ISD to seek one mill tax

The Tuscola County Intermediate School Board of Education unanimously voted Monday night to hold a July election to increase Highland Pines School's millage by 1 mill.

According to Jerome Thienes, deputy superintendent and business manager of the school district, the election in mid-July will not conflict with the regular school millage elections, which are usually held in June.

It will be a charter millage, in effect until voted out, instead of a tax for a limited number of years.

The problem the school for mentally and physically impaired children is hoping to rectify with this election, is that of expenditures exceeding revenues. The problem stems from the decrease in enrollment of state institutionalized children and the SEV rates, which dropped 15 percent this year in Tuscola County.

"We are over $300,000 in the red right now," said Thienes. If the millage is passed, the school will have an extra $657,000 added to their budget.

According to Thienes, the July election may be the only chance the school has to raise the millage. "It's hard to tell yet," said Thienes, if the school will be able to hold a second election if the first one fails.

"It has to be held before Sept. 15, or we can't get it on the tax roll. If it doesn't pass, we are going to have to make severe cuts in the budget."

The school can cut back in some areas of their budget, but the money saved will not get the school out of the red.

The first way to save money is to stop the pay backs to the local school boards for the Local Education Agency which runs the special education classes at the public schools. The school district last year paid back the local boards a total of $200,000 for their LEA programs.

Another way would be to cut out 3 programs offered at the school that are not required by the state or federal governments.

According to Elton Mahan, acting principal for Highland Pines, the only areas the school can cut are: the aquatic program, the physical education program and the instrumental and vocal music program.

Thienes said last month at the Feb. 16 board meeting that even with the money from the LEA pay backs and the money saved by the nonmandated programs, the school would still be in the red by $160,000.

Thienes said if this millage is to be successful, "We got to go to work tomorrow."

Patrolman Stec delivers baby en route to hospital

Part-time Owendale Police Officer Mike Stec got plenty more than he bargained for Friday night when he stopped a Pigeon couple traveling west on Sebewaing Road just outside of Owendale.

The 24-year-old Cass City resident, just 6 months on the job, was patrolling on Sebewaing Road at about 8 p.m. when he noticed a vehicle traveling with its 4-way flashers on.

"I pulled them over to see if I could help them," Stec said, adding that the couple, Paul and Lisa Kunisch, were very close to becoming parents and were

Action brisk, but calm at area boards of review

Quiet and uneventful best describes the action at most area township board of review meetings held March 9 and 10, according to a survey of 12 townships in Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties.

Attendance at those meetings surveyed ranged from 5 persons in Kingston Township to about 41 in Elkland Township. Appeals ranged from none in Elmwood Township to as many as 25 in Elkland Township.

The lack of large numbers of residents challenging their assessments this year probably is a result of few townships experiencing significant increases in the value of residential property, township officials agree.

The same is true for agricultural land, which has plummeted for the second consecutive year after nearly 10 years of steady increases.

The following is a synopsis of area board of review proceedings, as well as comments from various township officials.

TUSCOLA COUNTY

Elkland Township -- Despite a large turnout, Board of Review member Arlan Hartwick said many of those attending last week's meetings were interested only in obtaining information about their assessments.

"We were busy, especially the second day. Most of the people were concerned that their valuation had gone up," he remarked.

"You can say it's the same old story. When they have a house to sell, it's worth a lot more than when it was assessed," Hartwick said.

The value of residential property in Elkland Township is up slightly this year, he explained, adding that the number of appeals received last week, about 25, is higher than last year.

No decisions have been made yet because township

Supervisor David Milligan has been out of town. Milligan is expected to meet with review board members this week to consider the appeals, Hartwick noted.

Kingston Township -- In contrast, only 5 Kingston Township residents attended review board meetings, according to Township Supervisor Robert Gilmore.

"That's very low compared to other years," he commented. "When (assessments) go down, people are more satisfied."

Gilmore, who noted that residential land in the township dropped by 4 percent this year, added that the board received 2 residential appeals, both of which were denied.

Novesta Township -- In Novesta Township, where residential land dropped in value by about one percent, Supervisor William C. O'Dell reported that 25 persons met with their review board. Most of those attending were "checking their assessments," he remarked, adding that there "may be one" appeal.

Area private school reps join protest at Lansing

Several Thumb area private Christian schools participated in the rally last week in Lansing to demand peacefully that they be allowed to educate their children in church schools without state interference.

Between 7,000 to 10,000 people gathered in front of the Capitol holding signs and waving flags to show the support of the free education bill that was introduced in the state senate March 11. The bill would allow private schools to operate without state supervision or certified teachers.

Michigan is one of 6 states that requires certification of teachers in nonpublic schools.

Sen. Harmon Cropsey, R-Decatur, one of the 17 senators who sponsored the bill, said at the rally that he promises to expedite the bill through the senate, according to Rev. Bruce Love of the Community Baptist Academy in Millington, who attended the rally.

Love said that the bill will probably run into problems in the House of Representatives.

"It was amazing," said Hobart Putman, a history teacher at the Juniata Christian School in Vassar, about the rally. "There were 300 buses double-parked all around the Capitol building and it was packed solid with people" in front of the building. The whole staff of the school attended the rally.

Staff members from the Deford Christian Academy also attended the rally, but administrators would not comment about the gathering and why they attended.

Love said that 40 church members from the Millington school attended because, "We believed it was time to stand up and register our protest." Love said the rally lasted only an hour or so and then the people went to talk to their representatives and senators.

"The main reason we went down there was to see our representatives and senators," said Russ

Sievert, a math teacher for the Thumb Christian Academy in Bad Axe. "We see it (the rally) as a peaceful reconciliation of our views with the state's views."

THE DISPUTE

The biggest dispute the Christian schools around the state have with the law is that the state is trying to control the schools. "God has control over the church and its administration, which includes the schools," said Putman.

President of the Michigan Association of Christian Schools, Paul Vanaman, spoke to the crowd at the rally saying, "This is an issue of control. We are not a threat to the state. We believe children belong to God, not to the government. We don't graduate functional illiterates. They do in public schools," Vanaman said.

Love named several reasons why the schools want an amendment to the law. "The child belongs to God and the trustee is the parent, not the state," he said. "The school is a direct ministry of the church and the state is infringing" on the right that church and state are separate.

If the new bill passes, the church schools could choose not to be supervised by the state if the schools meet some requirements. One of those requirements is testing of children. Love said that the Christian schools already test their children at the end of each year to see the progress they have made over the year. "We measure the product not by the process, but by the best way for measuring progress—testing," Love said.

Love also pointed out that Christian school teachers approach the profession in a Biblical sense while teachers who are certified usually have a humanistic approach. "98 percent of teachers teaching in Christian schools have a degree in the field of education," Love said.

According to Putman, the state has a list of the schools the teachers are allowed to attend to become certified. "We go to schools that aren't on their list," Putman said. "We go to Bob Jones College in South Carolina. A lot of us have gone to Pensacola Christian College in Florida. It's a great college for us, but it's not on the state's list."

Putman was certified until 1981.

"They are sending Christian teachers to colleges that don't teach Christian views and beliefs," said Sievert, who has a Bachelor of Science degree in math. "I can teach in a college, but not in a Christian school."

"We don't feel that they are being fair," Putman said.

Meg's Peg
Second place sinner?
by Melva E. Guinther

It's time to share a few more of the typographical gems the readers DIDN'T get to see.

Farmers haven't had a lot to smile about recently. Perhaps some of these bloopers will afford comic relief.

--The farmer gets an average of 33c on the collar.
--Tractors working in fields were seen creating clouds of dust in the Bad Axe area.
--Demonstrations include comparison of fertilizers, sugar beet breeding and soul management. --At age 88, he can be seen diving his son's tractor.

Closely related are 4-H topics, for example:

--Penny C. was second place sinner in obedience class. --The accident will be on the many exhibits at the fair. --The 4-H club will conduct a bike sale Saturday. --She won the trophy for senior showmanship. --You'll want to be on hand for the crowing of the queen.

Let's turn to news of sports for a few chuckles:

--Four of Cass City's wrestling wins were by pints. --The principal represented the trophy at the banquet. --The coach said the interest of the parents makes the problem successful. --Jim was going to school and staring at sports. --The sophomore guard picked off an ardent Pirate pass. --The girls' softball team has a sarong defense. --Those interested may call athletic Roland P. --She had a 614 actual series and howls for Cass City Sports.

Political prose need not be dull. Consider:

--57 out of 53 counties roll back millage. --The long candidate running is Patrick G. --The committee applied for funds for rebuilding 12 bridges. --Budgets must be approved by township boards, not elevators. --The Agency on Agency is a planning agency. --Most proper persons are going to find increases in their tax bills. --The boar of directors is optimistic. --As the speaker heard the end of his remarks, he predicted a good outcome.

The other guy's goof-ups are always more amusing than one's own. This one DID get printed in a neighboring paper. It was an earnest plea to parents from no less than the superintendent of schools: "Let them know that a phone call home will secure a ride with an impaired or reckless driver."

We know how it feels, fellas.

"If It Fitz..."

Absurd ideas

By Jim Fitzgerald

When my friend Ralph heard I was going to Florida, he said: "You are probably fleeing town to escape being frowned to death by dour Catholics."

That's absurd. Lots of good Catholics have a good sense of humor. My late father, who practiced Catholicism until he had it down perfect, was one of the funniest men I've known. He would have disagreed with my recent column on birth control and the pope, but he would have laughed as he called me an idiot.

Let's talk about what's absurd. Recently, an anti-abortion coalition announced it would ask clinics in the U.S. cities Pope John Paul II will visit next fall to ban abortions while he is in town. If the request is denied, the coalition said, it would set up picket lines to block access to clinics where abortions are performed and otherwise "do all we can to ensure that generous, gentle, loving people interpose themselves between the abortionists and their intended victims."

Now that is absurd, no matter how you look at it. If you believe abortion is murder, it is absurd because no murders would be prevented. Abortions would simply be re-scheduled to before the pope hits town, or after he leaves.

If you believe abortion should be a woman's option, the suggested ban is absurd because the highest court in the land has ruled abortion is legal. So why should a doctor reschedule a medical procedure simply because a religious leader is in town? Should blood transfusions be banned when Jehovah's Witnesses have a national convention in town?

The whole thing is absurd because that anti-abortion coalition knows its ban request will be ignored. The coalition is simply using the pope's visit as an excuse to "interpose themselves" between women seeking abortions and their doctors. The anti-abortionists certainly have a right to picket, but it would be ironic - and absurd - if their demonstrations disrupt the peace of a visit from a man who agrees so strongly with their stand.

So, faced with this absurdity, what does a smart-aleck columnist do? I tried to think of something even more absurd than seeking an abortion ban while the pope is in town. I wrote:

"It is expected that people living in U.S. cities that Pope John Paul II will visit next fall will be asked to not practice birth control while the pope is in town...Married couples of child-bearing age who don't have children nine months after the pope leaves town will be bombed." And so on into the prickly land of caricature.

Reader reaction was large and mostly angry. I appreciate all the letters and calls, even the most insulting. It's nice to be reassured that someone reads this stuff. But I'm surprised at how many people apparently think I was serious - that I'm really absurd enough to believe anti-contraceptive groups are absurd enough to seek a birth-control ban while the pope's in town.

I was writing satire, which is nothing more than using humorous (hopefully) exaggeration to make a serious point. My serious point was that the pope's rigid stand against contraceptives is damaging, especially in under-developed, over-populated countries - and there would be fewer abortions if there were more birth control.

I was dismayed that so few readers responded to that serious point, but instead just called me vile names. I was saddened by the Catholics who said they used to love me for loving my grandchildren, but no more. And by the nuns who don't understand how I can write so strongly against violence one day, and make fun of the Prince of Peace the next.

For the record: I'm the same guy as always. I disagree with Pope John Paul II on birth control; I also think priests should be allowed to marry, and women should be priests. But on the whole I believe the pope is a splendid leader in the quest for peace, justice and a decent life for everyone. I'm delighted he will visit my city. God only knows what I won't do while the pope is in town.

The Haire Net

Did you catch the brouhaha in the Detroit papers recently about the muskrat dinners and the efforts to stop a restaurant from serving them? It was of special interest to me and takes me back, way back to the days when I worked as a cub reporter, ad salesman and circulation (I helped deliver papers) manager for the Wyandotte Tribune.

In Wyandotte there was a bar-restaurant that specialized in serving that rodent and it drew crowds, including a couple of buddies of mine who solemnly swore that it was delicious and tasted just like chicken.

The budget didn't stretch much in those days for eating out, but a banquet was planned and my wife and I had a "freebie" at the restaurant and muskrat was the gourmet entree for the event.

Now muskrat may taste like chicken, but it looks like what it is, a rat. At this particular dinner, ample portions were served. On each plate was a full sized half of muskrat. Not carved in slices, but the whole half animal. You could almost see it scampering around like the rats do when you shoot at them in the dump.

Each of the diners was served the dinner on individual plates and there was no way to gracefully pass up the muskrat. Besides all of the rest of the guests were busy digging in and the ohs and ahs of the delighted diners made you think it probably did taste like chicken.

Before I continue, let me tell you about my stomach. I'm always the first one on the boat to get seasick and the last to heal. I never have to worry about becoming an alcoholic because my stomach will tolerate only a minimal amount of booze. I could go on, but you get the drift.

I can remember one time I became violently ill from eating buffalo meat.

Since everyone was obviously enjoying the dinner, I was determined to give it a fair chance. I cut right into that rat and started to chow down. Correction, I started to chow part way down. Try as I might, I just couldn't get that stuff all the way down.

It would reach the top of my throat and stop right there. After several futile attempts, I furtively took a napkin and spit it out. My plight could have been worse. None of my buddies were there. The other diners acted as if they didn't notice a thing, although they would have to have been blind, deaf and dumb not to know what was happening.

As I said in the beginning, reading about the current campaign brought back a host of memories. However, it doesn't matter to me if they ban the muskrat from public restaurants. As far as I'm concerned it was banned forever and ever that night in Wyandotte over 35 years ago.

Rats are made for shooting, not eating.

VERONICA GASZCZYŃSKI of Veronica's Restaurant shows off one of the shamrocks that are part of a new fund raiser for the Muscular Dystrophy foundation. The restaurant has raised $287 in donations.

Shamrocks for $1

MD fund raiser underway

Everywhere imaginable the personalized green shamrocks covered the walls, beams and windows of Veronica's Restaurant.

The shamrocks are part of a new fund raiser for the Muscular Dystrophy foundation and will continue long past St. Patrick's Day.

A total of 287 residents from the village, county, state, and as far away as Illinois, have donated a dollar, written their name and hometown on their shamrock and watched it be hung in one of the few spots left.

The restaurant has always been a big sponsor for the foundation and is only $13 away from its goal of $300. Once this is reached, Veronica Gaszczyński plans to raise the goal to $500.

Veronica's is just one of many restaurants, taverns and other establishments that are sponsoring the shamrock fund raiser county-wide. "They are all over town, all over the county," said Gaszczyński. "I would have to thank everyone, not just us, but everyone in Tuscola County."

The money from the donations is collected by the Cass City Jaycees. Gaszczyński's son, Chester, is the secretary for the group. According to Gaszczyński, the Jaycees collect all the donations made throughout the year for the fund and then Chester presents the check on the Muscular Dystrophy telethon in September.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire
(And anyone else he can get to help.)

A food writer for the Detroit Free Press should take notice. A review of an area restaurant about a year ago praised the food and then called it an oasis in a gastronomical wasteland.

In the last week it was proved again that there are plenty of good cooks in that "wasteland." Last week, Bonnie Zeidler of Cass City won a prize and a review on public television's "Michigan Outdoors" for her recipe for cooking wild game.

A story in this issue tells how Jan Faust was selected to represent Michigan in a national chicken cooking contest. I rest my case.

You don't have to be a history buff to get excited about seeing a display due in Bay City sometime during the period April 5-10.

The Magna Carta, the historic 772-year-old document upon which many principles of American constitutional law are based, will be displayed and the Bay City stop is one of 6 in Michigan among a 20-state tour sponsored by the Michigan Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution.

Admittedly, the odds for these customers of 3 area businesses were a lot better than winning the lotto, but it's an impressive showing anyway.

There were 150 winners in a drawing sponsored statewide in Michigan's sesquicentennial and 5 of them were from Cass City, Dorothy Stahlbaum reports.

The winners and the stores are: Joyce Turner, Georgine's; Cathy Milligan, Ben Franklin, and Joanna Phillips, Yvonne Edzik and Christine Palmer, all of Clothes Closet.

Time out for a commercial. Received a call this week from Laethem's, John Deere dealer in Caro. They wanted to renew an ad for John Deere lawn tractors. We sold 2 of these tractors directly from the ad placed (last week) in the Chronicle, Laethem's reported, and have a third deal pending.

That call made my whole day.

Deford man sentenced to 10 days in jail for assault and battery

A 24-year-old Deford man was sentenced Monday to 10 days in the county jail and fines and costs of $150, after he pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery on Feb. 26, in Tuscola County District Court.

Terry E. Bruce, 1786 Montague St., was also sentenced to 2 years probation. The 10-day sentence was broken down into 3 weekends. Bruce will serve 3 days starting Friday, 3 days next weekend, and 4 days the first weekend in April.

The charge stemmed from an incident that occurred red on Nov. 24, 1986, when Bruce, "did make assault and battery upon another person," according to a court report.

Kent L. Childs, 28, 4090 Little Rd., Cass City, pleaded guilty Feb. 17 to impaired driving and was sentenced Monday in district court to fines and costs of $350, probation of 2 years and a one-year suspension on his license.

Childs was arrested August 20, 1986, when he was "operating a vehicle...on Cemetery Road near Millington Road, while being under the influence of intoxicating liquor," according to a court report.

Childs is not allowed to drink alcoholic beverages during his probation. The court allowed him to drive to and from work each day.

A 22-year-old Gagetown man was sentenced Monday to $350 in fines and costs, 2 years probation and his license was suspended for 3 months after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving at his preliminary exam on Feb. 17 in district court.

Steven J. Kamrad, 2682 B Hoppe Rd., was arrested Jan. 24 while he was driving on Leach Street.

Kamrad is allowed to drive to and from work.

FELONIES

Randy J. Guilds, 27, 2479 South Sheridan Rd., Caro, was charged in district court with felonious assault and carrying a dangerous weapon with unlawful intent.

According to a court report, on Feb. 12, Guilds allegedly "did make an assault upon another person...with a dangerous weapon...a knife, but without intending to commit the crime of murder or to inflict great bodily harm less than the crime of murder."

The second charge was brought against Guilds because he allegedly did "go armed with a dangerous or deadly weapon," according to the report.

If convicted, Guilds faces 4 years and/or $2,000 for the first count and 5 years or $2,500 for the second count. Guilds' preliminary exam is set for April 3 at 9 a.m.

A 24-year-old Millington man is facing up to 5 years in prison or $1,000 if he is convicted of the charge of breaking and entering a vehicle to steal property over $5.

Allan N. Ferguson, 5047 West Millington Rd., allegedly "did enter or break into a trailer for the purpose of stealing or unlawfully removing property of a value of not less than $5," according to a report. The incident happened Sept. 18, 1986.

Ferguson's preliminary exam is set for March 24.

He paid 10 percent of his $7,500 bond.

CIRCUIT COURT

A 37-year-old Cass City man was found innocent of criminal sexual conduct in the second degree by a direct order from the court, March 10 in circuit court.

Randy Scott Doerr, 6440 Huron Street, was charged with a Jan. 13, 1986, incident in which he allegedly did engage in sexual contact with another person being under 13 years of age.

On July 23, 1986, Doerr had pleaded guilty to a lesser charge, CSC in the fourth degree, which was accepted by the court. He failed to appear for his sentencing on August 25, 1986. On Sept. 12, 1986, he withdrew his plea of guilty and asked for a jury trial. Last week he waived his rights for a jury and the judge found him not guilty.

William C. Pomeroy Jr., 19, 2034 Keilitz Rd., Cass City, was determined guilty of probation violation March 11 in circuit court. His probation was revoked and Pomeroy was remanded to the custody of the sheriff without bond. Sentence will be set.

The sentencing stemmed from an incident that took place Jan. 17 when Pomeroy was arrested by the Caro Police Department "after Pomeroy was observed driving a motor vehicle in a reckless manner in a Caro parking lot," according to a court report. On Feb. 9, Pomeroy pleaded not guilty.

Pomeroy was found guilty of larceny of a building and sentenced May 20, 1985, to 180 days in the county jail and 3 years probation. Since that sentence, Pomeroy has been found not guilty twice for probation violation and sentenced to 6 months in the county jail for another probation violation.

A 23-year-old Vassar man pleaded guilty to 2 counts of violating his probation, Wednesday in circuit court.

Roy J. Klein, 5246 West Saginaw Rd., was sentenced on Friday to 60 days in the county jail with credit for 15 days, according to a court report.

Klein had violated his probation once before on the same two charges, consuming alcoholic beverages and operating a vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail on Feb. 23, 1987, for the first violation.

Klein was originally convicted of attempted larceny from a motor vehicle and was sentenced Jan. 9, 1985, to 24 months probation.

PLEA OF NOT GUILTY

Richard D. Holmes, 31, 129 North State St., Caro, pleaded not guilty to violation of his probation, Friday in circuit court. The court appointed him a lawyer and the trial is to continue March 30, at 1:30 p.m.

On March 18, 1985, Holmes had pleaded guilty to the charge of delivery of marijuana and was sentenced to 3 years probation on April 29, 1985.

Holmes' bond is set at $5,000.

Broken car window one of 5 minor accidents reported

A broken rear window was the most serious of 5 vehicle related reports made to the Cass City Police Department over the past week.

Frederick E. Mroczek, 1219 S. VanDyke Rd., Marlette, reported that on March 11 someone smashed the rear window of his vehicle, which was legally parked at the south side of Cass City High School from 7 to 9 p.m.

Damage is estimated at $125, according to the report.

David Hutchinson, 6360 Houghton St., reported that his pickup truck sustained minor damage March 9 while parked on Oak Street near Main Street. Hutchinson estimated that the incident, which left a mark on the vehicle's passenger side, occurred at about 8 a.m.

Also reporting damage to a parked vehicle was Theophil Jantz, 6771 McAlpine Rd., Owendale, who said that his daughter was using his pickup truck

March 6 when it sustained minor damage while parked at a driveway at 4355 Oak St.

A car/deer accident was reported by Harry R. Wilson, 1021 Gillett Rd., Port Huron, who was westbound on Cass City Road about 1/4 mile east of Schwegler Road at 1:45 p.m. March 10 when he struck the animal.

Slight damage was sustained by Wilson's vehicle, the report stated.

No one was injured in a minor 2-car mishap at a Provincial House Drive-way March 10.

According to the report, a vehicle driven by Esther M. Guinther, 4283 West St., was backing out of a parking space when her vehicle collided with a vehicle driven by Sally J. Crab, 3560 S. Lee Hill Rd., Mayville. Crab's vehicle was traveling along the driveway when the incident occurred.

Guinther's vehicle sustained no damage, while Crab reported slight damage to her vehicle.

Owendale woman selected as state rep in national cook-off

An area woman's flair for whipping up a variety of delectable dishes has put Owendale on the map.

Jane Faust, a homemaker and part-time pre-school teacher who lives north of Owendale, has been selected as Michigan's representative to the National Chicken Cooking Contest.

She and husband Robert, a Huron County Road Commission employee, will fly to Jackson, Miss., May 13 to compete against 50 other participants—one from each state plus the District of Columbia—for prizes, including a first place award of $20,000.

"I got a call a week before Christmas that I was the representative for Michigan," Faust said in an interview last week at her home, a Bavarian-style house located just east of Linkville.

A contest spokesman explained that the chicken primavera recipe Faust entered via an ad in a local newspaper had been chosen after being examined by 3 panels of judges, including 2 kitchen testings. Faust then learned that she would receive an all-expense paid trip to compete nationally.

"I called back because I wanted to make sure," Faust added. "I said, 'this is for real, right?'"

Faust chuckled, adding, "She (representative) called back and said she couldn't find Owendale on the map."

The upcoming national event won't be Faust's first experience with a cooking competition. She's entered, and placed, in the cookbook contests sponsored by the Huron Daily Tribune in each of the past 6 years. "And I plan on entering in the spring," she added.

Among Faust's winnings is a $100 first-place award won 3 years ago in a dessert category.

According to Faust, an avid cookbook collector (she has more than 100 books on the topic), experimenting with various recipes and dishes is all part of her love of cooking.

And she has a host of in-home critics to please.

Aside from her husband, Faust has 2 children living at home: Troy, 15, and Trisha, 12. Both are students at Laker Junior High. She also has a step-daughter, Angie, who is a freshman at Lansing Community College.

"I'm always trying new recipes out on my family," Faust commented.

"They'll say, 'This one is good—keep it on file,' or they'll say, 'File this one under G for garbage.'"

Said Faust, "They eat everything I make, at least once."

When she's not working on a recipe, Faust is kept busy as a volunteer pre-school teacher Monday and Wednesday mornings at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Linkville.

She also belongs to several organizations, including the Owendale Women's Club, the Young Junior Women's Club of Pigeon, and the Laker band and athletic Boosters.

All other activities aside, Faust says she excited about her upcoming national cooking debut. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Laubhan of Bay City, as well as other relatives and friends, have been supportive.

"I don't anticipate winning because there's a lot of competition. I will try my hardest, but that's all you can do," she remarked.

Asked about the first-place award of $20,000, she replied, "I'd be happy with $100, but $20,000 would be nice."

Jane Faust's national qualifying chicken primavera recipe

- 1 - Place 2 cups carrot slices on the bottom of a large baking pan.
- 2 - Place 6 chicken breasts on the carrots.
- 3 - In a separate bowl, mix 1/2 cup chicken broth with minced garlic, 1/4 teaspoon marjoram, 1/4 teaspoon thyme, 1 minced clove of garlic, salt and pepper.
- 4 - Combine ingredients and pour on to the chicken and carrots.
- 5 - Place tin foil on top of the pan, and bake for 1 hour at 350 degrees.
- 6 - Remove pan from the oven, and place 3 cups of sliced zucchini on top of the chicken. Add another 1/2 cup of chicken broth.
- 7 - Place pan back in oven for an additional hour, baste occasionally.
- 8 - With 20 minutes of baking time left, place 2 cups of peas on top of the other vegetables and chicken.

ONE OF THE secrets to great cooking is starting with a basic recipe, and then adding vegetables or various spices to create a new dish, according to Jane Faust, Owendale, who has been selected to represent Michigan in the National Chicken Cooking Contest this spring.

School board won't ask for tax increase this year

Cass City School District taxpayers will not be faced with an increased millage to run schools this year, members of the board of education decided Monday night at their regular meeting at the high school.

The board voted to ask for a renewal of the current 16.9-mill operating millage for 3 years in the regular June election.

In addition, the taxpayers will be paying one mill for asbestos removal, a tax that was levied for 2 years and will expire next year.

That one mill will raise a total of about $210,000 and it's likely that all of it will be needed for the asbestos removal.

Supt. Donald Crouse released estimates by Asbestos Management, Incorporated, that indicated the project would cost $183,620 for removal of the material in areas generally accessible to students. Included will be removal of ceiling at Campbell School and the band room ceiling and pipe joints in the shop of the high school building. At Evergreen School the ceiling at the west end of the building, including the hall and 2 rooms, will be worked on, and the pipe joints at the Intermediate School have asbestos to be removed. No work will be required at DeFord School.

Crouse said that he hoped that the actual cost would be less than the estimates when the job is bid. The plan is to use any funds remaining from the tax to remove asbestos in the buildings in areas that students do not normally come in contact with.

PRICE BOOST

It is likely that a nickel will be added to the price of hot lunches next year. That's because of increased costs. Bids were asked for running the program and Canteen, which currently operates it, was the only bidder. The price was slightly increased over the previous year, up about $900 or a little over a half of one percent. It was the first price increase in 3 years.

The program was running at about a break even point and the increase is expected to keep it paying for itself. Currently the prices are 85 cents in the elementary and 90 cents for the rest of the students.

The board also accepted a donation of $2,200 for the school libraries from the all-school reunion committee. The money will be divided among the various schools on the basis of student population at the buildings.

Swan legend may be true

Legend has it that before a swan dies, it sings a beautiful farewell. And in the case of North America's tundra swan, the legend may be true. According to National Wildlife magazine, scientists have found that tundra swans utter a plaintive "departure song" — a prolonged musical note — just before they take to the air. That song is sometimes repeated when one of the birds dies.

STICKLE SELECTED

The Thumb Meet of Champions, which annually honors an adult for work in track and with the meet, asked that someone from the Cass City district be nominated for the honor this year. A committee from the board has selected Robert Stickle. According to Dick Wallace, a member of the committee, Stickle has a long history of working with track programs, both with the Meet of Champions, where he is currently a member of the board of directors, and at meets sponsored by Cass City Schools.

New books at the library

HOW TO BE YOUR OWN NUTRITIONIST by Stuart M. Berger (non-fiction). This book is Dr. Berger's diet plan that treats various conditions including fatigue, depression, and chronic illness. Dr. Berger recommends specific vitamins and minerals for 18 types of individuals including hypertensives, smokers, athletes, and persons with heart problems, with the prescribed supplements supposedly proving special nutritional sustenance. Berger's theories remain debatable - using supplements can be a risky business without close medical supervision, especially for those with serious illnesses.

BETTY: glad awakening by Betty Ford and Chris Chast (non-fiction). Betty Ford details with spirited candor her battle with drug and alcohol addiction. The drug problem she ascribes to a long struggle with a painful neck condition, but the alcoholism she feels is a genetically transferred condition that has afflicted other family members. Ford covers the development and discovery of her illness, the initial intervention and detoxification, the period of treatment at a Long Beach naval hospital, and the continuing group sessions with her fellow alcoholics. These experiences also led the author to help found the Betty Ford Center in Southern California, a pioneering program for addicts that has helped to bring the alcohol and drug problem to public attention - sometimes almost too successfully for the center's patient load and Ford's publicity purposes. Family, friends, and fellow addicts add their voices to Ford's personal account, enforcing the book's impact with their testimony and demonstrating that drug and alcohol abuse affects not only addicts, but also lives of everyone around them.

BOLT by Dick Francis (mystery). Jockey, Kit Fielding, rides for Princess Castilia, whose invalid husband's business partner wants to convert their French construction company to a manufacturer of plastic guns that are immune to airport metal detectors (for sale to terrorists). Not wanting to become involved in such an undertaking, the princess and her husband face a campaign of terror against their family, their employees (including Kit), and, especially, their horses.

Spring event for homemakers

Town and Country Day is slated at Cass City High School April 25, says Barbara Neuman, Extension Home Economist for Huron County.

This is an annual spring event sponsored by the Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola Extension Homemakers and Cooperative Extension Services. Sanilac Extension Homemakers are this year's hosts.

This day focuses on classes of interest to women. Classes offered are "Women's Health," "Family Centered Sex Education," "Building Farm Family Strengths," "Create Your Best Silhouette," "Country Decorative Painting" and "Fabric Painting on Sweat-shirts."

Cass City's Joe Howard gears up for national off-road race Saturday

While many of his neighbors are relaxing this weekend, Cass City's Joe Howard will be negotiating ruts and jumps on a dirt track along with the country's best off-road racers.

Howard, 4261 Oak St., will be Michigan's only representative in the "suspended odyssey" class of Mickey Thompson's Off-Road Championship Gran Prix, set for Saturday at the Pontiac Silverdome.

The event is the 3rd in a series of 8 races held across the United States each year, and features the sport's top drivers from 16 states and Australia in 5 separate vehicle classes.

The series began Jan. 10 at Anaheim Stadium in Anaheim, Calif., and will conclude at the Sam Boyd Silverdome in Las Vegas, Nev.

Aside from suspended odysseys, Saturday's race will include super 1,600 single seaters, ultra stock "off-road super sports" machines, 4-wheeled all-terrain vehicles, and the featured class—Grand National Sports Trucks.

Howard, 27, will be keeping some well-known company, including 3-time Indy 500 winner Al Unser and his son, Al Unser Jr., who will be competing in the sports trucks class.

Howard commented on the upcoming race, his 3rd time in the Mickey Thompson series, Friday evening while working on his Honda Odyssey.

The vehicle looks like a scaled-down dune buggy at first glance. A single seat flanked with heavy duty restraints is surrounded by a tubular steel frame and roll-over structure.

Equipped with independent suspensions and fat tires with deeply cut treads, the vehicle's 40-plus horsepower engine will allow Howard to attain speeds of 55 to 65 miles per hour.

"It's anybody's race," he remarked. "I'll be a little under-powered—I'll be racing against machines that are $8,000 to $10,000."

Howard, who estimated an initial investment of about $4,500 in his odyssey, added, "If looks could kill, I might want to stay home. But (the race) depends on how quick you are."

Among Howard's 17 competitors Saturday will be last year's odyssey class champion, Johnny Custom of Torrance, Calif.

Last year, Howard held a close second to Custom in the main event until the final lap, when Howard's vehicle developed carburetor problems.

"His motor really out-powered me, but that was on a paved track," Howard, who finished 3rd in the heat race, explained.

During Howard's first run in the Mickey Thompson series, in 1985, he crashed during practice, but finished 4th in the main event. At that time, only unsuspended odysseys—those without shocks—were used.

The suspended vehicles now used are "much safer" and give drivers more control on jumps, according to Howard.

"If you make a mistake, you don't hit the ground; you're protected," he remarked, adding that safety standards are becoming increasingly rigid.

Each driver is required to wear a good helmet and a flame-retardant suit, he explained. A full roll cage on the vehicle, harness, arm restraints and netting (to keep limbs inside the vehicle) also are mandatory.

"I always liked racing, and this is the safest" way to go, Howard said. "It's not expensive."

An employee at his father's business, Howard's Plumbing and Heating, which also is his sponsor, Howard began racing 4 years ago.

"It took me about a year to catch on. You have to have the machine turn sideways—during a power slide—so you're going straight!"

by the time you're around a corner, the 1978 Cass City High School graduate explained. "It's like driving on snow."

You have to know when to brake, too," he added.

Howard pointed out that the upcoming event is the highlight of his racing, which usually includes participating in 3 races in Ohio each year, as well as some local action at the Owendale Speedway.

He paid a $100 entry fee and $50 for insurance to participate Saturday, which will include 3 heats as well as the main event.

The prize money for first place may total as much as $500, but Howard indicated the money isn't what draws racers, and fans (more than 27,000 last year) to the Silverdome.

His respect for and obvious enthusiasm for the sport says it all.

"You don't have anything on your mind except what's in front of you," he said.

OFF-ROAD RACING enthusiast Joe Howard, Cass City, prepares his "suspended odyssey" vehicle for competition in Mickey Thompson's Off-Road Gran Prix Championship set for Saturday at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Village road-work plans, dates aired

The new face lifts for Sherman Street and Division Street (which is in Industrial Park) will begin by June and be completed by mid-September, according to village manager Lou LaPonsie.

LaPonsie said that all the residents along Sherman Street had petitioned the village to get the street repaired. The road repair crews will put in new curbs, gutters, gravel base, and water line. "We want the (gravel) base to settle down before we put the blacktop over it," said LaPonsie. "We will possibly wait until next year to pave the road."

The residents along Sherman will be responsible for the pavement of the curbs and gutters, which runs more than $7 a foot, according to LaPonsie. "It is expensive," he said. Even with the residents helping to pay for the 370 feet of new road, the cost to the village will be $30,000.

Trenches will be dug to install a new water line and new water leads. "We don't want a break in the line to damage the new street," said LaPonsie.

Division Street, in Industrial Park, will also get curbs, gutters and blacktop, but the village foots the bill for it. According to LaPonsie, the roads in Industrial Park are the responsibility of the village and, if a business moves in, then the village must pave the road. United Parcel Service plans to start building a new facility by July 1 on about 3 acres it purchased from the village.

"When a business comes in, we have to do something," LaPonsie said. "We want to do all the streets in the park," sometime. In the contract signed by UPS and the village, the 1200 feet of new road will cost the village about $70,000.

The 2 jobs must wait for when the paving crews from Saginaw are in the area and using the 2 asphalt plants just south of the village. The crews usually arrive in the area by mid-summer.

According to LaPonsie, if a local road is to be repaired, at least 50 percent of the residents must petition the council before money will be allocated.

The large pothole on North Seeger Street in front of the Cass City High School was filled last week with cold mix, temporarily, said LaPonsie. The road will be fully repaired this summer.

The village council has budgeted $2,500 for local street repair and an additional $2,500 for major street repair. The amount of money needed for repair for the year is determined by "past experience and anything foreseen that you are going to have to deal with," said LaPonsie.

ARC focuses on awareness

An awareness campaign to call attention to the needs and abilities of children and adults with mental retardation has been started by the Tuscola County Association for Retarded Citizens.

The campaign coincides with Mental Retardation Month in March, proclaimed nationally by President Ronald Reagan and statewide by Gov. James Blanchard.

The Tuscola County ARC is an affiliated chapter of ARC of the United States, which is headquartered in Texas.

Johnson and Johnson aided the campaign by offering special floor stands that will have information about the ARC. The promotional campaign relates to a 1987 donation by the corporation to the ARC of the United States. Johnson and Johnson is offering special coupons on Band-Aid brand adhesive bandages and other first aid products.

According to ARC Tuscola County President Richard Blakely, churches and businesses are also helping the campaign. Blakely said that about 1,710 people in Tuscola County have some degree of mental retardation.

Cougars eliminate O-G in district

Some things you just can't shake, and the Owen-Gage basketball team couldn't shake the Bay City All Saints as the Cougars eliminated the Bulldogs, 59-46, in the second round of the Michigan High School districts held last Wednesday in Harbor Beach.

The Bulldogs were in the ball game during the first half. In the first quarter they were leading the Cougars 12 to 8. When the half time whistle blew, the Bulldogs were trailing by only 4.

"We were down by 2 points with 30 seconds left in the half, and we were playing for the last shot," said Coach Dean Roller. "But we'd take a bad shot, foul them, and they'd go down to the other end and make 2 free throws. That's kind of how the game went."

The Bulldogs only trailed the Cougars by one in field goals, but the All Saints had 15 good shots from the free throw line compared to the Bulldogs' 4.

Owen-Gage had been having trouble making their free throws count in the last half of the season.

When the teams took the court for the second half, the Bulldogs tried to get into the game but to no avail. The Cougars, with steam coming from their sneakers, ended the third quarter 13 points ahead and the Bulldogs couldn't close the gap.

The fouls, which plagued the team the last 5 or 6 games weren't as bad, the Cougars having 10 to the Bulldogs' 19. Only one Bulldog sat out because of fouls, compared to 4 who were benched in last week's Akron-Fairgrove game.

Roller said that no player had a real good game. Steve Root, who missed the last game of the season, had a terrible day with only 8 points to contribute to the score.

Stu Stirrett was the only Bulldog in double figures, with 17 points.

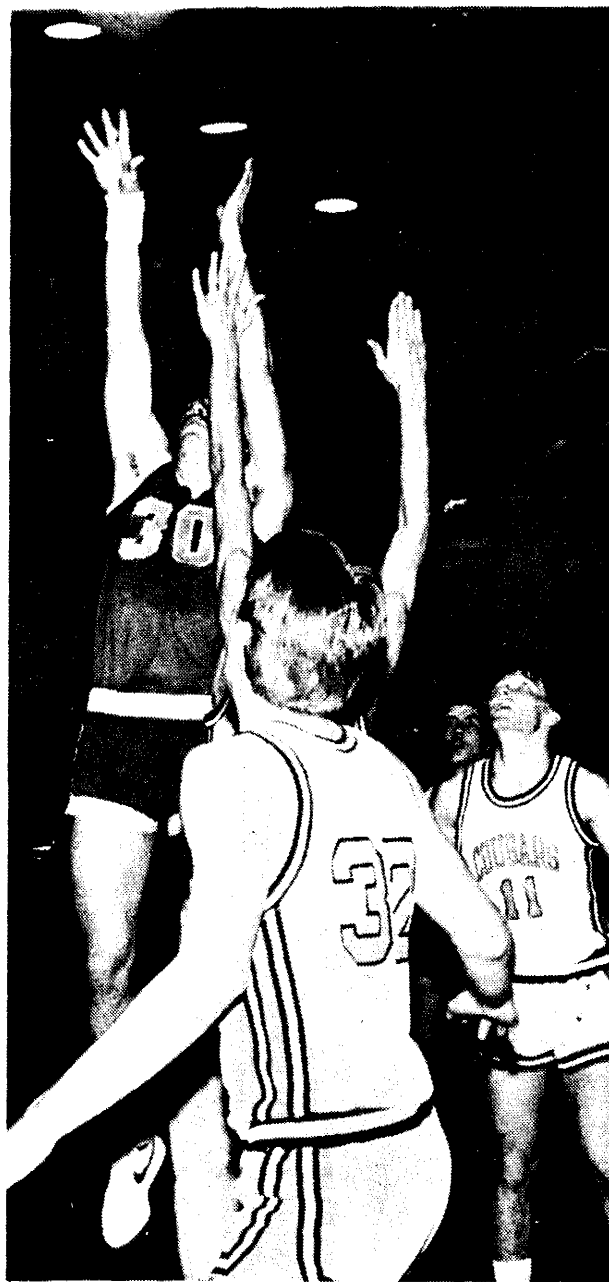

Rick Salcido netted 5 points and Marc Reinhardt added 8 on four field goals. Dave Laurie and Chris Abbe netted 4 points each.

"We haven't played well in the last 5 games," said Roller. "We were at our peak 4 or 5 weeks ago and it's been all downhill from then."

The All Saints could not hold on to the districts, losing to Port Hope 52-49 in the final game Friday night.

Battle of books entering semifinals

The final 2 teams in each of 2 grade divisions were to be decided in the "Battle of the Books" competition following semifinal round action at Rawson Memorial Library March 9 and 11.

Semifinalists going into competition this week were 3rd and 4th-grade division teams, the "Bookateers," coached by Judy Brown; the "Wrestling Readers," coached by Debbie Hobbs; the "Book Buccaneers," coached by Marilyn Mastie, and the "Rocking Readers," coached by Robert Gengler.

Fifth and 6th-grade division finalists were the "Rockin Rocket Readers," coached by Judy Wallace; the "Fabulous Five," coached by Shari Schott; the "Rainbow Readers," coached by Mary Fritz, and the "Fantastic Five," coached by Jo Ann Osantowski.

Winners of the semifinal rounds will meet for the final round to determine first and second places beginning at 7 p.m. March 23 at the library. All other teams will compete in a written "Honors Round" competition scheduled for March 28 at Cass City High School. The honors round will determine third and fourth-place teams.

Announce plans for girls' softball league

Plans for creation of 2 new leagues within the Cass City Girls Softball program were announced this week.

The new leagues, an instructional category for girls aged 8-10 years, and another for girls aged 15 to 18 years, will be in addition to the existing league for players aged 11 to 14 years.

Interested girls who are at least 8 years old and no more than 18 by May 1 can sign up for the program from 6:30-8 p.m. March 24 at Cass City Intermediate School.

Red Hawks win 2 spots on all conference team

Coaches from the Thumb B Association named the all conference basketball teams Monday night and league champion Cass City won 2 spots on the dream team.

Leading all vote getters and captain of the team is Dave Miller, who was also a first team selection as a junior. Joining him was Kurt Bliss. Others honored were Mike Groce, North Branch; Tom Beer, Lakers, and Jim Fleming, Marlette. All are seniors.

Just missing making the first team was Mike Kelley, who led the second team selections. Others are: Bob Brown, Bad Axe; Jim Warren, Lakers; Darren Hazen, Marlette, and Mike Gohsman, Vassar. All are seniors except Gohsman, who is a junior.

Dan Ware of Cass City received honorable mention. Others are: Tom Kevin, Bad Axe; Steve Turner, Tim Werth, both of Caro; Ryan McFall, Imlay City; Kendal Wertz, Paul Elenbaum, Lakers; Tom Pasek, Marlette; Jim Butler, Rod Porritt, North Branch; Brian Morley, Craig Tyson, Vassar.

Team honors earned by Cass City players were also announced. Miller and Bliss are team co-captains. Miller was named the most valuable player and Steve Ross, most improved player.

County board won't cut senior money this year

Senior citizen services in Tuscola County will remain fully intact this year following the County Board of Commissioners' decision last week to pay the full cost of programs now being provided.

The action okays use of an estimated $75,000 in senior money to maintain current service levels, but the board acknowledged that program reductions may be made next year.

Assuming the full $75,000 is used during the current program year, there will be only $55,000 left from the senior citizens' millage money collected this year for next year's services.

County voters last fall rejected a proposal to renew the millage.

According to County Controller Michael Hoagland, a panel of senior citizens and commissioners recommended that the county continue with its existing program and then act to reduce services next year.

The board's action during its regular meeting March 10 must now receive approval from the reorganized Thumb Area Commission on Aging board, which consists of 3 Tuscola County commissioners and one each from Huron and Sanilac counties.

Human Development Commission Director MaryAnn Vandemark was unavailable for comment.

In other business last week, the board heard an annual district court report from Judge Richard Kern. Kern suggested that the county consider asking the state legislature to combine the Tuscola and Lapeer districts in order to help alleviate a heavy caseload in Tuscola County.

Kern also told the board he plans to assign some civil cases to other judges in their counties.

Also last week, the board denied a request from the county treasurer's office to extend the employment of an assistant in that office by 3 months.

According to Hoagland, the proposal included wages for the employee being covered by tax delinquent administrative fee monies. The employee currently works in the office 9 months per year for the purpose of collecting summer taxes.

The board also approved Maintenance of Effort payments of $13,288 and $14,515 for the county Medical Care Facility; authorized $72,500 as the first quarter appropriation to the Probate Court Child Care Fund, and approved paying the remaining balance on current copy machine equipment.

The board also appointed Robert Hennessy to the Planning Commission.

Area lawmaker to serve another year on committee

An area lawmaker has been reappointed to the powerful Appropriations Committee for the 1987-88 state legislative session.

State representative Keith Muxlow (R-Brown City) will return for a 2nd term on the committee, House Republican Leader Paul Hillegonds announced recently.

"The appropriations Committee is the most vital and visible committee in the House. We're proud of the job Keith (representative of District 78) has done and look forward to his contributions during the next 2 years," Hillegonds remarked.

Every funding bill that moves through the Legislature must first be passed by the Appropriations Committee. The main committee conducts much of its business through subcommittees which examine individual budgets.

Muxlow's 3 subcommittee assignments will include the agriculture, transportation and regulatory budgets.

Muxlow will also be serving on the newly-formed House Republican Policy Committee, created to design innovative ideas for the problems facing Michigan. The policy committee will divide into 10 separate task forces, each examining a legislative concern. Muxlow is a member of the task force on crime reduction.

Powder snow powers Utah's economy

By JOHN HAIRE

You can catch a clue to the importance of skiing to Utah when you check the license plates on the cars. In addition to the numbers, each plate is inscribed "Ski Utah, the finest snow on earth."

The world famous snow at Utah is as important there as water is to Michigan's "Water Wonderland."

The slopes on the Wasatch mountains outside of Salt Lake City and the reputation the area has for "powder" snow skiing is what drew 4 of us to the area for a week's skiing in mid-February.

We were not disappointed, but we were lucky. Until 2 days before we arrived, there had been a serious lack of snow and the ski operators were suffering.

But the day before we arrived, there was a 32-inch fall in the mountains and everyone rejoiced. During our week another 5-foot plus arrived and we had new powder snow every day.

Unwittingly our group arrived on what is normally the third most busy time of the year, President's Day. It passes almost unnoticed in Michigan but in Utah rivals Thanksgiving and Christmas as big bucks from tourists time. It was even more important to the economy this year as Christmas and Thanksgiving were an economic bust because of the lack of snow.

Once on the slopes it's easy to realize why the area attracts skiers from all over the United States. There is skiing for everyone, although the majority of the runs are more suited to intermediate or advanced skiers than the beginner. There must be a dozen different ski lodges in the Salt Lake City area with rates and facilities to suit different budgets.

COSTS COMPARED

We paid $35 each for a day on the slopes at Deer Valley. That was tops and we went there just one day. At the other end of the scale there are certain less known areas where mid-week skiing is as little as $8.00 per day. Since we didn't go there, it's impossible to tell you about the facilities. At Deer Valley the cost is greater, but the service excellent. From the time you park your car in front of the lodge there are people around to get you headed in the right direction and make sure that everything that can be done is done to make your visit memorable. For instance, the holiday we visited, it was necessary to reserve the day's skiing in advance. Deer Valley will let only 5,000 skiers on its slopes at one time and if we hadn't reserved our spots in advance, we would not have been allowed to ski that day. No other lodge restricted the number of skiers to avoid overcrowding.

Overcrowding was the problem encountered at Alta, another popular ski area. The combination of the holiday weekend and lower ski fees of $17 attracted hordes of skiers and we spent much of our time waiting in line for chair lifts.

Possibly the area with the most demanding expert slopes we visited was Snowbird, which costs $20 per day plus an extra $7 if riding the gondola is desired. All of the areas visited had plenty of runs that were beyond the ability of advanced intermediate skiers.

The favorite slope of our group was Park City. Park City is a town that skiing built. A chair lift goes right over the main street in town and it's a busy, well-traveled highway. The ski fees there are $28 per day. It is the only ski slope that we skied twice during our stay. As a comparison, skiing in Michigan ranges from about $15 to $25 per day.

THE SLOPES

While the prices generally are a little more than in Michigan, the skier gets more of a bang for his buck. In Michigan, Boyne Mountain has the highest hill in the lower peninsula with a vertical drop of about 500 feet. Park City has a vertical drop of 1,400 feet and others in Utah approach 2,000 feet.

Mother nature also usually blesses Utah (if you are a skier) with much more snow than Michigan can depend on. Operators here overcome that with snow making machines and there are machines in Utah, too. However, the area in the west is so vast that using snow machines there is like trying to cover a broken artery with a Band-Aid.

AFTER THE SKI DAY

Possibly because of the Mormon influence, there are rigid laws covering the sale of booze, some of which strike the visitor as being just plain silly. At certain restaurants and bars you bring your own booze. At others the waitress is not allowed to bring booze to the table and guests go to the bar and pick up the alcohol and bring it to their table. Then they proceed to drink it the same way that they would have if it were brought by the persons serving the table.

There are plenty of good restaurants in Park City and the other areas serving the skier and, at least in the busy season, the cost is generally more than paid at similar restaurants here.

For 2 reasons a visit high on our must list was the seafood buffet at Deer Valley. The first was that we had heard raves about it from other persons. Even more important was that the pastry chef there was Susan Prieskorn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Prieskorn of Cass City. She has been at the lodge for 4 years and has 6 persons working for her. At the buffet there were about 20 different desserts, each designed to ruin a diet and place you on a calorie binge.

There's not enough space here to tell you about the rest of the buffet except to mention that the oysters, shrimp, crab made excellent appetizers and the monk fish and blackened black fish were favorites of this writer.

Usually the tip-off of a good restaurant is its popularity. We phoned at 8 a.m. for reservations and the best time we could get reserved was for 9 p.m. even though the buffet price was $25 each.

WIDE VARIETY

There is a wide variety in the cost and the kind of accommodations for visitors. Deer Valley has a lodge that charges $640 A DAY for rooms and 2 meals. On the other end of the scale, condominiums that sleep 10 can be secured for $750 a week or less.

An added expense for our group was a car rental, which costs $200 for the week. However, if taking a look at Salt Lake City and the surrounding country isn't on the agenda, it's not necessary to rent a car. There is a free shuttle service every 20 minutes or so that will deposit you right at the major ski slopes. One brochure we read said that for groups of 3 or more a shuttle will call and give door to door service.

SAFETY FIRST

In recent days there has been nation-wide publicity about skiers killed in avalanches in Colorado. While we were in Utah, a man was killed cross-country skiing in the unmarked mountain areas. All of these persons were killed because they ignored posted signs warning of the dangers of an avalanche. Skiers staying in approved areas have virtually no risk of being buried in the snow. Needless to say, that's where our group skied.

It was this writer's second trip west. Others in the group were veterans of 3 trips west. Utah skiing compares favorably with other areas and was an experience long to be remembered.

Kingston man arrested on suspicion of OUIL

A 24-year-old Kingston man was arrested and allegedly charged with operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department early Monday morning.

According to a police report, Daniel L. Maxson, 4680 Rossman Rd., was traveling north on Hurds Corner when he was observed "weaving across the center line when driver's side tires then went onto the shoulder."

Maxson stated that he had 6 beers, but later changed it to 3 and then 2 beers. Inside Maxson's car there were "many full and empty bottles of beer," according to the report.

A 26-year-old Cass City man was unable to avoid hitting a deer on Decker-ville Rd., March 8.

Mark P. Titus, 3140 Broadway, stated in a police report that he was traveling west when a deer ran in front of him from the south side and he was unable to avoid hitting the deer.

Titus reported no injuries and only a small amount of damage was done to his car.

Edwin Peters, 69, 3485 N.

Decker Rd., Decker, was uninjured when his car struck a deer on Cemetery Road, Saturday evening.

Peters stated in a police report that he was southbound on Cemetery Road when a deer came out from the east side of the road into his path and he was unable to avoid hitting it.

The incident only did a small amount of damage to his car.

A deer was stolen on Kingston Road, when Jeffery D. Johnson, 26, 1030 Millington Rd., Postoria, went to phone the police after he hit the animal.

Johnson stated in a police report that he was traveling north when a deer ran from the west into the path of his vehicle. Johnson suffered no injuries and only a minimal amount of damage was done to his car.

NO SUSPECTS

There are no suspects in a breaking and entering and larceny of a trailer home that happened March 2 in Deford, according to a Tuscola County Sheriff's Department report.

Earl Dopke, brother of the owner of the home, stated in the report that he keeps an eye on his brother's trailer. Ralph Dopke, according to his brother, lives in Detroit and uses the trailer as a summer cottage.

According to the report the suspect(s) broke into the trailer "by pulling out on crank out window until the hinges of the window bent and the window opened freely by pulling on it."

Dopke said that the suspect(s) had taken a color television, microwave oven, coffee maker and kerosene heater. Dopke didn't know the name brands or value of the items stolen.

Besides the broken window, there was no damage inside the trailer, however, drawers, cupboards and closets had been searched, according to the report.

Dopke stated that the last time he had checked the residence was on Feb. 26. According to the report, the case is closed because there are no suspects or evidence.

STATE POLICE

The only incident the State Police reported last week was a 2 car accident involving 2 Gagetown residents Saturday.

Grace C. Stahl, 46, 6823 North McGregor, complained of injuries after her southbound car was struck by a vehicle owned by James L. Hawley, 36, 5833 Hurds Corner Rd., who was backing out of his driveway.

Hawley was issued a citation for failing to yield. He was uninjured in the incident.

According to the report, Hawley did not see Stahl's car and backed onto the roadway, when his car hit hers.

Minimum damage was done to Stahl's car while only a small amount was done to Hawley's.

Obituary

Irving Bissett

Irving V. Bissett, 82, of Harrison, succumbed March 5 at the Michigan Veterans Facility in Grand Rapids after a lingering illness.

Mr. Bissett was born July 27, 1904, in Bad Axe, the son of John A. and Nellie A. (Galloway) Bissett.

He had resided in the Harrison area since 1973, moving from Cass City. He was a veteran of World War II, serving in the U.S. Army.

Bissett was united in marriage to the former Hazel LaValley Feb. 3, 1945, in Detroit.

Surviving are his wife, Hazel of Harrison, 2 brothers, Ernie of Lapeer and Glenn of Cass City, one sister, Mrs. Erma Martin of Cass City, several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held Monday, March 9, at the Stocking Funeral Home in Harrison with Pastor Bob Steward officiating. Interment was in the St. Athanasius Cemetery in Harrison.

Coming Auction

Saturday, March 21 - Dallas Nichols and Leroy Sefton will sell farming equipment at the place located 4 miles east, 3 miles south and 4 miles east of Cass City on Argyle Rd. Osentoski Auction Service.

Your neighbor says Blue grass with a little bit of Irish Blimey! Irish eyes were as smiling Tuesday as well as the eyes of any other American lad that donned his green clothing, indulged in some green brew, and did a couple of jigs around the dance floor with his favorite lass, celebrating the spirit of the birthday of St. Patrick, the patron saint of ol' Ireland.

Although Margaret Grider, 27, 6445 Garfield Ave., doesn't have a lick of Irish in her, that didn't stop her from celebrating the holiday by playing the spoons and washboard in the Blue Grass Jamboree held at Bach Bar in Bach Saturday night.

Grider donned her favorite green clothes, drank her fill of green ale, and yes, did a jig around the dance floor to the music of Clyde Leiterman, who, according to Grider, is the best singer in all of Michigan and 100 percent Irish.

Grider bought some shamrocks to give to her favorite friends just to spread a bit of Irish around to celebrate the festive day.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Dear Uncle Bill: I just read the Billy Durant autobiography. What a dandy!

Most books like that are dull dull. Not that one.

I noted one thing...In those days he was able to put his creative mind to work—sometimes too creative, but still he was a developer.

Governments wanted him, employees wanted a steady job...all he had to think about was selling, building and finding the money to do it all.

Today it's OSHA, taxes, zoning unions, Mich. Employment Commission, pregnancy leaves, labor boards, city commission fights, city planners' fights, building inspectors, IRS and on and on and on. By the time you get through 'em all, the guy with the original idea is tired, and hasn't much strength left to make his dreams come true.

A real, real shame.

BEN MYERS

(Ben Myers owns and runs one of Michigan's top printing plants, Webco Press, that runs three shifts a day, seven days a week.)

Dear Ben:

I agree with you that today's businessman is beset with bureaucrats. And I'm glad I'm not running a plant now.

We didn't have all that stuff to contend with in the early 30's when I was running the Gladwin County Record. It wasn't until 1937 that we started paying Social Security tax, and then it was 1/2 of 1% on the first $3600. Just $18 a year. There wasn't even overtime pay at time-and-a-half—at least not for firms with fewer than eight employees. Income tax was so low that I can't even recall it being a factor, at all.

Another thing we didn't have was business. I recall some weeks when the gross advertising from the paper was $75. This was when ad rates were 25¢ a column inch, and 20¢ for regular advertisers. A whole page was $32. Once we did a special 8-page section for Goldberg's store on their 75th anniversary. We charged them $200.

Our weekly payroll, counting my $15, totalled $91.

I used to lay out a $2 ad, plod down the main street to Miller's store and try to sell it. Dawson's Jewelry used a $1 ad. That took a layout, too.

Cripes, after the war our annual sales were only $60,000-$65,000.

Actually I don't know which of the two eras I would choose, if the clock could be turned back and started again.

One thing about those days—nobody ever quit, or asked for more money.

Harking back to days of yore is usually silly. I do it to suggest that maybe those days of deep depression will return. If and when they do, we'll be in a pickle, with all these built-in extra costs of doing business—pensions, sky-high Social Security costs, sky-high insurance, extra outlays to comply with EPA and OSHA. Those things won't go away, but sales can easily take a nose-dive.

You're lucky to be in the printing business. At least you don't have the problems of product liability that are stalling many manufacturers.

Take it from your old uncle, Ben, this is the time to sock away money. Forgo these big boats, the Porsches, these vacation homes. Lots of time for them later. Meanwhile, some tax-free municipals will compound at 7%, more than doubling your money every 10 years.

Example: $200M of such 7% tax-free zeros, maturing in 25 years, will cost you $36,363 now. Less than your speedboat cost. In 2012, you'll be only 56 years old. Laddie, that's young. Real young.

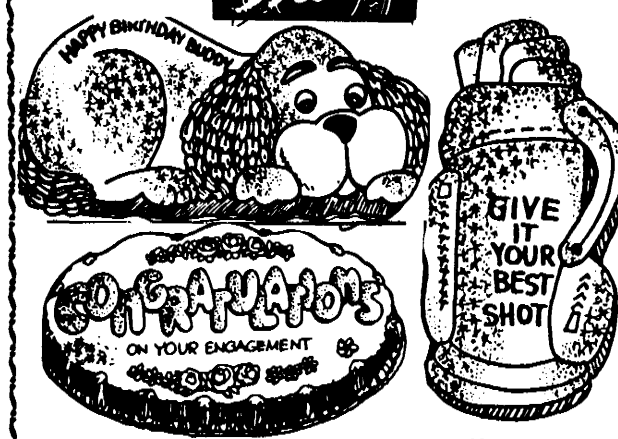

Fondly,
O' Uncle Bill

Review board action brisk

people out—a fine turnout and it was a beneficial turnout." O'Dell added, "It was very uneventful. We had very few complaints."

Wells Township -- "I've been called everything from a dictator to a communist, but this year was different," Township Supervisor Melvin L. Witkovsky said. "We had a quiet one—it's the first one (like this) in the 10 years I've been in office."

"Usually we have anywhere from 30 to 60 who come," he said, adding that residential property in the township has dropped by about 6 percent, while agricultural land has decreased by 15 percent.

"The property that has moved has been quite low in value," Witkovsky observed. "I've had some that sold for less than 1/2 of what the assessment was, and some have sold for...more than the assessment."

Of 6 persons who attended the review board meetings, 5 filed appeals ranging from $500 to $2,000, and 4 of those were granted, he added.

Columbia Township -- Township Supervisor John H. DeSimplare also reported pleasant review board proceedings, with 2 of 3 appeals being granted.

"In previous years when valuations climbed, it was busy," he stated. "You just cringed to see those days come up. But (this year) it was pretty quiet—I don't think there were over 6 or 7 persons."

Residential land in the township remained about the same this year, while agricultural property plummeted by 33 percent, DeSimplare said.

Elmwood Township -- It was much the same story in Elmwood, according to Township Supervisor James C. Turner.

"More people came in to visit and see what was going on more than anything else," he said.

"Residential (land) is staying the same, basically," Turner explained. He added that residential land in the township saw a 3 percent drop this year, while agricultural property is down by 30 percent. There were no appeals filed by the 12 persons who came to the review board proceedings, he said.

Koylton Township -- Despite the largest increase in the value of residential property of any township in the county—some 10 percent—Township Supervisor Terry Boyne indicated review board action was "pretty quiet."

About 18 persons filed a total of 15 appeals, one of which was granted, Boyne said. He added that Great Lakes Appraisal of Lansing this year completed a re-evaluation of property in the township. "It's something we've been working on for the past 3 years," he said. "Everybody knew what we were doing."

The township had 3 hearings on the year-long re-evaluation, which resulted in an overall increase in residential assessments of about 3 percent.

HURON COUNTY

Brookfield Township -- Township Supervisor Walton Brown reported 12 persons attending review board meetings. Each of 3 appeals filed by residents was granted.

Brown also attributed the "quiet year" to residential property values, which remained unchanged this year. Agricultural land in the township dropped by some 30 percent this year, he noted.

Sheridan Township -- With no change in the value of residential land in the township this year, 11 persons attended review board proceedings, compared to 26 persons last year, when the same land values increased.

Township Supervisor Robert Becking said there was only one appeal this year. "I didn't really expect that many (to attend) because we had no increase," he added.

Agricultural land, meanwhile, has dropped by 14 percent. "We had quite a rough time when ag was going in leaps and bounds," Becking remarked. "But now it's going the other way."

Bingham Township -- Residential land values also remained about the same in Bingham Township, according to review board member Bruce E. Brown.

There were 8 appeals filed by a total of 12 persons, he said, adding that 3 of the appeals were granted.

The value of agricultural property in the township this year sustained a decrease of about 8 percent, he reported.

Grant Township -- About 20 persons—3 times more than usually attend review board meetings—showed up this year, Township Supervisor Betty Powell said, adding, "We haven't had a raise in residential in quite a few years."

Powell explained that an updated "economic factor" being applied to assessments this year, in addition to an increase in well and septic assessments, combined to raise residential land values by about 7 percent.

None of the 3 appeals filed by residents were granted.

SANILAC COUNTY
Evergreen Township -- All 4 appeals filed by a total of 18 residents were granted in Evergreen Township, where residential land values are up by about .5 percent this year.

"I think this year was about average," Township Supervisor Audrey Leslie said. "We usually get more when we raise assessments." She added that 2 appeals were filed last year.

Lamotte Township -- "Overall, we had a pretty quiet" 2 days of review board proceedings, Township Supervisor Mike Redman commented.

"Most residential land went down a little bit—I think you're talking about one or 2 percent," he added. "We just didn't have anything major come up."

No appeals were filed by the 7 persons who met with the review board, Redman said.

Agricultural land values, which dropped by 9 percent this year, must still drop by another 9 or 10 percent in order to reflect accurate sale values, Redman remarked.

Dog star

Every dog has its day. And winter is the time for Sirius, the "Dog Star." According to Ranger Rick magazine, Sirius is one of the stars closest to Earth, making it the brightest in the winter sky. It's also hotter and bigger than any of the other close stars. Sirius is part of the constellation called the "Big Dog," or Canis Major. Both are visible from November until mid-May.

15 attend ag breakfast

More than 15 village officials from around Tuscola County attended a breakfast Monday morning to celebrate Agriculture Understanding Week, at the Tuscola County Farm Bureau.

The week, which started Sunday and will continue to Saturday, is to recognize the farmers and agricultural people in the county. The week has been a nationwide event for the past 10 years.

During the breakfast, chairman of Tuscola County Board of Commissioners, William Worth, signed a proclamation declaring March 20 as Agriculture Day. "Agriculture Day has been established to honor the men and women in agriculture for their contributions to the nation, state and the communities," said Worth. "It is also the goal of Agriculture Day to create an understanding of the special services, products and policy needs of the agriculture and agribusiness sector."

The breakfast was made up of all products that are produced in Michigan.

breakfast, the Farm Bureau has distributed place mats to county restaurants.

Cass City resident Jack Laurie, president of Michigan Farm Bureau, spoke to the village leaders about the changes that the farmers will be going through. "We just came through an agricultural cycle. We are heading for that change to enjoy an upward swing in agriculture," he said.

Laurie said that farmers and bankers have learned a lot from this down swing the farmers have been experiencing and both are more cautious than before. "Farmers can cope with the cycle better than back in 1980," said Laurie.

Barry Hedley, president of the County Farm Bureau, said he hopes the breakfast with the village leaders will become an annual event. "We should keep this an ongoing thing. We need this communication going on with the Farm Bureau, farmers and village people."

The breakfast was made up of all products that are produced in Michigan.

O-G completes drug program

With the help of Rhonda Rabbit, Buttons and Bows the kittens and Donovan the wise owl, Dennis Mitin, from the Bad Axe Social Service Unit, talked to Owendale-Gagetown Elementary School fourth graders about drugs, alcohol and child abuse recently.

The children helped Mitin out by using the puppets that brought the story of Rhonda Rabbit's troubled life alive. This week was the last week of the half hour lectures for the BABES (Beginning Alcohol and Addiction Basic Education Studies) program. Mitin is presenting the 7-week BABES program to 5 different schools including Caseville and Unionville-Sebewaing Area schools.

With the colorful hand puppets Mitin told the story of Rhonda Rabbit, who had been sexually abused by her alcoholic mother's boyfriend named Uncle Jinx. Mitin and the children discussed what Rhonda could do to alleviate her problem.

The children learned their lessons well and the hands were raised when Mitin discussed the sexual and physical abuse Rhonda was going through. "She should talk to someone she trusts," one fourth grader said as she held the rabbit puppet.

The discussion turned to self-image and sharing feelings. Mitin urged the boys to talk about their feelings more and not keep everything in. He told them not to keep their anger in and to tell someone if they are angry with them.

KURT BLISS

Senior who was a key player in the team's championship season. He was promoted to the varsity as a freshman. An all around ball player he could play out front or post up. It's probable that only injuries in his sophomore and junior seasons kept him from establishing records during his career.

GREG HANBY

Junior. He wasn't scheduled to play many minutes this year and he knew it. At 6-4 he's the tallest player on the junior varsity or varsity. If he can hone his skills between now and next season, Cass City foes should beware. A rebounder is what the varsity needs.

MARK HIRN

Junior. On many teams Hirn would have logged a good many minutes. On the championship squad he saw limited action, but when he got in, he showed he had a nose for the ball. He could be a balancing influence on the inexperienced varsity players next season.

DENNIS HYATT

Senior. Hyatt is the type of player that coaches love. He did what was asked all season. Starting as a regular he became one of the persons that Coach Ron Nurnberger looked for off the bench all season. He saw action in every game and was there when needed.

MIKE KELLEY

Senior. Kelley was the team's leading rebounder this season and the 3-year varsity veteran showed increased skills from the pivot position. He was one of the keys for a successful season for Cass City and the record proves that he came through.

DAVE MILLER

Senior. This 3-year varsity veteran scored 984 points in his varsity career, yet was the consummate team player. He tied with Bliss for assists for the season with 82 and led the club in steals with 58. His base line jumper was one of the reasons that Cass City went undefeated in the Thumb B Conference.
