

A ROARING BLAZE that virtually leveled this old stone house at 4625 Decker Rd., Dec. 2 reignited the next morning, destroying what remained of the structure. No one was hurt, but damage is estimated at some $40,000.

Help pours in for Ramers after home gutted by fire

Area residents and local and outstate church members are coming to the aid of a young Mennonite couple who lost most of their belongings to a $40,000 fire which destroyed the former Auslander family house last week. The couple, Lyle and Barbara Ramer, both have received approximately $1,500 in donations since the fire Tuesday night. "Individuals have been giving us money and things. We haven't found any place to live yet, but we're looking," Barbara Ramer said. The Ramers are receiving support from their church in Indiana, Barbara explained, adding, "They all pitch in to help. They told us that we should buy what we need for now and they'll take care of it." Members of the local

Bethany Mennonite Church also are helping, she said. The couple currently is living with Barbara's parents, Alvin and Naomi Martin of 6725 Mushroom Rd., Decker. They had rented the former Auslander house, located at 4625 Decker Rd., since they were married in August 1985. Elam Martin, a deacon of the couple's Indiana church, Wisler Mennonite, was the most recent owner of the 91-year-old stone house. Although a few items of personal property in a garage were untouched by what Cass City Fire Department officials are calling one of the most severe fires this year, everything inside the house was lost. The couple was visiting Barbara's parents when the fire started. The blaze had virtually gutted the house by the time Cass City fire fighters arrived on the scene. The call came at 4:50 p.m. "We had no chance of saving it," Cass City Fire Chief Jerome Root Jr. said. "I was the first one there and it was fully engulfed. It must have been burning quite a while before someone noticed it." It took 3 hours and 15 men to extinguish the blaze, which reignited the next morning.

Aside from the Cass City department, tanker trucks and a total of 5 men from the Argyle and Kingston fire departments were called to the scene. Root indicated that a wood stove is probably responsible for the fire. The stove apparently contained a wood fire when the couple left the home to visit with Barbara's parents, he said.

The tragedy was difficult news for long-time owners of the house, Clair and Virginia Auslander, 6439 Severance Rd. "There's a lot of memories there," Virginia said, adding that she and her husband lived in the 6-bedroom house for 45 years. "Clair was born there (as well as) his 6 sisters and a brother." Clair's grandfather first settled the farm, which was owned by the family for 102 years. In 1895, a 2-bedroom dwelling replaced a log cabin as living quarters on the property. An addition of 4 bedrooms, a living room and dining room was made in 1896. The house, sold to Martin 2 years ago, was passed on to Clair and Virginia by Clair's parents

Superintendent's contract signed

O-G tables tax request

A request from the Tuscola County Treasurer's office asking for some $1,004 in back taxes was tabled by the Owen-Gage Board of Education during a lengthy monthly meeting Monday night.

The board also approved the superintendent's 1-year contract for the 1986-87 school year, and discussed changes to the school's lunch program.

The treasurer's letter stated that the school district owes the $1,004, delinquent taxes paid on 2 parcels in the district from a revolving tax fund over the past 4 years, because the parcels have become state property.

But board members indicated that the correspondence did not specify what parcels are involved. School Supt. Harley Kirby was directed to contact the treasurer to obtain additional information on the land in question.

Turning to Kirby's contract, board president Ronald Good said the superintendent will receive $38,000 for the remainder of his 1-year contract, which began Sept. 2 and will expire June 30.

Concerning the lunch program, Kirby reported that school administrators are continuing to experiment with ways to reduce and control the cost of the lunch program, which is responsible for some $12,000 of red ink over the past 2 years.

A major change set to begin at the start of the second semester is a limit of one trip through the lunch line, with additional trips costing each student.

Administrators have already begun a program in which items such as cookies and pizza are being offered in addition to the state-required lunch. The items are bringing in a profit, which could be increased by more efficient purchases of food items by the school, board members said.

Kirby said that if planned changes don't net the desired

Shades of yesteryear, a yule display at Vyse's

Strange goings on in Cass City recently have local authorities puzzled.

Huge foot prints seen during the winter, and scattered reports of clothes mysteriously disappearing from clothes lines have been the only clues.

That is, until this week.

The suspected culprits, a "rambunctious" band of 19 over-sized animated snowball figures, reportedly have been residing at the Lloyd Vyse residence, 6769 Main St. The figures can be seen "dancing" amidst flood lights and holiday music in front of Vyse's home beginning Wednesday (Dec. 10).

"You've got to keep the (garage) door locked 'cause they're running all over the place," Vyse, who along with friend Carl L. Schell created the papier-mache characters, said.

Vyse, 59, a retired former owner of Bigelow's Hardware in Cass City, and Schell, a 72-year-old retired nurses assistant, began work on the enormous project at Vyse's home in January. "We started in the basement; that's when we discovered that we couldn't get (the figures) through the door," Schell said. "So, we moved them to the front of his (Vyse's) garage."

Vyse remarked that he and his partner got used to strange looks from passersby during the summer. Admittedly, having several large balls drying in the sun in your driveway, or several pairs of extra, extra large papier-mache feet hanging on your clothes line, is a bit different, he said.

An occasional driver passing by would go over the curb "trying to stretch his neck" back to see what was going on, Schell recalled.

The figures were constructed by using papier-mache—heavy brown paper and paste—over beach balls. Each of the figures' feet, also made of papier-mache, but over clay forms, measures at least 40 inches.

The "snowmen" are approximately 4 feet tall, 3 feet in diameter and weigh anywhere from 28 pounds to 36 pounds.

"This year we've had more trial and error..." Vyse commented. He added that experimentation has given Schell and him a certain amount of expertise on papier-mache.

Vyse explained that the figures' weight and size were considered because of plans to attach the figures via lines to bicycle tire rims, which are connected to a metal frame. In all, 6 rims, each supporting 2 figures, will rotate in circles by means of a small motor and a rope pulley. An additional mechanism will make the figures appear as if they're waddling.

If the spectacle doesn't sound like a run-of-the-mill holiday decoration, that's because it isn't. But long-time residents who are familiar with Vyse's varied talents probably won't be surprised.

Vyse, who retired in 1981, played a major role in festivities when Cass City was designated as Christmas Town. The village lived up to the title with massive holiday decoration projects until 1959, when the yearly celebration faded.

Vyse and Schell haven't yet decided whether this year's project will become an annual event. "This is just something we started for our recreation," Schell commented. "We may put these out next year or we may change them."

Injuries on bus cited

Joles threaten court action at Owen-Gage

by Tom Montgomery

A Gagetown couple Monday said they plan to seek legal action against 2 Owen-Gage football coaches and an Owen-Gage student they claim were involved in recent injuries sustained by their son while riding on a team bus.

The couple indicated they haven't decided yet whether to seek legal action against the school district as well.

Rick and Pamela Joles, 5864 McAlpine Rd., say their 15-year-old son, Jack, was a victim of an assault during a so-called "hit line" on a bus returning from a North Huron football game Oct. 17.

A hit line, according to Pamela Joles, is where certain players—usually non-starting freshmen and sophomores—are called to the back of the bus by their teammates. The underclassmen are then punched, pushed, tripped, inappropriately grabbed and have personal undergarments torn off, she explained.

"As a result of our son being called back to endure this hit line, Jack received contusions on his body and one fellow player punched (him) in the face, causing 2 breaks in his nose," Joles continued.

The hit lines apparently take place only after the team has won a game, Joles said, with the student who collects the most teammates' underwear being declared the "winner."

After a losing game, she added, team members are not allowed to leave their seats, talk or even whisper.

Following the incident, the Joles hired Caro attorney Brian R. Schroppe and private investigator Cynthia Strange to look further into the matter.

Joles remarked that "numerous" similar incidents dating back to at least 6 years have been discovered. The couple has obtained a dozen affidavits from former and current Owen-Gage students.

"We feel it's been around for quite awhile," Joles continued, adding similar incidents are still under investigation.

The Oct. 17 occurrence wasn't Jack's first encounter to a hit line, according to Joles. On one occasion, she said, he was physically dragged to the back of a bus over a row of bus seats. never has to endure this abuse again, or any other student at Owen-Gage," Joles commented.

One of the coaches involved in the incident, she noted, was driving the bus on the night of the incident, while the other was sitting behind the driver's seat. The while the other was sitting behind the driver's seat. The student involved—a sophomore—allegedly is the individual who hit Jack Joles.

The couple, who say they hold the coaches and student responsible, were expecting the board of education to dismiss the coaches at a monthly meeting Monday night. Their request was not honored by the board.

Further, such action is unlikely, according to school officials, who met with the coaches in a 35-minute executive session Monday.

"We're taking action to take care of these problems so they don't happen in the future," school Supt. Harley Kirby said. "(But) we don't hang anybody."

School board president Ronald Good agreed, adding, "Every board member is interested in never seeing this sort of thing happening again. I don't see the board doing it (dismissing the coaches)" at this time.

The action referred to by Kirby is warning letters placed in the coaches' files, and approval last month of a new policy on student conduct in relation to school-sponsored transportation. The policy covers all students involved in extracurricular activities.

The Joles met with Owen-able High School Principal Robert Andrews on Oct. 20, giving him 3 days to investigate the incident. Two days later, the couple, Andrews, the coaches and the father of the student involved met, but "we got nowhere," Joles added.

Where were these rules at the beginning of the school year? — Pamela Joles

The board met with the couple and their attorney during a closed session at its Nov. 10 regular meeting.

It was at the second meeting that the new policy, addressing liability, conduct and medical emergency release procedures for students, was shown to the Joles. "It is our understanding that these rules were not made up by board members. They were only approved by them at the November meeting," she remarked.

The board first saw the policy at that meeting, and on the same evening adopted the new set of rules.

The Joles claim the policy was tailored to their son's as well as similar incidents. "That's the only reason these rules were drawn up."

"Where were these rules at the beginning of the school year? What about policies concerning the responsible adults we entrust our kids to while traveling to and from a sports event?" Joles remarked.

She questioned a remark made by Andrews at the Nov. 10 board meeting. In presenting the new policy to board members, he stated that a consistent set of guidelines is needed to ward off potential liability suits. "Today, people are suing left. Please turn to page 16.

Russell recall petition snuffed

A vote recount petition filed by Tuscola County Board Commissioner Royce Russell has been declared void, assuring newly elected District 2 Commissioner Kim D. Glaspie the incumbent's seat beginning Jan. 1.

Glaspie, a 31-year-old attorney and Democrat, narrowly defeated Russell, 62, in the Nov. 4 general election, 921-918. The veteran Republican was seeking his fifth 2-year term representing District 2.

County Clerk Elsie Hicks said she was notified last week that Russell's recount petition did not meet state requirements.

"The state Election Commission has decided that (there) wasn't sufficient reason in the petition to warrant a recount," she explained, adding that the petition also lacked notarization, another state requirement.

Russell's petition stated that he wants a recount, but didn't include any statements on suspected mistakes or possible fraudulent activity relating to the election, Hicks remarked.

A state Department of Elections official confirmed the failed recount bid. "He did not state that he was grieved or (that) fraud was involved," elections' specialist Brad Wittman said. The petition "was deficient and didn't comply with statutory requirements."

Wittman noted that the deadline for filing a vote recount petition in a county race—within 6 days after a board of canvassers' certification of an election—has long passed. The county board of canvassers is required to complete the certification process by Nov. 19, he said.

Glaspie's victory over Russell marks the first time in Tuscola County history that a Democrat will represent District 2, which includes Elmwood, Elkland, Novesta and Kingston townships.

FINAL TOUCHES are applied to a few of the 19 snowball figures created by Cass City residents Lloyd Vyse (right) and Carl Schell. The pair are planning to exhibit the figures in front of Vyse's house, 6769 Main St., beginning Wednesday (Dec. 10).

"Shop till you drop" is a catchy little T-shirt slogan that some people might think applies to yours truly.
 Admittedly, shopping is one of my favorite pastimes, but my aim is to stop just short of dropping.
 The secret lies in recognizing one's limitations. This is as essential to serious shopping as comfortable shoes and compatible companions.
 Another necessary element is determining your goal in advance. Are you set on having obtained certain specific items at the end of the day, or having covered every store in the mall, whether or not you buy anything, or are you content with wandering about as the spirit moves you, with no particular objective in mind?
 Any method is acceptable, but it's important to know what you hope to achieve in order to know when you're done. (Of course, we only mall shop after exhausting the inventory of local merchants.)
 If you must shop with a spouse or a friend who wants to "stick together," be realistic. Don't expect to accomplish much, or you'll be frustrated.
 It's important, also, to recognize early symptoms of fatigue and know how to combat them.
 For me, this entails a trip to the restroom followed by a snack, preferably with the feet elevated. This may involve as little as 10 minutes, but can result in several hours of additional durability.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Learman

Jo Ann Winter became the bride of William Lowry Learman Oct. 11 at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Unionville. The Rev. P.F. Stohlmann Jr. officiated at the double-ring ceremony for the daughter of Vern and Maxine Winter, Unionville, and the son of William A. and Nancy Learman, Harbor Beach.

The organist was Pam Geiger and vocalists were Warren Ramsey and Jean Learman. Selections included "The Gift of Love," "Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose a gown of white organza and satin. Her fitted bodice was scattered with seed pearls and the bishop sleeves were trimmed with re-embroidered lace. The floor length gown cascaded to a chapel length train of a satin ruffle. A picture hat with a fingertip veil and blusher completed her ensemble.

She carried a cascading bouquet of white sweetheart roses, blue snowdrift pomp mums and miniature carnations.
 Karyn Crabtree, friend of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of royal taffeta with a scoop neckline and short puffed sleeves. She carried a bouquet of blue snowdrift pomp mums, pink sweetheart roses, white button mums and baby's breath. A blue pomp mum accented her hair.
 Bridesmaids were Christine Kuhl, friend of the bride, Denise and Jean Learman, sisters of the groom. All were dressed identical to the maid of honor. Best man was Marty Winicki, friend of the groom. Groomsmen were Bob Learman, brother of the groom, Todd Winter, brother of the bride, and Ron Goetze, friend of the groom. Troy White, brother of the bride, and Jamie Learman, brother of the groom, were ushers.

The bride's mother chose a powder blue floor length Georgette gown with draped cowl front. A wrist corsage of white sweetheart roses and blue miniature carnations accented her dress.
 The groom's mother chose an aqua floor length Georgette gown with a slightly scooped neckline accented by a draped crossover. She wore a pin-on corsage identical to the bride's mother.

Following the ceremony, the couple greeted 400 guests at the K of C hall in Bad Axe.
 The couple honeymooned at the Pocono Mountains and reside at 6642 Huron, Cass City.

We Can Improve Your Chances For Survival

Every 15 minutes, three women develop breast cancer and one dies because of it. Breast cancer is a leading cancer killer of American women.

While advancing age and a previous personal or family history of breast cancer are the greatest factors, having no children, or having your first child after age 30 are also important risks.

The GOOD news: MAMMOGRAPHY, a safe, low-dose breast x-ray technique that can detect breast cancer up to three years before you can feel it, when it's most curable.

Hills and Dales makes mammography safe and convenient.
 Newest Equipment: State-of-the-art, low-dose imaging equipment assures your safety and improved image quality.

Mammography is recommended by the American Cancer Society for women with:

- An original baseline mammogram between the ages of 35-40
- Mammograms every 1-2 years from 40-49
- Annually after age 50.

Included prior to the mammography examination is a short but thorough and helpful education program demonstrating the proper techniques for Breast Self Examination (BSE).

An example of my "ideal shopping experience" was a recent excursion with a group of about 20 ladies. We arrived just as the mall opened, agreed upon a meeting place and time of departure, then dispersed to pursue our individual shopping techniques.
 (I shop best alone, but it's nice to meet a friend from time to time, compare notes and exchange info about what's on sale where.)
 At the appointed time, the group reassembled, dragging their packages behind them, bodies weary, but enthusiasm intact, and enjoyed a fine dinner together. (I must tell John Haire about that restaurant in Clio.)
 The outing had to be termed a success. We couldn't have squeezed one more Santa Bear into the vans.

Man nabbed after filing police report

A Cass City man who flagged down a police officer to file a malicious destruction of property report Saturday was arrested shortly thereafter by the same officer for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor. According to the report, James L. Michalski, J., 4119 Mini St., stopped a Cass City police officer behind the Old Wood Drug Store to report destruction to a vehicle. The officer, who indicated Michalski was intoxicated, advised him not to drive. But Michalski ignored the advice and pulled out of the lot 5 minutes later. The officer followed Michalski for 3 blocks on Seeger St. before stopping him. Also arrested for OUIL was William C. Bassett Jr., 37, who was stopped Sunday after crossing the center line of Main Street 3 times. The report stated that Bassett's vehicle had a broken taillight. The officer, who stated that he could smell a strong odor of alcohol on Bassett's breath, followed the Vassar resident out of Cass City before stopping him. Damage to a gasoline pump Dec. 3 was reported by Frank's Service Station, 4083 N. Cemetery Rd. According to the report, Patricia and Bruce Sherman drove to the station in separate vehicles. An attendant placed a fuel hose in a pickup truck, driven by Patricia, and walked away. Patricia, seeing her husband walk out of the station, apparently thought the attendant was finished and drove off, taking the hose with her. Station official James Spencer advised her of damage to the hose, hose connections and a loss of fuel on the pavement.

In small towns high school sports can be a catalyst welding the community together. During times when teams are making tournament runs most everyone gets involved even if they don't particularly care about sports.

It's even finer for guys like me who enjoy the game for the game's sake. All of this is a preamble to show that sports are wholeheartedly endorsed and supported here.

Having said that, let me come to the reason for this discussion with you. Jack E. Robinson, executive director of the Michigan High School Athletic Association, has announced that for the first time in history high school football teams will begin to play on the Friday before Labor Day next fall.

We did that in Wisconsin, he said, and had some of the best crowds of the year. Which in a nutshell explains what is wrong with athletic programs in our schools. Robinson didn't say playing before Labor Day was better for the students or the

Two car accident on Deckerville Road Sunday

The Sheriff's Department reported a 2 car accident on Deckerville Road Sunday.

Andrew Spencer, 36, of 3083 Mushroom Road, Caro, stated he was eastbound on Deckerville Road west of Orr Road when a westbound vehicle driven by Catherine M. Cleveland, 42, of 5163 N. Vassar Road, Akron, came at him in his lane. A witness stated the accident took place in the eastbound lane. Cleveland said she couldn't remember what happened. She was taken to Caro Community Hospital by Emergency Medical Service.

William H. Mielke, 39, of 641 Grover Street, Sebawaing, was traveling southeast on M-25 southwest of Thomas Road Dec. 2, when he lost control on snow coming around a curve and went into the northeastbound lane, into the ditch and the vehicle rolled on its top. Mielke received injuries and sought his own treatment. Pat Rabideau of 3245 Elmwood Road, Caro, reported putting his pickup in the ditch at M-81 northeast of Elmwood Road. A Decker man rolled his car on Kelly Road Nov. 25. Rodney J. Wentworth, 17, of 6941 Deckerville Road, Decker, was eastbound on Kelly Road east of Crawford Road when his vehicle apparently caught the right edge of the roadway, causing the front end to slow down and plow into sand at the roadside. The rear swung forward and the vehicle rolled over.

Wentworth was taken to Hills and Dale Hospital and issued a citation for driving in violation of a restricted license. The Caro post of the Michigan State Police reported a 2 car accident. Jerold W. Stein, 19, of 8901 Geiger Road, Pigeon, stated he was westbound on Bay City-Forestville Road east of Dodge Road and lost control while attempting to avoid an oncoming vehicle. Stein ran off the left side, went into a ditch and was struck by Catherine M. Kappen, 43, of 5400 Bay City-Forestville Road, Cass City. Kappen stated she observed an orange Chevette ahead of Stein's vehicle, then Stein went out of control and into the eastbound lane. Kappen couldn't avoid hitting Stein.

DEER ACCIDENTS

Vincent A. Albin, 22, of 1992 East Dayton Road, Caro, was westbound on Deckerville Road, west of Orr Road Saturday and hit a deer. Scott Harmon of 4400 Leslie Road, Decker, hit a deer on M-81 and Schweigler Road Dec. 1. The Michigan State Police at the Caro post reported one car-deer accident in the Cass City area. Raymond E. Martin, 51, of 6090 Deckerville Road, Deford, was eastbound on Deckerville Road east of Murray Road when he hit a deer Dec. 5.

Grass-roots deal

By Jim Fitzgerald

I think it's neat that a mere lieutenant colonel has been in charge of this nation's foreign policy. It's as though the national debt totaled a thousand-dollar sum, instead of trillions of dollars.

What I mean is I can comprehend how much money $3,000 is. It's what I owe on my car. But how much is $2 trillion? I don't have the slightest idea. Someone might tell me the CIA proved that two trillion dollar bills, dropped end to end from a covert coupe on a back road, will reach from here to Nicaragua. But I've never driven farther south than Mexico, so the comparison is meaningless to me.

Likewise, I can understand what a lieutenant colonel is. I used to work for one. But I can't comprehend the exalted positions held by a President Reagan or a Secretary of State Schultz. Someone might tell me that Ronald Reagan puts on his pants one leg at a time, the same as I do, but many years ago, in "King's Row," he lost his legs. I have never been in the presence of a man so distracted by the responsibilities of his exalted position that he didn't know his legs were amputated, and also didn't know at what point in time he first didn't know it. So the comparison is meaningless to me.

That's why it was encouraging to learn that Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North had the authority to sell U.S. arms to Iran and send as many as 30 million of our dollars to the Nicaraguan contras without anyone above the rank of lieutenant colonel knowing much about it.

I think this is part of a heartening trend back toward the grass-roots government that made this country great enough to kill Indians and buffalo. In more recent years, a lieutenant colonel had to go through the proper channels to get an appointment with a full colonel. During World War II, I drove a jeep for a lieutenant colonel who was so subservient to his superiors he regularly saluted the star on a general's mailbox. But today's lieutenant colonels are apparently powerful as a speeding John Wayne — and confident enough to bypass even the president's wife.

This change is good because it puts the big-decision-makers closer to the ordinary taxpayers who pay for the big decisions. I would never have the opportunity — or nerve — to tell the exalted president of the United States he shouldn't supply weapons to Iran, the contras or anyone else because weapons kill people and our nation shouldn't be in the murder business.

But, even though I was only a sergeant, I used to get pretty lippy with the lieutenant colonel in my jeep. He seemed like just another ordinary persecuted soldier. If he'd had the power to end-run the draft board and send me home to my mother, I certainly would have requested that he do it immediately or get out and walk.

So it is comforting to learn that today's military gives so much authority to low-ranking officers. I feel like I could talk to a regular guy like Lt. Col. North. I could say his Iran-contras deal was illegal — not to mention immoral — and he should be locked up in a stockade for 134 years. I wouldn't feel comfortable saying that to Reagan.

Also, another part of the grass-roots trend is modern foxholes. The Pentagon, normally concerned with sophisticated, trillion-dollar weapons systems, is working on the EXFOD — explosive foxhole digger — which will make it possible to dig shoulder-deep foxholes in five minutes or less. It works something like a supersonic Frisbee, pulverizing hard soil and blasting out loose dirt.

I'd like to talk to a lieutenant colonel about EXFOD. I'd tell him not to do me any favors because, during the next war, I don't plan to hide in a hole. I'm going to trade myself to Iran in return for holy immunity from terror. Israel will handle the deal.

players. His criteria is, will the fans come out to see the game?

We don't know if the director is aware of it, but student support of athletics has been dwindling now for decades. Part of the reason for that is the increased number of sporting activities offered. Instead of attending the basketball game they stay home and go to the volleyball contest the next night, or to the wrestling match the day after that. That's part of it, but not all.

Athletes are no longer the big men on campus they once were and a lot of the kids would rather head up town to see what's happening than go to a game.

Now the association is divorcing itself further from the students. There are very few schools that start school before Labor Day. It's hard to hold a pep rally with no students at school. Does the earlier starting date mean that players will have to report a week earlier than they do today? Already some of them have trouble making pre-school time practices. Will they just forget the whole thing if an earlier practice is needed? How about the coaches, will they be paid more under the new program or just have summer vacation cut shorter?

And, yes, I know that the colleges play before school starts. But that's no reason for high schools to do it. College football and basketball are big business.

There is regret here that high school athletic teams are forced to play in the off-season to remain competitive. There's no objection, you understand, if individuals practice every waking hour, year around. That's a matter of choice. Schools have no choice, if they wish to compete these days, on whether or not to practice in the off-season. The only choice is running an off-season program or giving up sports competition.

That won't and shouldn't happen. Next year's early start simply adds to the emphasis on the sport with the main consideration on what is best for the pocketbook rather than on what is best for the students.

Area church bazaars

Fundraiser combines fellowship, sale

by Tom Montgomery

It's a one or 2 day-long shuffle of customers moving from table to table, looking for bargains. Many stop shopping periodically to visit with friends and neighbors.

The items for sale—hand-made crafts, baked goods, quilts, clothing, knickknacks—are all donated and often more than reasonably priced, so a bargain isn't hard to find.

No one seems to know how long the traditional church bazaar has been around, but the annual fall event hasn't lost its popularity, according to a recent survey of local bazaar organizers.

Why the popularity? The answer may seem obvious—financial reward for both shopper and church. And organizers say the sales are a fairly lucrative fund raiser.

But equally attractive, they add, is the opportunity bazaars offer for church members to join in a cooperative effort.

"We figure it gives us the means to fellowship and do the Christian work we want to do; when we all pull together for the common good," Elaine Proctor, chairman of the Trinity United Methodist Church's bazaar, held Nov. 8, said.

"This is our 18th year and I really believe we had the largest number of donations ever," she continued. "It was the best one, the most successful."

Members of the church, 6536 Houghton St., usually hold the sale for only one day, but preparations often take place long before the doors open. "We work all year long, both individually and in the church," Proctor explained. It really does involve a lot of people when you consider how many donate items. I think there must have been at least 30 that worked the day of the bazaar."

This year's proceeds, not including a brief re-opening of the bazaar recently because of an unusually large inventory of items, totaled approximately $3,500, Proctor said. "It's been fairly consistent for the past several years."

The money will be dispersed by the 44-member Trinity United Methodist Women's group, with the first 10 percent going to the Methodist Children's Home in Redford, Proctor stated. Other recipients of the funds may include the local church and the denomination's district fund.

At nearby Salem United Methodist Church, 4454 Ale St., bazaar organizer Etta Fleenor said this year's sale, held Nov. 14 and 15, went well. "With the water problems (flooding), I didn't look for as good a turnout as we had," she added. "It was successful all the way around."

The 4th annual bazaar featured many of the items associated with such events, according to Fleenor. "We had one quilt this year and we had lots of pillows of all types, crafts, place mats... just a lot of everything. We don't have much left," she remarked.

Fleenor noted that bazaar organizers try to begin preparations in July, with "everyone" pitching in. "That's the best part of it—it's a sharing time," she said.

"One person would work on something as far as they could, and then take it to someone else, like with the pillows," Fleenor explained. "One person would do the sewing, another would do the designs and someone else would stuff them."

The sale netted some $3,200 this year, she said, adding that there's no competition among area church bazaars. "We don't seem to hurt each other's crowd."

"We have a time of fellowship and then we donate the proceeds where there's need," Fleenor commented. "And there's always a need."

Money from the sale usually goes to the Methodist Children's Home in Detroit, the Methodist retirement home in Chelsea and a children's summer camp. The money also is used within the church.

Another bazaar organizer, Mary Rabideau, echoed the comments of Fleenor and Proctor. Rabideau, president of the St. Pancratius Women's Council, also reported proceeds of roughly $3,000 to $3,500 from that church's Oct. 25 bazaar.

"One of the reasons bazaars are so successful is because everything's donated," Rabideau observed. "It's different from the crafters who make a living out of this. We mark everything reasonably."

"It's been phenomenal this year—the number of people doing crafts," she continued. "This was the best year in the past several years."

Also held at the church, 4292 S. Seeger St., was a raffle in conjunction with the bazaar. Some 2,200 tickets were sold for $1 each with the winners receiving donated prizes, Rabideau said.

A portion of money made at the sale, which has been held annually for at least 10 years, is used to help "take care of a lot of things for the needy and shut-ins. We always have our education for the kids and a lot of it goes to the church," she added.

As far as next year's bazaar goes, "We've already started."

Not all church bazaars take in profits of $1,000 or more. But the smaller sales still net the enjoyment of working together on the project, according to Velma Cleland, a member of the Shabbona Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, located about 8 miles southeast of Cass City. The church has been holding bazaars for at least the past 40 years.

"All the congregation takes part in making things," Cleland said of the event, held Nov. 8 this year.

"We never expect (profits) to be lower" than the year before. "We can't believe how much comes in sometimes."

The sale proceeds totaled about $700 to $900 this year, Cleland said, adding, "We think we do extremely well for a small congregation."

"Next year's bazaar will be set by January, (with) some people making things all year." The tradition, Cleland pointed out, is something to look forward to throughout the area.

"Some people just like to go visiting church bazaars. I know I do."

CASS CITY resident Lorene Rienstra inspects a display of towels during a brief re-opening of the Trinity United Methodist Church's bazaar Dec. 1. She was the first shopper of the day.

Yuletide spirit sparks Christmas tree thefts

'Tis the season for stealing Christmas trees, according to Sheriff's Department reports. Harold Kilbourn of Reed Street, Deford, reported a subject stealing his Christmas trees Sunday. Alice Lilito of 1609 Kingston Road, Deford, reported someone stealing her trees Sunday, also. Robert Diem of 6945 Gilford Road, Deford, reported to the Sheriff's Department his home and garage had been entered sometime between Nov. 7 and Nov. 8 while he attended a funeral.

Nothing was missing in the home, but a McCulloch chain saw worth $400, an air tank worth $40, a Stihl chain saw worth $475 and assorted tools worth $200 were stolen from the garage. Dawn Woidan of 6048 Delong Road, Deford, reported a larceny, Saturday, from her vehicle and malicious destruction of property. Chuck Holm of 6470 Houghton Street, Cass City, Saturday reported malicious destruction to his TV antenna.

Frank Spencer of Frank's Service Station at 4083 Cemetery Road reported Dec. 3 that someone pulled away from his pumps and pulled out one of his hoses. Wilma Groth of 4138 Seeger Street Dec. 3 reported her mailbox was knocked down.

New books at the library

BRIGHT YOUNG THINGS by Josephine Edga. (fiction). Helen Redmaine, whose dashing, titled father was killed in the war, leaves her loving, impecunious family to work in the art department of an advertising firm. There she meets Lillian "Boots" Skinner, high-spirited, beautiful and perhaps overly wise in the ways of the postwar city. While Helen falls in love with the director of the art department, Boots trains her sights on the head of the agency. Both of these men are married, posing problems of different sorts for each woman. Helen finds happiness by trusting her heart, while Boots, with encouragement from Helen's film-crazy brother Duncan takes a chance that her talent may run more than sk deep.

UNHOLY MATRIMONY: a true story of murder and obsession by John Dillman (non-fiction). An example of dedicated detective work is provided in this story of a hit-and-run death in New Orleans and of the cop who suspected murder, tracked down the killers and assembled the evidence to convict them. In January 1974, Patricia Giesick, just married in Texas, was on her honeymoon in New Orleans when, according to her husband, she was struck by a car that drove off; he was the only witness, and the police accepted his account of her death. Her parents, however, were sure he had killed her, a view that Dillman, assigned to close the case, came to share. The husband, allegedly a psychologist, was an ex-auto mechanic, a bigamist and the pawn of a "preacher" who ran a string of Texas massage parlors. The development of the case against these two makes a suspenseful tale, and the trial provides an unexpected shocker that led to guilty verdicts after only 20 minutes of jury deliberation.

STYLE AND SUBSTANCE by Judith Martin (fiction). When narrator Alice Bard loses her job as a TV newscaster because she has "inexcusably" aged, she revisits the Greece of her childhood, determined to become an instamother by bringing home Andreas, son of her best friend Ione, an archeologist living on the island of Santorini. Frescoes predating the Trojan War have been discovered there, and are soon to be exhibited in a Washington museum, whose curator, Maximilian von Furst, flies back to the States with Alice and thence into her heart and bed. Although the arrival of Andreas and Ione inhibits lovemaking, the real trouble comes with Alice's college classmate, Rachel Colt, whose cosmetics fortune not only turns the exhibit into a national gala but also redirects Max's affections to his wealthy sponsor. As a wedding gift Rachel presents Max with a million-dollar statue of Athena, the authenticity of which, however, is doubtful. While Alice is trying to sort out both her emotions and her suspicions, her former beau, lawyer Bill Spottswood, frequents her house with his four children, to be closer, Alice believes, to the beautiful Ione.

HEALTH TIPS

Sleep disorders increase with age

A bed partner could save your life, especially if you're over age 60.

Another person is often pivotal in noticing a major "hidden" sleep disorder of which the victims themselves may be unaware, although its episodes can even occur hundreds of times each night.

The disorder, sleep apnea, causes repeated halts in breathing during sleep that last from 10 to 180 seconds each. It is most common in the elderly and in overweight middle-aged and older men who snore. It usually worsens with increasing body weight and advancing age.

A person with sleep apnea awakens briefly, though not to full consciousness, following each episode and gasps for air. Sleep apnea not only interrupts the flow of sleep but can be fatal if unchecked, especially in older persons who already have heart disease or high blood pressure.

Unfortunately, even if a person over 60 is not burdened with sleep apnea, he will find his sleep is different from that of early adulthood. Sleep changes during later years are a fact of life because slumber, like other parts and functions of the body, "ages." It becomes lighter, more erratic and fragile.

The good news is that coping with the "graying" of sleep is possible.

they have gotten all their adult lives, but with the passing decades, the ability to slumber through the night without interruption seems to lessen. Hence, older persons sleep fewer hours or more lightly at night but may need naps during the day.

A change in routine and life style -- such as retirement -- could result in short-term insomnia, the kind that lasts 3 weeks or less. Among the treatments recommended for this type of insomnia in the elderly are behavior modification and medication -- low doses of a shorter-acting sleep medication.

Because metabolism slows with age, longer-acting drugs tend to leave these individuals sleepy during the day.

The delicacy of an older adult's sleep provides a good argument for keeping a regular nighttime routine, even if that means fighting off the urge to take a nap during the day.

Other factors that can interfere with a good night's sleep, especially in older persons, include physical and mental illness, evening use of alcohol, caffeine, nicotine, and dependence on nightly sleeping pills to invite drowsiness. A change in environment, particularly institutionalization in a hospital or nursing home, can also induce insomnia.

aggravated by alcohol and certain medications, including sleeping pills, and may also be a major factor in impotence, heart disease, high blood pressure and personality change.

Two types of sleep apnea, obstructive and central, may wreak havoc with health. Obstructive sleep apnea, the most common type, grows worse with age, and could be caused by a blockage in the upper airway when muscles lining these passages relax during sleep.

Diagnosing sleep apnea in an individual who is awake is difficult because breathing appears fairly normal. Some daytime clues pointing to a nighttime breathing disorder are chronic drowsiness and personality changes.

During the night, signs of sleep apnea may include frequent, sudden interruptions in sleep as the victim gasps for a breath. Snoring is also a frequent indicator of sleep apnea, but not all sufferers snore.

Many sleep researchers believe that sleep apneas are at the root of some deaths during sleep -- the so-called "peaceful" deaths -- many of which could be caused by apnea-induced heart attacks or strokes.

COPING WITH THE GRAYING OF SLEEP

Someone who suspects he is afflicted with sleep apnea should see a doctor, who may recommend a visit to a sleep disorders clinic for evaluation and testing. The tests could mean spending a night or 2 in a sleep laboratory, but in the long run the visit could be a life-saving investment.

Among the treatments for sleep apnea are weight loss, medication that steps up the breathing drive, a mask worn over the nose that blows air under pressure into the airways, and surgery. A simple solution that is often effective is a tennis ball sewn into the back of the pajamas to prevent the individual from sleeping on his back.

To cope with the natural effects of aging on sleep, a person over 60 should:

*Maintain a regular daytime and nighttime schedule, since the body's sleep and wake cues are not as acute as in early adulthood.

*Sleep in a dark, temperate room.

*Avoid caffeine, alcohol and nicotine after 4 p.m.

*Don't let an occasional sleepless night create undue tension or worry. Get out of bed and do something relaxing and pleasant, like reading a book or writing a letter. Sleepiness will eventually arrive.

For more information about insomnia, the booklet "What You Should Know About Insomnia" is available from Insomnia/Up John, Dept. FS, P.O. Box 307, Coventry, CT 06238.

For the location of nearby sleep disorders centers, write to: Association of Sleep Disorders Centers, P.O. Box 2604, Del Mar, CA 92014.

SLEEP AND AGING

For Nick C., retirement promised mornings of sleeping late and afternoons spent reading and snuggling.

But when Nick's long-awaited freedom finally arrived, he found that his life began to revolve around 2 obsessions: trying to fall asleep at night and then maintaining alertness during the day.

He was not alone in his suffering.

An estimated 90 percent of Americans between the ages of 60 and 80 complain that they experience chronic or occasional sleeplessness, making the elderly the largest age group with insomnia.

The facts about sleep in older persons back up the statistics.

Various studies suggest that older individuals need the same amount of sleep

LEG MOVEMENTS LEAD TO SLEEP LOSS

Another major sleep disorder, nocturnal myoclonus, causes leg muscles to twitch. The afflicted individual often stirs and kicks during the night, fragmenting sleep. An estimated one in 3 people over age 65 suffers from nocturnal myoclonus.

A related disorder called restless leg syndrome also causes these twitches and the sensation of "creepy crawling" in the skin between the knee and ankle. This problem usually occurs before bedtime and makes it difficult to fall asleep.

While these leg movements are not life-threatening, they can be disabling because they fracture sleep, leaving the unaware sufferer feeling tired, impaired and often depressed. At present, there is no recognized treatment for these disorders.

RECOGNIZING SLEEP DISORDERS AND THEIR HAZARDS

It is important to be aware of the difference between the natural aging of sleep and the sleep disorders -- chiefly sleep apnea and nocturnal myoclonus -- that afflict many older people.

Some sleep scientists believe that sleep apnea may contribute to the decline associated with aging, possibly including memory loss, confusion and impaired performance during work and other activities. It is

Santa Letters

Editor's note: All Santa letters must be at the Chronicle office by Thursday, Dec. 18, for publication in the Dec. 24 issue.

Dear Santa, I'm Misty Lynn Jensen. I'm 2½ years old. We just moved to North Carolina.

Misty Lynn Jensen

We're planning to spend Christmas with Grandma & Grandpa Little and Grandma and Grandpa Jensen. That's all mom wants for Christmas.

Please bring something nice for Uncle Mike, I miss him (but don't tell him.) Something for my cousins, too.

I would like a talking Big Bird, some legos, a flashlight and clothes, because I'm getting so big. Thank You.

Huron Co. courthouse relocated from Pt. Austin to Bad Axe

Sequi...What???
by Ruby Maschke

We promised to continue the story of the courthouse and the "Case of the Crumbling Bricks."

To recap -- the county seat had been moved from Sand Beach to Port Austin. But it was then voted to move the county seat to a more centrally located site, and so the county seat was then moved to Bad Axe. The only newspaper in the county at that time was at Port Austin, and presumably the editor reflected the feelings of the people in his community over the loss of the county seat. Accordingly he kept a sharp eye on the construction of the Bad Axe courthouse, both the temporary wooden one of 1873 and the brick one built in 1875. Here's how the editor of the Huron News reported the story. Oct. 16, 1873. Something new about the new county seat. Business with the board of supervisors, who are in session this week, called this editor to Bad Axe. The site that was fixed upon by the supervisors at their meeting a year ago, and generally endorsed by the popular vote last spring, was at the time, entirely covered by forest, and its only fitness consisted in its being near the center of the county, with two state roads crossing each other at that point, and the tract donated being high and dry and therefore suitable for the building of a village such as would naturally spring up around the county building.

We found the five acres cleared by Mr. Brown under contract, all clean and apparently well-done, although one of the building committee said it was not leveled quite as well as it was to have been. By the northeast corner of this clearing facing on the Sand Beach road, stands the courthouse, a larger one-story building with plenty of room, but put together as rough and with as little expense as possible, it being necessary that it should be quickly built and intended to be an answer to a temporary purpose. The frame appears to be a strong one, and the sides, floors, partitions and ceilings are composed of double layers of boards, just as they came from the saw.

A stone vault for protection of the records in case of fire has been built adjoining, and it is now proposed to build an office for the county clerk and registrar, in the shape of a wing to the building, and to include this vault, an arrangement that seems necessary for the accommodation of that office.

The clearing of the land and building of the courthouse and vault have now cost about $2,500. What further action will be taken in regard to county buildings will appear in proceedings of the board, which we expect to publish next week. But it seems to us that it would not be wise, in making further expenditures, to do so with a view to permanency, and it were better to create a debt for this purpose than to spend other hundreds for a jail, for instance, that would soon have to be replaced by another.

The board of supervisors, in this meeting in so new a place, have experienced some inconvenience for want of accommodations, but all take it in good part. Meals could be had nearby, but for lodging they have had to walk from one to three miles. A few brought bedding along and camped in the courtroom. But all this will soon be remedied. Septimus Irwin raised the frame of a large two story hotel while we were there, and will soon be able to furnish bed and board to all who have business at our newly born county seat.

(Two years later) April 15, 1875. Last fall a contract was entered into by R. W. of Sanilac, and the county building committee, for the manufacture of 450,000 brick for the county building at Bad Axe, for which he was to receive $9 per thousand at the brickyard. No opportunity was given to others to compete for this large job, and the first that was known to the public in regard to the matter was when Mr. W. commenced work. The price was generally regarded as a very high one, for so large a number of brick, but a superior article was promised, such as would be peculiarly fitted for a first class public building, but little has been said on that score.

The contractor and his men worked away, and in a surprisingly short time the kiln was ready to burn, and soon the job was completed and a large part of the contract price paid over. Proposals were then invited for the hauling of the pile, and $1.40 was the lowest figure for that job. As the hauling began, reports constantly reached us as to the exceeding brittleness of the bricks, and that even with the most careful handling, very many of them would break. Still, it was said, they will do quite well for the inside, though a little more troublesome for the bricklayers, and so the hauling was completed.

Were the bricks faulty? Were they used anyway? Or was the Port Austin editor simply prejudiced?

Unemployment rates rise in Huron and Sanilac

Unemployment rates in Huron and Sanilac Counties rose in October, while Tuscola County's rate remained at 10.6 percent, according to the Michigan Employment Security Commission. The monthly figures are in contrast to those in 7 of the state's 12 major labor market areas, which saw unemployment rates drop.

Tuscola County's rate is based on 21,900 persons in the labor force, with 19,225 employed and 2,675 unemployed. In Huron County, which recorded its lowest monthly rate of the year in September at 8.9 percent, the October figure is up by .8 percent at 9.7 percent. Huron's labor force increased from September to October by 200 persons to a total of 16,050. The number of employed workers also was up, by 50 persons to 14,500, and the number of unemployed workers rose by 150 persons to 1,550.

Sanilac County had the largest unemployment rate hike among the 3 counties—1.1 percent for a rate of 9.5 percent in October. There were 175 more workers in that county's labor force of 18,525 persons. But there was a drop of 25 persons in the number of employed workers, and an increase of 200 jobless workers. The total number of unemployed workers in October was 1,750, compared to 1,675 employed workers. Most of the state's major labor market areas followed the statewide trend of lower unemployment rates for October, according to MESC Director Richard Simmons Jr. The unemployment rate in the Saginaw, Bay and Midland counties area remained the same at 9.3 percent, compared to a rate of 10.6 percent in October 1985. Michigan's unadjusted jobless rate edged down to 8.1 percent in October from 8.3 percent the previous month. The number of workers without jobs during both months was 359,000. Among the major labor market areas, most of the month-to-month changes were minor, Simmons said, adding that the majority of areas reported jobless rate increases or decreases of less than .5 percent.

Help for dandruff sufferers

Doctors are no longer scratching their heads over what can be done about that age old problem—dandruff. Since most people suffer from it at one time or another, here's some good news that could help clear the air, or at least your shoulders.

How do you get dandruff? Is it contagious, or due to poor personal hygiene, or bad eating habits? The answer to all the above is no! But what does cause dandruff? Well, doctors aren't sure yet. Luckily for those who suffer from dandruff, however, doctors have learned how to control it. Physicians and pharmacists most frequently recommend washing the hair once or twice a week with a product containing selenium sulfide, such as Selsun® Blue's new Extra Medicated Formula. Menthol, which is an extra ingredient in this shampoo helps to relieve the annoying itching that often accompanies severe cases of dandruff.

Hawks in control to beat stone cold Bearcats

It was a different team that played the second game in as many nights in the young basketball season as the Cass City Red Hawks defeated the visiting Uby Bearcats Saturday night, 47-33.

"We played under control," Coach Ron Nurnberger said, "but we need to get more aggressive under the boards if we are going to have a chance against Lakers (scheduled Tuesday) in our first Thumb B Association game."

One of the players who will be important in the battle for the boards is Mike Kelley. Kelley showed that he may be ready by leading the Hawks on the boards with 12. Without a true big man to depend on, Cass City will need a team effort to compete with clubs with larger front lines.

An indication that Cass City is not yet playing like Hawks fans hope they will, can be seen in the coach's rating. Using a system that gives credits for assists, rebounds, steals and held balls, and deducts for plays that cause turnovers, only Dave Miller and Jeff Sontag ended with plus scores. As a team the players were a minus 7.

Neither team could generate any offense out of the starting gate and the 2 teams played 2 1/2 minutes before Steve Ross broke the spell with a bucket on a fast break.

After that the 2 clubs traded baskets until just before the quarter buzzer when Joe O'Mara hit a jumper at the buzzer to push the Bearcats in front, 10-8.

Uby went stone cold from the field and the foul line and Cass City used the dry spell to forge in front to stay. The attack was led by Mike Randall, who hit a couple of long bombs. Sontag added 4 free throws in as many tries and Miller was 3 for 4 from the charity stripe.

The Hawks were in front 21-15 starting the third quarter and Steve Ross helped them stay ahead with 3 buckets on a fast break and shots from the low post.

It didn't take long for Cass City to remove all doubt about the final outcome in the fourth period. It was 2 veterans that led the charge. For the first time in the young season, Kurt Bliss provided the offensive spark that the Hawks will need from him as they battle for the league crown. He scored 6 of his 8 points and teamed well with Miller, who played another fine game for Cass City.

The score was 40-29 with 2 minutes left when Nurnberger benched his starters for the night.

Miller led the Hawks with 15 points and 9 players broke into the scoring column. In double figures for Uby was Joe O'Mara with 13.

JV GAME

Although Cass City led most of the way, Uby staged a rally in the dying moments to challenge Cass City's junior varsity, but the Hawks held on for a narrow, 50-48, decision in the preliminary.

Former Cass City grad offers Alaskan trip

by John Haire
In the words made famous by "The Godfather," Mario

Puza's award winning novel and movie, David O'Dell made an offer that I will have much trouble trying to turn down. O'Dell made his nearly annual pilgrimage to visit his parents, the William O'Dells, recently and stopped at the Chronicle.

O'Dell is a native of Cass City and graduated from Cass City High School and 16 years ago moved to Alaska. He lives in Soldotna, Alaska, and claims that he is next door to some of the finest fishing in the land.

To support his claim he brought a picture of that big salmon that's pictured here and was caught last summer in the river near the community where he lives.

It was while discussing this fish that the offer was presented. O'Dell invited us to come and visit and stay at his home. He is involved in a religious fellowship at his home. He has a very big house and there are always plenty of guests around.

O'Dell makes his living working at the hospital in Soldotna, where he specializes in physical therapy. The O'Dells have 4 children, 3 at home.

Besides the obvious benefits of staying with the former Cass Cityan, a big plus is that knowing him brings you into contact with someone who knows the ropes when you arrive.

For instance, the genial Alaskan already has given me the name of a fishing guide that is highly recommended. It's unlawful to guarantee anyone they will catch fish in Alaska, O'Dell explained, but if you could...

As I said when this story began, it's an offer that's hard to refuse. What's more, it gets harder every time I think about it.

DAVID O'DELL caught this salmon last summer and invited the publisher to do the same.

Pirates lose

Cass City wins season opener

The Cass City Red Hawks opened the 1986-87 basketball season with a 55-42 decision over visiting Harbor Beach Pirates Friday night in a game played at 5 p.m. at Cass City instead of at Harbor Beach, because Pirate fans wanted to watch the girls' team play in the regional finals at Cass City.

The crowd was late in arriving for the game and they didn't miss much. It was a typical opening game, Coach Ron Nurnberger said, with race horse basketball and plenty of turnovers on both sides. Early season rustiness didn't appear to bother Cass City's Dave Miller, who almost single-handedly carried the team in the first period. Miller scored the first 5 points and 11 of the 15 scored in the quarter. The Hawks were in front by 7 points early in the second quarter when Harbor Beach played some of its best ball of the night behind Keith Krueger and Wade Conquergood and with 4:46 left in the half closed to within a point, 21-19. That was as close as Harbor Beach was to come and in the next 3:15 minutes failed to score. At the half Cass City was in front, 29-21.

The Pirates refused to fold in the third quarter and took advantage of some sloppy play by Cass City to close the gap to 37-34 going into the final 8 minutes. Cass City salted away the victory in the final period when 2 Hawks who are counted on this season came to life after a slow start in the first 3 quarters. Kurt Bliss started the streak that pushed the Hawks into a comfortable lead. He hit a pair of shots and it appeared as if Cass City was going to coast to victory. But Scott Wruble connected on a 3-point play to move the visitors to within 5 points, 43-39, with just under 4 minutes left. Mike Kelley then connected with a rebound and a drive to the bucket to kill the Pirates' last chance for a win.

Miller finished the night with 19 points to lead all scorers. Cass City showed its depth as 8 players shared in the scoring parade. Depth, said Nurnberger, is one of the strong points of this year's team.

Wrestlers please coach at Birch Run tourney

Coach Don Markel's grin was a mile wide following the opening wrestling tournament at Birch Run, where his Cass City Red Hawk wrestlers were more successful than at any time in recent years. The Hawks finished with a first, 2 seconds and 3 fourth place finishes. Scott Wright won the 185-pound class with 2 pins. Mike Mikolon was second in the 155-pound competition and Mark Kappen was second in the 138-pound class. The 3 fourth place finishes were by: Bill Kinney, heavyweight; Chuck Merchant, 167 pounds, and Barry Brown, 145-pounds.

Bulldogs lose first game to North Branch 55-51

The Owen-Gage Bulldogs opened their 1986-87 basketball campaign with a disappointing loss to North Branch Wesleyan Friday, Dec. 5, bowing to the academy 55-51. The Bulldogs' shooting will have to improve this week when they travel to Caseville Friday to open their North Central Thumb League schedule. I don't know if it was first game jitters or if it's what I was afraid of all along, that we won't be a good outside shooting team, lamented Roller on his team's opening performance. The Bulldogs found the going tough early and recorded only one basket in the game's first 6 minutes, yet put together a short spurt at the end of the opening quarter to deadlock the score at 9.

The Bulldogs were able to capture a 25-23 half-time lead behind the play of forward Chris Abbe, who netted 12 of his 14 points in the second quarter, mostly on short range jumpers. The play in the second half remained sloppy, as both teams were whistled often in a tightly officiated game. The Bulldogs were guilty of 31 fouls which disqualified 4 of their 6 top players and saw the other two pick up 4 each. Trailing 37-34 at the start of the final period, the

For mother, daughter

Sewing business a labor of love

For all the little girls who lug their Cabbage Patch dolls around the malls, for the girls who bring out Barbie's big pink van and spread her clothes all over the living room floor and for the girls who tuck Raggedy Ann under their arms as they sleep; two women with needle and thread hope to sew happiness into these girls' Christmas.

Knowing the look on a little girl's face when she opens her Christmas presents makes all the difference to Cass City's Maxine Kennedy and her daughter, Bonnie Petee of Swartz Creek.

The two knit, crochet and sew doll clothes and sell them at bazaars. Their table overflows with karate GI's, diapers, cheerleader sweaters and backpacks for Coleco Cabbage Patch dolls as well as wedding dresses, skirts, caftans, bikinis and bras for Barbie dolls.

In their red ruffled aprons, the two like their part as Santa's helpers. One will occupy a child's attention if a mother is trying to buy a Christmas present for the child.

"We like to play Santa Claus," Bonnie said. "All over the continental U.S., and even Europe because some of our customers send them (doll clothes) overseas, little girls open their packages and will have a nice Christmas. It's a nice benefit."

The two sell so many outfits they're continually asked why they don't open a store.

"Everyone says we should," Bonnie said. "But we can't sell Barbie clothes in the summer. They're Christmas presents. Besides, why work to pay insurance when we can do what we do now?"

What started 10 years ago as a hobby-making Barbie doll clothes--has become a business named "Barbara Ann." Bonnie said she and her Mom jumped in with both feet the spring of 1979. Maxine doesn't care for sewing and Bonnie leaves the knitting and crocheting to her Mom.

Maxine and her daughter are gone every Saturday from the second Saturday in October to the second Saturday in December. They also do Sunday shows when they can. This year their goal was to make $7000 worth of doll clothes, by the end of November their sales already totaled $9000.

"The money is nice," Bonnie's quick to point out. "We try to donate a lot. We make so much and we've been fortunate. We each have a special charity we give to. We've really been blessed."

The mother-daughter partnership has added to their riches in many ways. Maxine and Bonnie agree their enterprise has brought them closer.

"The greatest thing I missed when the kids left home was when we talked," Maxine said. "We used to do the dishes together and talk."

She laughed. "And I can say we agree a lot more now than then."

"Mom and I have a very good relationship," Bonnie said. "Getting to find things to do together makes things better. We're both amateur family tree genealogists and we're really good friends. The business is mine because I did the legal work, but I consider it a partnership."

From the first day school starts in January until December 23, Maxine and Bonnie sew for the oncoming Christmas season. The week between Christmas and New Year's they take a break--to clean the sewing room, Bonnie said.

"It's 12 hours a day from October on," Bonnie said. "Thanksgiving I was sewing and stuffing the turkey. Everybody should have something they love to do. Some people go to work because of the paycheck. I go because I love it."

That love shows in the making of the garments. Maroon sweaters with two C's make special gifts for Cass City cheerleaders--or would-be cheerleaders. Lacey christening gowns can be ordered and Brownie and Girl Scout uniforms are big hits. A ruffly red dress crocheted for a Barbie took Maxine 15 hours. Even the knitted underwear for Barbie has French knots or flowers.

Maxine uses a knitting machine for sweaters but she likes using a crochet hook better.

"We all started out making rotten looking stuff," Maxine claims. "It was all right but it didn't have the little touches we have now, because we didn't know how to do it. When we start, we have to make 3 before it's ready to sell. The girls next door have lots of Barbie clothes where one sleeve is longer than another."

Barbara Ann doll clothes are guaranteed to fit Coleco Cabbage Patch dolls and Barbie dolls. Everything sold has been tried on a doll. Some clothes are made with just elastic--so even 3 year olds can get them on their dolls.

All of Bonnie's doll clothes have tags with "Petee" signed on them. You do a better job if you sign your work, she said. Even her 13 year old son, Mark, benefits from this practice. A girl at school came up to him and asked if his last name was Petee. All my Barbie doll clothes have that name, the girl told him.

Picking the right colors and fabrics are important to getting little girls to like their doll clothes.

"We use bright colors," Bonnie explained. "When we get supplies we try to pick them as if we were little girls. Little girls like pink and purple. Little girls don't like black dresses."

The doll clothes are packaged in new Styrofoam meat trays and covered with saran wrap. Children can touch them and look at them without fear of breaking anything, which could happen at other tables at a bazaar. And look they do.

Girls not tall enough to look over the tabletop are hoisted to their mother's hip for a closer look. Others finger the camouflage diapers and some hug the Cabbage Patch in a flowing white christening gown.

Christmases at the Kennedy house were always times of sewing. Maxine would sew new dresses for her two daughters to wear at the school program. Their dolls also received new dresses. Both girls and dolls got new matching nightgowns, too.

Maxine said she learned to sew from her mother and 4-H.

"My mother could sew rings around me," Maxine said. "I was an adopted child and when my mother came to pick me up she had clothes already made for me. She could just look and tell what size I was."

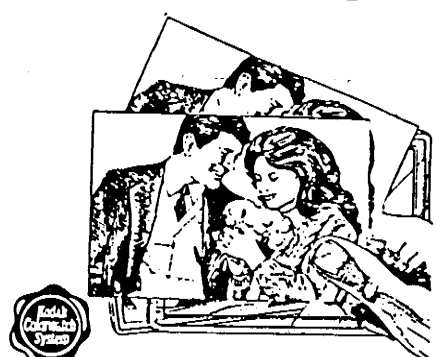

Sewing has been a bond of two generations and is about to tackle a third. Maxine knitted stockings for all her children and grandchildren when they were born and will finally get to fill one stocking with her wares.

"I have one granddaughter who finally asked for doll clothes for Barbie and Ken for Christmas. Believe you me, that stocking's going to be full!"

Thumb hunters enjoy great season

Thumb area deer hunters apparently followed a statewide trend this year in recording a record deer kill of some 12,000 animals during the 16-day firearms season.

"For our district, the increase was minimal--the same to slightly more animals killed overall," Department of Natural Resources official Dave Dominic said.

Dominic is the wildlife biologist for District 11, which covers 7 1/2 counties stretching from Lansing to Port Huron to Saginaw.

This year's kill will definitely rival last year's record take of 11,587 deer, Dominic remarked, adding this year's estimate is broken down into about 8,400 bucks, with the remaining animals being antlerless deer.

"We feel that the buck kill is up, but the antlerless kill has decreased from last year," the official explained. "Overall, we're very similar to last year in terms of numbers."

Statewide, hunters bagged an estimated 192,000 deer, an increase of 3 percent from the record 1985 season kill of 186,640, according to DNR figures.

The estimates show that hunters killed an estimated 147,000 bucks and 45,000 antlerless deer this season, compared to 42,280 antlerless deer and 144,560 bucks in 1985.

The greatest firearms success this season was recorded in southern lower Michigan, where hunters bagged 42,500 bucks and 20,500 antlerless deer--an increase of some 15 percent. The kill in the northern portion of the state also was up, but only by 1 percent, while the Upper Peninsula had a 12 percent decline in the total number of deer taken.

If DNR estimates turn out to be true, this year's season could be termed even more of a success because of a predicted decline in the number of hunters expected to take part. Some 725,000 hunters were expected to take to the fields this season, compared to 750,000 last season.

Estimates to date for the 1986 season are merely speculation at this point, Dominic cautioned, adding that more accurate figures will be available in April following a "postcard" survey.

Some 15 percent of the firearm deer license holders in the state will receive surveys in the next few months, which will be used by the DNR to compile final estimates, according to Dominic. He added that with a typical response to the surveys of 99 percent, "traditionally, we have been very close" in terms of pre-and post-season predictions.

Owen-Gage students attentive to drug and alcohol abuse talk

"Crack," "pot," "coke," "speedballs." A small group of Owen-Gage students listening to a speaker last week on substance abuse were familiar with the terms, which are street slang for a variety of illicit drugs.

The group—7th graders ranging in age from 11 years to 14 years—were caught up in a discussion on their questions about drugs minutes after the program began.

They seemed more than receptive to the speaker, who hopes to never see any of them professionally.

The speaker, community counselor Jane Witbrowdt, works with kids who are hooked on alcohol and other drugs. The program, sponsored by Bay Haven at Samaritan, which is part of Bay Health Systems, Inc., Bay City, is new.

In fact, Owen-Gage is the first Thumb-area school system to request the free talks given by Witbrowdt. The counselor presented the program in 2 parts to both senior and junior high students over 4 days beginning Dec. 1.

Witbrowdt almost immediately had her audience's undivided attention with discussion on real-life cases. The fact that no names were used didn't detract from a story about a young girl who was raped while drunk, or a boy who no longer has the membrane which separates the nostrils because of extensive cocaine use.

DRUGS/STUDENTS

How do school officials assess Witbrowdt's effectiveness in the classroom? "The lady is dynamite," counselor Ronald D'Aoust remarked. "The basic theme here is substance abuse and in (discussing) it, we still have the same human responses we had a century ago—caring. When she makes her presentation, she touches them."

D'Aoust, who indicated the Owen-Gage district isn't without isolated drug problems, added that he's impressed with the full agreement among school administrators concerning the importance of programs such as those offered by Bay Haven. "This lady deals with kids like it's a second skin, second nature," he continued.

"What scares me the most is when I went back home (New York City), I watched very carefully the openness in some districts of drug sales. I saw kids younger than these buying drugs." The counselor, hired in September, said he believes the same type of openness exists in Michigan schools, including the Thumb.

Owendale High School Principal Robert Andrews agreed with D'Aoust that students should be exposed to accurate information about substance abuse. "No doubt about it, it's got to be done in the schools," he said.

As far as Witbrowdt's presentation goes, he added, "It's a good choice for an introductory (program)."

Witbrowdt was hired about 2 years ago to work as a primary-care counselor in the adolescent unit of Bay Haven at Samaritan. The adolescent unit opened 2 years ago, while the center has had an adult wing for the past 5 years, she said.

"This summer, we expanded the (patients' stay) from 28 days to 42 days. We saw that there really is a need for kids to be in treatment longer," Witbrowdt commented. Also increased was the adolescent unit bed capacity—from 8 to 18 beds.

"With that expansion, we realized we needed to work with the schools more closely," she continued.

The adolescent unit has an average of 14 patients ranging in age from 12 years to 18 years, although 15 years is average, Witbrowdt said. She added, "The primary diagnosis is alcoholism, but most of the kids have tried everything."

The schools' role in treatment can be major in that records can be used to demonstrate how drugs have affected patients' school performance, as well as social behavior. "It's typical for (patients) to deny chemical dependency," Witbrowdt noted, adding that a person must admit there is an addiction before treatment can be effective.

"Most kids start using drugs between 12 and 14," the mother of 3 teenage children told the 7th graders. Some 8-year-olds are addicted to drugs, usually alcohol, she added. Some addicts are as young as 5.

Witbrowdt also discussed peer pressure, a major factor in kids experimenting with drugs, as well as how people get "hooked" and some facts about what results from long and short-term drug use. It can take several years for an adult to become an alcoholic, she said, while it only takes one year for a teenager to become addicted, largely because of extensive biological changes in young, growing bodies.

The growing drug problem, particularly among junior high and even elementary-aged kids is serious, according to health officials. Chemical dependency is cited as a major factor in 40 percent of the divorces in this country.

Alcohol-related accidents alone are the leading cause of death of all youth under the age of 25. And, when lost wages and production are combined with the cost of health care, chemical dependency costs the nation some $120 billion annually.

PROGRAM GOAL

"Our primary purpose, or goal, is to let the schools know that the treatment center exists," Witbrowdt remarked in an interview prior to her talk with the 7th graders.

The counselor, who has also worked at a detention center and shelter for battered women, emphasized that the purpose of going into schools is centered on treatment, not prevention, of substance abuse. "If the schools can give us any

A resolution made by the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals to strive for and support advanced programs for high academic achievers was recognized by the board.

High school Principal Robert Andrews commented on the resolution, saying advanced programs may not currently be a priority at Owen-Gage.

"The only thing I worry about in a thing like this is we don't have the excess teachers," he said. "Unless we utilize other schools, I don't know whether we should" pursue such programs.

Andrews suggested that the school instead focus on optional classes, such as foreign languages and home economics, which would give upperclassmen more variety in terms of course selection.

The board approved a winter recreation program at the high school gym, which would be open to current and former Owen-Gage students on Sundays from 6 to 9 p.m.

Janitor Dick Glidden indicated he would be willing to supervise the program at a wage equal to overtime janitorial rates.

Board members suggested that a schedule be worked out so that younger as well as older students have the opportunity to use the basketball courts, and that younger students might be required to be accompanied by a parent or other adult.

The board voted unanimously to allow Kirby to attend the American Association of School Administrators convention in New Orleans Feb. 20 through 23. No financial details are available yet, Good said.

In his monthly report, Andrews reported that the school's food drive prior to Thanksgiving was successful, including 14 large grocery bags of items which were distributed to needy persons in the area as well as to 3 area churches.

A "Toys for Tots" program is now underway, he added. A school industrial arts class will repair any used items donated, which will go to a local "Toys for Tots" agency.

Andrews noted that a college financial aid advisor will be available at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 15 in the library to assist parents and students in applying for financial aid results, "we'll look at raising the price of meals. It's a lunch program, not a luncheon," he added.

In other business at the nearly 4-hour regular meeting, the board approved a salary of $3,260 for teacher Diane Warack for her work in the Owen-Gage Developmental Pre-School.

A yearly cost increase of $100 is expected for the district's maintenance program through Gettel's, Inc., for use of two lawn mower tractors.

Kirby said the annual cost of using the elementary school tractor was reduced by $100 because of less mowing in Gagetown, while the high school tractor cost has risen by $200. The total cost for 1986-87 is $500, compared to $400 the previous year.

The board briefly discussed and approved a resolution to abide by the Michigan Clean Air Act—Michigan Act 198 of 1986—which goes into effect beginning in January.

Kirby said the act, which prohibits smoking in public places or at a meeting of a public body except in designated areas, means the school will have to designate both smoking and non-smoking areas. The policy regarding no smoking by students will remain in effect, he added.

No decisions were made on salary and benefit recommendations for non-certified school employees, which were outlined and discussed by the board in an hour-long closed session.

Recommendations were to be made on possible wage adjustments and the drafting of job descriptions, according to the board, which created the committee last month. On the committee are Kirby and board members Jack Brinkman and William Kretzschmer.

The board also met in a second executive session earlier in the evening to talk with 2 football coaches who are being accused of allowing "hit lines" on team buses. That session lasted about 35 minutes.

By Bill Myers

Race	1977	1983	Gain
White	$44,800	52,800	17%
Black	12,000	16,700	39%

The figures (slightly rounded) came from the Federal Reserve Board. Does it look to you as though the blacks have made no gains in those six years? (Half the period was under Carter, half under Reagan.)

Actually, the blacks have increased their income over twice the percentage gain of the whites.

Yet the Associated Press in reporting these figures, said "The blacks made a slight gain."

The income totals for the same years by various age groups:

Household Net Worth	1977	1983	Change
Ages 45-54	59,700	56,300	-6%
55-64	61,600	82,100	33%
65-74	53,500	84,500	57%

In spite of the displays of anguish by ol' Claude Pepper and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), it does seem that the senior citizens are doing all right.

Not in the net worth of the group over 65 is the present value of juicy Social Security payments — another name for a paid-up annuity. And even better than an annuity, because it gets bigger each year.

It's not uncommon for a man and wife over 65 to be drawing $10,000 a year in Social Security. It would take $125,000 in 8% government bonds to provide that sort of income.

Some of us old geezers insist we're not so bad off. We own our homes and our cars, the kids are through college, and we don't have a lot of expenses we had in our earlier years.

But let anyone suggest that start-up of Social Security age be advanced say from 65 to 67, and you can hear ol' Claude wail clear from Washington, D.C. That shudder of the AARP will crack plaster on the walls and rattle the dishes in the cupboard.

The "slight" gain of the blacks of 39% will never be mentioned by the liberals, either.

Some more figures in the same batch from the Fed.:

Edu- cation	Net Worth	1977	1983	Gain
High school	$37,400	37,700	1%
Col- lege	71,200	82,800	16%

The usual conclusion is that if you go to college you'll make more money. Leaving out the professions of law and medicine, and to some extent, engineering, where a diploma is necessary by law to practice, I question myself whether college adds to one's wealth later on. It's my hunch that of identical twins, if one went through the liberal arts courses for 4 years and the other just went to work, they'd end up about the same by middle-age.

In fact, the one who skipped college might be a little ahead because he'd have 4 more years' experience in the real world. I'd like to see some research on this.

Joles to take legal action

and right," he said.

"We are very puzzled; we were advised by a school official that the kind of answers we are looking for, we would have to go to court to find them," Joles commented. "This school does not deal with assault and battery."

"We're not going to deal with this" on the school level anymore, she continued. Joles indicated that board members are "shocked and upset as much as we are" and that the board had been cooperative at least up until Monday's meeting.

"We (are seeking) legal action because we were left with no other choice. We felt the students were afraid to speak openly about the incidences. Joles added, "Jack was given no choice—his injuries needed a hospital emergency room."

Santa's deer

Santa Claus sure knew what he was doing when he chose reindeer to pull his sleigh. While reindeer are quite small — usually around three-and-a-half feet tall — they have great strength and endurance. Ranger Rick magazine reports that a healthy reindeer usually weighs about 150-250 pounds and can pull its own weight in cargo on sleds across the tundra — or the rooftops!

The first electric shavers went on sale in 1931.
