At annual meetings

Townships outline year's road work

At its annual meeting Saturday, that only lasted a half hour, the Elkland Township board of trustees unanimously passed their 1987-1988 budget with only minimal discussion.

The budget called for estimated expenditures of $179,750, which was up from last year's expenditures of $174,742. Besides the trustees, 5 guests were in attendance at the 1 p.m. meeting, which was held in the fire hall.

Road work was once again the largest expenditure in the budget, with $37,380 going to road construction and $15,000 going to road maintenance. Both expenditures were up a little from last year's budget.

According to Dave Milli-gan, township supervisor, the money will go to graveling of streets and dust control. "We aren't looking at any major projects," he said. The township still has to look into what roads need the most repairs. They also plan to cut the brush along the roadsides and dust the railroad ties, which is usually done to maintain dust control.

According to the proposed revenue, property taxes will be only slightly down from last year's

One of the big things that may affect the township in later years was the cutting out of the federal revenue sharing account. The township received the $10,600, which was a carryover for previous years. The board was told by Washington that this would be the last of the money the township would receive. The fund money is used for only specific things. It helped pay off the money owed on the dump site and was used for some road pro-

The largest expense for the township this year is road and bridge work, which was estimated at

According to Wolak, several roads are up for repair. The largest project will be blacktopping 3 miles of Phillips Road from M-46 to Bevens Road. The board estimated the cost at $50,200. Also on Phillips Road, a muck hole will be removed and filled at the cost of

A signed agreement for with Wolverine Spring in Sandusky will have all the east and west roads in the township sprayed for brush control.

After the budget was approved, one of the 5 visitors at the meeting complained about the culverts on Kingston Road, which is a county road. "It's up to the county to do something about the problem," said Wolak. She added that she didn't think the culverts will be repaired because of the financial situation of the county.

Tuscola County Road Commission officials last week asked the County Board of Commissioners to lend a financial hand in covering a portion of nearly $1 million in road repair expenses related to last fall's flooding. The request, made during a regular board meet-ing March 24, was directed toward the finance committee for consideration. According to Road Commission secretary-clerk James Miklovic, the Road Commission estimates repair expenses of $978,000 following heavy flooding in September and October. The Soil Conservation Service will make up about 80 percent of the cost, he added, leaving $175,000 to Tuscola County has approximately 350 miles of primary roads, compared to 1,200 miles of local roads.

"You end up robbing Peter to pay Paul," he said, adding that money is now needed to replace primary road funds.

Major projects yet to be completed are repair of roads where ditch banks have fallen away from the roadway. The worst hit areas, Miklovic said, are located north and west of

Like the flood, repair and maintenance expenses were unprecedented, Miklovic commented. "There's always routine maintenance, but that's nothing like we're talking about

IN OTHER BUSINESS

In other business last week, the board approved a motion to begin amortizing county drain-at-large costs over several years as opposed to paying its share in full each year.

The action, which takes effect next year, will benefit the county in 2 ways, according to County Controlled Michael Handler troller Michael Hoagland.

First, by amortizing the annual payment, the county faces an estimated cost of $170,000 next year, compared to an estimated $325,000 if the full share were to be paid, Hoagland said. Secondly, he added, the amount paid from year to year will be more consistent. Hoagland pointed out that while the county paid about $87,000 in drain-atlarge costs in 1986, the figure jumped to $313,000 in

Hoagland cautioned that while there will be an initial savings, the yearly payments will increase as the cost is spread over a 3 to

4-year period. 'Our biggest savings is going to be in the first he explained, adyear," ding, "I think (amortizing the cost) is valuable be-cause in the long run, it's going to even things out and maybe keep our payments lower.'

Hoagland noted that many townships and residents already amortize their drain-at-large costs. The board approved hiring a part-time employee in the County treasurer's office for 3 months, with the wages to be paid with delinquent tax administrative

The action was in contrast to a motion approved by the board during a regu-lar meeting March 10. At that meeting, the board denied a request to extend an assistant's employment in the Treasurer's office by 3 months.

The 3-month extension is based on additional work related to collecting delinquent property taxes.

The board also approved a 1987 Cooperative Reimbursement agreement between the Michigan Department of Social Services and

48-unit apartment complex proposed for Cass City

The Cass City Village Council heard a proposal for construction of an apartment complex, and adopted a revised cable television ordinance during an 85-minute regular meeting Monday night. The council also set a public hearing date for discussion of a special assessment for curb and gutter work on Sherman Street.

Tom Purman, an agent land buyer for Management Resources Develop-ment, East Lansing, told councilmen that his firm is interested in purchasing land in the village for construction of a multiple-family apartment complex.

He said a 6-acre tract in the southeast corner of the village is particularly desirable for the project, which would consist of up to 48 units. The complex would be financed through the Farmers Home Administration, Purman explained, adding that the project would be low-to-moderate income housing. 'I haven't prepared any hard facts on an offer, Purman told councilmen. He noted that development of the property in question would be expensive be-cause of a lack of nearby sewer and water service, and access.

"What we have to do is submit to the government a market survey proving that there is a need and how many units there is a need for," Purman said, adding that he would like the council to proceed in terms of determining a price for the

The council directed the proposal to its Finance Committee and the village Planning Commission.

CABLE ORDINANCE

The council adopted a revised cable television ordinance, outlined Monday by village attorney Clinton C. House.

A public hearing on a 10-year renewal of a cable franchise agreement with Welbec Cable Television Corp. of Washington, D.C., will be held prior to the council's April 27 regular meeting at 7 p.m. Welbec, a Centel Cable Company, is in the process of purchasing the rights to provide cable service to area residents. The service previously was provided by First Michigan Cablevi-

According to House, the village's new ordinance will ensure good cable service to residents.

"It's not going to pose any problem to a company that's doing a decent job," he said. "The ordinance pretty much goes with the regulations hand in hand, (and) will require a company to maintain top-notch service. House pointed out that municipalities have little control over areas such as fee rates and programming. "The only way you can have an impact. . . is by setting standards in your own local ordinance," he

"Slouch" used to be a disparaging word, often used to describe a person with poor posture who leaned against a pole in front of a poolroom instead of working for a living. Today, it is not only acceptable to slouch, it is fashionable.

As far as I'm concerned, this change can be blamed on the Reagan administration. More precisely, it should be blamed on the military types working in the White House air ducts

Days begin early, end late when maple sap is running

For most farmers the harvest season doesn't start until mid to late summer, but not for Cass City resident Art Battel. Battel has already started to harvest his first crop of the year--maple sap.

'We call it tradition.'' Battel said with a grin. "It's a hobby." His hobby was shared with his father and his grandfather, who gathered the sap from the 200 odd trees, boiled it and made it into maple syrup.

"I enjoy it," said Battel.
"It's the first crop on the farm.

season. Battel said that the average sap gathering season usually lasts 3 weeks.

"A month is a good year." But, like all crops, the start of the season and the length of it all depend on the weather. "It's the feel of the weather," Battel explained when asked how he knows when to start tapping the trees

'Some years the season starts in the middle of March, but (this year) it came the first of March." Battel said he had a good run the first weekend of March when the weather reached close to the 70's.

According to Battel, warm weather affects the sap just as much as cold. He said the weather has to be just right to get the sap that makes the sweet tasting syrup.

On cold days the sap's all down in the roots of the tree," said Battel. "When warm weather comes, the sap comes up. We are just stealing a little of it." When the weather gets too warm the sap will stop running.

Battel must also keep an eye on his buckets to know when to collect the sap. If the weather gets too hot, the sap ferments in the pails and makes a bitter tasting syrup. Rain is another factor. If rain water gets into the sap, the sap can't be used.

We can boil the rain out but not the flat taste," said

The tapping season is officially over when the buds appear on the trees, for the sap collected after this time makes a bitter tasting syrup.

good thing about this crop a small shed near the edge is the same trees can be tapped each spring. However, according to Battel, only hard maples can be tapped for their sap.

"Soft maple could be used," said Battel, "but it doesn't have the sugar content that hard maples have and the syrup has a strong flavor. I don't know anyone who makes syrup from soft maples.

Battel starts tapping his trees by drilling an inch and a half hole in the trunk. He hammers in a spile, a little metal funnel, and hangs the bucket on the hook attached to the spile.

According to Battel, trees cannot be tapped in the same place again, because you need fresh wood to tap the tree.

The process of tapping doesn't harm the trees, assures Battel. "When the spile is taken out nature starts healing the tree up,' he said. The tree heals from the outside covering the hole up with bark.

'An interesting thing is that if a tree that has been tapped is cut down and used for lumber, you can tell where it's been tapped because the hole never fills

Besides being a hard maple, the tree must be "at least 12 to 14 inches in diameter for it to be tapped," said Battel. On some of his larger trees Battel has a double tap, which is two spiles connected to a rubber hose that runs the sap into the bucket

According to Battel, about 50 to 60 gallons of sap is needed before the fire can be started under the evaporator. It takes between 40 to 50 gallons of sap to make only one gallon of syrup.

The evaporating process takes about an hour and a half. Battel tests the syrup for thickness before he drains it out of a small finishing tank.

The syrup is once again boiled in pans by Battel's wife, Marge, and a small amount of milk is added. The fire spread rapidly across several acres owned by a number of farmers, Pawloski explained, adding that fire fighters arrived at the scene, about 3 miles south of M-81 near the M-53-

DRIVEWAY DISPUTE

Robert McCoon of Marlette called the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department March 26, complaining that his brother, Albert, was tearing up his drive-

According to a report, Robert stated that the driveway is on the property that his father had left him and that Albert uses it to get to his property in the back. Robert said his brother has a temper and that "whenever his temper flares up he goes on a rampage and they cannot talk to him or do anything to calm him down so he talks rationally."

According to the report,
Albert's son was grading the drive and tore up a little bit of it. Robert's wife called Albert and asked if he would stop digging the driveway until it dried out.

Robert stated that Albert got upset and said he was coming down and he would tear the driveway up even more. Albert came down and was "tearing it up and yelling and screaming at the top of his lungs," stated Robert. His wife called the police because she was afraid Albert would hurt them.

The officer noted in the report that the driveway had been graded, but was passable and that it was graded on a level orderly fashion. The officer offered to talk to Albert, but he and Robert decided that it might cause his temper to flare up. The officer told the McCoons that they would have to take the matter up with an attorney.

Robert stated in the report that he had an appointment with an attorney on March 27, to discuss the intended the 90-minute seson, while a number of neighboring townships saw only a handful of residents attend annual meetings. Despite the large turnout, there were no major controversial or "heated" issues brought up at the yearly meeting.

There was good news, however. Residents indicated approval for a prop-⇒ed 1987-88 budget preented by the board.

Proposed expenditures for the fiscal year which began today (April 1) total $109,655, down more than 7 percent, or $8,667, from last year's $118,322. Revenues total $162,438, compared to last year's $170,906.

Total revenue figures include a fund balance of ²6,703 in 1986-87, and $52,640 in 1987-88.

Residents also indicated hearing Saturday of a suggestion by the board that state revenue sharing money--$50,000--all be used for road maintenance and The board budgeted a total of $53,400 for such work in 1987-88, impared to $57,531 in the

In other business Saturday, residents and the board agreed that garbage disposal service in the township should continue as it has in the past 2 years, pending action by the Department of Natural Resources, which may eventually force all township residents to make individual arrangements for trash

A representative of the disposal firm, who attended the meeting, indicated that the existing method of trash rick up may be illegal in / A 1987-88 budget calling for $85,500 in expenditures, up by more than $25,000 over last year, was presented to 9 residents at a 90-minute session.

Revenue for the 1987-88 year totals $85,500, down by $21,500 over last year's $107,000, according to Township Supervisor Betty Powell, who noted that the township has a fund balance of $107,267.

Some $50,000 has been earmarked for road work in the next year. The figure includes $30,000 from a 2mill, 3-year road millage, Powell said.

No raises were proposed Saturday for elected officials. Salary levels will remain at $4,675 for the supervisor/assessor, $3,250 for the clerk, $3,500 for the treasurer, $300 each for the deputy clerk and deputy treasurer, and $800 per year for trustees.

Road construction, work on a water well ordinance and a revolving brush spraying program are major expenditures outlined by the township board during Saturday's 2-hour meeting. Eleven residents attended the session.

The 1987-88 budget includes a total of $146,000 in expenditures, with revenues totalling $146,537, Township Clerk Ronald Hoffman said. Planned spending is up by $38,407 over last year's figure of $107,593. Revenues last year were $133,811.

Purchase of a fire pumper for $102,300 tops major expenditures in 1987-88 in the township, according to clerk Joseph Trep-

About 13 residents attended the 2-hour session, which saw board members outline proposed expenditures of $301,382, down by $5,067 over last year's $306,449. Revenues are down by more than $133,176 from last year, at $204,000.

Trepkoski noted that the township had a fund balance of $236,993 going into 1986-87, while the balance going into 1987-88 is $267,720.

Trepkoski explained that the fire pumper will be paid for partly with $86,000 in a fire equipment fund. The remaining cost should be covered with proceeds from the sale of the township's 1986 fire truck, he said.

Some $65,500 has been earmarked for road work. Major projects include $30,000 for reconstruction of one mile of Stambaugh Road between Poppe and Wadsworth roads, and project in Ubly.

Brooks donates gift of Daisy Scout uniforms

The 9 Cass City Daisy Scouts showed off their new blue uniforms last Tuesday after Girl Scout sponsor Oscar Brooks, owner of Brooks Landscaping, donated the money to pay for the smocks.

The Daisy Scouts are the newest addition to the Girl Scout Organization. The program started 2 years ago nationwide, but this is its first year in Cass City. The girls are in preschool or kindergarten and are 5 or 6 years old. The girls move on to Brownies in Sep-

Along with Brooks' donation, Andy Kozan, director of the Veterans of Foreign Wars' Hall, also gave the scouts a check, "to do with whatever they want," said

According to Area Service Unit Director Kay Warner, the idea of sponsors for the Girl Scouts has changed over the years. "Scouting went downhill all around a few years ago. Interest picked up with the change in the program...getting back to the scouting program.

Warner said that since Brooks and Kozan helped the Daisy Scouts, they in turn will find a way to help their sponsors. "They do things for us and we do things for them," Warner

Daisy Scout Rose Hoelze, 5, said that one of her favorite colors was blue and her two friends, Alyssa Glaspie, 5, and Adrainne Keller. 6, also agreed as the three donned their new smocks and pinned their green Daisy Scout pins above their hearts.

"I like going to meetings the best," said Rose, when asked what she liked about Daisy Scouts. "You learn about what Girl Scouts do...they help people."

Her 2 cohorts had a different view of what they liked best. "I like snacks," Alyssa said with an impish grin. Adrainne said her favorite part of Daisy Scouts is the games they play, but she couldn't pinpoint which one was her favorite.

With the new spark of interest in the scouts, Warner hopes the Daisy Scouts program will continue as long as its sister programs

Carpentry class gives kids something to be proud of

A year-old carpentry class at Cass City High School is being called a success by its instructor, who says his students are learning not only how to build properly, but also how to have pride in their work.

The class, composed of 14 students in grades 10-12, is nearing completion of 2 storage sheds; one is 10 feet by 10 feet, while the other is 11 feet by 16 feet.

Both belong to Cass City residents, who are paying for all the materials involved in the projects.

'We're not charging any money as far as labor instructor Dave goes, Hoard, who also teaches 3 drafting classes and 2 advanced wood-working clas-ses remarked. "What ses, remarked. we're looking to get out of this is the experience.'

Hoard explained that the class lasts for a full school year, with students spending the first half studying textbook material. The remaining time is spent applying what's been learned in the classroom. 'We used to have a carpentry class years ago in which we built scale models," he said. But that class. eliminated because of millage problems, didn't give students the opportunity to build full-scale structures, he added.

The new class, approved by the Board of Education last year, is the result of an original idea suggested by Ron Lomasney, the high school's other industrial arts instructor, Hoard recalled. "Between the 2 of us, we came up with this idea, and we took it to the

We've had 100 percent participation from the kids (and) they're taking pride in their work. If they make a mistake, they re-do it. They want it done right because they know their name is on it.'

The class also has received much interest from the community, the instructor said.

Once the word got out that we were building (the sheds), I had probably 6 or 8 people ask me about it," he added.

The class hopes to finish the larger shed, for Jim Mastie, 6786 Houghton St., in about 3 weeks. The smaller shed meanwhile, which is being built for Keith Murphy, 4885 Seeger St., is expected to be completed in another week. Hoard explained that the students' next step will be laying concrete slabs for the sheds, which will be moved from the school's shop to the residences by Cass City businessman Marvin Winters. Winters is donating his services and moving equipment.

According to Mastie, who visits the class often, the students' work is more than satisfactory. "It's just about what I had in mind. They're doing a very good he commented.

Hoard noted that while the class doesn't charge for labor, donations are accepted for use in purchasing equipment for the shop.

He predicted that the class will continue to be a favorite among both shop students and persons interested in having a shed. 'Once the word gets out and people know we're doing it, I hope we're going to have more (projects) than we can handle."

New books at the library

FINE THINGS by Danielle Steel (fiction). Once a lovestricken undergraduate (with an inclination toward teaching Russian literature at a sleepy New England college), Bernard Fine is transformed into a rising star of Wolff's department store (a counterpart of Bloomingdale's). Transferred to San Francisco to open a new store, Fine is at first homesick for the sparkle of the Big Apple. A coincidental meeting in his now marvelously successful store brings him a new life (including a wife and children). Fine's bliss is short-lived, however, as is his wife, who dies of cancer shortly after the birth of their son.

HOLD ON, MR. PRESIDENT by Sam Donaldson (nonfiction). Donaldson, the plucky ABC White House correspondent discusses first how he views the purpose of his job--insisting that for reporters on the White House beat it's important to challenge the president, challenge him to explain policy, justify decisions, defend mistakes, reveal intentions for the future, and comment on a host of matters." He then proceeds to explain specifically how he has laid down such challenges during the last two administrations. Genial, honest, humorous, and anecdotally rich, Donaldson's account reveals sides of Carter and Reagan, as well as aspects of the broadcasting industry, not visible from the ordinary public vantage point. Those deeply involved in politics or journalism will find this book particularly engaging, but its natural charm and insight should also prove fascinating for anyone who has ever so much as turned on a television.

THE WICKED GODMOTHER by Marion Chesney (fiction). A House for the Season, number 67 is rented by beautiful young Harriet Metcalf, whose charge is to get two 18-year-old heiresses successfully launched in the London ton. Instead, "the country-mouse" godmother finds herself being courted by a notorious rake, the Marquis of Huntington, and his equally flamboyant friend, Lord Vere-much to the annoyance of the spoiled twins. Harriet's attempts to proffer the girls' charms fail, and her own interests are aided by the eccentric and resourceful servants of Clarges

By Bill Myers

They've got a new state prison in my old home town of Lapeer. Biggest industry to come along in years. Naturally the city commission fought it, but the state just went ahead.

Of course you don't call these places "prisons" any more. Name of this one is Thumb Regional Correctional Facility.

If you're a prisoner, the address looks better on your stationery.

It adjoins another state institution that has been in town for 90 years. Originally it was the Michigan Home for Feeble-minded. Later it was called Lapeer State Home. It still cared for the same sort of unfortunate people.

Sociologists couldn't bear anything as plain as Lapeer State Home. Now it is called Oakdale Center for Developmental Disabilities. Local people still call it, as always, The Home. The patients are the same category as they have been for nearly a century. The payroll of nearly 1,000 cares for about that many pa-tients. In days of old the same size staff cared for 4,000, but that was before the Computer Age, and Big Government.

Downtown, city hall has grown just like Lansing and Washington. Lapeer is about the same size as it was 50 years ago, when the police force was made up of Let Cliff, the night watchman, and Matt Dougherty, who was around in the daytime. Now 20 officers try to maintain law and order.

They're not police anymore. They're public safety officers. And once you reach that level, the next thing is a new building for the Department of Public Safety. Such structures never cost less than a mill-

We're getting a new one here in Delray Beach, Fla. Cost, $2 million. But look at the features: a lovely Canine Facility (that's a

The Want Ads Are Newsy Too! dog kennel), and a target range for the public safety officers to practice pistolshooting. Last time a gun was fired here was when one of the boys shot himself in the hand loading his Colt .38 Special.

In this world of fancy langauge, the bureaucrats have to speak that way, too, unless they want to be absolutely nobody.

Go back to this new prison at Lapeer. The city fathers insisted that not over 13 prisoners be allowed out on work details, and there must be one guard for each 6 prisoners. For 13 that would be 2.166 guards, which immediately presents a problem for divisional headquarters.

Commented the city manager James Pierce, "We want to minimize, to the extent possible, any negative social ramifications from the operation of the prison.'

Spending more for road work, and possibly pur-chasing garbage disposal service for township residents, were discussed by the board and 5 residents during the 2-hour meeting, Township Clerk Otis Dorland said

The township's 1987-88 proposed spending plan calls for expenditures of about $115,350, some 48 percent higher than last year's expenditures of $59,873.

The apparent increase in spending is due in part to a 5-year, one-mill request which will be collected for the first time this year, but not used until the next fiscal year, Township Treasurer

Wayne Whittaker In addition, many planned expenditures last year were not made, he said.

Revenues are set at $115,350 for 1987-88, down slightly from last year's $114,478. The township had a fund balance of $49,682 going into 1986-87, compared to a balance of $52,316 going into 1987-88.

Major expenditures this year will include $32,100 in road work, including $10,000 for construction of a new bridge on Germania Road between Argyle and Severance roads. The $10,000 is the township's share of the total cost, estimated at more than $100,000. Last year, $26,567 was spent on roads. Dorland stated that no increases were requested in terms of elected officials' salaries, which will remain at $2,900 for the supervisor, $1,700 for the treasurer and clerk, and $40 per meet for trustees, deputy treasurer and deputy clerk.

Dorland said that the board discussed a garbage disposal program similar that in Novesta Township, where residents SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER

The car, a budgeted item, will replace an existing 1982 village car, which will be sold through a bidding procedure.

The council approved a request for use of the village park Aug. 3-6 by the Lake Huron Area Council Boy Scouts of America.

Ron Weider, district executive for the organization, stated that permission to use the park is required because the scouts will be using bb guns and archery equipment.

He assured councilmen that the shooting range would be set up in accordance with accepted safety standards.

Also Monday, the council learned that an updated and revised village zoning ordinance is currently being reviewed by House, and probably will be acted on by the Planning Commission sometime in the next 2 months.

ELLINGTON

The Ellington Township board of trustees approved an ordinance citing rules and regulations for the township cemetery at its 1987-1988 annual meeting Saturday.

At the 2-hour meeting, the members compiled rules and regulations for the cemetery for the first time. "There's nothing out of the ordinary," said Clayton Turner, township clerk. The board has been working on the ordinance for about 3 weeks.

According to Turner, one of the major projects will be grading and draining a portion of Jacobs Road. Also there will be some improvements made to part of Cemetery Road. "Nothing significant," said Turner. "It's not much of an expense, only $1,600."

The township budget is slightly higher this year. The board allocated $113,678 to expenditures last year. Turner said the $120,474 was carried over from last year and the board estimates $30,000 as the fund balance at the end of this year.

Eleven residents attended the meeting. The board holds its monthly meetings on the second Tuesday. The meetings are at the Town Hall and start at 7:30 p.m.
