School fact finding meet slated Nov. 8

Unless the meeting with the fact finder brings a resolution of the differences between the Cass City School District and the Tri-County Bargaining Association, parents of students at Cass City Schools will not be able to formulate Christmas holiday plans until December. Because the school calendar is one of the items to be negotiated with the teachers, it is illegal to set dates unless not to do so would be of "irreparable harm".

Using this guideline, the board did set the Thanksgiving holiday for Thursday and Friday, Nov. 27-28. Also established were parent-teacher conferences for Monday, Nov. 10, during the regular school day. There will be no school on this day. Parents of high school students will be able to pick up first period report cards when they attend the conference.

Supt. Don Crouse said that the meeting with the fact finder will be Nov. 8 and is expected to last at least a day. The time of the meeting and the location have not been revealed. A preliminary meeting with the fact finder has been set in Detroit Oct. 28 and Al Luce, professional representing the school district, and Sheldon Markley, professional representing the union, will attend.

The dates were set at the regular meeting of the board Monday at the high school. Other than the discussion of the school dates, it was strictly a routine night. One exception was a presentation by Mrs. Traube in behalf of her son, Eric. Eric, a senior, has had all A's since transferring to Cass City in the middle of his freshman year. At his previous school he received one B. Mrs. Traube explained that he was taking an accelerated course in his previous school and was granted extra credit for it. At that school, these courses earned Eric a 5-point average instead of a 4-point, which is the most that can be earned in Cass City. The course that he received a B in was not one of the courses where extra credit was allowed. But because of the accelerated courses, his grade point average was above a 4-point when he entered Cass City.

The school does not issue over a 4-point in Cass City and in this year's senior class there are 3 students with a higher grade point average than Eric's.

Because other area schools may adopt a 5-point grade system, the board decided to examine the policy and see if any changes will be made. Judging by the comments of board members, it appears highly unlikely that any adjustments in the system will be made this year.

OTHER BUSINESS

Don Tonti has resigned from the board of the Career Education Planning Development and Bill Wallace, Cass City, has been named to replace him. Supt. Crouse said that Tonti had been an excellent member of the board and will be missed.

Linda Edwards presented details of the first Intermediate Year Book published at the school last year. She showed samples to the board and said that the book paid its way and has $135 left to start this year with. One reason that the work was self sustaining is that Edwards and Dick Partlo donated their services to the project. The names and addresses of parents of school children were released so Hills and Dales General Hospital could send copies of "The Healthy Child in the Healthy Family." Names will be removed from the list if parents desire it, Crouse said.

The school rehired Anderson, Tuckey, Bernhardt and Company as school auditors for 3 years at a salary of $3,800 in 1987; $3,900 in 1988, and $4,000 in 1989. The top yearly payment is less than the work was done for by another company in 1982 and 1983.

The board okayed the purchase of $1 million of liability insurance for board members at a cost of $2,406 from Michigan Association of School Boards, which submitted the lower of 2 bids received.

Three resolutions were adopted so that the school could qualify for various state and federal payments.

The Herbert Williams, who have moved from Cass City to the Evergreen area, were granted permission to have 2 children continue to attend Campbell Elementary School. One of the children needs to attend a special course in Cass City and the other can ride the same bus with no added expense to the district. The permission to attend Campbell was granted for one year and the Williams will have to apply again before school starts in the fall to have the arrangement continue.

Vassar man dies in farm accident

A Vassar man died Sunday after being run over by a semi-tractor while he helped harvest sugar beets.

Robert DeCoe, 20, of 3007 S. Kirk Road, Vassar, was run over by a semi-tractor while working at Dan and Tom List's farm at 5701 Hart Road, Vassar, according to a sheriff's department report.

DeCoe was having trouble with mud in the sugar beet field. A tow tractor was pulling a semi-tractor through the muddy field.

DeCoe apparently got out of the semi-tractor to check the air valves. The tow tractor driver did not know DeCoe was out of the truck and the driver started the tractor to turn the truck around for another pass through the field.

DeCoe was in front of the tandems on the semi when he was run over. He was taken to Saginaw St. Luke's Hospital, where he died.

A Cass City man, Kenneth J. Martin, 54, of 4180 Hurds Corner Road, was southbound on Unionville Road behind a semi-truck when he tried to make a left turn onto Dickerson Road and hit a northbound road grader driven by Bruce Tozer of Muskegon. Due to mist and water thrown up by the semi, Martin didn't see Tozer's vehicle. The accident occurred Oct. 16.

After Tozer was hit, his grader went to the right and hit a car belonging to Ricky A. Ruppel of 2344 Thomas Road, Fairgrove.

CAR-DEER ACCIDENTS

The Michigan State Police post reported three accidents due to deer.

Sheryl L. Martin, 21, of 6469 Sixth Street, Cass City, was westbound on Shabbona Road west of Dodge Road and struck a deer Thursday.

Genevieve R. Wolfrum, 17, of 1665 Burman Road, Deford, was westbound on Deckerville Road, east of Phillips Road when she hit a deer Friday.

Kurt D. Engler, 53, of 3422

Pine Street, Kingston, was northbound on Hurds Corner Road south of Shay Lake Road when he hit a deer Tuesday, Oct. 14.

The sheriff's department reported five accidents due to deer.

Ruth E. Moore, 20, of 6164 Lakeside Drive, Cass City, was eastbound on M-81 west of Dodge Road when she hit a deer Thursday.

Patricia Herr told the sheriff's department of a car-deer accident on M-81 and Dodge Road Thursday. Connie Lee Champagne, 46, of 5243 Mushroom Road, Deford, was westbound on Bevans Road west of Vandike Road Friday when a deer ran into the back of her car, got up and walked away.

Kacey Begeman of 1460 Sherwood Street, Woodhaven, told the sheriff's department he hit a deer on M-46 and Phillips Road Friday.

Ted Morgan of 6897 E. Cass City Road, Cass City, reported a car-deer accident Sunday.

Overflow crowd in Cass City for 4-H workshop

Some 250 moms, sisters, grandmothers, and even a couple grandfathers went back to school Saturday in Cass City.

The scene at Cass City High School at 9 a.m. resembled high school orientation, with people milling around the halls looking for their names tags and looking confused.

But the "students" didn't come to study English, math or social studies; they came to study topics ranging from small rabbitry management to herbs and spices to basket making. In all, about 30 classes were offered at the 2nd annual Tri-County Workshop.

The event, sponsored by the Tuscola, Sanilac and Huron County 4-H and Home Economics Extension programs, was again packed, home economist Kathy Hale said. "We feel it has been a success. We limited the class sizes (and) we've been turning people away," she added. Persons aged 13 and older from the tri-county area took part in the day-long workshop which included a $2 registration fee plus additional expenses for materials in some of the classes, Hale noted. One- to 2 1/2-hour classes in areas such as candy making, Christmas ornaments and painting were offered, as well as all-day classes in calligraphy, padded photo albums and needlepoint designing.

A special feature during the day for all participants was lunch, featuring Dr. Sam Varghese's "famous" Please turn to page 18.

6,000 in Michigan

Federal program to aid farmers

President Reagan's signing of the omnibus spending bill not only put the U.S. Government in service for fiscal 1987, it may keep Michigan farmers in business as well.

The $400 million in disaster aid to farmers of drought and flood stricken states is not a set figure, according to a Traxler aide in Washington.

If aid applications total more than $400 million, Payment In Kind (PIK) certificates will still be issued. Afterward, a supplemental appropriation from Congress would be requested to make up the difference.

There is no provision to pro-rate the aid. Basically, there's no way to know the cost associated with this program. There's not a simple way to determine how much money will be sent to each state until the applications are made, Traxler's aide said.

Twenty states have counties which qualify for PIK certificates and 10 more are being considered for federal disaster status. In Michigan, one half of the state is either eligible or will be eligible for aid, based on final acceptance. Forty-seven Michigan counties have been declared disaster counties or are adjacent to disaster counties.

"A very unofficial estimate is that in Michigan 5000 to 6000 farmers will be eligible for assistance," said Al Almy, director of public affairs for the Michigan Farm Bureau. "The estimate came from estimating the number of farms in the 30 counties designated disaster areas, looking at the several inches of rainfall in those counties and trying to come up with the impact on each special commodity."

Damage to sugar beets, vegetables, potatoes and dry beans grown in Michigan was estimated at $250,000,000 two weeks ago and that amount has risen since, Almy said. Soybean and potato losses are not yet well known.

Almy thought the Jan. 31, 1987, aid application deadline was enough time for farmers to determine the extent of their damage.

"In the case of some commodities, such as potatoes, farmers may go out and dig potatoes now and they may appear okay but they may have excess moisture," Almy said. "In mid-winter the potatoes out in storage may rot."

PIK certificates can be redeemed for commodities such as corn and wheat, used as payment on an outstanding debt or sold to a commodity trader for cash.

According to Traxler, local offices of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) will coordinate the disaster payment program.

The section of the spending bill President Reagan signed dealing with aid to farmers is called the Conference Agreement on Disaster Assistance. One aspect of the Conference Agreement provides disaster payments to farmers.

Payment in kind (PIK) certificates from the Commodity Credit Corporation will be provided for both program and nonprogram crops. Farmers who can demonstrate they lost more than 50 percent of any crop, compared to their normal annual production, will be eligible for disaster payment for that portion of loss in excess of 50 percent.

For example, if a farmer loses 70 percent of his crop, he will be able to get disaster payments for 20 percent of his crop (70 percent - 50 percent = 20 percent). Eligibility is not based on having more than a 50 percent loss on the entire farm.

The payment rate for price supported crops will be the price support rate for that crop.

For nonprogram crops, the payment rate will be based upon the average market price for that commodity. That price will be multiplied by the amount of lost production. The expected production minus the actual harvest determines the lost production.

Expected production will be determined by multiplying acres planted by the appropriate yield figure for that commodity. County average yield data will be used for nonprogram crops if historic yield data cannot be established for the farm. Program crops will use program payment yield data.

The maximum amount a producer can receive is the lesser of coverage of 50 percent of the total crop if the whole crop is lost, or $100,000 in PIK certificates. The amount of money received from a combination of crop insurance and PIK certificates cannot exceed 100 percent of actual loss.

Regulations for this program must be issued no later than 30 days after the President signed the Continuing Resolution into law (Nov. 17). Disaster payments must be made to farmers within 45 days of the date on which they apply. All applications must be filed by Jan. 31, 1987.

Another aspect of the Conference Agreement is loan provisions.

Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) loan assistance has been liberalized. FmHA now has greater latitude in reviewing financial assistance applications.

OK 6 extra mills at O-G

The Owen-Gage School District escaped what school Supt. Harley Kirby described as potential "devastation" Monday when voters approved the district's request for a one-year, 6-mill increase on the third try in four months.

An exuberant Kirby Tuesday morning announced the special election results and said the district's total operating millage will be reduced by 2 mills for one year due to a change in payment for debt. Total millage facing taxpayers will increase 4 mills. He also lauded voters for participating, whether they voted "yes" or "no."

"It passed by 96 votes and we had 125 more 'yes' votes than we had the last time," Kirby said. "That's what it takes—full commitment in voting by everyone." He added, "And we appreciate the 'no' votes too because it tells us something."

A total of 616 persons voted in the election which saw 356 "yes" votes and 260 "no" votes. Some 41 percent of the registered voters took part in the election.

According to Kirby, the approved increase means that the district, through a resolution of the Board of Education, can transfer money owed to the 1967 debt retirement fund, which will be paid off this year, into a 1976 debt retirement fund. The money, which is owed by the general fund, totals some $24,000, the superintendent said, adding that the millage reduction will be for this year only.

Kirby said he believes the successful millage campaign is attributable to a "total effort" by students, staff, administrators and the community. "Now, I think we can move ahead," he said.

Voters defeated the proposal, which will raise about $240,000, by 44 votes when it was first made in June, and then again by 4 votes in August. The money will be used entirely for school operations, Kirby said.

The district currently is operating on 9.25 allocated mills, 9.15 extra-voted mills, 2.7 mills for the 1976 debt retirement fund and .7 of a mill for the 1967 debt retirement fund. Two of the 2.7 mills for the 1976 debt will be dropped for one year only, Kirby said, while the .7 of a mill in the 1967 debt will be paid off this year.

Bomb threat hassles Caro school, plant

A rash of bomb threats have plagued Walbro Corporation and schools in Caro.

Caro High School secretary Sandra Frazee received a phone call at the high school announcing a bomb threat to the high school and the Tuscola Intermediate Skill Center.

Caro police went to the high school while firemen went to the Skill Center with Caro police.

Skill Center kids were held on buses until the school was searched. The rooms were checked by staff and the roof was checked.

Lockers were checked and the rooms were again checked by the staff. Children were then allowed in.

The Skill Center had an earlier bomb threat Sept. 7. The school was evacuated and the custodians searched it. The Caro Fire Department also searched the school and afternoon classes were suspended.

Dennis Nye at the Walbro plant on Columbia Street in Caro reported a person called and stated there was a bomb at the Caro plant Oct. 1.

Walbro has received more than one bomb threat and Clark Searle, vice-president of Automotive Products Group, Caro, said precautionary measures are being taken.

The couple requests no gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Williams

Sherry Hillaker and Gregory Williams were married Aug. 16 at the First Baptist Church in Cass City. Rev. John Wood and Rev. Lee Taylor, the bride's brother-in-law, officiated at the candlelight double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Russell and Elaine Hillaker of Cass City. The groom is the son of Vance and Kay Williams of Pontiac.

Musical selections included "Sunrise, Sunset," "Each For The Other," "That's the Way," and "Woman's Prayer."

Soloists were Julie Powers of Lansing, the bride's cousin, Lori Puskas and Loraine Enos. Michelle Jones of Cass City, the bride's friend, attended the guest book. Joan Merchant of Cass City was organist.

The bride wore a gown of white allover lace. It had a sweetheart neckline with pearl accents and Venice lace on the bodice. It featured puff sleeves and dropped basque waist. The back of the dress had a semi-V which led into a chapel train. To complement her attire, the bride wore a headpiece wreath of pearl spray with crystal loops. It featured a two-tier, waltz-length veil with a rolled edge.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of pale pink pearl carnations with white daisies, stephanotis and baby's breath. It featured streamers of picot ribbons.

The groom wore a white tuxedo with matching pleated pants, tie and cummerbund.

Karen Ouvry of Cass City, the bride's sister, was matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Kathy Taylor of Whitmore Lake, sister-in-law of the bride; Julie Bryant of Clearwater, FL, the groom's sister, and Debra Green of Pontiac, the groom's sister.

Bridesmaids wore pink tea-length gowns of scalloped polyester lace over a slip of gleaming satin. The waist featured a satin cummerbund with a soft back bow. The bridesmaids carried arm bouquets of pink carnations with baby's breath, tree ferns and cascades of mauve and pink ribbons.

Greg Bronkema of Chicago, IL, the groom's friend, was best man.

Groomsman were David Orr of Grand Rapids, the groom's friend, and Jack and Jim Hillaker of Cass City, the bride's brothers.

Groomsman wore mauve tuxedos and white pleated pants with matching cummerbund and tie sets.

Brooke Ouvry of Cass City, the bride's niece, was flower girl. She wore a white full-length sheer dress with taffeta lining.

Ring bearer was Joshua Taylor of Whitmore Lake, the bride's nephew.

Candle lighters were Jandi and Jodi Hillaker of Cass City, the bride's nieces. They wore pink eyelet dresses featuring a dropped waist tied with a white satin ribbon.

Their escorts were Nathaniel and Jeremy Taylor of Whitmore Lake, the bride's nephews. They wore gray tweed look double-breasted suits.

Ushers were Ron Ouvry of Cass City, the bride's brother-in-law, and David Powers of Lansing, the groom's friend.

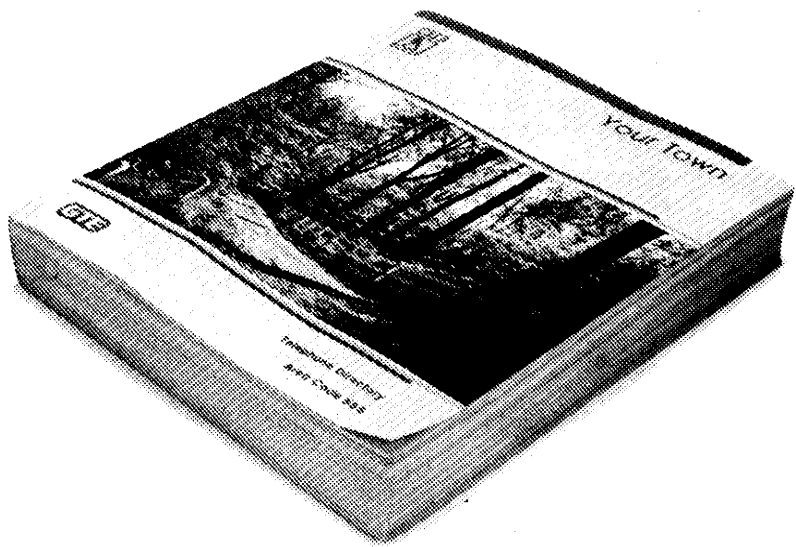

The bride's mother wore a mauve street-length dress of soft polyester pongee with a pleated front. The groom's mother wore a cream-colored street length dress of sheer georgette.

Following the ceremony, a buffet dinner was served for 300 persons at the Novesta Church of Christ Fellowship Hall.

After a week's honeymoon in northern Michigan, the couple will reside in Livonia.

One-room school days
By Melva Gunther

The one-room school is alive and well!

A newspaper article stating that 8 one-room schools are still operating in Huron County brought a flood of memories of the old Brown School.

For 6 years I walked over 2 miles to that august center of learning. (Unlike the claims of a friend, it wasn't "uphill both ways.") The building bears little resemblance today, having been converted into a home.

I had only one teacher at Brown School. She taught all 8 grades plus the country school version of kindergarten. And she taught more than reading, writing and arithmetic.

We had art classes, music lessons and field trips. We even published a school paper occasionally.

Highlight of the year, though, was the Christmas program. It was a really big production with plays, songs, recitations, etc. Everybody had a part.

Weeks before the big event, most of the school day was spent rehearsing. Of course, we had to be on top of our school work or there would be no program.

Guess who was producer, director, costume designer, prompter, etc., etc. The same one who served as janitor, nurse, counselor, chief cook, softball umpire and disciplinarian.

When I think of all the jobs she did well, I have to wonder if she was more than human.

Some of the 8th grade boys, who towered over the teacher, could have intimidated and tried the patience of the saintliest instructor.

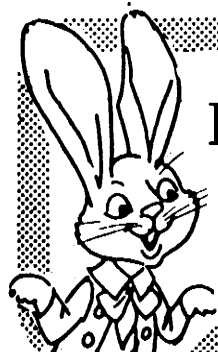

One fellow came close to driving her over the edge. I can remember her chasing him around the school yard. When she'd almost caught him, he ran up the teeter-totter and down the other side.

His brother was the school clown, regularly disrupting whatever was in progress. One of his favorite pastimes was the frequent use of the hand signal familiar to all one-room school pupils. When the teacher, doubting his sincerity, chose to ignore him, he jumped up and down, loudly proclaiming that he had to "water his lilacs," which regaled the student body.

Still, we learned. Good teachers, like parents, are only truly appreciated in retrospect, and now I marvel at her devotion and perseverance.

I've often thought of writing a letter of appreciation, but have never got around to it. So if anyone reading this should see Alice Anthes Beecher, would you pass it along?

I think she'd be pleased to know that some dedicated educators, talented musicians and successful business and professional people owe a lot to the one-room school she commanded.

Restaurant report:

Let's talk about hamburg joints this week. Not the big chains. Two with distinctive names that drew me in recently.

The first is Fuddruckers. It's a cafeteria style with a limited sandwich menu. You put on the toppings from a condiment bar that has "everything."

The second is Haloburgers. Both concerns have several outlets, Haloburger in Flint and Fuddruckers in Detroit.

The hamburgers are acceptable and it's fun to try something different, but the better values are with the big chains.

The media is making a big deal out of Bo Schembechler's passing the 200 win mark.

It sparked a research by a former Cass City coach who is near that mark. Art Paddy who was the football, basketball, baseball and track coach in the '50's called Dick Wallace to get his total while coaching here.

Did he make the grade? Not quite, Wallace reports, but there's still hope. Paddy is retired from teaching, but not coaching, and could pass the 200 win mark before he calls it quits. Right now his wins are in the mid-90's.

LIONS CLUB MEMBER Al Witherspoon accompanied flood victim Barbara Crickon to the Cass City IGA store last week for an $80 shopping trip which was funded by the club to replace groceries lost in last month's flooding.

Cass City Lions Club helps flood victims

Area victims of the heaviest rains and flooding in memory are beginning to discover that relief, financial or otherwise, can come in a variety of ways.

For Cass City residents Thomas and Barbara Crickon, relief came last week in the form of a helping hand from the local Lions Club, which has replaced a portion of some $200 in groceries lost when the Crickons' home on Cemetery Road became an extension of the rapidly-rising Cass River Sept. 11.

Mrs. Crickon described her ordeal while shopping on a dismal, rainy morning last week at the Cass City IGA Store—she was accompanied by Lions Club member Al Witherspoon, who previously had handed her a check for $80 to buy groceries. The money came from a special Lions Club disaster relief program.

"I lost most of the food that I had in my freezers; meats that I had just done last month," Mrs. Crickon explained. "There was corn and fresh peaches."

"I had never experienced anything like that in my entire life," she continued, adding that a sofa bed was also lost and that both freezers, a refrigerator, stove, washer and dryer all required servicing because of water damage. The brown, 2-story home which she and her husband have rented for the past 6 years also has been badly damaged. "The floors are all warped and they're going to have to redo the walls," Mrs. Crickon said. The couple, who have 3 grown children, have since moved to another house at 6241 Garfield St.

"I'm just grateful for the people who have helped us out. It's just wonderful. I'm very appreciative of the (Lions Club) gesture," Mrs. Crickon said.

Witherspoon, a 21-year member and former president of the Lions Club, said the gift to the Crickons was made available through a $5,000 grant from the Lions Clubs International Foundation to the area district covering some 50 clubs in Tuscola, Genesee, Bay and Saginaw counties. The money has been earmarked for purchasing food, clothing, bedding and/or medicine, he said.

The Crickons were the only family to apply for the disaster relief in the Cass City area, Witherspoon said, adding that the majority of funds probably will go to harder hit areas such as Vassar, where 110 applications have been filed.

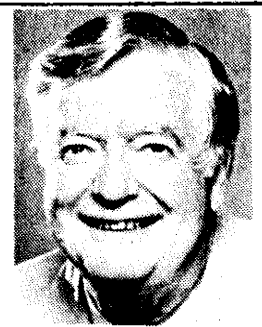

"It'll help. It's not much, but it will provide some immediate relief," Witherspoon commented. "It means a lot to people."

Following the brief shopping trip last week, Mrs. Crickon received another pleasant surprise when she arrived at a check-out lane—IGA officials gave the Cass City resident a 10 percent discount and even covered a small portion of the bill. "I don't know what the actual bill came to, but it was a little over $80," she said.

"If It Fitz..."

A sitter runs

By Jim Fitzgerald

When I'm out playing with Emily, I often hope no one is watching us. Never more so than on her fifth birthday, when I ran for her life and thought I'd lose mine.

I don't mean to be dramatic, but I'm talking real running here. I don't mean the slow-slow jogging often seen on city sidewalks, where the participants take three jogs without moving their pants. I mean all-out full speed, down the middle of a road, by the world's champion sitter. It had probably been 40 years since I moved that swiftly that far.

It all began with Emily's request that I go for a walk with her, to look around the neighborhood into which her family had moved the day before. On the way through the garage, she grabbed a bicycle. I thought it was her little two-wheeler with a training wheel attached.

But I soon discovered it was her cousin's two-wheeler — only two. I reminded Emily that she didn't know how to ride a two-wheeler, which she conceded. "You can hold me up," she said.

OK. I remembered that 23 years earlier, in that same neighborhood, I'd taught Emily's mother, Ferd, how to ride a two-wheeler by jogging alongside, ever ready to prevent her from falling. But Ferd had been seven years old. I was sure it wouldn't take long to persuade a brand new five-year-old that it would be more comfortable to walk, or retreat to the training-wheel bike, than to make old Grandpa hold her up wobbly on the two-wheeler.

It appeared, however, that Emily was doing a fairly good job of holding her balance. To check, I removed my hand from the bike seat for a second. "By golly, you're almost doing it, Emily," I said. "You're really getting to be a big girl. I'll bet in a few weeks your dad will teach you how to ride this thing."

At that point, the big girl began to pull away from me, and I increased my pace from jogging to practically running. "Slow down, Emily," I gasped. "Quit pumping. Pump backwards. Stop."

She didn't know how to do any of those things. All she knew how to do was keep pumping forward, faster and faster. I thought of the pilot who flew beautifully but had no idea how to land the plane. I was getting worried.

Emily was laughing uproariously. She knew her Grandpa wouldn't let anything bad happen to her. She didn't realize how many years of rigorous training it took for me to become the world's champion sitter. I didn't think I could catch up with the bike, which was now going downhill.

There was no traffic on the quiet street, so there was no danger of a major calamity. But also there were no brave passengers aboard Emily's bike; no James Brolin who'd flown bombers in World War II and who, after he'd sobered up and made peace with his three ex-wives sitting behind him, could take over the controls while the pilot — Charlton Heston — was out on the right wing trading an oxygen mask for the favors of a flight attendant whom he'd mistaken for a stewardess.

That bike had to topple sometime, and if I weren't there to catch it, I'd have to explain Emily's bloodied knee or broken arm to her grandmother, who has always insisted that so much championship sitting would get me in trouble. It was this thought that inspired me to recall how I ran when I was a boy playing football. I pumped my arms and extended my legs. And I finally pulled Emily off that lousy bike.

Emily said she wanted to keep riding. I didn't say anything. Emily ran in the house and told everyone to come out and watch Grandpa breathe funny. I still couldn't say anything. I used sign language to indicate I'd be all right in a few months if people would just quit trying to pick me up off the road.

Eventually I went inside, where Emily's nine-month-old sister was learning to crawl. I crawled alongside her. Before you can run, you have to crawl.

The Haire Net

From the corner of Main and Oak, a clear view of the affairs of the day. The truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

What's Elkland township up to with the appointment of Anton Peters as zoning administrator?

It looks as if they will try to clean up the territory a little. Hopefully, it will be successful. If it is, Peters will earn his $500 plus commissions. Keeping the township beautiful has been tried before without notable results.

Will the governor's plan for interest free loans save the family farm?

Most qualified observers feel that it will really help the farmer who is in fairly good economic shape, but will be of little use to the producer on the verge of bankruptcy. To get the loan, the farmer must show that he has equity to back it up. If the farmer has it, experts say, he could survive without it. It's a case of the rich getting richer and the poor leaving the farm.

Didn't you say before the football season that a break-even record for the Cass City Red Hawks would be a satisfactory year?

I don't know whether or not I said it, but I did think it. But what do I know? I figured Michigan State had a chance against the University of Michigan. If you didn't see the games, it's likely that you don't know how well the Hawks have performed this season. With a little luck they could have been looking forward to the game this Friday at Lakers undefeated instead of with 2 losses.

Are there any bright spots in the economy for the Cass City area?

Yes, and this is not Chamber of Commerce propaganda. House sales in town are in the midst of a mini boom. After a year or so of no action, homes have been changing hands in all price ranges.

With the switching of daylight savings time to eastern standard time, isn't it about time for your usual dissertation about it?

NOTICE

The week of October 19-25, 1986, has been designated by Governor Blanchard and the State Legislature as Michigan's Third Annual Water Quality Awareness Week. To celebrate this, tours are planned during this week at wastewater treatment plants throughout Michigan.

This event is sponsored by the Michigan Water Pollution Control Association and is designated to inform the public of the role the local wastewater treatment plant plays in protecting Michigan's water resources.

The Village of Cass City's Wastewater Treatment Plant is participating in the program. Students, organizations, civic groups and all interested individuals are invited to tour the facility. Tours are scheduled for 10:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m. Monday through Friday the week of October 20.

For more information, contact Rick Mohr at the Wastewater Treatment Plant by calling 872-3153.

Area twins graduate from Air Force basic training

The twin daughters of a Snover area couple have graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, according to the Army and Air Force Hometown News service.

Airmen Mabel R. and Rhoda M. Fleming recently finished 6 weeks of training which included studying the Air Force mission, organization and customs, and receiving special training in human relations. Both are now studying police security in technical school at the Lackland base.

The daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Fleming, 4285 Frieburg Rd., Rhoda and Mabel are 1986 graduates of Sandusky High School. They joined the Air Force July 22.

According to Mrs. Fleming, Mabel's first assignment will be at K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base south of Marquette, where she will join her brother, Staff Sgt. Harvey J. Fleming, who is in his seventh year in the service as a security police officer. Rhoda, meanwhile, will be going to an Air Force Base in Whiteman, Mo.

Surplus food distribution set at 3 area locations

The Human Development Commission will hold a surplus food distribution Nov. 6 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Cass City Village Park, the Caro Fairgrounds in Caro and at the Ivan Middleton Hall at the fairgrounds in Vassar.

In order to receive the food, persons must report to a distribution site in person and present a Surplus Commodity Registration Card. Persons unable physically to go to a distribution center, however, may have someone pick up their surplus commodities if the registration card is shown.

Due to the volume of commodities, which may include cheese, butter, flour, rice, cornmeal, dried milk and/or honey, individuals are urged to bring cardboard boxes to transport their food.

The surplus commodities have been made available to the Human Development Commission, the local community action agency covering Huron, Sanilac, Lapeer and Tuscola counties, by the federal government and is intended for personal consumption eligible low-income families.

Further information on the program is available by contacting the commission in Caro at 673-4121.

Snover woman on national committee

She may have been born in Detroit, but she certainly knows agriculture.

With 24 years of Farm Bureau service backing her, Faye Adam of Snover was appointed to The Farm Income Study Committee, a national committee made up of 22 Farm Bureau members from different states.

American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF) made increasing net farm income its main goal at January's national meeting. In July, Adam learned she was appointed to the committee.

Adam said she was excited when she found out.

"Only two of us are not state (Farm Bureau) presidents or staff members," Adam said. "I'm one of two women on the committee."

When asked how she felt about being one of two women on the committee, Adam said she was used to that ratio because of the number of times she's been in a leadership position among men.

Of the 24 years she and her husband Wayne have been involved in Farm Bureau, Adam has held leadership positions for 20 years. She chaired the State Women's Committee for three years, was on the Michigan Farm Bureau's Board of Directors from 1983-85, was chairperson of the State Policy Development Committee, served as a delegate to national meetings, chaired other committees and remains active in Sanilac County's Farm Bureau.

"We think of Farm Bureau as a grass roots organization; that's why we're so involved," Adam said. "Unlike other organizations where the decisions are made at the top and filter down, at Farm Bureau decisions start at the county level and go up."

Stacked neatly underneath the TV in the Adams' home are recent Farm Journal issues. Outside, two yellowing cornfields surround the house, even in front. Only a mailbox and telephone pole mark the long stretch of driveway leading to the house.

As entrenched in the physical aspects of her family's farm as she is in the inner workings of Farm Bureau, Adam said she used to spend two and a half weeks every month preparing for meetings. Now she spends about five days a month in preparation for meetings.

Adam works on the farm output subcommittee, which studies commodity production and consumption trends, domestic and foreign markets, population growth and shifts, agribusiness support systems and impediments to the market.

The other subcommittees study farm input, international trade areas, research and development and national economic policy and farm policy.

"None of us has the magic answer or a magic number to find the answer," Adam said. "We hope we can come up with many ideas. We're looking at ideas to improve net farm income, but also we're looking at ideas the organization has not dealt with in the past, but which could be a help to the membership."

Improving net farm income means a lot more than the increasing money farmers get from what they produce, Adam emphasized. It means changing old ways to become more efficient, finding new ways to cut costs and trying new management ideas.

"The trend has been to overproduce," Adam pointed out. "But we're going to have to switch (from overproducing) to the utilization and development of new uses for what we have."

Adam gave an example of the way dietary changes affect production.

"The consumer no longer buys fat on his meat," Adam said. "If we continue to sell red meat, we'll have to provide the consumer with leaner meat. They don't want to bring it home and trim off fat."

One way crop farmers can improve their efficiency is to have their soil tested. Instead of assuming a field needs to be fertilized, a soil test tells a farmer how much fertilizer the field needs, saving the farmer fertilizer costs.

Adam also encouraged farmers to do a better job marketing their products. Both she and her husband bought into the Marlette Livestock Auction Company where Wayne is General Manager.

The Adams have three grown children. They raise beef and farm alfalfa and corn. Faye was involved in 4-H for 19 years. She also works part-time as dental assistant at Dr. Jackson's office in Marlette.

The committee intends to complete its study by mid-summer 1987, however, if they come up with recommendations before then, they will be presented at the delegates' national meeting this January.

Recommendations from the study committee will go to the AFBF Board of Directors. Any recommendation that doesn't agree with current policy will have to go to the members for their consideration, Adam said.

At the next committee meeting, the Farm Bureau staff will have resource material and speakers for the committee members. The committee will also look at studies conducted in various states.

One of the difficult things about being on the committee is putting the entire problem in perspective.

"We have to look at what's best for U.S. agriculture," Adam said. "The problems in Michigan are various—we're so diversified. While in Florida, (for example) most farmers grow citrus fruit. We are a general farm organization and that's our purpose, to deal with agriculture in general—not just one commodity."

FAYE ADAM of Snover looks over one of two substantial ring binders of Farm Bureau information. "If there's one thing Farm Bureau does," said Adam, "it gives you mounds and mounds of information." Adam was appointed to a national committee to study ways to increase net farm income in July.

Cass City man arrested

A 28-year-old Cass City man was arrested early Friday morning for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, according to Cass City Police reports.

Charles B. Woodruff II, 2450 Crawford Rd., was arrested at approximately 1:40 a.m. after being stopped on Cemetery Road at Elmwood Road. The report stated that officers observed Woodruff's 1981 Pontiac weaving and crossing over the road center line 4 times in one mile. He failed a sobriety test, the report said.

Also reported Friday was damage to the windshield of a car owned by Dallas D. Rabideau, 6432 Garfield Ave., Cass City. Rabideau stated that the damage, possibly caused by someone striking the windshield with a beer bottle, occurred sometime between 7:30 p.m. and 9:20 p.m. The 1978 Dodge was legally parked in front of Rabideau's home, the report stated.

Deer cause accidents

Two car-deer mishaps and a 2-car fender-bender accident were reported to the Cass City Police Department during the past week.

A car driven by a 16-year-old Cass City youth sustained slight damage

Thursday morning when the youth failed to yield at the intersection of Third and West streets and was struck by another vehicle.

The youth was going east on Third Street and the second vehicle was headed north on West Street when the incident, which resulted in no citations, occurred. Information on the second car and its driver were not available.

George E. Pettinger, 175 Bay City-Forestville Rd., reported slight damage Thursday when he hit a deer on Cass City Road about 1/2 mile west of Wheeler Road. The deer, which got up and ran off, was headed north prior to the accident.

A car-deer accident also was reported by Harold D. Sweeney, 6206 Milligan Rd. Sweeney was going east on M-81 Monday at 7 a.m. when the deer ran into his car about 1/4 mile east of Schwegler Road, the report stated.

WOMEN'S SOCIETY MEETS

St. Agatha Women's Society met Tuesday evening, Oct. 14, in the church hall with 25 members attending. President Arlene Enderle opened the meeting as the group sang "The Prayer of St. Francis." The up-coming League of Catholic Women's meeting, repair of the hall carpet and the purchase of an appliance for Parish House was discussed.

Mrs. Enderle introduced a guest demonstrator, Mrs. Ann Hunter of Pinconning, and she showed her appliqued sweatshirts and other crafts. Hostesses served dessert and coffee.

Callers during last week at the home of Ila and Leo Seurnyck were Raymond and Bill Dewicki of Anchorville, brothers of Mrs. Norman (Delores) Pine.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Bridson of Bad Axe, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Comment and Miss Mary O'Rourke left Thursday and spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Mike Comment and Matthew of Export, Pa.

The monthly breakfast Friday at Frances and Grady's Village Coffee Shop was a farewell get-together for Les and Milly

Bevy of roebucks

A group of roebucks is called a bevy according to International Wildlife magazine. The term may stem from the Old French beverage -- a drinking session, since roes are frequently seen together at a watering place. Speaking of water, a group of ducks is called a paddling when on water, but on land or in the air they're simply a flock.

Munro and Lloyd and Wilma Finkbeiner. The couples left Saturday morning for their winter homes in Lakeland, Fla.

Dinner guests Saturday of Mrs. Gerry Carolan were her son, Gary Carolan of Marlette, and his fiancée, Mary Gilkerson, also of Marlette. The couple will be wed Nov. 1.

WCTU meets with Hazel Moore

The WCTU met Oct. 17 at the home of Hazel Moore. Five members answered roll call with a scripture verse. Due to the absence of the president, Martha Putnam, Harriet Rayl was in charge of the meeting. Georgia Thompson led prayer. Members gave the name of a hymn and why it was their favorite. Mildred Trisch gave the secretary's report.

The theme of the lesson, given by Mrs. Rayl, was

"Power to understand." She pointed out that as witnesses for Christ we are watched at all times by friends and our children. The meeting closed with a prayer session. Lunch was served by Mrs. Moore.

Chopin is reported to have worn a beard on only one side of his face. "It doesn't matter," he is supposed to have said, "the audience only sees my right side."

From the files of the Chronicle

FIVE YEARS AGO

Sunday the Gagetown United Methodist church celebrated their redecorating note retirement. Trustees Amasa Anthes Jr., Leslie Beach, Patty Rayl, Kerry McKellar, Vernita Rayl, Jack Laurie, Howard Muntz and Earl Rayl, and the church treasurer, Janet Muntz, participated in the burning of a facsimile of the original Port Huron District Board of Missions loan agreement.

Hunting was difficult on opening day Tuesday but Gerald Stephane and his brother, Joe, managed to get a pheasant and a pat hunting three miles south of Cass City Road on Wheeler Road. They reported seeing only one other group of hunters all day.

There are a lot of cozy feet at Provincial House, thanks to Beatrice Soldon. The Kelly Road, Cass City, resident has taken on the job of single-handedly crocheting slippers for residents of the care facility who need them. Dec. 15 of last year, she delivered 88 pair. Last Thursday, she brought 72 more.

Mrs. Stanley Morell had with her for the weekend, two of her sisters, Mrs. Marian McIntosh of Bay City and Mrs. Vera Bensinger of Uby.

TEN YEARS AGO

Robert Wischmeyer, manager of the Wickes Agriculture elevator in Cass City, has announced that the company plans to dismantle the three grain dryers presently operated at the elevators and to replace them with a single new dryer.

The Shabbona Extension Group will meet Monday evening with Mrs. Gordon Ferguson. The lesson on "Stress" will be given by Miss Marie Meredith and Mrs. Ryerson Putterbaugh.

Cass City's golf team qualified for the Michigan High School State tournament Saturday by finishing third in the Regional tournament held last Saturday at Vassar. The team posted the following scores: Jeff Prieskorn, 83; Jim Molnar, 85; Rod Wright, 88; Mike Richards, 94.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Agar had as Sunday guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Nicol of Marlette and Mrs. Pearl Hartwick.

25 YEARS AGO

Quick action by Elkland township firemen kept a faulty furnace fire from developing into a disaster Sunday morning at the home of Howard Mohme on Leslie. According to a report from Fire Chief Al Avery, a control stuck in a gas furnace.

A Silver Beaver Award citation presented to Horace Bulen, Cass City businessman, at Bay City

Consistory Thursday night reads in part, "For Distinguished Service to Boyhood." The award is the highest the Saginaw Bay Area Council can give.

The registered Holstein herd of Clarence Merchant of Cass City topped the list of 37 herds which produced 30 pounds or more butterfat. Standing in second place in this class is the Holstein and Jersey herd of Dan Lukasavitz of Cass City.

Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Murray and family of Williamston and Mrs. Irvin Kritzman and children of Kawkawlin were week-end guests in the Howard Loomis home.

35 YEARS AGO

Presiding over the Cass City High School homecoming festivities Friday night at the football game against Caro will be Joan Green, this year's queen. Members of her court are Bonnie Benkelman and Gail Lester.

Announcement was made this week of the sale of Woolner's General Store in Decker to Mr. Eldon Sharrard. Mr. Sharrard comes to the store from a farm near Decker and is well-known in the Cass City area.

Twenty-six enjoyed a chicken and pheasant supper when the Novesta Farmers' Club met with Mr. and Mrs. Harley Kelley. Rev. Edith Smith of the DeFord Methodist Church, spoke to the group. Mrs. William D'Arcy gave a reading, Hazel Little sang and Marjorie Kelley gave a piano solo.

Pvt. Alfred G. Cooklin is home on a 10-day leave from Fort Riley, Kansas, to help harvest his crops if weather permits.

train volunteers

A Multiple Sclerosis "Peer Support Line" is being formed on the local level. Training programs for volunteers are set for Nov. 3 and 5 at St. Mary's Hospital, Saginaw.

The training seminars are sponsored by the Saginaw Valley Branch of the Multiple Sclerosis Society. According to Mary A. Moser, Patient Services Chairman for the Saginaw Valley chapter, the MS Society is looking for people with MS who would be willing to make phone calls on a regular basis to others who have MS. The caller will remain anonymous, she adds, noting it is not a crisis hotline but a support system for those with MS.

The Peer Support Line will be available to those who desire this service. In addition, volunteer callers will make the in-home contacts according to their own schedules.

Training sessions will take place from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in Classroom B at St. Mary's Hospital.

For more information, contact Mary Moser at (517) 894-3977 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. or (517) 777-5189 after 6 p.m.

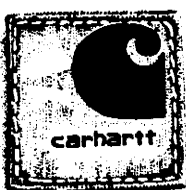

Special services at Caro church

The Caro Church of the Nazarene, corner of Purdy and Dixon Rds., will have special services Wednesday evening, Oct. 29, through Sunday evening, Nov. 2. Through the week the services will be at 7:00 p.m. Sunday, the services are at 10:50 a.m. and 6:00 p.m.

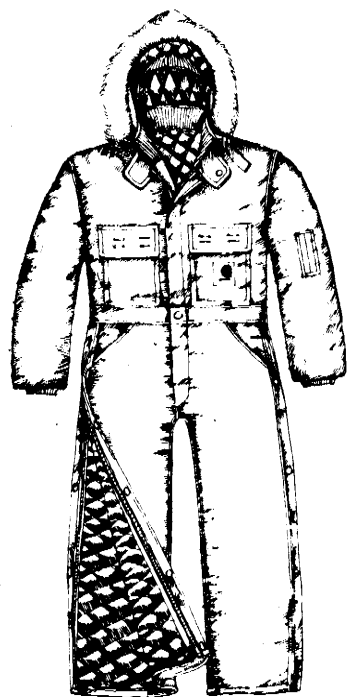

The special workers are Dr. Richard L. Parrott and Marla Boicourt. Dr. Parrott is the pastor of Detroit First Church of the Nazarene. Marla Boicourt is an accomplished singer and pianist and has traveled throughout the United States since 1979 as a full-time song evangelist. Pastor G.M. Bright invites you to take part in this series of services.

A good wetting now and then is said to prevent basketware from becoming brittle.

FEW PEOPLE VISITED the Cass City Wastewater Treatment Plant early this week for the 3rd annual Water Quality Awareness Week tours which will continue through Friday. But plant manager Rick Mohr expected some 250 students to visit later in the week.

Sewage plant tours set

The Cass City Wastewater Treatment Plant is among several such plants in Michigan offering tours this week in celebration of the state's 3rd annual Water Quality Awareness Week.

Persons interested in touring the local plant may do so through Friday, with daily 1-hour tours being held at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The plant is located just east of the Doerr Road/Elmwood Road intersection.

Water Quality Awareness Week, officially designated by Gov. James Blanchard and the state legislature, is sponsored by the Michigan Water Pollution Control Association. The purpose of the event is to inform the public about the role of the local treatment plant in protecting Michigan's water resources.

Persons who tour the Cass City wastewater treatment plant will get a first-hand look at the process involved in converting raw sewage into safe, reusable water again, according to plant manager Rick Mohr.

Raw sewage, Mohr said, undergoes a 5-phase treatment process before being released in the Cass River. The first stage, called pretreatment, includes breaking up large pieces of matter and removing grit, Mohr said. Next is primary treatment when approximately 65 percent of all the material in the sewage is removed. The third step is secondary treatment, Mohr explained, adding that bacteria are used to remove about 30 percent of the remaining 35 percent of sewage, which in this stage is a fine, suspended material. Tertiary treatment is the 4th step and includes the use of sand filters to strain out remaining particles. Finally, the water is disinfected with chlorine.

Mohr noted that roughly 2,000 gallons of sludge is collected each day through the treatment process. Some 500 gallons of the raw sludge, after being broken down, is stored by the plant for use as fertilizer, while the remaining 1,500 gallons of liquid is retreated, he said.

The Cass City plant, which is designed to adequately handle one million gallons of effluent per day, has been put to the test with September's record rainfall, according to Mohr. Current daily flows are still heavy at 550,000 gallons, he said. "With present flows, it takes anywhere from 30 to 50 hours before it goes into the river," he said. "Anyone who would flush a toilet this morning—it would take 2 days to get into the river."

Construction of the $6,047 million plant, funded through federal and state grants, which covered about 80 percent of the total cost, and the remaining 20 percent from village funds, was completed in November, 1982. Operations began the following May.

2 mishaps reported

Michigan State Police reported two accidents during the last week.

Leonard J. Labod, 34, was westbound on Bay City-Forestville Road east of Bay Park Road Saturday when he came to a curve in the roadway and thought an eastbound vehicle at the stop sign on Bay Park Road was in his lane.

Labod hit his brakes, began to slide and lost control of the vehicle. He slid across the roadway, jumped the guard rail and landed upside down.

Brian W. Curl, 19, of 1950 French Road, Caro, had just turned south onto Colling Road from Fairgrove Road when a northbound beet truck passed him. A sugar beet fell from the truck and struck his windshield, breaking it.

The truck was driven by Franklin H. Koch, 50, of 4806 Risky Road, Gagetown.

County board considers proposed budget issues

County department heads met with the Board of Commissioners Tuesday, Oct. 14, to discuss the proposed 1987 budget.

Friend of the Court Director Kate Davis told the board she was reclassifying jobs for her staff, who have worked without a contract since June 30, 1985.

Commissioner Michael Green (District 5) wanted to know why Davis's workers were being reclassified. Green asked if more work would get done. Davis said no.

"To give them more money?" asked Green.

"I guess that's what I'm getting at," Davis replied.

Davis met with the personnel committee Thursday. Commissioner Donna Rayl (District 1) said Davis was concerned about not having enough office space and being understaffed.

Davis also presented the new job titles and classifications and the salary ranges for the classifications.

County Controller Michael Hoagland said the only two contracts yet to be settled are Friend of the Court workers and Unit Two Fraternal Order of Police.

Emergency Services Director Jim McCann asked the board for secretarial help.

"I think everyone is well aware we've got a county-wide emergency," McCann said. "Lots and lots of paperwork is always involved, nonetheless, if we don't file the necessary paperwork, we're not going to get it (aid). Basically I need some help."

McCann said he receives 50 to 75 phone calls a day plus people walking into the office for help with flood assistance. It's impossible to get anything done, McCann said.

"I've reduced my budget every year," McCann pointed out. "Of all the savings I've done over the years for the county, I think at this time I deserve some consideration."

The Veterans Services/Emergency Services office was allowed extra help three days a week. The commissioners tried to find part-time secretaries already working, whose extra hours working for McCann would not add up to full-time employment.

The board also discussed moving Emergency Services to the Health Department building. McCann said he had no objections to relocating Emergency Services or Veterans Services. If the Emergency Services are relocated, however, the county is liable to pay back the $150,000 the Federal government put into it, McCann said.

"We could provide a support staff to the Emergency Services office by considering relocating it to the Health Department and getting a pool of secretaries to provide ongoing assistance without additional cost to the county," County Controller Michael Hoagland said.

Drain Commissioner Stanley Henry asked for $313,483 for the 1987 Drains at Large budget. Last year's budget was $86,918.

Henry said he has eight contractors working on drains and three contractors working on disaster contracts. Eight drains will be ready to go next spring and six drain petitions have come in since the rain came, Henry said.

Cooperative Extension Agent Bill Bortel asked the board to reinstate $5000 for the Troubled Youth Program.

The program works through the school system, pairing troubled youths with older students trained to counsel them.

Commissioner Royce Russell (District 2) said the board hadn't heard too much about the program and didn't know if it had gotten off the ground. Commissioner Rayl (District 1) asked if the program could be incorporated as a 4-H program.

"We see this program as off and running," Bortel said. "The college (Michigan State University) doesn't fund a program like Troubled Youth. Even at the compromise of some dollars, I'd hate to see this drop off the end of the earth."

In other business, the board waived fees in the Register of Deeds office in regard to Small Business Administration loans.

From the General Fund Contingency $8976 went to wards two certified corrections officers hired at the Sheriff's Department.

$11,000 went to the Mental Health Services Board and $28,000 went to State Institutions to pay the county's share of housing mental patients.

NOMINATIONS

The Board of Commissioners filled vacancies on area boards at its Oct. 14 meeting.

Margie White was elected to the Tuscola County Library board. White, Ed Cole, and Richard Dehmel were elected to the Tuscola County Planning Commission.

Richard Donahue was elected to the Tuscola County Road Commission board. Elsie Hicks was re-elected to the County Building Authority.

J. Benson Collon, Don Dugger and Wilbur Partlo were elected to the Department of Public Works board.

Karen Parsell was elected to the Social Services Department board. Carol Ellsworth, Iris Tuckey, Arnold Krumnauer and Michael Green were elected to the Community Mental Health board.

Ed Scollon was elected to the Tuscola County Board of Health.

Royce Russell was elected to the Area Agency on Aging.

GENERAL ELECTION NOTICE

TO THE QUALIFIED ELECTORS:
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT A GENERAL ELECTION WILL BE HELD IN ALL PRECINCTS IN TUSCOLA COUNTY MICHIGAN ON

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1986

FOR THE PURPOSE OF ELECTING THE FOLLOWING OFFICERS, VIZ:

STATE: Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Attorney General,
2 members of the State Board of Education, 2 members of the Board of Regents University of Michigan,
2 members of Michigan State University Board of Trustees, 2 members of Wayne State University Board of Governors
CONGRESSIONAL: Representative in Congress
LEGISLATIVE: State Senator, State Representative
COUNTY: County Commissioner, County Prosecuting Attorney (to fill a vacancy)
And also any additional offices if any, for which partisan candidates are to be elected

AND ALSO TO VOTE ON THE FOLLOWING NON-PARTISAN OFFICERS, VIZ:

Two Justices of the Supreme Court, Judges of the Court of Appeals.
And any additional offices if any for which non-partisan candidates are to be elected.

AND ALSO TO VOTE ON THE FOLLOWING STATE PROPOSALS:

PROPOSAL A	PROPOSAL B	PROPOSAL C
A PROPOSAL TO ALLOW FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE LIBRARY OF MICHIGAN WITHIN THE STATE LEGISLATURE. The proposed amendment would: Provide clear authority under the State Constitution for the establishment of the Library of Michigan within the legislative branch of state government and require that the library be administered by laws enacted by the State Legislature. The library of Michigan was transferred by statute from the Department of Education to the legislative branch of state government in 1983.	A PROPOSAL ALLOWING FOR THE APPROVAL OR REJECTION OF ADMINISTRATIVE RULES BY THE STATE LEGISLATURE. The proposed amendment would: Authorize the State Legislature to enact laws which would permit the Legislature or a joint committee of the Legislature to approve or reject administrative rules proposed by state agencies. Administrative rules implement state law.	A PROPOSAL TO EXPAND THE AUTHORITY OF THE STATE OFFICERS COMPENSATION COMMISSION. The proposed amendment would: Transfer the authority to determine the salaries and expense allowances of the Secretary of State and the Attorney General from the State Legislature to the State Officers Compensation Commission. The Commission currently has the authority to determine the salaries and expense allowances of the State Legislature, the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor and the Justices of the Supreme Court. This proposal, if adopted, would go into effect on July 1, 1988.

AND ALSO TO VOTE ON THE FOLLOWING COUNTY AND LOCAL PROPOSALS:

Golfers finish near end of pack

Cass City golf coach Jim Fox has set his sights on next season following a poor showing by his squad in state competition Saturday in Parma.

Cass City placed among the bottom 2 teams in the 21-team state tournament, a disappointing finish after placing 2nd in regional competition a week earlier.

But in a season where practices were almost nonexistent and waders became standard equipment because of constant rains, the first year coach says his team played as well as it could under the circumstances.

"We didn't do very well, but they had a few obstacles," Fox said of Saturday's play. "They had homecoming and the homecoming dance the night before." The state tournament course was challenging, the coach remarked, adding it has 11 out-of-bounds in 18 holes. "It was a rough course."

Senior Dave Miller topped Red Hawk golfers with a score of 93, followed by Randy Guinther's 102, Rob Nicholas' 103 and Jason McCallum's 104.

Miller, a consistent performer throughout the season, Guinther and Nicholas will graduate, but sparkplug McCallum will be back to lead the team next year. Junior teammates Don Herron, Dave Burnette, Rusty Schneberger, Mike Scollon and Jurgen Roth also will return for what Fox expects to be an improved Cass City squad.

DENNIS ZIEMBA ran for 13 yards on this play. He had a good day on offense and a great day on defense as Cass City shutout Vassar, 18-0.

Surge of spirit lifts
Hawks over Vassar

Spirit has returned to Cass City High School. Not since the early 70's, school officials say, has the student body been behind their athletic teams as in the last two weeks preceding this year's homecoming.

This was obvious last Thursday when the Hawks, behind a blaring and at times nearly deafening crowd, recorded their first Thumb B Association win over Vassar in overtime 54-52. The Hawks will need more than a fired up cheering section Tuesday, Oct. 21, when they travel to tangle with league leader and heavily favored Lakers.

The Hawks finally played up to their potential, and put together their finest half of the season to capture a 29-20 half-time lead against the Vulcans.

In the opening quarter with the score tied at 4, Shannon McIntosh hit a jumper from the foul line to start the Hawks' first spurt. Chris Britt then put Cass City up by 4 when she scored off her own missed shot. Seconds later Britt swiped the ball away from the Vulcans and scored an uncontested layup and Cass City was up 10-4 with under 3 minutes to play in the first quarter.

The two teams then traded baskets before the Hawks' talented sophomore center, Darlene Monroe, recorded the quarter's final tallies on a nice offensive rebound to end the first quarter 14-8.

The Hawks continued to roll in the second quarter lengthening their lead to 10 points when Kelly Deering hit her second baseline jumper of the night, followed by a basket by Britt with 5:52 to play in the first half.

The Vulcans then made a run of their own, cutting the Hawk lead to 22-16 and loo-ing like they might take control of the game. But Monroe was fouled after scoring off a rebound, and when she completed the 3 point play it boosted the Hawk lead back to 9, 25-16, with just over a minute and a half before the intermission.

The Hawks missed 2 easy lay-ins to start the third period and were also guilty of two turnovers on their first 4 third quarter positions. This enabled the Vulcans to climb back into the game when Vassar's fiery guard, Beth Bergdolt, hit a short jumper to dwindle Cass City's 9 point half-time lead to a single bucket with 1:17 remaining to play in the third quarter.

Bergdolt was almost single-handedly responsible for the Vulcan comeback as she hit 2 baskets and set up 2 more after she had beat the Hawk defense, and hit teammates for easy baskets.

The Vulcans had a chance to take the lead for the first time since the game's opening moments when they found themselves on the foul line with 35 seconds left in the third quarter, but a missed one and one sent the two teams deadlocked at 35 to open the final period.

The Hawks were on top by 7 midway through the last period when Britt scored on a Hawk fast break and it looked like Cass City would record their first TBA win without much of a struggle. But a couple of missed shots let the Vulcans, who play a style similar to the USA Patriots in run and gun, start hitting from the outside. The Vulcans trailed 48-45 with 1:05 to play when Bergdolt was fouled and sent to the line. After converting both tosses, the Hawks came down the floor and missed a shot that could have put the game out of reach for the visitors.

With only 22 seconds remaining in the game, Vassar found Shannon McFarland wide open under the basket. But an alert Monroe made a game winning block when she hustled from the

Despite turnovers, Cass
City blanks Vassar Eagles

Regardless of what happens in the final Thumb B Association game Friday at Laker High, it has been a successful season for the Cass City Red Hawks.

Coach Don Schelke's charges have played better than most fans thought they could and never looked better than they did last Friday while completely dominating the visiting Vassar Vulcans. The score was 18-0 and the margin could have been greater if Cass City could eliminate turnovers at crucial times in the ball game.

It's a malady that has cost the Hawks dearly in the 2 games lost in the conference this year. If the Hawks are to pull a gigantic upset over the Lakers, eliminating turnovers will be absolutely essential. Judging by comparative scores, an upset could come about if the Lakers are caught complacent and Cass City plays its best game.

The Hawks scored the only touchdown of the first half with 10:26 left in the second quarter after having drives halted by fumbles with the ball on the Vassar 25 and 9-yard lines.

Cass City was forced to go just 29 yards for the score. An attempted punt by the Vulcans backfired when the ball sailed over the kicker's head and was downed on the Vassar 29. A running play took the ball to the 9 and the touchdown was netted when Gary Suzor found end Dan Ware in the end zone. A run for the extra points failed.

The next Hawk touchdown march started on the Vassar 45. Biting off yardage in big chunks, including a 15-yard smash through the center of the line by Ken Pasanski, Cass City moved to the one from where quarterback Jeremy Capps wedged over for the marker.

Cass City kept Vassar in poor field position and took over the ball on the Vassar 46 and drove for the final marker of the game late in the third quarter. This time Capps ran over from the 4-yard line on a quarterback option.

Offensively the Hawks continued the balanced attack displayed in recent games. Jeff Lefler ran for 84 yards in 13 carries. Dennis Ziemba, notched 83 yards in 15 tries and Ken Pasanski netted 66 yards in 12 attempts.

While the statistics were even on the offense, Ziemba was in a class by himself on defense. He contributed 12 assists and 3 solo tackles. The defensive line also helped keep the Vulcans in check as Rosenstangle, Dennis Hyatt and Chuck Merchant all contributed quarterback sacks.

Owen-Gage cagers split with Ubly, North Huron

The Owen-Gage Bulldogs split games with Ubly and North Huron last week, bouncing back from Tuesday's loss against Ubly to down North Central Thumb foe North Huron on Thursday. The Bulldogs will be favored in their next three outings, and if they can match their early season success with Port Hope, Kingston and Caseville, will be riding a mini winning streak into the Oct. 30 game with annual stalwart Deckerville.

The Bulldogs headed into the Oct. 21 encounter with Port Hope fresh off last Thursday's triumph of North Huron 48-37. Coach Dean Roller's squad jumped out from the start of this game and captured a 13-7 lead after one quarter. Susie Salcido was good for 7 markers in the opening quarter, as she registered 3 baskets from around the buffer zone, including a slightly three point play.

Both North Huron and Owen-Gage had trouble scoring in the second quarter, which accounted for the low score at the half. Although the Bulldogs only posted 22 first half points, they increased their lead to 9 by the intermission due mostly from some shabby shot selection on the part of Kinde. Coach Roller believed his defense contributed to Kinde's lack of offense. Good defense, a tight press and controlling the rebounds helped us to control the game, stated Roller.

The Bulldogs put the game away in the third quarter when they exploded for 20 points and ended the quarter leading 42-21. Bulldog center Jane Billy dished out most of the third quarter damage with 3 buckets and a 2-2 effort from the strip.

Roller went to his bench most of the 4th quarter and Kinde was able to make the final score respectable when they outscored the Bulldogs 16-6 to make the final margin 48-37.

The Bulldogs shot a blistering 12-16 from the foul line on the night, as Salcido and Billy made 6 tosses in 7 tries. The two were the only Bulldogs to reach double figures in the scoring department with 15 and 13 tallies respectively.

In an Oct. 14 contest with Ubly, an unbelievable start sealed the Bulldogs' fate. The Bulldogs went the entire opening quarter without notching a single point. "We were getting good shots, they just weren't falling," a confused Roller commented on his team's awkward start. Oddly enough, the Bearcats could only come up with two buckets of their own and the Bulldogs were down only by 4 to start the second quarter.

The two teams continued their baseball like scoring in the second quarter as the Bearcats went into the half leading 12-7. The third quarter saw both teams return to form as they each recorded 12 points to set the stage for a possible 4th quarter comeback by the Bulldogs.

The Bulldogs intensified their defense in the final quarter and only yielded two buckets to the home team, both by forward Angel Leasnre. The Bulldogs were able to cut the margin to one with a little over 2 minutes remaining to play, but would not get any closer as the Bearcats made some clutch free throws down the stretch to hold on for the win. The Bearcats hit 7 of 12 from the line in the last quarter, many in one and one situations.

Buck luck

Cass City resident Paul Bessler was hunting alone near some railroad tracks by Cemetery Road Oct. 15 at about 7 p.m. when he bagged an 8-point buck with a single shot.

Bessler, 22, 3285 Cemetery Rd., said this year's deer, which dressed out at about 175 pounds, is the best he's gotten in six years of bow hunting.

The first electric lamps used for street lighting were arc-lamps installed experimentally in Paris, in 1841.

Cass City cross country runners look to regional competition

Despite a lack of experience and depth, the Cass City cross country teams are gearing up for regional competition Saturday in hopes of qualifying individuals for state competition.

The regionals, which will see 20 Class C boys' teams and 18 girls' teams compete, will be held at Akron-Fairgrove High School. The state tourney will be held Nov. 1 at Cass City High School.

School.

Cass City coach Dennis Meck hasn't had enough runners to make a "legal" girls' team this year, but he has had a consistent boys' team throughout the season, which recently ended with the Red Hawks in 4th place in the Thumb B Association.

"We're looking for individual times to improve," the coach said. "We look for personal improvement to keep coming."

Cass City's Katy Scollon, who finished 43rd among 87 girls in the Thumb Area Championships held over the weekend, is the squad's best chance for state participation, Meck says. He added that Scollon finished the 5-kilometer run with a time of 22:36, while teammate Laura Stine was 52nd at 23:24 and Julie Auten finished 75th at 26:03.

For the boys' team, Jeremy Brown finished 70th with a time of 18:35; Paul Asher, 71st at 18:36; Clayton Hobart, 101st at 20:03; and Bill Profit, 93rd at 19:24. Brown, Asher and Jason Smith, who didn't run Saturday, are the top boys' candidates to qualify Saturday for state competition, Meck said.

Food for flood victims available

Area flood victims in need of food may still pick up food boxes at four Tuscola County sites, which will be open as long as the need exists, according to the county Department of Social Services.

The emergency food program is an expansion of a program which the DSS has operated since the weekend of Oct. 4 providing food for more than 1,200 flood victims, department Director Onalee A. Detwiler said. The state, through the DSS, has entered into an agreement with the Flood Bank Council of Michigan to procure food and distribute it through locally run non-profit organizations.

More than 80,000 Michigan residents will receive emergency food through DSS-administered programs, Detwiler said, adding the emergency food kits will be distributed to families at nearly 100 locations in the 27 counties which have been declared disaster areas under the Federal Flood Declaration.

Locally, the food will be available at the following sites: Tuscola County Department of Social Services, 1900 W. Caro Rd., Caro, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., (517) 673-4144; Human Development Commission, 429 Montague St., Caro, Monday through Friday from 12 p.m. to 4 p.m., (517) 673-4127; Cass City Food Pantry, 6420 Houghton St., Cass City, Tuesdays from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m.; and the Vassar Community Food Pantry, 139 N. Main St., Vassar, open as needed, (517) 823-8811.

Bulldogs use big plays to rap North Huron

The Bulldogs received some big plays on both offense and defense to defeat a scrappy North Huron team 15-8 last Friday. Owen-Gage will rap up its North Central Thumb League schedule this Friday against a much improved Carsonville-Port Sanilac at home and will be without the services of their all-state candidate, Steve Root, who suffered a knee injury in the second quarter of Friday's contest. Root will be out for the remainder of the season.

"We will have to adjust our defensive middle carefully," mentor Arnie Besonen said about the loss of Root. "We will have our work cut out trying to contain their tailback, Randy Turcott."

Owen-Gage's first big play of the night came with 8:34 remaining in the first quarter. After the Warriors stopped the Bulldogs on their opening drive, Steve Root hit a 39-yard punt that landed on the Warrior 2-yard line. A hustling Billy Kuhl prevented the ball from rolling into the end zone and moments later Chris Abbe tackled halfback Don Fisher for a safety and the Bulldogs led 2-0.

Owen-Gage's next score was set up when Brad Susalla returned a short Warrior punt 15 yards to North Huron's own 30-yard line. Marc Reinhardt wasted little time as he hit Jay Susalla for the score on a pass play that covered 15 yards. Dave Laurie's point-after kick was good and the Bulldogs were on top 9-0 when the quarter ended.

The Warriors put their only points of the game on the board when quarterback Brian Majeski hit Jeff Andreski on an 18-yard pass play at the 8:43 mark of the second quarter. Majeski closed the gap to one point when he scrambled for the 2-point conversion.

The game's final score came halfway through the second quarter. The biggest play of the night came when Kuhl sprinted 60 yards on a trap play that broke off the left tackle. Laurie's kick for point failed and the Bulldogs went into the half leading 15-8.

In the second half the Bulldogs had trouble moving the ball, due mostly to costly penalties that will have to be eliminated against CPS if the Bulldogs hope to win without Root.

Coach Besonen praised his defensive effort in the second half who was without their leading tackler, Root. "This week we bent but didn't break," said Besonen, whose defense came up with two big defensive plays by Stu Stirrett.

Stirrett's first defensive play occurred in the 3rd quarter when he bounced on a Warrior fumble to kill one of their best drives on

Charged

Timothy Donn Hendrian, 22, of Sixth Street, Cass City, was charged with reckless driving, fleeing an officer and eluding police after a Wednesday, Oct. 15, incident.

A Cass City police officer saw Hendrian break an antenna off a car and then get in another car and take off without his lights on. The officer got in his vehicle and chased Hendrian through Cass City. He was stopped on Seventh Street but was unable to produce a driver's license, registration or proof of insurance.

Stirrett's last heroic effort came with 3 minutes remaining in the game when he picked off a Majeski pass to preserve the win. Stirrett also led the Bulldogs in tackles with 7. "Our defense came through when it controlled the last half. North Huron flung passes over 20 times and our defense held," quoted Besonen. Joining Stirrett's efforts on defense were backs Rick Salcido and Kuhl, who each recorded 5 tackles.

Off-road recreational vehicles

Area man "has had it" with trespassers

The possibility of an area teenager getting seriously hurt and possibly killed while riding one of today's popular off-road recreational vehicles is very real to 68-year-old Carl Labish.

The Novesta Township resident says he's lectured and pleaded with the dozen or so youths he claims regularly trespass on his 20-acre lot in an effort to prevent a tragic accident. Kids and adults, he says, have helped themselves to his property at 3075 Lamton Rd. for as long as he can remember.

Numerous phone calls to law enforcement and school officials have netted few results, he says.

Labish, who is particularly fearful of accidents this time of year because of hunting in the area, says he's had enough.

"I thought I would talk to the kids; I thought I could get through to them to stay away," Labish said. "From now on, I'm just going to call the police."

Labish, a retired 34-year employee of the Michigan Bell Co., purchased the property in 1959 and moved there from the Warren area 8 years ago. Since the move, he says, rumblings of 3 and 4-wheel off-road vehicles, snowmobiles and even trucks have been a constant nuisance.

Many of the trespassers enter his property off Lamton Road about a block south of his home. The entrance sits in a valley, presenting an even greater risk because of limited vision for cars and other vehicles which travel the rough, dirt road. The wooded area frequented by the unwelcome guests resembles sand dunes more than woods. The land, marked by several well-defined trails, hill jumps and small cliffs, looks like a well-groomed trail system for the so-called all-terrain vehicles and is covered with distinctive large-tire tracks.

Hundreds of deer tracks also mark the property, which is speckled with downed "no trespassing" signs and posts.

"I'd hate to see somebody get hurt back there," Labish lamented. "I love kids and I hate to see them hurt."

Labish says the problem isn't limited to the daylight hours. "They come out at night with lights on. (They're) as young as 6 or 7 years old all the way up to the high school ages," he explained. "They wear no goggles, no safety helmets. I tell them, you're going to get hurt, but all I get from them is, yea, yea, yea."

Labish says the trespassers, when stopped by him, tell him the land is owned by the state. Last week he stopped a teenage girl riding a 3-wheel vehicle, told her to get off and instructed her to get her parents. Riding on the back was "a small boy," Labish said. "I told her there are hunters here and it's dangerous. Her mother accused me of stealing the 3-wheel vehicle," he continued. "I said, wouldn't it be better to have you here than to call you and tell you your daughter's got an arrow in her?"

"It's a shame that parents don't know where their kids are. They talk about these missing kids. One could be laying out there dead for a couple of days and nobody would find them," Labish remarked.

Labish said he's contacted the Cass City

Schools, the Cass City Police Department and the Department of Natural Resources on the matter, but "I haven't gotten any satisfaction whatsoever. I talk myself blue in the face."

"I don't want them to get hurt, they should realize that. They're having fun for a little while, but it only takes one little mistake and then it's too late—a tragedy happens," he added.

Labish says he's been lucky in that an accident hasn't occurred in recent years. He recalls, however, a young boy being killed "several years ago" when the snowmobile sled he was riding in was hit by a truck.

SAFETY/LEGAL PROBLEMS

Trespassing and illegal, unsafe use of off-road recreational vehicles in mid-Michigan are growing problems leading to increases in accidents and arrests, according to a DNR official.

The problem, law enforcement division officer Timothy Burke says, is due to several factors, including an apparent lack of interest in safety training courses and a lack of designated trail systems for all-terrain vehicles in the area.

Burke, a certified off-road vehicle safety instructor and a 12-year veteran with the DNR, outlined current trespassing laws and problems facing landowners and off-road vehicle enthusiasts.

Under a 1976 law, persons must have written permission from a landowner to operate the vehicles on the landowner's property, providing the land is fenced, closed off or posted. An exception, Burke said, is if the area in question is farmland or an adjoining wood lot, in which case the landowner is not required to erect barricades or post "no trespassing" signs.

Adults arrested for trespassing can be charged a maximum fine of $100 and/or costs of prosecution for the civil infraction, while minors are channeled into the probate court system.

Burke explained that parents of juveniles arrested for trespassing can not be held responsible for their child's acts. "That is a problem with the law right now," he said. "Neither the (1975) off-road vehicle law nor the trespassing law make any provision for citing the parents."

Burke cautioned that state law does prohibit a parent from allowing a child under the age of 12 from operating such a vehicle without supervision unless the vehicle is used on the parent's property.

The off-road vehicle law basically is a replication of the trespassing law, but a person under the age of 17 must complete an off-road vehicle safety course through the DNR. Burke, however, said that such a course hasn't been offered in the area by the department for several years because of low public response and because the current course dates back to 1975, pre-dating the popularity of the recreational vehicles.

Persons can take a safety course through the Specialty Vehicle Institute of America, as Burke did, but "a graduate of this program cannot be recognized as (being) certified under state law," the officer said.

The specialty safety course, created by the off-road vehicle industry in response to a public outcry on the danger of the vehicles, includes 5 hours of "hands-on" training plus classroom instruction, Burke said. He added that work on incorporating the specialty training into the state-required instruction is underway. "Hopefully, we'll be able to offer some classes in this area in the spring. I'm curious to see what the response is," he continued.

STATE GAME AREAS

Another area of concern with the vehicles is the illegal use of state game areas. There are some 1,500 miles of off-road designated trails in Michigan.

Naval recruit receives sailor honor

U.S. Navy fireman Kimberly Heronemus has been selected as Sailor of the Quarter for the second quarter of 1986 at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard in Portsmouth, Va.

Kimberly Heronemus

The 25-year-old Cass City native was recommended for the honor by Chief Warrant Officer R.A. Dauphinee, who cited an excellent job performance and willingness to undertake any task. She also is a qualified "watchstander" and "linehandler" on the shipyard's tugboats.

A graduate of Cass City High School, Heronemus joined the Navy in October 1984 and reported to the shipyard's Service Craft Unit in March 1985 following technical training in Orlando, Fla. She is the daughter of Gerald and Jacqueline Heronemus of Decker.

police departments.

Ironically, a landowner who gives written permission to use his land is exempt from a lawsuit as long as the landowner isn't guilty of deliberate harm or gross negligence in giving such permission. The same landowner, however, could be sued if a person gains access to private property without the owner's knowledge and gets hurt. "Many people will not give written permission because of the fear of liability," Burke said.

NOVESTA TOWNSHIP resident Carl Labish stands by a "no trespassing" sign he believes was torn down by trespassers who regularly use his property as an off-road recreational vehicle course.

DNR stresses safety in off-road vehicle use

The growing popularity of off-road recreational vehicles has led to a new area of outdoor fun, but many persons are taking to fields and trails without a solid knowledge of proper operating and safety procedures, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Tuscola County hasn't had any fatalities relating to the vehicles in the past couple of years, but serious accidents have been recorded during that period of time in the Thumb, DNR Law Enforcement Division officer Timothy Burke says. He added that unlike automobile accidents, off-road vehicle accident statistics are available only through hospital reports.

Burke had no updated accident statistics locally, but he said that 19 fatalities were recorded in Michigan between January 1983 and December 1985.

Burke outlined what he says are the most common causes of mishaps involving off-road vehicles, and safety procedures which should always be followed.

Two riders on one vehicle spells trouble, Burke says, adding that the specialized vehicles require a great deal of driving skill. The machines are "much more difficult to ride than motorcycles", and allowing 2 persons on one machine alters the handling characteristics of the suspension system.

Also very common, but no less dangerous, is operation of an off-road vehicle which is too large for the rider. "It's not uncommon to see real little kids riding on adult-sized machines," Burke said.

Riding on any road or road right-of-way is not only risky, but is also a violation of the law. An exception is a right-of-way leading from one trail to another in a designated trail system, but there are no such trail areas in the Thumb, Burke noted.

Operation of an off-road vehicle by a person who's been drinking, or doesn't have the proper skill level, also is dangerous, the conservation officer said.

Safety equipment for off-road vehicle riders is not required by state law, but Burke, who uses a 3-wheel vehicle and a motorcycle to enforce off-road laws locally, says the equipment is necessary.

"The most important thing is the helmet—a proper, snug-fitting helmet," he said. "It's absolute insanity, in my mind, to ride without one."

Eye protection, as well as boots, gloves and arm and leg protection also are important, he added. "You're in a hostile environment when you're off road."

Registration of off-road vehicles is required by state law and costs $9 per 3-year cycle. The bulk of the proceeds from such fees goes to trail development, Burke said.

4-H Leader banquet held

The 1986 4-H Leader Banquet was held Saturday, Oct. 11, at the 4-H Eaststand on the Fairgrounds in Sandusky with about 160 persons enjoying the "All Michigan Roast," 4-H Program Assistant Wendy Hoffert, said.

The highlight of the annual event was the presentation of the Friend of 4-H Award. This award is presented to the person or persons deemed to have contributed above and beyond the call of duty to the 4-H program in Sanilac County. The 1986 Friends of 4-H are Dr. and Mrs. James Turbok of Deckerville. Both have served as 4-H leaders in the Deckerville area for over 20 years. Dr. and Mrs. Turbok have also been involved in many community projects and have been very active during the 4-H Fair.

Walbro announces third quarter results

L.E. Althaver, President and Chief Executive Officer, Walbro Corporation, reported sales from continuing operations of $25,172,000 for the third quarter ended Sept. 30 compared with $18,123,000 for the same period in 1985. Income from continuing operations for the third quarter was $1,379,000 compared with $1,770,000 for the third quarter of 1985.

Income per share from continuing operations for the third quarter of 1986 was $.40, based on an average of 3,464,736 shares outstanding. This compares with $.60 per share from continuing operations for the third quarter of 1985.

based on 2,944,036 shares outstanding.

In announcing the third quarter results, Althaver pointed out that the third quarter 1985 income figure included a gain of $544,000 or $.18 per share to reflect the settlement of excess assets in the company's non-union pension plan. "This must be considered in the year-to-year comparison of the third quarter income," he said.

"Overall, the company's third quarter results were on target," Althaver said. "Sales from continuing operations were the highest ever for a third quarter. Income from continuing operations also reached a new third quarter high in 1986 if the previously-mentioned $544,000 gain attributed to third quarter 1985 income is taken into consideration. Third quarter 1986 income was, however, adversely affected by the strength of the yen versus the dollar, which resulted in a reduction of income from the company's Japanese subsidiary," he added.

"Sales of Walbro's electric fuel pumps and throttle bodies for automotive original equipment electronic fuel injection applications continued at high levels in the third quarter," Althaver said. "Demand for Walbro's lines of small engine carburetors, both float-feed and diaphragm units, also remained quite strong," he added.

Althaver noted that the company has initiated the previously-announced closing of its diecasting facility, Auburn Diecast Company. Walbro's plan to discontinue operations at Auburn Diecast resulted in an initial charge of $1,030,000 against fourth quarter 1985 income. An additional charge of $250,000 was recorded in the second quarter of 1986.

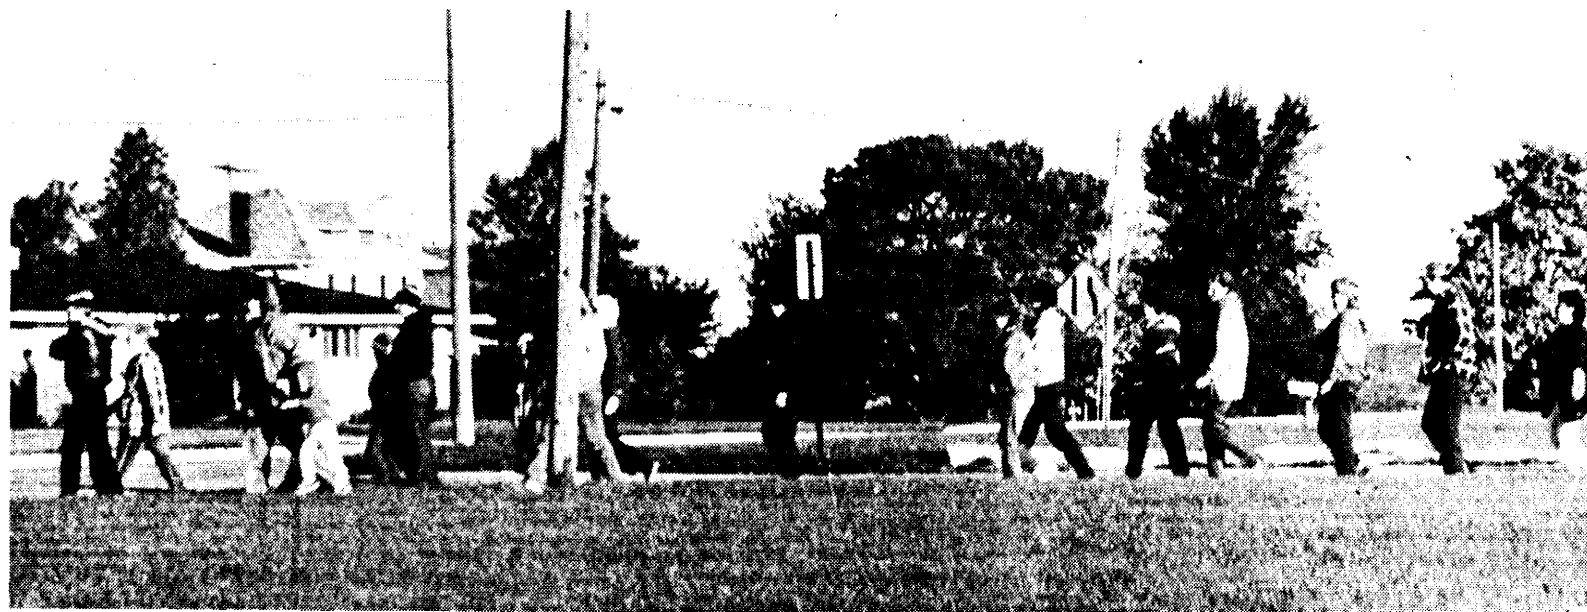

"We do not anticipate that the closing of Auburn Diecast at this time will result in any additional charges to the Walbro Corporation, beyond the two write-offs previously incurred," Althaver said.

Thumb Area Consortium names "summer participant of the year"

The Thumb Area Consortium recently named "summer youth participants of the year" in Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac and Lapeer counties, and the 1986 "worksite supervisor of the year."

The consortium is a federally-funded employment training agency which handles both the state's Youth Corps program and its own Summer Youth Employment program. Made possible through the Job Partnership Training Act, the organization has been in existence since December, 1983.

Barbara Root

Named the "summer participant of the year" in Tuscola County was Barbara Root, 19, of Cass City, who was placed as a clerical assistant at Tuscola County Mental Health Dept. She's described by her supervisor as a "highly motivated self-starter who demonstrates an ability to adapt to the ever-changing work environment."

Owen-Gage Seniors meet at St. Agatha's

Some 40 persons attended the October meeting of the Owen-Gage senior citizen's group held at St. Agatha's parish hall.

Business at the meeting included the taking of 22 blood pressures by Mary Lewis, LPN, humorous readings by Elma Miklovich and Gerry Carolan, a report that 23 members attended the Civic Center/Bad Axe luncheon Oct. 1 and the awarding of door prizes to Louis Ouvry and Stella Pisarek.

Also this month, 57 persons participated in a potluck dinner with guests Joanna Miklovich and Mary Hook of Flint in attendance, and Sophie Peters signed up as a member of the group. Winners of a euchre match following the dinner were Jim Winchester and Erma Martin, high, and Bob Schell and Margaret Beckett, low. A traveling prize went to Irma Ouvry, while Andy Szidik and Alma Wald received door prizes.

About 50 group members took part in a dinner Oct. 8 given by the Gagetown Methodist Church Ladies Aid. Pumpkins donated by Bob and Florence Schell were given as prizes to Clara Adams, Doris Evens, Audrey Cummins, Iva Peterson, Bernice Gracey and Irma Ouvry. Mary Kuehne and Louis Ouvry won door prizes.

Following the dinner, Bob Schell and Audrey Cummins took high honors in euchre, while Mary Kuehne and Mike Pisarek were the low winners. Mary Thomas won the traveling prize.

Root, a sophomore at Michigan State University studying international relations, is a 1985 graduate of Cass City High School. She hopes to work as a summer youth counselor in the Lansing area next year.

In recognition of Root's achievements, she was given a $50 savings bond by the American Home Bank of Caro.

Lynette Atkins-Palmer of Snover was named the Sanilac County participant winner. She was placed through the consortium as a clerical assistant at the Sanilac County Health Department, and has since been hired through the Job Partnership Training Act through the consortium.

The August bride of Paul Palmer, Snover, Atkins-Palmer is studying to become a medical secretary at Baker College in Flint. She received a $50 savings bond for her award from the National Bank of Detroit in Marlette.

Ruby Tolbert of Lapeer was named that county's participant of the year as a clerical assistant at Lapeer County Cooperative Extension Agency.

A 1986 graduate of Lapeer West High School, Tolbert currently is enrolled at MSU with plans to pursue a career in social work. The Lapeer Bank and Trust Co. awarded her a $50 savings bond for the achievement.

The Huron County participant of the year is Carol Koroleski of Port Austin, who worked as a clerical assistant at the Bad Axe State Police Post. She is continuing to work part-time while attending Jordan College, and says her future plans include joining the State Police Academy.

Koroleski was awarded a $50 savings bond by the New Century Bank of Bad Axe.

Ron Woloshen, 26, of Caro, was awarded the "worksite supervisor of the year" award for his work at Indianfields Township Park where he supervised 10 youths in the Summer Youth Employment and Michigan Youth Corps programs.

Woloshen, in his eighth year as a supervisor, was nominated for the honor by summer youth counselor Libby (Hartel) Treiber, Unionville, formerly of Cass City. Woloshen, she says, "stresses friendship, trust, honesty, loyalty and education. (He) has encouraged drop-outs to go back to school in addition to teaching basic work habits and skills."

A senior at Central Michigan University, Woloshen is working toward a degree in elementary education. His future plans include teaching in Colorado or California.

EDC, state officials discuss downtown work

The Cass City Economic Development Commission met Tuesday, Oct. 14, with Bob Terry, Main Street Program Coordinator with the Michigan Department of Commerce, to discuss the downtown revitalization.

"He's a consultant and he's available to us as an employee of the State," said Cass City EDC Director Lambert Althaver of Terry. "Through him we have access to a national network. My sense tells me the problems of Cass City are not unique to us. To the extent other communities have successfully dealt with their problems we can learn from them. We don't have to reinvent the wheel."

Althaver set goals and objectives for the downtown development project and the EDC formed three committees.

The first committee will promote downtown Cass City. Some ideas included a tour of downtown businesses; establishing a weekly or monthly column in the Chronicle or the Good News Newsletter; or putting out a single page newsletter on a weekly basis.

"Some businesspeople don't know what other businesspeople have to offer," Tuscola County EDC Director Jim McLoskey said.

The design committee will deal principally with the way the buildings and the downtown look.

"People don't like to see weeds or trip over paper and debris that have been collecting," McLoskey said. "Some dumpsters have not been picked up as they should be."

The EDC hopes to create an atmosphere where people enjoy coming to shop, McLoskey said.

"If someone does a particularly nice window display, merchants need to compliment each other about those kinds of things," McLoskey said.

Getting additional lighting in parking lots was another EDC concern.

The third committee, economic restructuring, will concern itself with the service and merchandise needs of consumers.

"First we find out what goods and services people are interested in and what they're willing to shop for in Cass City," Althaver said. "Then we try and provide those goods and services. Our approach is not to try and replace shopping malls. We compete by trying to meet the needs of the people."

The economic restructuring committee will be paying close attention to the customer survey local business people recently conducted. It may follow up with a survey of non-customers. It will also try to fill empty business places.

The EDC talked of not neglecting businesspeople already downtown because they're the best people to persuade others to locate downtown.

"We may not start altering problems right now, but we've got to start considering problems," Althaver said. "If we don't start now, we'll never get there. We hope to bite off a little bit each day."

Historical group to meet Monday

The Cass City Area Historical Society will meet Monday evening, Oct. 27, in the Rawson Memorial Library at 7:30 p.m.

A film of historical interest will be shown and the quarterly newsletter, The Way It Was, will be distributed.

Guests and visitors are welcome.

Your neighbor says Campaign barbs not necessary

Your neighbor, Joan D. Merchant, said she's sure the gubernatorial race between Governor James Blanchard and Wayne County Executive William Lucas will heat up during the next couple of weeks.

Merchant said it looks like Blanchard will win the race but she doesn't like the pre-election barbs thrown back and forth by both candidates.

"I get pretty upset before the election with all the rough business that goes on," Merchant said. "I think they would do their best—either one of them (Blanchard or Lucas)."

Merchant thinks the name-calling takes the prestige out of running for office, be it a state or national position.

"You'd think they'd grow up," she added. "Instead of who can be the nicest or most sincere, it's who can get the most dirt against the other. Both of them (Blanchard and Lucas) are guilty."

Merchant and her husband Stuart have four children. They own Sommers Bakery and live at 5549 N. Cemetery Road.

PRAYER TO THE Holy Spirit. Holy Spirit, you who made me see everything and showed me the way to reach my ideal; you who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me, and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Persons must pray the prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish. After third day wish will be granted no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this dialogue as soon as this favor is granted. J.S. 13-10-22-1

WE WOULD LIKE to thank everyone who helped to make our 50th anniversary such a wonderful time to remember. Those who sent beautiful cards, gifts and flowers; our daughters and their husbands and families who planned the reception and dinner, Bob and Mary Joyce Readler for the time they spent taking video pictures; Marjorie Caister and daughter Deanna for the beautiful wedding cake and decorations. We also want to thank our daughter, Joan O'Dell, for the wedding rehearsal dinner at Wildwood Farms, and for singing at the church and reception. Charlotte LaPeer and A.J. Murray each helped to entertain at the reception and we want to thank them for their part in the program. Our euchre club also deserves a special thank you for taking us out to dinner at Wildwood Farms for our anniversary the previous week. Elmer and Jane Fuester. 13-10-22-1

Farmers continue to harvest, despite mud and high costs

First there was rain, then there was mud.

In spite of the no-show sun, more rain and the added cost of harvesting, farmers are getting crops out of fields.

"You've got to give farmers credit," said Jim Ostrowski, Vice-president of Valley Marketing.

"They're really making an effort to harvest the crop," Ted Leipprandt, Chief Executive Officer of Co-Operative Elevator Company in Pigeon, summed it up. "We do what we have to do."

And what has to be done is very expensive.

"People aren't able to harvest the conventional way," Leipprandt explained. "They (bean farmers) have to clip with cutter bars and they're losing some there. It's a very expensive process to get equipment large enough and strong enough. It costs a lot more to harvest than normal. It also goes more slowly. You can do 3 times as many acres in one day with a windrower."

Some tractors have been equipped with tracks like a bulldozer uses. Some have made their rear wheels power assisted, or put on dual rear wheels or larger wheels, Leipprandt said.

"People don't realize the costliness of harvesting under these conditions," Tuscola County Co-Operative Extension Agent Bill Bortel said. "People spend $20,000 for tracks—that's more than a new car. Farmers have put on rice tires, a type of flotation tire. On top of that, in the fields it's taking extra tractors to pull harvesters, trucks and tractors. It's a lot more possible for a breakdown to occur. Something always gets broken some way or another in the mud. As you're running more mud through your machine, it costs much more in parts and materials to keep the thing running."

Beet trucks usually go up and down fields with the harvester. When one truck fills, another easily takes its place. With the mud, however, the trucks have to stay near the road.

"I understand there are a couple of Pribbs 24-ton beet carts being used so they don't have to drive the trucks in the fields," said Kent Graf, Agricultural Manager for Michigan Sugar's Caro district. "So that slows down the harvester. It has to be brought to the road to unload. The harvester can't go as fast in the mud. It's slippery and the mud gets in everywhere."

The mud not only cakes the machinery, it adds yet another burden to farmers.

"It's hard on everything, hard on your nerves," said Bob Wischmeyer, manager of the Cass City Berger and Company Elevator. "Harvest expenses go up quite a bit."

Farmers are taking extra precautions while harvesting because of the mud, Bortel said.

"The farmers are under such total stress now, not only with the water, but with trying to get out of the mud," Bortel said. "Just so many more things are subject to error."

In spite of the difficulties, crops are getting to the elevators and factories.

BEANS

"Beans are finally starting to come into the elevators," Ostrowski said. "Elevators are trying to process for the best possible grade they can get. Right now, we'll have to see if the canners can use what we've got. We're going to try and supply the best crop we can. We've got major problems of both quantity and quality."

Wischmeyer was not optimistic either.

"It's bad, especially for navy beans," he said. "It's really a dismal picture. We're about 25 percent done harvesting navy beans. Those coming in are averaging 40 percent—a 40 pound pick."

A "pound pick" is the number of pounds of beans per hundred that are considered too bad to use.

Bortel said a lot of bean harvests are in the neighborhood of 30-60 pound pick.

"Once it gets up to 60, it's not profitable to even harvest," Bortel said.

Pinto beans and Great Northern beans are very badly damaged, Leipprandt said. Between 40 and 60 percent of the crop could be lost because they can't stand the wet weather as well as other varieties.

Bortel said black beans look reasonably good, although Tuscola County has a lot more white beans than black beans. Their quality is holding up.

Black beans and kidney beans will suffer only 5-10 percent in losses. There's a lot of field loss because of the way the beans are being harvested and because pods have fallen off and some have sprouted, Leipprandt said.

"In my judgement, we'll probably have about a 40 percent crop," Leipprandt predicted.

Bortel guessed a 50-75 percent loss of the total bean crop.

"Because of what we're losing due to clipping the beans instead of windrowing and because 20 to 30 percent of each field isn't being harvested," Bortel said. "It's strictly what we call a salvage operation."

The problems won't end when the snow flies.

"There's going to be a seed problem next spring," Wischmeyer predicted.

"They'll have to use the best there is. Some fields are in pretty decent shape, but some seed will have to be imported from Canada, Ohio, North Dakota and Minnesota."

Michigan navy bean growers rely on seed grown in Michigan, Ostrowski said. Colored varieties of bean seed come from out of state.

"People make due with what they've got," Ostrowski said. "It may not be ideal, or certified. We're a pretty resourceful bunch."

The beans coming into the Co-Operative Elevator in Pigeon have about 20-25 percent moisture. They need to be at 18 percent to be dry enough for planting. All the beans that have come in have had to be artificially dried. Artificially dried beans can't be used for seeds. Some beans harvested before the rains can be used for seed, Leipprandt said.

Even if farmers surmount a springtime seed shortage, finding buyers may prove difficult.

"Would anyone have any confidence buying from Michigan next year?" Ostrowski asked. "They'll be cautious as to whether they can get beans from Michigan."

SUGARBEETS

Although the sugar beet harvest has hardly begun, beet quality looks good despite the extra mud clinging to them, according to Bortel. About one tenth of the crop will be too poor to deliver.

"In general they look pretty good so far," Graf said. "We're getting good cooperation from farmers. They're bringing in their best beets and leaving the worst in the fields."

"We're waiting for the weather to dry," Graf continued. "We'll lose 1000 to 1200 acres. We expect 20 tons of beets per acre. Some have been lost because of water damage."

CORN

So far, the corn crop seems to have lost only a small percentage.

"I'm saying we may have lost 5 percent of corn," Bortel said.

Leipprandt said he has seen abnormal sprouting because water got inside husks. The hot weather in late September made the corn start growing inside husks. It seems to vary field to field, because of the stage of maturity when the hot weather hit and because of the variety of corn.

"Corn harvesting is usually well under way (by now) and here it is Oct. 16," Leipprandt said. "The moisture level for corn is 31 percent and 2 years ago it was 26 percent."

Wischmeyer said he's seen some damaged ears, but the extent of the damage isn't known yet.

Wischmeyer pointed to another aspect of the damage, though.

"There's going to be a lot of loss to our community," he said. "A lot of dollars won't be spent in stores."

Farm Bureau praises governor

Michigan Farm Bureau President Elton R. Smith praised Governor James Blanchard for his proposal to provide $200 million in interest-free, deferred payment loans to the state's flood-stricken farmers.

While final details are yet to be determined, Smith said the program, if approved by the Legislature, would help many farmers consolidate their debts and plant next year's crops.

The governor's proposal, announced Oct. 13, would make loans of up to $200,000 available to farmers with no payments due until the beginning of the fourth year of the loan. The program would be administered much the same way as the 1985 emergency farm loan program, with farmers working through their local lending institutions.

"We think the governor has been very responsive to the problems faced by farmers who have suffered such tremendous losses," Smith said. "He took a personal interest in the disaster and met with county Farm Bureau presidents and our staff people to discuss the problems."

New talent due

8th annual Bach festival planned

Fans of baroque music will once again converge on the towns of Cass City and Caro, for the Eighth Annual Village Bach Festival, Nov. 25, 28, 29 and 30.

Talent new to the festival will be joining those long associated with this celebration of the music of J. S. Bach. This year concertgoers will hear music beyond Bach's time as well.

Artistic Director and Festival Orchestra Conductor, Don Th. Jaeger, has formed a program highlighted by Bach's "Brandenburg Concerto No. 3," W.A. Mozart's "Exultate Jubilate" and Igor Stravinsky's "Dumbarton Oaks."

Performers returning to the festival include the Preucil family from which William Sr. and William Jr. will perform a Mozart Concerto for viola and violin. Norman and Catherine Paul playing violin and oboe, respectively, will also be back, along with harpsichordist Doris Ornstein. Ms. Ornstein will be joined by violinist Gwen Starker and Steven Morscheck, baritone, in an aria from Bach's Cantata No. 32. Among other assignments at this year's festival, returning soprano Penelope Jensen will sing "Exultate Jubilate."

New musicians this year include bassoonist Robert Barris, performing Mozart's Concerto in B Flat. Vocalists bowing for the first time are Bjorg Solsvik, alto, and Quentin Quereau, tenor, who will sing in several Bach cantatas.

Holly Althaver, chairperson of the Village Bach Festival since its inception, terms this year's program "rich and varied" and credits Maestro Jaeger with assembling a world-class group of musicians.

A hallmark of the festival is the on-going camaraderie among the musicians and their close contact with festival audiences. The musicians are housed locally and take meals at Cass City's First Presbyterian Church.

The festival begins with an organ recital by David Schrader, new to the festival, Nov. 25 at Caro's First Presbyterian Church. Other concerts take place at Cass City's First Presbyterian Church Nov. 28, 29, and 30. Pre-concert lectures will be presented by Maestro Jaeger and members of the orchestra.

For the first time, taped highlights of the 1985 Festival are being made available. For information and ticket reservations, call (517) 872-2844. Festival organizers suggest early ticket purchase.

Enrichment day workshops held

40-second-you-make-your-own-fluffy-omelettes.

Varghese, an extension specialist in poultry science and nutrition, is a professor at Michigan State University. He is also head of Coturnix International, a program specializing in raising Japanese quail.

Varghese's omelette making Saturday included directing the preparation of 10 dozen Japanese quail eggs along with 60 dozen chicken eggs. The quail eggs, high in protein and low in cholesterol, are about 1/3 the size of chicken eggs, but are important to area and state 4-H programs, Varghese said.

The professor began enrichment programs with students raising quail in 1976. What began with 5 schools participating has grown to 600 schools, he added. The program also is being conducted in India, Varghese's homeland; the Dominican Republic, and Belize, the former British Honduras.

"In the Third World countries, it is mainly for food production," Varghese said. "It's mainly school enrichment (here) in grades K-12."

Varghese says the hearty birds "take little time, little space" to raise. One pound of feed, he explained, is enough to raise one Japanese quail from hatching, which takes about 17 days, to 5 weeks of age when the bird can begin laying up to 300 eggs or more a year, he said.

Lying names Laurie

Cass City Dairy farmer Jack Laurie, who serves as vice-president of Michigan Farm Bureau, has been appointed by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng to the National Commission on Dairy Policy.

Laurie is one of 18 dairy farmers appointed by Lyng to study the dairy price support program and the effects of new milk production technologies.

Disaster unemployment benefits deadline set for Oct. 24

Persons left jobless by recent floods and heavy rains in one of 22 mid-Michigan counties originally recognized as federal disaster areas have only until Oct. 24 to file for special federal unemployment benefits.

The October deadline applies to, among others, persons in Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties.

The announcement was made last week by Michigan Employment Security Commission Director Richard Simmons Jr., who also outlined application deadlines for 8 counties later added to the disaster area list.

Simmons reported that the commission has taken more than 4,600 claims for federal Disaster Unemployment Assistance following the September floods. The current load of such claims is the highest in the commission's history, he said.

Potentially eligible for the federal benefits are workers and the self-employed, including farmers.

"To file claims for Disaster Unemployment Assistance, individuals should visit their local MESA office and bring with them their Social Security cards (and) driver's licenses or one other piece of identification with a fixed signature," Simmons said. He added that applicants should provide records such as pay stubs which show their employment record and earnings prior to the flooding. Self-employed persons should provide their 1985 federal income tax return (1040) and their Schedule C or Schedule F form, he continued.

The Disaster Unemployment Assistance benefits can range from $54 to $197 a week and can last for up to one year if the claimant's unemployment is still attributable to the disaster. During the 30-day application period, claims may be filed retroactively for any weeks of unemployment beginning on or after Sept. 14.

According to the commission, individuals who do not qualify for regular state unemployment benefits or who have exhausted those benefits may qualify for the unemployment payments if, as a direct result of the disaster, they no longer have a job; could not get to their jobs, even if they worked outside the disaster area; were unable to begin work and now do not have a job because of the flood or are unable to reach the job; can't work because of a disaster-incurred injury; became the major support of a household because the head of the household died as a result of the disaster.

Simmons emphasized that farmers may be eligible for the benefits if they are unable to perform any of their "customary" work because of the heavy rains and flooding.

The counties included in the original disaster area declaration are Bay, Clare, Clinton, Gladwin, Gratiot, Huron, Ionia, Isabella, Kent, Lake, Mason, Mecosta, Midland, Montcalm, Muskegon, Newaygo, Oceana, Osceola, Ottawa, Saginaw, Sanilac and Tuscola.

An application deadline of Nov. 6 has been set for Allegan, Genesee, Lapeer, Manistee, Shiawassee and Van Buren counties, which were later added to the declaration. Applications from persons in Arenac and Macomb counties, the most recent additions to the list, will be accepted through Nov. 14.

Area MESA offices accepting claims include locations in Bad Axe, 40 Cook Drive, (517) 269-6439; Saginaw, 2885 Bay Rd., (517) 799-8000; Port Huron, 510 Tenth St., (313) 982-8533; and Bay City, 228 S. Washington St., (517) 894-2981.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Every day those of us in the investment business get asked: "I hear municipal bonds are going to be taxed—is that so?"

First of all, all municipal bonds issued before Aug. 8, 1986 are tax-exempt. This is known as "grandfathering" the older issues.

If you have bought or are buying, tax-exempts issued Aug. 8 or later, the new tax bill separates bonds into 3 main groups:

1. Public purpose bonds—issued by states, counties, cities, school districts and other government units—to meet essential government functions such as schools and roads. These continue to be tax-exempt, as always.

2. On the other end of the stick are these bonds that will definitely NOT be tax-free. Mind you, they are ones issued after Aug. 7, 1986. Bonds before that have the same status as when you bought them.

These no-longer-exempt bonds include ones for pollution control, sports stadiums, industrial revenue bonds (for factories or industrial private owners), parking revenue.

Now we have a complicated, fuzzy area in between new bonds issued as general obligations of government units, and revenue bonds just described in Group 2.

3. Here we have hospital bonds, higher education bonds (as distinct from local or state school bonds), housing bonds, water and sewer projects, electric utilities and airports.

All these sort of bonds -- and there are a lot of them

-- have a restriction as the dollar volume that can be issued by each state. Never mind the limits—the details on each issue will describe whether they are under the volume cap. Or let your broker find out.

Basically, don't get upset over the tax-exempt status, for there are tens of thousands of bonds issued by the Aug. 7, 1986 deadline. They are as tax-free as ever. It's just these new bonds you have to be sure of before you buy.

Just to muddy the waters a little before we close, there is an "alternative minimum tax" which on our glorious Congressmen could concoct.

If you get too much tax-free income, then Uncle Whiskers steps in. It's unlikely to apply to you. In bonds, it applies to those in Group 3, above. They become known as "preference items." Before you start stewing, first of all you get a $40,000 flat exemption of income from these bonds.

The formula for figuring after that, leave to your tax man. But still not much to concern you. A family with $100,000 in income will not pay this alternative tax until its income is over $1,000 from these "preference items."

I wish they hadn't use the term "preference." It wouldn't be my preference. And this "alternative" tax. Alternative to what? Another tax, that's what. There seems to be no other choice, except to move to the moon.

A dozen astronauts tried that, but they all came back home.

PRIZE. A jar of blueberries from Beulah, Mich., one of our many great products, goes to the Wall Street Journal for a beautifully written ad in the August 28 issue. It was a "house ad," selling the Journal, that is, titled "Speak Softly, But Carry a Big Stick." I was so clear and persuasive that I applied my Fog Index to it. It scored 8.5. That means anyone up to the 8th grade could understand it. The Journal and the Reader's Digest are the 2 best examples of clear writing in the world of mass publications.

Satellite dish parts stolen

Tuesday, Oct. 14, Dorothy Blue, of 4187 N. Hurds Corner Road, Cass City, told the sheriff's department that around Sept. 12 lightning struck her satellite dish. Blue contacted Star Satellite company and a company representative told her she needed a new DLNB and a new receiver. He took those items to Flint to repair them.

After waiting a month, Blue called the company and found both its phone numbers disconnected.

Tuscola County Sheriff's Department asked the Genesee Sheriff's Department to check the address. A patrol car sent to Futuron Enterprises, Inc., of G3011 W. Pasadena, Flint, found the place completely empty.

Blue's receiver was worth $500 and the DLNB was worth $1200.

Michael Martinez of 122 N. Hooper Street, Caro, reported his car was vandalized while it was broken down on Cedar Run Road near Dale Road Saturday.

PORK STEAKS ITALIANO

2 pork blade steaks, cut 3/4 inch thick
1/2 cup Italian dressing
1/4 teaspoon prepared mustard
Dash pepper

Place pork steaks on rack in broiler pan (or on grill over ash-covered coals) so surface of meat is 4 to 5 inches from heat. Broil at low to moderate temperature 30 minutes, turning once. Combine Italian dressing, mustard, salt and pepper. Brush steaks with sauce and continue broiling 10 to 15 minutes or until done, brushing with sauce several times. 4 servings.
