CAVE-IN - A 48-inch storm sewer south of the old Nestles Building recently caved in. The village estimates the cost to replace the sewer will be $15,500.

Donated to REMC

GM cassettes designed to boost science, math

To guarantee that General Motors will have an acceptable work force in the future, the auto maker recently started a program they hope will improve math and science programs in local schools.

"General Motors' survival depends on keeping a competitive edge," said John F. Maciarz, a public relations director for GM. Maciarz's remarks were addressed to two Caseville teachers and Regional Media Center Director Don Richards at an Oct. 30 meeting at the REMC. Maciarz explained GM can no longer compete with foreign labor markets, so the auto maker must use technological advances to cut down the cost of producing a car. "If we are going to survive, we are going to survive by having the technical edge."

Maciarz was at the Cass City based REMC to give Richards the first copies of 10 cassettes that will be presented to students of the three-county REMC area. Maciarz explained the tapes, produced by The Science Screen Report, a New York based educational organization, are designed to stimulate and renew a student's interest in science and math. Each month Richards will receive new tapes that he will copy and distribute to the school districts in the three-county area. This year eight different video cassettes will be given to each of the 22 REMC's in Michigan. GM's cost to distribute the tapes is estimated at $1,500 per REMC per year, for an overall cost of $33,000 in Michigan alone. Similar programs are being started in Indiana and Ohio, states that have a large number of GM plants.

"Our concern is particularly in the areas of math and science," Maciarz said. "GM is taking a look to see what can be done to improve our educational system. We know that our future work force will have to be better trained than our labor force of today."

Maciarz explained at an Ypsilanti plant GM has begun a retraining program where workers are taught everything from basic reading skills to advanced technology skills.

He said GM is changing from a "smoke stack" industry to an advanced technology operation. Maciarz pointed out the use of robotics in existing plants, and robotics that will eventually be installed at the new Saturn plant, as being examples of how technology will improve the auto maker. "Without the right kind of people, we are only going to be able to produce scrap at a faster rate."

Maciarz pointed out that poor workers eventually cost GM three different times. He explained that GM tax dollars paid for the school system through property taxes. Schools producing poor, improperly trained laborers, cost the auto maker in a lack of productivity. GM then has to pay to "fill in the educational gap with in-house educational programs."

Maciarz explained in the 1950's people who came to Detroit to work in the auto industry looked at the job as a second choice. He pointed out, as an example, that workers from Pennsylvania came because there

Suspect arson in school fire

Arson is suspected in a Greenleaf Township fire reported at 11:30 p.m. Halloween night, according to Bingham Township Fire Department Chief John Bukoski.

Bukoski explained the building, an abandoned school, did not have electricity hooked up, and there was no lightning that night to start the fire. Bukoski was unable to find out who the owner of the building is. A neighbor living near the old school house thought the owner lived in the Detroit area. Because the actual condition of the building before the fire was unknown, Bukoski was unsure of the structure's value. He estimated the loss at $4,000.

Firefighters from the Elkland Fire Department were called to assist. Through their combined effort, the fire was kept from spreading to a large cornfield that surrounded the building. Over 4,000 gallons of water were sprayed on the building during the 45 minutes the two fire departments were at the scene.

Village buys spreader

New storm sewer to cost $15,500

The collapse of a storm sewer drain built in the 1930's forced Cass City Village Council trustees to dig $15,500 from village coffers to pay for the needed repair.

Village Superintendent Lou S. LaPonsie told trustees at the regular Oct. 29 meeting, the storm sewer, near the intersection of Church and Nestles Streets, empties into the Center B Drain west of Cass City. The portion of the sewer that recently collapsed is located in the parking lot of the old Nestles building, presently being used by Walbro Corp. LaPonsie said the existing sewer was constructed with concrete sides and top with a dirt bottom. Water eventually eroded the dirt below the concrete walls, and has caused it to collapse. The village has recently made other repairs to the sewer line.

Because the existing storm sewer runs under the old Nestles building, the new sewer will have to be rerouted. LaPonsie explained the storm sewer will begin about 25 feet east of Nestles Street, and run west, to the railroad tracks where water will empty into another storm sewer.

The replacement of the storm sewer was to be put into the 1986 village budget, but because of the recent collapse, LaPonsie requested it be completed this year. LaPonsie told trustees, because the repairs to the village water tower were delayed until next year, the budget will be able to handle the cost increase.

The village will purchase the needed storm sewer pipe from Cass City Steel Supply, Inc. The 48-inch pipe will be elliptical shaped to allow a larger water flow at the bottom of the pipe. At each of the pipe joints, rubber O-rings will be installed to prevent water from seeping in or out of the pipe, which would eventually erode soil around the storm sewer. The pipe has a life expectancy of 50 years.

"I feel if we are going to do it, we want to do it with the best materials we can get," LaPonsie said. Work is expected to begin as soon as the village gets permission from property owners.

Andrew Barnes Construction, Cass City, is expected to do the excavation.

While trustees were in a spending mood, they also agreed to purchase a new salt spreader, and put a new roof on a storageshed.

Trustee Larry Davis explained the roof of the old storage shed, located east of the municipal building, has been repaired several times. Last winter, part of the flat roof collapsed under the weight of the heavy snowfalls. Village crews put an I-beam below the roof to strengthen the roof, and patched it.

"We've tried patching it in a few areas, and it just isn't working," LaPonsie said. He explained the roof is pulling away from the walls.

Trustees agreed to hire Thomas Roofing, Cass City, to put new sheeting and a rubber based roof on the 5200-square-foot roof at a cost of $6,600. The roof will have a 10-year guarantee.

By spending $2,900 on a new salt spreader, trustees hope to cut down on the labor cost of salting village streets this winter.

Davis explained the present salt spreader is in need of repair, and it isn't large enough for the village's needs. The salt spreader is mounted into the back of a village pickup, and holds one cubic yard of salt.

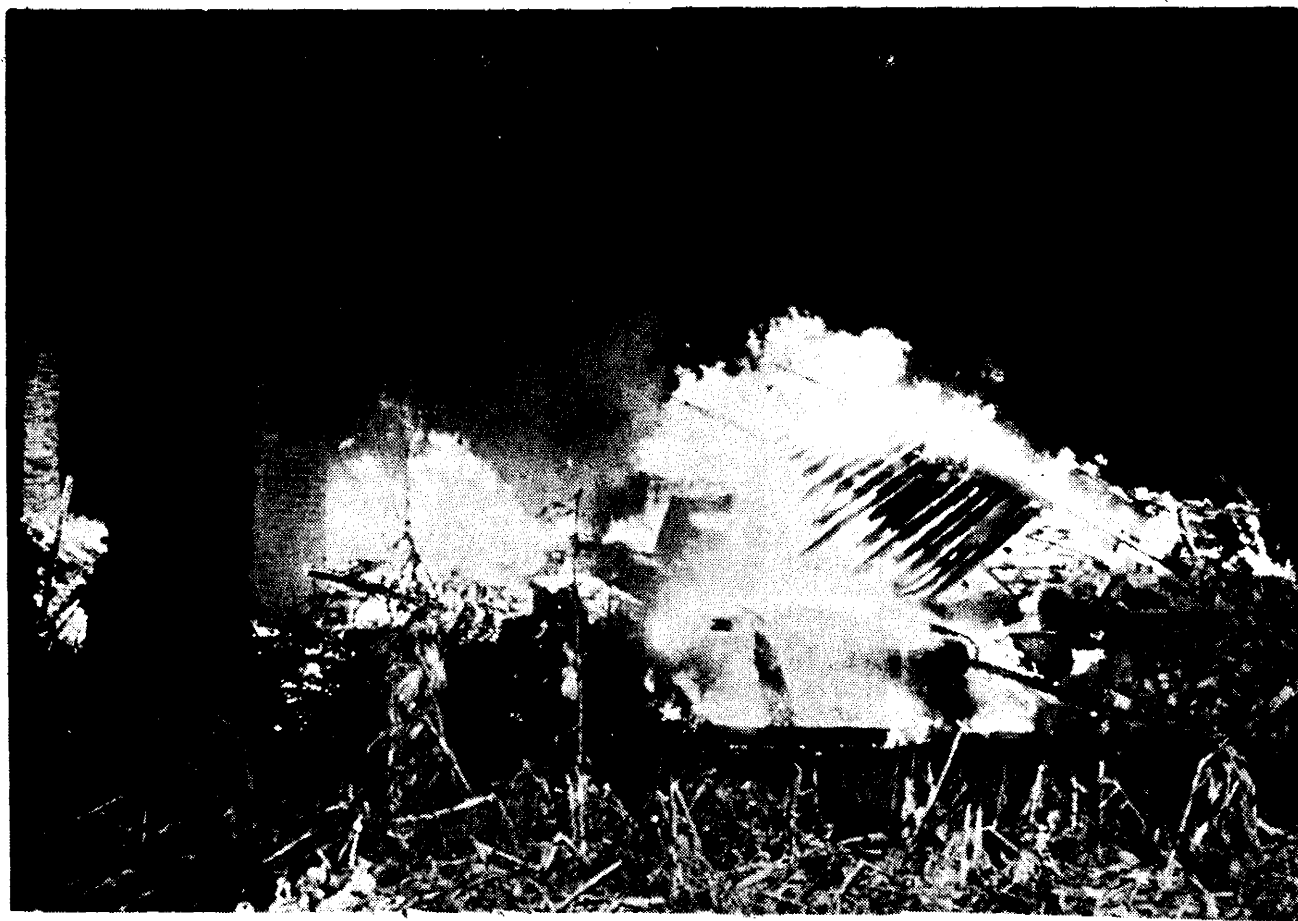

"Even if we do (repair it), it is doubtful it will make it through the winter," Davis said.

The new spreader will be mounted on the back of a dump truck, and holds five cubic yards of salt. The driver will be able to grade snow from the streets, and spread salt at the same time, eliminating the need for two vehicles, a snow plow truck and a pickup.

"It's not a two-man operation, it's a one-man operation," Davis said about the new salt spreader.

"It isn't going to take long to pay for it," LaPonsie said. He explained the spreader is the same type used by area county road crews, and they are satisfied with it.

LaPonsie added that last year, when the old salt spreader broke down, village crews had to spread salt by hand. "We don't want to take the chance of Please turn to page 16.

Busy mission planned

Shaw's second flight slated Nov. 27

BREWSTER SHAW

While area residents are celebrating a Thanksgiving Day feast with their family, Cass City's most renowned son, astronaut Brewster Shaw Jr., will be in the second day of a seven-day space mission.

Shaw, now Air Force Lt. Col. Brewster Shaw, will be the commander of the Atlantis, NASA's newest space shuttle. This will be Shaw's second Thanksgiving Day space flight. He first orbited the earth in 1983 on a 10-day flight that ended Dec. 8.

Like Shaw, this will be the second flight of the space shuttle Atlantis, "so it will still smell new," Shaw said.

During the flight, the seven crew members will conduct experiments on building construction techniques, pharmaceutical development in a weightless environment, and launch three communications satellites. Two space walks are also scheduled. One of the satellites will be launched for the Mexican government, one for the Australian government and the third for RCA Corp. "It will be a real busy mission, and we will earn some money for NASA because we have three paying satellites on board," Shaw said.

On Shaw's last space shuttle flight he was the pilot of the craft. On this flight he will be the commander, and will be responsible for the entire flight, including landing the Atlantis. Shaw said he and civilian Charles Walker of McDonnell Douglas Aircraft Corp. will be the two members on board who have experience in space travel.

"It is a different job this time," Shaw said, about his duties as commander of the Atlantis. "They (crew members) look to me for the experience." Shaw's other crew members are: Lt. Col. Bryan O'Connor, U.S. Marines, pilot; Lt. Col. Sherwood "Woody" Spring, U.S. Army, mission specialist; Mary Cleave, NASA, mission specialist; Major Jerry Ross, U.S. Air Force, mission specialist; Rodolfo Neri de Vela, payload specialist, Mexico City, representing the Mexican government, and Walker, payload specialist, representing McDonnell Douglas Aircraft Corp.

Shaw, who has been preparing for this flight for one year, said it will be his duty to see the mission is successful.

The Cass City native will be responsible for changing the orbital path of the Atlantis after each satellite is launched from the craft. He explained after each satellite is launched, propelled by a rocket blast, the Atlantis must change direction to protect the craft from the rocket fire.

Shaw said even though NASA has had several flights of space shuttles, each one is unique. "We're learning a lot more about flying these things, because flying in space is not a routine operation. We take them one at a time. It's not something you can get lachrymose about." When asked if space travel will become a common way of travel for civilians, Shaw pointed out that space travel, as compared to commercial air travel, is like comparing a trip in a covered wagon to taking a flight across the ocean, the technology is so much more advanced than commercial jet travel.

It will be the second flight for the Atlantis, "so it will still smell new" - Lt. Col. Brewster Shaw

On Shaw's last flight, a malfunction in an on-board computer delayed the landing of the Columbia for six hours. He said everybody knows that a failure can happen, but built-in back-up systems are designed to handle them.

"I love it," Shaw said, about space travel. "It's a lot of fun. I would recommend it to anyone." The 1963 graduate of Cass City High School said a person who wants to become an astronaut should be adventurous, with a broad range of interests.

Shaw first became interested in flying while Please turn to page 16.

Lightning

Contrary to popular folk wisdom, lightning does strike the same place twice. According to National Wildlife magazine, scientists believe that some areas have topography and wind-flow patterns that make them especially prone to lightning. In Florida, for instance, lightning repeatedly strikes bulges in the coastline, such as Cape Canaveral, where sea breezes converge.

It seems like the new Evangelical Free Church started building about a week ago and Sunday, the first service in the new building was held before a packed house.

Formal dedication is scheduled for December 15, the Rev. Eldred Kelley has announced.

Monday is Veterans' Day, or if you're an old timer, Armistice Day. No matter what you call it, it means that federal offices will be closed. That includes the post office and there will be no mail delivery. Items mailed over the week end won't make next week's edition.

The Department of Natural Resources issued a new release saying that deer are more mobile now than at any other time of the year.

Maybe that's the reason that one cruised into Cass City last week. It was sighted by the Methodist Church and other areas in eastern Cass City.

Moving deer are really no laughing matter. The DNR says that they caused 26,400 accidents and $43 million in damages last year.

Auto-deer mishaps plague area drivers

Tuscola County Sheriff's Department Deputy Ronald Begeman reported a deer running in front of an auto caused an accident Wednesday at 6:40 p.m.

According to the report, a vehicle driven by John G. LaFave, 38, 2295 S. Sheridan Rd., Caro, was westbound on Stevens Road, near Froede Road. When LaFave applied his brakes to avoid striking a deer he was struck from behind by a vehicle driven by Marlene D. Parrish, 40, 1261 Cemetery Rd., Deford. Parrish stated she applied her brakes, but could not stop in time. No injuries were reported in the mishap.

Deputy Patrick Woidan reported a vehicle driven by Louise A. Latimer, 27, 2131 Wagner Rd., Caro, struck a deer Friday at 6:30 a.m. Latimer was eastbound on M-81, near Dodge Road, when the accident happened.

Deputy James Fyvie reported David B. Rabideau, 17, 6787 Houghton St., Cass City, struck a deer Saturday at 11:20 p.m. Rabideau was westbound on M-81, near Schwegler Road, when he struck the deer. Deputy James Jashinske reported a vehicle driven by Geraldine M. Prieskorn, 54, 4645 Kennebec Dr., Cass City, struck a deer

Oct. 30 at 8:15 p.m. Prieskorn was westbound on M-81, near Akron Road, when the accident happened.

There are two sides to every question and it's not always my side and the wrong side.

Sometimes it's difficult to decide which side is the right side. Consider for a minute the question of academic eligibility for sports.

The primary reason for going to school is to learn. It follows then that if students aren't learning they shouldn't be allowed to play. So it's about time that schools are stiffening requirements for participation. Lots of folks agree with that.

But wait a minute. Let's hear about it from another perspective. Louie is a coach who also teaches bookkeeping. He's spent nearly 30 years at it.

Why is the athlete singled out?, he asks. We don't require any certain grade to participate in band, debate or other student activities, he says. If reading, writing and arithmetic are that important, the rules should be the same for everyone.

Certainly Louie has logic on his side. If academics are where it's at, playing a part in the school play is just as distracting as quarterbacking the football team.

The difference, of course, is the public awareness between sports and other school activities. And the importance that the participants place on participating.

What good will it do to require a "C" average to take a part in the school play if the student really doesn't give a darn whether he is a member of the cast or not?

While the allure of playing football or other sports isn't what it once was, it still is important to some of the students...and many of the parents and fans in the community.

Perhaps the media shares some of the responsibility for the importance of the varsity teams compared to the debate squad.

It's a question of which comes first, the chicken or the egg. Newspapers give the most ink to the stories with the most reader interest and the more publicity that an event gets the more important it becomes.

Coach Louie adds that in most instances, the kids that have trouble staying eligible aren't going to be helped academically no

"If It Fitz..."

Glory seekers

By Jim Fitzgerald

Did I make it through the Free Press Marathon Oct. 13? Certainly. I sat eight hours and 32 minutes, longer than any of the runners ran. How much money did my Adopt-a-Sitter effort raise to fight multiple sclerosis? Only $126.

I hate to complain, but look at it this way: It took Dolly Katz, the Free Press medical writer, only four hours and 46 minutes to run the marathon. But the people who adopted her pledged $2,600 to the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

It's the same old depressing story. Runners get all the glory and financial support; sitters get ignored, or even insulted. I've sat and watched marathoners run past my home for eight years now, and appreciation of my sitting was most typically expressed by my wife's reaction to the runner who stopped briefly in our high-rise driveway.

He paused to relieve himself. "What do you think of that?" I mused.

"I think he knows you live here," my wife said.

When I griped to Dolly about the $2,474 gap in our fundraising, even though I sat about twice as long as she ran, she said: "Remember, I had to train all summer to run that long."

Well hip hip hooray for her. I began sitting training in 1945, right after getting out of the Army, and since then not one day has passed that I haven't done several hours of serious sitting.

Even when I stand, I slouch aggressively. I don't walk; I saunter, and I never swing my arms. People who swing their arms while walking might as well be running. It's like half-sitting — sometimes called perching — on the edge of a desk.

I figure if you're going to sit — sit! Don't do it in a careless manner that rhymes with bypassed. Do it fully, in a big stuffed chair, and don't begin before making certain you are properly prepared and equipped.

Put on loose clothing and eat a big meal before starting a marathon sit. A footstool should go without saying. Just as a runner can crouch and otherwise assume alternative postures, a sitter must be able to squirm into different positions, especially in the feet-and-legs area. To this end — and for the end (marathon sitters are not without a sense of humor) — a footstool can be an invaluable tool.

Here's a tip that's helped me a lot: two tables, one on each side of the chair. For many years, I struggled along with only one table to hold reading material, food and drink, pen and pad, change of clothing and TV remote control device. It was terrible. Stuff kept falling on the floor and sometimes I couldn't retrieve it without crawling, which, for the true sitter, is cheating. It hurt my conscience more than my knees, so I installed a second table, and my sitting improved almost immediately.

Incidentally, as for doing things half-bypassed, I give the same advice to runners as to sitters. If you're going to run — run! Don't jog. While sauntering, I have passed joggers as though they were oak trees.

Most joggers in my neighborhood move up and down faster than forward. They look silly with their elbows and knees pumping 100 times for each inch their sweat suits travel down the street. Just as true sitters should never perch on desk edges, true runners should never run without moving their clothing.

Finally, it should be noted that runner Katz raised $2,600 by personally and aggressively soliciting pledges from everyone she bumped into. Sitters, of course, never bump into anyone. All I could do was make a wimpy printed plea for support.

But wait! Next year. I'll threaten to sit in your driveway.

Smigielski purchases Bowen Funeral Home

The Bowen Funeral Home, one of Minden City's long-standing family businesses, was sold in late September to John and Arlene Smigielski, owners of the Zinger-Smigielski Funeral Home of Ubyly.

The Minden City funeral home will be known as the Smigielski Funeral Home. Frank and Eleene Bowen purchased the former Bootz Funeral Home in Minden City Aug. 1, 1960.

The Smigielskis moved to Ubyly Aug. 24, 1981 after purchasing the Zinger Funeral Home, which is now known as the Zinger-Smigielski Funeral Home.

Mr. Smigielski has a family history of being in the funeral business. His grandfather opened the Anthony Chnzanoski Funeral Home in Detroit in 1911. His mother, Irene, was one of the first licensed women morticians in Michigan. She and Smigielski's father, Herman, opened the Smigielski Funeral Home in Detroit's Poletown area in 1945. Both of his parents are deceased.

Before coming to Ubyly, Smigielski worked at the William Sullivan and Son Funeral Home in Royal Oak. He obtained his Mortuary Science License in 1962 after graduating from Wayne State Mortuary School. He also helped at his mother's funeral home, continuing a tradition that his grandfather started in 1911.

The Smigielskis have been active in community functions in Ubyly where he is currently president of the Ubyly Community Club, first vice-president of the Ubyly Lions Club, a member of the Ubyly Fox Hunters Club and a parishioner and usher at St. John's Catholic Church in Ubyly. Arlene has taught first grade religion classes for three years and has been vice-president and president of the Christian Mothers at St. John's. They have two children, Mark, 13, and Michelle, 11.

Quiet Halloween reported in area

Law enforcement officials in Tuscola County said Halloween and devil's night vandalism activities were "very quiet," with only a few complaints of toilet paper being thrown reported to the Sheriff's Department.

Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson said usually he never schedules any work for the day after Halloween because he is generally kept busy running down complaints. This year he didn't have any official complaints. He added he heard of some eggs and pumpkins being thrown, but they were not reported. Also some bird houses at the Archie McPhail residence, 6639 Houghton Street, Cass City, were damaged.

"I am very happy about it," Chief Wilson said, about the quiet evening. He added he has received several compliments about his officers being visible and on patrol during the week.

Prison escapee faces district court examination

A motion by a Camp Tuscola escapee to be remanded to district court for a preliminary examination was approved by Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Patrick Joslyn Monday.

The request was made by William S. Day, 33, formerly from the Lansing area, who escaped from Camp Tuscola and allegedly abducted Geraldine Balongue, 80, Caro, Sept. 29. Day allegedly forced Balongue into her vehicle and drove to the Lansing area where he tied the elderly woman to a tree. Day then fled to Ohio where he was arrested by Dayton law enforcement officers.

Last week in circuit court Day stood mute on assault, kidnapping and prison escape charges. A not guilty plea was entered.

No date has been set for the preliminary examination.

In Oct. 28 circuit court action, Allen N. Zimmerman, 21, 4903 Center St., Gagetown, was sentenced to 180 days in the county jail, with 90 days deferred and credit for 44 days already served, on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property valued over $100.

Zimmerman pleaded guilty to the charge Sept. 16. The charge stems from Zimmerman's possession of an air compressor that was taken from Leonard Karr, 6078 Huron Line Rd., Gagetown.

Zimmerman was originally charged with breaking and entering of an unoccupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny, and receiving and concealing stolen property valued over $100.

In addition to the jail sentence, he was ordered to pay a $300 fine, $400 court costs, and $50 restitution.

How to cut down moving expenses

Here are a few tips you can take to reduce your moving expenses and make your move easier.

- If possible, plan to move between October and April, the "off" season, when many moving companies charge lower rates.
- Save money by disposing of items you no longer need or want. Moving such items will add weight to your shipment and increase the cost of the move.

- Save money by doing your own packing, but have the moving company pack your fragile items.
- Register your new address with your bank, Social Security office, investment broker, previous employers and other interested parties.

Rev. Merillat exceeds goals

Parishioners respond to full-time Holbrook pastor

When Rev. Gary Merillat took over the ministerial duties at the Holbrook Baptist Church about two months ago, he set a goal of increasing attendance to 50 persons by the end of October. One year before he came to Holbrook the church recorded that 15 persons attended a Sunday service.

But after one month, Rev. Merillat found out it wasn't going to take until October for people to find out that Holbrook once again had a permanent minister, the first in almost two years. Rev. Merillat's Sept. 29 sermon was heard by 50 people in the Germania Road country church.

Rev. Merillat, his wife Mary, and their four children came to the area in late August. He is the first permanent minister at the church since Rev. Dale Bird left Jan. 1, 1984. After Rev. Bird left, the church has had visiting ministers to care for the members' spiritual needs.

"We feel this has been a pretty good response in two months time," Rev. Merillat said, about having 50 people in the audience. On an average Sunday 45 people attend services. "The people have really pulled together. They have reached out to make the church go."

But after reaching his attendance goal, Rev. Merillat has not sat back and rested on his laurels. He feels the church needs to provide more for the youth and missionary programs, and members need to be more involved in reaching out to the community.

"Obviously the youth are the church's future," he said, about the need to keep the young people involved in the church. One program the Merillats have started is a Bible quizzing program where youth from Holbrook compete against youth groups from other Baptist churches. Questions are asked of the youth, and the first to stand up has the opportunity to answer the question. Rev. Merillat said eight or nine youth participate in the contests.

He feels the church should increase their financial support to the missionaries they have agreed to assist. In the Regular Baptist Church organization, local churches agree to provide funding for individual missionaries who have requested their assistance.

Rev. Merillat said the church presently is providing assistance to eight missionaries. Five missionaries are in other countries. He explained these five missionaries are living in countries with high inflation rates, making it difficult for them to live on a fixed income. "There is always a need for an increase," he said, about providing more funding to the missionaries. "We are hoping we will be able to help provide more support."

Rev. Merillat said he is encouraging members to "reach out into the community." When members leave the church after services, a sign above the door stating: "You are now entering into the missionary field" reminds them of the need to offer their assistance to other community members.

Rev. Merillat grew up in southern Michigan, and graduated from Siena Heights College, Adrian, Mich. He has attended classes at the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, the Detroit Baptist Seminary, and Huntington University, Huntington, Ind.

While in school he worked various jobs to pay for his education. For two years he served as a police officer for the Jackson Police Department. He added at that time he was hoping to work with troubled youth, but he was unable to get into the juvenile department. "I believe the Lord wanted me to be a pastor, and made things work to reach that goal," Rev. Merillat said.

Rev. Merillat's first pastor's position came in 1969 when he took over at the Canandaigua Community Church in Hudson, Mich. While at the small Baptist mission he met and married his wife.

Because the Merillats both came from smaller churches they feel they have an insight into the problems common to the smaller congregations. Before coming to Holbrook he was the pastor of the Beriger Gospel Church in Lapeer County for three years.

He is looking forward to a long stay at the Holbrook church.

"We don't look at churches as stepping stones to another church," Rev. Merillat said. "My greatest concern is not the size of the church, but the depth and quality of the people in the church."

McLeody Days

By Bill McLeod

For those of you who fail to keep up on the major news stories of the day, last week two nation-wide holidays were celebrated. The day after Halloween came the newest, and possibly the most important, holiday since the advent of Labor Day, the No Bozo Day.

What I liked the most about No Bozo Day (NBD) is that to participate, all you have to do is use common sense and courtesy. The holiday, invented by Larry Harmon, creator of Bozo the Clown, does not require you to send a card, buy a present, or do anything other than be a decent human being. It's a unique idea that probably won't catch on, but it's worth a try.

All of you probably know what a Bozo is, but to refresh your memory, here is an example of what NBD is hoping to eliminate.

You run into a grocery store for one item, usually something like a gallon of ice cream. The express lane is closed, and the lineup at the regular check-out resembles Main Street just before the July 4th parade. Not one of the Bozos ahead of you, each with a packed grocery cart, will give you a break. As frostbite begins to set in, you can take comfort in knowing that on NBD, everyone would let you go ahead of them.

Here are examples of Bozos that I would like to see change their ways throughout the year:

People driving jacked-up four-wheel drive trucks with halogen headlights. You know, those people who follow about 10 feet behind you at night, with their headlights right in your back window.

People who pull out in front of you, and drive 30 miles an hour in a no passing zone. They always end up making a left turn, forcing you to stop behind them, or pass them on the right.

Stores that offer fantastic discounts on a limited supply, and don't give rain checks.

Or how about the Bozo who forgets to stuff the funnies and TV guide inside the Sunday paper.

A lot of design engineers are Bozos. I refuse to buy any toy for my son that requires partial assembly.

Some of the biggest Bozos I've met this year are the people at boat launch sites who take forever to back their trailer onto the ramp. Another group of Bozos are those fishermen who holler about my taking forever to back my trailer under the boat. Some people!!

I missed the opportunity to let some Bozo have it Halloween night. When Andy got home with his bag of candy, I found out somebody gave him a pack of candy cigarettes.

People who work at the fast food drive-in window tend to have a lot of Bozoitis. Generally I am down the road a couple of blocks before I realize they didn't give me any napkins, salt, ketchup or whatever. Hollering "you Bozo" from two blocks away doesn't seem to relieve my frustrations though.

It seems like whenever a sane, normal person gets behind the wheel of a car, especially a big car or a truck, severe Bozoism sets in. It amazes me when I end up having to go 70 miles per hour to pass someone who was driving 45 miles per hour when I started to pass. Or how about people who treat a yield sign like it wasn't up to them to even slow down. Many an angina attack has been precipitated by a near miss after a Bozoite snuck through a yield sign in front of me.

One nice thing about a Bozo, usually the title only goes with minor mistakes of judgement. Bozos always seem to get a second chance. They can learn from their mistakes, sometimes.

Warrington trains at Parris Island

Marine Pvt. Stewart Warrington, son of Roger W. Warrington of 3414 Rivers, Kingston, has completed recruit training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C.

During the 11-week training cycle, Warrington was taught the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

He joined the Marine Corps in December, 1984.

Pillsbury leases NFO facilities

Pillsbury Edible Protein Division has announced it has entered into a management lease agreement to operate the facilities of the former NFO elevator in Cass City in a joint venture with New Century Bank of Bad Axe.

Pillsbury officials said the arrangement will enable them to expand their services to growers in the Cass City area by offering them the opportunity to store corn and/or soybeans under the 9-month government loan price support program.

The elevator will be operated as an annex to the Pillsbury elevator in Cass City under Robert Wischmeyer, local manager, and will provide 700,000 bushels of additional storage space.

The facility will be licensed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for approved government warehouse receipt storage.

New books at the library

LAST WISH by Betty Rollin (non-fiction). The author offers an unflinching personal account of her mother's death by her own hand. Betty Rollin's seventy-six-year-old mother, slowly dying of incurable cancer, decided to commit suicide and asked her daughter to help. Rollin's account of her mother's agony, the decision to end it, her mother's death, and her own heartrending response is a deeply honest exploration of intensely personal emotions and of a controversial issue. It is a story of love, life, and victorious death - a story that affects us all.

ON THE ROAD WITH CHARLES KURALT by Charles Kuralt (non-fiction). The acclaimed, award-winning television journalist brings together ninety-two of his warm, open-hearted pieces on life in America. These special, perceptive, gently humorous explorations of Americans and America take us into the back roads of the nation and reveal telling truths about the "common" men, women, and children who make up these United States. And they tell us something about ourselves. Here are people from all walks of American life - and among them are eccentrics, dreamers, pioneers, champions, and heroes. Kuralt brings us their surprising stories.

CONTACT by Carl Sagan (fiction). The novel details the first encounter of humankind with intelligent life from beyond our solar system. Astrophysicist Rebecca Blake, director of Project Argus, is instrumental in decoding the first radio signal received from space. It is also Dr. Blake who persuades the world's leaders not to treat the message as a threat. She coordinates the construction of an enormous, complex machine - which many consider a doomsday machine - and journeys out toward an encounter that transforms human history.

HEALTH TIPS

Cystic Fibrosis strikes one of every 2,000 births

Cystic fibrosis is the most common, fatal genetic disease.

• Cystic fibrosis (CF) is America's number-one inherited killer of children and young adults.

• Approximately 30,000 people in the United States have cystic fibrosis; it occurs in approximately 1 of every 2,000 births.

• Approximately 10 million Americans (1 in 20) are symptomless carriers of the gene that causes cystic fibrosis.

• Median survival has increased to 21 years of age. But cystic fibrosis is always fatal and there still is no cure.

Cystic fibrosis is an inherited, chronic, degenerative disease that affects the exocrine (outward secreting) glands of the body. In cystic fibrosis, the body produces abnormal amounts of thick, sticky mucus that clog the lungs and pancreas, interfering with breathing and digestion. The sweat glands of people with cystic fibrosis produce perspiration that contains abnormally high levels of sodium and chloride (salt).

Cystic fibrosis is caused by an abnormal gene.

Cystic fibrosis is an inherited disorder and it is not contagious. The disease is transmitted to a child by both parents, each of whom carry the defective recessive gene responsible for the disease. The gene that causes the disease has not yet been identified.

An estimated 10 million Americans (1 in 20) are unknown, symptomless carriers of the recessive gene that causes cystic fibrosis. Each time two carriers conceive a child, there is a 25 percent chance that the baby will inherit cystic fibrosis, and a 50 percent chance that the child will be a carrier. These odds apply to each pregnancy. At present, there is no way to identify carriers until they have a child with cystic fibrosis, nor can this disease be detected before birth.

Cystic fibrosis interferes with breathing and digestion.

The abnormal production and accumulation of thick mucus clogs the lungs, interfering with breathing and leading to gradual destruction of lung tissue. Individuals with cystic fibrosis are very susceptible to respiratory infections which can further damage the lungs. The mucus also impedes the flow of digestive enzymes from the pancreas to the intestines. As a result, food is poorly digested, proteins and fats are insufficiently absorbed and this leads to problems associated with malnutrition.

The first symptoms of cystic fibrosis are varied.

Cystic fibrosis is a disease of many disguises. The symptoms of cystic fibrosis vary in severity from person to person, and are often similar to symptoms of other childhood disorders. This can complicate prompt and accurate diagnosis. Its pulmonary symptoms are often mistakenly attributed to asthma, pneumonia, or other respiratory disorders. Its digestive manifestations may be confused with those of celiac disease or other malabsorption syndromes. As a result, cystic fibrosis may go undiagnosed or misdiagnosed for years.

In general, cystic fibrosis is characterized by the following symptoms:

- Persistent cough;
- Recurrent wheezing;

• Pneumonia more than once;

• Excessive appetite but poor weight gain;

• Salty taste to the skin, and

• Bulky, foul-smelling stools.

Cystic fibrosis is diagnosed by measuring salt content in the sweat.

The "sweat test" is the only reliable diagnostic test for cystic fibrosis. This painless test measures the amount of sodium and chloride (salt) in a person's sweat. Abnormally high levels of salt indicate a positive diagnosis of cystic fibrosis.

Treatment of cystic fibrosis is complex.

The digestive and nutritional problems of cystic fibrosis are generally managed with digestive enzyme replacement therapy to aid in breaking down foods, vitamin supplements, and a well-balanced diet that is high in proteins and calories.

Treatment of respiratory complications focuses primarily on keeping the lungs as free of mucus as possible. A form of chest physical therapy (postural drainage) helps to clear the airways of mucus. Most cystic fibrosis patients undergo one or more therapy sessions each day during which they are clapped or gently pounded on the back and chest to loosen the mucus that blocks the lungs and bronchial tubes. Many inhale medicated vapors to help loosen mucus and take antibiotics to help prevent and manage respiratory infections.

Hospitalization for intensive treatment of lung infections is not uncommon in many cases. The outlook for cystic fibrosis patients is bright.

Advances in diagnosis and treatment have improved the prognosis for people with cystic fibrosis dramatically in the last several years. In 1953, children born with cystic fibrosis typically died before they reached elementary school age. Today, survival for many has progressed into the 21 and older age group.

Over the last five years, scientists have begun to gain new insights into the basic defect in cystic fibrosis and this may relate to the pathology of the disease. Researchers are now seeking to understand the precise nature of an abnormality in the movement of certain electrolytes (i.e., chloride and sodium) in and out of cells directly affected by cystic fibrosis and how this results in the production of the thick mucus. Scientists are also seeking to relate this to the frequent and severe respiratory infections. Clinical researchers are developing new strategies for treating and preventing lung infections.

With the discovery of a linkage to the cystic fibrosis gene, scientists can now direct efforts to locating the gene itself, understanding its function and relationship to the electrolyte transport and cellular abnormalities, and then apply this knowledge to developing even more effective treatments.

The outlook for individuals affected by this disease grows brighter every day. The ingredients necessary to conquer this disease -- the base of knowledge, the scientific tools and technologies, and the scientific manpower -- are now all available. Research continues to progress rapidly and we are likely to find the answers needed to conquer this disease.

Clean chimneys this fall

By Betty Pattullo
Extension Home Economist

Fall is chimney cleaning time. If you're going to hire the job done, make an appointment with a chimney sweep as early as possible, states Betty Pattullo, Extension Home Economist.

Depending on how much you use your wood-burning stove or fireplace, what kind of wood you burn and how you burn it, your creosote buildup may be heavy or light. You can see a heavy buildup by holding a mirror on an angle inside the firebox to give you a view up the chimney. A light buildup may not be as noticeable but still needs to be removed. It is always wise to start the heating season with a clean chimney — it may be difficult to get the job done in mid-winter.

Chimney sweeps charge between $30 and $50 to clean a chimney. A good sweep will seal your firebox very well to reduce the chance of soot damage to your home. He or she will also protect the shingles on your roof. And if the person is very imaginative, he or she will come dressed in traditional chimney sweep costume, including top hat. Your neighbors will be charmed, your children will be delighted, and you will have a much safer winter ahead of you.

Hills and Dales Hospital to offer free diabetes screening

Governor James J. Blanchard has declared November as Diabetes Month and Nov. 3 through 9 as Diabetes Detection Week in Michigan. The Michigan Affiliate of the American Diabetes Association will sponsor free diabetes screening tests throughout Michigan in cooperation with over 180 hospitals and health facilities during Diabetes Detection Week.

Hills and Dales General Hospital, Cass City, will offer the free tests Wednesday, Nov. 6, in the large meeting room.

It is estimated that there are approximately 600,000 people in Michigan who have diabetes, and 240,000 of these are unaware that they have it. The purpose of this drive is to identify these people and to alert them to the need for proper treatment. The earlier diabetes is detected, the better. Diabetes with its complications is the third leading cause of death by disease in the U.S. Diabetes causes heart disease, kidney disease and blindness.

The testing is limited to those over 18 years of age and persons who have not previously been diagnosed as diabetic. To assure an accurate test, it is important to eat a high carbohydrate meal, one with large amounts of starches and sugars, two hours before the test. A good breakfast to have before the test, for example, would be fruit or juice, cereal with milk and sugar, two slices of buttered toast with jam, and coffee or tea. A person planning to take the test after lunch could have a bowl of soup, a sandwich, cake or pie for dessert, and a glass of milk. The meal should be eaten within a 15-minute time period and nothing else except water should be taken before the test. The name and address of the family physician is needed for follow-up.

People who are over 40, overweight, and blood relatives of persons with diabetes are particularly urged to take the test since they are in the "high risk" group of those most likely to develop diabetes. The most common symptoms of diabetes are excessive thirst, frequent urination, blurring vision, constant hunger, or the slow healing of cuts and scratches. The disease, however, may be present without any symptoms.

Cass City residents win big

Cass City residents had more than their share of winners in a sale sweepstakes contest by Super Food Services and IGA stores.

From the Cass City IGA Foodliner there were two of the 15 winners among 115 IGA stores in the contest.

Taking home Banquet microwaves were Barbara A. Creason and Alvina Wilson, both of Cass City. Harry Lenda, owner, reported.

Kenneth and Randy, claims a DeLaval milking system has caused infections and mastitis in their dairy herd. The Hampshires are requesting an award in excess of $1.4 million. The Hampshires claim the milking system, installed in 1962, has too much vacuum, causing the machine to flood out, damaging the cows' teats. The Hampshires claim mastitis was spread through the herd through the damaged teats.

In testimony Friday, Michigan State University Professor John H. Kirk said he felt the source of the infection was the environment of the Hampshire farm, and not the milking system.

A jury of three men and four women have listened to the case in Tuscola County Circuit Court for two weeks.

CONTRACTOR DICK LITTLE of Caro puts the finishing touches on a storm sewer catch basin in Deford. So far three new catch basins have been installed in the community.

How can you insure only what your farm needs and save money?

No problem.

If you have some very selective needs that you'd like to protect on your farm, Select-O-Pak from Auto-Owners is for you.

The Select-O-Pak Policy offers seven optional coverage plans to make sure you're only paying for insurance that you require, nothing more. And, because it's selective, it's very affordable.

Just ask your "no problem" Auto-Owners agent about Select-O-Pak for your farm. It could be exactly what you had in mind.

Storm sewer catch basins repaired in Deford

Four Deford residents attending the Monday night meeting of the Novesta Township board were told three new storm sewer catch basins have been installed in the community.

Supervisor William O'Dell said work on the rest of the storm sewer system in Deford will have to wait until a complete survey is done by Tuscola County Drain Commissioner Stanley Henry.

"We know all about the problem in general, now we have to get the specifics," O'Dell said. He added the new catch basins should help relieve some of the community's water problems because the water can now reach the existing storm sewers. O'Dell said Henry feels it will be early spring before work can begin on cleaning and replacing storm sewer tiles that are probably filled with sand.

O'Dell said he was in favor of putting a drain on the west side of the old railroad tracks to take care of the water problems of people living on the west side of Deford. O'Dell said from previous conversations with the drain commissioner he feels the township will receive $800 from a special county fund for drain repairs. This funding would possibly be enough to pay for the new catch basins recently installed by Caro contractor Dick Little.

Also at the meeting, trustees agreed to go to a once a month trash service for residents of the community. During the summer months trustees had Rich's Disposal, Deford, come to the township hall twice a month to haul away residential trash. Now that summer is over, trustees decided to have Rich's Disposal come only once a month, on the third Saturday of the month. A truck will be at the township hall from 8:00 a.m. until noon. Trustees plan on returning to a twice a month trash hauling schedule in the spring or summer of 1986.

Trustees discussed and tabled the possibility of putting a small trash dumpster in the township-owned cemetery so residents could dispose of flowers and trimmings from cemetery lots.

Trustees approved a request from Clerk Nursie Kloc to convert four old voting booths into storage areas for old township rerecords. Kloc said the records, which had previously been stored upstairs in the township hall, date back to the 1870's. The township hall has six of the old voting booths. Two booths will be left in case a special election is needed. Kloc explained it is cheaper to use paper ballots for special township elections.

Trustees were informed the Michigan Department of Transportation has approved funding from the critical bridge fund for the White Creek bridge on Cemetery Road. The amount of funding, and the cost of replacing the bridge is unknown.

Trustees approved a request for Public Act 116 for 57 acres of property owned by John and Stella Zieba.

7301 E. Shabbona Rd., Deford. Under P.A. 116, property owners who agree that property will be used only for agricultural use will receive a tax break on Michigan income taxes. Property owners must agree to keep the property in agricultural use for at least 10 years. Trustees discussed a new state ordinance that requires voting booths and voting registration places to be barrier free and accessible to wheel chairs. No action was taken on the issue.

Offense stopped again, Cass City bows to Reese

The Cass City Red Hawk ffense was unable to put together a sustained offense and as a result the Hawks bowed to the Reese Rockets in the final game of the year, 10-0. It was a non-league tilt.

It was the same trouble that has plagued the Hawks all year in a 3-6 season. The defense played well, but the offense just couldn't score enough for a victory.

Cass City had a chance to win most of its games this season, but a missed pass, a fumble or a goof up in the backfield at a critical time kept the team from the victory column.

The Hawk offense wasn't helped at Reese by six fumbles, four of which were recovered by the winners.

The fumbles, together with a blocked punt was the story of the game. Chip Creason's punt in the second was blocked into the end zone and Pat Platko fell on it for a touchdown which proved to be enough to win.

Matt Sahr added insurance points for the Rockets when he booted a 27-yard field goal in the third quarter. The Thumb C Conference team ended the year with a 6-3 record.

Dennis Ziemba with 40 yards in 10 carries and Pete Leiterman with 38 yards were the leading ground gainers for Cass City.

It was the final game for eight seniors on the team. Playing their final game for Cass City were Mike Stevenson, Troy Sweeney and Brian Gyomory, linemen.

Greg Eria, a linebacker and fullback who was hampered most of the year by injury, is also a senior.

Three of the seniors were backs who saw duty in every game. Scott Adams and Todd Stahlbaum, out for the first time as seniors, were used in spot situations and logged a good deal of playing time for Coach Don Schelke.

Chip Creason is a senior and was the Hawks' kicker. The final senior was Magnus Berglund, an exchange student.

The Hawks will have their starting backfield coming back. Finding replacements in the line will be one of the problems facing Schelke.

However, there should be a veteran with at least some experience at every position. While the Hawks will undoubtedly be stronger next season, Schelke says, the league will be stronger, too.

There are a lot of young teams like Cass City in the Thumb B Association this season, Schelke says, including Bad Axe and Marlette.

O-G cagers lose pair

The Owen-Gage girls' varsity basketball team remains winless this season, losing to North Huron Oct. 29, and again to Port Hope Thursday night.

In a 43-59 loss to North Huron, the Bulldogs stayed close throughout the first three quarters, but in the fourth quarter they were unable to keep up with the Warriors. At the start of the fourth period the Bulldogs, led by Susie Salcido with 15 points, trailed North Huron 36-42. Debbie Engelhardt tossed in 12 points for the Bulldogs.

The junior varsity continued their winning ways, beating the Warriors 33-28. Janie Billy tossed in 16 points.

Against Port Hope the Bulldogs were defeated 31-44. Salcido again was the top Bulldog scorer with 13 points.

The junior varsity won 24-19. Billy scored 12 points.

The Bulldogs will play at Caseville Nov. 12, and will end the season Nov. 14 when they host Deckerville. The district tournament will begin Nov. 21.

No injuries in 2 Cass City accidents

Schlicht, 26, 4272 Wilbur St., Akron, was parked on Main Street, near Oak Street, behind a vehicle owned by Danny Ulfig, 7145 Milligan Rd., Cass City. When Schlicht attempted to jump start the vehicle, it went forward, striking the Ulfig vehicle. No tickets were issued in the mishap.

Finkbeiner was driving into Connolly's driveway at 4258 Maple St., when his brakes failed and he struck the Connolly vehicle, which was parked in his garage. No injuries were reported.

In Cass City Benzie, Capac cop state crowns

There were no surprises in the first state cross country track meet ever held in the Thumb as Benzie Central successfully defended its Class C boys' crown and Capac won its first state title in any sport in the girls' competition.

The meet was held at Cass City Saturday over a course fashioned on school property and parts of Rolling Hills Golf Course in a wet, cold, windy day.

Cass City's best effort was turned in by Kurt Bliss who was 56th and ran in 18:12.7. Chris Tuckey was 58th among the girls with a time of 22:30.2.

USA paced the Thumb schools with a fifth place finish. It was the same spot that the school finished last year.

Jesse McGuire of Bronson was the state individual champion with a time of 15:55.8. In the girls' individual race, Stacey Kilborn of White Pigeon, a freshman, finished first in 19:05.3.

The boys' teams and their order of finish: Benzie Central, 87; Charlevoix, 91; Mason County Central, 117; Carson City Crystal, 175; Ann Arbor, 200; Shepherd, 222; Edwardsburg, 234; Bath, 251; Concord, 252; Niles Brandywine, 253; Williamston, 255; Detroit Lutheran West, 269; Sandusky, 284; Muskegon Oakridge, 324; Orchard Lake St. Mary, 343; Hudson, 348; Edwardsburg, 373; Capac, 421; Vandercook Lake, 447; Bangor, 484.

3-6 for season Bulldogs bow to Morrice in final

The Owen-Gage Bulldogs' 1985 football season came to an end Friday night when they lost a non-conference game to Morrice, 24-6. The loss gives the Bulldogs a 3-6 season record.

Owen-Gage fell behind in the first few seconds of the game, when Morrice's tailback, Joe Scott, returned the opening kickoff 90 yards to score the first points of the game. Bulldog coach Arnie Besonen said Scott was the fastest running back he has seen this season. Scott carried 31 times for 161 yards. He also led the defense with 13 tackles. "He did everything but bring water to the huddle," Besonen said about Scott.

Late in the period, Owen-Gage tied the game on a nine-yard run by Mike Mandich. Besonen explained the score was set up by a 73-yard drive, one of the best drives the Bulldogs have made this season.

The Orioles scored early in the second quarter, and added two more touchdowns in the second half to put the game out of reach for the Bulldogs.

Friday night's quarterback-receiver combination was a preview of what fans can expect to see next season. Besonen moved quarterback Stu Stirrett to a receiver position, and put second string quarterback Marc Reinhardt in as starting quarterback. "I think we've got a good combination there," Besonen said, about Stirrett and Reinhardt. Stirrett caught seven passes for 62 yards. Reinhardt hit on 12 of 20 passes for 85 yards. He threw one interception.

Mandich was the top Bulldog rusher, gaining 55 yards on 17 carries. Mandich also led the defensive surge with 10 tackles. Stirrett made nine tackles and intercepted one Oriole pass. Jay Susalla made five tackles and also intercepted a Morrice pass.

Morrice had 215 yards of total offense as compared to Owen-Gage's 169 yards. Both teams had 13 first downs.

Friday night's game was the last appearance for senior starters Dave Peters, Ron Good, Davy Salcido and Mike Mandich.

Besonen will be counting on Stirrett, Reinhardt, Jay Susalla, Dave Laurie and Gabe Milbocker, who missed most of the season because of a pre-season injury, to help the 1986 Bulldogs.

He added that next year they will have Andre' Damm and Kevin Koch as freshmen who will be an asset to the team. Besonen said Damm will be the fastest player on the squad.

Chestnut trees

If you've planted a chestnut seedling in the past 10 years, or ever want to, you probably have 85-year-old James Comp or Ward Taylor, 77, to thank, says National Wildlife magazine. For the past decade, they and their army of senior citizens, Boy Scouts, conservationists, and prison laborers have salvaged a quarter of a million chestnuts from one of America's last stand of chestnut trees along Michigan's eastern shore. From the early 1900's to the 1950's a lethal fungus imported from Japan nearly wiped out this American tradition.

Your neighbor says

Halloweening OK, but not vandalism

Although Halloween was a relatively quiet night in Cass City, at least one resident received some damage from vandals. Do you feel Halloween should be eliminated?

"If they just do Halloweening, I don't think it should be stopped, but if they are going to raise hell, then I feel it should be stopped," said Cass City resident Archie McPhail. His place was vandalized Friday night. Bird houses, a windmill and a bird feeder in his yard were destroyed. McPhail estimated the loss to be about $400. "I don't think anybody else in the neighborhood had anything done to their house," he added.

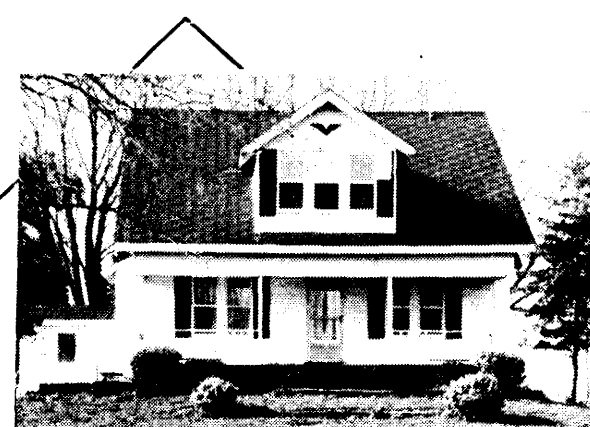

McPhail, who grew up in the Argyle area, said when he was a youngster they used to take the doctor's buggy and put it up on his porch, and do other Halloween tricks like tipping over outhouses, but they never did anything destructive.

McPhail, who needs a walker to get around, said he didn't hear any noise, so he doesn't know when the vandals did the damage. The next night the birdhouses were hauled up and put on his porch.

"According to the radio, it could be a lot worse," McPhail said, about the devil's night fires in Detroit. McPhail lived in Detroit until 1970, when he moved to the Cass City area. Where he lived in Detroit was near the area where the riots went on. The notorious Purple Gang of the 1930's used to have a hangout in his neighborhood.

wasn't work in the coal fields. Today, workers look at the auto industry jobs differently. Maciarz said the auto jobs pay well, and are highly sought. He added these jobs will diminish unless auto makers can be competitive enough to get the sales volume up. "We've got to get the edge back, and it is going to be technology that is going to do it."

Richards described the tapes as being non-commercial, not promoting General Motors. The first cassette showed different ways that photography can be used to provide scientific information. After the preview, Maciarz explained that in GM's testing of cars for safety, photography plays an important part in evaluating how a car performs in a test accident.

"We have considered buying them ourselves, but they are so darn expensive," Richards said about the Science Screen Report cassettes.

"Our message is simple," Maciarz said. "If you feel as a young person you want a job, you had better have the right background."

not getting through the winter with it," he said about using the present salt spreader. The village will purchase the salt spreader from Scientific Brake and Equipment Co., Saginaw.

METER BAN

Village trustees accepted a check from the Cass City Chamber of Commerce's Retail Committee for $250 to pay the village for one-half of the revenues from parking meters for December when once again Christmas shoppers will have free parking on village streets. Bags will be placed over the parking meters beginning the day after Thanksgiving. Last year the village received $250 from the Retail Committee, and $250 from the General Chamber of Commerce to make up for the $500 loss of revenue by having free parking.

OTHER BUSINESS

Trustees agreed to renew a one-year contract with Yeo and Yeo Certified Public Accountants to audit the village books. The amount to be paid to the Marlette accounting firm is not to exceed $6,500 for the year, the same as last year's agreement.

Replacing collapsed drain to cost village $15,500

Trustees thanked the Cass City Jaycees for their donation of time and materials to rebuild two dugouts on the little league softball fields in the village park.

Trustees were notified the Planning Commission will hold a public hearing Nov. 19 at 7:00 p.m. to discuss a proposed satellite dish ordinance.

Shaw poised for 2nd flight

Earning his bachelor's degree in engineering mechanics at the University of Wisconsin. He and his friends pooled their money to buy a used airplane. He joined the Air Force after receiving his master's degree from U of W in 1968. He served as a fighter-bomber in Thailand and Vietnam during the Vietnam War. He and his wife Kathleen have three children.

On Shaw's first space shuttle flight, the orbital path provided him the opportunity to see his native state, but because of a heavy cloud cover he was unable to see Michigan. On this flight he will be too far south on the horizon to see Michigan. The Atlantis is scheduled to make 110 revolutions around the earth, at an altitude of 190 nautical miles, about 218 miles into space.

Shaw recommends that anyone who can get away, should come down to Cape Kennedy and watch a space shuttle launch. He added his wife and children, parents, and family members are planning to make the trip to Florida. The launch is scheduled at 7:38 a.m. Nov. 27. The space craft will return to earth Dec. 4 at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Shaw plans a visit to Cass City early next year to tell area residents about his flight.

Sportsmen face license boost

By Warren M. Hoyt

The head of the House Conservation and Environment Committee has proposed a new plan to increase hunting and fishing licenses to make up an expected $6.7 million deficit in the state Game and Fish Protection Fund which permits a lifetime license and creates a lifetime license trust fund.

Meanwhile, the head of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs proposed a one-year increase in license fees to help meet the deficit.

Both proposals are in contrast to a proposal issued earlier by the Natural Resources Commission which would increase license fees, require the state general fund to reimburse the game and fish fund from both local property taxes and senior citizen license discounts, and creates a game and fish trust fund which would be financed by oil, gas, and timber revenues.

Representative Thomas Scott (D-Flint) unveiled his proposal before his Conservation and Environment Committee.

That proposal creates lifetime license fees which will be deposited in a lifetime license fee fund. Beginning Oct. 1, 1987, that fund would deposit 50 percent of its interest and earnings into the game and fish fund.

Scott's proposal also adopts the NRC's annual license fee proposal beginning April 1, 1987, but the increases would only be permitted if the Department of Natural Resources determined that the sale of lifetime licenses was unable to generate sufficient revenues to finance the game and fish fund.

But Thomas Washington, executive director of the MUCC, proposed a one-year increase in license fees that would raise nearly $5 million that would come close to meeting a $5.1 million deficit in the game and fish fund.

DNR officials have claimed a deficit of $6.7 million, but conceded that the actual deficit is $5.1 million, with the additional $1.6 million coming from the planned hiring of additional conservation officers.

Pollack Proposes Environmental Enforcement Package

Jail terms for persons who purposely pollute water or air would be imposed under a six-bill environmental enforcement package proposed recently by Senator Lana Pollack (D-Ann Arbor). Besides criminal penalties, the package would also increase civil fines that are already used against polluters and give the Department of Natural Resources more authority to halt pollution.

"Responsible businesses and taxpayers should not have to bear the costs for cleaning up pollution sites that resulted from unethical persons or companies making a fast dollar while consciously breaking the law," Pollack said.

She noted the federal government has just begun to send persons to jail for pollution actions, citing a case of a company executive in Missouri who filed false information for obtaining a water discharge permit. The criminal penalties for reckless disregard in poisoning water and air would be in the Penal Code.

The legislation would amend the Solid Waste Management, Hazardous Waste Management, Air Pollution, and Water Resources Commission Acts to provide civil penalties of up to $25,000 per day; to permit the Department of Natural Resources to issue administrative fines of at least $100 per day for license reporting violations and $1,000-$5,000 per day for other permit and license violations, but excluding failure to report a pollution incident, and credit those fines to programs to clean up hazardous waste sites and air and water monitoring expenses, and authorize the DNR to summarily suspend a permit or license in cases where violations pose an imminent risk to public health or environment.

The package would also amend the Environmental Response Act to make polluters liable for their share of damages at a pollution site, and establish triple damages for evaluation and restoration of a site if a company does not cooperate with the DNR.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Of all the investment books I've come across, one of the very best is one just out:

"Retirement Planning," by Ray Vicker. Published by Richard D. Irwin, Inc. of 10 E. 168th St., South Holland, Ill. 60473. Cost, including postage is $21.50.

Vicker was a veteran reporter for the Wall Street Journal, where he learned to write clearly and concisely. Persons from 18 to 70 could be better off for reading it.

It covers everything affecting your personal finances - pensions, tax savings, retirement savings plans, investments of many kinds, problems of consumer rip-offs - just about everything that will make your later years pleasant ones.

Vicker tells how the rich get that way - not just by saving money, but by making the money work for them.

"Only a dullard puts money in a savings account in excess of his emergency needs," he says. "The rich have accumulated money by seeking out the best return they can get, assuming risk is small."

He also observes:

"Undoubtedly, people will claim that money doesn't buy health and happiness. But it can sure make a down payment."

John Galbraith, writing in his book, "The Affluent Society," said, "Wealth is not without its advantages...and the case to the contrary has never proved widely persuasive."

I always liked Mark Twain's remark, "It's no disgrace to be poor, but it's damned inconvenient."

Vicker, the author, champions the cause of saving early and regularly. For example: A person of 25 need save only $391 a year, at 12% to have a nest egg of $300,000 at 65. That's $1.07 a day - a pack of cigarettes, a bottle of beer at a bar (or two at home), a golf ball or a tennis ball, a gallon of gas, skipping dessert....

There are few things I envy the young having. I am enjoying these later years in great measure and find life a lot of fun. Much of the relish comes from being financially independent and having a comfortable income. That's where the young might envy me.

Where they have the big advantage over me is that they can get to this level of living so much faster than I did, for two reasons:

The young ones earn a lot more today than we of today's Medicare crowd did when we were young. In the 30's I started out running a weekly newspaper in Gladwin, Mich. My pay was $15 a week.

The same job today would pay $300, maybe $400 a week. Sure, $15 bought more than it does today, but not 20 or 25 times as much. To buy a suit, I had to take two weeks' pay. Currently, on the same job, a fellow could buy two suits in one week.

Savings accounts and bonds paid 3 percent then. The $100 I saved the first year and invested at 3 percent took 24 years to double, compounded.

Today a young fellow making $15,000 a year ought to be able to save 10 percent, or $1,500. I'm suggesting 10 percent for savings. I myself saved 15 percent, but I was reared in a Scotch-German family, and boy, those people were frugal and thrifty.

Let my successor, then, put his $1,500 in a zero-coupon bond at 10.5 percent tax free...let him put it out for 24 years, as I did with my $100. My $100 doubled. His $1,500 will become, not $3,000, or a double, but $17,500.

Do I hear cries, "Yes, but what about inflation?"

I'll argue that $17,500 now is better than $200 I got for my $100 savings 24 years after 1935. And it will be better 24 years hence for those starting a saving program now. Wring out the 4 percent current inflation from the 10.5 percent rate we can get for zero-coupon tax-free bonds, and you still have 6 percent left. Let this $1,500 we're talking about compound at only 6 percent for 24 years. It still will become $7,500 in 24 years, and that is figured in 1985 dollars.

Of a number of people who have come to visit with me in recent months on their financial problems, there seems to be one common denominator. They all have been sold shares of Colonial Option Income Fund, and they all wish they hadn't bought. Dividends, now running at 4 percent, are much less than the "nice young men" promised when they peddled the fund. Other disbursements seem to be a return of capital, for the per-share price keeps going down.

If you have municipal bonds with big coupons - like 12 percent or more, have your broker check them over. Many have been pre-refunded with another lower rate issue, and the proceeds therefore are put in escrow to pay off the high coupon bonds, when the call date comes up in six or seven years.

Since the funds are already on hand, the quality immediately goes up to AAA, and your bond becomes a short-term guaranteed issue worth 20 or 25 points more. Sell 'em, and make your Thanksgiving a happy one.
