

No accord at joint board meeting

O-G to continue 10-year land battle

It appears that the land dispute between the Cass City and the Owendale-Gagetown school districts that has already dragged on for over 10 years will not be settled soon.

A meeting between the 2 boards Monday night at the Tuscola County Intermediate School district building in Caro adjourned after a half hour when it appeared that the 2 sides were hopelessly deadlocked.

Owen-Gage Superintendent Ron Erickson opened the meeting and talked about non-resident property in the "Goslin" and "Belk" parcels that has been disputed by Owen-Gage since the time the land transferred out of the district to the Cass City district. He said that about 53 percent of the property in Goslin and 50 percent of the property in Belk was owned by non-residents. Owen-Gage is seeking this property in return for settling the issue.

Following the opening discussion the Cass City board caucused and reaffirmed a position taken in its last regular board meeting Monday, March 17.

Supt. Don Crouse said that the board had decided not to open any discussion about the Belk property unless it was agreed that there would be no land transferred from the Goslin property to the Owen-Gage district.

Erickson said that the offer doesn't give us much leeway. When the Owen-Gage board refused to discuss the issue if Goslin was not included the meeting ended.

It was pointed out in the discussion that prior to the ruling by the State Board of Education Cass City had offered to switch non-resident property in Goslin for property with an equal assessed value in Belk. Crouse replied that the offer was made on the condition that it be accepted prior to the ruling of the State Board of Education that gave the land to Cass City. In addition, Crouse said, a survey of the non-resident property owners in Goslin has revealed that very few of them want their property transferred to Owen-Gage.

Erickson said that Cass City's refusal to negotiate Goslin and Belk together means that a lot of money will be paid by both sides in attorney fees. Crouse said that Owen-Gage's court cases will be against the attorney general's office representing the State Board of Education. If I were in a district, he pointed out, and the State Board of Education had ruled against the district, I would advise the board to accept the decision. The odds for beating the State Board have been very poor, he added.

The Owen-Gage Board appears determined to struggle for the land that it believes is rightfully theirs. Erickson told the group that a stay of execution placing the Belk property in the Cass City district had been granted by Ingham County Circuit Judge James Kallman. A hearing will be held Aug. 1. Judge Kallman has consistently issued rulings that supported the Owen-Gage position including a rehearing on the Goslin property when the State Board ruled that the land should be transferred to Cass City.

Because a compromise now seems out of the question, Owen-Gage is proceeding with a plan to have the entire issue reviewed. Already pending before the Tuscola and Huron Intermediate District boards is a request for the non-resident property in the Goslin and Belk districts. Erickson said that a request will be submitted for the remainder of the land in the disputed area.

Regardless of what happens in that hearing it is almost certain that the case will wind its way back to the State Board of Education and perhaps to the courts unless a change in the positions of the 2 school boards is forthcoming. Judging by the results of Monday's meeting that appears to be a remote possibility.

Novesta refuses school's plan for tax collection

It looks like road work is high on the agenda of improvements in Novesta Township this year. Novesta Township residents approved the budget Saturday at the township annual meeting which will allot $58,000 to the general road construction fund.

Supervisor William O'Dell reported that road work has already been started. "We fixed up a lot of washed out roads last week," said O'Dell.

The Board plans to continue a road program this summer in which a series of side roads are graded and graveled. "Last summer we did 9 miles and they are holding up well," said O'Dell. With the extra money it is also hoped that the township will be able to put in at least one mile of blacktop, estimated by the Road Commission at $19,000.

Also discussed and approved by the residents was a vote not to approve an agreement to turn over tax money and interest to the school. A verdict passed in Grand Rapids now makes it legal for the school to ask to have the money deposited in the school account and consequently collect the interest. "I'm opposed to it," said O'Dell, and he has appeared before the school board in opposition to the plan. It was voted to continue on as they have been, which means, according to treasurer Ralph Zinnnecker, paying the school every 2 weeks and allowing the township to keep the interest.

BUDGET

The 1986-87 budget was approved by the residents which projects township revenues at $126,150 and expenditures at $124,712.

The budget is higher this year because of a carryover of cash from last year. "We got more money than we had planned on last year," said O'Dell, "and it left us with a $50,000 surplus as of Dec. 1, 1985."

The largest portion of the township's revenues, $47,000, will come from estimated state revenue funds. Local property taxes are expected to generate $17,700. Novesta had cut back mills to 1.4 but now feels that they must return to the 1.6 mills set up by the County Allotment Board. O'Dell explained that it will give them a few thousand dollars more.

The township carried over a $50,000 fund balance from last year, which was more than the $28,000 carried over last year.

Fire protection was budgeted at $7,200, the same as last year. Ambulance service for the town will cost $5,000.

Last year trustees agreed to hire Rich's Disposal, of Deford to bring a trash disposal truck to the township hall once a month. It was decided that the trash disposal is working well, being both convenient and quick. The sanitation service cost is $3,100. Clerk, Nursie Kloc, suggested extending the pick up period, and the residents agreed. Trash pick up will now be twice a month starting in May and will continue into the fall.

Also at the meeting a pay raise was approved for trustees Donna Monroe and Tim Knoblet. They will now be paid $40 instead of $35.

The new representative on the ambulance board, Linda Boerner, was introduced. She said that things are going well and they have improved a new suction machine for the ambulance.

The Deford drain which was worked on last year needs more work but it was not on the budget. O'Dell said that the Drain Commission is going to come in and survey and at that time give the township an estimate.

New customer added

$9 million stock offering planned by Walbro Corp.

Robert H. Walpole, executive vice-president of Walbro Corporation, announced this week that production for a new customer is scheduled to start in May for June delivery. The corporation's carburetor group will produce float feed carburetors for Kohler engines that were previously manufactured by Kohler.

Walpole said that the new business for the company has entailed a substantial investment in equipment for assembly and machining.

The float feed carburetor production line is now in place and the units will be manufactured in Walbro's new Cass City manufacturing facility.

Walpole declined to say just how the new business would affect employment. The employment picture will depend on overall production at both the Cass City and Caro plants, he explained.

The Kohler engines for which Walbro will be supplying carburetors range in size from 4 to 23 horsepower.

The carburetors for Kohler will incorporate the latest design features and technology developed by Walbro. The new carburetors are designed to provide state of the art performance in a cost effective unit.

STOCK OFFERING

Walbro also announced this week that it plans to file a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission registering 450,000 shares of its common stock for sale to the public.

President and Chief Executive Officer Lambert

Althaver said that the stock is projected to raise about $9 million and will be used primarily to reduce long term bank debt.

There are 2,945,858 shares of stock outstanding and the new issue will amount to about 15 percent of the outstanding stock.

Walbro expects to file the registration statement in about 2 weeks.

Renaissance Ensemble gives unique concert

The Renaissance Ensemble, comprised of musicians from Michigan, New York and Boston presented a unique concert of sacred songs and ballads Saturday at the Cass City Presbyterian Church.

The selections were played on ancient instruments such as the lute, vielle, recorder and krumphorn. The music, which was representative of many different countries during the Renaissance, not only reflected the many moods of early music, but also the lively rhythms and melodies which make it surprisingly appealing to modern audiences.

There are 4 members in the group, all with an impressive musical background.

At the local level is Eric Nisula. He is choir director at the Cass City Presbyterian Church and the director of music at Saginaw Valley College. He has been a member of the Hartt Collegium, the Windham Collegium, Syntagma Musicum, the Faenza Consort and the Columbia University Collegium which has recorded. He is currently a member of the Early Music Ensemble, a group based in Grand Rapids.

Persis Ensor, is a founding member of the Renaissance Consort, a Renaissance chamber ensemble out of New York. Her many awards and achievements include winner of the Erwin Bodkey award for excellence in early music awarded by the Cambridge Society for Early Music, and publication of "Monophonic Songs of the 12th and 13th Centuries."

Another local member is Andrea Hofmeister, of Gagetown. She holds a Master of Music degree in Vocal Performance from the University of Michigan. She has toured the Soviet Union with the University of Michigan Chamber Choir and sung under director Robert Shaw. She is a frequent recitalist and soloist in the Tri-City area, having most recently performed in Bach's "St. Matthew's Passion."

Steve Liebman is a professional lutenist in the Hartford area who has also performed in New York and Boston. He completed studies at the Hartt School of Music and is a student of Joseph Iadone. Liebman has also recorded for Folk Legacy.

The group was put together by Nisula. According to Hofmeister, he is currently on Sabbatical leave and the Renaissance Ensemble is a special project. Hofmeister sings in the Presbyterian church choir and Ensor and Liebman are friends of Nisula's from out east.

Kindergarten registration

All children in the Cass City School District who are or will be 5 years old before Dec. 1, and are planning to attend kindergarten in the fall, must register for the 1986-87 school year.

Dates set for the registration and visitation are as follows:

April 22 - Deford Elementary - 9:00 a.m. - 11:00 a.m.
April 22 - Evergreen Elementary - 1:30 p.m. - 3:00 p.m.

April 22 - Campbell Elementary - Rural children, 6:30 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.
April 23 - Campbell Elementary - Town children, 4:00 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.

The children will be visiting and having special activities in the kindergarten rooms, while parents have a special meeting in the gym at each school.

No child will be admitted to kindergarten until they have registered, presented child's birth certificate, and an up-to-date immunization record. Parents should bring these records to school on the date set for each elementary school.

The state requires a pre-school vision and hearing tests. Clinic dates for Deford and Campbell elementary pupils have been set for May 19 and May 20 at the Campbell School. Also, they will be screened for any speech problems. Completed health forms can be turned in to the school nurse at this time. Evergreen children will be tested Friday, April 25, beginning at 8:30 a.m. by the Sanilac Health Department.

Cass City has two developmental kindergarten rooms. Appointments will be made to test all children, especially those with summer and late fall birthdays. It is through this testing program that children are selected for the developmental kindergarten program.

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

It must be spring. First robin reports have been streaming in. The first was by Chronicle staffer Cymbre Sommerville, the second was a pair sighted by Mike Lefler while attending the state basketball tourney at Ann Arbor.

Red faced department. I hesitate to tell about this and you will know why after reading it. Anyway it happened at the basketball tournament Friday in East Lansing. Our tickets to the games were not the best. They were in the end zone and I decided to try and buy something better from fans coming to the games.

Ticket locations are marked by letters. Ours was in section AA and I carefully noted in my mind the letters that denoted the choice seats. At least I thought I did.

I scrounged around outside for awhile and found a pair that I figured were somewhere near the middle of the field house. Rushing back in I triumphantly announced the choice seats. Clare Comment examined them, checked the area and announced that I had purchased two more tickets in the exact location of the ones we already had, but in the opposite end zone.

When next year's hoop season rolls around there will be changes in the coaching staff if minds aren't changed between now and next fall. Junior varsity coach Lloyd Schinnerer and freshman coach Jeff Hartel have decided not to return.

The easiest thing to do to help out is to give money. Every time there's a group at the corner of Seeger and Main collecting I think about that. Most every year there are the same familiar faces doing the job. One of the most faithful is Cass Bartnik. He was out doing his stuff last week in the Knights of Columbus' drive for retarded children. Bartnik hit the street at 7 a.m. Thursday. When I asked how long he would be working when I went by at 9 a.m. he replied that the crew would be working through the week end or until all the Tootsie Rolls were sold. I'll be around until then, he said.

Traxler-sponsored bean bill signed by President

There was plenty of good news from Washington last week for Thumb area bean growers as an amendment to the 1985 Farm Bill sponsored by Congressman Bob Traxler (D-Bay City) was signed into law by President Reagan.

Traxler said, "I'm happy to report that the President has signed into law my bill to prohibit the subsidized planting of dry beans on permitted acreage. This is great news for bean farmers in the Thumb since it comes in time for the spring planting of dry beans."

Traxler said he introduced the legislation a couple of months ago to protect Michigan bean growers who were concerned with a provision in the 1985 Farm Bill that would have allowed the planting of beans and other crops on permitted acreage. "That kind of planting would have severely depressed bean prices and would have had a negative, lasting effect on bean markets," he said.

As a result of the law being signed, the 8th District Congressman said bean growers in the area may still face slightly stiffer competition than what would have been the case before enactment of the 1985 Farm Bill. However, he said the competition will not be nearly as much as when compared to what it would have been, had the law not been amended.

The measure was introduced in the U.S. House of Representatives by Traxler. The same bill was supported in the Senate by Senators Don Riegle and Carl Levin of Michigan.

Chemical board approves proposal

The Board of Directors of Chemical Financial Corporation, at its March 17 meeting, approved a proposal to issue a rights offering to its security holders.

The company will file a registration statement pertaining to this rights offering with the Securities and Exchange Commission

March 28, with the proposed effective date scheduled to be April 18.

The company will issue transferable rights to its shareholders to purchase one additional share of its common stock, $10 par value, at a price of $39.00 per share for each 20 shares held at the close of business March 26.

The Haire
Net

There comes a time when the rights of the individual must be subjugated to the rights of society. There's no argument about that. We all agree that no one has the right to travel at 100 miles per hour down the wrong side of the road, although it happens every day someplace.

Where the rub comes is deciding when our rights start and end.

The Miranda decision protecting the rights of accused criminals will probably never meet the approval of the majority. It won't even if President Reagan is successful in watering down the rights of persons accused.

The attempt to take some of the teeth out of Miranda has no support here. History shows how easy it is for nations to slip into dictatorships and yes, Virginia, it can happen here.

Another current squabble pitting the rights of the individual against the rights of society is the testing for drug use.

Athletes are objecting to involuntary testing for the use of drugs as a violation of their individual liberties.

There's no doubt that it is. It's a classic case of an extremely grey area. Athletes occupy a special niche in our lives. They are looked on as heroes, idolized and fawned over. They are role models for the young.

Does this special role supersede their rights as individuals?

Probably not, from where I sit. However, you'd think that the big, big bucks they draw down would make the pros do whatever is necessary to protect the game from which they become rich. It's likely that some arrangement will eventually be worked out that will clean up drugs from most professional sports. If it doesn't, the world won't come to an end.

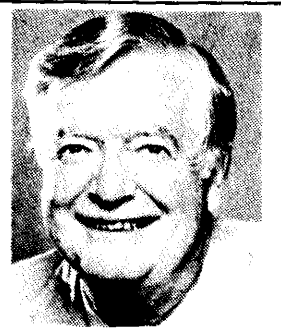

That's not the case if an accident occurs in a nuclear plant caused by an employee dazed by drug use.

That's why we just can't understand why the union representing workers at Consumers Power has gone to the National Labor Relations Board to stall a new alcohol and drug screening program for 1,100 employees.

"If It Fitz..."

Tolls and slot machines

By Jim Fitzgerald

On my winter vacation I learned that:

- Toll collectors on the bridge connecting New Providence Island with Paradise Island in Nassau, capital of the Bahamas, have something in common with third basemen — they shouldn't be southpaws.

- Thanks partly to A&P grocery stores, there are no monks praying today in a cloister built in France in the 12th Century.

- A bidet is confusing for a four-year-old child but fine for bathing a two-month-old baby.

Those are just three samples of the notebookful of intriguing information I collected during two weeks of painstaking search for an income tax deduction to write about.

When the toll bridge was built, wire baskets, were installed for motorists to throw coins into, thus raising the wooden arm automatically and gaining admittance onto Paradise Island with a minimum of delay. But the toll has gone up several times in the past 20 years — it's now $2 for cars — and coins became impractical.

So today the motorist hands two dollar bills to the collector in the little booth, or gets change for a larger bill. The collector then walks out of the booth and throws a coin into the basket, activating the wooden arm.

The basket is a few feet to the collector's left, so if he or she were left-handed, the throw would be as awkward as that required of a left-handed third baseman picking up a ground ball and throwing it to first base.

To make a decent throw, a left-handed toll collector would have to make a full circle before letting loose of the coin. This would allow the motorist to beat out a lot of grounders and allow him or her too much time to wonder how many coins the toll collector has.

Or, to put it another way, how often must the collector empty the basket to recycle the coins? The search for an answer to this question could tie up bridge traffic for hours, so you can see why the toll collectors, like third basemen, shouldn't be left-handed. Unless, of course, the motorists always pull their cars toward right field.

As for the 12th Century cloister, an open-air cluster of dingy pillars, it's no longer in France; it's on Paradise Island. A&P heir Huntington Hartford II, who once owned much of the island, moved it there in the 1960s in hopes it would attract tourists.

It didn't. The tourists didn't flock until Resorts International took over and a gambling casino was built. But I didn't go to Paradise to shoot craps. The most fun I got out of the casino was sneaking Emily inside and watching her laugh when she put 25 cents in a slot machine and got back $3.

Yes, it's against the law for a four-year-old to play the slots. If you're offended, let me know and I'll put you in touch with the readers who complained in 1984 when I snuck Emily into a booth and let her vote against President Reagan.

I figure a kid can't learn too young. Another thing I taught Emily on vacation was the value of regular exercise. Once every day, she watched in awe as I went through the muscle-stretching, dextrous exertions necessary to move my body out of a wobbly, webbed chaise lounge without falling into the swimming pool.

Early one afternoon, Emily burst into my darkened bedroom and shouted: "It's a quarter of clock in the morning. Time to get out of bed and start lounging off."

Time didn't matter on Paradise. In subsequent columns, I'll reveal how really long it was living for two weeks with no TV and only one bidet. You might not be interested, but you might not work for the Internal Revenue Service.

"Project graduation" endorsed by Cass City student council

High school students from over 106 participating high schools, including Cass City, kicked off "Project Graduation" a cooperative effort of media, businesses and health agencies designed to discourage teenagers from drinking and driving during prom and graduation season, at a rally held Friday.

The purpose of the rally was to educate students to the dangers of drinking and driving and to motivate the students to carry the mission of the "Project Graduation" coalition into high schools. The rally was held at the University of Michigan-Flint. Two to three designated student leaders from each school, their advisors and "Project Graduation" coalition members participated in the event. Advisor Jerry Cleland and students Tammy Iseler, Deb Cook, Shelley Nicholas and Shannon McIntosh represented Cass City High School.

"Project Graduation" is patterned after a similar campaign which took place in the Detroit market in the spring of 1985 and is being spearheaded locally by WFUM-TV28 (PBS), WJRT-TV12 (ABC) and Connexion, a health promotion and risk reduction agency. A coalition was formed this past December which has been planning a variety of activities designed to heighten awareness among high school students and their parents about the risks involved with drinking and driving. The coalition consists of such groups as the Human Development Commission of Caro, M.A.D.D., Michigan State Police, Mott's Children's Health Center, S.A.D.D. and WWCK-105FM.

Approximately 375 students participated in the rally which provided an agenda of coalition speakers, Mr. Robert Weiss, Prosecuting Attorney for Genesee County; Genesee County Sheriff Joe Wilson, Lt. James Gage and Sgt. Ron Churchill of the Michigan State Police, psychologist Dr. David Hall, Henry Smith, retired principal of Lapeer West High School, spoke of his personal tragedy involving drinking and driving as well as a host of video presentations addressing the drinking and driving issues that featured entertainers Stevie Wonder, Michael Jackson and Ready for the World and Rockers Against Drunk Driving (R.A.D.D.).

The thrust of the "Project Graduation" activities are planned from March through April, the pre-prom and graduation period, with final awareness activities planned during the actual prom and graduation period of April through June.

At the Cass City High School the project has been made official by the student council, according to advisor Jerry Cleland. They are also hoping to involve the Hills and Dales drug program and any other organization which is interested.

Students and parents are asked to sign a 3-part contract which states first, that the students will not drink and drive; second, that if they do drink they can call their parents who will come pick them up with no questions asked that night; and lastly, it is implied that the parents will not serve alcohol to minors at graduation parties, and realize that if they do they are liable. "The law has always been on the books but it is just now being enforced," said Cleland referring back to Henry Smith, whose son was killed last summer by an underage drunken driver whose parents were found liable because they had served him alcohol.

Cleland says that there have been a number of incentives suggested to get the students to sign, but nothing has been decided on yet. For example, the student council president has volunteered to spend the night in jail if 80 percent of the junior and senior students sign the contract.

"The students seem to be really enthused about the project," said Cleland. "We're really quite excited about it."

Some other activities are: a half hour documentary, Tuesday, April 8, called "The Best of Life is Yet to Be," capturing the firsthand experiences of a recovering alcohol-related accident victim, and relatives and friends who sustained the loss of a loved one as the result of drinking and driving. On April 15, channel WEYI-TV25 and channel WJRT-TV12 will be simulcasting videos from celebrities and between segments they will accept calls from area high schools which can report on the number of students who have signed contracts.

McDonald Dairy Company will distribute statewide, half gallon and half pint milk cartons, between the weeks of March 10 and June 2, featuring a message regarding "Project Graduation" efforts. WJRT-TV12 and WFUM-TV28 will be running public service announcements and promos featuring area high school students, as well as news and editorial coverage.

Interest rate buy down set

Farmers Home Administration guarantee program now includes an interest rate buy down option.

According to Henry L. Knier Jr., County Supervisor of the Caro office, the new program will allow private lenders the option to reduce the interest rate they charge farmers who qualify for the program. Under the program, lenders who apply for loan guarantees with farmers could agree to lower the interest rate they charge the farmer by up to 4%. This reduction would be paid for half by the lender and half by the Farmers Home Administration.

"Eligibility for this interest rate reduction will be limited to farmers who show a need for lower interest rates to positively cash flow their operation," said Knier. Other primary eligibility rules for the farmer are that he is an established farmer with adequate management ability, collateral and repayment ability.

Guaranteed loans are loans made by private lenders that carry a Federal Government guarantee of up to 90 percent. Knier said, "This means that with a guarantee the lender will be protected from 90% of its loss, should the loan be liquidated and a loss occurs."

Guarantees generally allow private lenders to loosen their collateral and repayment terms from normal lending standards, allowing financially stressed farmers to continue in farming.

While it is unknown if lenders will use this interest buy down, Henry Knier expects they will seriously consider it in many cases.

"Guaranteed loans and interest buy downs should be discussed with your lender first. The lenders then initiate the guarantee loan request if they desire the guarantee," said Knier.

PCB trial continues

A second week of testimony began Monday in Huron County Circuit Court in Bad Axe in a trial dealing with the alleged PCB contamination of silos in the Pigeon area.

Court officials said the C & B Silo Company and the Michigan Silo Company are named in the suit filed by Ronald and Bonita Schulz and Dale and Christina Schulz. The suit claims that the 2 dairy farm operations and members of the Schulz families have been contaminated by polychlorinated biphenyls that were used in a sealant for silos on the farms near Pigeon. The suit was originally filed in 1977, and also named the Monsanto Chemical Company. However, company officials have since settled out of court with the Schulz families.

The trial in Bad Axe is expected to last a maximum of 6 weeks. It follows a similar case heard in Huron County Circuit Court in 1984 in which the Roger Haley family of Owendale was awarded $810,000. The outcome of that trial is being appealed by Monsanto.

Proposal designed to ease problem of overcrowding in county jails

The Michigan Sheriff's Association (MSA) unveiled a 4-point legislative proposal to strengthen the state-county partnership against crime.

The proposal aims to reform the state corrections and county jail systems by sharing $55 million in state resources to improve corrections at the local level, according to Jackson County Sheriff Henry C. Zavislak, chairman of the bi-partisan MSA Jail/Corrections Advisory Committee.

According to Tuscola County Undersheriff Megge, the proposal is a suggestion for easing the overcrowding in jails and prisons that comes from people who have been in the business for years and years.

Tuscola County jail has been overcrowded for the past 6 to 8 months said

Megge, as are most jails in the state.

The proposal, researched and drafted by the MSA Jail/Corrections Resource Center, contains 4 main goals. The first is to obtain state reimbursement to counties for housing felons, estimated to be $25 million annually. Second, establish a $30 million fund to assist counties in obtaining compliance or for initiating programs or construction. Third, repeal of Michigan Department of Corrections' authority over jails, and last, implement a 2-year jail term concept tied to a community corrections fund.

Current Department of Corrections' figures indicate that approximately 3,300 inmates, 41 percent of the state's prison population, have been sentenced to 2 years or less. It is estimated that if the proposal is implemented, many of these prisoners could be diverted into the new system.

"Corrections at a local level generally provides a more secure, cost effective, responsive system for both the community and the inmates," Zavislak said.

MSA president and Macomb County Sheriff William Hackel said the proposal's strength rests in efficiently and effectively focusing state and local resources on crime prevention.

"The proposal is tough on crime," Hackel noted. "It makes the best use of state and local resources and still provides personalized programs."

So to speak . . .

by Jim McLoskey

While listening to the radio the other day, I heard Deputy Richard Blakely of the Tuscola County sheriff's department conclude a report by reminding people that the maximum speed limit is still 55 miles per hour.

As that announcement was being made, the speedometer on Young Bess (that's the name of my car) was pointing to 57 m.p.h. While traveling on highways with a 55 m.p.h. speed limit, I usually keep my car at a speed of between 53 and 58 m.p.h.

I think the main point that Deputy Blakely was trying to make is that many Michigan drivers (myself included) have a habit of increasing their speed as the percentage of ice and snow covered pavement decreases. Another thing I am guilty of is determining my traveling speed based upon whether or not there is another vehicle behind me. It must be my conscience telling me how to avoid a rear-end collision, or just giving me a good excuse to travel a little faster!

As the cost of gasoline has fallen over the past few months, I have expected to hear the call from Washington or Lansing to do away with the 55 m.p.h. speed limit. However, it appears all the statistics showing how many lives have been saved may have turned the tide of those people's opinions. It should be pointed out, though, that just enough Michigan drivers obey the speed limit on interstate highways to keep the federal officials from pulling the plug on transportation funding from Washington.

On a somewhat related topic, I have talked to a number of people recently who have not had nice things to say about the drivers of 4-wheel drive vehicles and other kinds of vehicles that set higher on the road compared to the average car. With all of our water and mud covered road conditions, I have heard of more than a couple of incidents where cars have received an unexpected shower of water and mud, as they are being passed by one of these high-riding vehicles going in the opposite direction. It seems like these drivers should show a little more consideration for the so-called "little guys" who use the same roadways.

I think I have space for one more comment from McLoskey's Rules for Safe Driving. (You mean there's more?) This has to do with using the turn indicators and sideview mirrors that Detroit has been so cooperative in blessing us with. A couple of weeks ago, I came about 4 inches away from losing my left front fender when a driver decided to make a split second lane change without bothering to see where my car was positioned. Fortunately, I was able to slam on the brakes and am still here to tell you about it! In the long run, I guess it pays to drive defensively!

New books at the library

THE HANDMAID'S TALE by Margaret Atwood (fiction). The setting is the U.S. in the near future, a religious dictatorship where women have been forced back into their traditional roles, as domestic help, wives, and mothers. Because of a drastic decline in fertility, those women still capable of bearing children have been designated "Handmaids" and given to the men of the elite as concubines in order to reproduce. The novel is narrated by one of the handmaids, Offred, who mingles memories of her life before the revolution with an account of her rebellious activities under the new regime. Slowly, a chilling portrait emerges of a society whose roots in America's present-day conflicts are frighteningly clear.

BREAKING ALL THE RULES by Nancy Roberts (non-fiction). "It's okay to be overweight" is the message that Roberts drills into readers in this fashion guide/autobiography. Roberts recounts her continual struggles with weight during her childhood and adult years. After becoming involved with an all-female London theater group and hosting her own British television show, she decided that big can indeed be beautiful. To that end, she presents many photographs of heavyweights attired in trendy clothing, thus attesting to her assertion that large women don't ever have to settle for a frumpy look.

CYCLOPS by Clive Cussler (fiction). Dirk Pitt is the hero in this suspense caper that features a maverick American colony on the moon, a fabulous sunken treasure sought by an unscrupulous, blimp-owning financier, and two cunningly devised Soviet schemes, one to steal U.S. space secrets, the other to replace Fidel Castro with a Kremlin puppet, no matter what the cost in human lives. There is nonstop action with murder and torture as well as superpower politicking, and Pitt extricates himself from one desperate situation after another, even finding time for a little romance.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters surpass fund raising goal

If you were at the Brentwood in Caro Sunday, March 15, you may have noticed a bit of a circus atmosphere as area "celebrity" bowlers helped Tuscola County Big Brothers/Big Sisters reach and surpass their fund raising goal of $10,000. By the end of the Bowl For Kids' Sake Celebrity Day Bowlathon, participants had raised nearly $13,000 in pledges that, when collected, will benefit the operation of the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program in Tuscola County.

Bowlathon Master of Ceremonies Red Wiles, entertained the nearly 400 "celebrity" bowlers from all over Tuscola County with a day of fun and prizes donated by area merchants. All participants are also eligible for additional prizes for collected pledges which include such prizes as mugs, T-shirts, tote bags and clocks. For each 5 pledges collected and delivered to the Big Brothers/Big Sisters office by 5:00 p.m. April 7, bowlers are entered once in the Early Bird grand prize drawing which includes a trip for two to Toronto, a deluxe radio cassette recorder, a $50 grocery gift certificate, a football and a $25 service gift certificate.

The success of this year's bowlathon would not have been possible without the support of some very special friends. Special recognition goes to area bowlathon sponsors Big John's, AAA and Tel-View Video, who contributed to defray some of the bowlathon expenses. Bowlathon chairperson and Big Brothers/Big Sisters board member Bob Ponder deserves a great deal of recognition for the recruitment of nearly 85 area teams to bowl for Big Brothers/Big Sisters. Manager Ken Beachy deserves appreciation for providing his facility, the Brentwood, and his support to the event. And last, but not least, the friends of Big Brothers/Big Sisters, the "celebrity" bowlers, deserve recognition and appreciation for their excellent efforts.

The money raised from this year's Bowl For Kids' Sake Bowlathon will be used to operate the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program, a United Way Agency, in Tuscola County. The agency will be able to step up its efforts to find Big Brother and Big sister volunteers for every child who needs one.

HEALTH TIPS

Sleep restores body after day's activities

Have you ever thought about why we need sleep? For rest, of course. Sleep does restore the body after the day's activities. Persons deprived of sleep for extended periods of time often act in bizarre ways. They hallucinate, their speech is slurred, and their reflexes are poor. The making of several hormones depends on sleep. Growth hormone in children, for example, is stimulated by sleep. Children with sleep disorders who are deprived of adequate sleep often are stunted in their growth.

Sleep is not just the passive rest that most of us think of it as being. In fact, during sleep the body regularly cycles through several stages. If volunteers are hooked to electroencephalographs (EEGs), machines which measure the electrical activity of the brain, their sleep patterns show two major types of sleep, REM and NREM. REM stands for rapid eye movement, NREM for no rapid eye movement. It is thought that one spends time in REM or NREM depending upon which side of the cerebrum, the most intelligent part of the brain, is controlling mental activities. For right handed persons the right side is mostly used for the non-verbal, visual and artistic aspects of intelligence, while the left side is involved more with written and spoken speech and abilities that are logical and analytical like math ability.

While dreaming can occur when either side is in control, the more vivid dreams most persons typically remember follow awakening from REM sleep. These dreams are usually associated with very clear visual images. Reality is often distorted. For example, one may remember going to the school prom wearing a swim suit or having a formal dinner in the middle of the forest.

Persons awakened from NREM sleep are less likely to remember a dream and when they do it is much more logical. For example, a student may have been worried about passing an exam.

There are four different stages of NREM sleep which occur along with REM sleep. Each is distinguished by changes in EEG patterns of brain activity. Let's look at the pattern of these stages as one falls asleep. Stage one of NREM happens as one just begins to fall asleep. During this five to ten minutes, one is easily awakened. The muscles begin to relax, body temperature starts to decrease and heart rate slows. In stage two one is soundly asleep, but can be awakened by sounds. Body movement decreases, temperature continues to decrease and brain activity slows. If one talks in his sleep, it is likely to occur during stage two. In stage three the body is almost totally relaxed. It would take a loud noise to awaken one. Blood pressure and temperature continue to fall, as does the heart rate. Stage four is the deepest level of sleep. The muscles are completely relaxed. One is difficult to awaken and if awakened is likely to be slow to respond. Stage four is considered the most restorative sleep. However, this is also the stage when sleepwalking occurs. After stage four one quickly moves back through stages three and two and enters REM sleep. The eyes dart back and forth under the eye lids (thus the name rapid eye movement). The brain activity pattern is approximately the same as one fully awake! The body muscles, however, are totally limp, as if one were paralyzed. Most of the vivid dreams occur during REM. After ten minutes or so of REM sleep, one starts a new cycle beginning with stage two. The complete cycle lasts 90 to 100 minutes and four or five cycles will occur during the night. There are some changes as the cycles continue. Stage four sleep will typically occur only during the first couple of cycles and then disappear. Closer to morning even stage three will cease. The amount of time in REM sleep increases each cycle and may last as long as an hour near morning.

Why do we have these stages, especially REM, and what purpose does REM serve? The answers are not known. Some researchers think that REM time is used to strengthen memory traces and has to do with memory storage. Others think it is a time to get rid of accidental or meaningless connections in the brain, a time to unlearn things that are not important. Obviously much remains to be learned about sleep and the importance it has in our normal functions.

Cass City DPW to be commended for work

Most of the time, when you listen to people talk about the village and county employees who clear the snow off our streets during the winter, it is not a pleasant conversation.

But to hear Bill Lovejoy, of 4774 Hunt Street, talk about the subject, some people may be surprised to find nothing but praise in his comments. "I am very impressed with the way the Cass City Department of Public Works (DPW) employees keep the streets free of snow in the winter, and also keep them clean throughout the entire year. Whenever there are any problems, they seem to be right there. I live on the edge of town, and have never been snowed-in by what was left from a storm," he said.

Lovejoy said he is not the only person who has complimented the work by the Cass City DPW.

In addition to doing a good job, Lovejoy said employees with the DPW perform their tasks with a smile on their faces. "It is a tough job that they have, but they are always pleasant. They take pride in their work, and it shows. If they didn't, Cass City would not look as nice as it does. I think even Bo Schembechler would be pleased with the job they are doing," he added.

FOURTH GRADER Janel Bitzer reads to Provincial House resident George Burbank.

Students read to elderly at Provincial House last week

March is Reading Month in Michigan and Cass City Schools have planned a number of events, including a fourth grade read at Provincial House.

Last Wednesday, approximately 25 fourth graders took a bus up to Provincial House to read to the patients. According to Marilyn Peters, Campbell Elementary and Cass City Intermediate School Reading Specialist, this is the second year that a group has read to the elderly.

The children were scattered throughout the building, most sitting next to the residents while they read. Both the patients and the children appeared to enjoy the visit. Mary Vatter, director of activities, said that even the more seriously ill patients seemed more alert after the contact.

Governor Blanchard has proclaimed this month-long effort to encourage everyone to read.

Clarke residence shot with BB gun

State Police at the Caro Post had a quiet week. A 19-year-old Deford man was southbound on Chambers Rd. near Waterman Wednesday, when he moved to the east side of the road to avoid some holes and became stuck. The driver, Loyal T. Roach, was being pulled out of the ditch by Brian Stine, 20, of Deford when Roach's vehicle hit Stine's.

Janis Barden, 49, of Kingston, was southbound on M-24 near M-46 Friday when a deer ran into the path of her car.

Lyle Clarke, 53, of 3475 N. Cemetery Rd. reported to the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department that someone had shot his home sometime between Dec. 15 and Wednesday, when it was discovered. According to the sheriff's report, it was shot with a BB gun and damage was done to a window and the siding. It was not reported earlier because the Clarks do not use the room in the winter.

Arthur P. McIntosh, 35, of 5032 Schwegler Rd. was eastbound on Bay City-Forestville Rd. Saturday, when a deer came from the north side of the road and he was unable to avoid hitting it.

30 pupils in special program

March 22 was a super Saturday for 30 students from the Campbell Elementary and Cass City Intermediate Schools who took part in the Super Saturday program at the Tuscola Area Skill Center in Caro.

The activity was sponsored by the Gifted and Talented program of the Tuscola Intermediate School District. It was designed for 3rd, 4th and 5th grade students from the 9 local school districts in Tuscola County to be exposed to various activities, such as computers, magic and paper-folding.

"This event was a first for Cass City," said Campbell Elementary Principal Jacqueline Freiburger. "Our group of 30 students went to Caro by bus, and it turned out to be a very interesting day. I talked to some of the students afterwards, and they told me they had a pretty good time," she added.

Administrators said the Cass City School District is in the planning stages of meeting the needs of the gifted and talented students in the area.

Each of the school districts in Tuscola County was allowed to send a maximum of 12 students per grade to participate in the Super Saturday program.

At Festival

Top honors for 4

Four Cass City High School students received top honors in the annual State Solo and Ensemble Festival held over the week end at University of Michigan campus in Flint.

Band Director George Bushong said more than 1,000 high school musicians from the mid-state area performed during the event, and attempted to pass proficiency examinations.

Representing Cass City, Bushong said flutist Deb Blue passed Proficiency I with a score of 95 out of a possible 100. She and Kim Wing received an excellent First Division rating and blue medals for their flute duet. Stacey Patera and Julie Wrona received red medals for their Second Division rated clarinet duet.

Bushong said members of both the Cass City High School band and the Intermediate School 8th grade band received Second Division ratings at their respective band festivals. He said this entitles each participating band member to a red medal. Plaques will also be posted in the band rooms of the schools.

The annual festivals were sponsored by the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association.

Over 1,000 attend TEC annual meet

Rural areas threatened with more farm mortgage foreclosures can be revitalized with help from rural electric cooperatives and grass roots action, Raymond Kuhl told 1,000 members of the Thumb Electric Cooperative at their annual meeting held at the Colony House Thursday.

Kuhl, general manager of the Michigan Electric Cooperative Association, called rural electric cooperatives "proven pioneers in rural development." In the late 1930s and early '40s, he said co-ops brought power to depressed areas.

"Electric co-ops today can again be the sparkplug to revitalize rural areas," Kuhl said. "But we need grass roots action and initiative to improve the future of rural America."

Highlighting the 49th annual meeting of the Thumb Electric Cooperative was the election of 3 directors, and the retirement of $70,000 in patronage capital. Re-elected to 3-year terms were Michael Lasceski, Huron County; Leon Smith, Sanilac County, and Louis Wenzlaff, Tuscola County. Others nominated for the positions were Art Miller, Huron County; Charles Basler, Sanilac County, and James Peter, Tuscola County.

In action taken after the meeting, the board of directors reelected Walter Cook as president; Allan Shaw as vice-president; Roger Vollmar as secretary, and Michael Lasceski to the position of treasurer.

Lasceski presented the 1985 financial statement, which showed operating revenues of $7,564,507, and expenses of $7,256,351, resulting in an operating margin of $308,156. In addition to the margin, Lasceski said the cooperative also earned $106,676 in interest on short term investments. The total margin for 1985, including patronage dividends from other organizations, was $428,117. He said total expenses increased 5.4% over 1984, primarily due to increased power costs, winter storms, and increased interest cost. Members were told the February, 1985, storm cost the cooperative in excess of $200,000 in repair costs alone.

Cooperative General Manager Michael Krause reported that energy sales were down by less than 1% in 1985, compared to 1984. He said peak demand rose by 5% to just over 20,000 kw. due to extremely cold weather during the Christmas season of 1985.

Krause said the electric bills of members increased an average of 7% during 1985. "However, members participating in the controlled hot water heater programs experienced only a 3% increase, due to an increase in the controlled water heater credit to $5.00 per month. In January of 1986, the credit was increased to $6.50 per month. The participation of all members with electric water heating is of vital importance in keeping the cost of electricity affordable. With the addition of Fermi II into the rate base sometime in the future, it is vital for all members to participate in the cooperative's energy management programs," he said. Comparisons were also presented showing that the cooperative's electric rates are competitive with other utilities in the Thumb.

Board President Walter Cook told members that construction plans last year were greatly affected by the February, 1985, storm, and the huge amount of repair required. He said the only major project completed last year was 2 miles of a 3-phase rebuild along Cross Road in Huron County's Lincoln Township.

Another major project, which was started in 1985 and completed in 1986, was the Kingston-to-Caro transmission line in Tuscola County's Wells Township. The project involved rebuilding nearly 6 miles of transmission and distribution line at a cost of approximately $400,000.

THIS YEAR'S Kingston High School valedictorian is Monica Tait.

NAMED THE salutatorian at Kingston High School for the 1985-86 school year is Patrick Cherniawski.

McCann at odds with NRC

Tuscola County Emergency Services Coordinator James McCann said Monday that the county is still at odds with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, (NRC), following an incident near Quanicasee Monday, March 17.

County officials said a truck that was carrying radioactive oil well testing materials was stopped on M-25 in Wisner Township, and was found to be emitting radiation levels above those allowed by federal law. The vehicle was detained for an hour and a half until authorities were able to determine that there was no danger to the public from the emission levels.

After the vehicle was returned to Mount Pleasant, McCann said another reading was taken by officials with the NRC. "But they would not say what the reading was," he said. "They did tell me, though, that the driver for this particular company had a special permit allowing him to carry materials that go over the regular emission limit."

McCann noted that the initial reading taken with a Geiger counter carried by County Weighmaster Richard Letts caused the needle on the machine to go off the scale. "I have taken steps to acquire an additional monitor so if something like this happens again, we will have the proper equipment to measure the emission."

The emergency services coordinator has also requested some additional information for his files. McCann said, "I have requested that this company send me a copy of the special permit that it was issued allowing it to haul over-the-limit cargo. I have also asked that the same information be sent to the Emergency Management Division in Lansing so that other counties will know what is going on."

McCann said 2 of the 3 radioactive pieces inside the truck were not housed in a container. "Everyone who I have talked to agrees that we can still request that these items be carried in a proper container."

Authorities said the truck involved in the incident last week had a rear vehicle escort from Mount Pleasant to a drilling site near Sebewaing, and was westbound when it was stopped.

'Old' air tested

Air stored in telescopes and brass buttons for hundreds of years may help researchers understand the "greenhouse effect" by which the earth's temperature rises, reports International Wildlife magazine. Scientists hoped that by measuring the carbon dioxide level in the antique air, they can better understand how changing levels have influenced global warming over centuries.

After 450 hours of time

Cass City model builder commands his own fleet

Sig Pieper has never traveled the high seas around the world. He does not own a yacht or a boat. And he has never been to the depths of Lake Huron searching for sunken ships. But Sig Pieper is probably one of the most knowledgeable people in this area on the subject of well-known ships, thanks to his hobby of building models.

Since late November of last year, Pieper has been working on his current project, a 29"-long model of the U.S. Constitution, a frigate that was given the name of "Old Ironsides." While the real ship is in dry dock in Boston, Pieper is putting together his smaller version of the Constitution on top of a table at 4365 Seeger Street.

Pieper describes the building of models as a labor of love. "I've been putting these things together since I was a kid, when I was old enough to slice the top of my finger off with a knife. My first efforts were with airplanes made of balsa wood, and then I changed to molded plastic," he said.

Noting that he plans to spend at least 450 hours working on his model, Pieper says his results are the exception to the rule. "I would say that most models like this one end up back in the box that they came in.

Juniata Church lists services

Special activities at Juniata Baptist Church for Easter begin with a Calvary Service Good Friday at 1:00 p.m.

A sunrise service at 7:00 a.m. will be followed by a special musical program at 10:00 a.m. featuring the church choir and special groups. Easter worship service is 11:00 a.m.

A special showing of a film, "Twice Given," will be held Sunday evening at 7:00 p.m. A free-will offering will be received.

The majority of people who receive a model will play around with it for a while, and then just put it away."

Some people feel that building a model should be as easy as following instructions, but Pieper says that is not the case. "There is a set of instructions offered in the kit, but often they will be incorrect. I like to find a picture of the model that is already completed, so I can get more ideas of what to do with it," he said.

Pieper says he usually starts with the base or hull of the model, which is the largest part. Next come the decks, cannons, rat lines, guns and lifeboats. The final items to be done include the masts and the rigging, which is the hardest part to do. Where paint is needed, Pieper will paint the items first, and then scrape the surfaces that need to be glued together.

Pieper says building models can prove to be educational, and you can also use your imagination. "On this particular model, I decided to use 7 different shades of paint on the hull of the ship. Otherwise, it would have been a bland copper in color."

Just like a comedian or a baseball pitcher, Pieper says when he gets on a roll, it may be a long time before he puts his work down. He sometimes works 14 to 18 hours at a stretch, and once put in 36 hours before taking a break. Of the nearly 250 models he has made over the years, Pieper says he has never been so frustrated that he threw one of his models against a wall.

In giving advice to others, Pieper says the easiest way for people to get discouraged is to buy a small-size kit. "Those small parts are difficult to work with. Any model less than 24" in length would be too small to start with."

Although he has sold only a few of his models, Pieper says some people have made quite a bit of money in selling models. "I have heard of museums offering as much as $30,000 for a near-perfect model of a certain ship. Various companies across the country charge about $525 for models that are already put together," he added.

Pieper says he doesn't know for sure what his next project will be, but is hoping to drum up some interest in having a model done on a commission basis. He feels he will be able to continue building models for a long time to come, as his eyes and fingers are still in good shape.

Pieper was asked about the possibility of one of his future efforts being a ship inside a bottle. He said, "I have looked at bottles, but to me, they are turn-offs. The end result does not intrigue me because I would not want a ship inside a bottle. Such a project would be a challenge, but I find plenty of that in what I'm already doing."

Pieper recently sent one of his models to an international recording star, Ronnie Aldrich, who is an arranger, composer and pianist. Aldrich shares Pieper's love for ships, and even has a "Boat Room" at his recording studio on the Isle of Man. The 2 have corresponded with each other, and after receiving one of his albums in the mail, Pieper often listens to Aldrich's music while working on his models.

As he settles back in his chair, Sig Pieper talks of the real U.S. Constitution making its annual trip around the Boston Harbor on the 4th of July. "If everything goes according to schedule, maybe I'll have a special ceremony for this model of the Constitution on the same day!"

NOW ABOUT 70% COMPLETE, Sig Pieper hopes to have this model completed by July 4.

SIG PIEPER DEMONSTRATES how a steady hand and good eyes are needed, as he works on a model of the U.S. Constitution.

Drive-in to open Friday

The Caro Drive-In Theatre will reopen for the 1986 season Friday, Mar. 28, marking the 36th year of operation for the facility. Returning to manage the theatre is Rick Ashmun, and the concession stand will be operated by L and L Concession Company of Troy.

As always, double features will be shown, including many films shown for the first time in Caro, Ashmun said.

Some of the features will be Delta Force, Sweet Dreams, Naked City, House, The Hitcher and many others.

The Strand Theatre in Caro will operate every day all summer and feature first run movies, Ashmun said.

The world is divided into people who do things, and people who get the credit. Try, if you can, to belong to the first class. There's far less competition. DWIGHT MORROW

HDC told Thumb area needs to work together

"What we did yesterday is not enough for today," said Father William T. Cunningham, director of Focus HOPE in Detroit, at the annual meeting of the Human Development Commission Friday at the Knights of Columbus hall in Caro.

Almost 200 persons attended the meeting, said by LeeRoy Clark, board chairman, to be one of the largest annual meetings ever.

Father Cunningham said that in Detroit they are dealing with desperation, people who have no options and nothing to do with their lives. He found that "Caro is no different, except in numbers, from Detroit." There are the same problems, such as drug abuse, hunger and unemployment.

He told the audience that we've got to work together to end the problems.

"We can't just keep feeding people," he said. Instead, the Thumb should rely on its resources. "What I'm asking you to do is see what's out there. God has granted us with the greatest collection of people and skills...we've got it all here," he pointed out. Father Cunningham said that people need to work a lot "smarter."

"We've got talent and we should use it wisely," Cunningham told the group that he wants to work with the HDC to wipe out the desperation.

Focus HOPE, he explained, originally fed pregnant women, nursing mothers and children up to 6 years old. Soon it was discovered that the elderly needed help too. "They paid all their bills but they had no food," he said. Focus HOPE started by feeding 900 people and now helps 60,000 - it is a full-time food program.

Joseph Flynn Jr., director of Weatherization Assistance Programs and Conservation and Renewable Energy of Washington, D.C., said that the key to success is "being able to compete internally," convinced that money should be put in at the local level. He referred to the $2 million government fund for a weatherization program.

Thumbody, referred to as the nonprofit fund-raising arm of the HDC, was a recipient of a grant from that fund. It allows skilled workers to be involved in the weatherization of homes.

Two special recognition awards were presented. One went to Vera Atkins for Volunteer of the Year and one to Francis Laethem of Laethem Equipment for Business of the Year.

Dr. Martin to speak

Film on chest pain to be presented

"Chest Pains," the first film in the Healthscope series produced by the American College of Physicians, will be shown at Hills and Dales Hospital, Wednesday, April 2, at 7 p.m. in the basement meeting hall. Cass City Internist, Dr. Beatriz Martin, will host a question and answer period following the film.

Although most people assume that chest pains signify a heart attack, the public is less aware that other conditions - hiatal hernia, ulcers, viral infections of the heart's membranes - can also cause pains that require prompt diagnosis and appropriate medical treatment. Designed to help increase awareness of these symptoms and their possible serious significance, "Chest Pains" features an internist and actual patients as they work together to resolve underlying medical problems.

Through a human-interest style of presentation, each 25-minute documentary encourages people to take an increased responsibility for their own well-being by establishing healthy habits and assuming a more active role in disease prevention.

The Healthscope series is produced under an educational grant from The Upjohn Company of Kalamazoo, MI. Other films in the series cover, "Aches, Pains, and Arthritis," "Diabetes" and "Abdominal Discomfort." Dr. Beatriz G. Martin, a specialist in internal medicine, is one of 60,000 members of the American College of Physicians. Founded in 1915, the college is the largest medical specialty society in the United States. It represents doctors of internal medicine (internist), related nonsurgical specialists, and physicians-in-training.

JOSEPH FLYNN JR., director of weatherization programs in Washington, D.C., told the audience that he believes that a key to success is to compete internally.

DIRECTOR OF Focus HOPE, Father William T. Cunningham gave a lively talk at the annual meeting of the Human Development Commission.

Cass City couples find it a challenge

by Cymbre Sommerville

Have you ever been somewhere, shopping perhaps, and noticed a woman pushing a stroller containing not one but two babies, and the woman next to you leans over and says, "They're cute but I'm glad I never had twins, one is enough work."

For 3 Cass City couples raising twins is work, but they find it just as much fun.

Ken and Mari Lowe are the parents of identical boys, Kevin and Kyle. Born Dec. 5, 1985 the twins were almost totally unexpected, but then a multiple pregnancy is diagnosed before delivery in less than 70 percent of the cases. "We didn't know until the day they were born," said Mari Lowe, as she shifted babies back and forth from the couch to her lap. In fact, she said the twins were 2 weeks overdue which is unusual because the average twin pregnancy is 22 days less than normally calculated.

The Lowes also have a 2-1/2 year-old daughter, Kari, who requires as much attention as the twins. "She helps me out during the day, getting me bottles or diapers," said Lowe, but she believes a 2-year-old is more work than twins.

Since the twins were unexpected, the Lowes greatly relied on family and friends, and borrowed such things as a crib and baby seats.

"Every day is a challenge," she said. It starts at 6:30 or 7:00 a.m. and ends at 9:00 at night. Most of the day is spent on the couch, where it's prop one, burp one. The trick she said is to keep everyone happy while you're juggling activities. Of course there is nap time and, if Mari times it right, she can get one too.

As imagined, there's a lot of togetherness. "We're all in the bathroom together for baths," she said. "I never thought I'd see myself cooped up like this." It's hard for her to get out, especially in the winter.

She has to bundle up all 3 of them, transport them to a car and get them all out. It's not a one-person job. Mari was a legal secretary for Clabuesch and Gaspie, but she said, "I've got a full-time job here."

Even at 3 months the twins are completely opposite in personality, she said. It was hard to believe at that moment as both, dressed in matching red bibs lay quietly on a blanket. As a rule, she said that Kyle is calm and happy while Kevin is feisty and wiggles all the time. "They've started to stare at each other," she remarked. Kari gets along great with the twins and Mari said she's never been jealous. "She gets her time too," she said.

The closest thing to sibling rivalry occurs when the twins are in their infant seats, and Mari walks in to find that Kari has rolled one of them out onto the floor and she is sitting in his chair watching television. "They never make a sound, so I know she doesn't hurt them," Mari said.

Believe it or not, the twins have gotten easier in the last 3 months. Ken and I always say "it's a lot of work but a lot of fun" and the couple looks forward to the years ahead.

The Toners, Gerry and Melissa, had their twins Nov. 19, just about 3 weeks before the Lowes. The twins, Zachary and Megan, are fraternal, and are their only children.

Fraternal twins are the result of 2 fertilized eggs, while identical twins are the result of the splitting of one egg.

The twins were almost a complete surprise also. They didn't find out until the 8th month, but they were prepared nonetheless. "We've been married 7 years and we waited this long so that we would be ready for children," she said, as she propped up Zachary and picked up Megan then propped up Megan and picked up Zachary. Coincidentally, Melissa had 3 baby showers and was given double of everything. They borrowed other extras such as the crib.

The couch seems to be the center of activity at the Toners', too. The extra large cushions are perfect for propping up a baby so he or she doesn't tip over while the other is being fed.

Adjustments have been minimal for the couple. It's not that difficult for them, in fact it seems natural caring for the twins. "I don't have anything to compare it with," she said. She agrees though that, if they have another child, it will be easier to raise than twins.

Melissa took 2 months off from her job in the accounting department at Walbro, but now she is back to work. "Gerry has probably had to make more of an adjustment than me. He takes care of them on one of his days off. I look forward to the weekends," she said.

Her biggest problem is if she takes them somewhere alone, there has to be someone at the receiving end to help her out.

Zachary and Megan are also very different in their personalities. Megan's more fussy; she'll only be held in a certain way, while Zachary is easy going. But then, Zachary is up all day while Megan naps every 4 hours.

They notice each other now, she said. They coo and play with each other for 15 or 20 minutes at a time.

"We haven't let them slow us down," she said, "we just grab the car seats and go."

Mara and Ashley are one-year old fraternal twins. Their parents Cindy and Paul Branoff found out about the twins in Cindy's 7th month. "It was a shock," she said. She has since learned that there are twins on both sides of the family.

"We had to find 2 of everything and we had to buy a new car because our old one didn't fit 3 car seats," said Cindy. The girls have an older brother, Jordan, who is 4. Like the other couples, they borrowed what they could, such as a crib.

The first 6 months were chaos, she said. "It seemed that I was constantly doing something with one of them." Now everything is done on a strict routine so that she has time to do other things. "If something comes up out of the ordinary, it can throw off the whole day."

Cindy has learned not to worry about the little things. "They eat off the same spoon and out of the same bowl; it's an assembly line around here," she laughed.

Winter has tied Cindy to the house. "It's ridiculous to try to get them in snow-suits and into the car." She finally had to take Jordan out of preschool because it became too much of a problem getting the girls ready. She said she sometimes calls a relative to watch them for an hour so that she can go to the grocery store.

Her husband has been very helpful with the twins. "I think he has to help out more than he did with just one child. It takes all the help you can get. Last summer she used to wait for Paul to get home from work so that she could go for a run, and get away for 15 minutes. Of course Jordan helps, he gets bottles and introduces the girls to people.

There is a large difference in personality between the girls which was apparent even before they were born. Mara, 12 minutes older, barely moved while Ashley was feistier. According to Cindy, Mara is still even-tempered and easy going while Ashley is outgoing and more aggressive, which was obvious as Mara sat quietly across the room playing with her toys and Ashley scuffed around

Assessor Sattelberg resigns from board of trustees

The Elmwood Township board of trustees accepted the resignation of Assessor Joan A. Sattelberg during its monthly meeting Wednesday, March 19.

Board members were told by Sattelberg that she could no longer devote the necessary amount of time to the job. She had held the position for the past 2 years. Township officials said Sattelberg will continue to serve as a trustee on the board.

Named by the board to fill the position was Wilbur Partlo, who also serves as the assessor for Akron Township. Township Clerk Joanne M. Sattelberg said, "The board made the appointment as part of an open-ended agreement which will be continued on a year to year basis. Having someone from outside the township could work for the better, as Mr. Partlo has no vested interest in the decisions he will be making."

The board was given an update on preparations for the annual meeting scheduled for March 29 at 10:00 at the township hall. Board members were told that work on the new budget is continuing and that the proposed budget for 1986-87 will be ready in time for the annual meeting.

It was also announced that a new cemetery sexton has been hired to replace William Winchester.

The next regular meeting of the board is scheduled for April 16.

Bids taken by Tuscola County Road Commission

Bids were taken Thursday by the Tuscola County Road Commission Board on a road improvement project in Elmwood Township.

Clerk James Miklovic said 2 bids were received to improve the portion of Elmwood Road between Dodge and Cedar Run Roads. One of the bids was submitted by the Hunt Construction Company of Cass City with a price of $27,800. The other bid was turned in by the Whalen Contracting Company of Caro with a price of $23,000.

As is usually the case, Miklovic said the 2 bids were tabled by the board, and the information will be relayed to the Elmwood Township officials. "We will leave it up to the township board to decide which of the bids to accept. We should know by the April 3rd meeting on how they want us to proceed," he said.

In a decision that will have an effect county-wide, the board approved a motion to allow the use of plastic pipe for driveway culverts. Miklovic said in the past, only metal pipe could be used for driveway culverts. "Now that the state has made the change, most of the counties are following suit," he said.

The board also approved the purchase of 2 furnaces which will be used at the Road Commission garage in Deford. The furnaces were purchased from Newton Plumbing and Heating of Vassar at a price of $5,303.

General Telephone to do Cass City cable project

According to a General Telephone news release, faster processing of calls with less noise and greater reliability is in the offing for many telephone users in Central Michigan and parts of the Thumb, including Cass City.

It is the result of a $28.8 million service improvement and expansion program planned for this year by General Telephone, according to Bill Buschle, division manager for the company.

Many customers may also get the opportunity this year to select the company which will provide their long distance calls.

Called Equal Access, the new service will allow a customer to choose a long distance company to handle calls.

"Today, customers who make 'one plus,' direct dialed calls are automatically connected to General Telephone or AT&T," said Larry Clark, division manager for General Telephone. "Equal Access lets a customer choose a primary long distance company to handle calls to points outside of the local area from which the call is placed."

Equal Access also means customers can use additional long distance companies by dialing a 5-digit access code followed by the area code and phone number. "Customers currently must dial as many as 23 digits to complete a call on most long distance networks," Clarke said.

For Cass City, conversion to Equal Access is not going to happen this year. In fact, the tentative date is set for June of 1992.

What is going to happen this year in Cass City is a cable project costing approximately $50,000.

According to Buschle, the project is for growth and upgrading service. "Some of the cables are simply worn out, have water in them or are obsolete," he said.

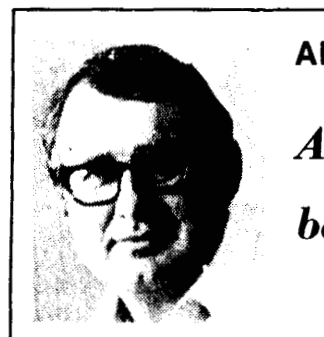

There are a total of 62 such cable projects planned for 1986 in the central division which also includes Kingston, Deckerville and Minden City.

Within 6 years, party lines will be a thing of the past in Cass City. In the Cass City exchange there are approximately 980 party lines and 3,400 main stations, according to Buschle. This means that about 20 percent of the Cass City exchange are still party lines.

This year alone General Telephone is planning to provide one-party service to over 14,000 party line customers in Michigan. Of this total, nearly 5,200 will be located in the Thumb and central Michigan. In the past 2 years, General Telephone has upgraded service statewide to nearly 41,000 of its party line customers, Buschle said.

General Telephone of Michigan has approximately 472,000 customer lines throughout its 178 exchanges, including 180,000 in the central division.

AROUND THE FARM

Army of insects begin to surface

By Bill Bortel

This is the season when a veritable army of strange insects seem to suddenly invade homes. Many of these insect invaders are operating from secret bases hidden within firewood! Many wood-boring insects enter wood when it is still a standing tree; others have entered wood seeking host or prey (their food source), and yet others have entered wood because it provided a convenient place to hide from the elements or natural enemies.

The most commonly encountered insects associated with firewood, and which frequently show up in houses as nuisance invaders, are: long-horned beetles, metallic wood-boring beetles, bark beetles, primitive weevils, horntail wasps, wood wasps, checkered beetles, flat bark beetles, and wetwood flies. For help in identification of firewood pests you may contact your county Cooperative Extension Office in Caro.

All of the previously named insects associated with firewood are best categorized as nuisance invaders. When firewood containing living insects is brought indoors, the warmer temperatures accelerate development and the adult insects emerge. It is these active adult insects that can be found in any area of the home. They are frequently attracted to lighted windows as their instincts are urging them to return to their natural habitat outdoors where they can reproduce. Even the wood-boring nuisance invaders, such as the long-horned beetles, instinctively attempt to get outdoors to complete their life cycle by mating and laying their eggs in the bark of dead or dying trees. As a result, any sawn, seasoned or finished wood (woodwork, furnishings, etc.) are safe from these insects.

There are three exceptions to the nuisance-only concept of firewood insects. Carpenter ants, termites, and powderpost beetles may be brought into the home via firewood, and any of these could move to invade structural timbers or furnishings if the conditions are right. Of these three wood borers, only the carpenter ant is common enough to warrant certain precautions if you bring wood into the home. Excluding these pests from the home is much easier than trying to eliminate them once they become established and start to cause damage.

As a general rule it is best to store wood outdoors (at least 5 feet away from any heated buildings) and only bring in small amounts to burn as needed. Rapid turnover of wood stored inside heated buildings is especially important in the late winter and early spring when the chances of pest emergence is greatest. Any wood showing obvious signs of insect activity (tunnels, holes or other borings) should either be discarded or burned immediately. Should insects actually emerge within the house chemical controls are generally unnecessary, and physical removal of the offending invaders with a broom and dustpan or a vacuum cleaner is the best course of action. It is not advisable to treat firewood with any insecticides for safety reasons. Also, doing so does not generally have any beneficial results as the emerging insects promptly leave the surface-treated wood and are not exposed to the insecticide.

Nutrition pushed during observance

"Good nutrition—feel the difference" is the theme of National Nutrition Month celebrated throughout March. The theme emphasizes the link between wise nutrition choices and good health.

Bonnie Johnson, a dietitian at Hills and Dales Hospital, said that most people don't realize that dietitians are nutrition experts and are the legitimate providers of nutrition care. They have a wide knowledge base with specialized education in the biological sciences, foods and food science, the behavioral sciences and in management.

Dietitians at Hills and Dales offer counseling in a variety of fields such as analysis of current eating patterns and popular fad diets. The hospital also offers a diabetic class once a month.

Of course the dietitian's job also entails dispelling with all the nutritional myths. Here are just a few: vitamin C cures the common cold, vinegar and grapefruit melt fat away or protein is not fattening. The truth is that vitamin C has not been proven to cure a cold, no food can burn up fat and foods high in protein also contain fat.

For the month of March only a toll free number has been set up to answer nutrition-related questions. It is called "Food Fax" at 1-800-782-7799.

Community Good Friday services set

The Cass City First Presbyterian Church will be the site for this year's Community Good Friday Service sponsored by the Cass City Ministerial Association.

The annual inter-denominational service is scheduled to begin at 1:00 p.m. Friday and will last about an hour.

Serving as the coordinator of the service is Rev. Joe Robertson of the Trinity United Methodist Church. "This will be the first year for me to take part in the service and I volunteered for the position of coordinator. One of the items that makes this service unique is that there will actually be an old, rugged cross located inside the church," he said.

"The message for the service is centered on the 7 last words that were spoken by Christ from the cross. Each of the 7 ministers included in the service will take one of those words and address its meaning. There will also be the singing of hymns which reflect on the Good Friday message," Rev. Robertson said.

Ministers participating in the service Friday afternoon include Rev. A.E. McFarland of the Cass City Church of the Nazarene, Rev. Harry Capps of the Cass City First Presbyterian Church, Rev. William O'Dell of the Colfax United Methodist Church, Rev. Cliff Jordan of the Cass City Missionary Church, Rev. Clare Patton of the Salem United Methodist Church, Rev. Eldred Kelley of the Evangelical Free Church, and Rev. Robertson.

"Persons of all faiths are invited to attend this service," said Rev. Robertson. "There will be an offering taken and the collection will be used to support projects in the community which are sponsored by the association."

40 acres burn in grass fire

Members of the Elkland Township Fire Department fought a fire Monday afternoon that burned about 40 acres of a field east of Cass City.

Tuscola County sheriff's deputies said the fire was reported at 1:13 p.m. in a field off Krapf Road, north of the intersection with Elmwood Road.

A fire department spokesman said the fire started in a brush pile that was located behind a residence on Elmwood Road. He said the flames were threatening some woods in the area, and it was decided to call in a plow from the Caro office of the State Department of Natural Resources. The plow was used to move some dirt to prevent the flames from spreading any further.

The Elkland Township Fire Department spent about 2 hours on the scene.

There were no injuries reported.

Sheriff's deputies also reported that a grass fire was handled by the Kingston Fire Department Sunday after being spotted at 2:44 p.m. The fire was located off Rossman Road, near the intersection with Froede Road, in Kingston Township.

Kingston firefighters were also called to a chimney fire at a house on Washington Street in Kingston early Sunday evening. The incident was reported at 6:23 p.m.

To honor high school at ceremony

Lansing. The school was tentatively selected from among 73 schools as one of Michigan's outstanding secondary schools selected by a panel of state educators. The selection was confirmed following an on site inspection by a representative of the State Board of Education.

At the ceremony, members of the Michigan legislature from the school district are expected to attend. Cass City was one of 7 high schools and 10 middle and junior high schools to receive the award this year. Other high schools selected were: Grayling, Deerfield, Mona Shores, Wylie E. Groves in Birmingham, Novi and West Bloomfield.

Because of a change in the program, Cass City will not be able to compete in the national Secondary Recognition Program of the U.S. Department of Education this year. The national program has been switched from every year to alternate years with the elementary recognition program. The next secondary school recognition program will be in 1987.

Schools selected this year will not be eligible for national recognition next year. However schools can enter the contest each year and if selected outstanding in 1987, will be eligible for national honors then, a representative of the State Board of Education said.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Once upon a time an elderly father of three set up a family trust with about $200,000 in bonds, to provide for funds for his widow and grown children and eventually grandchildren.

(This is not to be confused with a "living trust" which is revocable and is basically to avoid probate.)

He provided that two of his good friends, a banker and a lawyer, and also the bank itself, be the trustees. It all seemed like a good idea, but there wasn't all that much to administer, so the bank just stayed out of it and the two individuals signed some papers once a year, and the girl at the bank sent out checks twice a year to the three children.

It was simple and efficient at first, but here's what happened as some 16 years went by. One of the trustees (the banker) moved away. The lawyer became ill and semi-retired. The bank trust department in the early years was quite inactive, so the trustees named an investment adviser to replace maturing bonds in the trust, or make swaps as the market indicated.

To make a simple investment when five bonds matured, for example, the investment adviser then had to write to the two trustees - one ill and one moved away - and suggest what to buy. They in turn would pass on to the third trustee, the bank, the idea. The bank would then call the broker, and chances were by that time the particular bonds were gone.

The bank, in recent years, merged and computerized the trust department, and charges $500 a year for sending a total of six checks. About anyone could make out the simple income tax return, for the bonds are tax-exempt and there is no tax to pay. But no, a CPA has to be hired, and there's another $300. The two trustees put in very moderate bills of $200 apiece.

Total is $1300 to administer the trust. The total isn't too great - about 3/4 of 1%, but it's largely unnecessary.

"So what better way is there?" asked my associate, Jennifer Birdsong.

"A way both simple, easy and cheap," I told Jennifer. "If there are ample funds for the widow outside the trust, then just give it outright to the children, preferably before Departure Day, to cut down on estate taxes."

"You mean no trust at all? What about the grandchildren?"

"Let their parents look after them. Same as our parents looked after us. The Long Arm from the Grave is fancied by some, but I don't like it. I don't like the idea of leap-frogging a generation to bestow one's bounty on the third generation."

"Hmmm," said Jennifer, not entirely convinced, since she has three very cute grandsons. "But suppose I did want to leave a trust, in spite of what you say. What's wrong with having a couple of trustees plus a bank?"

"It's unwieldy, it's costly, and it's unnecessary," I said. "Name a stable, savvy friend, or a relative or in-law, who can supervise the investments, which you have already made. Lay down the ground rules, and put him next to a mature broker whom you have faith in. Put the stuff in some good quality bonds, and go to your Maker serenely."

"If you want your children to get the income first, and the grandchildren to get the principal, that's simple enough. If it goes just to children, and you don't want them to get it outright, provide for income only for 10 years, say. Then they get the principal. If they blow it, they blow it. But the trust doesn't go on forever."

"But who's going to be the custodian for the bonds?"

"The broker. He's insured for a bigger sum than the bank is. And the safekeeping is free. Broker statements are simpler than those computerized things from the bank trust departments. Again, no charge."

Here's another anecdote, along the same line. One of America's leading bankers set up this Family Trust, with the best intentions in the world. On his death, an Ohio bank became a co-trustee of this part of his estate with the widow the other co-trustee.

There are few things in the world more useless than a co-trustee, if a bank trust department is the other

"co-". The bank isn't going to do anything to depart from its ancient traditions. All it means is getting another signature from time to time, and a round of explanations why the trust can't be run any other way than it is.

In this case, the widow showed the list of investments to a private investment adviser. The trust assets were in two groups - (1) Money market funds and (2) Growth stocks.

Money market fund interest rates were dropping every week at that time. Growth stocks seemed silly for a woman with an expectancy of 10 or 15 years, and she thought so, too.

"I want the income now," she told the bank.

When the investment adviser showed her that government bonds would provide twice as much income as these so-called "growth stocks," she was even more insistent.

"But we have to protect the remaindermen," said the trust officer.

By that he meant the children and grandchildren who might some day come into the trust funds.

The widow snapped, "Do you mean that government bonds wouldn't protect the children as well as these stocks you've got?"

"Well, we'd have to get waivers from all of the children that they wouldn't hold us responsible."

So in due course, waivers were prepared by a lawyer, and it eventually got sent out and returned. Still later, investments were switched, so that the trust produced not $6,000 a year in income, but $11,000.

The last we heard, the widow as co-trustee, was seeking to get the whole trust dissolved and the money distributed to the children.

"I'll ask the court to split the bonds between the children, and they'll get the income," she said. "And we'll save $1200 a year the bank was charging me to send four checks a year, plus a lot of computer sheets I never read."
