400 greet Sen. Dole in Cass City visit Saturday

Patterning himself after the successful strategy of Richard Nixon 20 years ago, Robert Dole, Senate Majority Leader, is crisscrossing the nation in behalf of Republican candidates as he eyes the nomination for president in 1988. Speaking before nearly 400 of the party faithful at Colony House Saturday night, he stressed the need for support of Republican candidates and pledged to do all that he can to see a Republican governor elected, including returning to Michigan again and again. Dole has already been in the state 10 times this year. Accompanying Dole to the fund-raiser for Huron, Tuscola and Sanilac Counties were the 4 candidates for governor, Daniel Murphy, Colleen Engler, Richard Chrysler and William Lucas. Although it appears obvious that Dole is running hard for the presidential nomination, he is not prepared to announce his candidacy this early. What Dole is emphatic about is that he is not a candidate for the vice-presidency in 1988. Dole staunchly supported President Reagan's foreign policy, including the money desired for defense buildup and the space based Strategic Defense Initiative. Dole was less supportive of the president in farm policy. We all like to eat, but the fact is that we have a cheap food policy, Dole said. Farmers haven't made a profit for 3 years, he continued, and something must be done about that. Eventually, he said, we must establish a fair foreign trade policy with Japan and others with whom we do business. Meanwhile the government has to help keep the family farm in business.

Despite his extensive exposure in the state, Dole right now has no committed delegates, but feels that it is far too soon to ask any delegates to seriously commit themselves to a candidate. In contrast, 3 other presidential candidates, New York Congressman Jack Kemp, Vice-president George Bush and the Rev. Pat Robinson say they have thousands of committed candidates running for precinct delegates in the August primary. Deadline for filing was Tuesday.

Dole and the other GOP notables were introduced by State Representative Dick Allen. Lauded for organizing the event were Paul and Donna LaFave. Harold Perry of Cass City was recognized for selling $1,160 worth of tickets.

Although Senator Dole has lost the use of his right arm because of an injury suffered in World War II when a shell hit him in the right shoulder, he appeared in remarkably good health and young for his 62 years.

His looks belied the 3 years he spent in hospitals and a series of painful operations, including the loss of a kidney. He personally greeted nearly all of the 400 who came to hear him speak.

SEN. MAJORITY LEADER Robert Dole was sympathetic to the plight of farmers in speaking at a Republican fund raiser Saturday.

Welcome rains can stop anytime for area farmers

A nearly dangerous bout with dry weather this spring put area farmers on the edge of their seats. Over a week of non-stop rain kept them there.

In 3 weeks (from April 23 to May 14) the area saw a mere .28 inches of rain, according to records at the Waste Water Treatment plant in Cass City. The dry weather coincided with springtime planting. Last week, the rain came. "A week ago at this time we were begging for water and would have been happy to receive 1 to 2 inches. The area has received anywhere from 1 to 5 inches," said Tuscola County Cooperative Services Director Bill Bortel.

Last week the Waste Water Treatment plant recorded 2.02 inches after 7 straight days of rain.

Bortel said that the county was drier than it was last spring. But last spring the area never received a good rain. "We counted rainfall in tenths of inches last year," said Bortel.

"We were in a more desperate situation this year, but it wasn't a crisis," he said referring to the long bout of rainless weather. According to Bortel, the rain has caused some problems, but the good it has done far outweighs the bad. "In general I would say that by far a lot more good was done. We're seeing minimal problems across the county," he said.

One of the problems farmers may encounter because of the rain is leaching of nitrogen as the nitrogen is washed out of the root zone of corn.

The lack of rain put Huron County on the verge of stress problems, according to Huron County Agriculture Agent Jim LeCureux. The rains which followed also created problems. "I would like to see some moderation," said LeCureux.

He said that crusting of the soil will affect plant emergence. "We may have to go in there and bust up the crust," he added. There is also a chance of seed corn maggots in cold, wet soil.

On the plus side, LeCureux said that fortunately navy beans were not in yet. "They're more susceptible to root rot," he said. Right now, he said, there are no problems that the farmer can't live with.

Sanilac county did not receive quite as much rain as Huron and Tuscola but still may experience some problems. Rex Sieting, Sanilac County Cooperative Extension agent, said.

Flossie Farrelly delighted

23 adults to graduate

Over the years students have reported a variety of reasons for going back to school and earning high school diplomas. Many seek to graduate because it better arms them in the battle for jobs. Others do it for the self satisfaction it brings.

Graduates at Cass City School's adult education program often include grandmothers and students not much older than those in the regular graduation classes.

Age doesn't diminish the thrill for the graduates. Sometimes it enhances it. Certainly it did for Flossie Josephine Farrelly, 56, the oldest of the graduates in the 8th annual commencement program to be held Tuesday at Cass City High School.

Boy, she sparkled, a week before the graduation, you just can't know how great getting that piece of paper is going to be.

There were times during the 5 years that she has been attending school 2 and 3 nights a week when there were doubts. One of the worst times, Mrs. Farrelly recalled, was when I first attended. You can't believe the guts it took to walk into that room. There were times when I almost gave it up, she added, but Dave Lovejoy (director) was so supportive and my husband, who's a whiz in math, got me through that when I thought I wouldn't.

Mrs. Farrelly was motivated to return to school by a long time desire to become a nurse after her husband, Arlan Brown, died. That won't happen now, she smiled, because she met her current husband and now makes her home in Cumber, a stone's throw from where the now long gone country school where she completed the eighth grade was located.

Now that Mrs. Farrelly has joined the 22 other graduates of the class of 1986, are there any future plans? Perhaps a course in psychology as the Farrellys care for 3 elderly persons in their home.

Mrs. Farrelly's story can be repeated by many of the graduates that this year include 15 women and 8 men.

The graduates will be presented at graduation exercises by Dr. Edward Scollon, president of the Cass City Board of Education. Lovejoy will present the diplomas.

Addresses by 3 members of the class, Donna Marie

Auten, Mary Morley and James J. Grates, are a highlight of the ceremony.

The graduates are: Donna Marie Auten, Celine M. Becking, Gerald Russell Eggleston, Peggy Sue Elrod, Flossie Josephine Farrelly, Rusty Freeman, Jane A. Gemmill, James J. Grates, Allan Wesley Horne, Susan Kay James, Lavolah Christina Kaake and Franklin K. Kieltyka.

Townships' valuation increases

Although each of the 5 Tuscola County townships in the Cass City area showed significant declines in valuation of agricultural land, each increased in overall valuation.

Elkland Township was nearly the same as it was in the previous year. Agricultural land dropped from $14,876,531 to $12,232,500. However, total state equalized valuation was slightly more than in 1985 with a valuation of $44,831,800 for 1986 as compared to $44,636,720.

Ellington Township's drop in farm land valuation was slightly more than $1 million from $8,430,653 in 1985 to $7,191,503 for 1986. Total valuation was $14,230,239 for 1986 and $13,088,399 last year.

STANDING WATER IN fields such as this one 2 miles west of Cass City are evidence of last week's rains. The water could cause seed or root rot.

Residents fight ammonia tank at M-53 and M-81

by Cymbre Sommerville

There was general opposition to the installation of an anhydrous ammonia tank at the corner of M-53 and M-81 at a public meeting held Wednesday night. One woman said that she would march the streets to keep it out. "We have enough on this corner already," she said.

The proposed 18,000-gallon tank would be put in by Estech Branded Fertilizer, Inc. which is already established on the corner.

The permit to install the tank is issued by the Department of Natural Resources which considers a number of factors such as public input before issuance of a permit.

Representatives from Estech, the DNR, and Emergency Services presented both pros and cons of the tank installation to concerned residents.

Present at the meeting were Emmett Morrell, who is the Emergency Services

One woman said she will march the streets to keep it out. "We have enough on this corner already."

Director for Sanilac County, and Jim McCann, who is the Emergency Services Director for Tuscola County. Morrell explained to the group that it is his job to give assistance in an emergency situation. If an ammonia leak, should occur, there would have to be some sort of plan. In case of an emergency, personnel from Cass City would be the first to respond. Since the tank would be in Sanilac County, Morrell is required to get permission from Tuscola County to use its emergency personnel. He said that McCann was more than willing to cooperate. He also told the group that the Elkland Township Fire Dept. has had training in dealing with ammonia leaks and that emergency personnel as a whole in Cass City are more than willing to cooperate.

Mark Reed, of the air quality division of the DNR, explained to the group the very worst that could happen should a leak occur. "As far as I'm concerned it's a Catch 22 situation. If you took the worst case scenario which would be to lose the entire content, you could get a lethal concentration of ammonia 2 miles downwind. But he said that he was not aware of any major incidents of this nature in Michigan. Most accidents occur through such happenings as a ruptured hose or if the driver pulls away from the tank before disconnecting the hose. If a significant release of ammonia did occur, it could be very hazardous. Large quantities, said Reed, can burn skin, blind, and burn the mucous membranes in the lungs.

Once given the worst of the news, residents then heard from Allen Schutte, assistant marketing manager for Michigan and safety coordinator in the Saginaw district for Estech. He explained the need for the tank and answered questions concerned with safety features of the operation.

"This is a large farming community and right now we are bringing anhydrous ammonia from 15-20 miles Please turn to page 16.

"If It Fitz..."

Tigers and fudge

By Jim Fitzgerald

"Nothing in the world makes me madder than that," I shouted last Tuesday night. The Tigers had just done exactly what I predicted they'd do. I kicked a footstool and threw my newspaper at the TV set.

"Nothing in the world makes you madder?" my wife said. "What about child abuse? What about war? What about food rotting in warehouses while people starve to death?"

"Boy, I really hate it when she does that. I never do things like that to her. The worst thing I ever do to her is stop at Trappers Alley to buy fudge on my way home from work."

I begin eating the fudge around 10 p.m. I can't help it if the wrapping makes a noise. I can't help it if I can eat fudge without gaining weight. I think it's because I never eat lunch. My wife eats lunch. Is that my fault?

I admit she doesn't shout or kick a footstool when I eat fudge. That's not her style. Everyone has his or her own way of expressing anger and disgust. I tend to get noisy. My wife never raises her voice. She calmly looks at the fudge, she calmly looks at me, and then she quietly says something like:

"I hope you choke on that."

It has occurred to me that if I quit eating candy in front of her, she might quit making me feel like a shallow, ignorant, selfish, heartless monster for caring about who wins a baseball game.

On one hand there is the sincere reaction of a 55-year Tiger fan to a cruel loss that would never have happened if Sparky Anderson had as many brains as he does dollars from making TV commercials. On the other hand there is the vindictive, mean-spirited reaction of a grown woman to the sight of fudge that sheer vanity precludes her from eating.

It is ludicrous to equate those two reactions. The honest enthusiasm of a Tiger nut is hardly on a par with the green envy of a woman who turns snide at the slightest sound of a candy wrapper.

Nevertheless, despite the obvious unfairness of such a trade-off, I will curb my lip-smacking fudge-eating if my wife will stop implying that baseball fans don't care if the world blows up just as long as it happens between innings. The fact that I'd accept such a short end of this deal is an accurate measure of how much I'm bugged by the insinuation that I can't see beyond the center-field wall.

And it isn't only baseball. One Sunday last fall, in church, I whispered to my wife that we should leave a few minutes early so I wouldn't miss the kickoff of a football game. Oh my.

"Isn't church more important than football?" she asked. "Your life will not be ruined if you miss the kickoff. If the enthusiasm of football fans were channeled in the right direction, all the problems of the world could be solved. The money spent on football tickets would be more than enough to buy food for every hungry child in the world."

If I'd had any sense of decency at all, I would have killed myself right then and there in the back pew.

But, unfortunately, I lived long enough to experience the agony of last Tuesday night. Tiger Jack Morris had pitched a super game for eight innings. As Morris said the next day, he felt plenty strong enough to pitch the last innings and protect a 2-1 lead. But over-manager Anderson brought in Willie Hernandez, and I began to sob.

"We are going to lose this game," I wailed. "I know it. I guarantee it." Two Kansas City homers later, I was right, 4-2. I fell down and pounded the floor with my head.

I know it is silly to care that much. I know I should use all that energy to save the world. I know this because my wife keeps telling me. If she will stop it, I will go outside and sit on the curb to eat fudge. Between innings.

I'm crying in my beer, Oh, unkind fate, you've dealt a cruel blow. The first 3-day vacation of the summer looms as this is written and, when it comes, guess who will be stuck around home?

That's regression for you. It will be the first time in no telling how many years that there is positively no way that I can escape the demands of the job.

You'd think that the Republicans would be kinder than to stage a bash on a holiday weekend Saturday

FSA OFFICERS INSTALLED -- The Ferris State College Chapter of the Future Secretaries Association recently elected new officers for 1986-87. Installed during the 12th annual Awards Presentation of FSC's office administration department were (from left): Lori Thompson of Big Rapids, recording secretary; Dana Zdrojewski of Cass City, vice-president; Kim Fidler of Gratiot, treasurer; Kate Worm of Manistee, corresponding secretary, and Tracy Green of Cass City, president.

Weekend quiet for Cass City Police Department

Memorial weekend proved to be a quiet one for the Cass City police department.

Sunday, a car driven by Glenn Vyse, 73, of Temperance was westbound on Pine St. when he failed to yield and struck a northbound vehicle on Seeger St. driven by Rusty Woodward, 18, of 4368 Seeger St. There were no injuries.

Also Sunday afternoon, a Center Line man was injured when he lost control of the 3-wheel ATV he was driving. Stephen M. Hughes, 22, lost control while driving uphill in a gravel pit, and rolled over. According to the police report, he was taken to Hills and Dales Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Ronald Smith reported vandalism to his car sometime between 12 and 1 p.m. Thursday in either Erla's or the Coach Light parking lot. The passenger door was dented and appeared to have been kicked in. An estimated $132 in damage was done to the vehicle. There are no suspects.

In a 2-car collision Friday, May 16, 2 Cass City men were slightly injured, according to Michigan State Troopers in Bad Axe.

John J. Doerr, 27, Cass City, was northbound on Cemetery Rd. and slowed down to make a left turn onto Huron Line Rd. when he was rear-ended by a car driven by Gregory L. Mueller, 23. Mueller and a passenger in his car, Wayne R.

Wanamaker, 38, both of Cass City, were slightly injured. Mueller was treated and released at Hills and Dales Hospital and Wanamaker sought his own treatment. Doerr was not injured.

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

Cass City fans watching a recent baseball game on TV between Kansas City and Detroit at Kansas City received a bonus. Al and Barb Hutchinson (while visiting son, Rod Hutchinson, and his wife) were at the game with a sign indicating they were from Cass City and the cameras zoomed in on them for all to see. Incidents like this are always lots of fun.

Walbro Corporation is receiving national attention these days. In last week's edition of "Forbes" magazine, a national business publication, the company was briefly reviewed. The publicity should be a bonus for Cass City in its drive to secure more industry for more jobs.

The review called attention to the surge in the price of the stock and was generally favorable.

Sanilac County is planning its first County Parks Awareness Week June 9-15. All 4 county parks, Delaware, Evergreen, Forester and Lexington, will participate.

The complete program is to be announced, but plans call for a horseshoe tournament, canoe race, magic show, volleyball tournament, bands and hayrides.

When Senator Robert Dole came to town, he made it on time as scheduled, but it took some doing. He cruised in from Tri-City Airport in under an hour with the help of a police escort.

It's no secret to Detroit Tiger baseball fans that attendance is like the team in the standings. Way down. About 27 percent through 40 games.

Maybe that's one reason the publicity department sent the Chronicle a packet of ballots for the annual all-star game. There are eight Tigers on the ballot: Darrell Evans, Lou Whitaker, Alan Trammell, Darnell Coles, Lance Parrish, Dave Collins, Kirk Gibson and Chet Lemon.

There is also a spot to write in candidates. The ballots should be sent to: All-star Ballots, Tiger Stadium, Detroit, MI 48216 on or before July 6.

No, the Detroit Baseball Co. will not, repeat NOT pay the postage, although the way the Tigers are playing, they should.

Phone bills to go up $1 June 1

General Telephone Company will cover the cost of providing access to interstate long distance service to local customers by increasing monthly bills by one dollar beginning June 1, according to Max Preston, state vice-president-general manager of General Telephone of Michigan.

The common access line charge of $1, or CALC, was set by the Federal Communications Commission.

The charge will apply to residential and single-line business customers and is in addition to the $1 fee which went into effect June 1, 1985. An insert further explaining the charge will be mailed with phone bills.

"Traditionally, customers paid only part of the connection costs through local service charges with long distance service subsidizing the rest," said Preston. "CALC will ensure that the costs of providing local service are borne by the actual users of it."

"Mention money and the whole world is silent." German Proverb and it wouldn't surprise me if it rained on the Memorial Day Parade Monday. If it doesn't, something will probably go kaput with the camera and pictures will go the way of my weekend. Down the drain.

More than one of my buddies are quick with the sympathy. They commiserate with "Gosh, you must be a poor, poor manager. Anyone that's worked as long as you have and can't arrange things better than that deserves to work on holidays." Those are the kind remarks. The others can't be repeated in a family paper.

At times like this the grass is always greener in any other place you can mention. Has there ever been a person who hasn't vowed to himself, at least a couple of times in a career, that only an idiot would choose such a stupid way to make a living? Step up, you should be cast in bronze. You are a rarer animal than the Abominable Snowman.

For most of us those grey clouds soon pass and the sun starts shining again. To be discontented with what we have is the way it is for most folks. A guy making minimum wage would be delighted with $5 an hour, an auto worker is mad when he makes $12. So it goes.

Of course 12 bucks an hour doesn't look all that bad when it's that or hit the streets because a plant is closing. Working a few extra hours and a holiday or 2 isn't much of a price to pay for a comfortable living in a fine community.

The question I ask myself, when everything goes wrong that could go wrong, is what could I do other than run a newspaper? And suddenly the prospect of working on Memorial Day doesn't seem all that terrible.

I won't even need a crying towel.

Heavy fog partly to blame for roll over Sunday

The Tuscola County Sheriff's Department reported a single car accident on Cedar Run Rd. Sunday morning near the intersection of Hoppe Rd.

Karri L. Spencer, 18, of 6559 E. Kelly Rd., was traveling northbound on Cedar Run Rd. in heavy fog when she went through the curve and into a field where her pickup rolled over. She was uninjured, and cited for driving too fast for conditions.

Debbie S. Howell, 25, of 6379 Sixth St., was cited for careless driving Saturday after she lost control of her car. Howell was northbound on Dodge Rd. when, according to the sheriff's report, she went through the intersection of Little Rd., lost control and went through a field into a ditch.

Elizabeth Lambert of Kingston reported a breaking and entering at her home located at 4075 Shay Lake Rd. Friday. The door appeared to have been kicked in and a change purse containing $35 was taken.

State police cite 16 businesses

Officers of the Michigan State Police from the Caro post are citing 16 businesses to the Liquor Control Commission for selling alcohol to minors in Tuscola County.

This is the result of officers working with 18-year-old youths who successfully purchased alcohol in approximately half of the businesses checked.

This program is known as the S.A.V.E., which is an acronym for Surveillance of Alcohol Vending Establishments. The bottom line purpose of the program is to save lives.

TACA open to budget suggestions for new fiscal year

The Thumb Area Commission on Aging (TACA) Executive Director Alan Sward and fiscal manager Paul Scott Stevens met with the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners Tuesday afternoon to explain to them how the budget for fiscal year 1985-86 was prepared and to give them some options for planning the next fiscal budget which begins in October 1986.

"Right now commissioners are looking at us under a microscope, specifically asking where the dollars are going," said Sward.

He explained that, in the past, funding which comes from the area agency in Bay City has been put into a budget for the region rather than 3 separate independent counties. The budget was put together using matching funds which is the money required of each county to attract the federal dollars on a ratio of one county dollar for each 9 of federal dollars.

According to Sward, instead of treating the 3 counties as one large area, increasing services where needed and paying for them from the general fund, the new approach would be to make each county accountable for its own services.

He said that in Huron County, when the county's $25,000 allocation of funds was depleted, the balance of money required to get the grant was made up out of TACA's general fund. The increase has come from a 30 percent jump in the number of home delivered meals.

Sward said that due to millage defeats and other budget restraints Huron County may not be able to come up with the additional money next year which in turn could mean cutting meal sites, transportation, and case management. "It would be an unpopular decision and we don't want to do it, but we won't have a choice," said Sward.

Promote Kidd in Marine Corps

Marine Pfc. Kimberly S. Kidd, daughter of Joseph H. and Cheryl A. Buziak of 1275 Morrison Road, Ubyly, has been meritoriously promoted for her present rank upon graduation from recruit training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C.

Kidd received the early promotion for superior performance during all phases of the 11-week training cycle, which emphasized physical conditioning, self-discipline and teamwork.

A 1985 graduate of Ubyly High School, she joined the Marine Corps in June 1985. She is now at Camp Lejeune, N.C., for training.

New books at the library

BESS W. TRUMAN by Margaret Truman (non-fiction). Margaret Truman pays tribute to her mother. Drawing on personal recall as well as on some 1500 letters - mostly written by Bess but also several hundred of Harry's - Margaret Truman recreates her parents' lives: the difficult passages when Harry and later Bess were swamped by political pressures, as well as the homespun pleasures of their long marriage. Seldom have the terms of marriage at its most enduring been so touchingly revealed as in these pages, which include dozens of rare photos. Historians will be interested in the book for its insights: HST is portrayed as an honest man used by corrupt bosses early in his career for window-dressing - a credible view, HST's legendary bluntness shines through numerous vignettes, and readers will be amused by his comments on FDR, Ike and Nixon.

STRANGERS by Dean R. Koontz (fiction). The "strangers" are thousands of miles apart when they begin to suffer inexplicable terrors. In California, Dom Corvaisis sleepwalks, fleeing from an unseen menace. In Massachusetts, gifted young Dr. Ginger Weiss's panic attacks threaten her career. A priest in the Midwest loses his faith suddenly, then finds he can heal fatally injured people. And, in Elko, Nevada, the owner of a motel - a tough ex-Marine - becomes paralyzed by fears of the dark. Mysterious clues bring these characters and others, similarly afflicted, to the motel, where apparently they had met long before. As they compare experiences, the victims realize they've been brainwashed and determine to find out why. That means facing death at the hands of a marfiac in a scene that finally induces frissons of terror in the reader.

MIDSUMMER'S EVE by Philippa Carr (fiction). As young Victoria is crowned in London, Annora Cadorsun lives in lore-ridden romantic Cornwall. From the ancient manor of Cador, Annora witnesses some of the barbaric pre-Christian ritual of Midsummer's Eve, which the locals celebrate with ordeal by fire. She is shattered by her suspicion that one of the masked participants may be the neighboring lord, who has won her love but, she fears, might be covetous of her estates. When Annora's parents return to Australia to oversee family affairs, she postpones her London season to accompany them to the outbreak.

Hands Across America locally recognized

On Sunday Americans across the country joined hands as part of "Hands Across America," a project developed to raise money for America's impoverished people.

In conjunction with the event, Gerry Tibbitts' fifth grade class at Cass City intermediate school spent the better part of the day Friday putting into words what America means to them. Their single sentence proclamations were written on paper hands and stapled across a map of America. Some of them read, "It's a caring nation... a helpful country... beautiful home... greatest country in the world." "They had some problems getting their sentences down because I told them that they all had to be different," said Tibbitts.

"I heard about it (Hands Across America) on the news and decided that we had to do something," said Tibbitts.

The students also took each letter of the alphabet and wrote a single word which describes America. These too were stapled across the board.

What did the kids think of a human chain that will be approximately 4,000 miles long? "I think it's a pretty good idea," said Matt Nicholson. His classmates agreed.

GERRY TIBBITTS' 5th grade class posed in front of the class project done in conjunction with Hands Across America.

Grants to be available for business and industry

Business and industries in Tuscola County will again this year be able to apply for grants under a special projects fund, following action taken by the Private Industry Council and the Thumb Area Employment and Training Consortium.

Consortium officials announced this week that $40,000 will be available in grants to businesses and industries in the Thumb area, including Tuscola, Sanilac, Huron and Lapeer Counties, through what is called the Special Projects Fund. The fund is designed to create industrial-based jobs for eligible persons under the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) by addressing certain needs of employers within the 4-county region.

Specifications for application to the Special Projects Fund may be obtained by calling the Tuscola County Economic Development Corporation at 673-2849. Application to the fund will be accepted after July 1, but inquiries can be made prior to that date.

EDC Director James McLoskey said this is the second year that the Special Projects Fund has been offered to businesses in Tuscola County and other parts of the Thumb. "The organizers of the fund feel that awarding these grants will enhance the belief that effective economic development and employment generating services are essential to the success of local job training and placement programs. Of the $40,000 available, grants may be used as funding for several special projects, or the money may fund a single project."

New perspective

The Thumb from the air is magnificent

by Cymbre Sommerville

I survived the ride. Though I was somewhat apprehensive about it, I guess that I'm making my first ride in a 4-seater single engine airplane sound much worse than it was. Actually, it was something I won't forget.

We headed up into the wild blue yonder Thursday morning from the Caro airport. Pilot of the plane was Stuart Merchant and a friend of his, Virgil Timko from Caro, rode along.

Coming to Cass City 3 months ago, I have learned much about the people who live here and the surrounding countryside, but I never dreamed I would get a bird's eye view of it. From 4,000 feet up we could see the entire Thumb and the water surrounding it. The land was cut into perfect squares colored black, gray, green and gold, crisscrossed with perfectly straight roads and a sprinkling of houses.

It was a perfect day for flying. The sky was clear and there was a slight breeze from the northeast.

My tour of the topography went without a hitch. Well, almost. As we were taking off, my door flew open. I thought I was very controlled, letting out a gasp (not a scream) and grabbing the camera which was sitting on my lap. Of course, I don't know if my heart will ever be the same. We reloaded and shut the door, and that, thankfully, was the end of the excitement.

The plane we were cruising in was a Beechcraft v-tail called a Beech Bonanza. Stu co-owns the plane with Wayne (Buck) Rabideau. They bought it 3 years ago from Lansing Community College on a bid. "I never thought in my wildest dreams that I'd be flying one because they're considered one of the better models. It's a 1960 model. I had a '75 Cessna, but this is a better plane," Stu said. At the time Buck and Stu bought it in 1981, they paid $20,000 for it. "Now, you can't touch a similar one for $100,000," he said.

Stu has been flying solo since October of 1975 when he became licensed. At first he had some problems getting past the medical requirements because of leg problems, and he was denied a student license. He appealed the decision. While waiting optimistically for the appeal to come through, he bought his first plane. "I only had 2 or 3 hours of instruction at the time," he said.

He also continued taking an hour of instruction now and then. His waiting paid off. The appeal came through and he was told that as long as he did everything satisfactorily for the instructor he could get his license. "Around April 21, I soloed. I could have done it sooner but you can't withdraw the student license. Some solo after 8-10 hours, but I had over 20," he remarked.

Stu has been interested in planes ever since he was a child. "I've always liked planes...back before WWII, in the '40's probably, I'd see plane after plane go over and sometimes they'd be practicing dogfights - B-17's, B-51 Mustangs. Whatever I was doing I'd stop and watch them," he reminisced.

But not until he was 49 years old did he actually climb into the pilot's seat. The Cass City airport was a mile north of town and the Merchants lived another mile past it so he would drive by every day and see the activity and, "I got the bug to give it a try," he explained.

"The owner of the airport (Grant Hutchinson) had a plane at the time and a fellow from Bad Axe would come over and give lessons. He was also a mechanic and would work on the planes," he remarked. The airport closed almost 4 years ago after Grant Hutchinson lost interest in flying and wanted to use the hangar to restore antique cars.

Pleasure is the motive for Stu's flying. He can hop in the cockpit in the morning and be in Florida well before dark the same day. He said that it's easier for him to fly to Florida than to drive to Detroit. But then again, driving to Detroit is enough to raise anyone's blood pressure.

Owning your own plane definitely has its advantages. Imagine waking up in the morning and being able to say, "Oh, let's eat out in Tampa tonight, dear." Stu, now 60, and his wife Joan traveled to Florida last November when Brewster Shaw went up in the shuttle. They were also there for the first space shuttle launch in April of 1981 and 2 others. The farthest he has flown has been to Albuquerque, N.M. He hopes to fly to California some day.

Of course there are some catches. First, Stu can only fly under visual flight regulations (VFR), which means the weather must be clear. "I didn't think I would be doing enough flying to get instrument rated," he explained.

Being instrument rated means that if it is cloudy, a pilot can put the plane above the clouds and fly using the instrument panel. "I had to check the weather and get a clear shot all the way down to Florida," he said.

Another factor which limits air travel is the price of aviation fuel. "In 1975 there was only a 10 cent difference between aviation fuel and car fuel," explained Stu. Not true anymore. "Caro is one of the cheapest places to get fuel but it's around $1.64 to $1.65 a gallon. At Metro, it's up to $2 a gallon," he said.

So now, let's talk numbers. To fly from Caro to Knoxville takes approximately 40 gallons. So a one-way trip costs about $66. For the record, the plane burns 12-13 gallons an hour. Stu said that the tank holds 62 gallons usable, with 2 mains and 2 auxiliary tanks.

"You're seeing less and less general aviation flying," he pointed out. He said that today the factories are hardly building any small planes because of the economy. "It knocked general aviation for a loop. All that's really left is corporate flying and commercial," he said.

"There used to be 10 or 12 guys in Cass City who flew, but there aren't any left," he added.

Flying is heavily regulated. It is required that Stu take a bi-annual check ride with an instructor. "He's there to see if you have any bad habits or if there's anything else you don't do right. He may pull the throttle to see what you'll do," Stu commented.

"A couple of years ago, Buck and I went to a weekend ground school in Grand Rapids to teach us things like instrument approaches. I have never studied so hard in my life," he remembered.

Coming in for a landing, I watched Stu pull knobs, flip switches and turn handles. It all looked so complex and for a second I wondered....

But, we made a perfect landing. I have to admit it was nice to have my feet back on solid ground. I've flown before, but in jets, safely behind the confines of tiny windows and surrounded by plush seats, sleeping businessmen, and stewardesses. This flight was a different thing entirely. Hanging in the air we were surrounded by sky and I was sitting next to the person in control.

"It's sort of a challenge (flying), but I just like it so much," Stu said. Like Virgil said, "To pilots, it's like a car, only difference is you can't get out and walk."

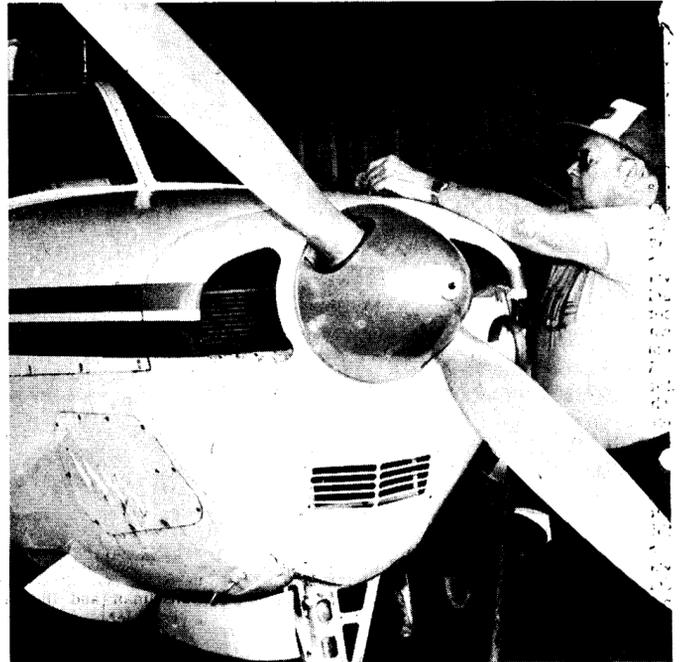

"People don't know what they're missing. They haven't seen the area from the air," said Stu. I can vouch for that.

STUART MERCHANT poses on the wing of his 1960 Beech Bonanza. Merchant co-owns the plane with Wayne Rabideau.

A BIRD'S-EYE VIEW of downtown Cass City.

BEFORE FLIGHT various checks must be made before the plane leaves the hangar. Here Stu Merchant checks the oil.

Water use

In many developed countries, a person can easily use 150 gallons of water each day. Yet in many African countries, daily use can be close to two to five quarts per person, says International Wildlife magazine.

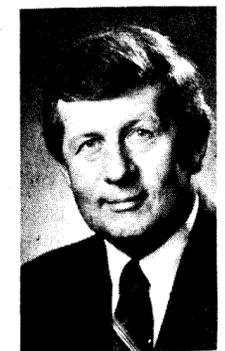

Rep. Allen to seek a third term

State Representative Dick Allen (R-Caro) announced he is seeking reelection to a third term in the Michigan House.

Allen, a former Tuscola County newspaper editor, first came to the Michigan House in 1982. He presently serves on the influential Appropriations Committee, which oversees the state's budget.

The 77th District lawmaker said he is seeking a third term to continue his efforts at helping to improve the economic development of Huron and Tuscola Counties, and to give the Thumb area an even stronger voice in Lansing.

Allen said he will also continue his pre-1982 promise of running a candidacy built on accessibility with the public. "This effort has been extremely effective; these past three and one-half years and has led to more and more individual and community involvement with government," Allen concluded.

Extension member for 60 years

The Michigan Association of Extension Homemakers is celebrating its 50th birthday this year. This is how long the organization has been around in Michigan, but there are some members in Sanilac County who have actually been extension homemakers for 60 years. Marguerite Krause, Snover, has a certificate that is over 60 years old that she received as an extension homemaker. There are several Sanilac County extension homemakers who have received 50-year certificates. Some of the topics and lessons have changed over the years, but not the central theme: strengthening the family. To celebrate the 50th year anniversary, local groups are designing banners that represent MAEH and its educational focus. These banners were displayed during Homemakers Week and will be again during the Sanilac County Fair this summer. Check with the Cooperative Extension Service for a study group near you. HEALTH TIPS Eating disorders

A recent Gallup Poll reported that one in eight teenage girls today show some signs of two major eating disorders -- anorexia nervosa and bulimia. It may be important to teens to be thin, but these disorders can cause permanent health damage and can kill young women. Anorexia nervosa is most often seen in teen girls who are generally well-behaved, conscientious students and daughters. These young women become obsessed with food and dieting, and drastically reduce their eating. In the beginning, parents may not know that there is a problem. The teen will hide the fact that she doesn't eat and greatly increases her amount of exercise to burn off any calories she has to consume. Young women who develop this condition can become emaciated and still see themselves as fat. In fact, anorexia causes premature death in 15 to 20 percent of the cases. With the drastic weight loss, a girl will stop menstruating, and if the disease continues long enough, it can cause infertility problems and miscarriages later in life. Bulimia is a disorder where the woman may consume large amounts of food at a single sitting but will then make herself vomit or take laxatives and diuretics, or use long periods of strenuous activity or fasting to avoid gaining weight. This disorder is not just limited to teenage girls -- the Gallup poll showed that one in eight women under 40 have used drastic techniques to compensate for a binge eating period. Bulimia may not appear to cause physical problems, but it can damage the heart and reproductive system, and cause kidney problems and ulcers. Both anorexia and bulimia have been linked to mood disorders and depression. It may be up to a family member to get the anorexic patient to the doctor or into a treatment program. It may be harder for the bulimic patient to be convinced or convince herself that treatment is needed. Her disorder is less obvious to family and friends, and she may have developed her eating patterns over a number of years. For both disorders, it is important to get good medical care, experienced nutritional counseling, and psychiatric therapy directed to these problems. Most of us wish we could lose some weight and admire those who can. But anorexia and bulimia are deadly ways of being thin.

Nothing wrong with Camp Whatyawanabe

There's recently been a camp created in the area over Camp Whatyawanabe, the women's camp located northeast of Cass City. What do you think of the camp? "We live up here in the middle of the Thumb and to a lot of people it's the only place in the world and everything's protected, but it's not," said Valerie Francis. She went on to say, "The way I see it is, everybody's going to do their own thing sometime or another anyway...it (the camp) just happens to be here."

outcast. "We just have to live with whoever lives next door because we're all on this earth together," she added. Has the whole thing been blown out of proportion? "Yes, I think it has been. I don't think it's that big of a deal...it's not our place to tell them what they can or cannot do." Valerie, 25, and her husband, Bill, reside in Cass City. She works at the Clothes Closet.

Valerie said that she feels that many people in the Thumb, who have been protected all their lives, are upset by what's happening at door, but little do they know that it's been happening elsewhere for a long time. "It's just one of those things," she said. She said that there is always somebody that people don't want in their company...whatever race, creed or color, there is always someone who is an

Picnic safety
by Betty Pattullo
Extension Home Economist

Summertime is also cookout and picnic time, says Betty Pattullo, Tuscola County Extension Home Economist. A meal in the back yard or at a park with friends can be relaxing and enjoyable. It can also result in food poisoning unless you take special care to keep hot foods hot (above 140 degrees F) and cold food cold (below 40 degrees F), points out Betty. Bacteria that spoil food and cause people to feel sick thrive at 98 to 99 degree body temperature. Maintaining foods at safe temperatures during summer picnics and cookouts means planning ahead. If you are traveling to your picnic site and the food will be unrefrigerated more than 15 minutes, try to follow some safety guidelines: -- Use a cold ice chest and plenty of ice or dry ice to guarantee that the cold foods will stay cold. -- Use an extra ice chest -- without ice -- to keep hot foods hot. -- If you're traveling a long distance and it's possible to do so, refrigerate the hot foods and reheat them just before serving. Make sure to allow sufficient time in the refrigerator so the hot food becomes completely chilled before you place it in the ice chest. -- Carry perishables in small quantities so there won't be any leftovers. If there are leftovers, it's safer to throw them away. -- Non-perishable foods, such as nuts, fruits, crackers, raw vegetables and cookies -- are always safe for picnics. -- Be sure that meats are cooked thoroughly. -- Remember that it gets very hot in the trunk of a car. It might be better to put the cold cooler in the passenger compartment rather than in the trunk. -- Try to include foods from the four basic food groups for good nutrition. Have a safe and enjoyable picnic.

Award pair U of M grants

Rodney Richard Parsell of Unionville and Gary Joe Dorman, Decker, were among school seniors from 376 schools throughout the state to receive Regents-Alumni Scholar Merit Awards from the University of Michigan for "outstanding academic achievement, scholarly promise and potential contribution to the university community."

A total of 1,432 students were nominated for the merit award (financial need is not a consideration), based on their grades, class ranking and test scores. Nominees were interviewed by U-M alumni representatives in their hometown area and final decisions were made by the University Regents-Alumni Award Committee.

Students selected as Regents-Alumni Scholars will receive a $1,000 (non-renewable) scholarship when they enroll in the U-M at Ann Arbor in the fall of 1986. In addition, recognition certificates have been provided to the recipients' high schools for presentation at spring awards convocations.

THE CASS CITY HIGH SCHOOL band was one of the highlights of the annual Memorial Day parade.

Memorial Day festivities helped by balmy weather

Memorial Day Monday was a memorable weather day and Cass City area residents responded, as one of the larger crowds in recent years lined Main Street for the annual parade and then moved to Elkland Cemetery for services that followed.

The Rev. Clare Patton, pastor of the Salem United Methodist Church, paid tribute to Americans lost in wars and asked the crowd to join in a silent prayer for peace. He said that the American flag is a symbol of our great heritage and is a fitting memorial for persons who died protecting it.

Jim Wilson asked the crowd for any flags that they might have to add to the collection that were erected in memory of area soldiers who have died. Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars fired a 3-gun salute and a wreath was placed at the marker of the unknown soldier.

JACK ESAU, standing, was the master of ceremonies at Memorial Day services at Elkland Cemetery. The Rev. Clare Patton, left, conducted the services and William O'Dell gave the invocation.

PLACING A WREATH at the grave of the unknown soldier were Vern McConnell, in foreground, and Jim Wilson.

Road builders urge competitive bidding

The Michigan Road Builders Association recently urged the Legislature and the Department of Transportation to introduce competitive bidding into maintenance projects to reduce those costs.

In releasing a report comparing private versus public employees on maintenance projects, the group suggested that the expansion of government use of private contractors from construction projects to include maintenance projects would improve efficiency and lower costs.

Lawrence Martin, executive director of the Road Builders Association, said the thrust of the study was to determine the feasibility of striking a better balance between the use of public employees and contracted private employees in performing maintenance responsibilities.

He said the concept of construction by contract, or private delivery, rests on the basis of competition and the free enterprise economy.

Although specific cost savings figures were unavailable, the Michigan Road Builders Association is urging a Department of Transportation pilot plan to let contracts on maintenance projects to allow for a comparison of the cost of delivering the services by the public and private sectors.

Some maintenance projects which could be contracted include winter ice and snow removal, guard rail repair, pavement patching, sealing and joint repair, shoulder grading and replacement, roadside mowing, draining and culvert maintenance, roadside rest area maintenance, signing and pavement marking.

Cheryl Ronk, director of Communications and Education for the road builder group and author of the report entitled "A Look at Using Contractors and Government Employees on Public Works Projects," said contracting out maintenance projects would also provide additional tax dollars paid by contractors hired to do the maintenance work.

The report said taxes returned between 7.5 and 19 percent of the contract cost to the governments.

Ronk said that while small businesses comprise more than 95 percent of the enterprises in the country, they secured only one-fifth of the federal government's procurement dollars in 1980.

Business, in general, is estimated to receive only one-third of the possible $30 billion market annually, she said.

Tips for best spreader use

Whether you just bought a lawn spreader or already have one, if you don't know how to use it, you probably aren't getting the results you want from your lawn. Don't panic. Here are some helpful hints from the lawn experts at The O.M. Scott & Sons Company.

There are two basic kinds of spreaders — a drop-type spreader and a rotary spreader. Each releases material in a different way.

The drop-type does exactly what its name implies — it drops lawn product particles on the lawn through a series of openings at the bottom of the hopper. The rate of application is determined by the size of the holes and the position of the shut-off gate, which both affect the amount of material released.

The rotary operates a little differently. Product in the hopper flows through the openings in the bottom of the hopper to a disk below with fins. As the spreader is pushed along, the disk revolves and throws out the product. Rate is determined by the amount of material allowed to fall to the disk and by the walking speed of the operator.

No matter which type you prefer to use, there are some helpful guidelines you should follow:

- Use the correct setting for the product being applied because proper product application is essential to having a nice looking lawn. Scott's products list the preferred setting for use in Scott's Spreaders.

- Always fill your spreader on a walk or in the driveway—never on the lawn—so you don't overapply product or injure your lawn.

- When filling your spreader, be sure the hopper openings are closed so no product will escape.
- To begin, start walking as you release the shut-off lever so product will start flowing. Always PUSH your spreader forward; do not pull it backwards.

- Make two "header" strips across each end of the lawn to provide turning space. Then, go back and forth between the ends, gradually shutting off the spreader as you approach the treated header strips.

- To avoid striping and misses with a drop spreader, overlap the edge of each strip against the previous one. You can check this by seeing if particles are falling close to the previous tire tracks. Overlapping 2 to 3 inches should be sufficient with a drop spreader. With a rotary, overlapping should be at least 1 to 3 feet.

CASS CITY SCHOOL NEWS

ASBESTOS

At the annual election on June 9th a proposal to levy one additional mill for two years for asbestos abatement will be presented. To help you make a decision on this issue, the information we have on asbestos and the asbestos problem will be presented as factually as possible.

Construction materials containing asbestos have been used extensively in schools and other buildings. Surveys conducted by the Environmental Protection Agency estimate that asbestos containing materials can be found in approximately 31,000 schools and 733,000 other public and commercial buildings in this country.

The presence of asbestos in a building does not mean that the health of the building occupants is necessarily endangered. As long as the asbestos containing material remains in good condition and is not disturbed, exposure is unlikely. If building activities damage or disturb the asbestos containing material, asbestos fibers are released creating a potential hazard to building occupants.

Much of what is known about asbestos related diseases comes from studying workers in the asbestos industry. Exposure to levels of airborne asbestos typical of the asbestos workplace has been linked with a debilitating lung disease called asbestosis; a rare cancer of the chest and abdominal lining called mesothelioma; and cancers of the lung, esophagus, stomach, colon and other organs.

The potential for disease seems to be related to the physical and chemical characteristics of the asbestos fibers as well as to the concentration of the fibers in the air. Data indicates that the risks of asbestos related diseases is in direct proportion to the exposure. It is estimated that only a small proportion of people exposed to low levels of asbestos will develop asbestos related diseases. However, combining smoking with exposure to asbestos increases the lung cancer rate above the rate due to smoking or asbestos exposure alone. Also, asbestos exposure in children is of special concern: since they have a greater remaining life span than adults, their lifetime risk of developing mesothelioma is greater.

The Environmental Protection Agency has developed regulations that apply to asbestos containing materials in schools. At the present time the regulations do not require the removal or correction of the problem. What they do require is:

1. Inspect, sample and analyze the construction materials in schools to determine if asbestos is present.
2. Document all findings.
3. Inform all school employees and parents of the presence of asbestos materials if they are found.

In an article next week information on the asbestos problem in the Cass City Schools will be presented.

Alex the talking bicycle highlight of safety talk

STEVE WHITE of AAA poses aboard Alex the Bike.

Faces lit up and whispers were exchanged when Alex the bike began to speak.

Alex the Always Alert Talking Bicycle "spoke" to children at Campbell Elementary School about bicycle safety Wednesday. Alex is part of a bicycle safety program offered by AAA.

The visit is part of a 3 month statewide program aimed at reducing bicycle injuries and deaths involving students riding in traffic.

"Alex instructs the students about bicycle courtesy, basic riding techniques and how and when to mix with traffic," said Robert Cullen, AAA Safety and Traffic Manager.

Alex is a talking BMX-type bicycle. Steve White, an AAA Michigan safety consultant out of Caro, traveled to 53 schools in the last three months with Alex to give safety presentations.

Last used in 1979, Alex has been refurbished and his message updated to include the latest bicycle safety, security and maintenance information.

During 1984, 47 bicyclists were killed and 3,657 injured in 4,197 accidents. The number of accidents probably is much higher because many minor injuries are never reported, Cullen added.

He went on to say that youngsters under 15 account for 57 percent of the deaths and 51 percent of the injuries reported in bicycle accidents.

STUDENTS AT CAMPBELL ELEMENTARY listened intently as Alex the Bike spoke to them about bicycle safety at an assembly Wednesday.

Urban forest

How much are a city's trees worth? In Salt Lake City, Utah, the estimated 100,000 trees on public property alone are worth more than $105 million, reports National Wildlife magazine. An urban forester made the calculations in an effort to support the city's tree care improvement plans.

Seals sometimes swim 6,000 miles over a period of eight months without once touching land.

Referendum on soybeans set

By Bill Bortel

Soybean growers are being asked to participate in a checkoff referendum this summer that will ask producers to support a one cent per bushel checkoff that would increase marketing efforts and provide for needed agronomic and new product research, states Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Director.

The voting period for the referendum is tentatively set for June 30 to July 12. Ballots will be mailed to growers. Arrangements are being made to have the ballots available through the county Cooperative Extension Service office.

Approval of the one cent checkoff would bring Michigan growers in line with checkoff provisions that exist in 26 other states. Three states have two cent checkoffs; growers in 20 states contribute one cent per bushel, and producers in three states are assessed one-half cent a bushel.

Michigan's checkoff has been in existence since 1977. In addition to supporting market promotion overseas, it has supported research at Michigan State University in three areas:

-- Varietal breeding. This research was funded in 1982 and is intended to identify varieties that will perform well in Michigan's soils and climate, which differ from those of other soybean growing states and make the adaptation of soybean varieties from other states risky.

-- Production research. Research topics range from disease resistance to white mold to yield trials under conservation tillage. This research is designed to enable growers to obtain the best yields possible for the lowest possible investment.

-- New product development. New developments range from new food products to the use of soybean oil as a carrier for sprays used in fruit and vegetable production.

The referendum is sponsored by the Michigan Promotion Committee, established primarily to increase soybean growers' income. The committee members are Barry Mumby of Fulton; Joan Denham, Ceresco; Arlie Pickles, Sand Creek; Fred Smith, Petersburg; Bill Kissane, St. Johns; Roger Roslund, Ithaca, and Grant Putman, Williamston.

"We feel that Michigan farmers want and need the best and most up-to-date information available to produce, market and understand the uses for soybeans," says Keith Reinhold, committee spokesperson. "Without research to keep ahead of or at least remain current with product development, Michigan's soybean growers cannot compete with producers in neighboring states," he says.

Dreaded comet

People didn't always look forward to the return of Halley's comet. Ranger Rick magazine says that in 1066, English knights blamed the comet for the death of a king and their battlefield loss. New England puritans, in 1682, believed diseases and floods would arrive with the comet. And in 1910, people hid in barrels of water for protection from Halley's "harmful rays."

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

The ad in the Wall Street Journal caught my eye. SAVE UP TO $500 A YEAR ON LIFE INSURANCE.

An outfit called Select Quote in San Francisco offered to compile quotations on life insurance based on your age, sex and smoking habits, and send figures to you free.

I sent in the coupon using my son's birthday. Insurance companies don't write insurance on geezers like me.

So we have a 40-year-old white male, and a non-smoker, for a rate example.

Back came the quotes on policies issued by these companies:

Bankers National Life, Berkshire Life, Federal Kemper Life Assurance, United Olympic Life and Presidential Life.

A M Best & Co., the company that rates insurance companies nationwide, gave Federal Kemper and Presidential a rating of A-Excellent. The others had the very top rating - A+Excellent. Bankers National was founded in 1927. Berkshire Life goes back 135 years when it was chartered in Massachusetts. It is among the 25 largest mutual companies in America.

Interestingly, a few days after I got the quotes, I got a question from a local fellow about insurance he already had. His situation fit that of the quotes I had—age 40, white male, non-smoker.

His average annual premium for the next 10 years for his $100,000 insurance was going to be $370. Total: $3,700.

Bankers Life, with an A+ rating, was offering the same coverage for $194 a year average cost. Total for 10 years -- $1,940.

Savings over 10 years: $1,760. Average per year -- $176.

During those 10 years let's say he puts that $176 into a bond fund yielding 10%. At the end of the period if he leaves it there and lets it compound he'll have $3085.

Instead of being just $1940 ahead in 1996, by investing the savings he'll be $3085 richer -- and still have the same amount of life insurance that he has now with his present policy.

My friend Mike saw these figures and sent for some fitting his own situation -- a non-smoking, 47-year-old man. He got quotes on $500,000 worth of insurance.

For Mike, the best quote was from Executive Life Insurance Co. of California. The company is rated by A M Best & Co. as A+ Excellent, the top rating.

The policy was for straight life, premium increasing gradually each year. No cash value. Premium for Mike would average $1,339 a year for $500,000, or $267 per $100,000. Higher than the example given in the first part of this article -- for Mike is seven years older.

Interested in figures for your own case? Write Select Quote Insurance Services, 140 Second St., San Francisco, Calif. Or call them on a WATS line, 1-800-343-1985 -- 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Pacific Time.

Give them data on age, sex, smoker or non-smoker, and amount of coverage wanted. They come back promptly with quotes from five companies, and data and ratings.

These straight life, no-cash-benefit, increasing annual premium policies look to me like the best deal. Ones with a cash benefit build-up cost a lot more, and the only thing they provide is compulsory savings. Discipline yourself to save regularly, instead of paying someone to do it for you.

Most people tend to buy too much insurance and then hold onto it too long. There's a lot of insurance sold to youngsters not yet married.

"What do you want insurance for?" I ask these gay bachelors. "Somebody will bury you, you know. The Health Service will insist on it."

I suggest to them when they get married to take out a $100,000 term policy. Five years later, when Tiny Tim is on the scene, increase it to $200,000. The widow can get $20,000 a year income from that. Let the savings meanwhile go to paying off the mortgage.

By age 40, the house should be free and clear, and that in effect is like insurance proceeds should the husband shuffle off.

Age 40 to 50, bump up the insurance to say $300,000. Using rates in the first part of this piece, cost will average $582 a year.

Shortly after the man is 60, there's Social Security and retirement on the near horizon. There should be savings, certainly, after some 35 to 40 years of working. Then drop the insurance and coast on to D-Day. The family has been protected all these years at a fraction of the cost most people are hooked for, if they listened too much to high-pressure insurance salesmen.

Re-capping:
1. Shop for life insurance.
2. Buy only pure term insurance.
3. After marriage, increase amount gradually until age 50.
4. Cancel it at age 60 and let other benefits take over.

away. If we put a tank in here, it will be closer and make it cheaper to raise produce (especially in the troubled times farmers are facing)," he said. Residents questioned the safety checked once a month. The safety valves are also checked on a regular basis he said. He also told those concerned with the smell of ammonia that the ammonia is handled in a closed system and unlikely to smell.

"The key to ammonia is to have an adequate water supply," said Schutte. Ammonia is lighter than air but when pressurized it becomes a liquid. If it escapes, it is in the form of a cold dense cloud and can be dissipated when sprayed with water.

There are presently tanks in Caro, Uby and Sandusky.

Willy recognized by the Village Council Tuesday

Nelson "Moose" Willy received a plaque from the Cass City Village Council in appreciation of his 32 years of faithful and dedicated service to the village at the regular meeting of the Cass City Village Council Tuesday evening. Willy officially retired May 22 from the Wastewater Treatment Plant.

In other action, the 1986 council committees and village appointments were passed and the bills were approved.

A motion was passed to accept a total millage of 15.273. The total is the summation of an operating millage of 10.0353, streets at 2.7370 and debt retirement at 2.5000. A property tax levy of $25,313,300 SEV was also reviewed and accepted. It was pointed out that the millage this year is a decrease of .2926 mills from last year.

The Council approved the audit proposal of the accounting firm Yeo and Yeo and accepted a fee from $5,900 to $6,800 for the work.

Lynda McIntosh told the council that the Memorial Day parade and ceremonial services went very well.

Wrapping up the brief meeting, the council recognized the Don DeLong family for their donation of the cost of installing new scoreboards on both the Little League and Minor League fields. The boards will be in place soon.

Rain did more good than harm

sion Service Director, said that parts of the county received 1/2 to 3/4 inches of rain while other areas received 1-1/2 to just over 2 inches, which is almost ideal. In general, he said, the rain was very positive. "It was so dry that we quit planting. I don't think I've seen it that dry in a long time," said Sieting. One problem he said that the rain may have created was a difficulty in getting out to spray orchards.

A concern that Bortel, LeCureux and Sieting all expressed was the possible washing away of herbicides. Bortel said that the rain may wash the herbicide out of the germinating zones of weeds. Sieting said that if they didn't use a pre-plant herbicide, which is worked into the soil, farmers may have difficulties because they weren't able to apply post-emergence spray during the rain. If a farmer had applied a post-emergence spray, there is a chance it may have been washed away. Standing water in the fields has been more prevalent in Tuscola and Huron counties and could cause seed to rot.

All 3 said that it is too early to tell exactly what problems farmers will face, but they will be minimal. Overall the rain was a plus for the farmer. "We're going to go into June in a lot better shape," said Bortel.

ESTECH, LOCATED AT THE corner of M-53 and M-81, is the proposed site of an 18,000 gallon anhydrous ammonia tank. At a public meeting held Wednesday night, residents voiced their concerns.

ROTISSERIE BEEF TIP ROAST

3 1/2 to 4-pound beef tip roast

Insert rotisserie rod through center of roast and test for balance by rotating rod in the palms of hands. Tighten split forks so roast turns with rod. Insert meat thermometer (at an angle so it will be centered in the roast and does not rest in fat or on the rod. Place on rotisserie and roast at low to moderate temperature to desired degree of doneness: 140°F. for rare, 160°F. for medium. Allow 35 to 40 minutes per pound, depending on desired doneness. For easier carving, allow roast to "stand" in a warm place 15 to 20 minutes after removal from oven.

Note: For oven roasting: place tip, fat side up, on a rack in an open roasting pan. Roast in a slow oven (325°F) to desired doneness.
