Bank at Clifford robbed

A shotgun wielding banlit wearing a ski mask over his face robbed the Clifford branch of the Kingston State Bank of an undetermined amount of money Monday morning.

Within moments after the 10:20 a.m. robbery, law enforcement officials in Tuscola and Lapeer Counties began looking for a 30-yearald white male riding an ilder black motorcycle. The robber fled Clifford, taking Kingston Road northbound out of the village. He was wearing a blue windbreaker, blue jeans, blue tennis shoes and brown work gloves.

Michigan State Police troopers, Lapeer post, theorize he stopped south of Kingston and loaded the notorcycle into the back of a tan Ford Ranger fourwheel drive pickup with a topper. A pickup matching the description was seen traveling at a high rate of speed on Kingston Road about one-half hour after the robbery

Bank tellers described the robber as being 5'8" and stocky, weighing about 170 wounds. The sawed off shotgun was wrapped in a dark

Although law enforcement officials refused to release how much money was taken in the robbery, a source close to the investigation said an estimated $15,000 was taken.

Russell debunks rumors

No sale pending for medical facility

Tuscola County Commissioner Royce Russell, Cass City, said a lot of rumors have been going around about the possible sale of the county-owned Medical Care Facility, but the rumors are without basis.

Russell explained when the commissioners were seeking voter approval of a 1.5-mill increase at a Sept. 10 election, the Medical Care Facility was one of the several areas they mentioned as a place where they could reduce budget expenses if the millage failed. Russell said the sale of the facility was mentioned if the millage failed, but it was never thoroughly discussed as an option. He emphasized the facility was one of several areas the commissioners discussed as a place to reduce county spending.

'We haven't talked to anybody in a buying or leasing capacity," Russell said, about the rumors the county is getting rid of the facility. "There are some real wild rumors going around that we (the com-

Russell said he recently received a telephone call from an employee at the facility, and the employee was told when he received his pay check it may be the last check he would receive from the facility. Russell said there wasn't any truth to the rumor.

Russell added he and other commissioners are planning to meet with administrators of Hills and

Russell said he has heard "through the grapevine" about the possibility of the commissioners having a special millage election, just to raise funds for the facility. He said a similar request was made before the recent election, but commissioners decided to ask voters to approve only one request, to fund all county departments. He explained he wasn't sure if the commissioners would allow a special request to be placed before the voters. Russell said last year the county budgeted $190,000 for the 123-bed facility. During the past two years they have spent $13,000 a year "The way it stands right for window replacement.

Trustee Lynda McIntosh explained she contacted zations in the village to inform them about the need for new lighting on the two softball fields. The Rotary Club was the only organization that was willing to donate money for the $23,500 project.

Earlier this year, Village Superintendent Lou S. LaPonsie had applied for a $23,000 grant from the Department of Natural Resources to help fund the lighting project. The village was to contribute $23,000 for the project. The request was denied.

LaPonsie explained because of the large number of softball fields in the three-county area, DNR funding for any softball project is a low priority. He added because so many groups use the Cass City softball fields it is a high priority to the village.

Why editors get grey department. Traditionally, the Chronicle prints pictures of the Cass City Homecoming queen and court. This year the part of the picture with the court was not clear enough to print. A check back at the school revealed that the girls were not available for a retake. Then the plan was to shoot the court at the game. Only the rain kept the girls from the traditional seats of honor on the sidelines and they were never together. The court is composed of underclass girls and the chances are we will get another chance in 1986.

"If It Fitz..."

Designated snorters

By Jim Fitzgerald

Not surprisingly, it is expected that the Pittsburgh cocaine trial will prompt the baseball players' union to seek an agreement with club owners allowing players with at least one year in the majors to play all games under immunity from prosecution.

According to court testimony, many players snort cocaine between games because they're lonely and bored and don't have anything else to do. But what about players who get bored during games? Take base running, for example. It can be an awful drag for a Detroit Tiger to hang around third base, waiting hopeless and alone while batter after batter fails to bring him home. Naturally, the union won't ask that stranded base runners be permitted to snort coke on the playing field. That would be against the law and a poor example for youngsters who idolize baseball players good enough to make $10,000 a day. The present policy of limiting snorting to hotel rooms and locker rooms will be continued, including, of course, the important provision that no player may be prosecuted for breaking the law unless he fails to supply enough evidence to send a $20-aday hot dog vendor to prison for clogging stadium

But the union will seek similar immunity from prosecution for bored runners with wandering minds who are thrown out on Sunday while trying to advance from second to third on a ground ball hit to the shortstop during Saturday's game.

At first, the union will demand that all players be immune from punishment by club owners for game named blunders committed while bored and/or lonely. But that will be a negotiating ploy. Eventually, the union will agree to a compromise allowing management to fine first-year players for nodding off during games, the theory being that rookies are still excited ing to me, the case was about making the big coming to trial and I had to leagues, and this excite-appear before (a federal) tion nine-inning games.

get the same immunity given non-rookies for every inning. This immunity will require that, during a player's contract negotiations, management be forbidden to mention or even think about blunders he committed because of boredom and/or loneliness suffered between the foul lines. Also, the union will demand that the number of times a player yawns per inning may no longer become a part of permanent cocaine trials. baseball statistics.

So that large daily newspapers will still be able to publish 200 pages of baseball statistics everyday, the union will suggest that the yawn gap be filled by creating a new statistical category — the number designated snorters

Delays in Owendale and Gagetown

Residents hook up to new sewer systems

a lack of clay to line the bottom and the sides of two sewage lagoons all corrected, more than one half of the residents in Gagetown are now hooked up to the new village sanitary sewer system.

Gagetown Village President William Downing said because of the problems with the lack of clay at the lagoon site, the sewer project had a cost overrun of $275,000. explained soil samples taken before the digging began showed there was ample clay at the lagoon site to meet Environmental Protection Agency requirements. The clay is needed to line the lagoons so sewage will not seep into the soil. But when workers began digging, they could not find enough clay.

"They had to take clay from one spot and move it to another spot," said Downing, explaining the reason for the increased project cost. Construction crews had to dig 30 feet down to find enough clay to complete the lagoons.

"It was just like a layer cake, with sand and silt layers," Elery Sontag, Gagetown clerk, said about the soil conditions around the lagoons.

Downing said they are presently working with the EPA and the FmHA to arrange additional funding to cover the cost overrun.

Downing added when the lagoons were completed,

Of the $1.7 million project, 75 percent was paid for by EPA grants. The next 39 years, with a 12 perstate paid five percent and the village is to pay the remaining 20 percent. The village borrowed $355,000 from the FmHA, and also received a $345,000 FmHA the meeting Monday night. Downing anticipates by Dec. 1 that all hookups will be completed.

OWENDALE

Like Gagetown, Owendale has also run into snags with its sewer project. Village President Walt Howard explained completion of the lagoon was delayed about four months, which could result in a lot of the households not getting hooked up before winter.

Howard said the digging of the lagoons was supposed to be completed in April but lagoons weren't finished until Aug. 20. "That threw everything into a hell of a mess."

Howard said the contractor claims the wet weather last fall delayed his digging of the lagoon, but he feels the contractor didn't start the project soon enough. Howard explained the bids were let in May, 1984, but the contractor didn't begin work until August, 1984. "If he would have done his work in the summer he wouldn't have had the

So far 33 households in Owendale have been hooked up to the sewer system. Howard said all 109 households should have been hooked up by Aug. 1. He added if it quits raining, the rest of the village households could be hooked up before winter. Three contractors are hooking up homes to the system.

and inspection fees. Residents must pay at least 10 percent of the hook up fee. The remainder is to be paid off over a 20-year period, at 12 percent interest. Howard said about half of the residents have paid the entire $1,500 hook up charge.

The cost of the sewage system is $1.9 million. The village borrowed $235,000 from the FmHA at 11.38 percent interest. They also received a $500,000 grant from FmHA. The Environmental Protection Agency paid $966,000 and the state paid $66,000 for the village sewer system. The village has 39 years to pay back the FmHA loan. Each household in the vil lage will pay $15 per month for the sewage system. Because the village does not have water meters, each single household pays $6 per month for water service. Residents also pay $2 per month for trash ser-

Church started 50 years ago

St. Michael's to celebrate anniversary

This Sunday, parishioners of St. Michael's Catholic Church, Wilmot, will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the beginning of their church.

"We are proud of our history, and we want to celebrate it," said Father William O'Shea, who has been pastor of the church for the past eight years.

St. Michael's was first started Aug. 17, 1925, when Father Michael J. Kujawa, then pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Sandusky, opened a mission in Wilmot to serve the Polish families brought to the area to work in the logging industry. Father Kujawa purchased the Shady Nook dance hall, where the first service was held.

The mission stayed under Father Kujawa's direction until 1942, when Father John Bozek became the first pastor of Cass City's St. Pancratius Catholic Church, and the mission was placed under his care.

Ten years later, Father Sigmund J. Haremski was During his five-year stay at St. Michael's, he arranged for the construction of the present church, located south of Wilmot on Kingston Road. Through the efforts of parishioners who not only donated money to pay for the construction of the building, but also the labor, the church was paid off four years later. The following year, in 1958, construction of a church rectory began.

Father Haremski was replaced by Father Raymond J. Pilarski, who would spend the next eight years at the church. During his stay they raised funds to build a new church at St. Joseph's.

From 1968 until 1977, four different priests were in church. They were Fathers Eugene Susalla, William Taylor, Daniel O'Sullivan

"It's the beginning of a year of celebration,' Father O'Shea said about the special anniversary mass that will be conducted Oct. 13 at 3:30 p.m. Bishop Kenneth Untener Saginaw will perform the ceremony.

Father O'Shea said he is expecting some of the former pastors to attend the celebration, including Fathers Haremski, Welna, and Pilarski.

McLeody Days

By Bill McLeod

Maybe it was the poor showing of the Tigers this season, or perhaps a desire to write using a lot of verbs, but for the first time in the 1980's something has sparked my interest in foot-

It's not the "Incredible Bulks" of the professional ranks that drew my attention back to the sport, but it is the high school and college games that have once again rallied my interest. Despite the mosquitoes and a shakey start by the Owen-Gage Bulldogs, I have throughly enjoyed spending a Friday night walking back and forth on Owendale's 100-yard long battle field.

The best part of the evening is watching Arnie Besonen fire up his players to take on teams that outweigh them by 30 to 40 pounds per man in the line. Even if they are the smallest team in the Thumb D League, the Bulldogs are seldom outplayed.

Arnie says he always tells his players' mothers to feed them more potatoes, anything to put weight on them. Maybe they should practice next door to a bakery.

Unlike other coaches who rant and rave (rage) at their players, Arnie simply coaches from the sideline. In the Bulldogs' homecoming defeat to Caseville, Arnie picked an incompleted pass, and gave his first-year quarterback a quick lesson in how to follow through when throwing

During another game, when penalty flags were flying all over the place,

Arnie told the ref to kick out one of his players if his sportsmanship wasn't up to par. The ref didn't, Arnie

Like all coaches, Arnie has a little bit of Billy Martin in him. It keeps the game interesting. I have never heard Arnie curse at a player, like some coaches I've been around do, but more than once he has thrown his hat to the ground in disgust.

Arnie takes his flustration out on a roll of white athletic tape he carries with him throughout the game. He starts the game out with a full roll. By halftime the sideline is littered with little pieces of wadded up tape. When the game ends, Arnie is close to the cardboard. I haven't been able to figure out if a large piece of tape means a pass or a running play, but on third and long he really seems to tear into the roll. Arnie, like Michigan's Bo

Schembechler, plays the type of football I like the best. Not the "Fancy Dan" football that Howard Cossell always raved about, but the straight forward, hit 'em harder than they hit you style. By the end of the game the Bulldogs' and Wolverines' conditioning always seems to pay off. Although bruised and battered, major injuries usually happen to the other

Although I have only seen a little bit of one Michigan game this year, it's good to see them fight back from an off season last year.

Maybe the Tigers can fight back next year, but I

THE DANGEROUS SUMMER by Ernest Hemingway (non-fiction). In 1959 Hemingway, 60, revisited Spain and wrote a lengthy chronicle of one bullfight season. Hard-core. Hemingway fans and taurine aficionados will enjoy the drama of the ring and the emotional interplay among matadors. Hemingway's portrayal of the rivalry between' two popular bullfighters, his idolization of one of them and his romantic characterization of this sport as "the closest brotherhood there is" reflect a certain macho attitude.

LOOKING GOOD by Regina Krummel (fiction). Ariadne is only 10 years old when she overhears two of her friends talking about how fat she is. She begins to starve herself into a destructive lifestyle, battling with her mother and seeking any sort of boyfriend she can find. By the time she is 16, Ariadne has an advanced case of anorexia nervosa. Weighing 70 pounds and suffering from liver and intestinal diseases, she is admitted to a Long Island hospital where she nearly dies before making a slow return to tentative' health. Ariadne and her family move to Vermont, but she' still feels unloved, unpopular and terribly afraid of being fat. She begins to binge-eat and soon she is bulimic. For love and attention, she turns to a greasy high-school dropout who abuses her, even as she shoplifts for him. Eventually, Ariadne, winds up in the hospital again, but this time she gets what she needs: attention from her family and group therapy with girls like herself.

THE RED FOX by Anthony Hyde (fiction). Journalist and 3 Russian history expert Robert Thorne is asked by an old girlfriend, May Brightman, to help find her missing father. Soon, however, this simple request leads back to the early days of World War II - the time of the Hitler-Stalin Pact and Thorne finds himself embroiled in a search for 126 million dollars in gold certificates, leftover booty from a: prewar Soviet spy ring. That's only the tip of the iceberg, as each of Thorne's discoveries reveals a new layer of deception, centering on May's real parents but ultimately. extending even to Thorne's own family.

HEALTH TIPS

Cardiovascular diseases may lead to a stroke

There is sometimes a tendency to associate cardiovascular disease (CVD) exclusively with heart attack. Yet one of the most devastating forms of CVD affects not the heart, but the brain. The disease is

"Stroke occurs when the blood supply to a part of the brain is cut off, and as a result, the nerve cells in that part of the brain cannot function," said Fernando M.D., Ph.D.. neurosurgeon, Henry Ford Hospital, and chairman of the American Heart Association of Michigan's stroke committee.

"So, the part of the body controlled by those nerve cannot function either," Diaz said.

There are a number of causes of stroke, according to Diaz. One of the most common is blockage of a cerebral artery by a clot, or

"Sometimes a wandering

A third common cause of stroke is cerebral hemorrhage, according to Diaz. "This occurs when a diseased artery in the brain bursts and brain tissue is flooded with blood," Diaz said."Not only do cells nourished by the burst artery fail to get their supply of food and oxygen, but the accumulation of blood from the ruptured artery soon forms a clot which displaces brain tissue and interferes with brain function. A stroke may also be caused by an artery being compressed by a tumor or pooling of blood in brain tis-

"As the result of stroke a

The effects of stroke may be slight or severe; temporary or permanent. And the effects manifest themselves in a variety of ways," Diaz said.

'Typically, the most visible sign of stroke is paralysis on one side of the body. If the paralysis is on the right side it is called hemiplegia; this means there is injury to the left side of the brain. A patient with right hemiplegia is likely to have 'aphasia', a difficulty with speech and language. Aphasia can be temporary or permanent, and the degree of difficulty can vary.

"In addition to language problems, right hemiplegics have a tendency to be slow, cautious, and disorganized when approaching an unfamiliar problem," Diaz said. "Often this hesitant style comes as a surprise to friends and family members who knew the patient to be quite different before the stroke.' If a stroke affects the right hemisphere of the brain, there can be paralysis on the left side of the body. "In addition to paralysis, a stroke patient with right brain damage will often show difficulty with tasks that involve judging distance, size, position, rate of movement, form and the relation of parts to wholes," Diaz said. "While the right hemiplegic tends to be slow and cautious, the left hemiplegic tends to be impulsive and too fast. The patient often seems unaware of any deficits.

"In addition to paralysis and effects on personality, there are several other common post-stroke symptoms,' he said. "Stroke patients can have what are referred to as visual field cuts. The effect on vision is much as it would be if goggles were worn with tape across half of each lens. Most stroke patients learn to compensate for this by turning their heads, but some do not seem to make the adjustment. They do not turn their heads to see all parts of an object when they glimpse part of it nor do they au-thing. This is called 'neglect' and left hemiplegics generally have more problems with neglect than do right hemiplegics. "Some stroke patients give no evidence of paralysis, and yet show signs of intellectual deficits such as behavioral changes or neglect," Diaz said. demonstrate "Others paralysis but little or no evidence of other problems. When a person has a stroke, it is likely his behavior will give some evidence of brain damage. Some functions of intelligence are so complicated they need virtually a totally functioning brain, and even minor damage may interfere with these complicated functions." Rehabilitation is vital in helping the stroke patient overcome difficulties. The patient, hospital staff, and family join to form the rehabilitation team.

Tuggle still enjoys riding motorcycle

Nobody will ever mistake Glenn Tuggle for motorcycle daredevil Evel Knievel, but the 72-year-old Cass City resident still enjoys cruising on his large Honda motorcycle.

'I don't want to race anybody, or see how fast I can Tuggle said. "I just like to get out and get around a little.

During the summer, Tuggle likes to take pleasure rides to the Lake Huron shore line and to other places around the Thumb area. "I just run all over the place, just to see what's going on. It's a hobby."

When Tuggle started riding motorcycles it wasn't only for enjoyment, but a way to earn a living. He began riding in the 1930's as a delivery man for a Goodyear dealership. He rode a Harley Davidson motorcycle with a sidecar to carry the tires and batteries he delivered. Tuggle explained the sidecar wasn't built to carry a passenger. It was more like a large box bolted to the side of his Harley.

He made motorcycle deliveries throughout the winter. When the weather was bad he drove a small delivery truck.

"Back then you did what you could to make a couple of bucks," he said, about riding the motorcycle in the winter time. He didn't have any of the special clothing like the leather jackets and pants that are common with today's motorcycle riders. "I just put on all the clothes I could find, and rode," Tuggle added. Helmets were made out of hard leather, and a pair of goggles completed the head Tuggle said the fastest he could get his Harley to go was about 90 miles per hour. Some of his friends had "souped up" bikes that would go faster. "I never had anything that was really souped up. I didn't have the money.'

Tuggle paid a "couple of hundred bucks" for his first motorcycle. He bought it at a used car lot. "Man, that's going back some years," Tuggle said, thinking about the motorcycle he purchased more than 50 years ago.

"There's no way you could pull a wheelie," Tug-gle said, explaining the motorcycle and sidecar were too heavy for the engine to lift the front wheel off the ground.

But Tuggle and other delivery riders found other

Tuggle rode for about eight years before he sold his motorcycle and moved to the Caro area. He didn't start riding again until 1977, when he purchased his first modern motorcycle, a Honda Gold Wing Interstate.

"Bikes are a lot more reliable (today) than they ever were," Tuggle said, about his Honda. He explained the motorcycle has a drive shaft instead of a chain, which eliminates the vibration common to the older motorcycles. Instead of jumping on a kick start to get the engine run-ing, Tuggle's Honda has a key start, the same as a car. The 1,100 cubic centimeter motor is water cooled.

No injuries reported in two mishaps

Cass City Police Officer Kenneth Schott reported there were no injuries in two minor accidents Friday evening.

The first mishap happened at 7:30 p.m. when a vehicle driven by James P. Rabideau, 17, 2125 Hobart Rd., Gagetown, collided with a vehicle driven by Robert S. Haas in the high school football parking lot.

Rabideau was northbound in the parking lot, when his vehicle collided with a vehicle driven by Haas, 16, 4243 Seeger St., Cass City, who was backing out of a parking spot.

Officer Schott reported that at 8:00 p.m. a vehicle driven by Marie E. Jetta, 79, 4208 Maple St., Cass City, struck a parked vehicle owned by Jack Doerr, Cass City.

Jetta was eastbound on Main Street, near Downing Street, when she struck the Doerr vehicle. The report states Doerr's vehicle was unoccupied, and legally parked.

No tickets were issued in either accident.

"You just have to be a lot more careful than when you are driving a car," Tuggle "poker run" in the Port Huron area. He explained a rider is added. "You have to be

Hawks celebrate homecoming with 28-12 win over Marlette

Friday and the Cass City turnovers. Red Hawks made it a pleasant occasion for the old grads with a convincing victory over Marlette, 28-

The win was the second for the Hawks in Thumb B Association competition and already Coach Don Schelke's crew has recorded a better season than many expected when the season opened.

With the win under the belt, Cass City turns its attention to Vassar next Friday. The Vulcans demand plenty of attention. They hold a win over Lakers and are one of the stronger teams in the league.

To win the Hawks will have to be at their best and continue to improve as they have since the opening game of the season.

It didn't take the Hawks long to get that one back. On the first play after the kick-off, Pete Leiterman broke through the line and went 55 yards for the sixpointer. There was 11:31 left to play in the period.

Marlette made it close by scoring again at the 11:56 mark in the second period. Two passes covered 30 yards in the drive and Matt Lefler went over from the

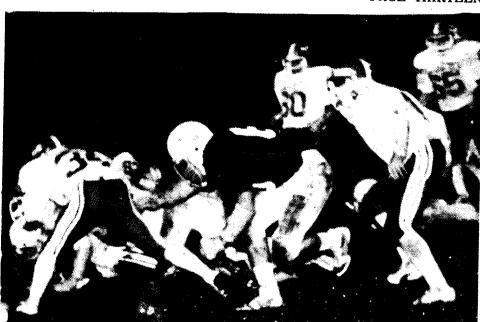

While the game was up for grabs all through the first half, the Hawks came out and dominated the play in the final two quarters.

He added the Bulldog offensive line will have to open holes for Mandich and other Owen-Gage runners if they are to ruin North Huron's homecoming celebration.

So you're moving to Florida from some state up north, such as Michigan. Lots of questions come up about your will and your estate and current taxes. For example:

Q. Do I need a new will if I move to Florida?

A. Technically, no. Actually, you should get a new one drawn up in the state of your new home. A Florida will properly done is "selfproving" so witnesses to it don't have to be rounded up and affidavits obtained. Besides, laws and family problems are likely different from the time you made your present will, and it needs to be updated any-

Q. Should I change trus-

A. It depends where most of your assets are, and to a lesser extent, where your beneficiaries will probably be living. If you have real estate and business interests in your present state, a trustee there could take care of these more efficiently than one 1500 miles away. No pat answer to this question, though.

Q. What's the difference between "domicile" and "residency."

A. You can call yourself a resident of any state by declaring this so, and by staying a day there. Your domicile, though, might be described as "home is where the heart is."

To establish Florida as your domicile, these factors are weighed: Locareal estate, amount of time spent there, state where you file your tax returns, state where you vote, place issuing your driver's license, and a statement of domicile in your will. You can own real estate in Michigan and none in Florida and still claim it risky to name yourself as Florida as your domicile. custodian, there are many The probate and laws of Florida will then apply to your estate.

Laurie completes

painting seminar

Betty Laurie of Cass City has returned from a seminar in Tulsa, Okla., where she was trained in tole and decorative painting.

The five-day course started each morning at 8:00 and often extended to midnight. While at the seminar Laurie received her 50-hour certificate. She will teach tole and decorative painting at her shop in Cass City.

subject to Michigan income

A. No, unless it's income from real estate. Then you'll pay Michigan income tax -- now 5.1 percent.

Q. If Florida becomes my new domicile and I have stocks and bonds with a Michigan broker, where do I pay intangible tax?

A. In Florida. And the rate ($1 per $1,000) is the

The above examples concern only Michigan and Florida. Laws are often different for other states. See a lawyer in your new locality. Ask your bank to suggest one, but be sure the man is one who handles estate cases.

Forbes magazine had an article recently about making gifts to children for their use when they become adults. Purpose of such gifts is two-fold:

1. To reduce the total income tax paid by the family. Children are likely to be in a lower bracket.

2. To reduce an eventual estate or inheritance tax when the old folks shuffle

The Forbes writer made it all sound complicated, dragging in various types of trusts -- Clifford trusts, spousal remainder trusts, generation-skipping trusts, and such. This would delight the lawyers. Indeed, the writer was an attorney.

Forbes also suggested putting money in a bank account in the child's name with someone named as custodian. Why make it all so involved? A father and mother can give a total of $20,000 a year to a child. While some lawyers think who aren't that skittish, and do act as the custodian for the child, and have done so for years.

Instead of putting the gift maturing when the child becomes 18, or whatever the legal age is in your state.

There is not too much difference in yield between tax-exempt zero coupons and taxable ones. No matter if the child's income is substantial, with tax-free bonds he doesn't need to file a return.

There are many taxexempts around yielding 10 percent. For a 14-year bond, you'll pay about 25 cents on the dollar. For a 20-year bond, 13 cents on the dollar. If Tiny Tim has just appeared on the scene. the $20,000 you set up for him now will be $160,000 when he becomes of age.

No re-investment problems, no red tape of accounting and reporting of trusts, no legal fees. No overhead, no middlemen, no fuss, no muss. Keep your life simple, and you'll live

Scott said when he takes Aeron to his physical therapy treatments he sees other parents who are "extremely overprotective." He feels that is the worst thing a parent can do.

Although Aeron is capable of eating foods that other children his age can eat, he is still fed four times a day through a tube that goes down his nose into his stomach. Scott explained with the tube they can give Aeron the extra food he needs to guarantee he continues to gain weight. Under doctor's orders they recently stopped feeding Aeron through the tube. farm loans available

Applications emergency farm loans for losses caused by excessive rains that occurred in early September are being accepted at the Farmers Administration (FmHA) office located in Caro. FmHA County Supernenry L. Knier Jr., said today.

Tuscola and Saginaw Counties are 2 of 19 in Michigan recently named by President Reagan as eligible for loans to cover part of actual production losses or physical losses resulting from adverse weather conditions.

Knier said farmers may be eligible for loans of up to 80 percent of their actual losses, or the operating loan needed to continue in business, or $500,000 whichever is less. For farmers unable to obtain credit from private commercial lenders the interest rate on the first $100,000 borrowed is 5 percent; interest rate is 8 percent on the balance over that amount. For farmers who can obtain commercial credit but who choose to borrow from FmHA, the interest rate is 11.875 percent.

As a general rule, a farmer must have suffered at least a 30 percent loss of production to be eligible for an FmHA actual loss emergency loan, Knier said.

Applications for loans under this emergency designation will be accepted until May 19, 1986, but farmers should apply as soon as possible.

Arm Chuck (Pot Roast)

Place roast on rack in shallow pan. Roast in pre-heated 325® F. oven, uncovered, to desired degree of doneness. Baste frequently with marinade. Note: Choose a roast weighing no less than 3 lbs. for open pan roasting. Do not add water. Roasts with bone-in should be placed in a shallow pan without rack.

- (approximately 1½ to ½ to ½ inch thick teaspoon instant beef bouillon granules 1/2 cup hot water 2 tablespoons butter, divided 1 cup thinly sliced mushrooms
- 2 tablespoons finely minced shallot or teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon pepper

Dissolve bouillon granules in water, reserve. Cook mushrooms and shallot in 1 tablespoon butter in a large frying pan 1 to 2 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add reserved beef broth; cook and stir 3 to 4 minutes. Meanwhile heat remaining butter in another large frying pan. Quickly cook steaks 1 to 2 minutes on each side or to desired degree of doneness. Season with salt and pepper. Pour sauce over steaks and heat 1 minute, stirring occasionally, 4 servings.
