PLUS 2 SUPPLEMENTS

NARROWLY ESCAPING serious injury through the prompt work of Jeff Kosal, left, was Mary Thomas. She was caught when ground around an old septic tank caved in. She required treatment after climbing out on a ladder furnished by her husband, Arthur Thomas.

Thomases laud action by Jeff Kosal in cave-in

When 13-year-old Cass City resident Jeff Kosal woke up Saturday morning, he never dreamed he'd be a hero of sorts that day.

But that's exactly what happened. And the Cass City Intermediate School 8th grader's quick thinking is being credited with the prompt rescue of an elderly woman who fell into an old well near her Cass City home.

Jeff was riding his bike near the Arthur Thomas residence, 4454 Woodland Ave., Saturday at about 10:45 a.m. when he became involved in the incident.

"I heard somebody calling, 'help,' and I turned around to see where it was coming from," Jeff recalled, adding he discovered that a woman, Mary E. Thomas, 67, had fallen into a deep hole.

"I told her everything was alright," Jeff, a member of Cass City Boy Scout Troop 594, continued. He explained that he went immediately to Thomas' nearby home and located her husband, Arthur, who then ran outside. Jeff called the Cass City Police Department while Thomas grabbed a ladder to rescue his wife.

"It's incredible," Arthur, 77, commented. "He was calm and he was alert. He did everything you told him to do—he thought quick."

"It happened so suddenly that I wouldn't have realized there was trouble," he continued. "She was out there totally alone, and I was in the house on the phone when the boy came in."

Thomas stated that his wife, who fell when a portion of earth surrounding the hole gave way, sustained no broken bones, but was bruised in the fall. She was examined at Hills and Dales General Hospital and is now resting at home, he said.

Thomas had already been rescued from the nearly 7-foot deep hole when Cass City Police Officer William C. Hartzell arrived on the scene.

According to Hartzell's report, the hole, located in a driveway adjacent to the Thomas residence, was at one time covered with planks and dirt.

Hartzell noted that village Department of Public Works employees placed a barricade around the hole to prevent another mishap.

According to Mrs. Thomas, who was picking up brush around her home when the accident occurred, Saturday's events won't soon be forgotten. "Talk about a shocker, I thought I was buried alive," she remarked.

Mr. Thomas agreed, adding that Jeff, the son of Michael and Barbara Kosal, 6764 Main St., saved the day. "It was just one of those things you couldn't imagine," he said. "(Jeff's) a wonderful child, I'll tell you. I just can't thank him enough."

O-G board okays big 9.5 mill tax boost request

After nearly 2 hours of discussion behind closed doors Monday night, the Owen-Gage Board of Education approved a motion to ask for an additional 9.5 mills at the district's annual school election June 8.

If approved, the hike will increase the district's total operational millage to 41 mills, including proposed renewal of a special 6-mill request approved by voters last fall after 2 unsuccessful elections.

The proposed millage rate is based on a state equalized valuation of $35.27 million. The district currently levies 31.5 operational mills based on an SEV of $44.7 million.

School Supt. Harley Kirby, citing an overall SEV decrease of 22 percent, of more than $9 million from 1986-87 to 1987-88, said the total proposed operational millage is expected to raise a little more than $1.44 million.

Kirby blamed the proposed millage hike on plummeting agricultural land values. The total SEV drop in agricultural land actually is nearly $10 million, he said, adding that a slight increase in the value of residential property lessened the impact of sagging agricultural land values.

The superintendent indicated that the board will schedule public information meetings next month to discuss the proposed millage request.

In other business during the 4-hour monthly meeting, nearly 3 hours of which was spent in executive session, the board approved 1987-88 contracts for elementary Principal William Britt, high school Principal Robert Andrews and Kirby.

Each of the motions stated that the administrators' salaries will be determined at a later date.

With the exception of An-draws' contract, the roll-call votes were unanimous. Andrews' contract was approved on a 6-1 vote, with board member Jack Brinkman casting the lone "no" vote.

TENURE, PROBATION

Three teachers were granted tenure, while 2 others received a second year of probation from the board following a 50-minute closed session.

Approved for tenure were special education teacher LeeAnn Ankam, band and English instructor Royce Ehrle, and counselor Ronald D'Aoust.

Special education teacher Sharon Krzyzaniak and English teacher Lisa Ehrle were approved for a second year of probation.

Also Monday, the board hired veteran coach Arnie Besonen to take over as coach for the high school boys' and girls' track squads.

Besonon, who has 16 years of coaching experience, was hired to replace long-time track mentor Richard Glidden, who resigned last week.

Turning to Kirby's report, the superintendent told the board that rent hasn't been received for a school district-owned house in Gagetown since September.

Kirby, who said he doesn't know who's renting the house, added that 2 letters have been sent, but there have been no responses.

The board indicated it will contact the renters concerning rent payments.

The board also heard monthly reports from Andrews and Britt, who noted that 29 students were enrolled during kindergarten round-up. Britt said the enrollment is up slightly from last year.

Negotiations stalled

Provincial employees protest wage levels

Union employees at Provincial House in Cass City are among more than 1,500 workers at 20 Michigan nursing homes run by Beverly Enterprises who say they're "disappointed" with the company regarding 5-month-old contract talks.

Workers at the local nursing home voiced their concerns Sunday by distributing an "open letter" to families of nursing home residents.

The employees, represented by the Service Employees' International Union, Local 79, state in the letter that they "hope and expect to resolve these negotiations quickly and without disruption to patient care."

But the 2 sides, who were scheduled to wrap up a 3-day bargaining session today (April 15) in Lansing, appeared far from reaching an agreement on Monday, and the union has vowed "to do whatever is necessary to see that their demands are met."

Some 70 union workers at Provincial House have been working under month-to-month extensions of a 2-year contract which expired Feb. 28.

MAJOR ISSUES

The union has aired 3 major issues related to negotiations—wages, staffing and insurance. To date, union officials say, the only issue addressed by Beverly Enterprises has been wages; the company's proposals are being described as "meager."

The average wage in Beverly Enterprises nursing homes is $4.20 per hour, according to Provincial House union representative Sally Carb, who has worked at the facility for 1 1/2 years.

"Come September, I'll be here 2 years, and I'm only making $4 an hour," Carb remarked. "Would you stay for that?" She added that one of her co-workers recently began making $5 an hour after 12 years of service to the company.

Carb pointed out that Beverly Enterprises, the largest nursing home company in the United States, offered a pay increase last month of 2 cents an hour.

The union, citing a total of $45 million in profits last year for Beverly Enterprises nationwide, is asking for a raise of 50 cents per hour per year of the proposed 2-year contract.

On insurance, union officials say recent changes made by the company have made existing insurance coverage inadequate and unaffordable.

The company increased premiums by 27 percent over the past year, according to union second vice-president Willy Hampton. The company also raised the deductible from $100 to $250 for individuals and from $300 to $500 for families, he said.

Hampton noted that the union is asking for coverage for part-time members, a higher company contribution toward premiums and a health maintenance organization as an alternative to existing insurance.

STAFFING

Union officials also contend that current staffing methods are inadequate. Staffing, they say, has been cut to state minimums and periodically has dipped below minimal levels.

The "minimum" in Michigan is 2.25 hours per patient per day. But union and Beverly Enterprises spokesmen disagree on whether Provincial House and other nursing homes are maintaining proper staff levels.

Carb cited an example of Please turn to page 14.

Petition for referendum for new social services building fails

All systems are go for the new Department of Social Services building after a petition drive to force a county-wide vote, thought to be successful, failed when not enough signatures were verified.

Tuscola County Clerk Elsie Hicks said that the Committee to Stop Waste of Tax Dollars was 733 signatures short of the 3,212 required to force the vote. Hicks spent last week verifying the petition signatures.

A total of 1,315 signatures were thrown out because the residents who signed the petitions were not registered in their township.

Paul Lefler, administrator of the County Building Codes office, said that the building is proceeding as planned, but the petition drive set the plans back 2 months.

"We could probably start as early as the first part of June," said Lefler. "But we have no definite timetable yet."

Lefler said in about 2 weeks the office will place an advertisement calling for bids to construct the building. "It will take 3 to 4 weeks for bids to come in and until we award contracts," he said.

Before the petition drive started, Lefler said they were shooting for the beginning of October for the completion of the building, but "we have to readjust those dates," he added.

The controversy started when DSS officials came up with a plan to build the $1.2 million facility by financing it with bonds. According to Tom Dillon, administrative assistant for the Tuscola County Department of Social Services, the bonds would be paid off through monthly rent payments from the state for the next 15 years. After the contract is paid off, the state has a 5-year option to rent.

The DSS lease expires July 31 and Dillon doesn't know if the DSS will extend the lease until the new building is complete. "That is up to the State Department of Management and Budget," said Dillon. He added that he was pleased that the the facility construction is continuing as planned.

Edward Liebler, chairman for the committee and owner of the building the DSS is presently renting, filed papers in February with Hicks, because he felt Please turn to page 14.

What beige shoes?

by Melva E. Guinther

Forgetfulness is not necessarily the result of aging. It's just that the longer we live, the more stuff there is to forget.

Surely everyone knows the frustration of being unable to recall a name, title or word when you need it, and the harder you try, the more elusive the subject becomes.

Even more annoying is not being able to find things.

It's not the missing socks that bother me. I know where they go. They lurk amid the dust balls behind the washer and hide in the corners of the extra fitted sheet for the guest room and in the sleeves of garments that have been stored for the season.

But what becomes of the 8th Pepsi bottle when you get ready to return the empties?

Who keeps moving my glasses?

Where is the purse that matched my beige shoes last summer? And the earrings, the iridescent green ones and the little gold hearts, what happened to them?

Somewhere within the confines of our house is a bag containing 8 spools of ribbon bought on sale during one of my "crafty" spells last year. I'm feigning nonchalance about its whereabouts, but I will NOT buy another spool of ribbon while I know those 8 exist.

*"If It Fitz..."Amazing intellect

By Jim Fitzgerald

Recently I discovered something about myself that I'm not proud of: When I'm home alone, I never watch "Wheel of Fortune" or "Jeopardy" on TV.

When my wife is home, or any other human being is within earshot, I never miss these shows. I delight in being the first to yell out correct answers. On the rare occasions when my wife beats me, there is even a perverse pleasure in accusing her of seeing the show earlier on a Canadian channel, otherwise how could she possibly know something her incredibly smart husband didn't know.

But my wife left me for 3 days this week. She visited one of our daughters for whom she was very lonely because they hadn't seen each other in 10 or 15 minutes. There is something about the relationship between my wife and our daughters that warrants unbiased comment from an astute student of anthropology who is me.

One example says it all: On a recent morning I was halfway out the door, headed for work, when my wife demanded, in an urgent tone, that I wait a minute. She was on the phone and asked the person on the other end of the line to hold on a minute. She had to finish writing a thank-you note that I had to rush to the post office so the recipient would get it the next day.

The thank-you note was to our daughter Ferd, thanking her for a thank-you note she'd sent her mother. And the person waiting on the phone while the note was being written was that same daughter Ferd.

I swear I don't make this stuff up, folks. And I would be fascinated to hear from any other student of anthropology who can top this astonishing example of excessive communication between 2 otherwise fairly normal people.

Anyway, while my wife was out of town, I had not the slightest desire to watch "Wheel of Fortune" and "Jeopardy." This was the case even though I'd just seen Vanna White in Playboy magazine and there was the possibility she hadn't gotten dressed yet.

Instead of turning on TV, I read the newspaper, and when I read someone paid $39.85 million for a Van Gogh painting of several sunflowers, I felt a little better about myself. I realized I never watched quiz shows alone because I couldn't strut my superior intellect before a live audience, especially my wife. I was a bozo braggart, certainly not an admirable personality trait. But at least I wouldn't pay $39.85 million for a picture of sunflowers just to show off how incredibly wealthy I was.

After all, a person could buy or pick a fresh bouquet of sunflowers every day forever and not spend $39.85 million. And certainly the real thing is better than a picture of it. A real sunflower smells like a bright summer morning; a painting smells like paint. There could be no reason other than braggadocio for paying $39.85 million for a painting of several sunflowers. Maybe $19.43 million, but not $39.85 million.

That's what I thought. But further reading revealed that whoever paid $39.85 million for the painting didn't want to be identified. The buyer didn't even want the public to know in which nation he or she lived. Furthermore, because of high insurance costs and security problems, there is a chance the painting will never be publicly displayed.

So the parallel between my not watching TV quiz shows alone and someone paying $39.85 million for a painting was considerably diminished. I am back to not feeling proud of myself for wanting to make my wife feel inferior by showing off my amazing intellect.

At least there is this: Whenever I answer a TV question correctly, and suggest that my wife phone the University of Michigan marching band to come help me celebrate my smartness, she asks: "How much money will you get for your correct answer?"

Now I have a proper retort for her: Superiority is its own reward. How much of that $39.85 million does she think Van Gogh got?

Academic Track Invitational

Pupils place in 4 events

Cass City Intermediate students posted one first place and 3 second-place finishes in an Academic Track Invitational held Thursday night at the Temple Theatre in Saginaw.

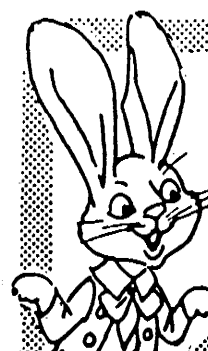

The competition featured some 500 pupils from 19 schools in the Saginaw and Thumb area, including 15 students from Cass City.

Four Cass City 7th graders combined talents to place first in the boys' quartet category. Members of the group are Garen Barker, Jeff Hockey, Brad Gray and Kent Winter.

Finishing second were 8th grader Chris Fruendt in the ancient history category,

8th grader Amiee Cooper in dramatic reading, and 8th graders Mindy Fulcher, Janet Kubacki and Jennifer McNaughton in the girls' trio.

Jim Baker Jr. works for a company in Holly which is a vendor to Chrysler Corp., among others. We quizzed him about his job there as an electrical engineer.

He supervises installation. He'll be spending up to a year with the Chrysler project. Why so long?

The company is installing a machine that makes engine blocks from scratch. It's 500 feet long.

It's hard for me to visualize that. Almost as hard as it is to comprehend the cost that Jim says is upwards of 2 billion (yes, billion) dollars.

Only in a small town. George Ridge was touring the Orient and sent postcards from Peking and Bangkok. So? So they were addressed to "Willie and Carl" in care of Sommers' Bakery and without a hitch were delivered to Willie LeBlanc and Carl Weippert, who breakfast there with George frequently.

Mary Proudfoot, who lives in the apartments on Woodland Street in Cass City, says that she has solved the mystery of the disappearing food from her back yard feeder.

She had been feeding birds for about 2 years about 10 feet from her glass doors. The food thief was a large deer that crossed the lawn at dusk and was seen by Mary and Leta Gelatt.

Other animals in the back yard include a woodchuck and a rabbit and a few cats. Birds reported by Ms. Proudfoot include blue jays, mourning doves, robins, sparrows, swallows, chickadees, juncos, red cardinals, yellow finches, blackbirds and starlings.

Reading the daily newspapers provides grist for many a column. Last week an item buried in the inside pages of one of them said that the majority of doctors aren't advising patients to quit smoking.

According to a survey published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, the article said, even patients with symptoms that make smoking especially risky—those with hypertension, obesity, diabetes, or who use birth control pills—were no more likely to be advised to quit cigarettes than people without those risks.

As I read, this seemed strange, but not nearly as bizarre as the cure that one of the authors suggested. The article quotes the doctors who were authors of the study as recommending that insurance companies pay for the time doctors spend counseling smokers. Physicians are not being appropriately reimbursed for health promotion activities, said Dr. Dean G. Sienko.

If the good doctor could sell that, it would open a whole new revenue producing avenue for not only the medical profession, but for business as well. Stores selling yard goods could get paid for teaching how to sew. Golf course owners could conduct clinics on course etiquette. Newspapers could collect for teaching how to read, TV how to act and radio how to talk. What it's all about, says Dr. Sienko, is providing an incentive (which is not present in the health care system) which could lead physicians to spend more time with patients on this matter.

A good many of the doctors could then counsel their patients secure in the knowledge that as smokers they know all the hazards. Don't do as I do, do as I tell you.

I suppose if there were a few bucks in it, a program could be devised that would require numerous sessions and hours of time. Anything is possible. But for the life of me I can't see what prevents doctors from doing it all in a brief conversation, with a few statistics on what smoking can do to your health.

When you get down to it, all the doctor can do in conversation is tell his patients what they already know. Maybe it will sink home when it comes from an authoritative figure like a doctor, but I wouldn't bet on it.

Despite clinics run by laymen, hypnosis and other group therapy measures, long term success is limited without the one ingredient that is really necessary.

That's to really decide to quit smoking, period. You can use any of the recognized aids to quitting then and perhaps ease the pain a little. But if you don't really decide that you have smoked your last cigarette, forget it.

You don't have to pay a doctor to tell you that. Tell them you read it here for free.

Sheriff's department

Few mishaps reported locally

It was a quiet week at the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, with only one incident involving area residents.

On April 8, at 11 p.m., Douglas DuFord of Cass City and his wife Dorothy were driving north on Cemetery Road between Frank's Service Station and the grain elevator when they heard "a blast from some sort of weapon coming from the west," stated DuFord in a report. After the blast, the driver's side window broke apart and DuFord continued to drive to the Village Police Station.

Neither DuFord nor his wife saw anyone, and when deputies went to the scene where the incident happened, all they found was glass debris.

There are no suspects and the case remains open.

day morning after he was the victim of a hit-and-run incident in Novesta Township, according to a Tuscola County Sheriff's Department report.

Charles L. Sparks, 3161 Janes St., refused treatment after he was broadsided by a vehicle which caused him to drive into a ditch at the intersection of Reinbold Road and Van Buren Road.

The report stated a witness, who was ahead of Sparks' car, watched the accident in his mirror and saw a green pickup without headlights traveling south on Van Buren.

According to a report, the unknown vehicle was eastbound on Reinbold Road and Sparks was going south on Van Buren when the unknown driver ran through the stop sign and broadsided him.

STATE POLICE

There were 3 car/deer mishaps covered by state troopers this week, 2 of which involved Cass City residents.

ACCIDENTS REPORTED BY POLICE DEPARTMENTS

A 21-year-old Saginaw man was injured early Sun-

Donald E. Willis, 49, 6789 East Main St., Cass City, was uninjured when his westbound car struck a deer on West Cass City Road April 8 at 7:10 a.m.

The deer was northbound when it ran into the side of Willis' car, doing a fair amount of damage. After the incident the deer left the scene.

In another incident, Gregory S. Erla, 18, 4581 West St., Cass City, was driving east on M-81 when he struck a deer April 6.

Erla reported no injuries and only a small amount of damage was done to his car.

In the third car/deer mishap, a 32-year-old Decker woman was traveling south on Cemetery Road, near Elmwood Road, when she struck a deer, Friday night.

Cynthia J. Nicol, 6447 Downing Rd., suffered no injuries and minimal damage was done to her car.

Caro man arraigned in malicious destruction case

It was a slow week for Tuscola County Courthouse, with only one felony arraignment in district court and a sentencing in circuit court Monday.

Larry E. Bloomfield Jr., 21, 2397 East Deckerville Rd., Caro, was arraigned in district court on the charge of malicious destruction of a building over $100.

According to a court report, Bloomfield allegedly "willfully and maliciously destroyed a building on 122 Gardner Street in Caro...belonging to John Kastraba...resulting in the damage, the value of which was in excess of $100."

Bloomfield faces a maximum penalty of 4 years and/or $2,000 in fines. His preliminary exam is set for April 17 at 9 a.m.

In circuit court, a 39-year-old Mt. Morris man was sentenced to a year in the county jail. The court suspended the sentencing for 6 months.

James Rozsa, 371 Main St., entered a plea of guilty at his preliminary exam March 23, for attempted criminal sexual conduct (CSC) in the second degree. Another count of CSC in the second degree was dropped.

The sentence stemmed from a November, 1984, incident when Rozsa "did attempt to commit CSC in the second degree...but failed in the perpetration or was prevented in the execution," according to a court record.

Along with the year in jail, Rozsa was sentenced to 5 years probation and fines and costs of $800.

No injuries in Saturday crash involving 16-year-old youths

No injuries were reported in a 2-car mishap involving youths from Cass City and Sebawaing on Main Street at Seeger Street Saturday morning.

According to the Cass City Police Department, a vehicle driven by a 16-year-old Sebawaing youth was eastbound on Main Street when it collided with a westbound vehicle driven by a Cass City youth, also

16. The report stated that the eastbound vehicle was making a turn north onto Seeger Street when the accident occurred. There was a green light for east/west traffic, but the driver of the eastbound vehicle "did not see that he did not have enough time to safely make his turn."

No citation was issued.

Also reported during the past week was a minor property damage accident involving 2 parked vehicles.

Linda J. Gedert, 4580 Hill St., reported that her car was damaged when a pickup truck rolled from a parking place into her vehicle at about 1 p.m. April 8. The truck is registered to Dale M. Sorenson.

Pupil gets full scholarship

A Sandusky High School student is among 5 pupils whose academic performance has been awarded with a scholarship covering tuition, fees and books for a 4-year degree from Saginaw Valley State College.

Kimberly Siers, Snover, is among the 1987-88 Presidential Scholarship winners recently announced by the school. The valedictorian of Sandusky High School's class of 1987, she is the daughter of Robert Siers and Diane Thompson. The scholarships are granted on a no-need basis to 5 students, each of whom is first or second in their respective class standings, per year. The scholarships are annually renewable to students who maintain a 3.6 grade point average.

Current high school juniors interested in applying for SVSC's Presidential Scholarship should verify their class standing by submitting a letter to SVSC from their high school principal or counselor. Selection is made on the basis of mid-senior year standing. Application deadline is mid-February.

Community classes dates aired

The Cass City Community Education Department recently announced several class offerings beginning April 27 in conjunction with its spring enrichment program.

Classes set to begin April 27 include "powder puff mechanics," a 4-week class to be held at 7 p.m. on Mondays; "grow spectacular roses," which also lasts for 4 weeks, and "fun and fitness," to be held on Mondays and Wednesdays for 6 weeks.

Other future offerings are a 5-week "beginning computer class" set for Tuesdays beginning April 28; a 3-week "investment planning class" beginning April 29; an "elbow basket class" and "onion basket class" scheduled for May 5 and 19, respectively; a "lawn mower clinic" set for May 5; a one-night "lawn chair webbing class" set for May 6; a 6-week "karate class" scheduled to begin May 11, and a 2-night "Red Cross first aid class," set for May 27 and 28.

Additional information on all class offerings is available by contacting the community education office at 872-4151.

TWO ELKLAND Township firemen try to control a 12-acre grass fire near Cumber Road Saturday afternoon. Fire fighters had to let part of the fire burn until Department of Natural Resources officials arrived with a plow. Trash burning is blamed for the fire. A 2-acre grass fire on Deckerville Road in Deford was easily extinguished Friday afternoon, after a flicked cigarette started the blaze.

Wildfire Prevention Week

Chief cautions residents

This week marks Wildfire Prevention Week and the number one cause of the more than 10,000 wildfires in Michigan in 1986 was debris burning, Jerome Root, Elkland Township fire chief, urges residents to take extra precautions when burning debris, especially this year.

According to Root, so far this year there have been 3 wildfires in Elkland, compared to 11 in all of 1986 and 16 in 1985. About 79 acres have been destroyed so far this year, compared to only 27 in 1986.

Root said that most of the problem stems from the mild winter Michigan had. "This year there was not much snow and the grass isn't lying flat. That's why they are burning so many acres," he stated.

According to an article put out by the Michigan Interagency Wildfire Prevention Group, a fire starting in standing dead, dry grass can burn 40 feet per minute in 5 mph wind and 145 feet per minute in 10 mph wind. Root stated that even though the ban placed on debris burning by the Department of Natural Resources was lifted after the first rain, residents should be careful when they light up debris and make sure it is in an approved debris burner. A burner is made of metal or masonry, with a metal covering device with openings no larger than 3/4 of an inch.

Root said that many grass fires start because the people have improper trash burners.

Permits for burning are available at the Elkland Fire Department and through the DNR, but Root said he'd rather the residents came to the fire hall to get it. The permit is free of charge.

According to Root, debris burning is not allowed in the Cass City village limits.

On the back of the permit there are rules which state that a person can be liable for all the expenses of putting out the fire, if he is negligent and allows the fire to escape. Also if a person sets a fire and doesn't take precautions or leaves the fire unattended, he is guilty of a misdemeanor. "Whatever it costs the DNR to put out the fire, you have to pay," said Root.

Some $400 million was spent by federal, state and local fire agencies for suppressing wildfires in Michigan in 1986, according to the wildfire prevention group. Also $500 million was estimated as the damage done by these fires to property and natural resources.

In the article the group listed 6 safety rules to follow when burning debris: don't burn on windy days; never leave the fire unattended; use an approved debris burner; keep the area around burning containers free of debris; obtain a burning permit; and have fire fighting tools and extra help when burning large areas.

Egg Hunt at fairgrounds

The 4-H Teen Club of Tuscola County is sponsoring an Easter Egg Hunt Saturday, April 18, from 11:00 a.m. till noon.

"All children from pre-school age to fourth grade are invited to attend," says John Wurm, Tuscola County Extension 4-H Youth Agent.

This event is being sponsored by the Tuscola County 4-H Clubs, but will be open to all youth in that age group.

The location is the parking lot between the 4-H Horse Arena and the tennis courts, on the fairgrounds in Caro.

Drug rally scheduled

A "Youth Temperance" rally has been scheduled for 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. April 25 at Deford Community Church.

Guest speaker at the event, which will focus on the use and abuse of drugs, including alcohol, will be "Abraham Lincoln." The rally is being held in conjunction with Youth Temperance Education Week, April 19-25.

New books at the library

AMERICAN EDEN by Marilyn Harris (fiction). The setting is post-Civil War Alabama, where Lady Mary Eden and her husband, Burke Stanhope, have settled. Their 17-year-old daughter, Eve, is kidnapped by white supremacists who have been terrorizing the progressive Stanhope family. When Yorrick Harp, head of an all-female traveling theater group, rescues Eve and smuggles her out of Alabama, intending to make her part of his troupe, the chase is on. Eve's fiancé, Stephen Eden, and the Stanhope's general manager, a black man named Paris Boley, pursue Harp across the U.S. While the 2 men fight their way through a variety of desperadoes, Eve is abused in a multiplicity of ways.

DEADLINE FOR A CRITIC by Wm. Kienzle (mystery). The story begins with the sudden death of a vicious critic, Ridley Groendal. His longtime homosexual lover, Peter Harison, testifies that Groendal died after a huge dinner which taxed his weak heart, but Koessler suspects murder. He questions several people who grew up with him and the dead man, including their former mates at the seminary where Groendal abruptly gave up studying for the priesthood. Koessler's investigation disclosed the motives for the critic's malicious attacks on innocent victims, whom he blamed for his own failures. As the priest talks to men and women whose lives and careers Groendal had ruined, the shocks proliferate. The strongest occurs in the final, unforeseen disclosure.

SHOW ME A HERO by Alfred Coppel (fiction). Frustrated at the inability of the U.S. government to gain the freedom of our ambassador to Lebanon and his staff, America's most popular actor, Harry Redding, decides to fund a rescue, a la H. Ross Perot. Under the guise of a World War II epic being filmed in Tunisia, Redding hires Maj. K.C. Quarry, an Army assault specialist, to lead the operation and organize the force that will strike into Libya, where the hostages are being held near a Russian-staffed nuclear facility. With the assistance of a suspiciously secretive Israeli, Quarry gathers an army of soldiers for hire and sets off for the desert, undeterred by numerous obstacles.

WCTU holds meet Friday

Mrs. Phyllis Wright was hostess for the first WCTU meeting of the year Friday. Mrs. Beatrice Solan, vice-president, presided.

Miss Georgia Thompson gave the opening prayer. Nine answered roll call with a scripture verse.

Mrs. Ruth Dorman, 8th district WCTU chairman, announced a Spiritual Life Day to be held April 25 at Deford Community Church.

The lesson, from the Gospel of John, dealt with "each one having a purpose in living." Special prayer time was held for members Martha Putnam and Hazel Moore.

The group will meet with Marilyn Woodward May 15 at 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Wright served a luncheon.

"A contented mind is a continual feast." English Proverb

6 district
4-H winners
from county

"Six Tuscola County youth have been selected to compete on the state level in their 4-H program area," says John Wurm, Tuscola County Extension 4-H Youth Agent.

These district winners have been invited to attend 4-H Exploration Days at Michigan State University, where they will go through a 2-day process of evaluation.

"It is really great to have 6 winners from Tuscola County," says Wurm. The winners are Sean Smith of Caro for public speaking; Kristine Adams of Reese for arts; Dennis Buckmaster of Mayville for poultry; Ryan Brown of Kingston for crafts; Lynnette Lucius of Silverwood for sheep and Mary Lucius, also of Silverwood, for gardening.

The youth will attend 4-H Exploration Days for the evaluation to compete for State Awards. The state winners then go on to the National 4-H Congress, which is held annually in Chicago.

"Youth come from all over the country to compete for national scholarships and awards. If the youth puts together a quality notebook on their involvement with 4-H, they will increase their chances of that state award," says Wurm.

The youth who set their minds on this goal in the early years of their involvement with 4-H, have a very good chance of winning. The next opportunity for 4-H youth getting involved in this event will be towards the end of this year.

Few mentally ill get proper treatment

by Wayne J. Katon, M.D.
Associate Professor of Psychiatry
University of Washington
School of Medicine
Seattle

Only one-fifth of the estimated 30 million Americans suffering from mental illness today are getting proper treatment, according to the National Institute of Mental Health.

Certainly effective treatment can be made available to the 13 million who suffer from anxiety disorders, including phobias, and the 9.4 million who are plagued by depressive disorders. Similarly, many of the 1.5 million victims of schizophrenia can be helped. Most other disorders also respond to treatment.

Mental health experts have a high rate of success in dealing with depression, relieving anxieties and treating phobias. And there is evidence that even patients with schizophrenia can frequently have their symptoms controlled sufficiently well to function in the real world if they receive adequate treatment.

Why then are 4 out of 5 people who need such treatment not getting it?

The main reason appears to be that they are going to the wrong doctors. Ideally, whether their treatment demands medication, psychiatric counseling or other approaches, patients suffering from mental illness should be treated by psychiatrists. Unfortunately, most of them are not.

The truth is that primary care physicians have become the principal providers of mental health services. In the U.S., over one-half of patients with mental problems are cared for solely by their primary care physicians — not by psychiatrists. And a 1981 survey of 350 family physicians showed that more than one out of every 5 of their patients had significant psychiatric problems. Nonpsychiatrists, in fact, write the majority of prescriptions for psychotropic drugs (agents that exert an effect upon the mind).

Misdiagnosis a Major Problem

Evidence also suggests that primary care physicians fail both to diagnose most psychiatric disorders and to treat them properly when they are diagnosed. Although major depression, for instance, is more often recognized than any other mental illness, half to three-quarters of medical doctors who are not psychiatrists nevertheless miss it.

Why then do primary care physicians handle so many patients with mental problems?

First of all, it's because these are the people who fill their waiting rooms. Some studies suggest that up to 50 percent of visits to general practitioners are prompted by psychosocial rather than biomedical problems. Other investigators, however, find that percentage high.

Mental disorders often are accompanied by physical complaints, making it difficult to distinguish between the two. There is, of course, a biological basis for a great deal of mental illness and, in addition, many patients with psychiatric problems also have physical problems.

Furthermore, patients do not readily admit to having psychiatric problems. A definite stigma is attached to mental illness. Not only does this stigma engender denial on the patients' parts, to the point that they often refuse to seek treatment, but the denial frequently extends even to their families, who refuse to face the problem head-on.

Another consideration is that the 6 most common mental health problems primary care physicians have to deal with are 6 in which they have received little or no training: depression, anxiety, obesity, marital discord, alcohol abuse and sexual disorders. It's important to note that, for the most part, those are the very same problems that so often are obscured by physical complaints.

Severe Depression and Anxiety are Widespread

Take depression, for instance.

Some studies indicate that between 20 and 25 percent of all adults experience at least one clinically significant episode of depression at some point in their lives. And although primary care physicians treat about 54 percent of such cases, they still tend to diagnose only about half of them — in part because a wide variety of medical problems frequently intertwine with depression.

Anxiety is another disorder most primary care physicians have not been trained adequately to detect or handle, yet it is something they face constantly. In a recent study of more than 700 patients seen in a family medicine center over a 9-month period, William W.K. Zung, M.D., professor of psychiatry at Duke University Medical Center in Durham, N.C., found that one of every 5 of them had clinically significant anxiety symptoms.

Complicating matters still further, anxiety attacks are associated with multiple physical symptoms. This is most dramatically the case with panic disorder — a form of anxiety in which the victim suffers repeated unprovoked attacks of extreme fear accompanied by such physical signs as shortness of breath, chest pain, dizziness and tremors. Often patients with such signs are mislabeled hypochondriacs.

Panic disorder in itself represents a serious medical problem. My studies and those of others have shown that, compared with controls, patients with panic disorder or simple phobias have a significantly higher lifetime risk of major depression, multiple phobias and avoidance behavior as well as higher scores on their psychological distress scales.

Other studies have shown, unfortunately, that more than half the patients with panic disorder have been treated — if at all — with inappropriate or ineffective medication. Much the same can be said of depressed patients who fail to seek psychiatric help.

A Lack of Emphasis in Training

All this is not to say that primary care physicians are poor doctors. Far from it. Their traditional training simply has not prepared them to address mental health problems. A review of the literature on mental health training required in primary care hospital residency programs demonstrates that relatively little emphasis is given to the treatment of specific mental disorders. Indeed, one-third of practicing primary care physicians feel they need further training in that area.

Among the remedies for this situation is more teaching about the proper use of psychoactive medications and the techniques of psychotherapy.

Such teaching is now being done at the University of Washington School of Medicine and at many other medical schools across the country. It is not yet being done, however, in most hospital residency programs, where physicians — in effect — get their "advanced training." In most 2-to-3-year programs, in fact, less than a single full day is devoted to this important area.

It's a situation that must be corrected. An awareness on the part of primary care physicians that as many as 20 percent of their patients may have psychiatric problems is a step in the right direction — but patients must also be made aware that without proper treatment such problems may well contribute significantly to their physical ailments.

Magic show set for April 18

The magic of master magician Doug Irish and Holly will be featured in a show set to begin at 2 p.m. Saturday at Cass City High School.

The show is being sponsored by the Cass City Zonta Club. Proceeds from the event will be used to help purchase a piano, which has been placed at Provincial House for use by nursing home residents.

Tickets for the show are available in advance by calling 872-2921 or 872-2244. Tickets also will be available at the door.

O-G school announces essay winners

Owen-Gage School officials recently announced their school's 3 winners in the 18th annual "America and Me" essay contest, sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance Group.

The students, who earned first, second and third-place awards are Sarah Carnegie, first; Melissa Copeland, second; and Kathy Wildman, third. All 3 received award certificates for their achievement, while Carnegie's name will also be engraved on a plaque for permanent display at the school.

Carnegie's essay will now advance to state-level competition, from which the top 10 essays in Michigan will be selected. The top statewide winners, who will be announced in early May, will receive plaques and U.S. savings bonds ranging in value from $300 to $1,000. In addition, the top essayists will be honored at a banquet in Lansing and at a meeting with Michigan's top governmental leaders in late May.

A team of finalist judges, including Gov. James J. Blanchard and Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths, will determine the statewide winners.

Sanilac museum

begins new season

The Sanilac County Historical Society will hold its first regular meeting of the 1987 year April 21 at 8 p.m. in the Museum in Port Sanilac.

One of the goals of this year, according to Lee Cork, president of the society, is not only the preservation of the museum but the continued growth and development of the society itself. A concerted drive is underway to enroll more members from the area-at-large. Anyone who is interested is invited to the April 21 meeting. Jane Miller, the administrator, is arranging a special program.

The museum is located at the south end of Port Sanilac on the west side of M-25. It is a 20-room Victorian mansion operated and maintained by the Sanilac County Historical Society. It was built by Dr. Joseph Loop in the 1870's as a family home and as his medical office headquarters. It is still furnished in the original articles of that day. It was deeded to the society by Captain Stanley Harrison, a colorful sea and lake captain who was the grandson of Dr. Loop.

O-G track teams face depth problems

Boys' track team aims for speed

A lack of depth will force Owen-Gage High School's boys' track team to concentrate on speed this season rather than on distance running and field events.

And, the 8-man squad will be forced to compete this year without veteran coach Richard Glidden, who has been the boys' team mentor for the past 7 years. Glidden, who resigned last week because of "unexpected commitments" indicated that a new coach is expected to be hired sometime this week.

The Bulldogs, who opened their season Tuesday at Deckerville against Kingston and Deckerville, are few in number. But 3 experienced short-distance runners are back from last year to pace the 1987 team.

Expected to provide leadership this season are a pair of 4-year letter winners; Bill Kuhl and Stu Stirrett, who both specialize in the 440 and 880 relays. In addition, Kuhl is expected to be a force in the 100-yard dash, while Stirrett will take part in the long jump. Senior Ricky Salcido, a second-year track member, will compete in the mile relay as well as the high and long jumps.

Note: Veteran football coach Arnie Besonen was hired by the Owen-Gage School board Monday night to replace Richard Glidden as coach of both the girls' and boys' track teams.

Freshman Andre Damm, a sprinter and short-distance runner, also will be a key throughout the season, according to Glidden. "He's one of the hottest prospects we have. He is fast," Glidden remarked.

Newcomers Chad Stirrett, Graham Besonen and Brian Abbe, all freshmen; and sophomore Marc Reinhardt, will try to fill some of the long-distance running and field event spots, Glidden said.

The coach predicts perennial league powerhouse Akron-Fairgrove will dominate the conference again this year, with Kingston and Deckerville close behind.

"If we could pull out some things, Owen-Gage would be in the middle of the pack," Glidden said.

Fireflies

A light snack: According to Ranger Rick magazine, female fireflies of the Photuris species can imitate the flashing signals of other kinds of female fireflies. When tricked males come to mate, Photuris females eat them!

Experience is key for girls' team

Experience is expected to help counter depth problems this season for the Owen-Gage High School girls' track team which, like the boys' squad, recently lost long-time coach Richard Glidden, who resigned.

Glidden, who has coached the girls' team for 8 years, predicted this year's squad will improve by 50 percent over the 1986 team.

The Bulldogs opened their season Tuesday at Deckerville against Kingston and Deckerville.

Despite a lack of seniors, the Bulldogs aren't without talent.

Leading the team this year will be 3-year performer Susie Salcido, who holds the school record in discus in addition to being a strong relay runner. Glidden noted that Salcido also will participate in the hurdle events.

Owen-Gage also is expecting consistent performances from returners Jackie Norcross (shot put, discus), Andrea Mandich (short-distance runs, bar jump) and Shelly Ashmore (shot put, 800 run). Glidden indicated that junior sparkplug Gin Error, part of a relay team which captured the school record in the 440 relay, is questionable in terms of whether she will participate this year.

Freshman Brandy Salcido and junior Ray Lynn Rocheleau are expected to be the team's distance leaders in the mile and 2 mile runs, while junior Amy Thies will participate in the 440 and 880 relays.

As in the boys' competition, Glidden says he believes powerful Akron-Fairgrove will again dominate the North Central Thumb League. "They've got so much depth," Glidden commented. "I've got a half dozen and they come out with 20 kids."

Glidden added that the Bulldogs, who bottomed out 2 years ago and showed significant improvement in 1986, will continue to improve.

Twp. meeting uneventful

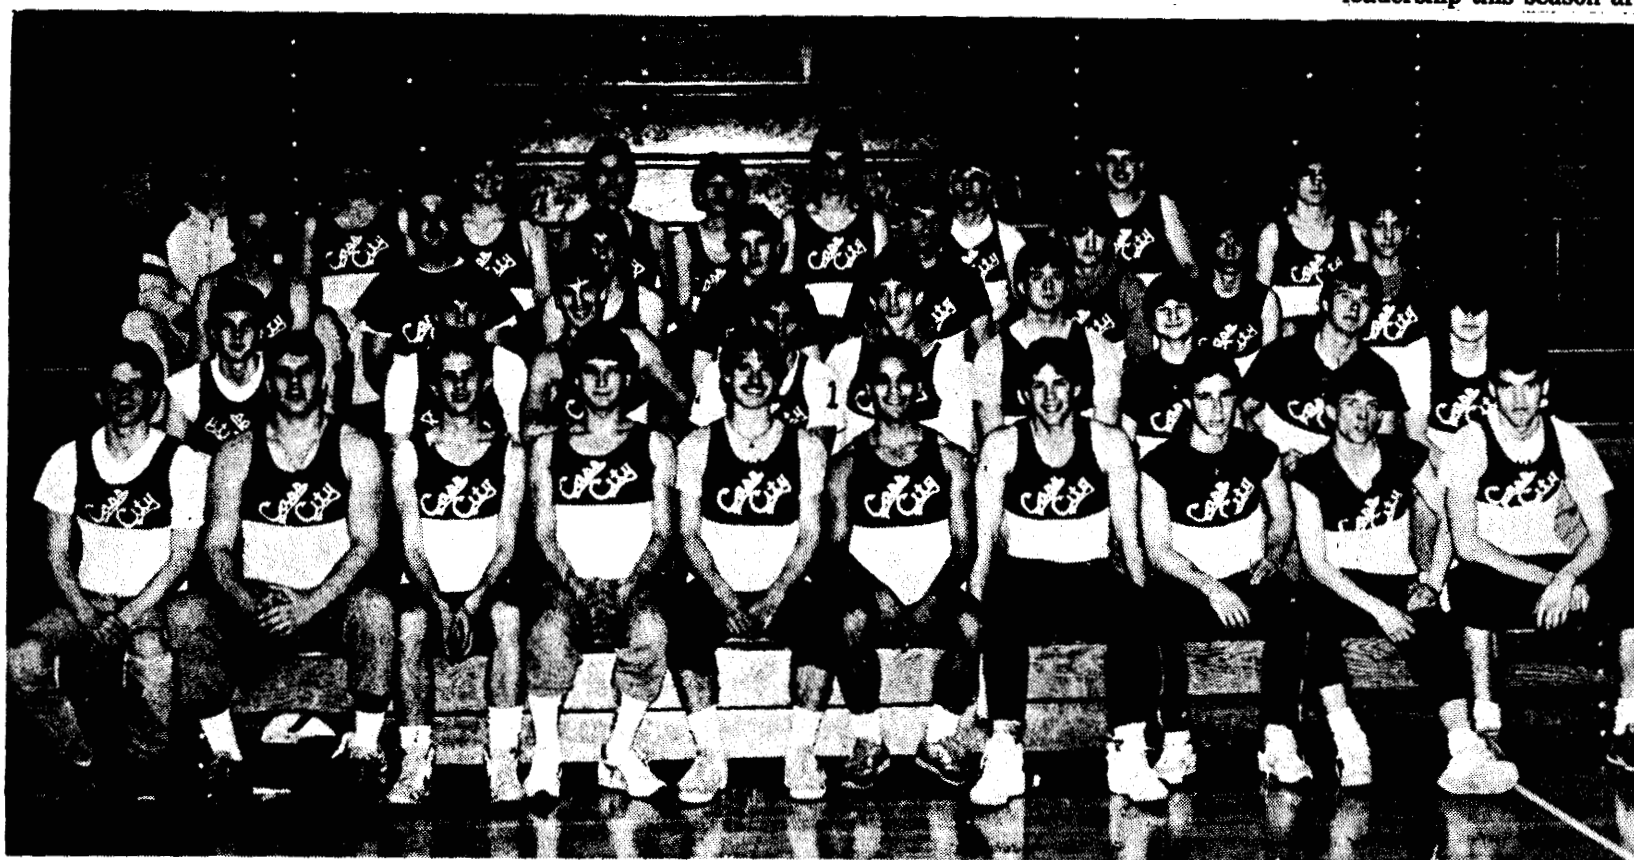

It was a quick and uneventful night at the Elkland Township board meeting Monday.

According to Clerk Norma Wallace, the board is still looking for a new fire chief to replace the retiring chief, Jerome Root Jr. Root was the first fire chief for Elkland Township appointed 5 years ago.

The board is hoping to make a decision at their next meeting after the firemen and the board members discuss a few more items, stated Wallace.

Two firemen are up for the position, Richard Root and Milt Connolly.

Young teams play ball for O-G

Baseball team may be young, but experienced

New Owen-Gage High School baseball coach Jim Wissner has his work cut out for him.

His task? Orchestrate a re-building season with one of the youngest squads in the North Central Thumb League.

"We're pretty young," Wissner acknowledged, adding, "We've got a lot of 9th graders, but they're good kids; they've got baseball experience."

Owen-Gage will host Port Hope in its season opener Monday before traveling to Carsonville-Port Sanilac April 23.

Wissner has 4 returnees from last year's Bulldog team, which finished in the conference cellar after posting a 7-11 mark in 1985. Three of the veterans will be counted on to provide depth on the mound, the coach said.

Junior shortstop-pitcher Chris Abbe; senior pitcher-shortstop Stu Stirrett; and sophomore pitchers Marc Reinhardt and Dennis Maxwell will provide the nucleus for the 16-man squad, dominated by 9 freshmen.

Other players expected to contribute extensively, according to Wissner, who replaces Walt Harrison at the top coaching spot, are freshman first baseman and catcher Chad Stirrett, freshman second baseman Brad Susalla, freshman third baseman and pitcher Kevin Koch, outfielders Steve Czap (senior), Jay Susalla (sophomore) and Chad Zimmermann (sophomore), and freshmen Brian Abbe and Graham Besonen.

Rounding out the roster are first-year players John Olzak and Terry Thorp, both seniors; freshman Joe Fisher and junior Gary Shemko.

Wissner pointed out that despite initial starting positions, each of his players will probably contribute at more than one position. "We're going to get a lot of experience for everyone," he added.

"We're going to be a contact team," he remarked about his squad's offensive plans. "We're not going to be a power team. We've got speed, so if we can get on base, we're going to move them up one way or another."

Wissner predicts that last year's top teams, including defending league champ Caseville and runner-up Carsonville-Port Sanilac, will be strong again this year. Akron-Fairgrove and Deckerville also should be strong, he said.

And Owen-Gage? "We're not giving up on this year; we're just going to be looking for better days," Wissner said. "We're trying to gain some experience for the future."

Gutsy and young softball team takes the field

It's a young team and they're gutsy. That's how Judy Porter, coach of the Owendale-Gagetown high school softball team, describes her girls.

The team which has 3 freshmen, 9 sophomores, 2 juniors, and 5 seniors, plans to do better than their middle-of-the-pack record last year. "There were 'young' mistakes," Porter said about last year's majority freshmen team. "We have an era of kids again that are going to be gutsy and this year's team is going to work."

Porter has most of her team back, and she said they should have no trouble out in the field. The thing that worries Porter is when her players enter the batter's box. "We have quite a bit of speed for base running, if we can get on base," she said.

Another area the Bulldogs will be working on is pitching. "Pitching is one of our weaknesses, we haven't had enough time to practice."

As of April 9, the team had only had one practice, but Porter said the girls will be practicing everyday until the opening game April 20.

The team only lost 2 seniors last year, Marcia Lopez and Debbie Engelhardt, who both played second base and center field. The rest of the Bulldogs are back for another season.

Catcher and shortstop Cindy Enderle will be playing her last season for the team, as well as, pitcher and outfielder Barb Helebuyck. Another senior, Charlene Goslin, who plays infield, will also be leaving the team at the end of the season. Porter stated that the loss of the 3 will be detrimental to the team.

With such a young team, however, Porter will be able to work with most of the girls for 2 more years. The 2 juniors on the team are a big part of its winning ability. Susie Salcido, who pitches and plays shortstop, and first baseman Janie Billy, will be back with their nonstop energy.

For quickness Porter looks to 2 sophomores who were starting players last year. Third baseman Angie Bolzman and Andrea Mandich, who is vying for second base, have the speed and agility to make them the team's top base stealers.

Two other starters, sophomores Dawn Holland, who plays outfield and catcher, and outfielder Tonya Haldane are also part of the nucleus of players that returned to the team this year.

Porter thinks the team to beat this year will be Peck, which she says is the strongest team of the North Central Thumb League.

She said that in all reality her team will probably break even again this year, but she would be happy if they were in the top half of the league standings at the end of the season.

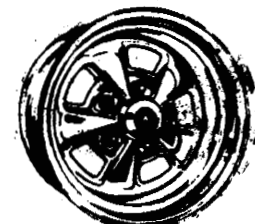

The Bulldogs start off the season on their home turf with a game against Port Hope on April 20 at 4 p.m.

Obituaries

Dorothy Ballard

A 70-year-old Cass City woman described as being a good mother who enjoyed close family relationships died April 7 at her residence following a lengthy illness.

Funeral services for Dorothy C. Ballard, 4698 Huron St., were held Saturday afternoon at the First Presbyterian Church of Cass City.

Dorothy Ballard

Ballard was born Feb. 4, 1917, in Lakewood, Ohio, the daughter of John and Jessie (Frommyer) Luthi. She first came to Michigan to attend the University of Michigan, where she graduated from the College of Architecture.

While attending school, she met Dr. James H. Ballard, a medical student at the time. The couple, who were married June 28, 1941, in Lakewood, settled in Cass City 5 years later.

Ballard was preceded in death by her husband on April 30, 1982.

Aside from family get-togethers, Ballard kept busy as a member of the First Presbyterian Church, Cass City Zonta Club, Saginaw Bay Yacht Club, American Association of University Women and Hills and Dales General Hospital Auxiliary.

She is survived by 4 daughters, Mrs. Ralph (Dorothy) Bahna of Stamford, Conn., Mrs. James (Katherine) Scharl of Clarkston, Mrs. Daniel (Jane) Lyons of Homestead, Fla., and Mrs. Daniel (Barbara) Montgomery of Chelsea; 3 sons, James Ballard of Chicago, Ill., John Ballard of Cass City and Steven Ballard of Homestead, Fla., and 14 grandchildren. Others are one sister, Mrs. James Miller of LaJolla, Calif., and one sister-in-law, Mrs. A. Eugene Frank of Princeton, New Jersey.

The Rev. Harry Capps officiated at the funeral service. Burial was in Elkland Township Cemetery.

Memorials may be made to Sloan Kettering Cancer Research Institute.

Harry Comment

Harry Vincent Comment, 79, a lifelong resident of Gagetown, died Saturday, April 11, at Humana Hospital in St. Petersburg, Fla., after a lengthy illness.

He was born April 15, 1907, in Gagetown, the son of Frank and Henrietta (Proulx) Comment. He married Miss Dolores Freeman Oct. 28, 1933, in Gagetown, where they made their home. A crop farmer, he was a member of St. Agatha Catholic Church of Gagetown.

He is survived by his wife, Dolores; one son, Clare Comment of Gagetown; 3 grandchildren; 2 great-grandchildren; and one sister, Mrs. Neoma Rieck of Unionville. Two sisters, Irene and Lucille, preceded him in death.

A prayer service was scheduled Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. at Little's Funeral Home, Cass City.

Funeral services were to be conducted Wednesday at 11 a.m. at St. Agatha Catholic Church of Gagetown, with Rev. Julius A. Spleet officiating. Interment will be in St. Agatha Cemetery.

Laura Lenzner

Laura M. Lenzner, 79, Bad Axe, died Tuesday, April 7, at McKenzie Memorial Hospital, Sandusky, after a long illness.

She was born May 16, 1907, in Elkland Township, daughter of the late Fred and Mary (Schwegler) Jaus.

She married Dr. Gray F. Lenzner Oct. 25, 1940, in Geneva, Ohio. He preceded her in death Nov. 2, 1961.

Mrs. Lenzner attended the Wright Rural Elementary School, Elkland Township. She was employed at the former A&P and Economy markets in Cass City. She was a librarian at Bad Axe Public Library for many years and a member of First Presbyterian Church, Bad Axe.

Surviving are a number of cousins.

Services were held Friday at First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. David Dively, pastor, officiated. Burial was in Colfax Cemetery.

Memorials may be made to the First Presbyterian Church, Bad Axe.

Verneta Linderman

Miss Verneta Linderman, 68, a lifelong resident of Evergreen township, died Thursday, April 9, at her residence.

She was born June 4, 1918, in Evergreen Township, the daughter of Jacob and Amanda (Roddenberg) Linderman.

Miss Linderman had been employed by Walbro Corporation for 26 years, retiring in 1980.

She is survived by 4 brothers, Fred Linderman of Decker, Roy Linderman of Sandusky, James Linderman of Cass City and Nelson Linderman of Fowlerville, and a number of nieces and nephews. One brother, Harvey, and 2 sisters, Edna and Hazel, preceded her in death.

Funeral services were held Sunday at Little's Funeral home with Rev. Eldred Kelley, pastor of Evangelical Free church of Cass City, officiating.

Burial was in Elkland Cemetery.

Nancy Stokes

Services were held Monday for Nancy M. (Heckroth) Stokes of Pittsburg, Texas, who died Thursday, April 9, following a long illness.

She was born Sept. 29, 1948, in Fond Du Lac, Wis., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Heckroth.

A graduate of Cass City High School, she married Jack Stokes in 1968 at Pittsburg, Texas.

Survivors are her husband, 2 sons, Derrin and Brian, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Heckroth of Deford. Others are 3 sisters, Mrs. Jeff (Janice) Tuckey of Cass City, Karen of Lennon, MI, and Paula, at home; 4 brothers, Ronald and Daniel, both of Cass City, Randall of Caro and Timothy of Lennon, and grandmothers, Mrs. Mae Salzsieder of Oshkosh, Wis., and Mrs. Adeline Webb of Chicago.

4 area students make dean's list

Four area residents have been named to the dean's list at Northwood Institute in Midland for maintaining a 3.0 grade point average during the winter term.

Named to the list are Brian Gyomory, David Purvis and Matthew Purvis, all of Deford, and Laurie Louis of Gagetown.

Northwood Institute is a private, co-educational, accredited college specializing in practical career preparation in business-related fields.

Mailing out income taxes

Early or late?

Wednesday at midnight is the due date for filing income taxes, and some people, who waited until the last minute, will be scrambling to get their forms filled out in time, while others, who played it safe, will be sitting back in their easy chairs watching Johnny Carson.

Everyone has his own special system for filling out and mailing in tax forms. Some mail early so they can get the refund sooner, while others, who owe money to the government, will wait to the last possible minute so they can collect interest on the money they have in the bank.

Harold Adams, a Cass City resident who works for Saginaw Steering Gear, is an early bird. "I usually get them in right away, especially if I think I'm going to get something back," he said.

Village resident Ronald Jamieson is on the other side of the tracks, saying he waited until April 14 before he sent out his forms. "We owe a lot of money," he said and he wants it to collect as much interest as possible before he has to pay the government. "We made more money this year than we figured," Jamieson added.

Renee L. Hill is a happy medium between these 2 extremes. Hill said that she sends in her forms in the middle of March, and her reasoning for this is sound. "When I first get it (the form), it's a while before the deadline and I get to ride a little bit. Then in March, I think, I have to get this in and I could really use the money (from the refund)," Hill chortled.

Shirley Shaw also waits until March to mail her tax forms. However, she said she has to wait for some investment forms which usually don't come until early March, before she can get the tax forms filled out. Frederick Bachman, an area businessman, said he too has to wait for business papers to come in before he can mail off his forms in March.

All the residents interviewed said that they have someone else fill out their forms. "I'm afraid of making a mistake and that's why I have someone else do it," said Hill. "I don't want the IRS (Internal Revenue Service) pounding on my door."

Jamieson doesn't have to leave home to have his forms filled out. His wife, Valerie, is a certified public accountant. "I really don't have to worry about the forms," Jamieson said.

But Jamieson is the lucky one, most people have to hire someone to fill out the forms. Some don't attempt to fill the forms out because they are complicated. "They (the forms) could be much easier," said Adams. Bachman agreed, adding, "The whole tax system could be simpler."

Hill said she doesn't think the forms are too complicated, but she doesn't want to risk making a mistake that may cost her money. Shaw agrees. "Some of the investment forms are a little complicated, the others are pretty good. I used to do them," she added.

Those who sent in their forms early this year, and didn't owe on their taxes, are enjoying their refunds, while the others impatiently wait, already having the refund divided a hundred ways.

Letters to the editor

Brother's name left out of memory lane

Dear Editor:

In regard to the Feb. 18th issue of the Cass City Chronicle, "Down Memory Lane" column, I could not help but notice, in my opinion, a slight but very important mistake. In reference to the "25 years ago" portion in your paper, and not to sound too critical, isn't it quite common, or even journalistic courtesy, to refer to a person by their first name?

Good news or bad news, usually for all the years I've been reading your paper, people being addressed in articles of interest, are recognized on a first and last name basis.

Yes, it made me feel proud all over again to have memories refreshed about the extraordinary game, played by the Cass City Junior High basketball team, when they defeated Sebewaing 55-1. I do not recall another team ever performing such a feat! But I was a little disappointed that my brother's first name was omitted, as he was the top scorer in the game with 13 points. It was also not a coincidence that Al Wallace, who scored 12 points, was his best friend throughout their entire sports' careers, and life in general.

It might also be noted that those kids were also undefeated in all sports activities, until they reached varsity status. Also, in case many people don't remember, the Junior High coach was none other than Irv Claseman, who also directed many varsity basketball championships.

I, as well as many others, have often wondered what it would have meant to this group of gifted and talented Junior High kids, to have the opportunity to play for Irv Claseman on the varsity level. Unfortunately, Mr. Claseman moved away before they reached their potential.

The Lord in Heaven also called my brother away several years ago. By the way, if someone would happen to ask you in the future who the "Schember" was who scored all those points years ago, tell them his name was "David." He did have a first name, and I'm sure they'll remember. I know I always will.

In all due respect - a brother

History committee airs plan for book

Dear Editor,

In this 150th year of Michigan's statehood, Cass City and its surrounding community can be proud that it has been a part of that history. Although Cass City is not yet itself 150 years old, it does have a history of its own. This history is important to those of us who live here. It is also important to those who have lived here.

We would like to capture that history in a new book to be written this year. If we are going to accomplish this we need help. We need information. If anyone has or knows someone who has documents, pictures, articles, letters or hand-me-down stories that pertain to the interest, growth and development of our community, we would like to hear from you.

If you have any such information that you are willing to share please take it to the Rawson Memorial Library. We promise to return it to you.

Thank you for your help, Cass City History Book Committee

Senator wants May 30 as Memorial Day

Citing a need to restore a proper tribute to Michigan veterans, state Senator James Barcia (D-Bay City) April 9 reintroduced legislation that would return the Memorial Day observance to May 30, rather than the fourth Monday of May.

"Memorial Day was never intended to be a recreational holiday," Barcia said. "I am urging my Senate colleagues to return the practice of honoring the sacrifice of our veterans on 'their day,' instead of any Monday that creates a convenient long weekend for vacationers."

In 1971, Michigan joined most states and the federal government in changing the observance of the Memorial Day holiday from a fixed date to the fourth Monday in May.

"Memorial Day was intended as a time to allow families to pay tribute to those loved ones and individuals who sacrificed their lives so that we could live in freedom. It was not designed to simply allow us to have a leisurely three-day weekend," the Bay City Democrat remarked.

Barcia introduced the same bill during the 1986 legislative session. His proposal passed the Senate by a 33 to 2 vote, but stalled in the House State Affairs Committee. The House of Representatives attempted to force the bill out of committee with a "discharge motion" which narrowly failed on a vote of 49 to 49. "It was through the intense efforts of the VFW and the VFW Auxiliary that this rare procedural motion almost succeeded," Barcia noted.

"As was the case last year, there will be intensive lobbying by recreational and tourism pressure groups to defeat the bill," Barcia continued. "Despite last year's setback, I remain optimistic that eventually this important legislation will be signed into law."

Your neighbor saysEaster becoming too commercialized

Easter Sunday is when folks dress up in their finest spring frocks and go to church to celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ. It's when families get together for dinner and talk about old times while the kids hunt for hidden eggs. But like Christmas, many feel that Easter is becoming too commercialized.

Teresa Williams, 32, 5862 VanDyke Rd., and her 4-year-old son, Jacob, differ on their views of how they celebrate the holiday. Williams said that on Easter morning they go to church and then go to her family's house for dinner.

Jacob, on the other hand, said Easter means getting "candy from the rabbit." The rabbit is otherwise known as the Easter bunny. Jacob said his favorite candy is gum, but he does enjoy biting the ears off the chocolate Easter bunnies he gets in his basket.

When asked if Easter is more of a commercial holiday than a religious holiday, Williams nodded. "People tend to forget what Easter is really about."

Williams said that children need to be taught the real reason for Easter and asked her son if he remembered what she said about the holiday. Jacob thought for a bit then smiled, "God died on the cross."

Williams was born in Cass City, but moved away for 12 years with her husband who was a general contractor. Her husband got a job with General Telephone and they moved back to the village 2 years ago.

Cass City sets kindergarten roundup

Cass City School officials recently announced registration dates for the annual kindergarten roundup for all children who will be at least 5 years old before Dec. 1 and are planning to attend school in the fall.

Campbell Elementary School's registration for rural children will be held from 6:30 to 8 p.m. April 28, and for town children from 4 to 5:30 p.m. April 29. Deford Elementary School's registration will be from 9 to 11:30 a.m. April 30, while Evergreen Elementary School kindergarten pupils should register from 1 to 3 p.m. April 30.

Parents must register their children and submit a birth certificate and up-to-date immunization record before their children will be admitted to kindergarten, according to Campbell School Principal Jacqueline Freiburger, who added that parents should take these records with them to registration.

The state requires a pre-school vision and hearing test for children. Clinic dates for Deford and Campbell Elementary pupils have been set for May 21 and 22 at the Campbell School. Also, children will be screened for possible speech problems. Evergreen Elementary students, meanwhile, will be tested by the Sanilac County Health Department beginning at 8:30 a.m. May 22.

Cass City has 2 developmental kindergarten rooms. Appointments will be made to test all children, especially those with summer and fall birthdays. Freiburger said. She added that children are selected for the developmental kindergarten program through the testing.

Freiburger urged parents unable to attend on scheduled registration dates to contact the school for an appointment.

Card of Thanks

STEVE AND I wish to thank all our family and friends for the surprise 25th wedding anniversary party. We send a special thank you to Kathy and Richard Mika for their help, to Virginia Papp and Terry Poslusny for the many phone calls, to Rosemary Quinn for the beautiful cake, to Wildwood Farms for the lovely dinner and help. We also thank our wonderful children and grandchildren, Shawn, Tammy, Jeff, Paula, Sharon, Lori, Dan, Susan and Melinda, Jessica, Amanda and Stephen. We know you couldn't be there Jeff, Paula and Amanda, but you were there in our hearts. To the ones that kidnapped us and took us to the Bay Valley Inn and Resort, hey guys it was great. We thank all who gave gifts, flowers and cards. May God bless all of you. It truly was wonderful. With sincere love, Steve and Lois Papp. 13-4-15-1

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

For $85 a year, Weiss Research of West Palm Beach (Martin Weiss, consultant, and Irving Weiss, contributing editor) will send you information such as this I am about to describe. It may confound you or puzzle you, or if untruths annoy you, it may make you mad. Perhaps you'd like to make a choice between contradictions only 2 pages apart in their $1-a-page report.

Whatever...March 30, page 2: Quote: "Beginning in 1950, the rate of inflation in this country moved steadily higher for over 30 years. Sure, there were brief interruptions here and there. But, by and large, the inflation rate marched upward and onward to new heights."

Then Weiss tells you to look at their graph on page 4, titled "The inflation rate has plunged..."

The graph starts in 1960 (not '50 as referred to on page 2) and shows an inflation rate for the next 5 years running between 7/10ths of 1% to slightly under 2%, 1960-1965.

This is "steadily higher with brief interruptions"? If the graph had gone back to 1958 it would have shown the same level of under 2% inflation. Actually, it was the longest stretch of level prices in the history of America, from 1958 to 1965.

Then the inflation graph shows a drop from 1970 to '73 of 6% to 3%. From '75 to '78 it dropped from 12% to 5%.

Under Carter it soared to 15% in 1980. From then to the end of 1986, with 2 little jogs upward, it dropped to 1%. In 6 years it plunged from 15% to 1%. This is "steadily higher"? This is a "brief interruption"?

Of such stuff are $85 a year market letters made.

A St. Petersburg stockbroker and columnist, Mel Burko, recommended to a reader, who was 65, that he take the $100,000 CD he had on hand and buy himself an annuity.

Burko said it would pay him $11,928 the rest of his life. This was last summer when good corporate bonds were yielding 10%, or $10,000 a year on his $100,000 nest egg.

So the fellow would get nearly $2,000 more a year during his lifetime, but that would be it. There'd be none left for his heirs when he departed this mortal coil. Just put into a good fixed income investment, such as the 19% bonds then on the market, would let him live off the income, without disturbing the principal.

One of the disadvantages of any insurance policy is that it costs a hefty fee to get out, often 5% or more if it's a single premium annuity, or for other sorts of annual premium policies, as much as a year's premium. Brokers like to push insurance policies. Could it be it's because their own commissions are much higher?

Here's how one father of a spendthrift son made a gift to the young man that can't be spent by him until the father dies.

The gift consisted of some zero coupon bonds, tax-exempt, so no report need be made each year to the government. He opened a joint account in his name and the son's name, giving his own (the father's) address so he gets the broker's statements. The broker asked for only one Social Security number, so the son's was used.

Since no tax is involved, there's no evasion. When the father dies, the account automatically is the sole property of the son. No probate, no estate tax, since the gift each year is $10,000 or less.

It amounts to enforced savings for many years for the beneficiary. It avoids the cost of setting up a trust, and is simple for the father to manage.

A lawyer could nitpick the thing, I suppose, but it looks like a pretty good solution to me. It couldn't cause much trouble, because there is no income tax due anyhow, since the income is zero until the bonds are sold, or mature.

Of people who talk to me, a common problem they have in giving money to children and grandchildren is that the gift will often be spent foolishly. There's no easy way to prevent this, except by tying up the funds for a while. The hope is that the young one will get more sense as the years go by. Meanwhile, the donor has run their gifted funds for them, and at least postponed the day when the money will be gone with the wind.

Bill Myers is a retired editor and investment counselor.

DSS petition drive falls way short of goal

that the taxpayers will still be paying for the building through state taxes. Thursday Liebler said that he had more than 3,900 signatures.

Liebler could not be reached for comment after the signatures fell short.

The new building is to be erected between the Medical Care Facility and the Intermediate School District complex in Caro.

Contract negotiations

Nursing home employees air frustration, demands

what she called inadequate staffing, saying that there should have been 7 aides and 2 nurses on staff Saturday night, but there were only 4 aides and 2 nurses on duty.

Carb, who estimated about 110 residents at the facility, added, "And this happens all the time—at least twice a week."

"If (an aide) calls in and can't be replaced, they'll ask one of the afternoon girls to stay 4 hours later," she said about staff shortages on the midnight shift, for example. "And they'll ask 3 or 4 of the day girls to come in an hour early."

DIFFERENT STORIES

Dave Harrison, director of communications for Beverly Enterprises' Eastern Division, indicated on Monday that staffing levels at Provincial House are being maintained at proper levels.

"We're staffed basically at the state minimum or better. In Cass City, the levels are 2.25 per hour per patient or better," he said.

Regarding wages, Harrison declined to give any details on specific proposals, but stated that existing pay levels are "fair from the standpoint of...the industry." Currently, he added, the average wage of nursing home employees is $3.75 an hour.

"Wages are based on what we're getting from the state and what we believe we can afford," Harrison continued.

He explained that 65 to 75 percent of the company's business involves reimbursements from the state and federal governments. "They set the standards and, to a great extent, the wages," he said. Harrison noted that last year's Medicare reimbursement increase of 2 percent reflects a trend of lower increases in such funding.

Harrison acknowledged higher costs for health insurance, but added that the company hasn't increased rates for 3 years. Currently, the company pays 75 percent of premiums, and employees pay the remaining 25 percent.

"The problem is the rising cost of health care," he remarked, adding that the rate increase, which took effect Jan. 1, was based on seniority, with persons with less than one year on the job being charged higher rates than employees with more than one year of service.

"The rate increase, in reality, if you have more than one year of service, is $1 per month," he said.

Harris disputed claims that the company is ignoring union concerns.

"I think we've been giving them serious consideration," he commented. "We've been negotiating when they want to."

Hampton, meanwhile, disagrees. "It doesn't appear the company is taking the union seriously," he said.

Hampton, who stated that the company has offered raises of as much as 6 cents an hour, added that a strike hasn't been ruled out. However, he pointed out, "we want to do everything that is humanly possible to settle" before resorting to a walkout.

Funding in county is jeopardized

Funding for operation of government public services and schools in Tuscola County is being seriously jeopardized by an unexpected development at the federal Internal Revenue Service, according to County Treasurer Elgene Keller.

Treasurer Keller said she had been informed by John R. Axe, president of Municipal Financial Consultants Incorporated (MFCI), the county's financial consultant, that this new development has caused the postponement of the sale of the county's General Obligation Limited Tax Notes, which had been set for April 10.

Axe said that, in an unrelated situation dealing with Consolidated Tax Anticipation Notes issued by some Michigan cities, a concern was raised by the IRS that interest on those notes might no longer be considered tax exempt. It was further suggested that interest on county-issued General Obligation Limited Tax Notes also might not be considered tax exempt.

As a result, no bond counsel in Michigan is currently willing to issue the necessary legal opinions in connection with the delivery of such notes. Therefore, Tuscola County's sale of notes has been cancelled until its bond counsel, Dykema, Gossett, Spencer, Goodnow & Trigg, can obtain clarification of the position of the IRS.

The tax notes in question are sold to provide dollars that go into the county's 100% Tax Payment Revolving Fund, established a number of years ago. Under this program, the county borrows an amount equal to the amount of real property taxes that are delinquent as of March 1. It then distributes this amount to cities, townships, school districts and other units of government within the county. The borrowing is repaid by the County Treasurer as she collects the delinquent taxes. Many counties will not be able to issue these tax notes unless they remain tax exempt because interest rates on the notes would have to be increased beyond the counties' ability to pay back the notes.

"The suspension of this program, even for a few months, will have serious detrimental effect on the cash flow for all units of government within the county," said Treasurer Keller. She said that, if the suspension continues for more than 2 months, it may cause some units to have to lay off personnel or otherwise reduce their operating budgets, because taxes against which these units are borrowing will not be collected in full until 1990.

Treasurer Keller said the Michigan Association of County Treasurers will be spearheading an effort to gain relief from this impasse through Congressional action.

Last year Tuscola County borrowed $4,500,000 by issuing General Obligation Limited Tax Notes, a process that is unique to Michigan.

Despite's husband's death

Rose Guinther finishes new home with help of friends and relatives

When her husband died a year and a half ago, Rose Guinther had to make a big decision: should she finish the house they had started in the summer of 1985 or stay in her Cass City home? She chose to finish the house.

The decisions didn't stop there. "Most men would know a lot of the things that I had no idea about," said Guinther. "It would have been much simpler for me to stay in the house in town."

When asked if she regrets finishing the house, Guinther smiled and shook her head. "No, but if it hadn't been started, I would never have had the nerve to do it."

Guinther and her husband owned the 5-acre lot for 11 years, and started building after their 3 sons were grown.

When her husband died, only the outside of the house was completed. "They kept saying, 'Are you sure you want it there?'"

Guinther said it was much cheaper to build the house herself than hire a contractor. She said the house cost somewhere in the area of $40,000, but through a contractor it would have cost about $60,000.

The decisions were never-ending for Guinther. "People don't give you enough information. They take it for granted that you know. I had no idea what kind of water pump I needed for the well. I've learned a lot. I've learned what I don't know. But you have to make the decisions, right or wrong," she stated.

The one thing she has learned through her experience was to be patient. "No one comes when they say they will. There were several times when I had only one other person helping me. When the dry wall came, Guinther carried most of it in by herself. "I only had to go to the chiropractor once," she laughed.

Does your kitchen reflect you? Choose accessories which are both attractive and practical, and which are extensions of your personality.

If you love clean, contemporary good looks, hide the clutter which others reveal in, and look for sleek, show-offs like a gloriously graphic red, white and black clock.

If country's your cup of tea, baskets hanging on the walls and from the ceiling make a design statement, and are perfect for serving. Old copper molds and hand painted tiles reinforce the country mood.

Cabinets organize all areas of the home

Now more than ever, the key word in designing or remodeling a home is functionality. One way to make your rooms both functional and glamorous is through the creative use of cabinetry.

Attractive and versatile, cabinets feature a multitude of special options that can be put to work efficiently all around your home.

Here are some ways Home-Crest Corporation suggests for organizing your home with style:

- Garden room or potting area: Base cabinets with an easy-care countertop are perfect. Use roll-out wire baskets to hold bags of potting soil, stackable clay pots and gardening tools.
- Living room storage: Consider lining your living room with cabinets and bookshelves. Store your seasonal decorations and family memorabilia out of sight but within easy reach.
- Entertainment center: Every family room needs an organized system to house entertainment essentials. Television cords can be hidden-behind cabinet doors, shelves above the cabinetry hold your stereo turntable and speakers, and a pull-out cutting board under a liquor cabinet is ideal for mixing drinks and slicing garnishes.

- Corridors: In uneven or extra-wide hallways, cabinets keep everything from extra towels to vacuum cleaners out of sight but handy. Use open shelving above base cabinets for a mini-library.

Charcoal cooking not new

The Romans, who were famous for their banquets, prepared food by cooking it over charcoal on grills, or on stone hearths. Peruvian ovens have been found among the ruins of Pompeii. The manuscripts of the Middle Ages reveal boiling and broiling were the two most common methods of cooking then. Bread was often baked in an oven resembling a beehive. Such ovens were found only in the great houses of the wealthy or in public bakeries.

Report lower interest rates sparking resurgence in area home building

With interest rates still dropping, construction in Tuscola County is on the increase as more people take advantage of the low rates. Housing permits for the county rose from 55 issued in 1985 to 73 in 1986. The permits have been on a decline since 1984 when 66 were issued compared to 68 in 1983.

The 4 banks in Cass City have definitely noticed more interest in home mortgages than last year. "1986 was our busiest year," said an employee at Mutual Savings. The average interest rate for most of the banks was 9 percent, down from 11 percent in 1985. Interest rates vary with the size of the down payment and the number of years of the loan.

According to 2 bank officials, the most popular mortgage was the 5 year balloon mortgage, which must be refinanced at the end of the specified time.

Bank officials all agree that the rates probably won't decrease any further and that they are starting to level out.

1984. Village Manager Lou LaPonsie said that most of the increase in home permits has to do with the growth of business in the Industrial Park. "The expansion of Walbro has brought more people into the area," he said. Another factor adding to the increase is retired farmers and city people moving into the village.

LaPonsie stated that 1986 was the best year ever for the village since construction costs for residential work were $638,000. The construction cost figure is based on the estimates given by home builders on their permits. "We are looking for a continuation of it," LaPonsie said. He added that the closest the village got to matching the construction costs of last year was in 1976, when estimated costs were $440,000.

There was a rise in residential renovation costs, although there was one less permit issued than in 1985. The construction cost for additions was $83,705 with 28 permits issued. The previous year 29 permits were issued with a total cost of $79,500.

Although in both 1985 and 1986 there was only 1 industrial permit issued, there was a big drop in the cost. Last year's costs were $103,000 compared to $250,000 in 1985.

LaPonsie thinks that 1987 will be a good year, especially for industrial permits. He said that some of the projects already lined up are planned additions to Marshall Distributing Co. and Walbro, while United Parcel Service is planning to build a new building this summer.

AREA BUILDERS

Since the village has had one of its best years in construction, so have some of the area builders. Tom Herron of Herron Builders said that 1986 was an excellent year and he owes it largely to the lower interest rates.

Herron built 12 houses last year, along with 2 additions for Walbro, an addition to Midwest Rotary in Caro, and the building of a

A range of options: Creating dream kitchen step by step

Kitchens have always been the heart of the home. But with the advent of two career couples sharing the cooking and the popularity of informal entertaining, this room is getting even more attention.

Improving your kitchen one remodeling project at a time can often be the best, most economical way to make a difference. Even minor changes can make a vast improvement and be the first steps in the creation of your dream kitchen.

In smaller kitchens, a common objective in remodeling is to create more space. The average modern kitchen holds more equipment and appliances than ever before, with everything from food processors to microwave ovens fast becoming standard items.

A number of options allow you to free more space in the kitchen without knocking down any walls. One possibility is to mount smaller appliances beneath cabinets to create more countertop space.

Another practical, space saving improvement is to install a new, multi-functional appliance. A hi/lo cooking center, a range with a second, smaller oven on top, offers maximum cooking capacity in a minimum of floor space.

For someone who enjoys cooking and entertaining, a second oven is a wonderful asset — especially when you're serving more than one hot dish simultaneously. Or, you can use the smaller oven to bake dessert while cooking a roast in the main oven.

For others whose cooking priority in the kitchen runs toward quick and convenient rather than elaborate dinners, a microwave as a second oven might prove indispensable.

Bathrooms grow with new lifestyles

Remember when the smallest room in the house was strictly functional, prim and discreetly tucked away? Well, the American lifestyle has changed and so has the American bathroom.

Today, those pink and blue tiled walls have given way to baths with opulent greenhouse windows, skylights and hot tubs. The bathroom has become the last true sanctuary: A personal retreat from the rigors of day to day living.

Telling statistics

Preposterous, you say? Consider the facts. While the average American family has fewer members, bathroom construction has dramatically increased. Seventy-two percent of all new homes now have more than one bathroom. Kitchen and Bath Magazine estimates that nearly six million bathrooms were redone in 1985. Why are fewer people needing more bathrooms?

The bathroom is taking on added importance as a type of bathing spa in the home, an environment dedicated to soothing the body and mind and maintaining good health. Women, particularly those who juggle the roles of wife, mother and working woman, find solitude in the pleasures of a relaxing bath.

Closing the bathroom door and soaking in a bathtub or whirlpool provides an opportunity to relax, unwind and shut out the world for a little while. Although men are less willing to admit it, they too could benefit from this downtime experience.

Luxurious additions

Manufacturers are responding to the needs of the bathroom as a bathing spa. Downsized whirlpools, steam saunas, shower massagers, digital scales and elaborate home exercise equipment are now big business. For the truly exotic bathroom experience, environmental chambers are now available that produce environments ranging from steamy tropics, to dry deserts, to jungle rain forests. All climates are controlled within the privacy of one's own bathroom.

Environmental chambers, hot tubs or whirlpools require a commitment to space often not available in apartments or condominiums. Hot tubs and spas carry an average pricetag of between $2,500 to $4,000 and up, plus installation. These products require a firm foundation to carry the weight of the tub plus the motor unit.

For a more modest approach to bathroom relaxation, manufacturers have devised alternatives that offer the benefits of white water whirlpools. Hydro-massage bathtubs are now available at less than $1,000.

The principle is simple; a mat is unfolded, placed in the bathtub and attached to a control unit by way of a connecting hose. Air is forced through the mat under pressure and creates white water turbulence.

Carpet tips

Consider the practical side of carpet color and texture. If you want a minimum of maintenance, choose a color that doesn't show soil readily—medium shades, color mixtures, tweeds. Look for tight, dense textures, such as twists, loops, or textured surfaces with combinations of cut and looped yarns to get the best service.

When buying any carpeting, check the label on the backing for the fiber content, manufacturer's name and country of origin. Most also state pattern and color names or numbers.

Consider built-in cooktop to reduce costs in kitchen modernization

This year, millions of homeowners will spend from $10,000 to more than $20,000 to create the kitchen of their dreams. For many, this will mean custom-designed that may involve moving walls to expand space, adding fixtures to accommodate new appliances and a general "rebuilding" of the entire kitchen with a large investment of time and money.

For those on a more limited budget, however, there is a ready alternative. "One of the easiest and most inexpensive steps in kitchen remodeling is the replacement of a built-in cooktop," says Laura Strayer, consumer specialist at KitchenAid. "In most cases it can be installed without professional help. And, because it's a focal point in the kitchen, it makes a dramatic impression early on in the kitchen make-over."

European look, characterized by sleek, sharp lines, high-gloss black surface and a smooth shape that gives the kitchen a high-tech look.

Review the cleaning features of models you're considering. Only the sink receives as much use in the average household as does the cooktop, says Strayer. Easy-to-clean is a sign of good construction.

Basic features to look for include: Removable electric elements or gas burner grates; drip pans and knobs; lift-up tops with sturdy support; easy access to the burner box with no exposed wiring or obstructions; raised edges to prevent spill-over onto countertop; absence of cracks or narrow spaces where food soil can collect.

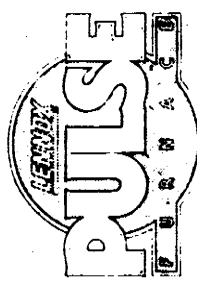

Evaluate the easy operation and compare with other cooktops. The control panel of a cooktop is the feature that's exposed to the most manhandling and its construction is a good indication of the level of quality that a manufacturer has put into the product. The panel should be easy to read with permanent graphics that won't wear off.

party store and grocery store in the Sandusky area. "Business is a lot bigger," every year it's going up," said Herron. "I think it (construction) will level out this next year. It has to; we can't have any more of an increase. We have as much as we can handle right now."

Herron has already lined up 4 new houses and more jobs for Walbro. Not all construction companies are as busy as Herron. Haven Maurer of Maurer Construction saw a 20 percent increase in workload in 1986, but 1987 stayed about the same.

"We mostly build grain bins," said Maurer. But, because of the problems the farmers are having, the company is starting to build commercial and residential buildings.

"Construction costs are leveling off," he said. He also said that if Michigan wants the small businesses to stay in business, then the interest rates won't increase. "It's hard to tell what the future will hold," said Maurer. "Business will stay about the same for this year."

TUSCOLA COUNTY Not surprisingly, with the rise in the number of housing permits issued, construction costs also went up. According to Veda Reid, secretary of the Tuscola County building codes office, figures rose from $3.6 million in 1985 to $5.7 million in 1986. This figure Carol Smith of Donald Smith Real Estate and Builders in Caro, said that the company had a big increase in construction last year. "We had 2 really good projects and 3 or 4 smaller projects," she said.

Smith said that the projects in 1986 were the most in 1985. "Things have been going up since about 1984 when interest rates started going down," said Campanella for Smith, who said that there is a possibility that the company may be contracted to build condominiums. Smith added that the rate increase in prime rates is sure to have an effect on construction companies.

Campanella added that if interest rates do start to go up, construction will go down. "Interest rates and construction are so directly tied it's amazing. The low interest rates are making homes more affordable to more people," he said.

Home Builders, said that he expects a 15 percent increase in 1987.

In 1986, 26,928 single-family homes were built compared to 21,379 in 1985. "The number of units in a building were built in 1986, while only 15,830 were built in 1985."

Learn how basic care can help make your rose garden flourish diseases from developing.

Fertilizing

Most garden roses require regular feeding. Nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium are the primary nutrients roses need for proper growth.

Whether organic or inorganic, fertilizers help grow sturdy plants with green leaves and vibrant flowers. It is best to fertilize once a month throughout the growing season.

Pruning

The best time to prune is in spring just as the buds are beginning to swell. The first step when pruning any rose is to cut the dead canes to the crown. Remove all of the weak, spindly growth that tends to crowd the center of the bush.

Pest protection

A rose's most feared enemies are aphids and mites. If your roses are left unprotected, these two pests may drain the life from the rose bush.

Aphids are easily recognized as tiny insects which primarily cluster on soft, new growth. Mites are almost invisible; however, their presence is made evident by the fine webs they make on the undersides of leaves.

Two of the most popular methods of pest protection are spraying and dusting.

Roses are delicate, beautiful flowers that look like they can be grown only by professional gardeners.

But, by becoming knowledgeable of the five basic steps to rose care — planting, watering, fertilizing, pruning and pest control — you can grow your own vibrant rose garden.

Planting

The ideal location for a rose garden is a spot with an eastern exposure that provides at least six hours of sun a day.

However, the absence of an ideal spot shouldn't discourage anyone — roses are hardy flowers and can thrive almost anywhere.

One of the most important steps toward ensuring a healthy rose is the planting hole. A hole approximately 2 feet wide and 1 1/2 feet deep will provide the rose with plenty of room to grow.

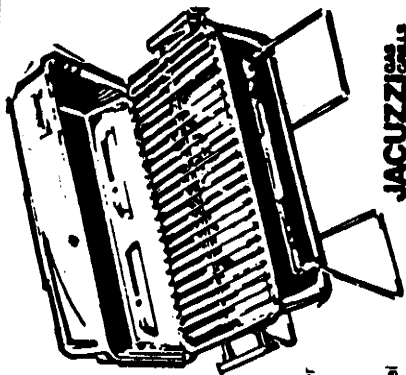

Watering

Roses are thirsty plants that require a lot of water. As a general rule, roses should be watered once a week throughout the growing season.

During the hottest part of the summer when the roses are in flower, you may want to water everyday. Be sure the surrounding ground is thoroughly soaked. Morning is the best time to water roses because leaves dry quickly — preventing Expert presents tips on how to water lawns for best results this summer

by David J. Wehner, Ph.D.

Your lawn, like all other living things, requires water to grow and be healthy. Sometimes the amount and distribution of natural rainfall is not adequate to keep your lawn green and it may be necessary to help nature along by providing additional water.

In addition to the pleasure of having a beautiful lawn and the value it adds to your home, a properly watered lawn will help keep your home cool in the summertime. If you need to be convinced of this, just take off your shoes and socks on a hot July day and put one foot on the sidewalk and the other foot on your lawn. Proper watering practices will help ensure a high quality lawn and efficient use of water.

The 2 most frequently asked questions regarding watering the home lawn are:

1. How should it be done? and
2. What is the best time of the day to water the lawn?

Turfgrass scientists follow a simple rule: Water a lawn deeply but infrequently. This means that water should be applied until the soil is moist to a depth of 4 to 6 inches. Then allow the lawn to use this moisture before watering again. Watering too frequently will not only waste water, but also promote a shallow root system.

When you water your lawn, allow the sprinkler to remain in one place until enough water has been applied. A screwdriver can be stuck into the soil to determine how deep the water has penetrated. (Usually at least 2 hours is required in each sprinkler location.)

In some cases, it may be necessary to utilize several short periods of water application since water cannot always enter the soil as fast as it is applied resulting in it running off. If you see a trail of water in the street 2 blocks long coming from your lawn, it may be an indication that you are applying water faster than the soil can absorb it. If this happens, rotate the location of the sprinkler frequently until enough water has been applied to the entire lawn.

The answer to the question of what time of day is best to water your lawn depends partly on whether there are any restrictions in your community regarding the use of water. The best time is either in the early morning or the evening.

These are the periods when you will be the most effective with the water that you apply. There are several reasons for this.

During these times, the wind will not be as strong and the water pressure will be the highest so that you will get a better coverage from your sprinkler. Also, the sun is not as intense during these times and less water will be lost to evaporation. Avoid using a soaker hose during windy, sunny conditions when most of the water which comes out as a fine mist will blow into the street or evaporate before it reaches the ground.

Proper watering - in addition to correct mowing, fertilization, and weed control - are investments that pay the dividend of a beautiful lawn.

Booklet offers wallcovering tips

Many people like the look of wallcoverings, but aren't sure where to find them or how to choose them.

Wallcoverings can be purchased in paint and wallpaper stores, home centers, decorating stores and department stores.

The salespeople in these retail outlets are excellent sources of decorating advice. For more information on wallcoverings, write for a free copy of "The Wallcovering How-To Handbook" to WIB, Dept. HP, 66 Morris Avenue, Springfield, NJ 07081.
