ESTECH, INC., manager Bob McLachlan points to the company's latest proposed site for an 18,000 gallon anhydrous ammonia storage tank. The area firm's permit application is expected to be acted on by the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission Jan. 20 in Lansing.

O-G board nixes request for stiffer athletic rules

A proposal requiring Owen-Gage School athletes to pass all their classes or face a 2-week playing suspension received little support from the Board of Education Monday night.

New high school Principal Robert Andrews made the proposal, aimed at the extracurricular academic eligibility policy adopted by the board Nov. 11, 1985. The policy currently requires students to maintain a C average.

"My concern basically is the idea that students with 3 As and 3 Es (can) end up playing a sport," Andrews told the board. "I don't think a student with 3 Es should be playing a sport."

Andrews indicated that some students are not meeting eligibility requirements as intended by the existing policy, and that some coaches and teachers will "change a minus to a plus" in order for a student to remain eligible for a sport.

"What I'm saying is that the (students) are playing a game with it. They're learning bad ways of doing things," Andrews remarked.

Under the principal's proposal, students receiving an E grade during a 6-week marking period would be suspended from practice and play for 2 weeks, during which the student would work towards a better mark. If the grade improves, a probation period in accordance with the current policy would follow.

"If you tell them they can't get an E, I'll guarantee you they'll get a D minus," Andrews said.

Under the existing policy, students must earn letter grades totaling at least 12 points (C average) in order to be eligible to play. Students receiving 10 or 11 points are placed on probation—they're allowed to practice, but not play until their grades, examined on a weekly basis, improve.

Andrews asked the board to consider approving his proposal as soon as possible. But board members indicated they disagree with portions of the proposed amendment.

Board President Ron Good stated that he was against athletes not practicing for 2 weeks and then being allowed to play, because of a risk of injuries due to being out of condition.

"I feel that taking the privilege of playing away from them is enough," Good added.

Board member Jack Brinkman also indicated he's against Andrews' proposal. "I would hate to think (we) went to all that work to change it now," he said, adding that a citizens committee helped in formulating the existing policy. "I personally think that this has been working since 1983 and we don't need to change anything," he said.

A small group of persons in the audience disagreed with Brinkman, saying that Andrews' report on false and inaccurate grade sheets is evidence that problems exist with the current policy. Favoritism by some coaches and teachers towards certain students also exists, they said.

Board members stated that the eligibility requirements aren't going to change students, and that parents must take some responsibility in terms of stressing academics over athletics.

IN OTHER BUSINESS

In other business at the 3-hour regular meeting, the board approved paying Tuscola County about $1,004 in delinquent taxes paid on 2 parcels in the district from a revolving tax fund over the past 4 years.

The board last month tabled the payment in order to investigate the parcels' location, now known to be at the east end of Gageton, according to school Supt. Harley Kirby.

The tax payment on the parcels, which have become state property, would be reimbursed to the school district if the state sells the property, Kirby said.

The board met in a 30-minute executive session to discuss future negotiations of a contract with school district attorney James Schouman.

Good indicated that the board is considering a different arrangement with the lawyer, who in the past has worked for the district according to verbal agreements made with former school superintendent Ron Erickson.

An amendment to the district's 1986-87 budget, showing increased revenues due to a recently approved millage increase, was approved.

Adjusted General Fund revenues were changed from the proposed figure of $1.199 million, based on 25.3064 mills, to $1.491 million, which is based on 31.50 mills. Expenditures are set at $1.416 million.

The board approved a "clean air" policy in compliance with Public Act 198 of 1986. The act, which went into effect Jan. 1, prohibits smoking in public places or at meetings of public bodies except in designated areas.

School areas designated for smoking are a boiler room, custodial work room, Please turn to page 16.

Citizen protest effective

Chemical storage tank plan stopped?

It appears that a small group of Cass City-area residents may get its way in a 14-month-old controversy over a local farm fertilizer firm's bid to install an 18,000-gallon anhydrous ammonia storage tank east of Cass City.

The Department of Natural Resources' Air Quality Division is recommending that the permit application from Estech, Inc., 6435 E. Cass City Rd., be denied.

Action on the application is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. Jan. 20 in Lansing, when the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission will hear testimony from the DNR, Estech and residents, and decide the case.

Estech, Inc., has sought a permit to install the ammonia storage tank since Nov. 4, 1985. The farm service center is located in northwestern Sanilac County, about 4 miles east of Cass City just east of the M-81/M-53 intersection in Greenleaf Township.

The company has proposed 3 separate sites for the tank, with the latest proposal to be considered for approval Jan. 20.

Company officials say they want to store the chemical, considered a cheap source of nitrogen fertilizer, in order to remain competitive with neighboring fertilizer businesses now supplying anhydrous ammonia to area farmers.

Opponents to the chemical storage, meanwhile, contend that the proposal means unpleasant odors at best; a serious health hazard at worst. Residents cite Estech's close proximity to residences, the Michigan Livestock Exchange and the Fuelgas Division of Emro Propane Company, among other structures, as part of their opposition to the proposal.

Estech isn't the first local company to try to get a permit to store anhydrous ammonia. According to Elkland Township Fire Chief Jerome Root, Jr., a company located in the southwest corner of Cass City at one time had a large storage tank containing the chemical.

Root, who stated that the ammonia currently is not being stored in the area, added that there were no problems with the storage when it existed "at least 4 years ago."

DNR STAFF REPORT

The DNR's Air Quality Division staff is asking the 11-member commission to deny Estech's permit application solely on the basis of a statute concerning possible negative effects the chemical may have on surrounding businesses and residents near the company, according to Air Quality Division Senior Engineer Dave Yanochko.

"The (requested) denial is based strictly on the site they're proposing," he explained. "It's a fairly rural area, but the piece of property they have is quite small (about 2 acres), and that's the problem. They comply with all the technical requirements," Yanochko added.

The statute, called Commission Rule 901, states that no person shall "cause or permit the emission of an air contaminant or water vapor in quantities that cause . . . injurious effects to human health or safety, animal life, plant life of significant value, or property; unreasonable interference with the comfortable enjoyment of life and property."

Yanochko confirmed residents' contention that anhydrous ammonia is a dangerous chemical. "The ammonia, in high enough concentrations, can be fatal, (but) we have never had a death in Michigan because of a catastrophic accident with ammonia."

2 damage suits filed in Tuscola Circuit Court

A Cass City physician and Hills and Dales General Hospital are among several defendants named in a negligence lawsuit filed Thursday in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

Also filed over the past week was a suit which involves a Cass City couple and 2 trucking firms suing the Tuscola County Road Commission.

Both suits, based on claims of negligence, are seeking damages in excess of $10,000.

Cass City physician Richard A. Hall and Hills and Dales General Hospital, are named as defendants in the suit filed by a 22-year-old Saginaw woman.

Also named as defendants are some hospital staff members and several manufacturers - distributors of prescription drugs.

Lynette M. Harder contends in the suit that the defendants were negligent relating to the prescribing of certain drugs, and insufficient drug label information, which she says resulted in permanent damage to her bladder and central nervous system. She also claims negligence resulted in her losing the use of her left hand.

Specific alleged drug-caused conditions listed in the suit include acute inability to urinate, depression, and a permanent need to self catheterize.

The suit states that Harder was admitted to Hills and Dales General Hospital under the care of Hall, who is named in the suit both as a corporation and as an individual, Jan 9, 1984. Harder was admitted with stomach complaints.

She remained at the facility until Jan. 21, 1984, was discharged briefly, re-admitted, and then transferred to the University of Michigan Hospital Feb. 1, 1984, according to the suit.

ROAD COMMISSION SUIT

Cass City residents Archie and Ann McIntosh, as well as Lake Transport, Inc., of Sebewaing, and Farver Transport, Inc., of Caseville, are the plaintiffs in a suit filed Monday against the County Road Commission.

The suit states that on Sept. 6, Archie McIntosh was driving a rig on Colwood Rd. and had slowed down in order to stop at the Dickerson Road intersection when his vehicle sank into a hole, causing him to lose control of the rig, which jackknifed and overturned.

The suit lists multiple injuries sustained by McIntosh, as well as loss of the use of a 1978 Hobbs single-bottom trailer, owned by Farver Transport, and a 1978 GMC semi-truck trailer owned by Lake Transport.

The hole, which transversed Colwood Road, "had been allowed to remain in a highly dangerous and unprotected condition for extensive periods of time," the suit states.

At Rotary appreciation dinner

County agents bring good news Monday

County extension agent Bill Bortel had some good news for farmers Monday evening at the farmer appreciation dinner hosted by the Cass City Rotary Club at Cass City High School.

Bortel told the 175 persons present that he had just received word that the guidelines for eligibility for Federal disaster aid had been changed and all non-program crops (with no government subsidy) would be eligible for aid if the farmer shows a loss of 50 percent or more. Previously, Bortel said, a farmer would have to prove that he grew beans in the 1985 season as well as the 1986 season to qualify.

It's essential for every farmer to have complete records, Bortel stressed. Don't come in to the ASCS office with records piled in an old shoe box, he added. Bortel then explained that the ASCS office was going to try to call every farmer about the disaster program. If they miss you, call them, Bortel urged. The ASCS office will be open from 8 a.m. to midnight to help process farmers' claims. Don't assume that you won't qualify, Bortel cautioned. Get your records together and contact the ASCS office.

Dennis Stein, extension agent, followed Bortel to the speaker's platform and talked about changes in agriculture.

1986 wasn't all that good, he admits, but he feels that 1987 may be one of the better years. He pointed to stable prices and lower costs for fuel and fertilizers as important factors in a better year ahead.

While he was optimistic, Stein also said that farmers will need to change methods of operation in the Please turn to page 16.

ROTARIANS, BUSINESSMEN and farm friends enjoyed the appreciation dinner sponsored by the Cass City Rotary Club Monday at Cass City High School.

102nd birthday Saturday

Meg's Peg
Post-holiday notes
by Melva E. Guinther

A former Cass City resident, now living in Taylor, will celebrate her 102nd birthday on Saturday. And a friend would like to see area residents send cards to the birthday girl.

Aniela Wrzesniewski, a Polish immigrant who lived on a farm south of Cass City for some time, "would love to get get cards," according to Lucille Stafford of Vermilion, Oh.

"She's a dear lady; alert, friendly and does very well," Stafford said. "A group from Detroit took her out in a limousine to dinner and a play (and) she loved it."

Wrzesniewski came to the United States at the age of 16, joining her 2 brothers. She married a Mr. Falandysz and the couple had 9 children—6 sons and 3 daughters.

She ran a farm in Pinconning with the help of her oldest son after her husband died.

Wrzesniewski, a defense worker during World War II, married Mike Wrzesniewski in November 1948. The couple ran a farm in Greenleaf Township for some 25 years, before he died in January 1973. Wrzesniewski then sold the farm and moved to Cass City.

Cards can be sent to Wrzesniewski at 22970 Northline Rd., Taylor, MI, 48180.

Marriage trauma

By Jim Fitzgerald

During a short holiday vacation, I listened carefully to what the citizens of this great nation were talking about. While I listened, President Reagan went under the knife, a train wreck killed 15, and a hotel fire killed 96.

But most people were talking about the impending divorce of Lee and Peggy Iacocca.

The American people are yearning for a president they can trust. When Lee Iacocca saved Chrysler and began striding purposefully through TV commercials, many citizens began to believe he was the man they could trust to lead this nation out of debt and into a world where the service manager doesn't blame all car defects on "the factory" and the factory didn't shut down last month, laying off 4,000 workers.

But then Iacocca strode purposefully into divorce court, 8½ months after the wedding, and warranty-conscious consumers began to have doubts about a man who agreed to become the second husband of a woman whose first marriage lasted three months.

I was reminded of how the world reeled when it was revealed that Ann Landers' husband wanted a divorce. Should the general public take advice on how to make a marriage last forever from a woman who couldn't do it?

3 Cass City

students missed

And it isn't only marital advice. Ann Landers also advises us on other important societal issues, such as how to hang toilet paper. That's an important point. Just because Ann Landers couldn't keep her husband, does that necessarily mean she doesn't know whether toilet paper should be hung with the loose end flapping on the top or the bottom of the roll?

Just because Lee Iacocca filed for divorce on his way home from the wedding, does that mean he gives bum advice on which car we should buy?

After all, on TV, Iacocca strides purposefully in car factories and showrooms. He doesn't stride purposefully down a church aisle followed by the maid of honor and the best man. He tells us to buy a better car if we can find it, not propose marriage to a woman with a longer warranty if we can find her.

It isn't fair to doubt Iacocca's car sense — or his White House qualifications — only because he was done with his 1986 wife before most of the 1987 models were on the road. To reject a car salesman on the basis of his marital history, rather than his product, makes as much sense as hanging toilet paper sideways because Ann Landers' husband left her.

Obviously, the Iacocca divorce shouldn't damage his ability to sell cars or run for president. So if the divorce is of no great industrial or political importance to the average citizen, why is everyone talking about it? Are we simply a nation of nosy gossips who love to cluck-cluck whenever it is proved that the high and mighty have fragile feet that cause them to limp the same way Joe Slob limps?

No, I think it's something deeper than that. According to published reports, the Iacocca split began when they couldn't agree on an interior designer for a house they bought but sold before moving in. Many marriages suffer similar trauma, including mine.

For Christmas I received a stunning photograph of the Detroit riverfront. It is more than five feet wide and about two feet high. I want to hang it in our living room at eye level so everyone can easily see that our apartment building is included in the panoramic scene.

My wife wants to hang the picture on the dining room wall, eight neck-cracking feet up, over her useless collection of plates that no one ever eats off of because the food would slide on the floor, not to mention the eaters.

It is a dispute not yet settled, and until it is, don't bother me with news of hotel fires or the president's operations. When you listen to this nation talk, you realize the couple that interior designs together, stays together — at least until their warranty runs out.

Accident victim

Dance, dinner benefit set for Dennis, Rita Bartle

A combination dance and dinner benefit for Rita and Dennis Bartle, who underwent amputation of his right leg following an accident in November, is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. Jan. 31 at the Colony House in Cass City.

Tickets for the event, set to continue through midnight, are available at the door, or in advance by contacting Diana Morris at 872-2436, or Rita Bartle at 872-3271.

"The insurance company has been paying for all the medical needs concerning his leg, but there are still other expenses—trips to Ann Arbor, therapy and other things," Rita Bartle remarked. The benefit, planned by a large group of friends and family, is "just more or less to help with our finances."

Bartle estimated that about 500 tickets will be sold at $5 each for the event, which includes entertainment by a variety band and a dinner to be served at 10:30 p.m.

The accident which cost Bartle the portion of his leg from about 5 inches below the knee occurred Nov. 2 while working at the Scenic Golf Course in Pigeon. He was working near a power takeoff attached to a diesel tractor when his pant leg became entangled in the machinery.

Bartle, who was rushed to the University of Michigan Medical Center in Ann Arbor, lost his leg to amputation 5 days later.

"They said they could have saved it," but there would have been several bouts with surgery and even then there was no guarantee, Bartle, 32, said in an interview in his home last week. He added that it would have been 2 years before he would have been able to get back on his feet.

"Everything's going good; I'm healing up," Bartle continued. "The way (the doctors) talk, once I get my artificial leg I can go back to work. I plan to go back."

The couple, who reside with their 6-year-old son, Tom, at 6728 Houghton St., are scheduled to return to Ann Arbor Friday for a skin graft procedure. Bartle says he expects to receive an artificial leg sometime in March, which will be followed by a special physical therapy program.

The couple say they have received "tons" of support from family and friends, who sent some 100 cards wishing Bartle a swift recovery. Both Dennis and Rita said they appreciate the support, which, they say, has played a major role in a smooth physical and emotional recovery.

BACK HOME and recuperating after having a leg amputated by surgeons at the University of Michigan Medical Center in November, Dennis Bartle relaxes at home with wife, Rita.

Rabbit Tracks

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

Everyone connected with Cass City knows that Walbro has done and is doing well. Many may be surprised at just how well. In Sunday's Detroit Free Press, Walbro was listed as the top Michigan company for growth. From Aug. 12, 1982, to Jan. 8, 1987, the stock gained 1,012 percent, according to the Free Press.

Balancing the good news about Walbro is the sad news about land values. The Detroit Free Press ran a story in which they estimated the loss in value of farm land in Huron and Tuscola Counties at about 25 to 30 percent. According to the story, Sanilac County did much better with a loss of only 10 percent.

Many qualified observers living in the area say that the drop in actual values is even greater than those estimated in the Times' story.

Sometimes you find a good place to eat in unlikely places. The Greenskeeper Restaurant, about a mile south of Reese, is one.

They have a general menu and each time there, fish was ordered with the expectation that it would be good. I wasn't disappointed.

The prices are reasonable (low if compared to a similar restaurant in the city) and the atmosphere (it's at a golf course) is above average.

Promoters of the local celebration of Michigan's sesquicentennial need a script that was used when Cass City staged its Christmas pageant.

If someone has one hanging around, they can really help out by taking it to Mrs. Barbara Hutchinson at Rawson Memorial Library. It will be returned, Mrs. Hutchinson promises.

Films to focus on drugs

Three day-long film festivals on substance abuse have been scheduled in the area Jan. 19-21.

The festivals, each beginning at 10 a.m., will be held Jan. 19 at the Sanilac Intermediate School District in Sandusky; Jan. 20 at the Huron Area Skill Center in Bad Axe; and Jan. 21 at the Tuscola Area Skill Center in Caro.

Development Commission Coordinating Agency for the Office of Substance Abuse Services, and AIMS Media of Van Nuys, Calif., the festivals are open to the public free of charge.

The goal of the festival, organizers say, is to provide insight, awareness and education on the many different applications of substance abuse among families in their daily lives.

The Haire Net

Phylis Schlafly would love it in South Africa. It's the ideal place for any woman who feels as she does.

Mrs. Schlafly (who would dare call her Ms?) is well-known and has written a book based on the premise that man is king and the woman's place is in the home. Recognizing that man is king is fulfillment, she says.

In South Africa that's basically the role of women, according to someone who should know. Ingrid Shepherd is an exchange student from South Africa who recently returned home after a year in Cass City.

Shepherd spoke to the Cass City Rotary just before leaving and told the group, "You don't know how lucky you are to live here."

At home, she said, if women work they are restricted to secretarial or similar jobs. Here you can be anything you want to be.

Shepherd then described how reluctant she was to come to the United States, saying she just applied to please her dad, never dreaming she would be one of the few from among many selected.

The first 2 months were pretty bad, she said, then everything fell into place and now I don't want to leave.

Shepherd's remarks aren't that unusual for exchange students. Many of the scores that have visited the community have said essentially the same thing. It's true that these students are a special breed. Young, bright and selected for their personality and adaptability. But it's also true that if the experience here were different they would be quick to perceive it. You don't fool these kids with lip service.

Sometimes we forget about what we have in this country and it takes someone from another culture to remind us of it. Almost always students from other countries that visit under the Rotary student exchange program come from well-to-do families. Most always they have it made financially and many live in more luxury than the average Cass City family.

Yet many of them, including Shepherd, vow to come back to work and to live because they have found something here that they couldn't find at home.

Isn't it great that it's a system where both the Shepherds and the Schlaflys of the world can find what they are looking for? Hold on to that thought when Uncle Sam presents his due bill this spring. Because that's essentially what we are paying for. It's worth it.

Stress seminar in Cass City

Poor showing Saturday stymies area officials

There were plenty of coffee and doughnuts left over Saturday at Cass City High School, the site of a stress management seminar held for farmers and other community members.

What was hoped would be a widespread outreach for area residents and especially farmers, many facing severe financial problems because of heavy crop losses in the fall, turned into a small group discussion.

Area farmers Dave Milligan and Roy Wagg were the only persons to join seminar speakers Ken Petersen, clinical director of the Tuscola County Community Mental Health Facility, and County Extension Director William Bortel. Also attending were workshop organizers the Rev. Clare Patton and the Rev. Joe Robertson.

Despite a lack in attendance, however, the 2-hour seminar was conducted. And the participants shared thoughts on agriculture, the farmer, aid programs and frustration.

LACK OF INTEREST?

"We haven't been able to figure what the key is" concerning why farmers affected by the fall flooding sometimes don't attend workshops designed to help them, Petersen remarked during the informal discussion.

He added, and Milligan agreed, that farming is a competitive business and that farmers don't want their neighbors to know what their losses or problems are. Pride also was listed as a contributing factor.

There appears to be no pattern to attendance at stress and other similar workshops, according to Petersen and Bortel, who noted that 400 to 500 persons attended a similar seminar during the disaster at a church in Richville.

"This has been an ongoing crisis for some time," Petersen said. "It just automatically turned into a disaster within 48 hours."

"At that point, we were in this together -- we were at each other's farms" helping each other out, Petersen explained. "That's gone now."

as bankers.

"I think that's where we're at now," Petersen commented. "We're alone with our checkbook, our financial situation, our family."

"We tend to personalize" a crisis, a loss of crops, Petersen said, adding that many farmers think, "It must mean something about me."

"It's scary to feel you're not in control. The reality is that it wasn't your fault," he continued.

Farmers who isolate themselves should do the opposite, according to Petersen. "Rather than pull back, we need to strengthen" ties to other people, he remarked.

Farmers and other community members can help by seeking out isolated farmers, Petersen stated. Maintaining a healthy diet also is important in reducing stress, he added.

AID CONFUSION

Various federal and state disaster-aid programs, designed to help farmers cover losses, have been debated over the past several weeks. But eligibility guidelines and complicated formulas continue to add to an already uncertain atmosphere for farmers.

"We still aren't positive" what the federal disaster program is, Bortel commented, adding that a 50 percent loss of anything is the starting point in terms of determining eligibility.

Applications for the emergency federal aid are being accepted at local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices through Jan. 30, he noted.

There also are plans for no-interest loans offered through the state, but applicants must show collateral, equity and a repayment plan, Bortel said.

Milligan, 34, who serves as Elkland Township Supervisor, raised a question of some farmers altering loss figures to make their situation appear worse than it is.

"There's a lot of frustration there because you know a lot of guys are going to work it to their advantage." As it is, "you're never going to get paid what you would have gotten" if the flood hadn't occurred, he said.

Milligan, who has a 1,900-acre farm at 6179 Bay City-Forestville Rd., indicated he's "on the borderline" in terms of being eligible for aid. He says he believes the federal government should provide some aid in light of the unprecedented flooding, but "I don't see that we should be compensated 100 percent. People are hurt on Main Street, too, and they're not getting compensated."

Milligan, who began with a 300 to 400-acre farm while in high school, says he agrees with Petersen's comment about farmers personalizing crops lost in the fall. "You blame yourself that you screwed up," he added.

He said that he hasn't isolated himself, but the troubles haven't disappeared, either. A loss of "well over" 50 percent of his 600-acre dry bean crop has led to other problems faced by many farmers -- not being able to completely fulfill bean contracts with crop elevators.

Milligan also grows corn, soybeans, wheat and hay, but prices are less than attractive.

"That's part of the tragedy of the thing," Milligan commented. He added that in a normal year, a good price for corn and other crops would allow a farmer to "break even" on a bean crop failed.

"When you depend on corn, wheat and beans basically for your income... to lose the beans, or to lose a lot of them, you really get hurt. It's just a bad situation made worse."

Last year, beans were considered a good crop, but next year probably will hold an over-supply of the crop in conjunction with a reduced market, he predicted.

"I put everything into this. That's what really gets you," Milligan remarked. "You wonder what's going to happen."

No injuries reported in car/train collision Friday

A 17-year-old Fairgrove man escaped injury Friday evening when the vehicle he was driving collided with a train caboose on Kirk Road south of M-138 in Fairgrove Township.

Gary L. Hall, 5376 W. Gilford Rd., was southbound on Kirk Road when he struck the train. Hall was traveling at about 35 miles per hour, while the train was going 18 miles per hour, according to troopers at the Michigan State Police Post in Caro.

Hall was cited following the accident for failure to yield. His vehicle sustained extensive damage, the report indicated.

Also reported by the state police post were 2 car-deer accidents involving Cass City residents.

Gerald R. Eggleston, 2351 Hurds Corner Rd., reported hitting a doe Jan. 7 while traveling north on Hurds Corner Rd. north of Broadway Road. Eggleston's vehicle sustained moderate damage.

Paul A. Nicholas, 4593

Maple St., hit a deer Jan. 5 while traveling on Cemetery Road 1/2 mile south of River Rd. The mishap, which resulted in slight damage to the vehicle, occurred at about 7:30 p.m.

CC POLICE REPORTS

The Cass City Police Department reported 3 minor mishaps over the past 9 days.

Light damage resulted when an off-road vehicle trailer became unhooked from a vehicle and hit a utility pole Jan. 5 on Main Street at Seeger Street.

Raymond D. Sapp, Mango, Fla., was westbound on Main Street at about 12:30 p.m. when the trailer he was pulling hit the Detroit Edison pole.

The extent of damage to the pole has not been determined, according to the report, which lists Henry Foote, 877 S. Townline Rd. Sandusky, as the owner of the off-road vehicle.

Dorothy Smith, 4189 Sherman St., was backing out of a driveway on Houghton Street Thursday when she hit a parked car. There were no injuries in the mishap, which resulted in slight damage to the vehicles.

A car-deer accident was reported by Mark J. Fritz, who was eastbound on Cass City Road Thursday morning when he hit a deer west of Schwegler Road.

The vehicle driven by Fritz, 3407 W. Caro Rd., Caro, sustained only slight damage, the report stated.

At Walbro Rehab Center

“High tech” treatment speeds healing

Hallie Greenwood probably didn't expect to have someone stick a needle in his ear when he sought treatment for a back injury sustained Dec. 20.

But the procedure, part of a relatively new form of high-tech rehabilitation, recently has been part of his treatment at the Walbro Corp. Rehab Center in Cass City.

Introduction of the treatment marks the latest weapon in the corporation's attempt to improve employee health and reduce work days lost because of injuries. Available at the firm for only about a month, the new equipment and technology involve utilizing electrical impulses to treat nerve and muscle injuries.

"It has helped," Greenwood, a 52-year-old floor supervisor at Walbro, remarked. "I've noticed a difference, less pain."

"I was in pretty miserable shape" after falling on a patch of ice, he continued, adding that he first went to a chiropractor for treatment before seeing Walbro rehabilitation and fitness manager Marty Daniel.

"I figured by coming here it would save me from going to the chiropractor anymore."

Aside from using an electronic needle to stimulate nerve endings—associated with the affected area on his back—in Greenwood's ear, the treatment has included applying electrical impulses to the site of pain through a probe.

HIGH-TECH EQUIPMENT

The equipment, which ranges from $10,000 to $20,000 in cost, consists primarily of 2 separate machines—a Myopulse and an Electro-Acuscope—in addition to a variety of hand-held probes, according to Daniel, an athletic trainer, certified.

Of possible interest to area sports fans is that the equipment and treatment at the rehabilitation center are the same as those used to treat professional football quarterback Joe Montana following back surgery last year.

"The Myopulse is basically used on muscle injuries—muscle spasms, muscle strains, and those types of things," Daniel explained. "The Electro-Acuscope is more of a nerve-oriented machine" used for injuries and problems relating to pinched or impinged nerves.

"Basically, what both do is that they read the level of polarity in the injured tissue, calculate it, and compensate by an electrical impulse," bringing the level of polarity back to that of healthy tissue, Daniel continued.

Healthy tissue has a basic level of polarity, according to Daniel, who defined polarity as a certain electromagnetic charge in the muscle. "When the tissue is injured, that charge will decrease," which results in a slowed healing process, he said. Thus, the new treatment allows injured tissue to heal at a faster rate.

While Daniel uses probes that relay electrical impulses merely through contact with the affected area, the probe used with the Electro-Acuscope, called an Auricular probe, involves the insertion of a small needle and is used to stimulate acupuncture points, such as those in the ear.

"Some people say that it feels like having your ear pierced," Daniel replied when asked if the procedure is painful.

Greenwood confirmed Daniel's statement. "I've never had my ears pierced, but it was like having a needle stuck in (my) ear," he commented.

Daniel also has a probe specially designed to treat injuries involving application of electrical impulses inside the mouth cavity. An example of the painless treatment is accountant Maryanne Neeb, who is being treated for pain relating to jaw surgery, according to Daniel.

TREATMENT EFFICACY

"If we can catch a (non-serious) injury the same day it happens, we may have a person free of pain and back to a normal range of mobility in 3 to 4 days," Daniel said.

The therapist pointed out 2 key factors in rehabilitation of muscle and nerve injuries. They are eliminating or reducing pain, and restoring an individual's mobility, or freedom of movement.

Another factor in recovery is frequency of treatment, Daniel added. An average schedule of 2 to 3 treatments a day is normal. "The more frequently you can treat it, the faster the improvement," particularly if treatment begins soon after the injury, he said.

Daniel noted that the new equipment is capable of treating chronic pain as well as acute injuries. Stress-related problems, such as migraine headaches, also can be treated. Procedures may include only stimulating areas where pain exists, or in conjunction with stimulating specific acupuncture points in the ear or foot, he stated.

EMPLOYEE RESPONSE

Employee response to the treatments has been good so far, with about 40 persons participating since the equipment arrived Dec. 15. "We're using it on 15 people right now, Daniel said.

He added that the investment is expected to pay for itself within 4 to 6 months.

Walbro human resources director Don Tonti indicated he's pleased with the new equipment, which he says was purchased as a result of a request from Walbro employees. "At one time with all the things (Daniel) was doing, we had 43 percent participation" at the center among some 800 Walbro employees working in Cass City, Caro and Bad Axe, Tonti noted.

Walbro opened the Rehab Center in October 1985. The facility has some 25 pieces of equipment, including a whirlpool and exercise machines. The center is open from about 5 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. on weekdays, and during the morning hours on Saturday. Aside from rehabilitation, programs are offered in fitness and aerobics.

Tonti said he's pleased with the new addition to the rehabilitation program because it's accomplishing a corporation goal.

"There's been drastic changes in the number of days lost due to injuries."

HEALTH TIPS

Simple health rules can benefit seniors

During the past year, I've written a number of columns aimed at improving the health of older Americans. All of the columns have carried a common, important theme: Older people can do many things to maintain or improve their health.

More than 49 million people in this country are 55 or older. In the next four decades, that number is expected to more than double. While most older Americans consider themselves to be in good health, nearly 80 percent have at least one chronic health condition, such as heart disease, diabetes or arthritis.

The good news for older adults, which I hope my columns have been spreading, is that older people can prevent or better manage chronic health conditions by adopting healthier life styles. To benefit, all you have to do is follow some simple, healthy habits, like eating right, exercising regularly, quitting smoking, using medicines safely and preventing injuries. Let's review some of the key points of these important behaviors.

Eating Right. Eating nutritious, well-balanced meals can lower your risk of cancer, heart disease and other chronic conditions. It can help you reach and maintain your proper weight and help you look and feel better. Eat a variety of healthy foods — fresh fruits, and vegetables, low-fat dairy products, whole-grain breads and cereals and lean meats. Remember, too, that calcium is important for strong bones and fiber is needed for healthy digestive tracts.

Exercise Regularly. No matter what age you are or what shape you're in, there's an exercise that's right for you. Regular exercise can improve your mental health and physical appearance. It may also help you sleep better and make it easier for you to lose weight. Vigorous, regular exercise appears to have a role in increasing and maintaining overall cardiovascular health. There is also some evidence that it helps reduce high blood pressure, stress and strokes.

A recent study, however, found that many older people believe there is no need for them to exercise and that exercise can even prove harmful. The fact is that exercise, if done properly, benefits older people just as it does other age groups.

Quit Smoking. It's never too late to quit. New research shows that no matter what your age, or no matter how long you've been smoking, if you stop now, you'll reduce your risk of cancer, chronic bronchitis, emphysema and even heart attacks.

The evidence is overwhelming. A recent study showed that the effects of smoking are at least partly reversible within one to five years of quitting — even among people who have smoked for decades. Another revealed a decline in the death rate for men over the age of 50 who stopped smoking. Quitting smoking is not easy and many people may need a program to help them quit, but more than 35 million Americans have done it. And there are more good reasons to quit every day.

Use Medicines Safely. Medicines can ease pain and discomfort and improve the way you feel. They can help speed recovery when you're ill. But medicines work only when used as directed and when coordinated properly with what you eat and drink and the other drugs you take. Because older people generally take more medicines than other age groups, they may have greater problems complying with their medicine schedules. Make sure you, your doctor and your pharmacist know as much as possible about all the different medications — prescription and nonprescription — that you take.

Prevent Injuries. As people get older, they become more vulnerable to injuries. Many injuries can be prevented by practicing proper safety habits and maintaining good physical health. The Centers for Disease Control estimate that 90 percent of all injuries are preventable. The most common causes of injury among older adults are falls, auto-related accidents and burns. Safety-proof your home by providing adequate lighting and removing obstacles that might cause a fall. Install devices like handrails, grab bars and nonskid rugs. Be careful when cooking to avoid burns. Drive during the time of day when you feel most confident, with your safety belt fastened.

Healthy older people follow these simple words of advice. Why? For a better life.

Food/health classes offered

A series of 4 classes on food preparation as it relates to good health will be offered beginning at 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Huron County Cooperative Extension Service Conference Room in Bad Axe.

The classes will be presented by Extension Home Economist Barbara Neuman, who says the way foods are prepared can significantly increase or decrease risk of heart attack and other cardiovascular disease-related deaths.

Additional information on the classes and registration is available by calling 269-9949.

The weekend of Jan. 3, members of religion classes at St. Agatha attended a retreat in the church hall. Retreat leader was David Conklin of Detroit with Sister Nancy and some parents as chaperones.

Post-Polio Clinic slated

St. Mary's Hospital, Saginaw, is presenting a Post-Polio Evaluation Clinic starting Saturday, Jan. 17, at 8 a.m. The clinic will be held in the hospital's Regional Cancer Treatment Center.

It will provide information about polio's second phase, which sometimes emerges as previous victims become adults.

"This special clinic is being held to help those who contracted polio in the 1930s, 1940s and 1950s," Susan K. Anderson said. In addition to the day-long clinic Jan. 17, St. Mary's sponsors the Post-Polio Clinic on Mondays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

New books at the library

MURDER IN MANHATTAN by Thomas Chastain (mystery). This collection represents the collaboration of eight outstanding mystery writers, colleagues, who meet once a month to exchange ideas in New York, the setting for these tales. Dorothy Salisbury Davis expertly describes events caused by pretty, vicious Kitty Coleman in a Park Avenue penthouse where she and her husband Mark entertain their literary clients. Kitty has been rebuffing the Coleman's worthwhile authors, selling money-making junk ("Literacy wasn't everything") and destroying Mark with her abuse, a situation that ends tragically. The other entries equally memorable, are from Thomas Chastain, Mary Higgins Clark, Lucy Freeman, Joyce Harrington, Warren Murphy and Bernard St. James.

THE MAN WHO MADE THE DEVIL GLAD by Donald McCaig (fiction). Cub Hamill is sheriff of Tucker County, West Virginia. He is being challenged for the post by his smarmy, born-again deputy, who wins the election. Cub is more interested in capturing a coyote that has been slaughtering his neighbors' ewes; with the mixture of the respect and affection in which he regards all wild creatures, he mentally addresses the coyote as "the scoundrel." But another kind of hunt soon endangers Cub and his new lover, postmistress Maggie Stevenson, as they become the quarry of a murderer who is a true predator, respecting none of the rules of human behavior.

WORD FOR WORD by Andrew Rooney (non-fiction). Rooney, the popular journalist offers moving private eulogies for Ernie Pyle and E.B. White, ruminates upon the pleasures of working with wood, and charts the frustration of trying to mend one household item, only to be plagued and pursued by so many others in need of repair.

Winter weather finally "settled"

The first snow storm of 1987 hit Michigan last Friday, accumulating as much as 7 inches throughout the Thumb area. Although the weather bureau called for warmer temperatures for midweek, Deford resident and Cass City High School student Tami Mallory believes the snow is here until spring.

"I think so," the soft-spoken 17-year-old whispered when asked if she thought winter had finally settled in for the year.

Tami, who plans on attending Great Lakes Junior College of Business in Caro after completing her senior year of high school, hopes the snow doesn't bring any snow days for the high school. "Let's just keep on going. We would just have to make them up later and I'm ready to get out."

Tami, who lives with her mother Kathleen at 5942 Bruce St., knows the snow combined with the cold weather will bring on some added chores around the house. "I'll have to cut, split and stack wood," the young lady responded without missing a beat when asked if there were anything she would do now that the snow had arrived. "I love splitting, but hate stacking."

Tami also has two younger brothers to keep her busy this winter. Both Cass City School students, Richard, 15 years old, is 4 years older than his brother Darryl.

"Group Insight" nurtures communication

A poster on Dick Partlo's office wall that says, simply, "Take Time to Listen," is the epitome of the Intermediate School counselor's success with students having trouble in school.

The 46-year-old former high school teacher has spearheaded a new program designed to help troubled kids "feel good about themselves."

Partlo's work, and the results he's getting, are drawing glowing reviews from both kids and teachers at the school.

Many 7th and 8th grade students who have heard about Partlo's weekly "insight" sessions, via other students, are trying to get into the program. Teachers, meanwhile, say they've noticed a positive difference in some students—who at one time may have been considered troublemakers, clowns, or under-achievers—who have participated in the special group sessions.

"The main reason I'm doing this is to help kids see that they can do more than they're doing," Partlo remarked. "There are so many kids who think they're potted plants—just there, stagnant." But they learn that "they can do things, they can influence things," he added.

Partlo, sponsored by Hills and Dales General Hospital along with a W.K. Kellogg Foundation grant, completed a 2-week graduate study workshop to qualify as a facilitator and counselor of the special group sessions.

GROUP INSIGHT

The program is called "Group Insight" and consists of 8 groups of 8 students who meet weekly with Partlo. The counselor directs each group in role playing, and discussions on feelings, self awareness, defenses, plans for behavior change and evaluation.

The group situations are designed to allow the kids freedom to express and experience conflicting feelings, to discover they're not alone in their struggle, openly question values and modify ones they find wanting, and learn to communicate with their peers and adults.

Students can feel free to talk about problems they have with certain teachers or classes, for example, and hear what other students think about the same issues.

Most importantly, according to Partlo, the kids get the opportunity to express themselves and be heard.

"First you have to gain their confidence that you're an 'all right' guy," Partlo explained, adding that the kids' trust grows. "They'll share everything, almost to the extent that I have to get a (private) appointment" with some individuals.

"They become more confident. They can benefit more from the group counseling because they can see their peers with the same problems," he continued.

Partlo utilizes a variety of exercises to invoke discussion from his students, such as giving them a list of characteristics—intelligence, ambition, etc.—and asking them to individually rate them in order of importance. A "go-around" exercise, which involves each group member discussing his/her feelings, follows.

Courage is a characteristic many students choose as being important, Partlo said, adding, "There are kids who talk in the group who don't say anything in the classroom. They learn courage from being in the group."

SERIOUS PROBLEMS

While some of the kids' problems involve behavior problems in the classroom, others are more serious, according to the counselor, who cited suicide and drug abuse as 2 of the more dangerous issues.

"The peer pressure to be like others is so great,"

Partlo observed.

Aside from a lack of positive motivation and self-esteem, traits which are vital in terms of avoiding drug abuse, some of the students Partlo sees aren't from what is considered a "normal" home. Partlo defines a normal home as one in which there is at least one adult who loves and cares for the child.

But the counselor cautioned that home life isn't necessarily a determining factor in a child's behavior. Partlo said he's seen problem students who come from "beautiful homes."

Partlo deals with serious problems the same way he deals with less severe problems—by helping the student investigate all the alternatives and the consequences of each alternative, and then letting that student make his/her own decision.

"An ultimate goal in the end is to keep that child out of trouble if I can," he said. "If I can do anything to intervene, I will, because I love these kids."

Partlo says he is especially careful when talking to kids he believes may be planning on doing something rash, such as running away or suicide. Usually, however, they decide to do the right thing, and they make the decision on their own.

Teacher Lloyd Schinnerer, who along with other teachers and school staff volunteers his time to sit in on the group session as a "co-facilitator" with Partlo, says he has seen a positive change in some students after participating in the program.

"I think it's helped some of these kids to open up in class," he said. "They feel more comfortable speaking with others present."

Another co-facilitator,

Diana Williams, commented that she believes the sincerity of the group situation is part of the program's success. "Someone's there that's going to listen to them, not tell them what's right or wrong," she added. "There has been some improvement—I wouldn't say with all students, but with some of them."

Partlo also says sincerity in listening and guiding kids is a must. "If it's genuine love and caring, it flows, and the kids know it."

The program isn't necessarily a "cure-all," but goals are being met, the counselor added. The group sessions "bring individuals in here that I would never see otherwise."

TAKING PART IN one of counselor Dick Partlo's "Group Insight" sessions are Cass City Intermediate students David Thompson (left) and Jacob Popovich, who along with some 62 other students spend an hour each week with their peers and the counselor.

NEW YEAR'S hats were the order for these members of the Greenleaf Extension Group, which met last week at the Charmont. The group is associated with the Sanilac County Cooperative Extension Service.

Miller-Bliss lead Hawk charge towards Thumb B league crown

Dave Miller scored only 10 points Friday night as the Cass City Red Hawks continued to roll with a Thumb B Association league win over visiting Marlette Red Raiders, 56-45.

Miller scored only 10 points, well below his season's average, but may have played his best game of the season. The senior guard snagged 8 rebounds, had 6 steals and 8 assists.

An equally good game will be needed this Tuesday when the Hawks were to entertain Unionville-Sebewaing. The Patriots are the only team this year to defeat the Hawks. The game will decide if the Hawks had an off night when the 2 teams met earlier or are not as good as the record indicates.

The game with the Raiders followed a familiar pattern. Cass City forged in front and appeared on the way to a decisive victory only to slack off and keep the fans on the edge of their seats until the closing moments.

Cass City jumped off to a 10-0 lead in the first quarter and never trailed, although there were anxious moments ahead before the final whistle sounded. The opening spurt was paced by Miller with 2 baskets and Kurt Bliss with a bucket and 2 free throws. Marlette got back in the game in the next 2 minutes with 3 unanswered baskets, including 2 by Jim Fleming, who exhibited a fine outside jump shot.

The second period wasn't much for either team to write home about. Play was ragged for both teams and turnovers were frequent. The Raiders managed to chip a couple of points from the Hawk lead at the intermission, but still trailed, 28-22.

The Raiders made their most determined run of the night midway through the third period and with balanced scoring moved to within 3 points of Cass City. But that was as close as the game was going to get as Bliss took control on offense with 8 of his team-leading 17 points scored as Cass City pulled away to stay.

The Hawks had a fairly good shooting night from the field, hitting 46 percent. From the foul line the team was only average with 10 of 15. Marlette hit 7 of 10 from the charity stripe, but was a woeful 19 of 36 from the field for 34 percent. The Hawks controlled the boards, 34 to 26.

Cass City tops Mayville in shoddy performance

This year's Cass City Red Hawk basketball team seems content to play just hard enough to win and, regardless of the competition, never wins big or easy. Tuesday another chapter with the same script was written as Cass City topped visiting Mayville Wildcats, 56-48.

The Hawks opened the game playing like they were still on Christmas vacation and the Cats took advantage of it to forge into an early lead. The 2 teams played on even terms for the first few minutes and then Mayville combined a tight zone defense with sloppy Hawk ball handling to move in front. With 1:19 left in the first quarter, Cass City trailed 12-10 and with 3 minutes gone in the second period, the Cats had charged in front, 22-12.

Dave Miller took charge at this point and hit a bucket, 4 free throws and then another 2-pointer to pace a rally that shot Cass City into a tie at the intermission, 26-26.

Miller opened the second half with a pair of charity tosses and the Hawks never trailed again. Midway through the period the lead stretched to 11 points, but the Hawks reverted to the usual script and let the visitors back in the game in the last quarter. With 2 minutes left in the game, Mayville had moved to within 4 points and had the ball. But a turnover and a basket and free throw by Mike Randall assured the Cass City victory.

The Hawks were forced to play the last half without the services of Kurt Bliss, who suffered a groin injury, and for much of the last half without the services of Jeff Sontag.

Sontag was forced to leave the game because of an unusual ruling. Sontag had broken free under the basket when he was undercut while in the air by a Mayville player. Because he stood a good chance of injury on the play he charged the Mayville player and a brief tussle followed.

The referee ejected the Mayville player for a "flagrant" foul and then made the same call on Sontag for his retaliation. Both players were ejected and substitutes then each shot 2 free throws. The pro-Cass City crowd was immensely pleased when the Hawks made both and the Cats missed both foul shots.

Miller had a big night for Cass City, scoring 27 points, the only Hawk in double figures. Mayville was led by Duncan Thornton with 15 and Jeff Bailey with 12.

JV'S WIN

It was a testing night for the Cass City junior varsity but the little Hawks kept rolling along undefeated with a 47-43 decision over the Cats.

Hawks fall to USA spikers

Coach Lisa LeValley blamed poor communication and poor serve reception for Cass City's opening match loss to USA Monday, Jan. 5. The scores were 15-7, 15-6, 13-15 and 15-7.

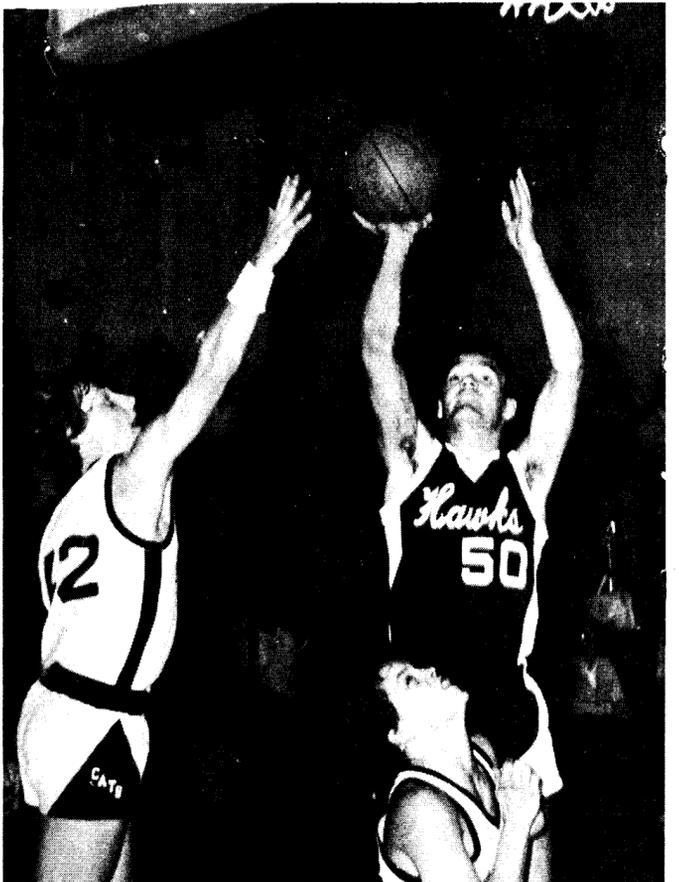

LeValley is not about to give up on this team, saying that at times the girls showed great potential. Sophomore Darlene Monroe was credited with 11 kills in 25 attempts. Kelly Deering produced some power hits and 4 ace dinks in 9 attempts.

Brenda Severance contributed 35 good ups and Terri Summers set up her teammates 107 times in the 4 games.

Communication between team members may well decide the success or failure of the team this year, the coach believes. It's one phase of the game we will be working on all season, she said.

JEFF SONTAG missed this left hand layup against the Red Raiders, but that didn't stop the Hawks from posting a decision over Marlette in Thumb B Association action.

MAYVILLE'S DUNCAN THORNTON was unable to stop Mike Kelley of Cass City from sinking this short jumper Tuesday.

Investigate larceny at Frank's Service Station

Investigation of a case involving larceny of a coin machine at Frank's Service Station, 4083 N. Cemetery Rd. in Cass City, is still being conducted, according to a Tuscola County Sheriff's deputy.

The investigation stems from a Dec. 31 incident at Frank's in which person(s) reportedly broke into a Pepsi machine at the service station. Some $260 in damage and stolen property was reported.

According to the report, the person(s) involved broke into the machine by using a cutting torch. Access to both the coin machine and pop compartment was gained, and the machine sustained burn damage.

The department was contacted by a witness, who reported that he saw brake lights on the west side of Frank's while traveling north on Cemetery Road at about 3:45 a.m. A propane tank with the suspects near the machine also was seen, the report stated.

Deputies are looking for a dark or possibly brown pickup truck suspected of being used in the larceny. The vehicle reportedly has over-sized tires.

Deckerville wins, 53-38

Last half cold streak kills O-G upset plans

The Bulldogs went ice cold in the second half of last Friday's game with North Central Thumb League co-leader Deckerville and squandered a 5-point half-time lead, falling 53-38 on the Eagles' home floor. The loss dropped the Bulldogs to 3-2 in league play, while the Eagles kept their NCTL record unblemished at 4-0.

The Bulldogs started out quickly against a young and talented, yet experienced Eagle team which features two of the area's top performers in 6'2" sophomore Richard Barker, along with junior sharpshooter Tim Stolicker, taking a 14-10 lead after the first period.

The Bulldogs were able to add another point to their lead by half time behind the solid play of Steve Root, who led the Bulldogs with 17 points. Owen-Gage mentor Dean Roller acknowledged Root's efforts in the last couple of weeks had a big hand in the reason the Bulldogs were able to ride a 5-game win streak into the Eagle gym.

Owen-Gage, who played without the services of Chris Abbe and Rick Salcido (both hospitalized with pneumonia), seemed to tire in the second half and were held to just 11 points.

It was Deckerville's full court press that sealed the outcome. Trailing by 3 with the ball and 30 seconds left in the 3rd quarter, the Eagles picked the Bulldogs' pockets twice before the end of the quarter to lead 38-31 at the start of the final period.

The short-handed Bulldogs had nothing left to give for the final 8 minutes and the Eagles used an early period spurt to put the game safely away.

Besides Root's 17 points, Stu Stirrett, the team's leading scorer, contributed 10. Barker led all scorers with 24 points, while Eagle teammate Stolicker chipped in 11.

OWEN-GAGE'S Chris Abbe battles with the Tigers' Al Kochanski for this rebound. Abbe won this battle and the Bulldogs also topped Carsonville-Port Sanilac.

O-G spikers top Reese

The Owen-Gage volleyball team defeated the Reese spikers Wednesday without losing a game with 15-10, 15-7 and 15-5 decisions. The victory moved the Bulldogs' record to 5-1.

O-G was paced by Cindy Enderle, who was credited with 20 sets and 9 points.

Barb Hellebuyck was even more effective with 23 sets and 9 points. Susie Salcido contributed 14 good spikes, 7 kill spikes and 12 good tips.

In the junior varsity contest, Reese turned the tables, winning the match and 2 of the 3 games played.

Bulldogs roll over cellar dwelling Tigers, 67-46

Owen-Gage wasted little time Tuesday, Jan. 6, recording a lopsided 67-46 decision over the CPS Tigers.

The Bulldogs took their first lead of the game at the 4:20 mark of the opening quarter 4-2, on a short jump shot by Stu Stirrett. Although it was apparent from the start the Bulldogs had too much fire power for the Tigers, the Tigers were able to capture an 11-10 lead when Gary Shemko took an inbound pass from behind the court's center line and connected as the clock expired. Shemko's thriller shot would end the excitement for the Tiger backers.

The Bulldogs got the lead back on the 2nd quarter s opening play when Steve Root connected from close range. Root then hit another jumper off a steal, which made the score 14-11. The Bulldog squad would never look back.

After a basket by CPS, the Bulldogs hit on their next 3 shots and were in front 20-13 with a little more than 4 minutes until the half. From there they stretched their lead to 35-21 at the intermission.

The Tigers tried to climb back into the contest with a full court press in the third quarter, which was handled nicely by Bulldog floor leader Stu Stirrett. Stirrett also kept the Tigers honest on defense, as he consistently hit from the outside, which kept the Tigers from packing their zone in tight against Root.

Coach Roller went to his bench early in the second half and 9 players broke into the scoring column, as the Bulldogs enjoyed a 15-point advantage for the remainder of the contest.

Root led all scorers with 21 points, while Stirrett netted 17, to lead the Owen-Gage attack. Chris Abbe was the only other Bulldog to reach double figures as he finished with 11. Eric Reigner scored 17 for the losers.

The Bulldogs will host the Akron-Fairgrove Vikings this Friday in North Central Thumb action.

Michigan's school prexy outlines achievements

An increase in state school aid funding, along with the establishment of a guaranteed college tuition program and teacher competency examinations, were hailed as major educational accomplishments in 1986 by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Phillip E. Runkel.

Runkel also noted major initiatives launched this year by the State Board of Education.

In presenting a review of calendar year 1986 relative to education issues, Runkel said the 1986 State School Aid Bill was the third consecutive effort of the Governor and the Legislature to increase state funds for public education.

"This year's appropriation totaled $1,973 million — which is $130 million more than the previous year," he said. "Not only was the appropriation for per-pupil membership aid up by $90 million, this year's state aid act also included an increase of $40 million for categorical aid."

He also praised Blan-

chard's higher education financing bill, the Michigan Education Trust, a savings program for parents of future college students, and applauded the Legislature's establishment of teacher competency exams which are to be prepared by the State Board, and adoption of a certification system for school administrators.

"At the same time, the State Board of Education, for the third consecutive year since the establishment of a 'Blueprint for Action' in 1984, took further steps, to increase the proficiency of the teaching profession and that will continue in the coming year," Runkel said.

The Board this year gave final approval to a set of new teacher certification rule changes, okayed a set of recommendations aimed at solving Michigan's new teacher needs, tripled the number of teachers and the amount of money allocated to them in mini-grants, and scheduled a series of teacher forums for early 1987 to provide input from Michigan teachers on ways to improve education in the state.

"1986 also saw the establishment of more appropriate rules governing special education in the state as well as the approval of new administrative rules that will streamline state funding of school transportation," Runkel said.

The board also launched pilot testing of a proposed school accreditation system for elementary and junior high schools, he noted.

Runkel said student achievement during 1986 on the Michigan Education Assessment Tests hit an all-time high on five of the six tests.

And Michigan college-bound high school students again scored above the national average on both the American College Test (ACT) and the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT).

"Citizen ratings of the public schools in 1986, as reported in the 6th annual Michigan Education Poll, were the highest recorded in the six-year history of that annual barometer of public opinion about Michigan's public schools," Runkel concluded.

To discuss needs of gifted child

A presentation on "Understanding the Socio/Emotional Needs of Gifted Children" will be given beginning at 7 p.m. Monday at the Tuscola Area Skill Center.

The program is being sponsored by the Tuscola Intermediate School District and Tuscola Gifted and Talented Consortium.

Sue Rummel, a certified guidance counselor, will discuss problems encountered by gifted children. Her presentation will include explaining ways to deal with the gifted child's tendency toward perfectionism and over-sensitivity, and types of school adjustment problems.

Rummel, who studied under Dr. James Webb, noted author of "Guiding the Gifted Child," will conduct a question/answer session following the presentation. Interested persons may meet informally with Rummel and Intermediate School District Gifted and Talented program supervisor Trix Harbin at the conclusion of the program.

A registration fee is being charged. Additional information is available by calling 673-2144.

Letter to the editor

Reader shares "special" gift from Mr. Walpole

Dear John,

I'm not real sure why I'm writing this, maybe I just want to share some special thoughts.

Last Tuesday I attended the memorial service for Mr. Walpole and like members of his family and his close friends, I feel a void with his passing. What's odd about this is that I wasn't a member of his family nor a close personal friend, I just worked for Walbro.

As I listened to Rev. Capps' words, I found myself thinking back to all the times he would stop, shake hands and ask about my family. Just last month, prior to the plant shutting down for the Christmas holidays, I ran into Mr. "W" near his office. He looked tired and weak but that smile and handshake were there. The first thing he said to me was "how are those two lovely children of yours." How did he always remember. I'm not even sure how many kids he has.

Rev. Capps spoke of the gifts Mr. Walpole would buy for friends and family. I guess I never realized until now I was one of those to receive one of his gifts, his friendship. Thank-you, Mr. Walpole.

Sesquicentennial

Kick-off dinner slated Jan. 26

Cass City will join more than 3,000 other communities across the state celebrating Michigan's 150th birthday, with a kick-off sesquicentennial dinner slated for 6:30 p.m. Jan. 26 at Cass City High School.

Organizers planned the dinner for the same date in which Michigan became

Squid travel

Jet travel may not be so modern after all. In fact, Ranger Rick magazine reports that jet propulsion has been used by squid for millions of years. While jet airplanes take air in and blast it out the back, the squid uses water power the same way to make fast getaways.

Snails and slugs have a remarkable homing instinct. Each has been observed to return to the same area, even the same plant, from which it was removed.

the 26th state to join the union in 1837.

Tickets for the dinner—$6 for adults and $3 for children under 10—are available at Old Wood and Coach Light drug stores, or by contacting Harold Perry at 872-3016.

The dinner is the first of several celebration activities planned by the area sesquicentennial committee. Other proposed projects include creating new welcome signs at the north, south, east and west village limits; installation of historic window displays by area retailers; and production of local oral and video histories.

The state's sesquicentennial celebration officially began June 14, 1986 in Lansing and is scheduled to continue through Dec. 31.

The reason for the lengthy celebration—1 1/2 years—relates to a delay in the state "officially" joining the union.

In June 1835, the state's constitution was drafted, but the U.S. government did not accept the document or grant Michigan statehood until the following Jan. 26 (a border dispute with Ohio caused the delay).

Mining speculators

Sesqui...What? by Ruby Maschke

Exactly 101 years ago, Huron County became a target for mining speculators. This is how it was reported in the Huron News on April 3, 1885.

"Gold, silver, copper, lead. The last Cass City Enterprise contains a lengthy article about the find of precious metals in that vicinity and the prospects for their development is sufficient quantity and quality to pay. The first indications of a mineral deposit was in a stone found by James Reed in the riverbed, which proved to contain gold and silver. This was in 1879. Subsequent search convinced Reed that these metals did exist in paying quantities, but his earnest utterances only excited the ridicule of his neighbors.

Eighteen months later George Lauterbach, a farmer of Columbia Township, who had some mining experience, was attracted by the rumors, and sunk several test holes at different points in Novesta Township. He kept his own counsel as to what he found, but the tests were apparently satisfactory, for last June he began sinking a shaft eight feet square, which he put down to a depth of 65 feet. Mr. L. has, however, continued his policy of strict secrecy.

Last fall, D.B. Johnson and H.Y. Depew resolved to make a test, and with an ordinary spring hole drill, with sand pump accompaniment, reached a depth of 205 feet. At 102 feet were found the first indications of gold and silver. Twenty-five feet below, much stronger indications were found. Specimens of the ore were sent to William Curtis, an advising mining engineer of Detroit, who made an assay of them and reported: Gold, 1 ounce fine, $20.60 coin value; Silver, 11.6 ounce fine, $12.34 coin value. Sample of ore contained galena, iron and iron pyrite. Specimens from a greater depth were also sent, the assay of which showed: Gold, 161 one hundredth of an ounce, $3.35 coin value; Silver, $3.61 coin value; Copper, $40.79 coin value.

Some pieces of quartz picked up on the Cass River a little later, over the line of Huron County, were dispatched to Mr. Curtis, who made the following report upon them. Gold, 3 ounces; Silver, 9 ounces; Iron and Copper Pyrite in the white quartz. The specimens at that time, it must be remembered, were taken from the surface of the ground or were dug from the riverbank, and the assays taken from the two made by Johnson and Depew indicate that the rock and slate veins in this vicinity, from the very surface down, are very rich in precious metals, and that there are reasonable grounds for the confidence that there may be more.

Two companies have been organized for a thorough test of the field. They have agreed to jointly purchase a diamond drill which cuts a circular hole, the diameter varying with the size of the drill, leaving a core of rock or earth, which when removed, will demonstrate to a certainty the formation and quality of the metal. The cost of this engine and other apparatus will be several thousand dollars. The result of this test will be looked for with great interest. In the meantime, excitement is waxing great, and lands are being leased for miles around in the hope that they may prove to be a bonanza for the operator and owners."

(One week later) April 10, 1885. "Stimulated by the development of gold, silver and copper near Cass City, speculators are leasing land near Tyre and Uby, on the headwaters of the Cass River, and also on the Pinnebog and Meade and Chandler. The leases give the leasees the privilege of purchase at $50 per acre. If after testing, they should wish to do so, and binds them to make the test within a certain time. Of course, some land owners refused to lease, and are dreaming dreams of great wealth that shall be theirs in the near future."

Are there any readers who know what happened to the gold rush of 1885? I'll be happy to have any added information about the "gold bonanza!"

Purchase plan announced

An agreement in principle was announced Friday for the purchase of the Manufacturers Bank of Bay City by Chemical Financial Corporation, a Midland-based bank holding company, from Manufacturers National Corporation, a Detroit-based bank holding company. The terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

The purchase is subject to approval by the appropriate regulatory agencies and the boards of directors of both organizations.

Manufacturers Bank of Bay City had total assets of $118.8 million on Sept. 30. Chemical Bank, Cass City, is one of the banks owned by Chemical Financial Corp.
