Escapee caught in Ohio, faces kidnapping charge

A 33-year-old escapee from Camp Tuscola, the minimum security prison, Wahjamega, faces federal kidnapping charges after he abducted an elderly Caro woman and fled the area Sunday afternoon.

William S. Day, formerly of the Lansing area, escaped from the prison sometime after an 11:30 a.m. prisoner check and about one hour later overpowered Geraldine Balongue, 80, Caro, in the Central Shop Rite grocery store parking lot. After forcing Balongue into her vehicle, he drove to an area north of Lansing and tied her to a tree and fled in her car. Balongue worked herself free, and was taken by a passerby to the Clinton County Sheriff's Department. Roadblocks were set up in the area, but failed to capture Day.

Day, a 6'5" white male was serving a 7 to 14-year sentence for writing bad checks. He was arrested by officers of the Mad River Township Police Department in the Dayton, Ohio, area. He is being held in the Montgomery County Jail until he is extradited to Michigan.

Day's escape and kidnapping came one day before two Tuscola County Commissioners met with Camp Tuscola Supervisor Mike Flintoft to complain about the escape problems at the prison.

Commissioner Mike Green, Mayville, explained he and Robert Russell, Vassar, presented a resolution to Flintoft explaining the commissioners are requesting a fence be put around the prison and the newly opened prison annex.

Green said Flintoft told them he thought maybe a single fence around the perimeter of the prison wouldn't affect the minimum security status of the prison, but a double fence would possibly turn the prison into a medium security prison where all types of prisoners, including sex offenders could be housed. Flintoft told the two commissioners that a single fence would possibly curb alcohol and drugs visitors brought to inmates.

Green also told Flintoft he understood the prison was understaffed, further adding to the escapee problem.

Flintoft told Green the prison is presently understaffed, but six more guards are to begin working at the prison soon.

Green and Russell are also to meet with Bob Brown, Director of Corrections for Michigan, to voice their feelings on the changes that were made in the prison since the state originally decided to put a prison in the Caro area. He explained they were originally told it was to be a Department of Natural Resources work camp where prisoners were to be housed while working on DNR projects. Funding cuts made it impossible for the DNR to complete construction of the camp, and the state took the project over. Only non-aggressive prisoners with sentences of one year or less were to be housed at the prison. Since it has been opened, prisoners with aggressive records, including robbery, kidnapping and murder have been housed at the facility.

Green explained the prison has inmates who still have five years left on their prison sentence. "If a guy has five years left, why wouldn't he escape," Green said.

3-day event

Over 2,000 attend Walbro dedication

Visiting dignitaries, Walbro employees from Caro and Cass City, representatives from Cass City businesses and government, and persons involved in building the latest addition to Walbro Corporation attended a dedication ceremony Thursday at corporate headquarters in Cass City.

The ceremony held at noon featured short talks by Chairman of the Board W.E. Walpole and President Lambert Althaver. Althaver told the group how Walbro had evolved into an international $80 million corporation by following the tenets set down by W.E. Walpole, who founded the company 35 years ago.

That is to give service first. The bricks and mortar, the iron and the rest of the necessary parts of manufacturing are not what we are selling. "We are really selling service," Althaver said.

The Walbro president noted the good relationship between Cass City and Walbro that has been a positive factor for both over the years. He said the relationship was never more apparent than today when the community used window displays and the Chronicle ran a special section on the dedication.

Althaver pledged a continuing commitment to growth. To do this we must build better products and provide better service, he said.

Walter Walpole was given a standing ovation when he addressed the group. He said that when he left an established company to start Walbro, he vowed to stick to certain basic business principles.

Business would be transacted only if it is of benefit to all concerned. The company would put serving first. You have to give to receive, he said, and if you do it is returned many times over. It has been at Walbro, he said.

The company has also stressed the value of employees. Your co-workers must be cared for, shown that they are appreciated, the 80-year-old board chairman feels.

It helps if you care, he concluded. That's why everyday I bring a few dozen cookies to the plant to share. It's a very small cost item as everybody realizes, he said, but it shows the concern we have for our workers.

OTHER SPEAKERS

These other speakers were on the program. Dr. D.E. Rawson told how the community organized to have land suitable for industry and how community leaders banded together to make it possible for the company to move to the community.

Today, industry furnishes one-third of the tax base in the community. Rawson also read a resolution of appreciation that the village council passed and presented to the company.

Rep. James Barcia spoke briefly and thanked Walbro for having "faith in the state that you do." Frank Makarauskas from the Michigan Department of Commerce, pinch hit for Governor James Blanchard, who was out of state. He congratulated Walbro and its part in helping the economy of the state.

Master of Ceremonies was Robert Walpole, senior vice-president. He introduced special guests, including representatives from the company from Japan, Germany and Mexico.

He said that many, many persons at Walbro were responsible for helping with the expansion, but two persons were singled out for special mention. They were Bill Ewald, purchasing agent who was project coordinator, and Brian Althaver, who supervised the dedication ceremony.

Cass City loses 61

3 area schools' enrollment slips

For the seventh year in a row the Cass City School District has reported another major decrease in student population when the state required fourth Friday count was made last week.

School Supt. Donald Crouse said this year the district will have 61 fewer students than last year. The loss of students also means a loss in state funding for the district. Cass City receives $2,113 in state school aid for each student enrolled in class on Friday, Sept. 27. The decreased student population will amount to a loss of $128,923 in state funds to the district.

From 1978 to 1983 the district has averaged a loss of 55 students per year. Last year the district reported 86 fewer students than for the 1983-84 school year.

Crouse said he was expecting a loss of about 30 students at the Intermediate School because of a small seventh grade class. The enrollment went down by 45 students in the school.

Because of the anticipated loss of students, one teaching position was eliminated at the school. Crouse added another money saving measure the school implemented this year was to replace full-time high school principal Roland Pakonen with Russ Biefer who splits his working day between the classroom and the administrative office. Pakonen has accepted a principal's position with another school district.

Crouse pointed out the district also lost an estimated 15 students from the adult high school completion program. The total number of students who are enrolled in the program is submitted to the state 10 days after the fourth Friday count.

Crouse said he did not see any program cuts on the immediate horizon to make up for the loss in state aid. He pointed to the reduction of one teacher's position, and the one-half day reduction of an administrator's position as two moves the district made to cut expenses. The district also has a fund balance of about $400,000 from last year to absorb the loss.

Crouse feels the decreasing number of students attending school is the result of people moving out of the area to find work, and a decrease in the birth rate a few years ago. He pointed out that for "a few years" teachers didn't take maternity leaves. Crouse feels that increases in kindergarten class sizes are a sign the district will start making up for the losses over the past years. He anticipates next year's kindergarten class will be larger than this year's.

Of the four school districts that serve the area, only Owen-Gage showed an increase. This year the district has 389 students as compared to 377 last year.

Ironically, the only school district to see an increase in student population does not qualify for state school aid because the district's property evaluation is too high for the number of students.

Uby, also an out-of-formula school district, showed a decrease of six students. This year 853 students are enrolled in the Uby School District. Business Manager Mark Tenbusch said they came across an "unusual situation" when counting students in the senior class. Of the 97 students only 37 were boys.

Dr. Jerry Laycock, superintendent of the Kings-ton School District, reported 722 students were counted on the fourth Friday. This is a decrease of four students. The district receives about $2,100 per student from state school funding.

Council refuses request for paving easement

Issues concerning Schell improvements were the main topic of discussion at the regular Cass City Village Council meeting Tuesday, Sept. 24.

The first issue was a request from Bill Wallace, owner of Armca Incorporated, 4194 Doerr Rd., Cass City. Wallace approached the council to request the village pay for the paving of a 13-foot wide area leading into his parking lot. The area Wallace requested the village pave, the easement on the south side of the building, is 150 feet long.

"My property line originally was the center of the road, and that property was given to the village about 10 years ago," Wallace said. "When we first built out there in 1969 we put that road in." Wallace explained he put the road and culvert in, but the road ended at the rear of his property. As the development corporation expanded, the road was extended to its current length of 880 feet.

"I just felt I should have some consideration," Wallace said. "This is a business...An industrial area, and I don't feel that I should be paving that particular area (13-foot easement). I didn't really need that road paved. I have no benefit from that road whatsoever."

Wallace added he also didn't need to pave his parking lot, but he wanted to improve the appearance of the corner.

"I am not asking for a 12-year moratorium on my taxes. All I am asking for is that to be paved," Wallace said, about the 13-foot wide easement.

Trustee Dorothy Stahlbaum asked Village Superintendent Lou S. LaPonsie what the policy is on easements for commercial and industrial property.

LaPonsie added that if the area had been paved, the village would pay the cost of paving.

Wallace said he wanted to pave the parking lot, but it would be "senseless" to leave a 13-foot wide ribbon of gravel between the edge of the parking lot, and the area between the road. He added the paving of the lot is contingent on the village paving the 13-foot easement.

"I can appreciate what you're saying, being a small business person myself," Stahlbaum said. "But I can also say how do we, six people sit here and justify this without setting a precedent that comes upon us. We put curb and gutter on streets where maybe not 100 percent of the people want it. I can see a big bag of worms being opened up by these people saying 'hey look, I want my approach done. You did it for so and so.'"

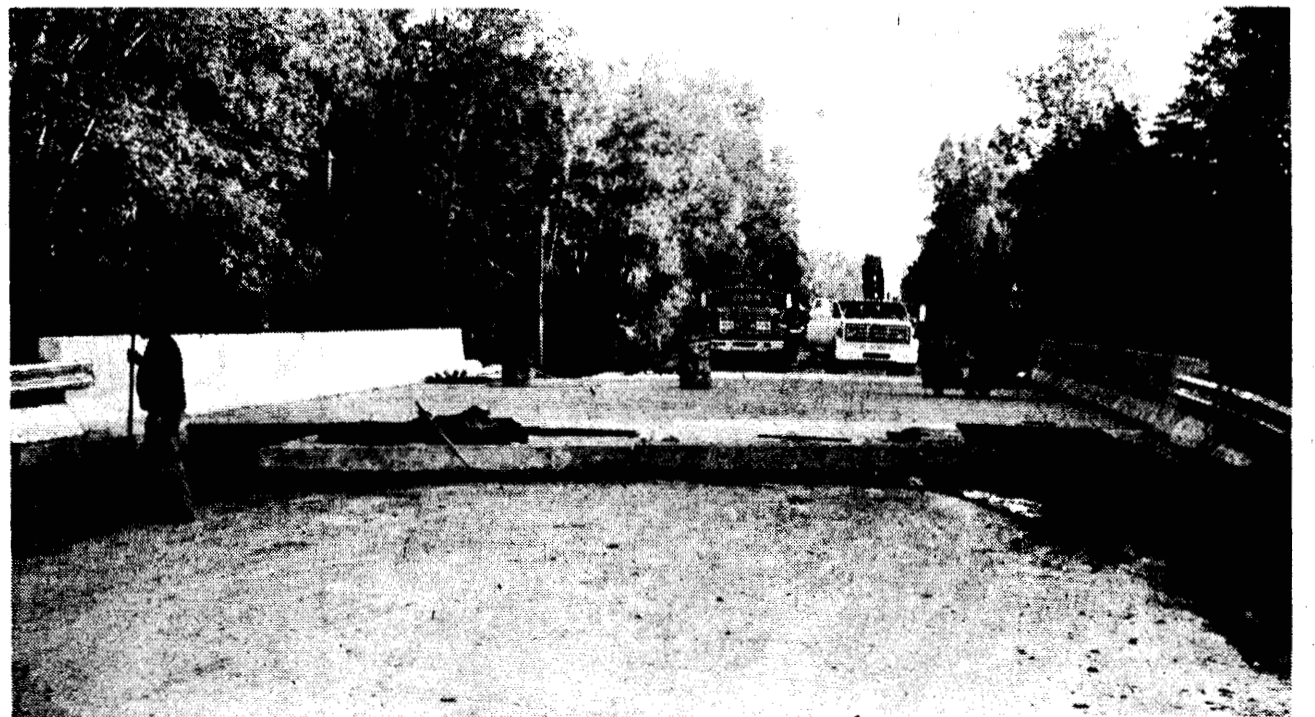

Trustee Elwyn Helwig said it is the same type of situation that property owners on the alley south of Main Street faced recently when the village paved the alley. It was up to the property owners to pave the area up to their building.

"I am afraid if we allowed this, there would be quite a few businesses wanting some money for paving to their back door," Helwig added.

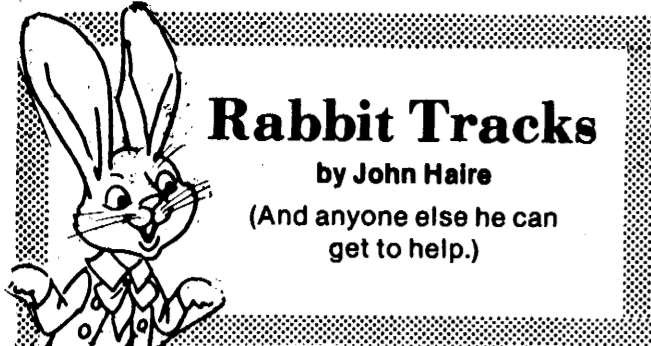

Wallace feels he should have some consideration from the village, because when the industrial park first began expanding, he gave up property for the easement of the road, and gravel for building the road came from the back of his property.

"We had somebody that came to the village and asked for special consideration on their taxes in order to provide jobs, and got it," Wallace said. "Now here I am, a small guy that doesn't even need that road. Does not need the curb and gutter. Does not need the road paved, and is not going to be using it anywhere near (as much) like Please turn to page 11."

FINISHING TOUCHES - Construction work on the M-53 bridge over the north branch of the Cass River is expected to be completed this week unless workers have to stop work because of rain. The new bridge, 90 feet long and 40 feet wide, is replacing a narrow 22-foot wide bridge.

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

In an obvious attempt to curb the sale of liquor to underaged persons, the new Michigan driver licenses will contain the words "under 21". The wording will be on all first time driver licenses. The good news for some will be that the license will be valid for up to four years. The bad news is that all persons, no matter how long they have had their licenses, will be required to renew at age 21.

The Walbro plant in Cass City is big... and bewildering. At the dedication ceremony, an attempt was made to show the Mike Weavers a comparator machine that I'd been shown a few days earlier.

The only trouble was when I went to the place where I thought I'd seen it, it wasn't there. Never could find it although I did wander around the area for 10 minutes or so trying to find it.

Table knives are a rather late innovation. Until about 1600, diners brought to the table their own knives, which served as daggers between meals.

For about seven months now the routine has included about 10 minutes of brisk exercise every morning.

And let me tell you, it has paid off. Right now I'm getting over a cold that I've had for about three weeks. Just think about how long it would have taken to recover BE (before exercise) if I hadn't gone all the previous year without any cold at all.

There's another advantage to exercise and I'm going to take it out of the closet and talk about it right here in this family newspaper.

It's probably the biggest plus you get AE (after exercise). You get to bug your wife about it.

Every morning you can remind her of the terrible health risk she's taken without AE (any exercise). It's better to approach this tender subject at one of two times during breakfast. After she's emptied the coffee cup or when the coffee cup is safely out of immediate reach or you are apt to suffer CIF (coffee in the face).

If your wife happens to have luckily averted ever visiting a hospital as a patient other than when the children come along, remind her that this is past history.

Stretch the biceps and flex those muscles a few times to illustrate how much you've improved from your BE days.

Tell her how good you feel AE every day.

There are other ways of brightening the day with exercise. Grab a hold of one of those exercise books that outline just how great a continuing exercise program makes you feel.

Read it (out loud if there's anyone else in the room) and say it's just a matter of time before the real you emerges from the effort you are expending.

Remind yourself of the calories that are burned up every morning. Enough so that a box of M & M's certainly can't do any harm. Perhaps it would be okay to decorate an ice cream cone with them.

Never ever admit to yourself that BE you feel lousy and AE you feel worse and that maybe all this exercise is nothing but a lot of wasted time.

An $800,000 state subsidy loss to the Tuscola and Saginaw Bay Railway is not expected to put the railroad in dire financial straits, according to T&SB Vice-president Maynard Ritter.

Ritter explained the railroad, which serves the western side of Tuscola County, has been preparing for the subsidy phase out for the past four years. The subsidy program went into effect in 1976, when major railroads throughout the state and nation filed bankruptcy.

Ritter said the railroad company, which also operates rail service from Ann Arbor to Frankfort; Reed City to Petoskey, and to Traverse City area, has been using the state subsidy to upgrade and improve tracks so trains can operate more efficiently.

"When we first started (on subsidy program) our tracks were in terrible shape. We were having de-rails daily," Ritter said. Because the tracks were bad, the trains had to operate at slow speeds, adding to the cost of operations. Now trains are able to operate at maximum speed, reducing the cost of making a trip. As an example, Ritter said today, because of improved track conditions, one train can transport loads as fast as two trains could on bad tracks. Ritter added the company spent more than last year's $800,000 state subsidy on track improve-

T&SB Railroad prepared for $800,000 subsidy cut

Ritter is confident the railroad will be able to continue operating profitably without the subsidy.

The T&SB Railway operates a branch line from Vassar to Caro and on to Colling, along with lines from Vassar to Millington and from Richville to Saginaw.

Ritter said they looked into servicing the communities along the abandoned Grand Trunk lines, south of Bad Axe to Cass City, and possibly to Kings-ton, but they couldn't because the Chessie Railroad would not allow them the use of their tracks from Reese to Bad Axe.

"If It Fitz..."

Identity crisis

By Jim Fitzgerald

"Get out of my way," I said.

"Who do you think you're talking to?" my wife asked. I was talking to myself. I'd just read an interview in which actress-writer Shirley MacLaine said it is important for people to get out of their own way.

"It could have been channeling the God energy, as they say, the Universal positivity," MacLaine said when asked how she could possibly write a 421-page book in only five weeks. "I don't think it matters. What matters is that I've learned to get out of my own way. Everybody should learn to get out of their own way."

For the last few years, following the advice of several celebrities often quoted in People magazine, I've been trying unsuccessfully to find myself. People people say a person can't be happy and fulfilled until he or she finds himself or herself. Sometimes himself discovers he's a herself, or vice versa, in which case they all have material for a best-selling book.

But now I'm wondering if my search for me is worthwhile. If, once I find me, I should get out of my way, why bother? Wouldn't it be simpler if I remained un-found, because then I wouldn't have to worry about bumping into me?

When I was a boy, my father said I was so clumsy I tripped over my own feet. He also said I was so careless I would go to school without my head if it weren't attached to my shoulders. But because there was no People magazine in those days, not even a Phil Donahue, there was no way to tell if my father knew what he was talking about, so I ignored him.

As a result, I grew up not knowing I should get out of my way. Also, somewhere along the line I misplaced more than my head, and I still haven't found myself. Obviously, my life would have been different if my father hadn't lacked the imprimatur of being quoted in a nationally circulated compilation of celebrity wisdom.

I pay attention only to celebrities, because they make me think.

According to often-published reports, Mick Jagger promised if his latest child were a boy, he'd marry the mother. That made me think about what Jagger would do for twin boys — perhaps not only marry the mother but also let her move into the main house? For twin girls, have the wench beheaded?

Ike Turner, in reply to charges he occasionally beat singer Tina Turner when she was his wife, didn't admit it, but said if he did treat her brutally, "and she's the one everybody loves today, well then they should be proud I was brutal because she's what they like to hear."

That made me think of what historian Arthur Schlesinger Jr. said about Ted Kennedy a few years ago: "Chappaquiddick would make Sen. Kennedy a better president. Chappaquiddick was to Kennedy as polio was to Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Schlesinger meant that battling the handicap of paralysis instilled virtues that made Roosevelt a finer leader than if he'd never had polio, and Kennedy could benefit similarly from battling the handicap of causing a woman to drown.

Following that line of celebrity reasoning, Kennedy's presidential possibilities would be even more promising if he'd driven a loaded school bus off the bridge at Chappaquiddick. And Tina Turner would be an even more popular entertainer if Ike had beaten her brains out every day they were married.

Onward and Upward, guided by celebrities. Bittersweet will be the day I bump into myself. It will mean I didn't get out of my own way but, on the other hand, I will have finally found myself.

A summer-long raffle by Post 3644 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars ended last month when a Honda three wheel all-terrain vehicle was won by a 14-year-old Decker girl.

According to Jack Esau of the VFW, Michele Laming, 14, the daughter of Bonnie and Melvin Laming, Decker, won the ATV at a Sept. 6 drawing. Esau said the sale of raffle tickets, which began during the Cass City July 4 celebration, raised about $1,000 for the VFW building and site fund.

Richard Partlo: Why should I be losing money on farm?

In 1974 Richard B. Partlo took a leave of absence from his teacher's position at Caro Community Schools to take over his ailing father's 350-acre farm. His father had suffered a back injury. Partlo anticipated returning to the school district in one year. But the next year Partlo's father retired from farming, and Partlo, instead of teaching students, found himself taking care of business on the Akron area sugar beet farm. It took 11 years, but this fall Partlo has again returned to school work. Now, instead of teaching students industrial arts and drafting courses, Partlo has accepted a counselor's position at the Cass City Intermediate School. Partlo explained this was the type of position he had prepared himself for the year he left teaching. Partlo earned his Master of Arts degree in guidance and counseling from Central Michigan University two months after he left Caro schools. Partlo said when he started farming in the mid-70's it was a profitable business, but he missed working with young people. He missed being directly involved with the educational process. To keep active in what is going on in education, Partlo has served as the president and vice-president of the Akron-Fairgrove Board of Education for six years. "I missed not working in this capacity," Partlo, sitting behind a desk in his third floor Intermediate School counselor's office, said. One day Partlo looked at the problems he and other farmers are facing, and decided to return to working with children's education. "I have 37 credits beyond a masters," Partlo said. "Why should I be losing money on the farm?" In addition to being a farmer and a teacher, for the past five years Partlo has been a distributor for success motivation cassettes, something he firmly believes in for himself and his students. "That's done a lot for me, that's for sure...these kids aren't too young." One of Partlo's mottos is "you give the world your best, and the best comes back to you. My job is to help children develop their potential through education." Partlo's positive thinking attitude is reflected in the letterhead he designed for Akron-Fairgrove schools that reads: "Education is the stimulation of the imagination." Partlo feels that a person has to be prepared for any changes that may come up in their life. "I think that success comes to people who have alternative plans. You make your own success." Throughout his life Partlo has taken alternative plans several times. He has a photography studio where he has been doing professional level portraits and weddings for the past 20 years. He has also remodeled houses for five years, and was a Caro school bus driver for four years. Partlo, 45, keeps in his office a collage of photos showing him as a child, and as a parent with his own four children. He feels when students come to his office they can look at the pictures, and see that he too was once a child, and has experienced the type of problems they may be having.

LAMBERT ALTHAVER accepts a wall clock from Dr. Delbert Rawson, who represented the village and the Cass City Chamber of Commerce at the dedication. A plaque on the clock expressed appreciation for the company's dedication to the community.

DICK PARTLO, the new counselor at the Cass City Intermediate School, reviews a student's academic history.

Arn pleads guilty to sex charge

Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Patrick Joslyn accepted a guilty plea from a 56-year-old Deford man on a charge of attempted criminal sexual conduct, third degree. The court accepted the plea in Sept. 23 action.

The charge against Walter J. Arn, 56, 6725 Bevens Rd., Deford, stems from a May 3, 1985 incident with a 13-year-old boy in Kingston Township.

Joslyn will sentence Arn Oct. 28. A $10,000 personal recognizance bond continues. Under conditions of the bond no person under 18 years old shall be on Arn's premises.

McLeody Days

By Bill McLeod

Sunday afternoon had its share of ups and downs for my son and I as we killed time in the Lakeside Mall while Diane did her shopping. We spent more than an hour riding the escalators and elevator in the giant shop-o-rama.

The afternoon was a welcome relief after a tough Saturday of helping Diane's two sisters move, and listening to a lot of bickering from (putting it mildly) all of the pasta people. I was glad to have some time to spend with Andy. He's starting to show signs of outgrowing the terrible two's, so it is a lot easier to sit back and enjoy his company.

One nice thing about going to the city is I can forget about acting like an adult, because I won't see anybody I know. We took turns running up the stairs between the two escalators to see which way was the fastest. At the water fountain I tried my darndest to make a penny skip across the water (I often have been tempted to reach in and see how much I could make in an afternoon, but I don't think the security cops would treat me like a child who snuck away from his parents).

One thing that did bother me was the fear I felt whenever some stranger (usually a middle aged woman) bent down and started talking to Andy. In Cass City I wouldn't have thought twice about it, as a matter of fact, that is one of the best things about living in this area. But I've read too many horror stories about child abductions, so until Andy gets old enough to understand all of the differences, his hand will always be red from me tightly holding onto it until we get back to the safety of Cass City.

On a recent trip into Saginaw we tried hooking a strap onto the back of his bib overalls, but I felt like I was walking a dog all afternoon. It doesn't bother me to be so overprotective of Andy, but I always hate to stop him from investigating the world around him.

Some of the best times I have spent with Andrew have been following behind him while in one of the larger department stores. It's great to find out what catches your child's attention.

His interests reach much further than the length of his arm. If he sees something on a top shelf it becomes a challenge that he can't avoid.

One thing's for sure, if the store has a pet department I can always count on spending most of our time explaining all about the fish and birds they have for sale.

Other than an occasional trip to the grocery store, the only shopping I do is at a hardware store. By now I am sure the Stilsons have grown used to children rummaging through the large bins of nails and picking up all of the nuts and bolts in the store, but I still get a kick out of it.

One thing I did miss about being in the mall was the friendliness of the Cass City merchants.

Although everybody seemed polite enough, it didn't seem to come naturally.

JOHN M. LaROSE, Executive Director of the Michigan Townships Association, spoke to 185 township officials from Tuscola, Sanilac and Huron Counties at a district meeting Wednesday.

At 3 county meeting

Township officials told of insurance problems

The problems of increased costs of liability insurance was one of the topics discussed at the Michigan Township Association's meeting at the Colony House Sept. 25.

"Has anybody here had a problem with liability insurance lately?" John LaRose, executive director of the MTA, questioned the audience of about 185 township officials from Sanilac, Tuscola and Huron Counties. Some of the township officials nervously laughed, indicating they have had problems.

LaRose spoke about several townships and other municipalities that have suffered major economic losses because they were unable to pay the increased cost of liability insurance or their policy holder had moved out of the state. Several townships had a 300 percent increase in policy costs. He reported several townships have been sued by former employees who were fired, and later challenged the decision in the courts, and won. One of these townships did not have liability insurance. The township had to pass a special millage increase to cover the economic losses.

"Don't let your policy lapse, and not be covered," LaRose warned the officials. "No matter how much it costs."

LaRose said the MTA is working with other organizations, including the Michigan Municipal League, the Michigan Department of Transportation and the Attorney General, to encourage legislators to pass a bill that would place restrictions on the present liability awards. He explained the best bill he has seen has been prepared by Senator Alan Crosey, Republican, DeWitt.

He explained the bill limits non-economic awards to $250,000, and would limit the damages against governmental agencies to the degree of fault. LaRose explained that if someone filed suit for $1 million, and the courts determined a township was only 10 percent at fault, the most they would have to pay would be $100,000. Under the present law, if the principal agency was unable to pay its share, the township would be made to pay the entire $1 million.

LaRose said last year the state paid out $15.4 million in liability suits. This year it is expected to increase to $20 million.

Another area that LaRose told township officials to be aware of is the possible elimination of federal revenue sharing funds. He said they have a guarantee the funds will be coming for the 1986 fiscal year, but "don't budget anything

Deputies arrest 43 in August

Of the 43 persons arrested by Tuscola County Sheriff's Department deputies during August, 11 were arrested for operating a vehicle while under the influence of alcohol.

Deputies issued 339 tickets during the month, including 194 for speeding, and 13 for seat belt violations. During August one person was killed on Tuscola County roads. At the end of August eight persons had been killed in the county. Deputies have responded to 662 accidents this year. From these accidents, 309 persons were injured, an increase of 43 over last year at this time.

Of the 1,090 telephone calls the department received during August, 178 were to report traffic problems. The department answered 24 calls for fire departments throughout the county.

The county jail received 162 inmates this month. Fifteen females and one juvenile were housed in the jail. A total of 3,984 meals were served. There were 154 inmates released.

Sheriff's Department patrol units drove 37,439 miles and used 2,747.6 gallons of gasoline for an average of 13.6 miles per gallon.

The total number of respective complaints from, and accidents in area townships and villages during August were: Columbia Township, 5 complaints and 1 accident; Elkland Township, 17 and 1; Cass City, 68 and accidents not recorded by the Sheriff's Department; Ellington Township, 15 and 2; Elmwood Township, 5 and 0; Kingston Township, 23 and 5; Koylton Township, 8 and 3; Novesta Township, 18 and 6, and Wells Township, 19 and 3.

Police report three vandalism complaints

Although it isn't Halloween yet, the Cass City Police Department responded to three calls of vandalism last week.

Chief Gene Wilson reported a storm window was broken at the Jeannette Osentoski residence, 6603 Huron St., Cass City. The window, valued at about $20, had a small hole in it. Osentoski feels the hole could have been caused by a rock thrown by a car tire or by some kids playing in the area. Wilson took the report Sept. 23, when Osentoski first noticed the damage.

Chief Wilson also reported a vehicle owned by Roger Martindale, 6575 Lincoln St., Gagetown, had a pair of fog lights broken Sept. 23 while it was parked in the Charmont parking lot. Martindale said the vehicle was parked in the lot from 6:45 to 9:30 p.m. The fog lights were valued at $35.

A set of fog lights, valued at $20 were broken on a vehicle owned by Joe Guza, 4468 Woodland St., Cass City, about two weeks ago. Guza, whose house had obscene words painted on it by vandals Sept. 14, feels the fog lights may have been broken at the same time.

The Cass City Police Department also reported a 20-inch lawnmower valued at $100 was stolen from the garage of Ann Bassett, 4354 Woodland Ave., Cass City. Bassett told officer Donald Miller Jr., she last saw the lawnmower Sept. 21. It was reported missing Friday.

New books at the library

AT MOTHER'S REQUEST by Jonathan Coleman (non-fiction). In a Utah court in 1963, Frances Schreuder was convicted of first-degree murder for masterminding the 1978 execution of her father, Salt Lake City multimillionaire Franklin Bradshaw, allegedly motivated by her fear that he was about to disinherit her. A year before, in the same court, her son Marc had been convicted of second-degree murder for pulling the trigger. Evidence was presented at his trial of Frances Schreuder's control over and abuse of her three children (her son Larry was in a Pennsylvania prison at the time for the attempted murder of her college roommate; her young daughter now lives with Bradshaw's widow and a companion). With great insight, Coleman, who covered the case for CBS News, untangles the bizarre Bradshaw family history and the psychopathology of this twice-divorced single mother whose father's money had supported her family and financed her growing Manhattan social position.

EIGHT BLACK HORSES by Ed McBain (mystery). While Carella, Hawes, Brown, Kling and the other detectives investigate the murder of a woman bank teller, their legendary adversary (the Deaf Man) sends them clues to his operation: pictures of eight black horses, six police shields, four police hats, etc. The officers' discovery leads to the Deaf Man as the woman's killer but they fail to interpret the messages. Having stolen a fortune, the Deaf Man sets off a device to blow up the 87th and everyone there.

THE SOONG DYNASTY by Sterling Seagrave (non-fiction). Charlie Soong was instrumental in the overthrow of the Chinese monarchy in 1912. His second daughter was the wife of Sun Yat-sen, president of the Republic of China; his third daughter was Madame Chiang Kai-shek and thus first lady of Nationalist China on the island of Taiwan; and one son was thought to be perhaps the richest man in the world. The author does not steer away from the good that the Soongs did on their hell-bent path to influence, but it is the dark side of their deeds that readers will remember most - including the family's sophisticated manipulation of U.S. public and governmental opinion into supporting the Chinese Nationalists over the Chinese Communists.

Wants fence around prison
County investigates hiring administrator

At a Sept. 24 meeting of the Tuscola County commissioners the board decided it was time to investigate hiring a county administrator.

Commissioner Royce Russell, Cass City, said about the need for an administrator. At the meeting, commissioners discussed the possibility of having the administrator also take charge at the Health Department. The Health Department has been without a director since John Niederhauser resigned earlier this year.

person who is accountable for the entire courthouse operation. "It is going to have to be a special person who has the ability to work with people," Russell said. "Who he or she is, I don't know."

Commissioners also agreed to spend $13,000 for roof repairs to the annex building. Russell explained they originally wanted to repair the jail roof, also, but they have decided they can wait until spring.

Commissioners adopted a resolution supporting efforts by representative Dick Allen, Republican, Caro, that a fence be put around the minimum security prison, Camp Tuscola, Wahjamega.

Since opening in January, eight prisoners have escaped. Three have not been found. In the meeting, Russell called the prison and the prison annex a "black eye" to the county.

Schell Street owners will get free curb and gutter, council says the parking lot behind me is going to use it, and I am being told no, we have a precedent, and I am sorry sir, but you just can't have it that way."

Several council members quickly informed Wallace that size didn't make any difference. Trustee Larry Davis said by agreeing to fund the easement paving, the council would be committing funds for paving 13 feet of easement on every street in the village.

CURB AND GUTTER

Although Wallace didn't get the village to pave the 13-foot easement, he did leave the meeting knowing he wouldn't have to pay for curb and gutter improvements to the street.

Village President Ray Armstead Jr. explained the village has been waiting for two months to get an answer from the state whether they can assess curb and gutter costs to Schell Street property owners. At last month's meeting, Armstead told the council he and LaPonsie have been unable to get a clear-cut answer from the Michigan Small Cities Program, who supplied a grant to pay for the cost of paving the road, if they can assess curb and gutter costs.

The council decided to waive the ordinance that requires a special assessment be levied against property owners on Schell Street for curb and gutter improvements. In the past the only time the ordinance was waived was when the entire project, both paving and curb and gutter costs were paid for by a special grant.

If the village had decided to levy the assessment, it would have cost property owners $6.70 per foot for a total cost of $11,792.

SATELLITE DISH

The council accepted a proposed recommendation from the Planning Commission that would regulate the placement of satellite dish antennas in the village. In the past, the village has used the same zoning ordinance for satellite dish placement as they have for accessory structures.

The commission's recommendation will still require the antennas be regulated by accessory structure ordinances, but will also have additional rules governing their placement.

The new rules proposed by the planning commission are: One receiver per residential structure; no decorating designs, logos or advertising; no larger than 10 feet in diameter, no underground wiring; no part of the antenna or base shall be closer than three feet to the property line or easement; the dish shall be effectively screened from view by natural plants, trees or other barriers, and the dish must be anchored in an appropriate concrete base.

A second part of the ordinance regulates roof mounted satellite dish antennas. Under the proposed ordinance the antenna must be mounted to the primary or accessory structure's roof, and not to chimneys, towers, trees or poles; it cannot be larger than three feet in diameter, and not higher than three feet above the roof; the electrical motor must be limited to 110 volts, and be enclosed in protective guards, and the antenna must be bonded to a grounding rod.

The council gave their permission to the planning commission to hold a public hearing on the proposed ordinance. The hearing is expected at the November planning commission meeting.

In other business, trustees were informed that 91.8 percent of the village taxes were collected as of Sept. 20.

The remaining taxes to be collected have been turned over to the county treasurer's office where they will be subjected to a four percent administrative charge, and the balance due will be subjected to a one-percent-per-month fine.

LaPonsie told the council that Hubbell, Roth and Clark Inc., the village's consulting engineering firm, has agreed to revise the specifications on the village-owned water tower maintenance work at no additional cost to the village. Trustees were not satisfied with the original specifications, which they felt were too detailed, and demanded unnecessary work to the tower.

Trustees specified Halloween trick-or-treat hours will be Oct. 31 from 6:00 to 7:30 p.m.

Trustees adopted a resolution of appreciation thanking the Walbro Corp. for their continuing commitment to Cass City. A plaque was presented to the corporation at their open house celebration last week.

Owen-Gage tops C-PS, preps for loop co-leader Peck Friday

After dropping two games in a row to the two toughest teams in the Thumb D League, Owen-Gage claimed its first league victory at Carsonville-Port Sanilac Friday night, 32-8.

The game was a much needed breather after losing to Caseville and De-ckerville, but the breather will be short lived as the Bulldogs take on Peck Friday night at Owendale. The Pirates will be coming to Owendale with a 3-0 league record, narrowly squeaking by Kingston Saturday 7-6.

Bulldog Coach Arnie Besonen said they will have to stop the Peck ground game if they are going to stay in the contest. "They are a good, hard running ball club," Besonen added. "Once again we will be looking up at them. We're the smallest team in the league."

Besonen said after Friday night's win, the Bulldogs are beginning to sharpen their football skills. He explained the younger players are finally learning how to play their positions.

"Last week (in practice) we blocked, blocked and blocked," Besonen said. "It worked last week, it will work again."

Against C-PS Friday night the Bulldogs' blocking practice paid off as they had 250 yards of total offense while holding the Tigers to 95 yards.

able to generate an offensive drive until the Bulldogs pushed over their first score on a six-yard run by Bill Ricker with 2:42 left in the quarter. Ricker missed the extra point kick.

In the second quarter the Bulldogs scored 14 unanswered points to quickly put the game out of the Tigers' grasp. Owen-Gage's second score of the game came through the airways, with quarterback Stu Stirrett connecting with his favorite receiver Ron Susalla on a 21-yard pass. Ricker kicked the extra point. The third Bulldog score was culminated by a one-yard run by Stirrett. Ricker's extra point kick was good. As the game was winding down, Stirrett would again take a one-yard jaunt for the Bulldogs' fifth and final score. In the third quarter Mike Mandich scored the fourth Bulldog touchdown on a five-yard run.

The Tigers only score came in the fourth quarter against Owen-Gage's second string team. Tiger running back Chris Washe put C-PS on the scoreboard with a five-yard run. Washe also caught a two-yard pass for the two point conversion.

Stirrett completed 4 of 10 Bulldog passes for 60 yards. Freshman quarterback Marc Reinhardt threw one pass that was intercepted.

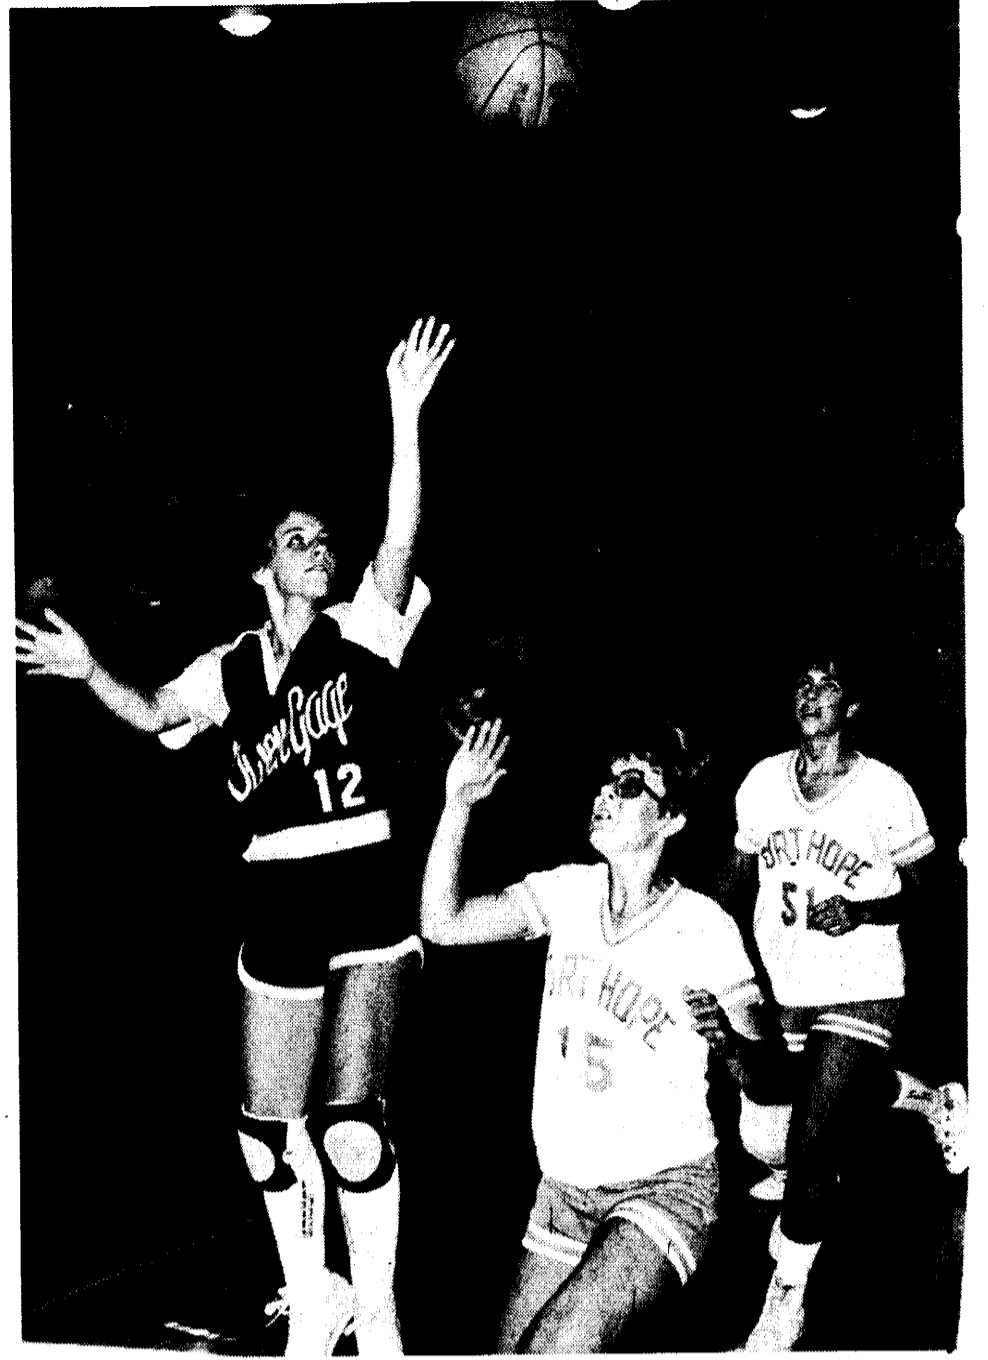

Ten Owen-Gage players carried the ball 36 times for 190 yards. Susalla led all Bulldog runners with 91 yards on 10 carries. Mandich carried 10 times for 41 yards.

Marvin Catton led the C-PS offense with 11 carries for 47 yards.

UP AND OVER - Deb Engelhardt goes over the top of a Port Hope player to score two of her four points in Owen-Gage's 28-45 loss to the Blue Stars. It was the sixth straight loss for the Bulldogs this season.

Bulldogs bow to North Huron and Port Hope

The hard times for the Owen-Gage girls' basketball team are continuing, with the Bulldogs dropping two games last week to give them an overall 0-6 league record.

Against North Huron Sept. 24 the Bulldogs were beaten 53-31 despite a 19-point attack from Susie Salcido. The Bulldogs fell behind 12-5 during the first quarter, and were never able to get into the game.

The junior varsity narrowly lost to North Huron with the final score 22-23.

Against Port Hope Thursday night, the Bulldogs quickly fell behind, allowing the Blue Stars to score 12 unanswered points. The Bulldogs managed to put six points on the board by the end of the quarter.

Salcido again led the Bulldogs with eight points. Cindy Enderle tossed in seven points.

Coach Cathy Kropewnicki said one bright spot, an improved Bulldog defense, emerged from the games last week. She explained they switched from a 2-1-2 defense to a 3-2 defense that she felt "worked a lot better."

The Bulldogs will host Caseville Oct. 8 at the Owendale gymnasium.

Hawks bow to Imlay cagers

A disastrous second quarter at Imlay City kept the Cass City Red Hawks still looking for their first win of the season. The Spartans topped the Hawks 49-37.

Take away that second quarter and the teams played practically even all night. Unfortunately for Hawk fans, a basketball game is four quarters and each one counts.

At the end of the first period Imlay City was in front by a scant point, 12-11. But in the fatal second period the Spartans had a 15-4 advantage and for all practical purposes tucked away the game.

Shannon McIntosh led the Hawks with 19 points. Chris Britt was also in double figures with 11.

For Imlay City, Kathy Langemann scored 23 to lead all scorers. Lucy Nettles added 10.

School budget story clarified

Clarification of last week's story depicting the financial picture at Cass City High School is needed.

Although the figures were substantially correct they did not include sufficient explanation.

The school's total revenues raised to $4,086,913 from $4,073,273, an increase of $13,640. Revenues from local taxes increased $83,795. Money received from the state stayed about the same with an insignificant increase of $278.

Money received from Federal sources dropped $79,352.

Besides these revenues, $57,250 was credited from special education and a transfer from the general fund bringing the total to $4,144,163.

The school operated at a slight loss during the 1984-85 school year, spending $41,349 more than it took in by dipping into a cash reserve left from the previous year. Starting the new fiscal year July 1 there was $442,435 cash on hand.

The teaching staff at the school cost $2.255 million, while administration costs were $211,139 and total supporting services which includes administration and all other costs totaled $1.417 million.

Marlette is homecoming foe

Hawks extend Imlay loss string, 33-20

Fresh from a 33-20 decision over Imlay City last week the Cass City Red Hawks are working hard this week to try and make it two in a row when Marlette comes to town Friday. Cass City will have an extra incentive to win against the Red Raiders. It's the annual homecoming game and the post game festivities will be a lot brighter if the Hawks can top Marlette. That won't be easy. Based on comparative scores, the game ranks as a tossup. It's very likely that the breaks will decide the issue. Although the Hawks probably didn't need any breaks to top Imlay City which has not won a game in over four years, they did create a few on the way to the victory. It didn't take Cass City long to break out in front. With 10:57 left in the first period, Jeff Lefler broke loose on a 62-yard scoring jaunt. Todd Stahjbaum added the extra point. The Spartans started a touchdown drive on the Cass City 35 later in the first period. It was helped by a questionable pass interference penalty. With a first on the Hawk eight-yard line, the Spartans took it over in four plays with Greg Dennis scoring from three yards out with 5:56 left. When the kick missed, the Hawks were in front by a scant point, 7-6. But two quick touchdown strikes in the next 10 minutes decided the issue for Cass City. The first came from 1:05 left in the first quarter. Ken Pasanski intercepted a pass in the left flat and scampered untouched for 20 yards and the score. With 9:58 left in the first half, Dennis Ziembra took a punt on his own 32-yard line, broke two tackles and was in the clear on the left sidelines on a 68-yard touchdown jaunt. After that it was just a matter of how big the score was going to be. The Hawks stretched their lead to 33-6, before the Spartans scored a couple of consolation touchdowns as Coach Don Schelke got everyone into the line-up. Ziembra scored from seven yards out after a TD was set up by Pete Leiterman who went behind good blocking for 31 yards and a first on the Imlay City 10. A pass from Gary Suzor to Tony Yost capped a sustained drive with 3:02 left in the third period. The TD play covered 14 yards. Imlay City scored a pair of touchdowns late in the game on runs of 55 and 4 yards by Dennis, who proved to be a fine all around back for the Spartans. The statistics:

	CC	IC
Rushing attempts	21	48
Rushing yards	166	169
Passes complete	2	4
Passing yards	21	43
First downs	4	5
Passing inter.	0	3
Fumbles lost	1	1
Penalties, yds.	30	35

CASS CITY HAD its best night of the season on running plays. This jaunt around left end gained eight yards.

THE RACE FOR Homecoming queen this year was as close as it could possibly be. Two of the candidates tied in the voting, requiring another vote. The winner will be announced at Friday's football game. The candidates, all seniors, are from left: Deb Sawdon, Michelle Carr and Deb Cook. Underclassmen, not pictured, are the queen's court. They are Teri Wilson, sophomore, Katie LaBelle, junior, and Stacey Capps, freshman.

Avoid injury in accidents

Cass City Police officer Donald Miller Jr. reported there were no injuries in a minor auto mishap when a vehicle driven by Donna J. Little, 31, 3510 Dodge Rd., Cass City, was struck from the rear by a vehicle driven by Sherry L. Lefler. According to the report, both vehicles were westbound on Garfield Street, near Leach Street. Little had stopped while a vehicle in front of her was making a left turn, and was struck from behind by Lefler, 6718 Houghton St., Cass City. The accident happened at 10:20 a.m. Saturday.

Deputy Glenn Skrent reported Lloyd N. Damm, 51, 5512 Jacob Rd., Gagetown, struck a deer Sept. 25 at 12:20 a.m. Damm was eastbound on M-81, near Kirk Road, when he struck the deer. Damm was not injured.

Pheasant season opens Oct. 20

While hunters will have to wait until the traditional Oct. 20 starting date before they can shoot their first ring-necked pheasant, the season for ruffed grouse (partridge), squirrel, woodcock and rabbit began

Sept. 15. For grouse and squirrel hunters, the season ends Jan. 1. Drummond Island has been closed to squirrel hunters. Rabbit season ends March 31. The pheasant hunting season ends

Nov. 11, and the woodcock season ends Nov. 14. Raccoons will be in season from Oct. 1 until Jan. 31. Fox season runs from Nov. 1 until March 1. The mink season begins Nov. 10 and ends Jan. 31.

TOP SHOOTERS - Ilene MacKay presents Charles McPhail, Cass City Gun Club president, with a trophy clock the team won for their first place finish in the Upper Thumb Traveling League skeet shooting competition, class D. MacKay also won a high gun award for being the top woman shooter in the league. Other team members in photo are Richard and Kurt Mika. Absent, Al Wright and Elmer Francis.

AUTO-DEER ACCIDENTS
Sgt. Leonard Huff of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department reported Scott W. Horner, 17, 4410 S. Seeger St., Cass City, struck a deer Sept. 25 at 12:05 a.m. Horner was eastbound on Elmwood Rd., near Koepfgen Road, when he struck the deer. Horner was not injured.

Police arrest drinking driver

Cass City Police Officer Donald Miller Jr. arrested a 22-year-old Caro man Thursday night on a charge of operating a vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. In the report Miller stated he observed a vehicle driven by David A. Czaplak, 22, 3091 E. Caro Rd., Caro, drive left of center, and fail to stop when leaving a private driveway. The vehicle's exhaust system was also loud. After pulling the vehicle over, Czaplak failed a curbside sobriety test, and was taken to the Tuscola County Jail. At 12:05 a.m. Saturday morning, officers Phillip Klaus and Don Lance arrested Lafayette W. Hill, 25, 214 Second St., Oscoda, on charges of operating a vehicle with an open alcoholic container, and driving with a suspended driver's license. The officers observed the vehicle northbound on Leach Street, near Main Street, with a burned out taillight. Hill then drove the wrong way down an alley. Hill was taken to the Tuscola County Jail.

New general surgeon in area

Dr. Wicha opens Cass City practice

At age 53, Dr. Stanley Wicha feels comfortable about leaving his practice in the Rochester area and moving to Cass City.

"This is the most productive age...The most experienced and mature age for a surgeon. You are more aware of problems you may encounter," Dr. Wicha said.

But moving to a different area is not something new for Cass City's newest general surgeon. Twenty-three years ago, Dr. Wicha left his home in Poland to come to Harper Grace Hospital, Detroit, to complete his residence and internship requirements.

Dr. Wicha explained after he graduated from the Medical Academy in Lublin, Poland, he began working as a surgeon in a research institute in Warsaw, Poland. The job offered him "an excellent future for professional development," but he wanted to come to America.

"The thing was I really didn't have to change the situation for bread and butter (reasons)," Dr. Wicha said about moving to America. "I changed because I liked the style of life here."

Dr. Wicha explained at the academy where he received his education they taught him "more or less" the same type of medical training that American doctors receive, so adjusting to medical practices in the United States was not a problem.

Dr. Wicha said it was not difficult for him to leave Poland. "Sometimes it is easy, sometimes hard to get out." He left when the government was allowing people to leave.

When asked what he liked best when he moved to America, he quickly answered "the freedom." He explained in America people have the freedom to speak out against what they feel is wrong, something that people in Poland cannot do.

"I feel at home here. I don't feel like a stranger or a foreigner by any means," Dr. Wicha added.

When interviewed last week, Dr. Wicha had been working at Hills and Dales General Hospital for three days. He is living in a vacant patient room, and has set up his practice in the same building as Dr. H.T. Donahue. Dr. Wicha said he is working in close cooperation with Dr. Donahue, but he is not his partner. "He is helping me to develop my practice," Dr. Wicha added.

Dr. Wicha's wife and three children are still living in the Bloomfield Hills area. They are planning to move to Cass City.

"I came to the Cass City area because I like to live in a peaceful environment where I will have more time to devote to practicing medicine and surgery," he said. "I was thinking about moving to a smaller community for some time. Recently I decided to make the move."

Dr. Wicha is trained in all phases of general surgery and as a general practitioner. He is capable of performing operations such as appendectomies, hernias, gall bladder operations and other surgeries common to general surgery. He is also experienced in taking care of trauma cases such as stabbing and gunshot victims and taking care of persons injured in auto accidents.

Unlike some of his colleagues in Detroit who have left the medical field because of high malpractice insurance rates, Dr. Wicha plans on remaining in the health care business. He said one of his friends in the Detroit area left his obstetrical and gynecology practice to become a stock broker.

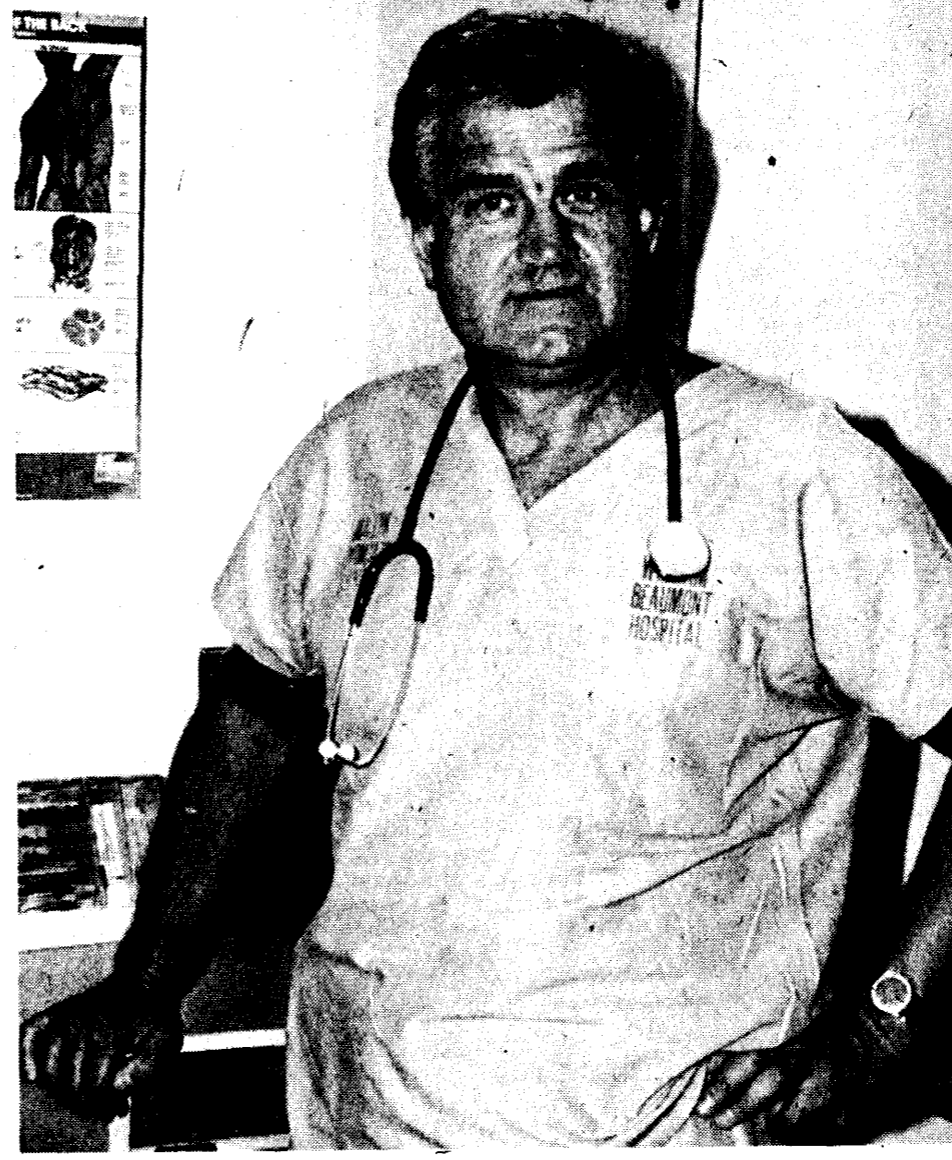

"I am determined to stick to my specialty," Dr. Wicha said about his future as a doctor. He added that he isn't sure if his cost for medical malpractice insurance will go down since moving out of the city.

Dr. Wicha feels there is no such thing anymore as the "old country doctor" who has failed to keep up to date on new medical practices. "I don't intend to lower my practice of surgery because this is a small town," he said. "I will keep that at a high professional level."

cause this is a small town," he said. "I will keep that at a high professional level."

cause this is a small town," he said. "I will keep that at a high professional level."

DR. STANLEY WICHA is Cass City's new general surgeon.

State to improve business climate

By Warren M. Hoyt

A plan developed by a special governor's commission on the state's economic future stressed programs to aid existing industries and to promote entrepreneurial activity, but offered no specific proposals. The plan was adopted recently by the Commission of Jobs and Economic Development, co-chaired by Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca and former United Auto Workers President Doug Fraser.

"This strategic plan is an important step for Michigan. It provides a blueprint, developed by the private sector, for our continuing state government to secure a prosperous future," Governor James Blanchard said.

The commission plan outlines two objectives — providing the environment and support to enable existing industrial firms to modernize quickly enough to become fully competitive, and to provide a climate and promote a culture necessary to stimulate new entrepreneurial activity.

Among the goals set by the commission is continuing to improve business climate to "full competitiveness," especially for advanced manufacturing which may require further changes in health care and energy, and in workers' compensation and unemployment insurance.

Also, the commission said there should be an acceleration of the amount of "world-quality research and development on new manufacturing processes and products," which has begun with such steps as the Research Excellence Fund through colleges, and expanded support of university engineering programs, giving Michigan the best hope for becoming to manufacturing what Massachusetts and California have become to the electronics and computer industries.

Wasp wings

Learning about the wings of a wasp may help us fly a little more safely, says International Wildlife magazine. A University of Southern California engineer is studying the aerodynamics of wasp wings which are about six times more efficient than airplane wings. The information may help in the design of commercial airliners which can land at slower, safer speeds.

Taking stock By Bill Myers

Recently we wrote of some 15 stocks that have had dividend increases every year for the past 10. They were culled from a list that Quick & Reilly, brokers, put together.

Here are some more impressive ones of stocks that paid out not just more dividends each year, but which earned more every year for the past 10. That's really more important than just greater dividends. Quite a few companies keep pushing up the dividends but often they do so by simply paying out a bigger portion of earnings. You can't go on like that forever; eventually there have to be bigger earnings.

Of the 15 well-known stocks we listed, only six of them qualified as having BOTH bigger earnings, and bigger earnings for 10 consecutive years. They were Abbot Labs, Amer. Home Products, Bristol Myers, Dayton Hudson, Gannett Newspapers, and Josten's. Through the courtesy of our friend Mike Buettner of Financial Weekly, here are companies that have had both bigger earnings and bigger dividends, every year for the past 10 years. Some I'm sure go back longer than 10 years, but as Mike explains, 10 years in this business is ancient history. I had asked for a 20-year print-out, but that would be pre-ancient history, says Mike.

These are good stocks, and so their yields average only 2.9 percent compared to 3.8 percent for all big board companies. Mike noted that the dividend growth rates are higher than the earnings growth rates. He suggests that sometime down the road, if this keeps up, they'll have to sell the office furniture to keep up the pay-out.

Only 54 stocks met the spec's of earnings and dividend increases every year since 1974. We list 20, chosen because the names are familiar. They are an assortment of about every field of business.

Table with columns: Company Name, Earnings, Div., Current Yield %

First Kentucky National is the only one not on the New York Stock Exchange. It's sold over the counter. Divide any of the earning growth rates into 72 and that's the number of years it'll take to double present earnings — if the company can keep up the pace of the last 10 years. That's a big IF, but not so big as that of flash-in-the-pan companies that don't have the track records of those we listed. Meanwhile, you're going to pay for those prospects, with dividend yields averaging 3 percent — before taxes. That's the stock market for you, which is fun for so many investors, and profitable for quite a few, too.
