It Must Be Spring!

Enjoy it! Balmy weather not typical for 1st spring day

It's officially spring! The signs are all around us.

Gardener Arthur Holmberg has been preparing his gardens around his North Seeger Street home since the first spring flowers, the crocuses, have sprung up to show their colors.

According to Rick Mohr at the Cass City Water Treatment Plant, this has been the warmest first day of spring in the past five years, a great way to finish off a warm winter.

On March 21, 1983, the weather didn't make it above freezing, with a high of 30.

In 1984 and 1985 the weather was a high of 42, but spring showers marred the 1984 spring day.

But, the good weather has to go sour sometime and Wednesday is the day. The day will still be in the high 50s, but rain showers will replace blue skies.

Recovery agonizingly slow

Start fund for Sarah

Nine-year-old Sarah Miller, who was struck by a car 4 weeks ago near her Cass City home, remained in a coma early this week at Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor.

A fund-raising effort for the Miller family, meanwhile, has been initiated by the owners of the Charmont, where an 8-night benefit bowling tournament is underway.

Sarah was struck by a car on Feb. 24 while near her parents' home on Cemetery Road just south of Cass City. She suffered no broken bones, but sustained several internal injuries.

Though seriously injured, the Campbell Elementary School 3rd grader appears to be showing some signs of improvement, according to her father, Cass City Police Sgt. Donald Miller.

"She's getting better, but it's just a little bit each day," Miller said. "You notice more each week than you do each day."

Miller spends his 3 days off each week in Ann Arbor with his daughter and wife, Bridget, who is staying at the nearby Ronald McDonald House.

"(Sarah's) kind of breathing on her own, but she still needs a little help from the respirator," he continued. "Hopefully she'll be off the respirator in another week."

Miller indicated that a procedure to reduce the pressure in Sarah's skull has netted some positive results. Doctors, who earlier induced a deep coma in the youth in hopes of reducing the pressure, have tapped into her spinal cord in order to remove some of the fluid from her skull, he said.

Miller added that he and his wife have been told that further improvement will take time. "It's going to be a long wait," Miller remarked.

The Miller family will be receiving some money to help cover travel and other costs, according to Charmont owner Clare Comment, who along with his wife, Jeannie, and daughter, Lisa, has organized a benefit bowling tournament.

The tournament began March 19 and will run through Sunday, with league members being asked to contribute $1 to enter the tournament.

Of the total proceeds collected, 10 percent will go to the top 3 tournament bowlers, while the remaining 90 percent will be donated to the Millers, Comment said, adding, "I think it (the donation) will be over $500."

Comment, who noted that his wife and daughter "just wanted to do something for" the Miller family, added that anyone interested in making a donation is welcome to contact the Charmont at 872-4200.

Adjust to life after farming

Waggs pleased with dairy buyout

by PAULA PAYTON

For 33 years Roy and Shirley Waggs filled their lives with milking 32 cows, farming 120 acres and raising 3 children. The children are grown and gone, most of the land is rented out and the Waggs have only 6 cows and a horse left in the old rambling barn to keep Roy busy during the day.

In late August 1986, the Waggs participated in the Federal Government's dairy herd buyout program, not for financial reasons, but because it was time to get out. "The kids were grown, we had no help, and we were tired of being here all the time," said Roy.

"We were to the point where we had to improve it (the farm) a whole lot or get out," added Shirley. The Waggs said they have no regrets about taking part in the buyout program. "I had the choice of getting out and I guess I wouldn't change my decision," said Roy.

THE ADJUSTMENT

The change from farming life to civilian life has been difficult for the Waggs. "If you've been at it as long as we have, it's difficult trying to get out of the routine of waking up early every morning and not being here all the time. It's hard to change," said Roy.

One thing that Roy is finding hard adjusting to is what to do until 4:30 p.m. when he goes to work cleaning offices for Walbro. He started working there last month.

"When the cows were first gone I didn't know what to do with myself," said Roy. Shirley says she keeps busy with sewing and other creative hobbies.

Roy is in the process of wallpapering the kitchen. "I sleep late in the mornings," he said with a sly grin. The rest of his day he "piddles" around the Spence Road farm that has been in the Waggs family since 1940.

"We are trying to get into a different routine, it's an adjustment," said Shirley. "The free time is the hardest."

"Sometimes I'm someplace else and I think I have to get back at 4 o'clock (milking time)," Shirley laughed.

The Waggs intend to use their spare time, in the near future, to travel. "One thing we never had was any time off," said Roy. "For 20 years we never took a vacation." The Waggs traveled to Canada for a weekend last fall and plan to visit their son in Los Angeles soon.

A NEW LIFE

Roy said he does miss some aspects of farming.

"I miss not going out in the fields, and the barn's empty. The farm was a really good place to raise kids. Seems we were around them all the time," said Roy.

One big difference Roy sees in working a farm and working an 8-hour job is the responsibility. "You don't have the continued responsibility at the job. You work 8 hours, go home, and don't worry about it again until 4:30 p.m. tomorrow."

"Another nice thing about the job is you get a lot of benefits," said Roy. "We didn't have that when we were farming."

Roy said that there is more supervision at his job. Please turn to page 11.

school, Smith said. Reese -- Plans in the Reese school district are uncertain following the defeat March 9 of a 2-mill request which would have generated $164,000.

According to a school spokesman, the board will discuss its alternatives at a regular meeting April 13 at the elementary school.

The spokesman said that the board had projected a budget deficit of some $400,000 even with approval of the additional 2 mills, following a loss of some $25 million in SEV since last year.

The district, which expects to be partially in-formula in the next school year, currently levies a total of 25.5 mills plus 2 1/2 mills for debt service.

Owen-Gage -- Owen-Gage School officials also have no specific plans concerning a millage request June 8.

The district currently levies a total of 31.5 mills, including a special 6-mill request which will expire this year. The district also levies 7 of a mill for debt service, which is expected to go up in the 1987 tax year.

School Supt. Harley Kirby stated that the school board hasn't yet made any decisions concerning the district's budget, or a possible request for additional millage. But, he added, "I'm sure more millage will be needed."

IN-FORMULA

Although out-of-formula school districts are hurting the most following record drops in state equalized valuation, in-formula districts also are feeling a pinch.

Cass City district residents may not see a request for additional millage for another year, but the trend won't last, according to school Supt. Donald G. Crouse.

The Cass City district operated with a deficit budget in 1985 (-$41,349) and 1986 (-$72,661), Crouse said, adding the 1987 deficit is expected to be nearly $100,000.

"We can probably do that for one more year; then we'll probably need one additional mill for operations," he explained.

The district currently levies a total of 26.9 mills, which includes one mill for asbestos removal. That 2-year millage will raise a total of about $210,000. Please turn to page 14.

Sales brisk for Chamber fete

Tickets are on sale for the 24th annual Cass City Chamber of Commerce banquet and advance sales indicate that the varied program, offered is of interest to Cass City residents.

While encouraged by the sale 2 weeks before the event slated Thursday, April 2, at 6:30 p.m. at the cafeteria at Cass City High School, Tom Herron, president, says that there are plenty of tickets available for everyone that would like to attend. Tickets are available from any Chamber board member, various merchants, or by calling 872-2217 or 872-3434.

Interest has peaked in the meeting this spring because of the program and the recent revitalization of the Chamber. The glory days of Cass City as Michigan's "Christmas town" will be recalled with slides and commentary by Lloyd Vyse and Evelyn MacRae. Special recognition for the contributions of W. E. Walpole will be made by Dr. H. T. Donahue. Lambert Althaver will make a special surprise presentation.

As always, one of the highlights of the evening will be the selection of the junior citizen and the citizen of the year. Announcing the junior citizen will be John Maharg, while Tom Proctor will introduce the citizen of the year.

Althaver will be the master of ceremonies and Village President Larry Davis will tell about the condition of the village.

ROY AND SHIRLEY WAGG adjust to a new life outside of farming.

The high price of TV ads
by Melva E. Guinther

I don't think I've ever seen a TV commercial worth $1.2 million, or even $350,000. Those were the respective price tags for a 60-second ad during the Super Bowl and the 14 1/2-hour miniseries, "Amerika" (which would probably have taken 6 hours without commercials).

We recorded the Super Bowl so we could fast-forward through the Karlis kicks, Simms passes and Banks tackles to review those wonders of Madison Ave. It didn't seem right that such expensive ads should be wasted while everybody had gone to the john or the refrigerator.

Unfortunately, few remember what company sponsored the commercials even if we liked them. Does anyone know who has the "real answers to real life," with which most of us could identify?

One of the high-priced ads that makes no sense whatsoever is the sexy woman wearing Jeffrey's shirt. (I suspect her clothes are in the laundry because the airline lost her baggage.) She says, "If you think I look good in this, you should see Jeffrey." So why don't they just show the shirt on him?

A notable exception to the "Little kids are always cute" theory is the tyke who throws his "airplane" dish full of food on the floor. The next scene shows the mess cleaned up and his plane replaced by a racing car. By the time he flings this one, I'm more concerned with the parents than the durability of the carpet.

You can't blame the child for confusing his dishes with toys, but surely a responsible adult should intervene with some constructive measures.

Frankly, I'm sick to death of clouds taking toilet paper surveys and pain reliever commercials that do anything but.

And I do hope farmers will buy lots of whatever it is that gets rid of those ugly full-screen cutworms and rootworms. I'm not sure what they do to crops, but at suppertime, they spoil my appetite.

The California raisins, getting down to "Heard it Through the Grapevine" are great, although I'm not sure why and I still don't like raisins.

Michael J. Fox's Diet Pepsi spot and Rich Hall's plugs for Pizza Hut are also topnotch. Of course, the very sight of a piece of pizza starts me salivating.

Another in the "cute" category is the 3-dog team of "choplifters," for Tender Chops.

Basically, what I look for in a commercial is something light, upbeat and entertaining. If I wanted to see ugly stains, spotty glasses and dirt buildup, I wouldn't have to watch TV.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

It doesn't seem possible, but it's almost sure that about two-thirds of the folks around the community these days never experienced what it was like when Cass City was Christmas Town.

It's not likely that any film can recreate it, but a glimpse of what it was like will be available at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet April 2.

Five days in a row with brilliant sunshine. In March, yet. Why do I keep thinking that we'll pay for all of this in April?

Periodically, zoning in Cass City has changed and it is about to undergo another revision this spring. That doesn't seem like that big a deal unless you take the long view. Our industrial park and our beautiful subdivisions just didn't happen by accident.

Cass City was one of the first to zone in the Thumb and it shows. A tip of the hat to our pioneer fathers.

A little effort pays off. Membership in the Chamber of Commerce has ballooned from a little over 40 to over 80 and the campaign is just getting underway.

Under the direction of Tom Herron and with the help of Lambert Althaver, big things are planned to help Cass City grow.

Blood drive, drug abuse discussed by women's club

A blood drive and a drug and alcohol program were discussed at the Owendale Women's Club March meeting.

The members of the club plan to help the Red Cross by making calls to get blood donors. Each member is responsible for getting at least 5 people to donate blood. The program is designed to help get more donors in the Owendale area where pints of blood are needed.

On April 20th the club will hold a drug and alcohol program at the Owendale school library. Donna Rees of Hills and Dales Hospital will speak to the group and a film will be shown.

The women worked on Easter baskets during the remainder of the meeting.

THE TRIP TO the Michigan Livestock Exchange yards was delayed for cattle in this overturned truck. With the help of volunteers the escaped cow was captured. There were no injuries.

Cows' trip to auction block delayed by mishap

A truckload of cows headed for the last roundup avoided the auction block, but only briefly, last Tuesday on M-81, about 2 1/2 miles east of Cass City.

The brief respite from the trip to Michigan Livestock Exchange yards and ultimately your dinner table came when the trailer housing 4 cows became unhitched and turned over.

No report was made to law enforcement officials so the driver from Pinconning is unidentified. In the accident, one of the cows was able to escape and wandered off in the field and the chase began.

With the help of good Samaritan volunteers and the encouragement of everyone else watching, the errant bovine was recaptured and then, presumably, met her destiny a few hours later than originally planned.

The Haire Net

During the height of the oil crisis, the car religiously never exceeded 55 miles per hour. Since then, the speed has gradually increased so that now, on the expressways, the speedometer generally sits at about 68 miles per hour and at 62 on other highways.

So it stands to reason that there should be support for the liberalization of the speed laws and a 65 miles per hour maximum. Well, there isn't.

We think that 65 miles per hour on expressways is reasonable and so evidently do most law enforcement officials. Traffic today probably averages that speed, if not more, and most patrolmen won't bother you at 10 miles over the legal limit.

The kicker in all of this, of course, is that if the limit is raised to 65, traffic will be cruising at 75 and there's really no need for that.

Today an argument rages about whether or not the reduced speed was responsible for the reduction in deaths and serious accidents per miles travelled that came about after the 55 miles per hour went into effect.

Both those who favor a high limit and those who are happy with the way things are today have theories about what caused the reduction. The determining factor for me is the support that the present law has from the insurance companies. It's a hard-headed dollars and cents business decision for them and when they lobby for the slower speed, that tells me that it's the safer way to go.

There's really no need for most of us to travel 75 miles per hour. It's tempting to do so for just one reason. Boredom. A trip often made is to Boyne City, Mich. The city is 187 miles from home. When I made the trip at 55 miles per hour, I figured about 4 hours with a stop or stops along the way. Since I've increased the speed, about 20 minutes have been chopped from the trip. Most trips aren't that long, so in the vast majority of cases the time saved has to be insignificant.

You get used to travelling at certain speeds. When the speed dropped to 55, it seemed as if the car was just crawling and that it took forever to get anywhere. That only lasted for a few weeks and 55 soon became a comfortable driving range. Now that my speed has gradually increased, it's starting to feel slow again.

Okay, I know what you may be saying. There's nothing to stop me from going 55 miles an hour if I want and let other drivers get the speed up where they want to see it.

The trouble with that is that if the speed is legally hiked, I just know that I won't have the gumption to drive at a lower speed like I should. And even if I did, that wouldn't help much if a guy cruising at 80 loses control and slams into my car.

"If It Fitz..."

Vacation memories

By Jim Fitzgerald

The purpose of the banquet was to raise funds for nursing scholarships to North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. The menu included Sanders hot fudge from Detroit and chocolate cookies from Marino's Cookie Co. in East Lansing. A short speech was made by Ben Smith, a Detroit businessman and one of Michigan's best amateur golfers for many years. More than 130 people from all over Michigan attended. Twenty more Michiganders wanted to be there but were turned away because the dining room wasn't large enough.

"It sure is good to get away from Michigan," I told my wife. We were at the Imperial Golf Club in Naples, Fla.

Smith's brief remarks were a salute to the woman who dreamed up "The Michigan Party" and did most of the work — Lynne Malpeli, who lives part-time in Charlevoix, also part-time in Naples and Charlotte, N.C., with her husband Jack, a full-time entrepreneur.

The Malpelis are friends of my barely younger sister, Mary Lou, who lives part-time in Naples with her very elderly husband, who has been retired so long nobody alive can remember what he used to do for a living. Personally, I don't have any friends with more than one home. Few of my friends have more than one bathroom.

It should be pointed out that when I vacationed in Naples I didn't freeload in Mary Lou's condo. My three other sisters did that — Terrible Jean from Southfield, Nancy the Itch from Cincinnati, and Baby Linda from San Antonio. Terrible Jean is so much older than Baby Linda that when they get together the generation gap is too large to believe, except on "The Twilight Zone."

Terrible Jean, in fact, is still in Florida, currently on the east coast and headed north slowly. She isn't expected home until an independent government survey furnishes irrefutable proof that within 20 miles of I-75, between Michigan and Florida, there's not one home left in which Terrible Jean hasn't been an overnight guest.

My wife and I and our youngest daughter's family of four rented our own condo for two weeks, on ritzy Vanderbilt Beach on the Gulf of Mexico. I found it wasn't too expensive when all costs were split down the middle and I was the bookkeeper. My son-in-law probably doesn't realize it, but I charged him $800 — a week's rent — for risking my life to save his daughter Emily's favorite flip-flop sandals from being washed out to sea.

You would have been proud of me. It was raining, the wind was howling, and the waves were 20 feet high. But Emily and I were on the beach because, by God, we were in Florida. It didn't matter that the temperature was 55 degrees there and 72 back home in Detroit. After spending $600 round-trip to fly away from winter, I always enjoy sitting and sobbing on the wet cold sand while shouting foul imprecations into Mother Nature's rotten ugly face. Emily and I decided to remove the mud from her sandals by placing them on the shore where the last slosh of an exhausted wave would gently wash them clean. Emily's excuse for doing such a dumb thing is that she is five years old. My excuse is that, because of the song, I thought tides always ebbed.

As the sandals swiftly retreated toward the black horizon, Emily informed me that she loved them more than anything. She demanded that I plunge into the cold, rolling ocean and rescue her flip-flops. I was fully clothed to protect against getting sunburned in Detroit. But in I went, up to my stupid neck.

The sandals were saved, and Emily was proud of me. I think she was as pleased as when, a few days earlier, she was summoned to her school principal's office for the first time. She regarded it a great honor to be admitted into such an august presence and couldn't wait to get home and brag about it.

Why did the principal want to see her? "He wanted to check me for head lice," Emily said. Onward and Upward, as the sea rushes out.

Cass City woman files CSC complaint against Bad Axe man

A 17-year-old Cass City woman filed a report with the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department accusing a Bad Axe man of criminal sexual assault. Police have not found the suspect.

The report stemmed from an incident that occurred early Saturday morning when the woman stated that she was offered a ride home from a party by the suspect. The man took her on a gravel road just east of town. The woman stated in the report that she told the suspect that she didn't want to have sex with him and that she had a boyfriend.

When the officer asked her if the man had used any sign of force at all against her, she stated he did not. The woman also stated that she did not attempt to exit the vehicle, push him away or say no in a mean voice. She said that she let the man have sex with her "because the subject had a look in his eyes that most men have when they mean business," according to a report.

The woman said that afterwards the suspect did a U-turn on the gravel road and drove back to the party. The woman went home and told her boyfriend and the two went back to the party, where the boyfriend accused the man of "raping his girlfriend," according to a report. Witnesses at the party stated that the suspect jumped out a window and ran to avoid a confrontation with the woman's boyfriend.

Witnesses said that the man had not left the party all night and was willing to testify in court for him, according to a report.

The woman went to Hills and Dales Hospital for an examination.

After the examination, the woman and the police went to look for the road the woman described but could find no traces of a U-turn on the gravel road just east of town. The woman stated it could have been closer to town.

The sheriff's department contacted the Huron County Sheriff's Department and the Bad Axe Police Department, but have not found the suspect.

OWLS AND OUIL

In other Tuscola County Sheriff's Department reports, two area men were arrested, one for operating a vehicle while his license was suspended and the other, for operating a vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Michael E. Horne, 19, 4118 S. Seeger St., Cass City, was arrested Friday and charged with alleged OWLS, according to a report.

Horne was driving 66 to 67 mph on Cemetery Road when police spotted him. Horne turned east onto the road that leads to the dump area and "bailed out and took off running on foot to the north," according to a report.

Cass City Police Department Chief Gene Wilson came out to the scene and recognized the car that Horne had been driving.

While the police were waiting for the wrecker, Horne's brother drove him back to the scene, where he was arrested.

A 17-year-old Deford man was arrested early Saturday morning on suspicion of OUIL, according to a police report.

Tony O. Yost, 6950 Deckerville Rd., allegedly was driving east just past Cass City village limits when police observed his car drive off the roadway, then drive left of center line, then back off the roadway again before he stopped, according to the report.

Yost stated in the report that he was having problems with the front end of his car and it makes it hard to drive. Police found a fifth of root beer schnapps and a 12 pack of beer in his car. The schnapps was 3/4 gone.

Yost became sick after he was arrested and a breathalyzer test could not be done, according to the report.

The two passengers in the car, both 17, stated they weren't drinking and wanted to drive, but Yost wouldn't let them. They went with him to make sure he got home all right.

B&E AND LARCENY

Mike Gilmore of Deford called police March 1 when a trailer he had been looking after for friends was broken into.

The trailer, located at 4530 Riley Rd., is owned by Jack Downs and his wife, who live in Warren. The Downs plan to move to Deford after they retire. The trailer is used as a summer resort.

According to a report, "entry to the mobile home was on the west end of the trailer house where the suspect(s) had broken out a window and crawled through the window, went inside and took a few items."

According to Gilmore, five items were taken: an outside front door light worth about $20, a $200 microwave oven, a clock radio worth $35, an electric can opener worth $20, and a can of coffee.

Police have no suspect or evidence, but feel the crime may be connected to a breaking and entering that occurred on Froede Rd. around the corner from Riley Road in late February. In both cases a trailer home was involved, the owners use the homes in the summer months, and there was no evidence.

In a separate report, a Gagetown man filed a larceny of money report with police March 12, but the case is closed because there were no suspects and evidence.

John Olszak, 5584 Walsh Rd., stated that he had 4 $20 bills in his pants pocket and had hung the pants up in the only bathroom in his home. In the morning he said that 2 $20 bills were missing.

Olszak said he thought his son's friend had done it since he stayed over that night and it was not the first time something had disappeared after his son's friends came over.

DEER/CAR MISHAPS

The only car mishaps reported by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department in the area were two Deford men who could not avoid hitting deer who ran into the paths of their cars.

Gerald T. Creason, 41, 6650 Bevens Rd., Deford, was uninjured when his car struck and killed a deer on Saturday when he was traveling on Bevens Road, according to a report.

Creason stated he was driving north when a deer running in the same direction ran into the path of his car and he was unable to avoid hitting the animal. Only minimal damage was done to his car.

A 26-year-old Deford man was driving south on Cemetery Road when a deer ran into the path of his car and was struck and killed.

Ronald B. Kuenzli, 675 S. Cemetery Rd., was uninjured in the mishap and only minimal damage was done to his car.

PAPER PLATE toss winner, Charlotte Putnam, Caro, smiles a teary grin as she holds up the only plate she caught during last Wednesday's event. The toss was held behind Dan's Men's Wear.

Kingston school board has open seat

Persons interested in running for a seat on the Kingston Board of Education must file a nominating petition by 4 p.m. April 6 in the school board office, 5790 State St., Kingston.

Potential candidates must obtain at least 20 signatures, but school officials recommend that persons get more than the minimum number.

One 4-year term will expire this year, school Supt. Jerry Laycock said.

Cass City students set to perform mystery/comedy

A spoof of a mystery/comedy, described as a cross between the television shows, "Laugh In" and "Perry Mason," will be presented by Cass City High School students Thursday and Friday evenings.

Both performances will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the high school cafeteria.

The play, author Eddie Cope's "Agatha Christie Made Me Do It," centers on police officer Hootspah, who's tired of being a cop and decides the quickest way to riches and a life of ease is to write a murder mystery.

Never having written anything before, he seeks help from a hypothetical book which analyzes Agatha Christie's methods as a mystery writer.

In spite of his bumbling manner, his obvious ineptness for the task and the fact that his people frequently get out of hand, Hootspah manages to put together a play featuring comedy, suspense and a cast of high caliber characters.

Hootspah blithely ignores some facts of life and law in developing a plot, but this doesn't deter him; he'd put it down to "poetic license" if he knew the term.

Photosynthesis isn't new

There's nothing new under the sun. Fossils found in Australia show that photosynthesis has been going on a lot longer than scientists once thought -- about 700 million years longer! According to International Wildlife magazine, the new fossil evidence indicates that blue-green algae were producing oxygen through photosynthesis 3.5 billion years ago. That's just one billion years after the earth was formed.

Owen-Gage names Enderle and McPhail as top pupils in 1987

Owen-Gage School officials recently named Cynthia J. Enderle as valedictorian and Michelle M. McPhail as salutatorian of the class of 1987.

Enderle, who has a grade point average of 3.99, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Enderle of Owendale.

The 3-year National Honor Society member served as president of the NHS in her junior year, and has been vice-president, treasurer and class representative during her 4-year tenure on the student council.

Enderle also has been a member of the Business and Office Education Club for 3 years, the yearbook staff for 2 years, the French Club for one year, and was class president in her freshman and senior years.

Athletics also has played a major role during her high school years. Enderle was co-captain of the basketball squad this year—her fourth year in the sport. She also has been a member of the volleyball team for 4 years, during which she earned All-Area Honorable Mention and All-Conference 2nd team honors as well as being named co-captain in her senior year and co-MVP in her junior year. She also received honors as a member of the softball team.

Enderle also has earned recognition as a musician. The 3-year veteran of the Michigan Lions All-State Band will travel with the band to Asia this summer.

She has received several superior ratings at district and state music festivals for baritone solos and brass ensembles. Aside from being a member of the Owen-Gage marching, concert and pep bands, she has participated in the Tri-County Honors Band and the state-wide Brighton Honors Band.

A member of St. Agatha's Catholic Church in Gageton, Enderle has been the recipient of numerous scholastic honors in various studies, and has been a candidate for the D&R Good Citizen award, homecoming and snowball queens, and for Who's Who Among American High School Students.

She placed first in banking services division of the Business and Office Education Club's state competition.

Enderle plans to major in biomedical science at the University of Michigan following graduation.

McPhail, who has a GPA of 3.94, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McPhail.

She has participated in the National Honor Society for 3 years, and was a member of the French Club in her freshman year, while serving on the yearbook staff and as a member of the Business and Office Education Club during her senior year.

Also a member of the Owen-Gage marching, concert and pep bands, McPhail was a member of the volleyball squad during her first 2 years in high school.

A member of St. Paul's Church in Linkville, her future plans include attending Central Michigan University in the fall and pursuing a career in business.

Rounding out the top 10 students of 1987 at Owen-Gage High School are, from 3rd to 10th, Sandra Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Miller; Janice Cummins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cummins; Tiffany Reinhardt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Reinhardt; Barbara Hellebuyck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Maxwell and William Hellebuyck; Gabe Milbocker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Art Schlak; Lisa Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Roe and Joseph Edwards; Charlene Goslin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Goslin, and Heather Dorsch, daughter of Kathryn and Donald Dorsch.

Navy chaplain Stanley Beach retires, returns to Cass City

A former area resident officially ended his career as a Navy chaplain March 6 after 30 years in the service.

Captain Stanley Beach, Chaplain Corps, U.S. Navy, will receive the Legion of Merit medal during a special ceremony held Friday, March 6, at Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C. The 52-year-old veteran was retired during the ceremony.

Beach enlisted in the Naval Reserve at Bay City on Dec. 14, 1953. He was commissioned as an officer in April, 1960, and has served with Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard units at sea, ashore and overseas.

Beach's career has included combat action with the 3rd Marine Division in the Republic of Vietnam.

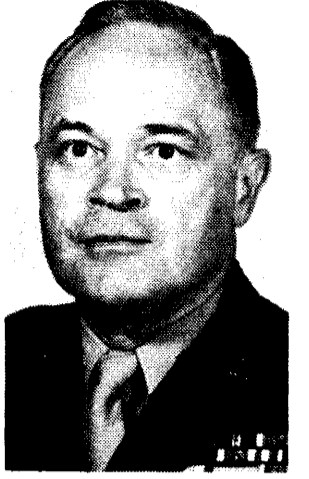

His military awards include the Bronze Star, Purple Heart, Navy Action Ribbon, Presidential Unit Citation, Navy Unit Citation, Meritorious Unit Citation, Philippine Unit Citation, Vietnam Cross of Gallantry with Palm, and various campaign and service awards.

Beach serves as a chaplain under endorsement of the General Association of Regular Baptist Churches. The Cass City High School graduate attended General Motors Institute in Flint, and graduated from Taylor University, Covenant Theological Seminary and Union Theological Seminary. He completed post-graduate studies in pastoral counseling and is a Fellow in the College of Chaplains.

Beach is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Beach of Gageton, and is married to the former Ellen Sickler of Cass City.

The couple's children, Randal Beach and Laurie Dewey, live in Augusta, Ga., and Chesapeake, Va., respectively. Beach and his wife are living in Cass City.

Captain Stanley Beach

Beach called a leader, teacher

Editor's note - This story on Chaplain Beach was written by Sergeant D.K. Holl and sent from Camp Lejeune, N.C.

"Are you going with us this time, Chaplain? Are you coming with Kilo Company today, Padre?" The answer was yes in the jungles of Vietnam and has remained so since then.

"There's nothing more wonderful than 100 stinking, smelly, unshaven Marines standing around and singing a hymn," he wrote from Vietnam in 1966, and whether he is speaking from a podium or standing on an ammo box, his ongoing determination to serve Marines continues.

Captain Stanley J. Beach, base command chaplain, retired March 6, after 34 years of military service, leaving behind a legacy of knowledge and experience. To everyone who knows the silver-haired Gageton, Michigan, native, he's noted as a versatile and resourceful chaplain.

A real fighter. And he's always loved Marines.

"Even though the chaplain has served with the Navy and the Coast Guard, it isn't too hard to figure out that he favors the Corps, said Chief George Young, the Base Chaplain's leading chief petty officer. "He's served the Marines in Vietnam and is constantly trying to build that close-knit esprit-de-corps that's displayed in combat."

"Serving with the Marines has been the most challenging and inspirational call for me. I saw their dedication and their willingness to sacrifice for other people in combat, and I see it today," Beach said. "Some people say the Corps is different now, that we've lost something of the devotion since it's peace time. But when I talk to the troops I still see it, that same dedication. That feeling that when the chips are down, the Marines will be there for each other."

The decorated war hero saw first-hand the camaraderie of Marines early in his career. Commissioned a Navy chaplain in 1960, the hazel-eyed gentleman demonstrated his ability to lead in Vietnam. With the assistance of his Marines, he was able to build a church and a school, and to distribute much-needed supplies to refugees.

"He's one of the few men whose walk matches his talk," said Young. "He's demonstrated his faith throughout his career."

During Operation Prairie, the capture of hill 400, Chaplain Beach was busy assisting the corpsmen, carrying casualties to the rear for treatment and evacuation. At one point, he ran 400 meters to a helicopter landing zone for 2 wire stretchers and then returned to evacuate casualties. Along with this day-to-day help, Beach was known for giving his food and water to anyone who needed it.

Even when Beach was wounded and had to be evacuated, aware of the need for his men's spiritual guidance, he gave his cross to a corpsman to continue his duties.

"Chaplain Beach's leadership, knowledge and experience have made for numerous improvements and developments throughout the Corps," said Commander James L. Apple, assistant command chaplain, MCB.

He's a teacher and a leader... a courageous, sincere and empathetic man. He's a role model for anyone in the Chaplain's Corps because he has mastered the ability to be a loving and caring provider for the troops and at the same time, be a skillful supervisor and military leader," Apple said. "He's an inspiration for all. A true man of God."

Proposed spending to be discussed at annual meetings of township boards

Area residents interested in getting directly involved in their local government unit will have the opportunity to do so Saturday when a majority of area townships will conduct their annual meetings.

Aside from a review of current fiscal year revenues and expenditures, township boards will discuss proposed spending plans for 1987-88.

Although residents' voting power during the annual meeting has diminished over the past several years, residents still have the authority to decide certain issues.

State law limits the power of electors attending annual meetings to accepting or rejecting salary increases for elected officials; and the purchasing, transferring or selling of township property and equipment.

Annual meetings set to begin at 1 p.m. March 28 at their respective township halls have been scheduled by Ellington, Novesta, Kingston, Wells and Columbia townships. Elkland Township's annual meeting will also begin at 1 p.m. March 28, but will be held at the Township Fire Hall.

In Huron County, Grant, Brookfield, Sheridan and Bingham townships also will conduct their annual meetings beginning at 1 p.m. March 28 at their respective township halls.

In Sanilac County, Evergreen and Greenleaf townships will conduct their annual meetings at their township halls beginning at 1 p.m. March 28, while Lamotte Township will conduct its annual meeting beginning at 1 p.m. April 4 at the township Fire Hall.

Local shoplifting case remains open

A shoplifting complaint filed Thursday by a clerk at the Clothes Closet, 6519 Main St., Cass City, remains open following a brief investigation by the Cass City Police Department.

According to a report filed with the department, Valerie Francis stated that while working at the Clothes Closet, she became suspicious of a customer. Francis checked the female suspect's purse, but found nothing, the report stated.

Later, Francis found an empty hanger and stated that she believed the suspect had taken a light blue, sleeveless sweater valued at $24. She also said that she called other area retailers, and learned that the suspect had returned a blouse at Georgine's without a sales slip.

Also reported during the past week were a malicious destruction of property and 2 larceny complaints.

Thomas Bills, 6351 West St., reported that someone threw a stone at his pickup truck, breaking a rear window, March 15. The truck was parked at Bills' residence when the incident occurred.

Damage is estimated at $350 to $400, according to the report, which stated that the case remains open pending further investigation of possible suspects.

Both larceny complaints filed over the past week concerned stolen hubcaps. Vic Guzman, 251 W. Congress St., Caro, said that both hubcaps on the left side of his van were stolen while the vehicle was parked at the lower parking lot at Hills and Dales General Hospital March 18.

Guzman indicated that the incident occurred after 3 p.m. but before 11 p.m.

Leslie Hartwick, 7251 Bay City-Forestville Rd., reported a stolen hubcap from his vehicle while parked at the Charmont parking lot Friday.

HEALTH TIPS

Many "good" foods bad for your heart

You've been avoiding fatty meats, eggs, butter and other dairy products. You don't add salt to your food either. Still, your physician says your cholesterol and blood pressure are up.

Are you overlooking something? According to American Heart Association of Michigan (AHA/MI) volunteer Denise Bartlett-Fanelli, it's possible. "Cholesterol, saturated fat and salt are found in a number of foods that, on the surface, don't appear to be fat-laden or salty."

Bartlett-Fanelli, a registered dietitian, says, "Some foods are traditionally thought of as good for you but may contain saturated fats or salt in disguise."

By learning to read nutrition labels, you can detect many of the bad, hidden ingredients. Understanding food labels also enables you to compare brands or types of foods.

For example, cheese is a nutritious and popular food. Unfortunately, it usually contains more fat than an equal portion of cooked meat and the type of fat, the villain, is saturated. Saturated fat can increase blood cholesterol levels. High blood cholesterol is a major factor in cardiovascular disease.

For use at home, buy cheese made from skim milk. Looking at the nutrition information on the label, you should select cheese that has less than two grams of fat per ounce. Low-fat cottage cheese, mozzarella, skim-milk, farmer's cheese and gamelost are all low in fat.

When grocery shopping you should try to buy filled cheese, a low-cholesterol cheese made with skim milk and vegetable oil. Since it's made with polyunsaturated liquid vegetable oil, filled cheese has considerably less cholesterol than regular cheese. The texture, calorie value and melting characteristics are about the same.

In restaurants ask what type of cheese is used and ask if skim milk cheese is available. Cheese provides protein, calcium and vitamin A, but is also high in sodium - ranging from 200 milligrams (mg.) per ounce for regular cheese to 400 mg. per ounce for processed cheeses like American or cheese spreads.

Because of consumer demand, though, reduced-sodium processed cheeses are available in some areas. If you can't find any of the low-salt cheeses, just avoid the processed cheeses or cheese foods.

You know that avoiding butter and animal fat in your diet will help lower your cholesterol. That means all vegetable oils are okay, right? Not necessarily.

Many products boast "no cholesterol" but are very high in saturated fats, which are usually animal fats in milk, cheese, butter, meat and ice cream (to name a few). However, palm and coconut oils are also highly saturated.

Polyunsaturated fats, which may actually lower blood cholesterol, can be made saturated through a process called hydrogenation, used to make oils hard.

You should avoid saturated margarine or oils (even if they say "no cholesterol") and hydrogenated vegetable shortening in cans. Instead, use varieties that have twice as much polyunsaturated fat as saturated fat. The nutrition label on the package should show serving size, with the amount of total fat, the amount of polyunsaturated and saturated fat and cholesterol. Safflower, sunflower, corn, soybean or cottonseed oil are the least saturated, no-cholesterol choices.

Although sugar and calories may be your prime incentives to avoid baked goodies, these products are often high in fat content as well. Frequently, palm, palm kernel, or coconut oils or animal lards are used - all high in saturated fat. By reading the ingredient list you can avoid them.

Since cereals don't contain any cholesterol, they are better than the traditional egg breakfasts. On the other hand, many cereals contain a surprising amount of sodium.

For example, Wheaties contains 370 milligrams of sodium per ounce, corn flakes contain 290 mg., and a children's favorite, Cheerios, contains 290 mg. per ounce - more than an ounce of average potato chips.

According to recently updated American Heart Association dietary guidelines, you should limit your sodium intake to 1,000 mg. (about one-half teaspoon of salt) per 1,000 calories consumed, but not more than 3,000 mg. (about a teaspoon and a half of salt) per day. So if your total intake for the day is 2,000 calories, a three-ounce bowl of Wheaties would contain over half of all the sodium you may have that day. There are a number of cereals which contain almost no sodium, such as shredded wheat. Again, check the labels.

Sodium, a component of salt, is also hidden in many other ingredients. Therefore, it's easy to pass the recommended limit. For instance, a number of preservatives are sodium compounded with other chemicals and will have the word sodium in their names. Sodium nitrate, for example, is widely used as a meat preservative. Sodium benzoate can be found in a variety of foods and beverages. Sodium propionate is used in baked goods to inhibit mold growth, and sodium citrate is used in jellies, jams, fruit drinks and pop. The chief ingredient in many meat tenderizing/seasoning preparations is monosodium glutamate, and sodium bicarbonate (baking soda) is commonly used as a leavening agent in baked goods. All of these compounds add sodium to your diet. These ingredients account for the high sodium content in canned foods and some of the frozen foods as well.

If you have replaced some of the meat in your diet with vegetables, you should choose fresh or frozen vegetables, as the canned varieties are generally much higher in sodium. A random survey shows that a three-ounce serving of frozen beans may contain only a milligram of sodium, while a three-ounce serving of canned beans may have as much as 270 mg. of sodium - that's almost 300 times the amount of sodium as in the frozen beans. Sauces usually add more sodium yet.

Some low-salt/low-sodium canned vegetables (and sauces and broths) are available. If you don't see them in your grocery store, ask; they're often found in special sections for people with dietary limitations.

Finally, remember to cut back on the amount of salt you use to season your food - during preparation and at the table. You might try using lemon juice and herbs to tenderize food and enhance flavors. If you like garlic, onion or celery flavoring, remember to use the powders, NOT the salts. Salt-free American Heart Association herb blends - original, lemon and salad - are also available in many grocery stores.

For more information on fat, cholesterol and diet, contact the AHA/MI. "Cooking Without Your Salt Shaker," an AHA cookbook, contains low-salt or salt-free recipes, as well as suggestions for salt substitutes. The American Heart Association Cookbook also contains information on substitutions, calorie exchange and nutrition. Free literature is also available on a variety of nutrition topics including how to read labels. For more information, contact your local office of the AHA/MI.

Lamb sale scheduled at Goodells

The annual Thumb Sheep Breeders Club Lamb Sale will be held Saturday, April 11, at the St. Clair County Fairgrounds in Goodells.

This year approximately 30-40 selected club lambs, weighing 50-80 lbs., will be auctioned off.

Dr. Margaret Benson, Michigan State University Sheep Specialist, will check the lambs prior to the sale and start the sale with a few brief remarks about the quality of lambs. She will also review a few pointers on club lamb production.

All buyers will be provided the name and address of the original owners and a health record for the lambs.

The sale starts at 1:30 p.m.

The Thumb Sheep Breeders is composed of sheep producers from Huron, Sanilac, Tuscola, St. Clair, and Macomb Counties. Each year the group supports FFA and 4-H activities by providing trophies at the local fair, they assist with the promotion of the Thumb Area Lamb and Fiber Fair in Bad Axe, and they participate in the Fun and Facts Fair in Port Huron.

Cass City youth gets I rating

A Cass City youth studying at Cranbrook Kingswood School in Bloomfield Hills is among several of the institution's Upper School pupils to receive a superior rating in a state music festival.

Jean Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Weaver of Cass City, earned the honor as a participant in a saxophone quartet during the 1986-87 Michigan Schools Band and Orchestra Association Upper School and Ensemble Festival. The event was held at Farmington High School last month.

4 sentenced

Criminal cases heard in court

A 24-year-old Clio man was sentenced in Tuscola County Circuit Court Monday to 270 days in the county jail, $600 in fines and costs and 5 years probation after he pleaded guilty Jan. 26 to larceny in a building.

Roy F. Marcum, 10038 Evelyn Dr., pleaded guilty at his preliminary exam to a Jan. 11 incident, in which he committed the crime of larceny in a mobile home, located in Clio, and stealing a toaster oven, coffee maker, figurines and china, according to a court report.

In a separate report, a 25-year-old Caro man was sentenced to 6 months in the county jail, fines and costs of $300 and 3 years probation after he entered a plea of guilty to larceny in a building.

Rodney A. Craig, 1134 Gun Club Rd., pleaded guilty at his preliminary exam Jan. 26 to a Jan. 10 incident in which he stole some money.

Craig is to pay 10 percent of his fines and costs each month.

Jeffrey D. Greenacre, 22, 125 W. Main St., Mayville, also entered a plea of guilty to larceny over $100 at his preliminary exam Monday. Sentencing is to be set.

The court accepted his plea and dropped an additional charge of breaking and entering. According to a report, Greenacre committed the crime of larceny at a house in Fremont Township.

SENTENCING

According to circuit court records, 2 Flint area men were sentenced in court Monday.

A 25-year-old Flint man was sentenced to 48 months to 15 years in prison after he pleaded guilty to criminal sexual conduct in the second and third degree.

George L. Shappell, 242 E. Alma St., entered a plea of guilty March 2 at his preliminary exam. Two other CSC charges were dropped.

According to court records, the CSC in the third degree stemmed from a Jan. 14 incident in which Shappell did engage in sexual penetration with another person at least 13 years of age, but under 16 years. On Feb. 5 he did engage in sexual contact with another person at least 13 years old, but under 16.

Kermit A. Hoffmeyer, 19, 143 East Belvidere, Flint, was sentenced Monday in circuit court to 60 days in the county jail, fines and costs of $500 and 2 years probation after he pleaded guilty at his preliminary exam to breaking and entering of a coin operated device with intent to commit larceny.

A charge of possession of burglary tools was dropped at the preliminary exam.

According to the report, Hoffmeyer "did force entrance into a device designed to receive currency or coins...a coin operated car wash...with the intent to steal."

NOT GUILTY PLEAS

Two Flint area men entered pleas of not guilty at their preliminary exams held Monday in circuit court.

William L. Freeman, 17,

5168 North Genesee Rd., Flint, pleaded not guilty to unlawfully driving away an auto. Freeman faces a maximum penalty of 5 years in prison if found guilty.

According to a court report, Freeman allegedly, did "willfully and without authority take possession of and drive away...a 125cc red 1984 Suzuki off-road vehicle belonging to another person."

Freeman paid 10 percent of his $7,500 bond.

James A. Broughton, 19, 1509 East Bristol Rd., Flint, also pleaded not guilty to the charges of aiding and abetting breaking and entering an occupied dwelling and larceny in a building, Monday at his preliminary exam.

Broughton, if found guilty, will face a maximum sentence of 15 years for the first count and 4 years and/or $2000 for the second count.

According to a court report, the charges stemmed from a Jan. 22 incident in which Broughton allegedly did aid and abet in the breaking and entering of a house in Arbelia Township and did aid and abet by assisting in the stealing of property.

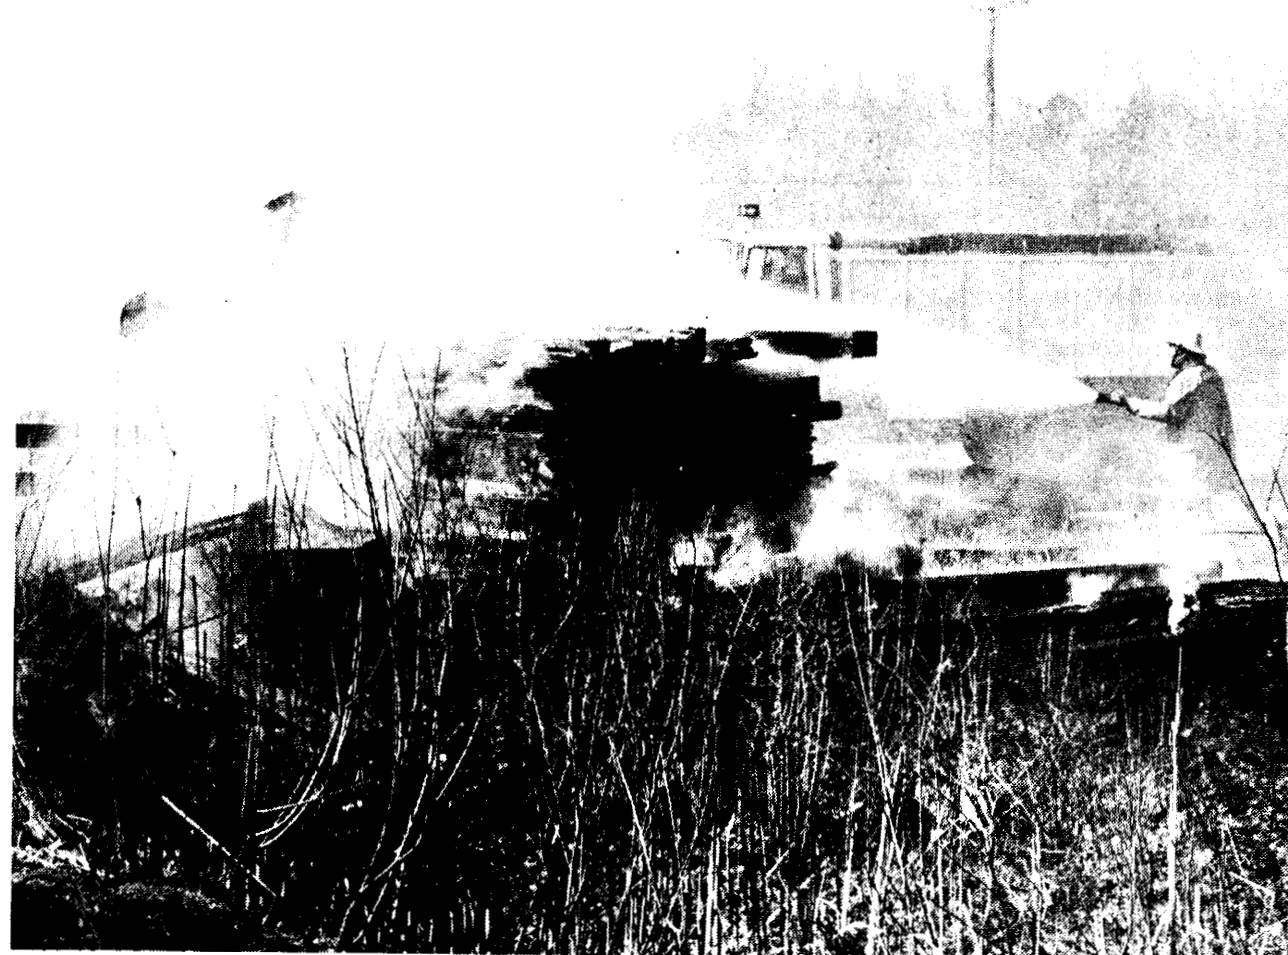

Broughton is charged with stealing a TV, a VCR, field glasses, jewelry, and cash money.

DISTRICT COURT

An 18-year-old Millington man was charged in district court Monday for allegedly committing larceny over $100.

Dennis W. Armstrong, 7925 Sheridan Rd., is charged with allegedly committing the "offense of larceny by stealing certain property...outboard motor...the value of which was in excess of $100.00," according to a court record.

Armstrong's preliminary exam is set for March 27 at 9 a.m. He paid 10 percent of his $5,000 bond.

MOMENTS AFTER arriving on the scene Monday afternoon, Elkland Township firemen went to work on a debris fire which scorched about one acre 1 1/2 miles east of Cass City just north of Cass City Road. A ban on all permit burning in the Thumb was issued by the DNR March 20.

Fire hazard high; Elkland firemen battle blaze

The Elkland Township Fire Department responded to 2 grass/brush fires Monday, 3 days after officials at the Department of Natural Resources office in Caro issued a ban on all permit burning in the Thumb. The risk of grass and brush fires is the highest it's been in at least the past 2 years because of extremely dry weather, according to DNR and area fire department officials.

Elkland Township fire fighters were called Monday afternoon at 1:44 to a brush and debris fire about 1 1/2 miles east of Cass City off Cass City Road.

The blaze covered about an acre of land owned by James McDonald, according to fireman Roger Hurley. "Most of the stuff that burned was grass and old railroad ties," Hurley explained. "We got it under control right away."

Fire department officials were unable to determine the cause of the fire.

Fire fighters spent nearly 3 hours at the property, soaking the remaining railroad ties, debris and surrounding areas.

No damage estimate is available at this time. Less than 30 minutes after leaving the scene, the department received another call on a fire along a ditch bank located between Koeppgen and Dodge roads near Hope Road.

Hurley said that the ditch, bordering a corn field and potato farm, apparently was being burned by the owners of adjoining property. The fire was under control when fire fighters arrived, he added.

The persons responsible for the fire were advised to extinguish the flames in compliance with the burning ban, Hurley remarked.

According to James Melin, fire officer in charge of the Caro DNR office, the ban was put into effect Friday after 2 serious barn fires near Caro the day before.

"We've had a lot of fires, a lot of property damage," Melin said, adding that the DNR's "burning index" was the highest on Monday that it's been in several years.

Violation of the ban constitutes a misdemeanor, he added.

Cass City police report quiet week

The Cass City Police Department reported a light week for vehicle accidents, with only 2 reports filed.

Duane J. White, 6233 Lakeside Drive, reported that someone struck his legally parked car March 13 at a parking lot on the west side of Chemical Bank, 6522 Main St.

Damage to the front passenger side door is estimated at about $500, the report stated.

A car/deer mishap was reported by Daniel K. Dombroski, 7020 Toepfer Rd., Warren, who stated that he was northbound on M-51 about 1 mile north of M-81 March 21 when he struck a deer.

The accident, which occurred at about 7:30 p.m., resulted in slight damage to Dombroski's vehicle.

"B.J." adopted by patients

The newest resident of the Tuscola County Medical Care Facility in Caro isn't exactly what one would consider a typical nursing home patient.

Nurses at the facility report that the new resident has a peculiar habit of licking and nipping at fingers, noses and anything else she can reach.

And then there's her appearance; she has large, floppy ears, and black fur.

Her friends call her "B.J.," and the 6-week-old female collie-black lab mix puppy serves not only as a mascot and companion to her 123 fellow residents, but also as a new form of therapy.

"She gives the patients something to think about besides their aches and pains. She makes them feel good," administrator Darlene Davidson remarked. "They love it, they really do."

"I've been to nursing homes before where they've had a dog, and it is supposed to be good therapy," she added. "From what I've seen this week, I believe it."

Davidson explained that she got the pup early last week from her brother, Howard Putnam of Caro.

Since then, a doghouse has been installed near the facility, and B.J. has been adopted by the staff, which is taking care of and training their new charge.

Activity director Sue Fish indicated she wasn't sure how the nurses and other staff members would react to having B.J. as a permanent guest, but added, "The staff has been real receptive."

"Times have changed,

A group of larks is known as an exaltation.

"B.J.," THE NEWEST resident at the County Medical Care Facility in Caro, spends some quiet time with resident Genevieve Tomlinson.

NOTICE OF INTENT RESOLUTION Village of Gageton, County of Tuscola, Michigan

Minutes of a special meeting of the Village Council of the Village of Gageton, County of Tuscola, Michigan (the "Village"), held on the 19th day of March, 1987, at 8 o'clock p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

PRESENT: Members Doris Bang, Beverly Leyva, Tom Reehl, Richard Carroll, Leroy Stapleton, Charles Wright.

ABSENT: Members - none

The following preamble and resolution were offered by Member Charles Wright and supported by Member Doris Bang:

WHEREAS, the Village intends to issue and sell Sewage Disposal System Revenue Refunding Bonds, pursuant to Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended, in an amount not to exceed Three Hundred Seventy-five Thousand Dollars ($375,000) for the purpose of paying part of the cost of refunding the Village of Gageton Sewage Disposal System Revenue Bonds, dated March 1, 1984; and

WHEREAS, a notice of intent to issue bonds must be published before the issuance of the aforesaid bonds in order to comply with the requirements of Section 33 of Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

1. The Village Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to publish a notice of intent to issue bonds in the Cass City Chronicle of Tuscola County, Michigan, a newspaper of general circulation in the Village.

2. Said notice of intent shall be published as a one-quarter (1/4) page display advertisement in substantially the following form:

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS AND ELECTORS OF THE VILLAGE OF GAGETOWN AND TO USERS OF THE SEWAGE DISPOSAL SYSTEM OF SAID VILLAGE OF INTENT TO ISSUE BONDS AND THE RIGHT OF REFERENDUM RELATING THERETO

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the Village Council of the Village of Gageton, Tuscola County, Michigan, intends to issue and sell Revenue Refunding Bonds, pursuant to Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended, in an amount not to exceed Three Hundred Seventy-five Thousand Dollars ($375,000), for the purpose of paying part of the cost of refunding the Village of Gageton Sewage Disposal System Revenue Bonds, dated March 1, 1984.

SOURCE OF PAYMENT OF REVENUE REFUNDING BONDS

THE PRINCIPAL OF AND INTEREST ON SAID REVENUE REFUNDING BONDS SHALL BE PAYABLE primarily from the revenues received by the Village from the operations of said sewage disposal system. Said revenues will consist of rates and charges billed to the users of the system, a schedule of which is presently on file in the office of the Village Clerk. Said rates and charges may from time to time be revised to provide for the expenses of operating and maintaining the system, to pay the principal of and interest on said bonds and to pay other obligations of the system.

THE REVENUE REFUNDING BONDS MAY ALSO BE SECURED BY A PLEDGE OF THE VILLAGE'S TAXING POWER WHICH MEANS THAT IF THE SYSTEM'S REVENUES ARE INSUFFICIENT FOR THE ABOVE DESCRIBED PURPOSES THE VILLAGE SHALL LEVY A VALOREM TAXES IN AN AMOUNT SUFFICIENT TO PAY THE PRINCIPAL OF AND INTEREST ON THE BONDS, WHICH SUCH LEVY, HOWEVER, SHALL BE WITHIN APPLICABLE CONSTITUTIONAL, STATUTORY AND CHARTERED TAX RATE LIMITATIONS.

BOND DETAILS

SAID BONDS will be payable in annual installments not to exceed forty (40) in number and will bear interest at a rate or rates to be determined at sale but in no event to exceed ten percent (10%) per annum on the balance of the bonds from time to time remaining unpaid.

RIGHT OF REFERENDUM

THE REVENUE REFUNDING BONDS WILL BE ISSUED WITHOUT A VOTE OF THE ELECTORS UNLESS A PETITION NOTED BY THE VILLAGE CLERK WITHIN FORTY-FIVE (45) DAYS AFTER PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, IF SUCH PETITION IS FILED, THE BONDS MAY NOT BE ISSUED WITHOUT AN APPROVING VOTE OF A MAJORITY OF THE ELECTORS OF THE VILLAGE QUALIFIED TO VOTE AND VOTING ON THE BONDS AT A GENERAL OR SPECIAL ELECTION. THIS NOTICE is given pursuant to the requirements of Section 33, Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended.

Elery Sontag
Clerk, Village of Gageton

3. The Village Council does hereby determine that the foregoing form of Notice of Intent to Issue Bonds and the manner of publication directed is the method best calculated to give notice to the sewage disposal system's users and the Village's taxpayers and electors of the Village's intent to issue the bonds, the purpose of the bonds, the security for the bonds, and the right of referendum relating thereto, and the newspaper named for publication is hereby determined to reach the largest number of persons to whom the notice is directed.

4. All resolutions and parts of resolutions insofar as they conflict with the provisions of this resolution be and the same hereby are rescinded.

AYES: Members Doris Bang, Beverly Leyva, Tom Reehl, Richard Carroll, Leroy Stapleton, Charles Wright.
NAYS: Members - none
RESOLUTION DECLARED ADOPTED.

Elery Sontag
Village Clerk

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and complete copy of a resolution adopted by the Village Council of the Village of Gageton, County of Tuscola, State of Michigan, at a special meeting held on March 23, 1987, and that said meeting was conducted and public notice of said meeting was given pursuant to and in full compliance with the Open Meetings Act, being Act 267, Public Acts of Michigan, 1976, and that the minutes of said meeting were kept and will be or have been made available as required by said Act.

Manpower problems

Fire department to get pagers

Elkland Township Fire Chief Jerome Root didn't go with the department Thursday afternoon to help the Caro fire department fight a grass fire. It wasn't that he didn't want to go, he just never heard the fire en.

The local fire department has been having problems getting enough manpower to the fires. According to Root, if the men aren't in town or the wind direction is wrong, they can't hear the siren. But, Root and his co-workers are working on the problem and think they have come up with the solution—pagers.

"With the pager they (firemen) can be contacted anywhere and we can get more men at the fire," said Root. "Quite often we aren't at full manpower."

The department wants to order 25 pagers that will cost a little more than $8,400. They want an expensive and durable pager that will stand up to the rough usage that it will probably go through.

The Elkland Township Fire Department is planning to hold a couple of raffles and a dance to help raise money. Root would like to be able to get the pagers in about 6 months.

Another reason the department needs the pagers is the Insurance Services Office rates for the township may go up. The ISO rates rural fire departments on their water supply, type of equipment and the alarm system. If the ISO rate goes up then the township fire insurance rates go up also.

Cass City's ISO rating is 7 and 8.

Root said that times are changing and the fire department must change with it. He said one big change is that when he first started out on the fire department in 1957 the majority of the volunteer fire fighters were businessmen who had establishments on Main Street. Now, Root said, there aren't any businessmen on the department. "What this means is that the volunteers aren't right on Main Street to hear the siren. They are all over the place," said Root.

The first raffle will be held in less than a month; the second probably in fall sometime. Root said the department is also planning a dance for the fall.

Already local merchants have donated money or prizes to the cause for the raffles. The Provincial House residents are making a $100 to $125 quilt to be raffled off in the fall.

The prizes for the first raffle are: first prize, $200; second prize, a gas grill worth $100; third prize, a radio, and fourth prize, tickets for dinners.

GERRY CAROLAN, who just celebrated her 81st birthday, sends her ball down one of the lanes at the Charmont Bowling Alley.

Gerry Carolan still bowling strikes at 81

by PAULA PAYTON

She picks up the multicolored ball, eyes the pins, brings the ball back and sends it slowly down the alley missing the remaining 2 pins by less than an inch. She smiles as she sits down and says with a grin, "I'm having a bad night."

Gerry Carolan is a member of the Gageton bowling league, but what's remarkable about this mother of 3, grandmother of 12 and great-grandmother of 4, is that she just turned 81 on March 7.

"I'm on the go all the time," Carolan said. "I think it's good for a person. I walk around town 2 to 3 times a day. What else do I have to do?" asked the widow of 12 years.

Carolan does plenty. Her days are filled with visiting relatives and friends, attending church services, drinking coffee with friends at the Gageton coffee shop and keeping up her small house.

Visiting friends and relatives is very important to Carolan. "Everyone is dying at my age," she said. Every week Carolan drives to Caro to visit a friend who is 86. "We were roommates when we used to work at the Hotel Montague in 1924. She really looks forward to my visits."

She also visits her cousin and her husband that live across the street from her. She said the couple are in their 80's and sickly. "I clip her hair," Carolan said with a laugh.

Carolan has lived in the Gageton area all her life. She said she was born only 7 miles away and her family went to the Gageton catholic church, which she still attends. She is the seventh child of eleven children. "Out of a family of 11 there are only two of us left," said Carolan. "My sister lives in Fort Lauderdale."

Her father died when Carolan was 4, and her mother remarried 2 years later. "We had 9 girls and 2 boys," Carolan said as she named them off on her fingers.

Carolan married a farmer, Arthur Carolan, and they owned a 160 acre farm 2 miles out of Gageton. "He was a crop farmer, but he loved chickens and we sold eggs," said Carolan.

Her husband sold the farm before he died in April of 1974, and Carolan moved into a small house they had bought together in August of that year.

Two of her children are still alive. Her daughter, whom she just visited earlier this month, lives in Florida. One of her sons lives in Marlette. Her other son died in 1963 in an automobile accident.

But with all her losses, Carolan still is living life to the fullest. "I love to dance," she giggled. "I do the polka at home all by myself. I figure it's good exercise."

She said that she used to bowl in Caro, but gave it up 10 years ago. In 1982 she joined the Gageton bowling league. She says her average game is 114. "I'll keep on bowling as long as I can," she said.

"I had a good life," Carolan said reflecting back on her 81 years of living. "I'd live the same as I always did."

Akron couple wants to foreclose on land

An Akron couple wants to foreclose on a land contract because a Cass City couple, who bought the property, defaulted on the contract.

Dale and Janice Smith want to foreclose on 9 acres of land that was sold to Raymond and Burnice Gould. The Goulds have not paid the monthly payment of $225 since last April. According to a court report, they are in debt $23,133.09.

The land was originally sold to Archie and Linda Weller, of Vassar, on May 19, 1978. On March 31, 1981, the Wellers turned over the Elmwood Township land to the Goulds.

According to a court report, "under the terms of the contract the plaintiffs agreed to sell and the defendants agreed to buy," the 9-acre parcel of land.

Originally the Goulds owed the Smiths more than $29,000. They were to pay their monthly installments through the Akron State Bank.

Among the complaints, the Smiths want the court to "foreclose on said land contract and a sale of the premises to satisfy the obligation of said land contract plus cost and attorneys fee," according to a court report.

King and queen representatives chosen by O-G senior citizens

At the Owendale-Gageton Senior Citizens Club meeting held March 5, Andy and Elizabeth Szidik were chosen to represent the club for the senior citizen king and queen that will be chosen at the Huron County Sesquicentennial June celebration.

At the March 19 meeting, which was also a potluck dinner, some of the club members volunteered to make mittens, hats and scarfs for the needy children as part of the 1987 Christmas project.

Some members of the club will attend the osteoporosis program offered by Hills and Dales Hospital that will be held March 27 at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Cass City. Donna Rees, health promotion specialist, will speak at the program.

DNR to hold bluebird workshop

In a continuing effort to improve the nesting population of bluebirds in Michigan, the Department of Natural Resources' Nongame Wildlife Program will host a free public workshop on the construction and placement of bluebird nest boxes.

A how-to session, run by private volunteers, has been scheduled for April 11 at Port Crescent State Park in Port Austin. A morning session will begin at 10:00 a.m.; the afternoon session at 2:00 p.m.

The first 50 families arriving to the workshop will be given free, ready-to-assemble nest box kits for bluebirds. Nail-and-hammer plans for building bluebird nest boxes, and nest box plans for other species also will be provided to participants.

The workshops are sponsored by Michigan Nongame Wildlife Fund, which is funded through direct contributions and state income tax donations. The workshops are part of the statewide "Homes For Wildlife" program launched in 1985 by the fund to overcome a serious shortage of nesting sites in Michigan for cavity-nesting birds.

Featured at each workshop will be a film entitled "Bluebirds...Bring Them Back." A step-by-step demonstration on how to build a bluebird nest box will also be given. Other types of cavity-nest boxes favored by kestrels, owls, wood ducks and other species will be shown.

The state's nesting population of bluebirds has dropped nearly 90 percent during the last 50 years, reported Bob Hess, who heads the DNR's Nongame Wildlife Program. This sharp decline, he explained, is traced to a loss of natural nesting sites (cavities in older trees and wooden fence posts); shortages of open grasslands as a result of changing farming practices and urban development, and competition from the English sparrow and starling.

"Years ago," Hess noted, "this wonderful songbird was nearly as common to Michigan as its cousin, the robin. Today, many of our state's residents have never seen a bluebird."

"Our efforts to help bring about its comeback through these workshops and other such projects are really two-fold," he continued. "They're aimed at the long-term welfare of Michigan's bluebirds, and for the immediate satisfaction of Michigan residents who enjoy helping and watching wildlife."

Waggs adjusting well to new life

but that doesn't bother him.

The Waggs have worked different jobs since getting out of farming. "I worked at Schneeberger's until the first of the year," said Shirley.

Both the Waggs worked at Michigan Sugar in Caro during sugar beet season. The only problem was they worked different shifts. "I would be leaving and he would just be coming home," Shirley chortled. When asked to give his prospective of the continuing problems of the nation's farmers, Roy said he sees a glum future, especially for the crop farmers. "It's going to take a long time before it straightens out to where it's money making again. With the dairy farmers there's a possibility that they are straightened out, but crop farming still has a long time," Roy said.

"It's been quite a difficult year. I had to make a lot of big decisions in a short period of time," said Roy. "It was a stressful year."

Howard has frustrating day at Off-Road Championship Gran Prix

Unexpected frustration turned out to be the order of the day Saturday for local off-road racing enthusiast Joe Howard.

The Cass City resident traveled to the Pontiac Silverdome to take part in Mickey Thompson's Off-Road Championship Gran Prix—his 3rd time in the national competition—but engine trouble and other problems prompted him to decide not to race in the main event.

Howard qualified to run 9th in the main event after a qualifying round and one heat race.

A blown tire and carburetor problems were only part of the problem, Howard remarked, adding that the condition of the track led to his decision not to participate in the final race.

"It was really different from what I had antici-ated. The track was unbelievable—it was so rough," he explained. "There were 5-foot jumps." Previously, the race was run on a paved track, but organizers of the event this year decided to conduct the event on a man-made dirt track.

Howard noted that the investment in his odyssey is considerably less than that of many of his competitors' vehicles, some of which cost as much as $13,000.

Despite the temporary setback, Howard indicated he hopes to be racing at area raceways as soon as weather permits.

"My machine could handle (the track), but I don't have the front suspension for it," Howard continued. "The dirt put on a good show and made it more exciting for the crowd. But it required state-of-the-art" machinery.

Howard noted that the investment in his odyssey is considerably less than that of many of his competitors' vehicles, some of which cost as much as $13,000.

Cass City Academic Track

Team to host Kingston next

Cass City Intermediate School's academic track team is scheduled to host Kingston tomorrow (March 26) after dropping its first 2 contests of the season this month.

The academic competition, patterned after track, involves 19 Thumb area schools. Students—2 to 4 pupils per school per event—compete via testing in 16 different academic subject areas, the arts and performing arts.

Cass City lost a close meet against Reese last week, 111 1/2-99 1/2, after losing its season opener to Caro Junior High, 128 2/3-85 1/3.

Top point scorers and their competition areas for Cass City last week were Chris Freundt and Janet Kubacki, arithmetic; Jeff Jeung, geography; Peter Kappen, physical science; Freundt, ancient history; Tracey Burns, spelling; Melissa Zinnecker, commercial arts; Diana Loomis, art; Mindy Fulcher, vocal solo, and Aimee Cooper, dramatic reading.

Cass City also took first place in the contest's girls' trio and instrumental group categories.

Obligations of a U.S. government agency, due in 3 years, 16.375%. That's right, 16.375%. Available at par. Not subject to state or local taxes.

What's the catch?
Not as big a catch as you might think.

These are the short-term notes issued by the Student Marketing Association (Sallie Mae).

They are denominated in New Zealand currency, which at this writing is around 57¢ to the U.S. $ (A few months ago it was worth 48¢).

That means if you got $10,000 par value you'd pay $5700 in U.S. $. The interest of course would be figured in New Zealand $, but you'd still be getting 16.375% on your investment.

Are the bonds safe?
Here are comments by Gabriele Hueglin & Cashmun, the respected bond house of New York, now a division of Tucker Anthony, a John Hancock company:

The security of principal and interest depends upon the credit of the underlying U.S. issuer, usually a double or triple-A blue chip corporation. In this example, Sallie Mae, a U.S. government agency. Procter and Gamble and Eastman Kodak are among issuers.

If they are so safe, why do they yield so much?

The risk is that the N.Z. $ will depreciate relative to the U.S. $, thus providing less $ U.S. when converted.

But aren't these very short-term bonds?

In this case not even 3 years, but the currency can move fast. The N.Z. $ dropped from $1.15 in 1980 to 48¢ in 1986. Now it's 57¢ or so.

How do you figure the amount of risk?

Compare them to the same bond issued in U.S. $. For example, these N.Z. 3-year Sallie Maes yield about 9% more. Assuming re-investing interest in the same obligation, the extra yield gives a cushion of a 27% decline in the N.Z. $. That currency would have

Show film at

Colwood church

The true-life story of Corrie ten Boom, a former Nazi prisoner, will be presented through the motion picture, "The Hiding Place," Sunday, March 29, from 6-8 p.m. at the Colwood United Brethren Church, corner of M-81 and Colwood Rds. Nursery will be provided.

to drop from 57¢ to 41.6¢, to return the same as an American Sallie Mae bond.

The return could drop to zero only if the 57¢ N.Z. $ dropped to 25¢.

Could the currency go up and increase the return?

Yes. Since last fall, the N.Z. has gone up over 15% from the low.

What is the tax treatment of currency gains and losses?

Losses are considered capital losses, and gains, capital gains.

Can the currency risk be hedged with options or futures?

No.

Why are U.S. issuers like Sallie Mae, Procter & Gamble and Eastman paying these sky-high rates?

They really aren't. Here's how it works. A company like Procter & Gamble sells $NZ bonds at say 16.75% and then lends the proceeds in $NZ to the N.Z. government, which in turn pays P & G 17% or more.

Meanwhile, the N.Z. borrower sells a floating rate U.S. $-denominated issue in the Euromarket or the London Interbank Offered Rate (LIBOR) at maybe 7% and lends the money to Procter & Gamble. In effect, the 2 borrowers are swapping issue proceeds and income streams. P & G can sell $NZ denominated bonds in the U.S. at slightly lower rates than a N.Z. issuer could borrow domestically.

(If you're confused, don't worry. Go on to something else.)

Why are the rates so high to begin with?

New Zealand has 10 1/2% inflation—almost as bad as the U.S. had 5 years ago, when our rates were about the present N.Z. levels.

What do some of the experts (we hope) look for?

Gabriele Hueglin, and also some others writing in Barron's magazine lately, look for better conditions in New Zealand, and think the bonds will perform better than their cousins in America. They do caution clients that there's a risk.

What about Australia?

Basically, same as New Zealand, except rates are a little lower.

Why not buy directly from New Zealand or Australian brokers?

It's a bother, and there would also be withholding taxes.

New tutoring program set at Owen-Gage

A new tutoring program is being offered this semester at the Owendale-Gagetown High School to help students who are having problems in certain subjects.

The tutors aren't teachers with free periods, but 4 students who are getting credit for helping their classmates understand some of their course material and to achieve a higher grade point average.

Seniors, Heather Dorsch, 17, Mike Bolzman, 17, and Gabe Milbocker, 17, and junior Susie Salcido, 16, were either asked by high school counselor Ron D'Aoust, who started the program, or by one of the other tutors to help out with tutoring.

The 4 high school students are tutoring students in seventh grade to twelfth grade in different subjects.

"I tutor in math and reading and science," said Salcido.

Bolzman quickly added, "We tutor everything."

The students had no formal training on how to go about tutoring, but said

Hawaiian fish

It's now of-FISH-al! Hawaii has chosen its state fish.

Ranger Rick magazine reports that the Humuhumu won the most votes after an election rally at the Waikiki Aquarium. A figure in early Hawaiian legends, the Humuhumu is known for its strategy of swimming into a small crack and using a special spine to lock itself in place, preventing other fish from extracting and eating it. The Humuhumu will serve as the state fish for five years, after which it must run for re-election.

they all had had the subjects before starting to tutor.

Milbocker said he has a process that seems to work well with the students. "I open up the book and read aloud the bold face terms and other important facts and I drill it into their head so they will remember. I also draw diagrams to help them," he said. "I think it works."

The 4 students tutor a lot of the same students, but on different days. How long the students stay in the tutoring program "depends on how much help the kids need," said Dorsch.

The students are recommended for the program by teachers and D'Aoust. Milbocker said that if a student doesn't want a tutor, he is not forced to go to one. According to all 4 that rarely happens.

"They aren't dumb or anything," Bolzman said about the students he tutors. "They just screw around in class and don't do the work and it hurts their grades."

Dorsch said the tutoring program gives them an extra incentive to get their work done. "We are students caring about grades and stuff of other students and are willing to help them," she said.

"We seem to be helping people," Salcido added. "We have less students than we started with."

When students start improving in their work, they are taken out of the program. The tutors work with about 10 students each.

Salcido will be the only one returning next year and she said she is going to try and fit the course in her schedule. All 4 agree that the program should continue.

Area school districts battle mounting deficits and local aid. Landeryou noted that the district's enrollment has gone from 1,444 students in 1976 to 819 this year.

The 2.2 mills, which if approved would be in addition to the 25.6 mills now levied by the district, would raise $141,000, Landeryou remarked. He added that a mill raises about $64,000.

Without the extra millage, he said, "We will make it through the next school year, but it will cause some hardships."

Caro -- The Caro School district also is experiencing a decline in enrollment, according to school Supt. Thomas T. Lanway, who noted that a Michigan State University study indicates the school will lose 100 pupils over the next 5 years.

Currently the school receives $2,440 for each student.

Landeryou pointed out that the school board is about a month away from deciding what it will request for millage in the June 8 election. The district, he said, now levies 29 mills, including 3 mills which will expire this year, and 1.14 mills for debt service.

"I'm not going to recommend additional millage at this time," Landeryou said about operation monies. "(But) I'm strongly considering one mill for maintenance and repair projects."

Currently, one mill raises about $110,000 in the district, which lost $4 million in SEV over the past year.

Kingston -- In contrast to Caro and Ubyly, Kingston increased by 25 students last year because of a strong kindergarten enrollment.

Despite a drop in SEV of about 19 percent over the past 2 years, school Supt. Jerry Laycock said the district is "looking at the possibility of a slight deficit next year."

Plans are uncertain concerning millage in the annual school election, Laycock said. The district currently levies 29.5 mills, which includes 4 mills for 4 years (through 1989), .5 of a mill for 6 years for major maintenance (through 1991) and 16 mills for 3 years (expires this year). The district also levies 2.39 mills for debt service.

A mill in the district totals about $50,000.

Regardless of the degree of financial problems, many of the out-of-formula school superintendents stressed a need for a more equitable method of funding education, a process which must be handled by the state Legislature.

In-formula school district officials, meanwhile, indicated that a proposed increase of 3 1/2 percent in state aid won't even begin to keep up with area schools' needs.

Said Dodge, "This is one of the first years I can recall that all Michigan districts are in trouble. We're all due for tough times, but we've been there before and we'll survive."

Caro -- The Caro School district also is experiencing a decline in enrollment, according to school Supt. Thomas T. Lanway, who noted that a Michigan State University study indicates the school will lose 100 pupils over the next 5 years.

Currently the school receives $2,440 for each student.

Hot 'N' Spicy Filled Pockets

4 Holly Farms Boneless Chicken Breasts
 2 tablespoons butter
 2 tablespoons dark brown sugar
 1 small onion, minced
 1 clove garlic, minced
 ¼ cup ketchup
 1 tablespoon Worcestershire
 1 tablespoon white vinegar
 Cut chicken into ½-inch cubes. Melt butter in large skillet, add chicken, and cook over high heat until lightly browned. Lower heat, add brown sugar, and stir until sugar is melted and chicken is coated. Add onion and garlic and cook until onion is transparent. Combine ketchup, ¼ cup water, Worcestershire, vinegar, and chili powder in small bowl. Stir to blend. Add to skillet and stir well. Season with salt, pepper, and hot pepper sauce. Simmer, stirring until sauce is very thick, about 5 minutes. Split pita pockets in half crosswise and line each half with lettuce. Place 2 tomato slices and 2 pepper rings into each pocket. Spoon chicken mixture into pockets and serve.
