us three kids, in three months.

In another living-trust case, that of a friend in Delray Beach, Fla., the widow and I and her tax man, a CPA, wound up her husband's estate, paid the bills, collected his death benefits and got securities in her name, in two months. There was no estate tax or inheritance tax to pay, but proper forms were filed, nevertheless. Details of death certificates, filing of the will and trust, and tax clearance forms from the county treasurer, we took care of in an hour at the Palm Beach county court house.

Social Security death benefits, the funeral people took care of. Other Social Security details were handled by a phone call.

It couldn't have been very complicated, or I wouldn't have been able to do it.

2. Now, for another important advantage:

A will takes effect only after you die. A living trust can provide that if you become so disabled you can't take care of your current affairs, there is a solution.

If you don't have a trust, and some securities or real estate need to be sold, and if you aren't competent, then someone has to go into court and get a guardian appointed. It's something nobody wants to do, to parade your disability into the public courts. It also is cumbersome, with lawyers, and reports and red tape involved.

In my own trust, I state simply if a doctor says I'm too infirm to handle such matters, then my wife can take over. I don't even go through the nuisance of having the usual three-doctor panel decide what is usually obvious.

Victims of strokes can live for years and be quite incapable of even signing a check.

3. If you do get around to having a living trust, give a lot of thought to naming a trustee. Don't name "co-trustees," as so many people do. It only slows up the procedure, and if a bank is one of the co-trustees, the other trustee will be naught but a rubber stamp.

It ought to be someone in the area where you live, just because of time and expense saved. It can be your wife, if she's inclined to handle business affairs, or if not, if she doesn't mind asking advice.

A responsible adult son or daughter is often the best choice. Just don't name all the children as co-trustees. Chances are they're scattered all over the USA, and there'll always be one who has a phobia about selling anything off. Let one person make the decisions. Remember the camel, the horse that was designed by a committee.

A close friend, who is responsible, sensible, and who likes to get things done, is another good choice. Sometimes your broker might act as a trustee, but it should be one you've known for years, personally.

If you choose only one of your children, I'd suggest letting all of them know of your decision.

And naturally, in any case, the trustee himself should know about it, and agree to serve.

If the No. 1 trustee can't act, then provide for his successor and if he can't then let a bank be named. A bank is a corporate entity that goes on indefinitely.

School. Romain does not work the first hour of the school day. He works as a counselor for three hours a day and teaches two hours a day at the high school.

Romain explained that with the additional hour at Gagetown he could help coordinate testing programs with the staff, provide counseling to students and their families, and help work on the new gifted student program that is being implemented in the county.

Warack made a motion the board use Romain to the fullest of his and the school's ability. No additional hours for Romain were specified in the motion that was approved by trustees.

SEWER HOOKUPS

At Erickson's recommendation, trustees agreed to pay for the sewer hookup fee at the Gagetown Elementary School. The cost of the hookup is $28,010. The board agreed to pay 10 percent of the total balance due now, and pay the remainder over a 39-year period. The school will pay 12 percent interest on the balance due.

Erickson told the board he is trying to set up a meeting with the Owendale Village Council to discuss the cost of sewer usage fee. Erickson was told the cost of sewer usage at the high school would be $5,400 a year, and the hookup fee is $15,000. In Gagetown the annual cost of sewer usage is estimated at $750 per year.

Erickson explained the cost of the hookup for the high school is based on 10 times the cost of a residential hookup. He was told the fee for residential sewer usage is estimated at $30 every two months. Erickson said the cost of the sewer fee in Owendale is going to be $900 every two months, which he quessources was cut by $36,587. Last year REMC received $19,683 in federal funds.

Although student enrollment has decreased, the total number of items requested has increased by 67 percent in the last 11 years. A report to the school districts shows during the 1974-75 school year 14,488 media items were requested from REMC by local school districts. Last year REMC distributed 24,336 items.

"We have had criticisms of not having enough material...Up-to-date material...But where is the money going to come from?" Richards said. "A lot of our materials are obsolete and need to be replaced."

From the $36,000 increase this year, Richards plans to spend $12,000 for new educational video cassettes and kits. The rest of the funding will be used to replace equipment, hire more secretarial and delivery help, and to meet staff wage increases.

Richards said this year they will be providing video cassettes to schools who want to replay broadcasts of special educational programs. Earlier this year a satellite dish antenna was installed at the center to tions. He explained the school is paying 10 times as much as a resident is paying for a hookup, but the usage fee will be more. Based on $30 every two months, a residential fee will be $180 per year, as compared to $5,400 a year for the school. If the school's usage fee were based on 10 households, it would be $1,800 yearly.

SUBSTITUTE TEACHER

Gagetown area resident Vickie Merchant submitted a letter to the board questioning why Pat Enderle was being hired to fill a teacher's position vacated by Kay Nguyen. Nguyen, on a pregnancy leave, is expected to be absent from school until the middle of October.

Merchant explained she is a certified teacher, and has been a maternity leave substitute teacher in the past. She added that last year she donated her afternoons to work as a teacher's aide, without pay. She was also the "first call" substitute teacher when needed.

Erickson said when considering a substitute teacher for Nguyen's position it was a "tossup" between Merchant and Enderle. He explained both teachers were qualified, but he chose Enderle because Merchant was hired as a maternity leave substitute teacher recently.

Merchant told the board they should be involved in the interviewing process for teacher positions.

Trustee Pat Goslin said in the past they have taken the recommendations of the superintendent and the principals. "I think they are more qualified than myself."

Wright said it has traditionally been the principal who does the interviewing of new teachers. This way the principal can "set the tone" of the school.

A 35-minute discussion ended with the board hiring Enderle as the third grade substitute.

OTHER BUSINESS

The board tabled a discussion on a recommendation from Wright to change the student absentee policy until the next meeting.

The board also tabled a grievance filed by the union for sick pay for elementary teacher Kay Nguyen.

Lee Ann Anklam was hired as the new elementary special education instructor.

Trustees agreed to send a letter to Turner Berry Farm, Caro, thanking them for allowing students to pick blueberries at the farm Monday. About 200 pounds of blueberries were picked by the students. The school was not charged. The berries will be used in the school cafeteria.

WORKERS FROM Andrew Barnes Construction Co., Cass City, removed the railroad tracks from the Garfield Street crossing last week.

Novesta asphalt plant to stay in township

The Novesta Township Board is powerless to close the PTI asphalt plant, according to an opinion by Jack Burns, a lawyer contacted by the township.

The board researched the law after citizens complained about the plant at a previous board meeting.

There is nothing in the zoning ordinance or the state law that enables the township to close the plant, Nursie Kloc, clerk, was told.

Mrs. Kloc also contacted the Michigan Township Association to determine whose responsibility it was to set the time, date and place of board meetings. She requested the ruling after a township resident, Carl Labish, asked that the issue be placed on a ballot. The Association said that the law requires the board to set the time, date and place, Mrs. Kloc said, and then notify the county clerk of the decision. We have done that, Mrs. Kloc added.

In other business the board approved placing 130 acres belonging to Charles Tunis in Public Act 116 and paid the remainder of the money owed to the Tuscola County Road Commission, a total of $7,208.22.

A public hearing concerning drainage at Deford will be held Monday, Sept. 16, at 10 a.m. at the township hall. Six persons attended the meeting.

LaPonsie candidate for Municipal League board

Cass City Village Superintendent Lou S. LaPonsie has been placed on the ballot for a board member's position on the Michigan Municipal League board of directors.

LOU LAPONSIE

LaPonsie will be one of 18 board members serving the league. The Michigan Municipal League is an association of Michigan cities and villages organized to study and solve problems in local government. Members in the league represent 98 percent of the urban population in the state.

LaPonsie said if elected to the board, it will help him and the village stay better informed on problems that Michigan cities and villages are facing.

LaPonsie and his wife Carol have seven children. He has served as village superintendent for the past 13 years. Before coming to Cass City he worked for the Michigan Highway Department for 11 years and served as street commissioner for L'Anse, a village in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, for three years.

New books at the library

DUKE: THE LIFE AND TIMES OF JOHN WAYNE by Donald Shepherd (non-fiction). This affectionate biography transcends many of the more standard, glossy accounts of the life of the late John Wayne, one of film's most enduring legends. While his unsettled youth, meteoric rise to fame, and three stormy marriages are merely given cursory treatment, Duke's charismatic persona is more fully explored. The author contends that the dynamic tension created by the curious combination of Wayne's loyal egotistical, and naive natures greatly enhanced the explosively charming screen presence that continues to endear him to movie audiences the world over. Wayne's politically conservative bent, his rabid patriotism, and his prolonged struggle with cancer are also discussed at length.

THE ROAD TO PARADISE ISLAND by Victoria Holt (fiction). Annaliese Mallory finds herself both fascinated and repelled when repairs on her ancestral home reveal the walled-up chamber of a woman who was her namesake. Upon further investigation, Annaliese discovers a diary and an old map. The diary reveals that her namesake was murdered and that the map shows the site of an island where "savages are gentle, where love and amity reign... where one picks up gold and uses it for cooking pots." The story opens in nineteenth-century England and closes on an island off the coast of Australia.

JIAN by Eric VanLustbader (fiction). The plot involves Chinese leaders past and present, the KGB, Japanese gangsters and secret hit teams. At the center of the huge web of intrigue is the Jian, a sort of master spider, who combines physical with philosophical prowess and controls the destinies of China but whose estranged wife has fallen into the hands of his archenemy, a Japanese martial arts expert of terrifying skills who is also a puppet of the KGB.

Films available at Rawson Memorial Library are: Coma, Eye of the Needle, The Gnome-Mobile, Lord of the Rings, The Mirror Crack'd, Sophie's Choice and The Sting. Others are Tron, The Verdict and Yentl.

HEALTH TIPS

Vaccination facts

In the Middle Ages, long before infectious agents and concepts of immunization were understood, the Turks and Chinese stuffed crusts from smallpox sores into their nostrils in a primitive attempt at inoculation. Using the principle of inoculation derived from these ancient practices, smallpox has been eradicated from the modern world.

Today, effective vaccines have been developed for a number of viruses that used to kill, cripple and maim.

Yet despite such progress, fewer than 20 percent of the 80 million children born last year will receive these vaccines. The battle for prevention—even when vaccines are available—is far from over.

In vaccination, either a dose of active virus that has been weakened so it can't produce disease or one that is inactive (can't reproduce) is injected or ingested. Controversy continues about the safety of using so-called "live," or active, viruses and whether they are better at provoking the immune system into producing antibodies, the disease-fighting proteins that permanently protect against infection.

Vaccination: Successes and Near-Successes

Smallpox: In 1966, the World Health Organization began an eradication campaign that involved isolating smallpox patients and quickly immunizing all their contacts. As a result, the last known victim of natural smallpox was reported in October 1977 in Somalia.

It was nearly 200 years earlier than an English physician, Edward Jenner, noticed that milkmaids who acquired cowpox virus—a weak cousin of smallpox—usually became immune to the latter disease even when it was rampant in the community. This astute observation led Jenner to his breakthrough development of smallpox vaccine.

In spite of the unqualified success of smallpox vaccination, it would be premature to assume we are free of the disease. Now that vaccination is recommended only for laboratory workers who handle the virus, susceptibility will gradually return. And a freak accident or a deliberate release of the virus could result in another epidemic. As recently as 1978, two cases occurred in England when viral contamination spread to the room above a viral research laboratory. To prevent this kind of accident, stocks of smallpox virus throughout the world have been destroyed. In the United States, only a reference stock has been preserved, under stringent controls, at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Polio: Of the 58,000 cases of polio in the U.S. alone in 1952, some 21,000 were paralytic. By 1978, this number had dropped to 9 as the result of vaccination. Sabin vaccine, which contains active virus, is given in a series of oral doses to infants, toddlers and preschoolers. Salk vaccine, made from inactivated virus, is injected. Even though the Sabin vaccine is considered one of the safest of active vaccines, it still causes occasional cases of paralysis.

Measles: According to the World Health Organization, 1.5 million children in developing countries die each year from measles. An effective vaccine is available (particularly in industrialized nations), but administration is routinely delayed until a baby is 15 months old to avoid inactivation of the vaccine by maternal antibodies—disease-fighting proteins produced in the mother's body and transmitted in breast milk. Yet, many children contract measles earlier, and many countries offer no vaccination programs at all.

The need for an inexpensive, easy-to-use vaccine that could be administered by nonprofessionals to infants younger than six months led Albert B. Sabin, M.D., of Sabin polio vaccine fame, to develop an aerosol vaccination technique. In a preliminary study in Mexico, he found that children given the vaccine made from weakened virus did produce their own antibodies despite the presence of maternal antibodies. The vaccine is pumped through a fine tube under high pressure, and the baby inhales it through a mask.

"There is still groundwork to be done," says Dr. Sabin, emeritus professor of biomedicine at the Medical School of the University of South Carolina in Charleston. "We need preliminary trials on a large scale. But the technology now exists for elimination of measles from the world."

Influenza: If people at high risk of contracting flu—those with chronic cardiac, pulmonary or kidney disease, diabetes or other debilitating conditions and all persons over 65—were vaccinated, it is estimated that 5,000 lives would be saved in the U.S. each year.

Scientists are working on a new flu vaccine that will be made using an active virus. It is hoped that an active agent will make it easier for researchers to tailor-make new vaccines to combat epidemics produced by subtypes of flu virus that are constantly evolving. The vaccine for winter 1984-85 included a new variant of one of the two A-type flu viruses. While more potent, it also cost more, because outbreaks of influenza among chickens drove up the price of eggs used to grow virus.

Hepatitis B: Heptavax-B (Merck), a vaccine introduced in 1983, has the potential to eradicate hepatitis B, an inflammatory disease of the liver that infects 170 million people worldwide. However, the manufacture and distribution of the vaccine has been fraught with controversy. Heptavax-B is made from the blood plasma of homosexuals who are positive for hepatitis B antibody. (Homosexuals with multiple partners run high risk of contracting hepatitis B. Their sexual practices provide maximum opportunity to transmit virus through saliva, sperm and fecal matter.)

Questions have arisen about the safety of the vaccine. Could it transmit the infectious agent of AIDS? Cost of the vaccine—$100 per series of three injections—is also a problem. In the U.S., distribution is limited to those who can afford it or whose employers choose to buy the vaccine. It is estimated that more than 85 percent of the vaccine has gone to health care workers—the second highest risk group—because of their contact with blood and blood products.

Timing is vital

By Bill Bortel

Timing of winter wheat planting is one of the most important aspects for healthy wheat stands in Michigan. Research at Michigan State University has shown that the highest yields are consistently achieved by delaying planting for 10 to 15 days after the "fly free" date.

The Hessian fly free date for Tuscola County falls on Sept. 15. Adding 10 days to this makes the first week in October the optimum time for winter wheat planting.

The Hessian fly has not been a problem for many years, notes Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Director. However, it is by no means extinct in Michigan and can be found in very low numbers. Many varieties of wheat are resistant, but there are several biotypes of Hessian fly and the varieties are not always resistant to all biotypes of the fly.

Frankenmuth is resistant to races A and C and Augusta and Hillsdale are not resistant to the fly, however, they will provide excellent yield as long as they are planted 10 to 15 days after the "fly free" date.

Aphids are another insect that can be deterred by late planting. Aphids transmit barley yellow dwarf virus which causes firing of the leaves.

Diseases are more apt to be an immediate threat than insects in wheat planted in September. Earlier planted wheat develops larger roots, are in the soil longer and provide a greater chance of soil-borne root diseases to set in.

Always start with the best quality seed that has some resistant characteristics bred into it.

Remember, the highest Michigan wheat yield consistently come off fields planted in late September or early October.

In the late 1500s, perfumed gloves were much prized and it was the fashion to give them away at weddings.

Farm land rental seminar

A special Farm Land Rental seminar will be held Monday evening, Sept. 16, states Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Director.

The meeting will focus on (1) How to figure farm land rent rates, (2) Developing a fair shared rental agreement, and (3) Developing a fair cash rental agreement.

The meeting will be held at the Brentwood bowling alley meeting room in Caro at 7:00 p.m.

"We know many farmers are busy harvesting dry beans, however, after many inquiries relating to rental rates, we put together this special reminder. The meeting is open to both landlords and renters of farm land," states Bortel.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

Please take notice that on September 16, 1985, at 7:30 o'clock p.m. in the Board Room at the Cass City High School, the Board of Education of the Cass City Public Schools will hold a public hearing to consider the levying in 1985 of a proposed operational millage rate of 25.9000 mills pursuant to Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982.

The Board of Education has the complete authority to establish that 25.9000 mills be levied in 1985 from within its present authorized millage rate. The additional millage rate would increase local revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies in 1985 by one and eighty-two hundredths percent (1.82%).

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the additional millage rate. Not less than seven days following the public hearing the Board of Education may approve the levy of all or any portion of the proposed additional millage rate.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Education.

Sound nutrition advice available

By Betty Pattullo
Extension Home Economist
Reader, Beware,

Nutrition information -- it seems to come from everywhere: our neighbors, co-workers, television, the radio, magazines. Unfortunately, much nutrition information really is misinformation -- but it isn't always easy to tell which is which.

Magazines abound with advice about diet and nutrition. Articles on nutrition appear in a variety of publications, including those devoted exclusively to health and those devoted to fashion and beauty, athletics, and to home and family life. Information found in these magazines, according to a recent report of the American Council on Science and Health (ACSH), ranges from excellent to not too accurate.

According to ACSH, magazines that can be counted on to present accurate, up-to-date nutrition information include Self, Health, Good Housekeeping, Essence, Glamour, Parents, Science, Scientific American and Consumer Reports. Magazines that are not very reliable when presenting sound nutrition information are Cosmopolitan, Prevention, Let's Live, Harper's Bazaar and The Saturday Evening Post.

If you would like more information on foods and nutrition, you may call Betty Pattullo, extension home economist, at the Cooperative Extension Service in Caro. The number to call is 673-5999, Ext. 228.
