PLEMENTS

CASS CITY President Larry Davis speaks to an audience of 300 who attended the celebration of Michigan's 150th birthday at the Cass City High School Cafetorium. More than 100 performers entertained the audience in the hour and a half program that looked at Cass City's past, present, and future.

School joins birthday celebration

Cass City Schools joined the community and state Monday in celebrating the State's 150th birthday by kicking off special events of their own.

Intermediate School students installed a 2-story sign across the front of the school saying, "Happy Birthday Michigan, Sesquicentennial January 26, 1837-1987," in addition to 150 paper candles.

Students who were treated to birthday cake by their teachers, also made place mats for Monday night's community celebration dinner at Cass City High School.

According to school sesquicentennial celebration co-chairman Yvonne Sherman, a number of activities through spring are being planned for students. Special events include local guest speakers, students doing oral histories about their relatives, construction of a time capsule to be opened when the students graduate, and a Michigan history scavenger hunt and trivia contest.

Also planned is participation in a state-wide balloon launch scheduled for early June.

"Some of the activities will be geared toward the different grade levels, but it will be school-wide," Sherman said. "We're looking forward to it."

Not to be outdone, Cass City Elementary students also were treated to birthday cake or cupcakes in celebration of the state's 150th birthday.

Pupils studied Michigan facts, made and painted maps and played games such as Michigan Trivia. Third and fourth-grade students also made placemats for the sesquicentennial dinner at the high school, and a number of the students participated in Monday night's program.

Jack Esau presented an assembly program Monday for all second, third and fourth graders which included slides relating to the village's celebration, school officials said.

At the high school, Principal Kenneth Micklash reported that social studies teacher Bob Gengler and a few students made 3 to 5-minute presentations to classes Monday on Michigan history, specifically the Tuscola County area.

A Michigan "fact of the day" will be presented daily via regular school bulletins, Micklash said, adding that additional activities are still being planned.

CAMPBELL STUDENTS, dressed in costumes of what they want to become when they grow up, entertained the audience who came to celebrate Michigan's Sesquicentennial, Monday night. Third grade teacher Shirley Tuckey holds the microphone.

Flu strikes Cass City High hard

"We are double what we usually are," said Cass City High School Principal Ken Micklash, about the recent absences. The high school was one of the hardest hit so far because of the flu.

The flu season runs from December to March in any climate, said Alvina Eineke, a nurse at Tuscola County Health Department. The flu is not caused by the cold or damp, as many people believe, but is passed on from one person to the next by breathing. In the winter, said Eineke, people are apt to stay inside because of the cold or rain, that the southern states usually experience during the winter months.

According to Eineke there are 4 flu viruses that we must contend with in our area. "We aren't sure what type of flu is in the area," Eineke said, who was going out to get the first blood test of the season from a flu victim.

The 4 flus that we may be experiencing are: Bangkok, Ann Arbor, Taiwan, and Chile, which is the most recent virus discovered. The flus are named for the labs that first identified them.

According to Eineke, scientists predict what flus will be most prevalent in an area by studying the movement of the virus and also what type of viruses were in the area in previous years.

From these predictions, antibodies or vaccines are made and given to the population in the form of flu vaccinations.

The Taiwan virus, which swept through the United States in the 1950s, will probably only affect those under 35 since anyone older has already been exposed to the disease and has built up antibodies against it.

But, whatever flu is making its way across our area, only 2 of our schools seem to have an abnormal amount of students out. The high school is double its usual 5 percent absenteeism and 52 students were absent from the Cass City Intermediate School, Monday which usually only has about 20 students absent. "I sent 6 kids home myself," said Shirley McIntosh, secretary at the school.

Other schools in the area have not had as many students out. Principal Betty Murphy of the Deford Elementary School said she was surprised at the number of absences at the other Cass City schools. "It usually hits the younger ones first and then goes up. However, this time it's hitting the older ones and is coming down," she said. She expects more absences in the coming weeks due to older children giving their little brother or sister the virus.

Helen Sontag, secretary at the Owendale/Gagetown High School, said that they had a lot of absences early in the month, but reported only a few absentees this week. Sontag said that 2 years ago the school closed down for a day because of the flu.

Kingston High School and Owendale/Gagetown Elementary School said they had more cases out with the chicken pox than they did the flu.

Pharmacist Steve Eyer, who works at the Coach Light Pharmacy, said that you can't get rid of the flu, you treat the symptoms. "If you have a headache you treat it with aspirin," he said. There are for sale, however, over the counter drugs which will relieve a multitude of symptoms, such as Comtrex.

Marsha Grady, an employee at the Old Wood Drug, Inc., said that people should see a doctor so they can get the correct antibodies to fight the virus.

NO ACTION PLANNED

Despite some encouraging suggestions from the commission, Estech manager Bob McLachlan said the company has no current plans to pursue the tank installation proposal.

"At this time, we're going to drop it. We probably won't pursue it at all," he said, adding that the tank, from an Estech facility in Pompeii, will probably end up at another Estech location.

"There are no hard feelings," McLachlan added. "It just would have been a nice benefit." McLachlan emphasized that the permit denial was based only on the planned location of the tank—one of 3 locations proposed since Estech began the application process Nov. 4, 1985. The denial had nothing to do with resident opposition or technical problems with the tank, he said.

According to the staff report the proposed tank is equipped with adequate safety relief, excess flow and remote shut-off valves. In addition, equipment associated with the tank is designed adequately to minimize potential of large ammonia spills due to truck pull-away accidents.

Estech also submitted a detailed emergency response contingency plan approved by the Michigan Department of Public

Residents crowd school for 150th birthday program

It was a night of singers, dancers, poetry readers, and speakers as 300 Cass City residents celebrated the Michigan Sesquicentennial at the Cass City High School Cafetorium Monday.

After dinner, the audience was entertained by 100 local performers and speakers in a program that was divided into 3 parts: Cass City: past, present, and future. The Sally Doerr Dancers started out the hour and a half program and master of ceremonies was Tom Proctor. The past was highlighted by the poem written by Ella Vance in 1936 entitled "Cass City's Wonderful Fair." The poem was read by 2 high school students from the speech department. Also, a letter written by Walter Gamble in 1877 gave a rundown of the businesses and other buildings which made up Cass City. The letter was read by Clayton Gamble and he pointed out the different sites on an 1872 map of the village made by students.

The past was wrapped up by local historian Jack Esau, who gave a slide presentation of the 1965 village centennial celebration and also some of his own slides that dated back to 1905 and were rarely seen.

The present and part of the future was dedicated to speakers. Grade school principal Dorland Kuntz spoke of 1987 school activities. "Projects are being planned throughout the year," he said. Among some of the activities, there will be planting the white pine, competition in the form of trivia, and essays, and each school may put on a mini-musical with the theme, "Make Michigan Mine."

President of Cass City Larry Davis spoke of preparing for the 21st century. "We have to assess the future of Cass City and prepare for the 21st century," said Davis. "I am convinced we are a community of doers." He mentioned some of the industry that will help us in the future such as the new waste water treatment plant and Walbro Corporation. "The future is very positive...as long as we give more to the community than what we take out, we will continue to be a strong community and a good place to work," said Davis.

Geraldine Prieskorn gave a very short speech entitled "Chamber Opens the Doors." She said that the Chamber of Commerce will be reorganized and that they will be "looking to make our downtown area more pleasant and more convenient." Prieskorn also announced a contest to design new entrance signs for Cass City. The winner will receive $100 to be spent in Cass City. "Get involved," said Prieskorn. "Come help us have some fun."

The last speaker of the evening was Lambert Althaver, who spoke about the Economic Development Corporation. He praised the foresight of those individuals "who put hard-earned money" into industrial and economic development of the city some 35-40 years ago. He spoke of the 600-700 jobs that are available to Cass City residents, 400 of which are professional. We must "live, learn and compete in the global world," said Althaver. "Cass City so many times in the past has changed with the world, to grow and prosper." He urged the village to continue to change.

Campbell Elementary students gave a short presentation of what they want to be when they grow up, and recited a "Happy Birthday" poem for Michigan.

The night drew to a close with the Tom Thumb Singers performing "Michigan Morn," from the folk opera, "Michigan Dream," and "God Bless the U.S.A."

Commission kills Estech plan for ammonia tank

An area fertilizer firm's bid to install an 18,000-gallon anhydrous ammonia tank apparently is dead following denial of the company's permit application last week by the state Air Pollution Control Commission.

The denial came Jan. 20 in Lansing following a 2-hour hearing which included testimony from the Department of Natural Resources' Air Quality Division staff, 2 area residents and representatives from Estech, Inc., 6435 E. Cass City Rd.

The commission's decision was based solely on the location of the proposed chemical tank, according to Air Quality Division District Supervisor Mark Reed, who attended last week's hearing.

Reed helped draft the staff report recommending denial of Estech's application.

Estech, located some 4 miles east of Cass City in Sanilac County's Greenleaf Township, had most recently proposed placing the tank toward the rear of the company's 2-acre parcel, some 50 feet north of the Michigan Livestock Exchange.

That proposal, according to Reed, meant that Commission Rule 901 could not be assured by the company.

The rule states that no person shall "cause or permit the emission of an air contaminant or water vapor in quantities that cause...injurious effects to human health or safety, animal life, plant life of significant value, or property; unreasonable interference with the comfortable enjoyment of life and property."

According to the staff report, some 200 people (100 at any one time) and 2,000 livestock are in and out of the Michigan Livestock Exchange during business hours every Tuesday.

The report also states that the nearest emergency agency is in Cass City, with an estimated response time of 20 minutes.

Reed indicated that the commission's denial of Estech's application doesn't necessarily eliminate the company's options. Aside from appeal procedures, "if they can think of (site) alternatives...they can re-submit those."

Fighting SAD

by Melva E. Guinther

We all know a few of those rare individuals who thrive on winter, and enjoy a state of euphoria when temperatures plummet or a snow storm hits.

These skiers, skaters, snowmobilers and tobogganers are entitled to their weird weather preference. However, a host of us kindred spirits consider winter a necessary evil. We don't like being cold, wading through snow and slipping on ice. Spending half an hour bundling up and scraping the windshield to go to the store is not our idea of fun.

Consequently, long Michigan winters present the potential for seasonal affective disorders (SAD), otherwise known as mid-winter depression or the February blahs.

Fortunately, most of us can fend off SAD attacks with a few preventive techniques.

Studies indicate that winter's drabness and lack of sunshine contribute to depression. Hence, wearing and surrounding oneself with bright colors and implementing artificial light are deterrents.

Taking up a new hobby or resuming an old one can help get you through the winter. It's even better if you can pursue your pastime with others. The social aspect also discourages depression.

If you're fortunate enough to have a congenial friend or relative in a warmer climate, it's an ideal time to schedule a visit. It breaks up the monotony of winter, and by the time you return, spring is practically around the corner.

Even a weekend outing away from it all helps. When our kids were young, we used to take them out of school a couple of days and head for a motel with indoor recreational facilities. Swimming was never more enjoyable than when looking outside at the snow.

Working on a jigsaw puzzle will keep you occupied and give a sense of accomplishment.

Bird watching can be fun if you have a backyard feeder.

How about dusting off the table games and having some friends over?

An exercise program can do wonders for the psyche, besides counterbalancing the tendency to overeat during cold weather, and, yes, it can be done in the comfort of home.

Winter is a great time to catch up on reading, and if reading isn't your cup of tea, the library has "talking books" on cassettes.

You could even learn a language via tapes. The great advantage of audio cassettes is that you can listen to them almost anywhere while doing almost anything.

These are just a few suggestions for coping with winter.

If our son moves back from California and we have to give up our annual visit, I hope someone will remind me of them.

4-H leaders invited to Leadermete program

4-H adult and teen leaders in the East Central Region are invited to attend a special one-day Leadermete Program, planned by the 4-H staff members in those counties. The program will be held in Frankenthum Saturday, Feb. 28.

The theme for the day is "Take A Look At Us Now" and volunteers are invited to come and see how they have been improved in making sure that local 4-H programs meet the needs of young people in their neighborhoods.

Dean James Anderson, Vice-Provost and Dean of the College of Agriculture and National Resources at Michigan State University, will be the keynote speaker and will discuss the important role that 4-H volunteers play in achieving Michigan State University's land grant mission.

4-H leaders will be able to attend 2 of 6 sessions to get ideas for helping strengthen their local clubs. The topics for these sessions include: Creative Leaders Take Risks; Time with Your Director; New Dimensions in 4-H Resources; Working with Special Members; Developing You, Developing Youth, and Special for Teens.

The registration fee is $5.00 per volunteer as the event is being co-sponsored by the Michigan 4-H Foundation. Morning refreshments, lunch and workshop materials are all included in this fee.

Leaders who are interested in participating in this program should contact the 4-H office at 517-673-5999, ext. 228, states John Wurm, Extension 4-H Youth Agent. Registration deadline is Feb. 13.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

How much is a guinea pig worth? Plenty if it's a pet. Kevin Asher, son of the Dave Ashers, has one. The Ashers moved to Arizona last week and the guinea pig had to go along.

It's harder for a pig to fly than it is for regular passengers. First a trip to the vet was necessary to get a health inspection.

Then the family had to be at the airport 2½ hours early to book pig passage.

Last, but certainly not least, it cost $42 for a pig ticket.

No serious injuries in 2-car crash Jan. 21

No serious injuries were reported in a 2-car accident Jan. 21 in Cass City which resulted in extensive damage to both vehicles.

According to the Cass City Police Department, a vehicle driven by Lyle A. Krohn, Bad Axe, was on Main Street making a left turn onto Seeger Street when it collided with a westbound vehicle driven by Brian C. Hunt, 4386 Seeger St.

Witnesses said that Krohn's vehicle had turned into the path of Hunt's vehicle, the report stated. They also said that Krohn was very slow in making the turn, and that Hunt didn't slow down.

No citations were issued. A vehicle driven by Connie M. Hartsell, 1760 Burman Rd., Deford, sustained light to moderate damage Friday evening when it struck another vehicle in the rear on Cass City Road east of Brooker Street.

Hartsell's vehicle struck the other vehicle, driven by Terry L. Edwards, 2178 Gardner Rd., Berkley, as Edwards was making a left turn onto a private drive.

Edwards' vehicle sustained slight damage, the report stated.

Slight damage was reported in a minor 2-car accident Saturday on Main Street west of Sherman Street involving a Deford man.

John F. Schwartz, 6128 Deckerville Rd., left his car unattended with the engine running when it made a U-turn backwards on its own power and struck a vehicle owned by Jeffrey L. Hartel, Mount Pleasant.

A vehicle driven by Michael J. Rozumny, 620 Woods Rd., Snover, backed into a parked vehicle on Seeger Street north of Main Street Jan. 19.

The other vehicle, owned by Irvin W. Kitchin, 4450 VanDyke Rd., Decker, sustained slight damage.

Cass City resident Lisa M. Parrish, 4868 Dodge Rd., reported Saturday that someone hit her vehicle while parked at the Charmont, 6138 E. Cass City Rd.

Also reporting a vehicle "hit and run" accident was Thomas Burns, 6911 Elmwood Rd., whose legally parked vehicle sustained slight damage when someone hit it on private property.

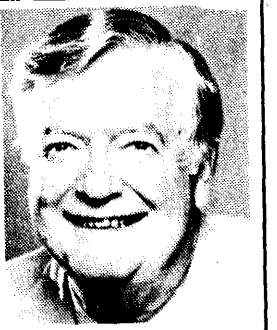

A deer/car mishap was reported by Adveda M. Otulakowski, 7155 Kelly Rd. Otulakowski was westbound on Kelly Road Thursday evening when she struck and killed a deer about 1/2 mile east of Cemetery Road.

Light damage was sustained by the vehicle, the report stated.

"If It Fitz..."

Pre-bowl rambling

By Jim Fitzgerald

Tricia's first birthday party was dying down. The presents had been opened, and the older people had taken over the dinner-table conversation, pursuing adult subjects in carefully chosen words that wouldn't be understood by young ears too tender for exposure to the ribald attitudes of their sophisticated elders.

It was noted that my son-in-law had constructed a rustic tool shed on the back edge of his property, close to the woods. I opined that he would probably require me to sleep there with his lawn mower and fertilizer on overnight visits, instead of my usual spot on a cot in the basement.

"I trust the shed's indoor plumbing is sufficient to accommodate my morning ablutions," I said.

"You can disappear discreetly into the trees," my wife suggested.

And five-year-old Emily said: "If you go in the woods, an animal will bite your butt."

You'll be surprised to learn that the column subject for today is the Super Bowl.

A few days earlier, Emily had summoned me into her bedroom for a private conversation. "I want to talk to you about Mom and Grandma," she said. "They never stop talking to each other."

It is true. When my wife gets together with either of our daughters, it is non-stop chatter city from dawn until bedtime. And on a few occasions I've gotten up for breakfast to find the two or three of them standing in the hallway, between bedrooms, still saying good night.

It is my custom to point out that the only time my son and I converse is when either one of us can't reach the butter. It is my wife's custom to accuse me of being a sexist, which is unfair. I am a realist.

No matter what feminists say, women do talk more than men. I don't know why; I can't know everything. I think it has something to do with women abhorring vacuum cleaners, which can be silenced simply by pulling a plug. But it's no fun to sleep with a vacuum cleaner.

Anyway, Emily's problem is she's been brought up to never interrupt her elders when they're talking. But if Emily never interrupts her Mom and Grandma, they won't know it's time to go to her college commencement exercises.

Agreeing that the non-stop, never-interrupt talking was a serious problem, I asked Emily what we should do about it.

"Maybe we'll have to kill one of them," she said.

"Which one?"

"Well, you probably don't want to kill your wife," Emily said, "so I guess that's it for Mom."

As for Tricia's birthday, it was celebrated traditionally. The tradition is for my oldest daughter to bake a cake in the image of a clown, decorate it with all sorts of frosting and candy, and then allow the birthday celebrant to have his or her way with it. The way of a one-year-old is to dive into the cake face first.

The best part was that Tricia was sped directly from the ruins of the cake to the bathtub. At the top of my favorite things to do is watch a baby splash and squirm while my daughter tries to get her clean. It's even more fun than hearing a five-year-old interrupt her elders to issue a butt-protection bulletin. I just stand over the tub and chuckle like a goof, and remember that my daughter's grandpa did the exact same thing when she was the baby.

But what has all this got to do with the Super Bowl? Well, NBC-TV interviewed a New York Giants fan who seriously said that having "a happy, healthy football team" gave him as much joy as having "a happy, healthy baby."

You hear or read a lot of unbelievable nonsense during the interminable days preceding the Super Bowl, but nothing more unbelievable than that.

Your neighbor says

Plan on snow for St. Paddy's Day

The talk on the street these days seems to be centering on when the big one will hit. Although it was mighty chilly for Super Bowl Sunday, the town has had a mild winter. Some are hoping that Old Man Winter will decide to take an extended vacation, while others wait impatiently so they will have enough of the white fluff to break their fall while skiing. Now that the Super Bowl is over, it's time to lay your bets on when we will feel the full wrath of winter.

Rita Ostrowski of 501 S. Goetze, Carsonville, has laid her bet on St. Patrick's Day. "Usually when we have had mild winters in the past we get a really great storm around St. Patrick's Day. I think we are going to have snow well after St. Patrick's Day."

Ostrowski visits Cass City 2 to 3 times a month and is a native of the Thumb area. So, all you Irish who are hoping for a little green this St. Paddy's Day, don't be surprised if Old Man Winter pays a visit and snows on your parade.

Man files B & E complaint against sister after break-in

A reported breaking and entering complaint by a 25-year-old Deford man against his sister remains under investigation, according to a Tuscola County Sheriff's Department report.

According to the report, Gary Spencer, 1036 N. Kingston Rd., left his residence Jan. 16 and returned home Jan. 17 to find a door kicked in and some lights on.

He also found a note written by his sister, Karen S. Freeman, 34, 1553 Michael Drive, Alger, which stated that she had waited outside the home for Spencer to return, but that she broke in because she was cold.

Spencer, who indicated he may press charges, told a Sheriff's deputy that "he has never liked his sister" and that if he had broken into her home, she would press charges.

Spencer estimated damages to be about $200.

A 21-year-old Gagetown man was arrested Saturday evening in Cass City on suspicion of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Steven J. Kamrad, 2682 E. Hoppe Rd., was stopped after being observed driving southbound on Leach Street without lights for a distance of about 100 yards.

A Koylton Township youth reported that a neighbor shot and killed his puppy Jan. 18.

According to the report, a puppy owned by the 14-year-old was loose and entered a livestock pen at the David J. Kenward, Jr., residence, 5260 S. Kingston Rd. The animal was attacking geese in the pen, according to Kenward.

The report stated that Kenward had a legal right to shoot the animal, although he might have taken less drastic steps considering the dog's age—that it was probably "playing" with, not attacking the geese.

Sheriff's Department

2 from Cass City cited

Two Cass City-area residents were cited by Tuscola County Sheriff deputies in separate vehicle accidents over the past week.

Joyce M. Loomis, 4796 E. Cass City Road was cited for failing to stop in an assured clear distance ahead in connection with a 2-car accident Saturday on M-81 west of Birchwood Drive.

Loomis was traveling eastbound on M-81 behind a vehicle driven by Patricia L. Richardson, 1570 Maplewood Drive, Caro, when Richardson attempted to make a right turn onto Birchwood Drive. Loomis struck Richardson's vehicle, causing light damage, the report stated.

In a separate mishap, Michael K. Jones, 6809 Heron Drive, Cass City, was cited for driving left of the road centerline after an accident Friday on Koepfgen Road near Milligan Road.

Jones was southbound and the other vehicle, driven by a 16-year-old Decker resident, was northbound on Koepfgen Road when the vehicles collided. The report stated that Jones' vehicle was 1 1/2 feet over the centerline on the snow-covered roadway.

Moderate damage to Jones' vehicle was reported.

Slight damage was reported in a mishap Saturday on Little Road 1/2 mile east of Keilitz Road in Ellington Township.

According to the report, a vehicle driven by Lawrence C. Harper, Utica, was eastbound on Little Road when it approached a stopped vehicle, driven by Deborah J. Dibble, 1745 S. Plain Rd., Caro. STATE POLICE
An 18-year-old Fostoria

Hawe, who reportedly sustained no injuries in the mishap, was traveling at an estimated 35 miles per hour when the accident occurred, the report stated.

Craftsman Pete Martin

Area man's hobby is steady business

A bit of area craftsman Pete Martin can be found in many local communities as well as throughout the Thumb and around some not-so-close areas such as Mio, Detroit and beyond.

His custom-made picnic tables, wishing wells, and swings, seating from one to 4 persons, seemingly are purchased faster than he can make them.

Admittedly, the woodcrafts keep the 52-year-old farmer and part-time bartender busy year-round, but he isn't complaining.

"Oh yeah, I keep busy," Martin remarked while working in his garage/workshop at 4351 Rescue Rd., last week. "This is my 3rd year and every year it's getting better."

Martin turned his hobby into a full-time business about 1 1/2 years ago, when he was laid off from the former Michigan Lumber Fabricators firm in Elkton after 32 years as a foreman there. Six months later, the company closed its doors.

Martin says he hasn't had any formal carpentry training, but his work in Elkton, including manufacturing of pallets and housing repair, provided some training. The work paved the way for hefty sales in his own business today.

"It (sales) must be 4 times as good now as when I started, and I've already got a lot of orders for spring," Martin commented. "I just took an order for 6 tables" for a customer in Gagetown who plans to open up an ice cream shop.

Sales during 1986 included more than 100 tables and swings, Martin noted. During the 2nd week of December, he added, more than $1,000 worth of merchandise was purchased.

Advertising in local newspapers and radio stations has been helpful in getting the products known, according to Martin. "They see the ad in the paper and then give me a call. I usually have (crafts) on hand," he continued.

4 HOURS OR LESS

On short notice, Martin says he can build and stain a custom picnic table, swing or wishing well in less than 4 hours. Customers can choose from different styles, such as rounded or squared edges.

Also available are lawn decorations, clothes line poles and small wood tables which can be used both indoors and outdoors. "Those little tables are really starting to move," he said.

"I have everything right here where I know where it is," He added that he's assembled a small-scale assembly line. "I'll saw out 3 or 4 pieces at a time and then I'll start putting them together."

Aside from the crafts being stronger and more durable than those available in many retail stores, he commented, the prices are reasonable.

Martin charges about $90 for a full-sized finished picnic table, while $125 will buy a single-seat swing. The items are $50 to $65 less in price than similar products offered in the area, according to Martin.

And, he adds, "I've never had a complaint."

Summer is an especially busy time for Martin, who takes 2 loads of his wares up to a flea market in Mio. He owns a cabin in the area, so he spends a number of evenings away from his 80-acre farm located about 8 miles northeast of Cass City.

IMPROMPTU SALES

While sales in Mio are termed "good" by Martin, impromptu sales can be even better.

"One day I went up there and stopped at a restaurant to eat," Martin explained. "When I came out, there were a lot of people waiting out there to buy some things. I sold the whole load right there and didn't even have to go to the flea market that weekend."

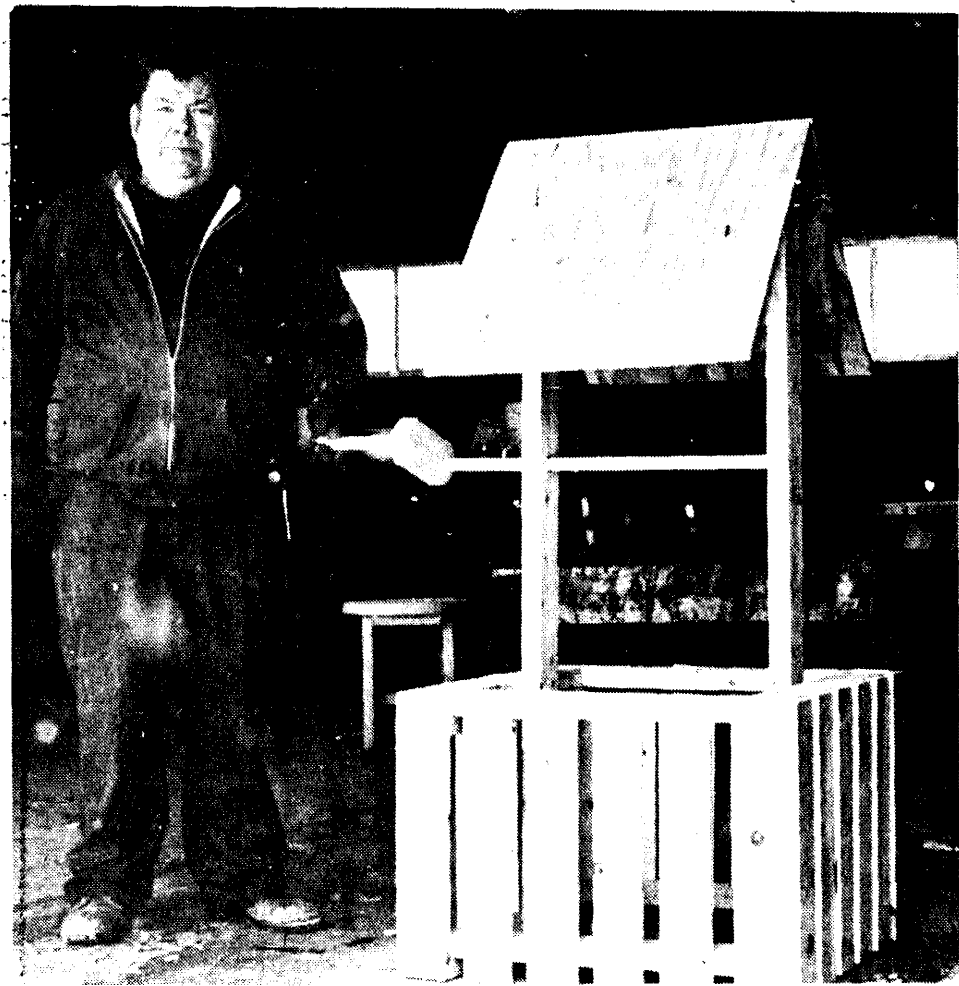

Martin says he expects the upcoming summer season to be hectic considering his farming activities, working as a part-time bartender at Ralph's Bar in Owendale and the woodcrafting.

But the one-man success story may become a family enterprise, Martin said. "If I get behind, my brother's going to help me this year," Martin's brother, Roy Martin, 65, of Elkton, also worked at the now closed Elkton plant for several years. The 2 brothers rode to work together most days.

Martin says he's glad to AREA CRAFTSMAN Pete Martin shows off what he calls one of his most popular sales items -- a custom picnic table with rounded edges. Martin says he can make one of the tables, stained or natural wood, in 4 hours or less.

MARTIN HOPES TO continue building crafts, such as this wishing well, in a special shed he plans to build in the spring. Currently, his garage serves as a work area.

the home of his niece and nephew, Syl and Marge Markey. Mr. Turner will go in February to his home in Columbia Corners.

Since schedules and conditions prevented a get-together over the holidays, members of the Bud and Ed Kehoe families met Sunday, Jan. 18, for brunch at Walli's in Flint. Those present were Gerry and Archie Mark, Tom and Ann Mark and daughters, Tim Mark and friend, all of Flushing, Steve and Barbara Kehoe of Ann Arbor and Brian, Nicole and Justin Kehoe of Brighton, Carol Beith of Highland, Suzy and Jim Krauseneck of Saginaw, Elmer and Fran Kehoe, Cass City, Jean and Ernie Hewitt of Westland and Harry and Gen Kehoe. His nephew, Father Bob Meisner of Bay City, officiated at the service and gave the eulogy.

Ag Workshop on finances

An Agriculture Finances Workshop will be held Saturday, Jan. 31, at Cass City High School. "The workshop will start at 10:00 a.m. and close at noon," states Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Director.

Low commodity prices are forcing farm managers to become more aware of cost concepts and determine per unit production costs. This workshop will study management of these production costs and how to make investment decisions with future costs in mind.

The program speakers will be Bob Tuckey, a partner in the Caro accounting firm of Anderson, Tuckey and Bernhardt Associates; Dennis Stein, Tuscola County Extension Agricultural Agent; Ken Peterson, clinical Director of the Tuscola County Community Mental Health Facility, and James R. and Thomas D. Abbey, attorneys-at-law. The program's moderator will be County Extension Director Bill Bortel.

The Farm Community Crisis Workshop is sponsored by the Tuscola County Extension Service, Tuscola County Community Mental Health, Cass City Rotary Club and the Cass City Ministerial Association. Contributing sponsors are Cass City Public Schools, United Methodist Church, Detroit Conference Flood Relief and the Tuscola County Advertiser.

Refreshments will be served at 9:30 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. The workshop is open to any interested person and is free of charge.

New books at the library

MARRIAGES by Alan Ebert. This novel focuses on three long-separated childhood friends who meet to celebrate their 40th birthdays. Joanna seems to have it all - a glamorous career, a handsome, wealthy husband, a beautiful daughter. Sara is the domestic one, her identity tied to her children and her professor husband's achievements. Dean has used his long-standing homosexual relationship to escape the rejections he encountered as an actor. All three believe themselves content, until a devastating automobile accident mars their reunion and forces them to reexamine their lives. The women's marriages and Dean's relationship come under intense scrutiny. Each of the three comes to realize that in some way he or she has relinquished personal responsibility, and thus forfeited personal satisfaction.

CONSPIRACY OF KNAVES by Dee Brown. The knaves of the title refers to the assortment of Copperheads, Rebels, con men, idealists, secret agents, horse traders, and soldiers involved in the Civil War conspiracy to turn the tide of the conflict by taking over Chicago. Belle Rutledge, an actress turned Confederate double agent, narrates the tale, telling of her own dual role as supposed wife of a Rebel organizer and bankroller, Charley Heywood, and as Calvin Blacklock, dandy Union sympathizer. Belle's male and female disguises bring about a host of humorous situations, including her being requested, as Blacklock, to track down a "scandalous actress using the name Belle Rutledge."

DREAMGIRL: MY LIFE AS A SUPREME by Mary Wilson (non-fiction). Wilson, the longest-running Supreme, tells the supergroup's story from the time she, Flo Ballard, Betsy McGlow (who dropped out early), and a kid none of them knew named Diane (the original form of Diana Ross' name and the version Wilson used throughout) were brought together. They had a long apprenticeship for a Motown group - three years - before they hit, but from then on it was all stars on the charts (though not behind the scenes). By Wilson's account, Ross was always a capricious, willful, ambitious woman who seduced the attentions of Motown Mogul Berry Gordy to promote herself at the expense of Flo and Mary. Meanwhile, Flo - the best voice of the three, Wilson says - spun out of control and eventually died. To her credit, Wilson's avowal of no malice toward Ross - "she's just that way" seems to be her attitude - rings sincere.

HEALTH TIPS

Therapy can alleviate anxiety and depression

Many elderly people with anxiety and depressive disorders are convinced that medical treatment cannot make them feel better. While they might seek medical help for a sore throat or back pain, they do not typically see a doctor about alleviating persistent feelings of fear and hopelessness.

Of the 20 million Americans aged 65 and over, it is believed that approximately 10 percent suffer from major depression. And it seems that anxiety and depression are often inseparable companions.

The tragedy of untreated anxiety and depression in the elderly is that effective therapies are available. This is a major concern of geriatric psychiatrists and other health professionals.

Feelings of anxiety and depression are frequently the result of disturbing experiences -- or dismay at the natural deterioration of the body that occurs with aging and with disease. Some elderly people are not as resilient as they once might have been in dealing with life crises. The feelings resulting from the loss of a spouse, for example, can be overwhelming. Unhappiness may linger, then worsen as time goes on.

Both anxiety and depression can lead to loss of self-confidence and self-esteem. They can inhibit everyday activities and interfere with sleep. When daily life is affected in this way, these "feelings" can become psychiatric problems. Depressive and anxiety disorders deserve medical attention for various reasons, including their ability to produce physical illnesses.

Starting Point: Recognizing the Problem

There is the possibility that a physician called upon to examine a person with depression will perceive the symptoms as the result of aging or some physical illness. Depression is a disease of many guises, and its symptoms often masquerade as other disorders. One such symptom is impaired memory, which can suggest the dementia often called "senility," a serious and debilitating disease. Diagnosed incorrectly, the patient may not be treated for depression or other reversible disorders. Thus, it is imperative that a specialist be consulted before any person is condemned to the hopeless diagnosis of dementia.

Proper Treatment -- the Benefits and the Precautions

Psychotherapy is a means of relieving patients of oppressive thoughts of guilt or self-criticism associated with their despondency. For a bereaved individual, it can facilitate completing the grieving process and beginning again. And patients often gain insights into aspects of their own behavior that have been feeding their melancholy.

In addition, medical research in biological psychiatry has supplied us with medications that can help alleviate depression and anxiety. They often work best in conjunction with psychotherapy.

A variety of drugs available today can raise the spirits of those suffering from depression. However, a number of antidepressant medications must sometimes be tried before one is found that works consistently with a minimum of side effects.

Moreover, many elderly persons who have been treated with mood-elevating drugs by family doctors or geriatric psychiatrists stop taking their medication. Sometimes they do so because they are troubled by side effects. Sometimes they lose patience while waiting to feel better, because antidepressant medications usually require several weeks to become fully effective.

Drugs used for depression generally have more side effects in older patients than in younger ones. Older hearts are weaker, blood pressures are higher, drug metabolism is slower, and drug elimination is prolonged.

For example, antidepressants can cause postural hypotension -- dizziness caused when the person taking them rises from a sitting or lying position. This makes the older person vulnerable to potentially harmful falls.

Another family of antidepressants (called monoamine oxidase inhibitors) necessitates dietary restrictions. Such foods as chicken liver, red wine and aged cheese can produce dangerously high blood pressure when combined with these medications. They should also be avoided in patients with certain heart problems.

The Last Resort

Shock therapy (electroconvulsive therapy, or ECT), another means of relieving depression, is often used when psychotherapy and drugs have failed. Though ECT usually causes some confusion and loss of memory, these side effects tend to be transient. While the benefits of ECT in treating depression usually outweigh the risks, the therapy remains controversial because of earlier indiscriminate use.

Special techniques and sedative drugs are employed during ECT to reduce complications. As with antidepressants, ECT must be administered with caution when the patient has a history of cardiovascular disease or stroke.

The Patient's Job

An elderly person undergoing drug treatment for depression must persevere as the psychiatrist attempts to find the antidepressant that will produce the best results. This means understanding that one may need to take the drug for 2 to 4 weeks, or even longer, in order to evaluate its effectiveness. Delays and the experience of repeated unsuccessful effort can severely discourage the patient.

Only after an exploratory trial can the physician decide whether a drug is the proper match for a particular patient or another approach must be tried. Scientists, however, are now developing tests that may predict which agent a patient will best respond to, thereby eliminating exploratory trials.

There is Hope for Overcoming Depression

Some drugs now available to elevate mood act by different routes to increase the amount of specific chemical messengers in the brain. Thus, they allow the psychiatrist a variety of tools for reversing depression. Because of the advances going on in receptor chemistry, even more such compounds are currently being developed.

Triazolobenzodiazepines, exemplified by alprazolam (Xanax, Upjohn), are a new generation of anti-anxiety drugs. They are part of the family of benzodiazepines, which are considered among the safest drugs used in psychiatry. Benzodiazepines have been used for several decades to relieve anxiety or to promote sleep.

Unlike earlier benzodiazepines, alprazolam has been shown to alleviate not only anxiety, but anxiety associated with depression. It is currently being investigated to evaluate its usefulness in the treatment of some forms of depression. A major goal of this research is to determine whether alprazolam is comparable to the antidepressants in efficacy, while producing fewer or less troubling side effects, as has been suggested by several studies.

Further research on alprazolam and other new compounds may one day lead to better alternatives for the treatment of the combination of anxiety and depression so often found in older patients.

Meanwhile, the appropriate use of existing psychoactive drugs in the treatment of anxiety and depression is crucial by virtue of the fact that over 20 million Americans are 65 or older, and their number is growing. A clear understanding of the proper indications, expectations and side effects of these medications will result in their more effective and safe use by the geriatric psychiatrist as well as the general practitioner.

Hawks sweep past Spartans, 94-48, Laker test Friday

There were 2 exciting moments in Cass City's one-sided victory over visiting Imlay City Friday, 94-48.

The first came just before the opening whistle when the teams lined up to sing the national anthem. The second came just before the half, when Dave Miller sank a basket from three-quarters of the floor away as the whistle sounded.

Other than that it was strictly ho-hum and many of the fans started to trickle out as the fourth quarter started.

Depending on how you look at it, it was good that the schedule pitted the Hawks against 2 teams near the bottom of the Thumb B Association. The good part of hitting the easier part of the schedule is that it came when the team was at less than full strength because of the flu. The bad part is that basketball teams don't get sharp playing teams in games that are blowouts.

And the Hawks may have to be sharp when they face the Lakers Friday. The Lakers are tall and muscular and bruising inside play sometimes is a problem for Cass City.

Although the Hawks jumped off to the lead, it wasn't until the last 5 minutes of the first period that they took all the suspense from the game. Leading 9-4 with 4:57 left in the period, Cass City went into a full court press and the Spartans just didn't have the talented ball handlers to cope with it. When the first quarter carnage was over, the Hawks were in front, 27-8. Cass City scored on turnovers and just about every other way. Key man in the surge was Kurt Bliss, who posted the best quarter of his career with 16 of his 18 points in those first 8 minutes.

For the second game in a row, Coach Ron Nurnberger was able to get everyone into action and the bench played a prominent roll in the last 3 quarters.

Three-quarters of the way through the second period, the lead had stretched to 46-13 and the bench took over until the half. The regulars made a brief appearance to start the third quarter and after that shared time with the rest of the squad. All 10 players suited shared in the scoring.

Dave Miller led all scorers with 19 points and Mike Kelley added 16. Virgil Peters moved into a starting role with the absence of Jeff Sontag, and Mike Randall responded with 14 points, 4 steals and 8 assists. Matt Shene led the Spartans with 17 points. Imlay City, which has not been competitive since coming into the league, is working to become a factor in the league races.

For the first time, a program was held for the varsity last summer, a practice that other league teams have followed for years.

Cass City won the battle of the boards easily, 41-21, led by Kelley with 8 and Mark Hirn, off the bench with 6.

The undefeated junior varsity won again, 49-41. The JV was down to just 5 players because of illness. The starters went all the way and avoided serious foul trouble to keep the win string going.

Hawk spikers top Hatchets despite flu

The flu bug that has stripped players from Cass City High School athletic teams kept 4 players, including 3 starters, from the Hawk volleyball team.

Despite the loss, Cass City won at Bad Axe Thursday in straight games, 15-8, 15-10 and 15-5.

Coach Lisa LeValley credited teamwork and the Hawks' bench for the win in the absence of Shannon McIntosh, Stephanie Burns, Patty Milligan and Lisa Hirn.

Brenda Severance was outstanding with 25 points on services in the 3 games and accounted for all 15 points in the third game.

Communication and spike coverage was good, LeValley said. Stationary hits from behind the 10-foot line was another key factor in the win.

Flu hits Hawks, Bad Axe falls

You can hardly call a team lucky when 2 of its players were forced to the sidelines because of illness, but in one way the gods of good fortune have shined on the Cass City Red Hawks.

The Hawks played at Bad Axe Tuesday without Mike Randall and Jeff Sontag and again Friday and both of the games missed were against teams that were weak enough so the players were not really missed.

What Coach Ron Nurnberger must worry about is how much the layoffs will hurt the 2 players with the crucial part of the schedule dead ahead. North Branch and Lakers figure to be the biggest tests for Cass City as it powers its way towards a Thumb B Association title.

The first of the one-sided contests was at Bad Axe Tuesday, Jan. 20, and the Hawks bounced out to an early lead and were never threatened. The Hawks were not overpowering in the first period, but the Hatchets couldn't get anything going on offense. Two baskets by Ed Draves accounted for all the Hatchet scoring in the first 8 minutes. Things were a little better in the second quarter as the Hatchets scored 5 times for 10 points. In the first half the Hatchets failed to score a point from the free throw line.

Given the Hatchet point production, it is not surprising that Cass City bounced out to a lead. The Hawk offense in the first 8 minutes wasn't much to write home about either, unless it was compared to the Hatchet output. Using balanced scoring, Cass City led 10-4 at the end of the quarter.

The offense picked up a bit in the second quarter. With 3 regulars, Kurt Bliss, Dave Miller and Mike Kelley, accounting for all the points, Cass City was in front, 24-15, at the intermission.

The Hawk defense sparked again in the third period. Bob Brown, 6-5 Hatchet center, accounted for nearly all the Hatchet meager point production as he scored all 5 of his points in the quarter. Bad Axe could manage just one other basket, by Matt Heintz, and at the end of 3 quarters the Hawks were comfortably ahead, 39-21.

With the game safely in the win column,

Nurnberger was able to get all of his players into the game and everyone dressed broke into the scoring column.

Led by Kelley with 10 boards, the Hawks out-rebounded the Hatchets, 36 to 22. Miller paced the team with 6 assists and Bliss also helped keep the attack going with 4 assists.

The Hawk junior varsity just keeps rolling along and remained undefeated with a decision over the Hatchets, 46-42.

Hawk grapplers lose to Marlette

Coach Don Markel called Cass City's loss to Marlette, 38-32, Thursday the Hawk grapplers worst showing of the year. The Thumb B Association loss left the Hawks' record at 1-3 in league action and 2-3 over-all. The Hawks will play Vassar Wednesday and it will be parents' night for Cass City.

Other teams finished in the following order: Capac, 94; Shepard, 81; Sandusky, 81; Mt. Morris, 70½; Yale, 69½; Bentley, 63, and Richmond, 50.

Bulldogs shoot ahead of Akron-Fair. in league

The Bulldogs wrapped up the first round of the North Central Thumb League Friday, winning 80-74 over the visiting Akron-Fairgrove Vikings. The victory vaults the Bulldogs past the Vikings in league standings, as they now rank third in the NCTL at 5-3. Coach Dean Roller's cagers will be looking to revenge an earlier 2 point loss this Friday at home when Caseville is on tap to open the League's second half for both squads.

The Bulldogs displayed their most balanced scoring assault of the year in whipping Akron-Fairgrove Friday as 5 members finished in double figures, and Coach Roller praised the work of his big horses for the 80-74 triumph. "Offensive rebounds, 2nd and 3rd shots, defensive rebounds, just rebounds," stressed the tickled head coach.

The Bulldogs took a 21-19 first quarter lead behind Steve Root's 12 first period points in a game which was played at flying speed most of the night. The Vikings were able to hang close most of the night due to the outside shooting of Brian Wolverpon. Wolverpon netted 10 of his game high 24 points in that quarter.

The Vikings put together their best quarter in 3 weeks to take a 42-39 advantage at the half as Wolverpon and Carl Aldrich, the area's 2 leading scorers, caught fire from the outside.

The Bulldogs, who held Akron-Fairgrove's leading rebounder Jon Butcher scoreless, escalated the tempo another notch in the 3rd period and recaptured the lead 61-58 heading into the final stanza.

Name D'Arcy conservationist of year at meet

Ken Hofmeister of Gagetown gave a slide presentation on the Republic of China, Thailand and Korea to over 150 persons at the 43rd annual meeting of the Tuscola Soil Conservation District, held in the Caro High School cafeteria Thursday, Jan. 22.

John Gjomory of Kingston conducted the election of one director when Henry Gruber of Reese was elected to a 3-year term.

William Petzold presented the scrapbook awards, Division III to Mary Jesionowski and John Jesionowski of Reese.

Petzold also presented the following poster awards:

Division I: Cathy Jaruzel of Millington and Melissa Bodeis of Mayville. Jaruzel was also state winner in Division I. Division II: Eva Gohs of Vassar and Lacey Reichert of Kingston; Division III: Roy Browning and Alex Favazza of Kingston; Division IV: Mary Jesionowski and John Jesionowski of Reese.

Gerald Hicks presented trophies in land judging to Caro FFA, 1st place; USA FFA, 2nd place, and Reese FFA, 3rd place. Caro FFA also received the Bruce Ruggles Memorial cash award. Kris Czaplak of Caro was presented a desk pen set for the high individual score.

Henry Gruber presented Richard D'Arcy of Kingston with the 1986 Conservationist of the Year award.

A slide presentation on "What's Happening in the Tuscola SCD" was given by Phil Dakin, District Conservationist.

Ironically, the Bulldogs, who shot only 55 percent from the foul line on a 12-22 showing, a stat that would normally spell disaster in any tight game, proved to be the difference in this one as the Bulldogs' foul shooting prevented the Vikings from overtaking the Bulldogs near the game's closing minutes. The Viking foul shooting was only a trifle bit better at 59 percent.

Leading a bundle of double scorers for Owen-Gage was Root with 22 points. He was flanked by Stu Stirrett, who played his usual strong floor game while finishing with 17 points and numerous needle threading assists. The duo have led the Bulldogs all year, but they received plenty of help from Dave Laurie's 16 tallies. Chris Abbe and Rick Salcido also finished in double digits scoring 11 and 10, respectively.

The Bulldog JV team was pounded 81-65 in the preliminary game.

Deford wild turkey population increasing

The wild turkey population established in Deford 3 years ago is steadily rising, however not at the rate the Department of Natural Resources was hoping for.

"We were hoping for more," said Bud Jarvis of the DNR field office in Caro. Jarvis keeps tabs on the growing flock. "We put out 22 turkeys and in the second year we counted about 75." The young turkeys that were counted in the fall could not be found in the winter. "Something must have happened to the young birds," said Jarvis.

The long term goal of the DNR is to transplant turkeys all around the Thumb area. A flock of 18 birds was brought in from Pennsylvania and was released Monday in Huron County near Bad Axe. "People like to see them," said Jarvis.

"Hunters like to hunt them. Conservationists would like to see them back in Michigan." The birds are protected against hunters in Tuscola County until their population increases.

The Eastern wild turkeys are reclusive animals and the DNR has not been able to count exactly how many birds there are in Tuscola County. "We've counted about 45 to 50 birds. We know of a flock of about 30 and there are smaller flocks scattered around the area," said Jarvis. "They are doing all right."

According to Jarvis, reports of wild turkeys established elsewhere show that it takes about 4 to 5 years to see an increase in the population. "It takes the younger turkeys about 3 years to be productive" in raising young, said Jarvis.

The turkeys were brought in from Iowa, which got them from wild stock in Missouri. They were released in 1983 and 1984. "They seemed to have no trouble adapting to Michigan," said Jarvis. "They had no trouble finding food." The turkeys diet consists of sumacs, fruit, such as crab apples, and berries. In the winter corn is left out for them.

Jarvis said, "The birds are very hard to spot. They are very wary of strangers. They aren't a people bird." He added that that is why the birds do so well in the wild. "You won't see a turkey standing in the middle of a field."

The adult tom turkey weighs about 20-22 pounds and has very few natural enemies. The hen weighs 8-12 pounds. The young turkeys become prey, however, to owls, hawks, foxes and coyotes. "The biggest threat to the turkeys are large dogs allowed to roam free," he said. A dog can kill an adult turkey as well as the young ones. "They could do more damage to the turkey than any other predator," poaching has been a small problem. "There have only been 1 or 2 reports of possible illegal shooting," he said. "Most people are quite protective of the bird."

According to Jarvis

Another thing that the DNR discourages residents from doing is to release their own turkeys into the wild. "Some people in Huron County have tried to establish turkeys near the shoreline. These turkeys, however, have domestic blood in them," said Jarvis. Because of the diseases carried by domestic turkeys "we discourage this type of thing." Jarvis doesn't think any of the half-breeds survived.

The turkeys from Iowa and Pennsylvania are pure wild stock. "We blood tested them all for any disease," said Jarvis.

Residents who are fortunate enough to spot a turkey or a flock, especially on private land, are asked to contact Bud Jarvis at the DNR field office in Caro at 673-3434.

Many Selective Service dodgers face penalties

Men who reach their 26th birthday this year having registered with Selective Service will no longer be eligible for induction under present law if the draft were reinstated.

Those who reach the age of 26 without having registered, however, are facing possible prosecution as well as the loss of benefits.

Men aged 18 to 25 who have not yet registered still have a chance to avoid prosecution by registering promptly at any local post office. Failure to register is a felony punishable by a fine of up to $250,000 and/or up to 5 years in jail.

According to a spokesman with the Selective Service System, men who fail to register permanently forfeit the right to certain benefits, including federal student aid, job training and federal employment. Further, some states require registration for state student aid, entrance to a state-supported college or university, state employment and permission to practice law.

More than 17 million men aged 18 through 25 have registered with Selective Service since registration was reinstated in 1980.

Some people once thought the best way to gather walnuts was to knock them off with sticks instead of picking them. This was supposed to be best for the tree.

Estech tank plan killed

Health and the Sanilac County Office of Emergency Services.

McLachlan stated that the commission last week indicated the firm's second tank-site location might be allowed if a fire wall were constructed between the tank and an adjacent bulk fertilizer warehouse and blending building.

But, he added, the suggestion probably won't make any difference in terms of Estech's decision not to continue seeking approval of the tank installation.

RELIEVED RESIDENT

An area resident who also is the leading opponent to the proposed chemical tank last week described her reaction to the commission's decision.

"I was delighted," Rudell Ratz, who lives near Estech remarked.

Ratz and another area resident, Barbara Clark, aired their opposition to the proposal during the hearing. "I was really concerned that they might approve it," Ratz continued. The denial is good news "for all of us."

"I don't want to be breathing something that's going to be smothering me day and night," she added. Ratz commented that she believes installation of the tank would interfere with her right to live comfortably in addition to adversely affecting animal and plant life, and property values.

Ratz spearheaded an effort against the Estech application. The effort included research on the chemical, voicing opposition during a May 21 public meeting and gathering 105 petition signatures.

Cass City couple to sue Deford pair

A Cass City couple Monday filed a suit in Tuscola County Circuit Court against a Deford couple on a complaint seeking to foreclose a land contract regarding property in Novesta Township.

Named as plaintiffs in the case are Frank E. and Ruth A. Spencer, 3880 Cemetery Rd., while the defendants are Elmer L. and Judith L. Hahn, Phillips Rd., Deford.

According to the suit, both couples entered into a land contract on April 8, 1976, and later modified July 11, 1986. The Hahns agreed to purchase the property for a total price of $182,000, with a down payment of $50,000, the suit states.

The Deford couple, who took possession of the land, executed a mortgage to Cass City State Bank, which was added as a defendant in the suit "by virtue of its mortgage interest in the subject premises," according to the suit.

The Spencers contend that the Hahns have failed to make payments relating to the land contract, and that principal and interest now due total $85,821.

The couple also claim that the Hahns have damaged a barn located on the property in question.

Tordai begins role as retail group head

New Cass City Retail Committee president and Special Scents owner Jeri Tordai says she's ready to help lead the committee into 1987.

Tordai, elected to the post in December, began her duties at a regular meeting Jan. 3. Among her goals, she remarked, is to continue "working with the retailers and chamber to help keep Cass City progressing, and accomplishing (retail committee) projects."

Tordai, 5355 Hartsell Rd., Cass City, opened her shop, which now features flowers, spices, herbs and gifts, in May 1984. She purchased and merged the Buds and Blossoms Flower Shop, located on Main Street, with her business in 1985. She was accepted in the same year by Teleflora, Inc., a worldwide ordering service.

Tuscola Circuit Court

Probation violation nets 3 year to 10 year term

A 24-year-old Vassar man was sentenced Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court to 3 years to 10 years in prison for a guilty plea to probation violation.

Wesley D. Pero, 542 Birch Rd., pleaded guilty to breaking his probation arrangement which stems from a conviction Feb. 14, 1983 of breaking and entering. He was serving 5 years of probation.

According to court records, Pero consumed alcohol and possessed a marijuana cigarette Jan. 5.

Also sentenced for a plea of guilty to probation violation was Gregory M. Luke, 19, 7124 Down Creek Rd., Vassar.

Luke, who was sentenced to 365 days in the county jail with credit for time already served, failed to report to his probation officer Oct. 2 and again Nov. 6.

He was serving 5 years of probation for a conviction of larceny in a building in Vassar.

Richard M. Warford, 4395 Clifford Rd., Clifford, was sentenced for a plea of guilty to breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling.

Warford, 18, was ordered to serve 60 days in the county jail, 5 years probation and 180 hours of community service, in addition to paying $300 in fines and $400 in costs plus attorney fees and restitution.

Warford's conviction stems from an incident Oct. 26 in Indianfields Township involving the Caro Gun Club clubhouse, Gun Club Road.

PLEAS ENTERED

Kermit A. Hoffmeyer, 19, 143 E. Belvidere Rd., Flint, entered a plea of guilty to breaking and entering a coin-operated device Jan. 12 in Almer Township.

Sentencing is to be set on the plea, which stems from an incident involving a coin-operated car wash.

A related count, possession of burglary tools, was dismissed.

Roy F. Marcum, 24, entered a plea of guilty to larceny in a building relating to an incident Jan. 11 in Arbela Township involving stolen property from a mobile home at 10294 Baker Drive, Clio.

A count of breaking and entering an occupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny was dismissed.

Sentencing is to be scheduled. Bond was continued at $20,000.

A plea of not guilty was entered by Randy J. DuRussell, who stood mute at his arraignment.

DuRussell, 33, 2985 Lee Hill Rd., Caro, has been charged with breaking and entering a house at 1435 Mertz Rd., Caro, Jan. 8 in Indianfields Township with intent to commit larceny, and breaking and entering the Club 24 Bar, also in Caro, Jan. 8, with intent to commit larceny. Bond was continued at $25,000.

The 2 charges carry a total maximum sentence of 25 years in prison.

Roy C. Palmerton, 36, 2880 Snover Rd., Mayville, entered a plea of guilty to drunk driving 3rd offense in connection with a Sept. 21 incident in Vassar.

Sentencing is to be scheduled for Palmerton, who faces a maximum sentence of 5 years in jail and/or a $5,000 fine. Bond was continued at $200.

CASE DISMISSED
A case against Richard M. Podulski Jr., 1990 S. Lapeer Rd., Lapeer, was dismissed following the conclusion of a one-year delayed sentencing period.

Podulski, 19, was convicted Jan. 9, 1986 on a plea of guilty to possession of a pipe bomb on May 24, 1986 in Fremont Township.

According to court records, Podulski has complied with court orders during the sentencing delay.

GTE airs plan to improve service to area

General Telephone will be placing 25 miles of new telephone cable to provide Cass City residents with private, static-free lines, for the near future, according to Bill Buschle, division manager for GTE.

Beginning Jan. 15, 20 miles of new, buried cable and 5 miles of aerial cable will be placed for approximately 7 miles south along Cemetery Road to Decker-ville Road and for 5 miles east on M-81, and extending a mile east of M-53. Three and a half miles of buried air-core cable will be replaced.

Construction will begin at GTE's central office in Cass City. From there, the new cable will extend and branch out to the homes of customers. One large cable will replace up to three of the old, small lines now in use.

The new cables are sophisticated, state-of-the-art lines designed for special, electronic equipment called MXU's which will be placed on the new lines at a later date. The MXU's will act as a "middle-man telephone company," receiving and sending out telephone calls more clearly. The new equipment will also provide more space for private telephone lines. At this time, the Cass City telephone system consists mainly of party lines with up to 4 customers sharing one line.

The MXU system will be installed gradually with a completion goal set for the end of 1990.

The replacement of the old, defective, buried air-core cable will provide telephone line service without the hissing, fuzzy noise sometimes heard while talking on the telephone. The fuzzy noise occurs because air-core lines have an air space between the telephone wires and the protective, outer sheath. This air space allows water in the ground to penetrate into the telephone line and create static interference.

Since 1956, modern technology has developed a new line that is impermeable to water. In new cable lines, a jelly-like compound displaces the air and prevents water from penetrating the lines.

Construction of the new cable project is expected to be completed and in service by December 1987.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Some gals on the Michigan State swim team were on the same plane with us, and I thought this cute little thing in the next seat was one of them.

"Are you one of the group?" I asked.

"Oh, no," she replied. "I'm with Kidder Peabody. I'm older than I look."

Well, she wasn't much older. Out of college a couple of years. Six months in a training course with the brokerage firm. Now making her living by making phone calls and selling stocks and bonds and mutual funds and real estate trusts and annuities and whatever else the boys dream up.

"How are you doing? Do you like your job?"

"Oh, yes -- I make more at this than I would at anything else."

"How many accounts do you have?"

"Sixty. Only about six of them are real good ones, though."

"How did you get them?"

"Phone calls. I get through to about 60 people a day. Out of the 60 I may make a sale, maybe two. In a whole week, I hope to add one fairly good account."

"This takes over half my time at the office. Rest of the time -- and evenings, I'm calling my regular accounts, ones I already have."

Far as I'm concerned, that's a hard way to make a living. I admire the gal's determination, and her ability to shuck off constant turn-downs on her sales pitches. It takes a lot of fibre.

I have a lot of calls from young salesmen like this, because I send in a lot of coupons from ads in the Wall Street Journal which offer publications on investment ideas. My name is then handed to a new salesman as fodder for their calling job.

When the calls come in -- usually around dinner time I try to be courteous and good-natured and not take too much of the caller's time, because I do practically all my business with ol' John Grant at Thomson McKinnon, so I'm not a good prospect. There was one of these youths who did sell me some stuff, though -- Steve Paskal of Gabriel Hueglin, the New York firm that specializes in municipals.

Here's how I became a customer of theirs.

First of all, they have a specialized product -- tax-exempts, and the firm knows its stuff. Their investment letter is the best in the country, I think.

Steve didn't push. He found out the sort of thing I looked for -- bonds with above-average yields, but not junk bonds. A or better ratings. Zero coupons I liked, too.

He came up, after a few calls, with a real unusual issue I'd never heard of:

North Carolina East Municipal Power, 9% due 1-1-17. Priced at 87. (This was in September 1985. Enough to get your attention right there -- a 9% bond selling at 87.

"What's the catch?" I asked Steve.

"They're callable 1-1-92 at 85."

"What's the yield to the call?"

"Ten percent. Yield to maturity, 10.38."

That was a pretty good deal -- a 10% yield on a bond likely to be called in 7 years. It was sort of a freak issue, and I really don't know why it was tailored that way.

Anyway, I bought quite a few. Since then I've bought other things from Steve -- not a lot, but enough to make his calls worthwhile. It could well be a lesson to other firms, and other young people. The combination of a good product, pleasantly and intelligently presented, and fitted for my own needs, and at a good price, landed me.

Incidentally, the bonds Steve sold me at 87 were called at 100 Jan. 1 of this year. A 13-point profit in 15 months. The yield -- 20.93%.

Bill Myers is a retired editor and investment counselor.

RIB EYE STEAKS WITH MUSHROOM SAUCE

- 4 beef rib eye steaks, cut 1/4 to 1/2 inch thick (approximately 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 pounds)
- 1 teaspoon instant beef bouillon granules
- 1/2 cup hot water
- 2 tablespoons butter, divided
- 1 cup thinly sliced mushrooms
- 2 tablespoons finely minced shallot or green onion
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

Dissolve bouillon granules in water; reserve. Cook mushrooms and shallot in 1 tablespoon butter in a large frying pan 1 to 2 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add reserved beef broth; cook and stir 3 to 4 minutes. Meanwhile heat remaining butter in another large frying pan. Quickly cook steaks 1 to 2 minutes on each side or to desired degree of doneness. Season with salt and pepper. Pour sauce over steaks and heat 1 minute, stirring occasionally. 4 servings.
