Lakers nix 10-mill tax

A record 2,512 persons—more than 64 percent of the eligible voters—in the Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port School District went to the polls Monday to decide a special 10-mill request, which was defeated by 130 votes.

"I don't know if we'll come back again (for another vote), or if we'll close school buildings..." school Supt. Harry J. Brunet said Tuesday morning. "We're at a situation now that I don't know what we're going to do."

Brunet remarked that the voter turnout is the "largest I've ever seen," with 1,182 persons voting "yes" and 1,312 persons voting "no." There were 18 "spoiled" votes. Brunet estimated a total of 3,900 eligible voters in the district.

Among the district's 3 precincts, Pigeon was the only one to approve the millage request, with 551 yes votes and 455 no votes. Bay Port voters rejected the request 144-95, and Elkton voters rejected the request 713-536.

The 10 mills, if approved, would have raised slightly more than $4.3 million. "It would have solved our school financial problems for the next 4 or 5 years, I would say," Brunet remarked.

The voter turnout is in contrast to the district's last special election held in September, when less than 15 percent of the district's voters defeated a 1 1/2 mill request.

Brunet indicated he won't have any idea what the district's next move will be until the board of education meets April 13. The regular meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Laker Junior High.

W.E. Walpole honored

Capacity crowd at chamber banquet

A capacity-plus crowd of some 230 persons packed into the Cass City High School cafeteria Thursday for an evening of awards and presentations at the annual Cass City Chamber of Commerce banquet.

Presentation of the "Citizen of the Year" award for 1987 highlighted the festivities, with Village Manager Lou S. LaPonsie receiving the award from 1985 citizen award recipient Tom Proctor.

Cass City High School senior Clayton Hobart was named "Junior Citizen of the Year."

Also honored were the late Walter E. Walpole, founder of Walbro Corp.; and Cass City resident Lloyd Vyse, whose expertise with papier mache played a major role during Cass City's "Christmas Town" years.

LaPonsie, who has served as village manager since 1972, was lauded by Proctor and the chamber as a resident whose actions are proof of his dedication to his church and community.

He has served as a member of the Village Planning Commission, Economic Development Association, Elkland Township Library Board, county Solid Waste Management Committee, Village Management Committee and Michigan Municipal League Board.

A member of the First Baptist Church in Cass City, LaPonsie is a member of the Board of Deacons and choir, and has taught Sunday school. In addition he is a member of the Grand Rapids Baptist College and Seminary Board, and formerly was on the board of Baptist Family Services in St. Louis, Mich.

Born in Rudyard, Mich., in December 1932, he married his wife, Carol, in May 1957. The couple have 7 children: Grace, Faith, Hope, Daniel, Joy, Philip and Aaron.

LaPonsie spent 4 years in the Navy before working for the Michigan Highway Department as a road and bridge construction inspector for 11 years. He also was street commissioner for 3-1/2 years in L'Anse, Mich.

JUNIOR CITIZEN

Hobart, son of Ben and Jeannine Hobart, was selected as "Junior Citizen" from a field of 9 candidates. Also nominated were Deb Blue, Eric Traube, Robyn Powell, Christine Britt, Ann Leslie, Shannon McIntosh, Mike Kelley and Mark Kappen.

Hobart has been active in athletic as well as scholastic activities during high school. He participated in track and Academic Games, and took part in the high school play for 4 years. He also taught in the community education program and is a co-op student at the Wildwood Farms Restaurant.

Also active in church activities, Hobart's future plans include attending Michigan State University, where he intends to study international relations or law, with a minor in French.

SPECIAL HONORS

Dr. H.T. Donahue made the special presentation honoring Walpole, who brought Walbro from Fenton to Cass City in 1954. He's credited with turning a fledgling company into the largest independent manufacturer of small engine carburetors in the world.

In addition to guiding the company for 36 years, Walpole was particularly active in civic and school organizations.

Donahue, who described Walpole as an "all American and champion entrepreneur," presented the award to Bob Walpole.

In a brief speech, Walpole reminded the audience of his father's business and life philosophies, including "you first must give to receive" and "people are your most important asset."

"He was extremely proud of this community," Walpole remarked, adding, "and proud to call it his home."

CHRISTMAS TOWN

Vyse, who had the audience roaring with laughter during a slide presentation and talk about Cass City's Christmas Town days, also was honored, and received a plaque from master of ceremonies and Walbro chairman Lambert Althaver.

Vyse described the community-wide participation during the Christmas holiday, and noted that annual lighting and decoration exhibits in the 1950s brought Cass City national and state recognition as "Christmas Town."

He also revealed what he referred to as "a little indication of what's going to be in December."

Vyse, who in December brought back memories of the Christmas Town era with a lighted display of papier-mache snowmen in his front yard, uncovered the beginnings of a display featuring papier-mache forms of the heads of a lion, ram, elephant and lioness.

Also speaking at Thursday night's program, which lasted for more than 3 hours, were new Chamber of Commerce president Tom Herron, and Village Council President Larry Davis.

Herron outlined chamber goals for the future, particularly community involvement. He noted that Cass City has experienced a great deal of growth over the past 17 years.

Acres in the village increased from 664 acres in 1970 to 949 acres in 1987—a 47 percent jump, he said, adding that 126 new houses totalling $4.8 million in construction costs were built during that period. In addition, some $14.5 million in commercial construction has taken place since 1976, he remarked.

GOOD, BAD NEWS

Davis' speech was a mix of both good and bad news. While the village is "in good, sound financial condition," he said.

Thumb co-op plans dish descrambler

There's good news for area television satellite dish owners who are members of the Thumb Electric Cooperative.

The new National Rural Telecommunications Cooperative has announced plans to offer descrambled satellite TV programs to rural dish owners through local electric co-ops, including Thumb Electric, by midsummer.

According to a Thumb Electric spokesman, the service may also become available to persons who aren't members of the electric co-op.

Robert Phillips, president of the newly formed NRTC, told persons at the Michigan Electric Cooperative Association's annual meeting in Lansing last week that the co-op expects to complete an agreement with a dozen satellite TV programmers late this month.

That contract will allow rural electric cooperatives that are members of NRTC to provide descrambling service in their areas.

Thumb Electric is one of 6 of Michigan's 14 electric co-ops to join NRTC, according to general manager Mike Krause, who indicated he believes membership in the national organization will mean better and more cost effective service to Thumb Electric's 9,600 customers in rural Tuscola, Sanilac and Huron counties.

LOCAL PLANS

"We think there are a lot of possibilities with it," Krause remarked Monday.

"Our board of directors really endorses the concept of NRTC. It's going to be something that's going to benefit the Thumb, and not only" in terms of the descrambling package, he added. Krause explained that NRTC is promoting programs which utilize other uses of satellite communications.

According to Phillips, the NRTC is negotiating with several satellite programmers. Agreements in principle have been reached with 12 channels, including Cable News Network, WTBS, Nashville Network, USA, CBN and the Country Music Network.

The organization also is talking with larger programmers such as ESPN, the Disney Channel, HBO and Showtime.

Phillips predicted that the package of descrambled programs will be available to dish owners at a monthly fee of $10 to $15.

Phillips also spoke of plans for a nationwide network of telecommunications for the 1,000 electric co-ops, their statewide associations and other affiliates. The technology will allow the co-ops to share information, training programs and conduct financial transactions.

Specifics on cost, dates and programming aren't available yet. But Krause indicated that the descrambling package set to be offered by the NRTC is ideally suited to area rural residents who have made investments in TV satellite dishes only to be frustrated by scrambled signals.

"I think we've had 25 to 30 calls from people asking about the possibility" of getting the descrambling package, he remarked.

Krause added that Thumb Electric's goal is to offer the service at a cost which is reasonable for the customer and yet doesn't jeopardize the co-op's primary business.

"We're not here to take advantage of people. If we can offer a service and still keep our co-op viable, and if it's good for our membership, then we're going to go after it," he continued.

Krause said that Thumb Electric will pay a yearly $1,000 fee plus $500 per year for the next 3 years to be a member in the NRTC.

Although the cost may seem high, he commented, the fees paid now are an investment which is expected to yield a high return. "We feel the dollars we're investing will be turned around in the future," he added.

Petitions to stop building of new facility successful

A petition drive to get enough signatures to force a county-wide vote on the building of a new Department of Social Services facility has been successful with more than 3,200 signatures obtained.

The question that remains is, will there be a vote?

The month-old Commit-

6 seek 3 school board posts

Three Cass City school board candidates handed in their nominating petitions to the Cass City superintendent's office to run against the 3 incumbents in the June 8 school election.

Incumbents Edward Scollon and Louis Horner will have to beat Martin Daniel and James G. Turner to serve another 4-year term.

The one-year term held by Beverly Auten is being challenged by Kay Warner. Auten was appointed to fill Kenneth Micklash's seat when he resigned to become high school principal.

The election for the one opening on the Owendale-Gagetown School Board will only be a formality since nobody registered to run against incumbent Patrick Goslin. He is being elected for another 4-year term.

tee to Stop Waste of Tax Dollars, which spearheaded the drive, filed the signatures Friday with Tuscola County Clerk Elsie Hicks, who said she will call an election after verifying the petition signatures. The verification will take a week.

Kim D. Glaspie, District 2 commissioner, said that the county board hasn't decided yet if there will be an election. According to Glaspie, the board members feel that if they pull out of the project there would be no need for the vote. He said holding the election would cost the county $10,000 to $15,000.

Edward Liebler, chairman of the petition drive committee, said that an election must be held in compliance with state law. "They (county commissioners) could drop the project this week and back it again next week and we would have to get new signatures," said Liebler. "This is just a threat to keep people from signing."

Tom Dillon, administrative assistant for the Tuscola County Department of Social Services, said that even if the signatures are all verified by Hicks, an election won't be held. "The commissioners are not going to spend any money on the project and the election would cost money," said Dillon.

THE DISPUTE

The building dispute arose in February. The lease for the existing DSS building on East Caro Rd. expires July 31, and the department wants a new building which will meet its growing needs. The DSS officials approached the county board and discussed the possibility of building a new facility. The county board indicated that it had no money to finance such a project.

Dillon discussed the issue with the State Department of Management and Budget, and came up with a lease in which the state pays for the building. "The county taxpayers wouldn't be paying a penny," Dillon said.

According to Dillon, the $1.2 million project will be financed with bonds, which will be paid off through monthly rent payments from the state. After the 15-year contract is paid off, the state has a 5-year option to rent.

Paul Lefler, administrator of the County Building Codes office, confirmed Dillon's contention that the project will not be funded by the county. "There will be no cash outlay from the county," he added. Lefler pointed out that the state will probably take advantage of the 5-year option, with the rent paid on the building going into the county fund. "This is the best thing to hit county taxpayers in a long time," he said.

Liebler filed organizational papers with Hicks Feb. 23. He disagrees with Dillon and Lefler that the building won't be paid for by the taxpayers. "I never got anything free in my life," he said. Liebler explained that county residents would still be paying for the building through state taxes. "If they want to spend more money on welfare, they should give it to the clients," Liebler said.

Liebler, who owns the existing DSS building, said that if the department wants a different facility they should move into one of the county's vacant buildings. "I can't deny that I have a personal interest in the fact, but I've been removed because the DSS said they'll move out even if they don't get a new building," said Liebler. "I think they have an adequate amount of space for their needs and I think it is foolish (that they are moving). They'll be paying twice as much rent as they are paying right now."

Liebler said that the department will be paying $12,500 for rent in a new facility compared to the $5,000 rent it pays now.

Liebler said that more than 3,900 county residents signed the petitions, the largest percent in the Cass City area. "There are strong feelings against the commissioners for wanting to build a new building," he stated. "The petitioners' perception is they (the commissioners and DSS) are just wasting taxpayers money."

The Gospel according to children

by Melva E. Guinther

A clipping from a San Antonio newspaper reminded me of the choir director's frequent and fervent admonition to enunciate clearly.

The writer tells of the young daughter of a Methodist minister who belted out, "Lead on, O Kinky Turtle," to the amusement of the congregation, who were more familiar with the "King Eternal" version.

"Bringing in the Sheaves," an exhortation to be busy in the Lord's harvest of souls, is another old gospel song often misunderstood by singers too young to read. They've been heard bringing in the cheese, the sheets and the sheep. Sheaves, after all, isn't exactly a household word.

Then there was the little fellow whose first grade class was drawing pictures at Christmas time. The teacher was quite impressed with his depiction of Mary, Joseph and the baby Jesus, with the star overhead and some 4-legged animals she surmised were sheep.

A plump figure off to the side had her puzzled, though. It bore little resemblance to an angel or a shepherd, and everybody knows wise men come in threes. When she inquired about the character, the boy told her with a tolerant sigh, "That's Round John Virgin. You know, 'Round John Virgin, mother and child'."

The San Antonio columnist also told of learning the books of the New Testament in song from his father, who was a Baptist song leader.

At age 5, he finally asked the question that had always bothered him, "Dad, why did he hurt James?"

His father was mystified until the boy sang a line of the song, "...he bruised James..."

"That's Hebrews, James," his father explained. But he claims that after 40 years, the "He bruised James" song is still requested at family gatherings.

Being aware of these childhood misconceptions, I'll try to consider what the children actually hear in my Sunday School lesson about the early church.

I'd hate to have them picturing a bunch of people carrying cheese, sheets and sheep behind a kinky turtle while Round John Virgin beats up on James.

Answers to last week's puzzle:

"If It Fitz..."

Finesse-ful?

By Jim Fitzgerald

"It is no time to be finesseful," said a man being interviewed on TV.

Finesseful? Or maybe that should be with a hyphen—finesse-ful?

Whatever. The man who said it got my attention. I'm always fascinated by the innovative distortion of the English language.

For instance, last month the Grosse Pointe Advertiser quoted a local official as saying a Grosse Pointe Woods bridge would soon "be deconstructed." If the bridge were in Detroit, it would be torn down.

Likewise, most people who operate with finesse are described as being adroit or refined or delicate or a slick cardplayer. I'd never heard such a person called finesseful (I'm not using the hyphen because the word finesseful will be written several times in this column, hyphens are always scarce in a city full of blind alleys, and I don't want to rob suburban cul-de-sacs).

Hospital Auxiliary holds meet

Twenty-two attended the March 23 meeting of Hills and Dales Hospital Auxiliary, held at The Charmont.

Heidi Iseler presented the program on her year in Denmark as a Rotary exchange student.

Color-rectal screening will be held May 10-16 at Hills and Dales Hospital.

The East Central District meeting will be May 13 in Flint.

So I quickly put down my newspaper to see who on TV said it was no time to be finesseful. He was a dirt track racer describing races held in the Pontiac Silverdome. My wife, whose attention was also captured by finesseful, was incredulous.

"What is he talking about?" she asked. "There's no dirt in the Silverdome."

I explained that tons of dirt are trucked into the building and fashioned into a hilly racetrack that looks like a winding country trail more suitable for goats than cars. And after the races, the dirt is trucked back to where it came from—probably a hilly country site—so basketball can again be played in the Silverdome.

"You're kidding me, aren't you?" she said. "If people wanted to race cars on a hilly country trail, they'd do it outside on a hilly country trail. They wouldn't move the hilly country trail inside a building."

Yes they would. Otherwise there'd be no way to make certain no one watched the races without buying a ticket. It isn't practical to fence in a real hilly country trail and surround it with ticket booths and beer and hot dog counters.

"Are you trying to tell me that people actually pay good money to go inside to see cars race on a phony hilly country trail?"

Certainly. Many sports—baseball, football, etc.—were first played outside under the sun, but now are often played inside under electric lights. So why not move dirt track racing indoors? It's exciting; because of the limited space inside, the cars are closer together and there are more accidents than there'd be outside.

In fact, from what I've seen on TV, the dirt cars sometimes shoot over the tops of hills and land on each other. Drivers can get hurt and the winner is usually the car that causes the most damage and still keeps going. Like the man said, it's no time to be finesseful.

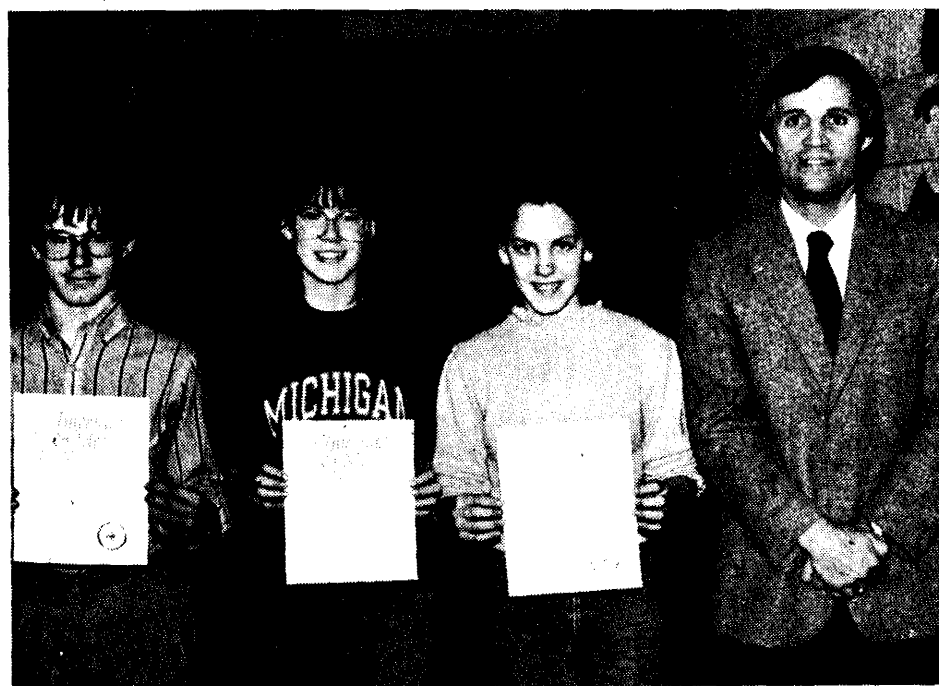

"I didn't realize car crashes are a sport, the same as baseball," my wife said. "There must be something wrong with people who enjoy watching cars crash."

To each his own. There are people who buy tickets to watch tractors pull loads. Many years ago, plowing contests made some sort of sense when farmers were showing off the horsepower of real horses. But what's the attraction in watching a hauling battle between tractors? There isn't even the delightful possibility of a bloody accident.

Or how about what went on at the Silverdome last Sunday? Around 88,000 people jammed the place to watch Wrestlemania III. Anyone with half a brain knows professional wrestling is phonyer than a country trail air-conditioned by General Electric. But there you are—88,000 wrestling nuts stomping and cheering and actually taking that nonsense seriously.

"There really is no accounting for taste," my wife said.

And some of us are more accountful than others.

The first-place essays won advance to state competition, where the top 10 entries in Michigan will be selected by a group of finalist judges, including Gov. James J. Blanchard and Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths.

The top 10 essayists, who will be announced in early May, will receive plaques and U.S. savings bonds ranging in value from $300 to $1,000. In addition, the statewide winners will be honored at a banquet in Lansing and a meeting with Michigan's top governmental leaders in late May.

The contest, first organized in 1968, is open to all Michigan 8th graders and encourages youngsters to explore their roles in America's future. Several thousand students from more than 500 schools participated in last year's competition.

"Project Graduation," which was successful last year in reducing drinking and driving with its emphasis on non-alcoholic ways to celebrate year-end school social events, will receive a boost this year from London's Farm Dairy.

The company will donate space on sides of milk cartons and provide other advertising to promote the campaign this spring.

The bad news is that the shore dwellers along Saginaw Bay and Port Huron were buffeted by 50-mile per hour winds Saturday. The good news, Cass Cityans on the shore tell me, is that the water levels are perhaps a couple of feet lower than they were at the peak.

The "star" syndrome has reached into high school sports. There were more tickets available for the Michigan High School Athletic Association basketball finals this year than at any time in recent memory.

Most observers say that the reason is that there was no outstanding name player at Ann Arbor. This year's super star, Mark Macon, played for Buena Vista and his team was eliminated in the regionals.

I guess you can blame that on the media, especially television, which sometimes features the player over the school and its team.

Walbro Corporation is one of 15 finalists in the "company of the year" contest sponsored by the Detroit Free Press, according to Jane Hittler, one of the members of a committee that co-ordinated a local campaign in the company's behalf.

Nail color equalled rank

In ancient Egypt, nail color indicated a woman's social rank. Only the palest shades were permitted lower class women, and woe was the woman who painted her talons brighter than the Queen's.

The Haire Net

There were a few surprises at the annual Cass City Chamber of Commerce dinner Thursday and for a change none of them was unpleasant.

The size of the turnout was the first. The cafeteria at Cass City High School was packed. It's been a while since anything like that happened at the banquet. The change in the way the junior citizen candidates were presented was another plus. It's time that more recognition for the runners-up was arranged. Often there is only an eyelash difference between the final candidates and the winner.

The biggest surprise was the talk given by Lloyd Vyse. From the reports I get, it was funny, entertaining and will probably result in numerous invitations from the community for Lloyd to guest speak.

Talk about hiding your light beneath a bushel. He's a native of Cass City and many of us have known him for 35 years or more. All of us who know him, especially those who knew him when Cass City was in its heyday as "Christmas Town," are aware of his genius for design and his craftsmanship in turning the designs into reality.

No one that I know even suspected his ability to entertain from the speakers' platform.

The banquet was the first project for the Chamber since it was reorganized and the hope is that it's an indication of good things to come. A strong, active Chamber is needed as much or more today than it was when it was the guiding force that secured industry for the community when it was desperate to secure jobs.

What makes it difficult is that the Chamber may be working hard for years without visible success. When that happens it's hard to keep the interest up and the dues money flowing in.

It's human to forget that the competition is severe and that every community is in a battle, if not for survival, at least for better economic health.

All in all what we have accomplished isn't too shabby. There are plenty of Thumb communities who would be happy to be as well off. The cooperation in the community over the years has been the envy of more than one of our neighbors.

We probably have lost some of that in recent years. The Chamber is one place to start to revive it. The individual memberships the Chamber is offering are a step in that direction. More than the $10, the support of anyone interested in a better Cass City is needed.

The old cliché, we hang together or we hang separately, applies here to you and to me and to every other resident who makes a living in the community.

Fines to be waived on late books

There's good news for area residents who may be avoiding a visit to Rawson Memorial Library because of fines owed for overdue library materials.

Rawson Memorial Library officials, as part of the celebration of National Library Week this week, are granting a one-day grace period (Friday) in which persons can return overdue materials without having to pay any fines.

Also scheduled for Friday is distribution of "I Love My Library" book bags to persons who check out material. Refreshments will be served throughout the day.

According to librarian Barbara Hutchinson, National Library Week is dedicated to urging communities to take advantage of their local libraries.

Rawson Memorial Library saw a 26 percent increase in the number of items checked out in 1986 over the previous year, Hutchinson remarked, adding that 70,000 items were checked out. "Laid end to end, the materials circulated in 1986 would stretch for 10 miles," she added.

In addition, more than 600 books were obtained for persons through an inter-library loan program, while the library staff mailed 386 books to other libraries in the cooperative, Hutchinson said.

Among the items available for loan through the library are "talking books," which are books recorded on audio cassette, she explained, adding the tapes can be played on a regular home cassette player. Currently, the library has about 50 fiction and non-fiction titles.

Other materials available are large-print books, paperback books, records, music cassettes, magazines, travel information and maps, video cassettes, video cassette players, cameras and local history information.

The library's hours are from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and 7 to 9 p.m. Monday and Friday evenings.

DESPITE NASTY weather, the Tom Thumb Singers' fifth annual spring concert held Saturday and Sunday at Cass City High School, drew some 400 persons. The 50-member community choir, directed by Andrea Hofmeister, features singers ranging from 7 years old to senior citizens.

Local man pleads guilty to driving when license revoked

A 19-year-old Cass City man pleaded guilty to operating a vehicle while his license was suspended and was sentenced to 2 years probation and fines and costs of $100 in Tuscola County District Court, Monday.

Michael E. Horne, 4118 Seeger St., was driving on Cemetery Road March 20 when he was stopped by the Caro State Police.

In a separate case, a 17-year-old Mayville man faces a maximum of 5 years in prison or $2,500 in fines if he is found guilty of the alleged charge of larceny over $100.00.

Preliminary exam for James R. Rowbotham, 8858 Willits Rd., is set for April 14 at 2:30 p.m.

A court report indicated that on March 12, Rowbotham allegedly stole various chains, chain binders and tarp straps, which exceeded $100 in value.

Two 17-year-old Caro men face up to 15 years in prison if they are found guilty of the charge of breaking and entering an occupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny.

Anthony L. Bloomfield, 17, 2795 East Deckerville Rd., and Kevin W. Urban, South State St., are charged with allegedly breaking and entering into a house located at 2750 East Deckerville Rd., with the intent to commit larceny on April 1.

Both men will have their preliminary exam April 10 in district court. Their bond was set at $15,000 each.

OUIL

Charles D. Dost, 27, 1975 Murray Rd., Caro, is being charged with operating a vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor (OUIL) and operating a vehicle while his license was suspended or revoked (OWLS).

According to a district court report, this is Dost's third OUIL offense and second OWLS offense. He faces 5 years in prison and/or $5,000 in fines and his license can be revoked.

On March 28, Dost was driving on Orr Road when he was stopped and charged with the alleged OUIL and OWLS.

The report showed that on June 17, 1985, Oct. 23, 1979, and Jan. 8, 1979, he was previously convicted for OUIL. On Oct. 25, 1983, he was convicted of OWLS.

Dost's preliminary exam is set for April 17. His bond was $2,000.

CIRCUIT COURT

A 29-year-old Mayville man's plea of guilty to criminal sexual conduct (CSC) in the second degree was accepted by Tuscola County Circuit Court, Monday.

Michael A. Richards, 7255 Fostoria Rd., was remanded to the custody of the sheriff's department without bond and faces up to 15 years in prison.

A second charge of CSC in the second degree was dismissed.

A court record stated that on March 23, Richards allegedly engaged in sexual contact with another person being under 13 years of age.

In a separate case, a 20-year-old Saginaw man was sentenced to 9 months in the county jail with credit for time served after he pleaded guilty to CSC in the fourth degree.

According to a court report, on Oct. 13, 1986, Michael Jewell, 417 Fayette Rd., did "engage in sexual contact with another person...defendant knowing or having reason to know that the victim was physically helpless."

LARCENY

Dennis W. Armstrong Jr., 18, 7925 Sheridan Rd., Millington, is facing a maximum penalty of 5 years in prison or $2,500 after he pleaded guilty to larceny over $100 in circuit court Monday. Sentencing is to be set.

Armstrong said he was guilty of stealing an outboard motor, the value of which exceeds $100. His bond of $5,000 is to continue.

Area man injured in mishap

A 23-year-old Cass City man sought his own treatment for injuries sustained after he fell asleep at the wheel of his vehicle and crashed into a parked, unoccupied car early Saturday morning.

Kent R. Wischmeyer, 6860 Herron Drive, was traveling eastbound on Houghton Street west of Woodland Avenue at 3:45 a.m. when he fell asleep and ran into the rear of another vehicle, the report stated. The second vehicle is "owned by Mario D'Addio, 2354 Hurds Corner Rd., Caro.

Wischmeyer's vehicle sustained heavy damage, while D'Addio's vehicle sustained moderate to heavy damage, the report indicated.

Also reported to the Cass City Police Department during the past week was a car/deer mishap involving Patrice A. Priestap, 6300 Brenda Drive.

Priestap was northbound on Kingston Road Thursday at 8:10 p.m. when she struck a deer north of Chapin Road, according to the report. Priestap's vehicle was slightly damaged in the accident.

Gagetown United Methodist Church

Brunch offers good food, conversation

by TOM MONTGOMERY
News Editor

A bowl of Cheerios or a Pop Tart may do on some mornings at area breakfast tables, but for a number of Thumb area residents, there's only one choice on the first Sunday of each month.

The place is the United Methodist Church in Gagetown; the time, about 10:30 a.m.

And the food? Well, for starters there are heaps of fluffy pancakes, piles of sausage and dozens of eggs. Fresh fruit, juice, sweet rolls and other homemade goodies round out the menu.

It's all you can eat for $3. Kids 12 and under eat for $1.50, and pre-schoolers get in free.

"People just bring it in," United Methodist Women treasurer Ruth A. Hendershot remarked about the variety of foods available. "It always works out."

The women's group, which has sponsored the brunch for at least the past 10 years, provides the sausage and pancakes.

More than 100 persons from throughout the Thumb attend the brunch each month. "It seems every time we have it, we have new" faces, she said.

"The reason we do this is to help the church," Hendershot explained. "We are a small congregation, 50 to 55 members." The women's group annually donates $1,500 to $2,000 to the church from brunch proceeds.

But the monthly event is more than a successful fund raiser.

"I don't think there's ever been anyone to one of our brunches who hasn't enjoyed it, and the food," Hendershot commented. "People see someone they know and have a good chat."

ORGANIZED CREW

Hendershot shared cooking duties on Sunday. She was flanked by an organized crew of women who cooked, waited on tables and served. One of the helpers is Joan Koch, who's known for her skill as a pancake chef.

"I've been frying them a long time. I like to fry them, but I hate" to eat them, she said. "That's probably why I enjoy doing it."

Koch says she doesn't know how many pancakes she's fried, but added that she goes through at least 10 pounds of pancake mix per brunch.

She said that the brunch fare seems very popular. The women's group tried sponsoring ice cream socials in place of the brunch during the summer months years ago. But, Koch added, "We got such a back-flack from the public, we decided to continue the brunches all summer long."

The event's popularity seems to be growing as neighboring churches, such as St. Agatha Catholic Church, have begun sponsoring brunches. "We're not in competition," Koch pointed out, adding that members of the churches attend one another's brunches.

As far as the work goes, Koch indicated that members of the United Methodist Women share in the cooking and other duties related to their brunch.

HEAD COOK

"We have a lot of men who consider themselves head cook, but they don't touch a thing," Koch joked. "But, it's not unusual on a busy Sunday morning to see men doing dishes."

One of the men who considers himself head cook, according to Koch, is Cass City resident and Michigan Farm Bureau President Jack Laurie, who remarked during Sunday's brunch that he thought the women were doing a "pretty good" job.

Laurie said that he makes it to "about every" brunch, despite a busy schedule. "It's been successful—a good chance for fellowship," he continued. "People don't get many chances anymore just to get together and visit."

Bad Axe resident Helen Moore agrees. She and husband Martin brought 4 friends with them Sunday.

"Every time we've been (here), it's been really good and reasonable," she commented, adding that she and her husband have been attending the brunches regularly for the past 2 or 3 years.

A few weeks ago, Moore met a woman she knew during her high school years.

"We got to visiting, and realized that we knew each other," she said.

State police
accidents

A 26-year-old Deford man was injured Saturday morning after his car ran off Cemetery Road and into a ditch.

Christopher P. Zemke, who sustained a cut on his chin in the accident, stated that he didn't "recall what happened; that he was southbound on Cemetery Road and the next thing he knew he was in the ditch."

Zemke was pulled out of the ditch by an unidentified motorist at about 2:30 in the morning. He sought his own treatment.

He was cited by troopers for failing to wear his seat belt. In the only local deer/car mishap reported this week, Gary M. Miracle, 50, 6825 Gifford Rd., Deford, was not injured when her car struck a deer on Cemetery Road on Saturday.

According to the report, Miracle was northbound on Cemetery when she hit the animal, which apparently walked away from the scene. The car sustained minor damage.

TUBES STOLEN

A Davison man filed a report March 27 stating that 20 feet of culvert tubing had been stolen from his property.

Fred Muto indicated in the report that he will not file charges because "the tubing had been sitting there (on his property) for quite some time...someone could feel that the tube was not being used and had no idea if anyone owned it."

Muto, who said that the tube was on Rossman Road east of Froede Road, added that he wants the tubing returned to him.

During an investigation, deputies found that a man hired by one of the neighbors to do some ditch work had taken the tubing, thinking it was owned by his employer. The tubing was moved back to Muto's residence and no charges were filed.

In a separate report filed last week, a Deford man called the sheriff's department concerning a trespasser on his property.

Arleon Retherford stated in a report that a lady that both he and his wife had known for a long time, was sitting out in her car in his driveway.

Retherford went on to say that the woman is allegedly on different types of medication and is disturbed, and "comes over and harasses and bothers him and his wife and they are elderly people and can't take it anymore...just that afternoon alone she had come over 12 different times within a 2 to 3-hour period."

Retherford told deputies that he wanted her to leave and not to bother him and his wife anymore.

Police talked to the woman in the car and, according to the report, she stated that she "had no place else to go and that everybody has turned against her and does not want to listen to her." She stated that she would leave and would not come back again if she could just go.

The police followed the woman for a while to see if she was having problems driving, but found she was not.

Suicide suspected in recent gunshot death

An 18-year-old Caro man died last week at Caro Community Hospital from an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head.

Mark P. Herdell died in the emergency room at about 1:20 p.m. April 2, after the hospital staff failed to revive him, according to a Tuscola County Sheriff's report. The body was transported to St. Mary's Hospital for an autopsy.

Herdell was found by his uncle, James Grannell, after his stepmother called Grannell when she couldn't find him. Grannell stated in a report that he had found a suicide note and went out looking for him. According to the report, "He found the body and the gun and brought the gun up into the residence."

Herdell was alive when deputies and a Caro ambulance arrived. He had taken a handgun, owned by his father, Patrick, and apparently shot himself in the woods near his home, the report stated.

Herdell's stepmother, Judy, stated that he was a student at Michigan State University and "for the last year or so, he had been depressed, but that he had come the evening of April 1 and stated to her that he would go back to Michigan State (in the morning)."

Grannell said in the report that his nephew and he had just returned from a week-long trip to Mexico and that Herdell was in good spirits. Grannell went on to say that Herdell "has had periods of depression in the past and he thinks

Harvard study: No link between breast cancer and fat intake

Lois D. McBean, M.S., R.D. Technical Advisor Dairy Council of Michigan

The amount of fat or type of fat in the diet appears to have no effect on risk of breast cancer in American women, according to a Harvard Medical School study. "A moderate reduction in fat intake by adult women is unlikely to result in a substantial reduction in the incidence of breast cancer," conclude the authors of the study.

This newly released finding is of significance considering that breast cancer affects 1 out of every 10 women at some time in their lives, and that diets high in fat are suspected of contributing to this disease. In the Harvard study, nearly 90,000 registered nurses 34 to 59 years of age with no history of cancer completed a dietary questionnaire in 1980. This allowed the investigators to determine the nurses' intake of fat, cholesterol, and other nutrients. During 4 years of follow-up, 601 of the nurses developed breast cancer.

When Dr. Walter C. Willett of Harvard Medical School in Boston and his associates examined the diets of the nurses, they found a 25% difference in fat intake between those who consumed the most fat and those who consumed the least amount. However, the investigators observed no association between fat or total calorie intake and risk of breast cancer.

"A reduction in total fat intake of approximately 25% by women is unlikely to cause a substantial decrease in the incidence of breast cancer," say the Harvard University researchers. Their findings appear to be at odds with other dietary recommendations to reduce fat intake such as those issued by the National Cancer Institute (NCI).

The NCI, for example, recommends that we lower fat intake from its usual level of about 40% of total calories to 30% to reduce risk of cancer. The NCI bases its recommendations on observations that countries with a high incidence of breast cancer tend to have a high national per capita fat intake, as well as findings from animal studies showing that dietary fat influences the growth of breast tumors. However, the relationship between fat intake and risk of breast cancer in such studies, as well as others, is by no means consistent, explain Willett and his colleagues.

The Harvard researchers state that their findings do not imply that national dietary recommendations or personal decisions to lower fat intake should be abandoned. Nonetheless, their findings raise serious doubts about the benefit of moderately lowering fat intake to reduce risk of breast cancer.

This study also confirms previously recognized risk factors for breast cancer. Women's risk of developing this disease is greater if they have had no children, if breast cancer has been diagnosed in their mothers or sisters, if they have a history of benign breast disease, if they menstruated at an early age, and if they were older at the birth of their first child.

Detroit Tigers a fifth place team

With the Red Wings holding first place in their division and the Pistons in second place in the Central Division, the Tigers had a lot to contend with when they started their regular season Monday.

Fans are expecting great things out of the baseball team that brought them the World Series title in 1984, then seemed to slack off the last 2 years.

But, Charles Kretschmer, 45, 3320 South Gageton Rd., Owendale, isn't holding his breath for the Tigers to go all the way again. "They are a fifth place team," he commented. "They have a little catching problem, even though Lance Parrish wasn't a healthy guy."

Parrish left the team because of a contract dispute and Dwight Lowry and Mike Heath will try to replace the powerful Parrish. Heath is a 9-year veteran of the game and has been with Detroit for a year. Lowry is still a youngster with only 2 years' experience under his belt.

Kretschmer says another weakness for the Tigers is in the pitching line up. "That can change, but they may have a rough start," he said. Jack Morris was 21-8 last year and manager Sparky Anderson is looking for big things from this 10-year veteran.

Kretschmer thinks that if the Tigers are to have a chance they have to stay away from injuries. A warning heeded a bit too late by right-fielder Kirk Gibson who missed Monday's opener against the Yankees due to a pulled muscle.

But, like any sports fan, Kretschmer has a little glimmer of hope that the Tigers will bring home the pennant again. The "spring of 1984 wasn't so great, and look what happened. Who knows?" Kretschmer said.

Despite the gloomy outlook and a terrible pre-season record, Kretschmer said Michigan loves its Tigers. "We always will be fans," he said. "They always bring a good crowd."

Kretschmer said that when he was younger he went to a lot more games, but hasn't been down to Tiger Stadium since the team went all the way.

Kretschmer has lived in Owendale all his life. He was a farmer until 3 years ago and now works for Sebewaing Industries.

Association President Bruce W. Cook commented, "In this, our 100th year, our confidence in Mutual's continued growth is reflected in branch office remodeling and expansion in Essexville, Saginaw, and Battle Creek and proposed new offices in Ann Arbor, Midland, Saginaw, Reed City, and Battle Creek."

Hawk ball teams open season Monday

Hawk baseball team improved, but league will be stronger

Pitching key to successful year for softball team, says coach

Competition is going to be tough.

That's how Don Schelke, coach for the Cass City High School baseball team for 10 years, describes this year's season. "We should be improved over last year," Schelke said about his team that finished off the season 5-12. "We have just about everybody back.

The league is going to be tough, though, because they (the other teams) got everyone back too."

The team has a strong pitching staff as well as fielders, but the Hawks are hurting in the hitting area. "We'll be tougher on defense than on offense," Schelke said.

But, offense brings the runs in and Schelke knows it. When asked how he thinks the teams will finish in the league this season, the Red Hawks didn't make his top four. Schelke stated that the district champs last year, Caro, will do it again, unless the Lakers can pull ahead of them. Schelke sees North Branch taking hold of third and Vassar in fourth.

But, if the Hawks shape up in the batter's box, who knows how the season might end?

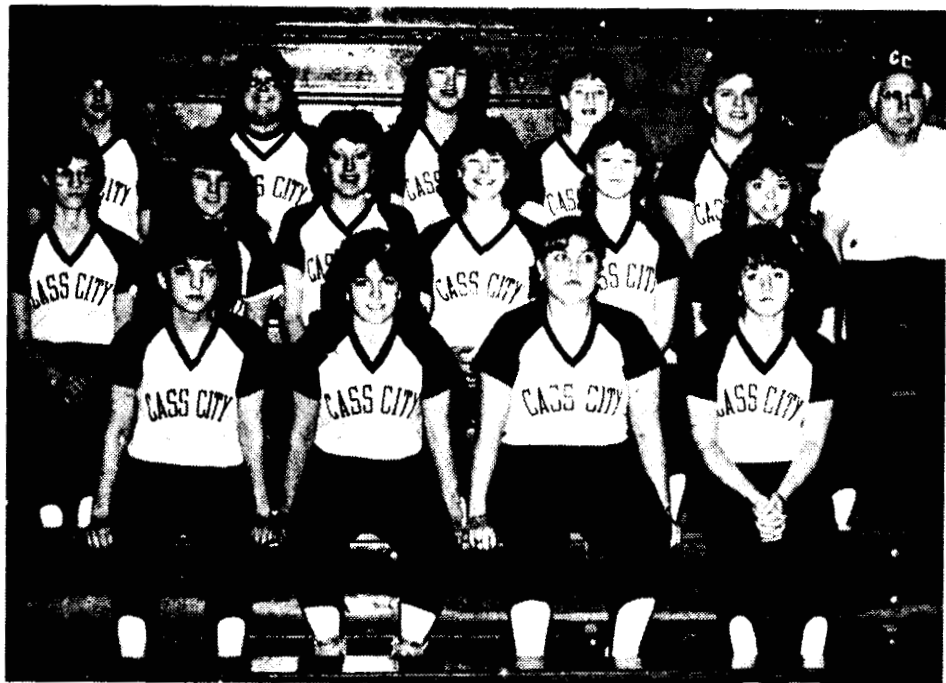

Many of the favorites from last year are back, including the strong pitching arms of Dave Miller, Dennis Ziemba and Kevin Parrish. When not on the mound, the pitching squad makes up half of the infield. Miller is on first, Ziemba plays short, and Parrish will be found behind the plate making a pocket. This will be the last season Schelke has to work with this staff.

The other three strong defensive men are also seniors. Rob Nicholas, all conference last year, will take his spot in center field. Rich Witherspoon and Linn Paladi, both letter winners, will be seen in the infield as well as the outfield.

The Hawks lost 3 valuable players last year including: catcher Mike Stevenson, third baseman Chip Creason and shortstop Keith Czekai.

Schelke has 13 returning seniors, 5 juniors and 3 sophomores that he picked up from JV.

Schelke and his team start the season at home with a 4:00 game against Akron-Fairgrove April 13.

With the loss of its star pitcher, the Cass City High School softball team may be struggling on the mound for the first few games.

Fifth year coach Jim Fox thinks it will be only a matter of time before one of the half-dozen girls on the pitching squad will take off and lead the team to another District championship.

Yvette Hurd, who pitched 114 out of 126 innings last year, will be hard to replace, but Fox is feeling better each passing day as he watches his girls improve their speed and control.

One of the brighter prospects is Hurd's sister Tammy, who pitched for 2 years on the junior varsity. "She has excellent control and I know I can really rely on Tammy," Fox said. "She's the most experienced pitcher."

Some converted pitchers are shortstop Kelly Deering and first baseman Shannon McIntosh.

Outfielder Brenda Severance is also trying her arm on the mound.

"Pitching is so important and takes awhile to develop. I'm reluctant to go too far out on a limb as to how far we will go," said Fox. "We will probably start a little slow, but if the pitching takes shape...look out!"

Fox said he'll use some of the strategy of Sparky Anderson, manager of the Tigers. "I have a half-dozen girls pitching and I'll try them all. Probably they'll pitch 3 innings apiece so they can get the experience of pitching in a real game."

No matter how inexperienced the pitching squad may be they are surrounded at every turn by veterans. Fox said that the defense is strong and the girls have no trouble making their bats connect with the ball.

Deering is the slugger for the team having an average of .400 last year. She was chosen for the second team All Conference along with outfielders Severance and Terri Summers. Both Severance and Summers are the strong arms of the outfield and, when they come in, they show their strength with the bat.

With the moving around of pitchers, the defense is going to have to fill the gaps. Teri Wilson, third baseman, may have to move over a few feet to play shortstop when Deering takes the mound. But, Fox isn't worried about the switch. He said Wilson has a very good glove and arm. Her talent extends to the plate where she handles the bat well and has the speed to get around the bases.

"This is a very talented and deep Cass City team, the best in many respects I've had here," he added.

Fox said that the teams to contend with this year are North Branch and Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port. He predicted that the Hawks will take third behind the Lakers, but that could all change if the pitching shapes up.

Fox is setting his eye on April 23 for the real test of his new pitching squad. The Hawks will be taking on the Lakers at home at 4 p.m. "The Lakers are one of the solidier teams," said Fox. "It kind of behooves us to clear up the pitching before we play them."

The season opens at home with a 4 p.m. game against Akron-Fairgrove, April 13.

Coach feels JV team is a really good one

With 21 girls at their disposal, the junior varsity coaches are looking forward to a successful year.

"We have a really good team," said Coach Julie Bitzer. "We have a lot of girls to work with and a lot of talent." Jerry Cleland is also coaching the team.

"There is a lot of talent and the girls have a good attitude," added Bitzer.

Bitzer said the teams to beat would be the Lakers and Unionville-Sebewaing

Estimate descrambler cost at $10 to $15 per month

Currently, Thumb Electric is investigating a number of unknown areas, including finding out how many of its customers own or rent satellite dishes, Krause said.

And while he indicated the $10 to $15 cost estimate given by Phillips for the descrambling service will probably apply to area dish owners, the cost of a descrambling device is less certain. "One problem," Krause explained, "is that there appears to be only one manufacturer of descrambling devices."

OTHER PLANS

Although future improvements to area satellite reception are somewhat uncertain, Krause pointed out that a major move by Thumb Electric, a forerunner among rural electric co-ops in the state in terms of innovation, will take place this summer.

Krause said that the co-op, which celebrated its 50th anniversary last week, will switch from data communication via telephone lines to data communication via satellite.

He explained that the local co-op is a member of the Central Area Data Processing Cooperative in St. Louis, Mo., which processes items such as billing, accounting and payroll for 105 local co-ops across the nation.

"It will enable us to communicate a lot faster and disseminate information quicker," he remarked, adding that the service is similar to the telecommunications program being proposed by the NRTC. Krause noted that the switch means the local co-ops will enter into an agreement in which costs will remain "frozen" for a 7-year period. The monthly cost could be slightly less than the combined $60,000 now being paid by the 105 co-ops for telephone links, Krause said.

Hawk track squads gear up for opener

Hard times ahead for inexperienced girls' team

With only 2 seniors returning from a team that finished 3-4 in the Thumb B Association and 3-5 overall, coach Larry Robinson sees hard times ahead for the Cass City Red Hawk girls' track team.

Adding to the woes of a squad with inexperienced candidates has been the weather that has been keeping the squad from needed outdoor practice. There doesn't appear to be a potential first place winner on the squad this season. Robinson will have to build his team around 6 letter winners and a freshman.

Captain Jeanie Sweeney, a senior and winner of 3 letters, is expected to anchor the sprints. Three juniors have earned 2 letters each. Lisa Nicholas is a hurdler, Krista Nurnberger is looked to in the relays and Katy Scollon is expected to earn points in the distance events.

Sophomores who earned letters as freshmen are Laura Stine in the middle distances and Cindy Powell in the high jump. Showing promise in early season workouts has been Sue Papp, freshman, in the hurdles and high jump.

The Hawks' chances this spring were diminished when 5 girls that the coach was counting on decided not to come out for the team. Add to that the loss by graduation of 2 top performers and it's easy to see why Robinson is predicting a tough time for the Hawks. Gone are Joann Steely, a sprinter who qualified for the state last season, and Chris Tuckey, the team's top distance runner in 1986.

The squad lists 7 freshmen and 6 sophomores, and has just 4 juniors to join the 2 seniors on the squad.

Robinson predicts that Vassar will be the team to beat in the Thumb B this season. Following the Vulcans, he lists Caro, Lakers, Imlay City, North Branch, Bad Axe, Marlette and Cass City. If the coach's pre-season prediction proves accurate, it will be the second dismal finish in a row for the team.

Weather permitting, the Hawks will open the season April 13 at Mayville, with the first league action April 16, when Cass City entertains Caro.

Boys', girls' schedule

40-member boys' squad to be led by 4 veterans

If quantity were the determining factor, new coach Don Markel would have a world beater with the Cass City Red Hawks boys' track team. A total of 40, count 'em, 40 boys, are out for the team this spring.

Unfortunately, mere numbers don't tell the tale. Cass City lost a couple of top performers by graduation this year and last year's team was only good enough to post a 3-4 Thumb B Association mark and a 4-4 record overall.

While Markel is in his first year as head coach, most of his charges will not be new to him. He served as an assistant in 1983, '84 and '85.

The Hawks will be without a couple of top performers due to graduation. Randy Teichman, the league's top performer in the pole vault and a point producer in the middle distances and relays, and Greg Erla, a sprinter and sprint relay performer, will be missed.

Four returning veterans will be counted on this spring. Three are seniors. Steve Ross will run the hurdles and mile relay, Mike Kelley will see action in the middle distances, and Jeff Lefler will earn points in the sprints and sprint relays. The fourth vet is Jeremy Brown, a junior, who will be counted on in the 440 and mile relay.

Markel says that the key to the season will be developing strength in the field events. The team's strength will be in the sprints, middle distance and middle distance relays.

Markel predicts that Marlette will unseat last year's Thumb B champions, Vassar. He places

Vassar second and the remaining teams in the league in the following order: North Branch, Caro, Cass City, Bad Axe, Lakers, Imlay City.

The season opens April 13 at Mayville, with the first league meet April 16 with Caro at home.

There is a nice balance of classes in the 40-man squad. It includes 10 freshmen, 7 sophomores, 11 juniors and 12 seniors.

Team pictures will be in April 15 issue tion" and no tax increase is planned in the near future, he observed, area retailers, industries and especially farmers are in for some tough times.

"Despite the obvious success of Walbro, it's not easy," Davis commented. "You have to make products a lot cheaper these days so you can sell them cheaper."

Davis disputed rumors that General Cable Company, where he is employed as general manager, will be closing down in the near future. "If General Cable is going to close its doors, please let me know," he joked.

Davis lauded the Village Planning Commission for its work over the past year on a "word by word" review of the village Zoning Ordinance, which is expected to be adopted this summer.

Despite an overall financial crunch—the village has lost $46,000 (2 mills) in federal revenue sharing money over the past 2 years—Davis indicated survival of businesses and local government alike will depend on their ability to make adjustments.

"We're going to follow as closely as we can," he added. "We're going to lead if we can."

BOONE by T. Boone Pickens Jr. (nonfiction). Pickens is the independent Texas oil producer and financier who not long ago engineered, in his words, "the largest corporate merger of all time" - the Gulf Oil "deal" that increased Gulf stock prices to the immense profit of shareholders (including Pickens) while obliterating the giant corporation itself. This memoir gives an inside look at the workings of the oil industry as Pickens progresses from a hardscrabble, Texas Panhandle existence to small-scale oil well wild-cattling with financing hard to come by; regional and national success with his Mesa Petroleum Co.; risky North Sea exploration during the OPEC oil "shortage"; limited acceptance by industrial-establishment executives at hunting-lodge conclaves; the Gulf set-to and other, less spectacular deals.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Dear Bill:
I'm going to have about $5,000 to put in a fund for our 2-year-old's college. Enclosed is a prospectus on a mutual fund. What do you think of it? Any other ideas?

Dear Al:
I'm always flattered when anyone asks for my opinion, and especially a fellow in the investment business.

I'll offer suggestions and comments quickly before you withdraw the request.

Regarding mutual funds, particularly the load funds, I don't like them for cases like this. First, for amounts under $15,000, for $10,000 you get $9150 in assets, and that's 9.29% as a charge on the amount you will have invested, although funds have the cute approach of saying it's only 8.5% on the asking price of $10,000.

American Mutual, which you sent me a brochure of, does have a fine record, and their 50-50 split between fixed income and equity is quite a concession to the go-go boys. Somehow these past records have a way of not repeating, although surely it's a plus to look for on the way in—what they've done in the past.

Putting money in stocks now is being done at a time when the Dow averages are yielding 3%, when the S & P 500 is at a 19 P/E ratio, and the market-to-book ratio is 300%. All have spelled trouble in the past.

All well and good, you say, but what's the alternative for Tiny Tim and his college costs say 16 years from now?

For $5,200 you can get $20M of CATS, maturing 8-1-03, based on a yield of 8.4. This would keep it under any tax liability for your son.

In one swoop you have acquired securities safe as Gibraltar, you have eliminated re-investment prob-

Miracle grass

Imagine a lawn that repels weeds, resists disease, dislikes fertilizer, stays green late in the season and—best of all—barely grows! According to International Wildlife magazine, a Canadian geneticist says he has produced 35 lines of such a miracle grass from 17 alpine species. The Canadian government is already using the slow-growing grasses along highways, but it will be another 4 years or so before they're available commercially.

lems, and you also have something completely liquid—all this with a darned good yield—a real yield based on 1986 inflation of 1.6% of 7.1%—double the ordinary average real yield of the past century.

BILL

My friend Gerrit Baker of Boca Raton, Fla., is a great example of an investor who believes in Liquidity with a capital L. Each month he gets a re-po agreement from his bank for a fat amount of cash he gives them for 30 days. The bank pays him the going short rate, buys it back at the end of a month, at which Gerrit rolls it over again.

The other day he sent me a receipt going back to Jan. 29, 1981. Would you believe the rate: 17 1/2%?

Today the same deal, same bank, is 5 1/2%.

It kept him without risk of the country going to pot during those years. He was always going to have plenty of cash, and on average he wouldn't have to wait for more than 2 weeks. Even Bolivia couldn't go broke that fast.

If there had been a great depression, my friend would have been in a position to pick up bargains in the basement when the stock market hit bottom.

My father was one of those, back in the 30's, who kept some cash around.

When everybody else was broke, he picked up a weekly newspaper, building and all for $10,000. He got me to run it for $15 a week. I slept in the attic, and bought a meal ticket for $5 at Wagar's Restaurant, which last me six days.

(Aunt Jane fed me on Sundays.) He got 4 other fellows and with $50,000 they revived the Standish, Mich., State Bank which had closed. A few years ago the bank brought nearly 5 million on the sell-out.

Cash was a powerful thing in those days, and may well be again. In this last period, though, 1981 to the present, cash has been an expensive thing to own as rates have kept going down. In hindsight, some 20-year government bonds, 15.75%, bought in 1981 at 100, are now worth 171. And they'll keep bringing in 15.75% until 2001.

Ah, hindsight!

Bill Myers is a retired editor and investment counselor.

SENIORS RICK Guilds, Deb Blue and Kim Wing have been playing their instruments for 8 years and plan to continue with their music when they enter college next fall.

State solo and ensemble festival

3 students come home with medals and pride

Three Cass City High School seniors competed in the State Solo and Ensemble Festival the last weekend in March and 2 came home with medals.

Deb Blue and Kim Wing, both 17, did a flute duet that gave them a rating of one. According to Blue, the musicians are rated 1 to 5 by judges. The numbers are equivalent to grades; for example, one is an A.

This is the second year that Blue and Wing were given a one for their musical duet.

For saxophonist Rick Guilds, 18, it was his first state festival and he received a 3 for his effort. "I really didn't know what to expect," Guilds stated. "I thought I did alright."

Blue and Wing played a piece they selected, while Guilds had to play a selected piece as well as sight read and play scales.

All 3 musicians started playing in the fifth grade and have no plans to stop.

Guilds said he would like to be in a band and Blue hopes to be part of an orchestra. Both said, however, that it would only be for recreation, for they have more important things to pursue.

In the fall, Blue will be attending Michigan Tech University in Houghton. There she wants to get a degree in either genetic engineering or microbiology. Guilds plans to go to Central Michigan University and major in business. Wing said she will be going to Howard's Beauty Academy in Caro for cosmetology and then plans to go to CMU for business after she is certified.

Guilds and Wing said their knowledge of their instruments and their talent are continuing to expand each year, but Blue said that she has been at a standstill since junior year when all the competition graduated. "I'd like to find a private tutor so I can work more. Hopefully, I can find one when I go to college," she said.

Guilds praised substitute band teacher, David Daggett, who also plays the saxophone, for helping him in the past year. "Mr. Daggett is really good, especially in the saxophone," Guilds added.

All 3 musicians want to expand their skills to other instruments. Guilds would like to learn how to play the piano, while Blue would like to try her skills on the saxophone and piccolo. Wing said she also plays the piano but would like to try her hand at other instruments.

"I'll really miss this band," Guilds said, looking back over the years. "We've been part of it since the fifth grade."

First quarter

Walbro reporting record sales, profit

Walbro Corporation President and Chief Executive Officer L.E. Althaver announced today, based on preliminary estimates, that the first quarter of 1987 will reach all-time highs in both sales and income for a single quarter, surpassing previous records by substantial margins.

The company estimates that first quarter sales will exceed $32,000,000, up 21 percent from $26,488,000 for the first quarter of 1986. The previous high for a single quarter was $27,179,000 for the fourth quarter of 1986.

The company estimates that income for the first quarter of 1987 will exceed first quarter 1986 income, which was $1,953,000 or $.66 per share, by at least 40 percent. The first quarter of 1986 had been the previous income record for a single quarter.

In announcing the first quarter estimates, Althaver said the record sales and income "were attributable to strong demand across the board for the company's fuel systems products, especially automotive electronic fuel injection (EFI) components and carburetors for lawn and garden applications."

Althaver cautioned, however, that it is unlikely that the company will sustain the same record pace of sales and income throughout 1987, due to an expected reduction in throttle body sales.

"It now appears likely that the company's throttle body business with General Motors Corporation will peak in the first 6 months of 1987, continue at reduced levels from July 1987 to July 1988 and stop for the period from July 1988 to July 1989," Althaver said.

"Continuation of the company's throttle body business with GM in subsequent model years is dependent upon approval of Walbro's innovative design for a new generation of throttle body which is currently under evaluation by GM. We believe that the new Walbro throttle body with integral mass airflow sensor offers significant benefits compared with competitive products," Althaver said.

Althaver also expressed confidence that in the interim overall sales of the company will remain level because the GM throttle body business will be offset by increased sales of the company's other fuel systems products, in particular its rapidly expanding line of components for automotive EFI systems, and by the continuing expansion of the company's float-feed carburetor business in the lawn and garden industry.

Novesta board may donate to Elkland Fire Department

Consideration of a donation to the Elkland Township Fire Department, garbage disposal and hiring of a township hall caretaker dominated business at a regular Novesta Township Board meeting Monday night.

Township Clerk Nurse L. Kloc stated that the board indicated it will check into the legality of making a donation to the fire department before taking any action.

Kloc explained that the board is uncertain about whether it's legal to use township funds for such donations.

The board was asked during the township's annual meeting last month to consider contributing to the fire department, which is conducting a fund raiser to purchase beepers for the volunteer fire crew.

In other business during the hour-long monthly meeting, the board decided to have one trash pick-up this month (April 11), followed by pick-ups on the second and fourth Saturdays of each month beginning in May. That schedule will continue through the fall, Kloc said.

In a related matter, the board decided to place a trash dumpster at the township cemetery. Kloc, who noted that trash barrels at the cemetery have proven inadequate, added that she isn't sure yet what the cost of renting the dumpster will be.

Also Monday, the board hired Albert Griffin at $4 per hour to be the township hall caretaker. He replaces Dorothy Phillips, who resigned from the position late last year.
