FOURTH OF JULY festival committee members (clockwise from upper left): Geraldine Prieskorn, Gary Jones, Sandy Kozan, Lota Hartel and Margo Donahue finalize plans for the upcoming celebration 2½ weeks away.

Committee puts finishing touch on Festival program

It's just a few weeks until the annual Fourth of July festival will be in full gear. Festival spectators attending the event every year shouldn't be disappointed in the events and activities this year for all ages. At a festival committee meeting June 10 the schedule of events became more focused.

obtained by calling Alan Sward at 872-3548. The parade is slated to start at 11 a.m. and according to Parade Coordinator Gary Jones, 30-40 units have been committed. He said he has had better luck getting commitments from musical groups and as far as having enough groups in the parade, "we may not be in too bad of shape this year."

OTHER EVENTS

The Irish Gaels, a single along group which should prove to be fun for all adults, are scheduled to come to town Friday, July 3. They will be at the Charmont from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

and tickets are $5. The tickets are available at Coach Light Pharmacy, Rolling Hills Golf Course, Thumb National Bank, the Cass City Chronicle and at the door. The bed races are scheduled for 10 a.m. on Main Street. Participants are asked to be there no later than 9:40 a.m. The race is one block long and participants are judged for the best decorated bed and the fastest bed and crew. Anyone interested can call Wayne Dillon at 872-3442 or Ron Nurnberger at 872-3500.

Mud Volleyball is on again this year for 3 p.m. west of the Cass City Park Pavilion. Each team is required to have at least 6 members. Trophies will be awarded to first and second place winners. For more information call Ron Nurnberger at 872-3500.

formation call Ron Nurnberger at 872-3500. New events include a horseshoe tournament at 6 p.m. in the horseshoe playing area of the park. For more information contact Alan Sward at 872-3548. A fireman's water ball fight is slated for 1 p.m. The location has not been finalized. Several area fire departments are scheduled to participate in the parade and the water ball fight, said Dick Root, Elkland Township Fire Department chief. The swimming pool will be open for free swimming from 3-4:45 p.m. Earlier in the afternoon kids' water games and contests will be held and children can register the day of the events. County settles Friend of Court dispute with judge

An ongoing dispute between the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners and Circuit Court Judge Patrick R. Joslyn apparently has been settled following action at the board's regular meeting last week. The board June 9 stated that it had received a written response from Joslyn regarding the board's offer May 12 of a $35,000 increase in the Friend of the Court budget for staffing and operations. The board, which said that Joslyn has agreed to its conditions regarding the proposal, approved the additional funding pending state approval of an amended Cooperative Reimbursement Contract for 1987.

The conditions set by the board include submission of reports necessary for the county to receive various reimbursements, and saving the board harmless from union matters since June 30, 1985. The county's $35,000 is to be matched by $40,000 in FOC funds, according to county Controller Michael Hoagland. Joslyn early this year asked the board for an additional $100,000 for FOC operations and staffing. The board countered that offer with $25,000 to be matched by FOC funds. Joslyn rejected the offer, refusing to sign the state reimbursement contract and submit reports necessary for the county to receive other reimbursements pending settlement of the dispute.

JAIL PROGRAM

In other business last week, the board approved funding up to $2,500 in start-up costs for a jail inmate work program pending approval of a $10,000 state grant. Community Advisory Board representative Gerald Polk proposed the program, which initially would be limited to prisoners serving jail time as a condition of probation. Polk, who estimated that 10-12 prisoners could be involved at any one time in the program, stated that inmates would be involved in projects for nonprofit and governmental agencies. The funding approved by the board would be used for

Rosebud is sweet smelling

Pet skunk raises no stink at home of Dick Hendrick

First impressions are lasting, they say, but that old adage doesn't always ring true. Just ask Cass City resident Dick Hendrick. Hendrick and his wife Elaine recently added a new furry bundle to their household at 6711 Houghton St., which now includes 2 Siamese cats. The new addition, at first glance, might be considered a little "stinker" by some, despite its friendly disposition: soft, black and white fur, and its size, weighing only a few ounces and easily fitting in an adult's open palms. But Hendrick, a 33-year-employee with GTE and owner of the Cass Theatre, says "Rosebud," a 6 1/2-week-old female silver back skunk, is a joy to have around the house. "I always pictured myself answering the door to an encyclopedia salesman, and telling him, 'You hold my pet and I'll read your stuff,'" he remarked about his new guest. Hendrick, who purchased the skunk 2 1/2 weeks ago, hasn't had the opportunity to introduce Rosebud to a salesman yet, but Cass City mailman Tom Kelly recently had the pleasure. Kelly backed away at first, Hendrick recalled. "Then he came back up on the porch and petted her."

FASCINATED

"Ever since I was little I was fascinated with skunks. I just always wanted one," he continued. Hendrick noted that skunks generally cost anywhere from $70 to $125, depending on where the purchase is made. The Cass City native pointed out that Rosebud didn't come from the wild, but rather was born on a "pet farm" in the Upper Peninsula. He purchased the skunk from Woodland Foxes and Wildlife Pets in Moran. Rosebud, he assured, was "de-scented" at the age of 2 weeks. Still, Hendrick said his wife of 33 years didn't share his enthusiasm at first. "It didn't surprise her," he said of the purchase. "My wife wasn't happy when we talked about it, but she loves her, too." Hendrick noted his first attempt to purchase a skunk, in February, cost him a $55 down payment. He put the money down on the animal at a Sandusky pet store, which apparently closed this spring. "I think (Elaine) had hopes that Please turn to page 16.

As predicted

School to end year $75,000 in red

As expected, a revised budget adopted by the Cass City School Board Monday night at its regular monthly session at the high school indicates that the district will run about $76,634 in the red for the 1986-87 school year.

That is not as critical as it seems because the district will still have $194,688 remaining to start the new school year July 1.

If the budget adopted for 1987-88 proves accurate when actual amounts to be received from the state are known, the school will operate in the red again next year by about another $75,000. Supt. Donald Crouse has indicated a probable need for another mill for operation to run the school during the 1988-89 school year.

The good news is that the deficit is about $20,000 less than anticipated in February. Expenditures increased about $387,730 from the previous year, mostly from an increase in teacher and administrative costs. However, nearly a third of the increase in expenditures, about $135,000, was for removing asbestos from the buildings.

Revenues from local taxes decreased slightly because of a drop in valuations, but was counterbalanced by an increase from state and federal sources because the school is an in-formula district.

A budget adopted for 1987-88 is the same as the one adopted for this school year. It will be revised when a more accurate estimate of revenues is available.

We have to have the money, he added, and we'll just keep coming back to the voters until we get the one mill we need. A mill in the ISD district raises about $600,000. We need your help July 20 (the election date), Walker said, as he concluded his presentation to the board.

STUDENT TRANSFER

In the past 2 years the problem that the board has wrestled with more than any other concerns the transfer of students from Evergreen or Deford schools to Campbell Elementary in Cass City. Starting with the end of summer vacation in 1986, the board has become more reluctant to okay transfers because of the number received and the number of students now at Campbell.

One of the last requests granted last summer was to allow Aaron Bell to transfer from Deford to Campbell because Aaron's baby sitter was in Cass City. The permission was for one year and Mrs. Marilyn Bell was back before the board to request that her son be allowed to continue at Campbell. That was approved, 5-2, with trustees Fred Matthews and Beverley Auten voting no.

However, the Bells have 2 other small children, one of whom starts school in a year. She said that she would be back before the board to have them attend Campbell because the baby sitter was in Cass City and both parents work.

It was suggested by Matthews and Ben Hobart that the problem could be solved by having the mother stay home from work. Trustee Louis Horner sharply disagreed with this, saying that it was totally unrealistic in this day and age to suggest that. We are out of line when we say that. It's not the board's business, he added.

In an unusual case, a request for a transfer of twin boys was partially approved. Mrs. Michael Gilliam requested that the twins be transferred to Campbell from Deford. She wants them in different rooms. The reason is that one is a better student than the other and she feels it is counterproductive for one to be compared with the other. According to the principal, one of the students should repeat the kindergarten and that would separate the 2.

However, the parents do not want him held back. The board's solution was to okay the transfer of one of the twins to Campbell, or, if the parents choose, they could both stay at Deford with one in kindergarten and the other in the first grade room.

SURVEY

A survey of the steam traps at the school reveals that 90 of the 150 traps need replacement or repair. Estimated cost will be about $4,000 or less, depending on the amount of the work that can be completed by the school custodians. Cost of the material for the work is $2,022. It is hoped that the repair will eliminate some of the noise in the Intermediate building. Supt. Donald Crouse said that the ABC Company that surveyed the traps said that the cost will be repaid in fuel savings in a relatively short time, perhaps 2 or 3

OTHER BUSINESS

Robyn Powell and Heidi Iseler presented coffee mugs to members of the board on behalf of the student council in gratitude for the board's work for the school. Mugs were also presented to the faculty and administration. Jacqueline Freiberger presented proposed changes in the school policy concerning teacher aides to bring it up to date. They will formally be considered in the July meeting.

The July meeting will be held on the second instead of the third Monday of the week because the board must be organized by then to comply with the law.

Stephen Steffke, science teacher, has resigned. He will be replaced by teachers already on the staff.

The board made it official. They voted to have the school join the Michigan High School Athletic Association, a formality that is repeated each year so that the school can compete in the various state tournaments.

A resolution was adopted protesting the Internal Revenue's position that issuance of tax exempt notes was not tax exempt. The resolution was passed at the request of Eugene Keller, county treasurer.

The school will purchase one, possibly 2, new copying machines.

Trustee Horner, who was defeated in his bid for reelection, attended his final meeting and was given a rousing vote of appreciation by the board and spectators.

PRESENTS CASE

While the Cass City district is not affected by the fall in valuation, the Tuscola Intermediate School District is, Jim Walker from the ISD said, as he presented the case of the district in the campaign to secure an extra mill for operation of the special education program.

He pointed out that the program is mandated by law and if the extra millage isn't available, it's possible that the ISD will bill local districts for the education of impaired children.

Cass City village council now ready to boost taxes

The Cass City Village Council is expected to formally approve a millage increase of nearly 1.5 mills during a special meeting slated for noon Tuesday (June 16).

It took the council only about 6 minutes to conduct a Truth in Taxation hearing and special session June 9. Aside from the council, no one attended the hearing, required by law when a tax-levying unit plans to collect more revenue in a given year than in the previous year based on the previous year's state equalized valuation.

Village officials, calling the millage proposal a "cost of living" raise, have said the increase will make up for revenue losses sustained by the village over the past 6 years.

The village lost some $41,000 over the past year due to millage rollbacks required by the Headlee Amendment and Truth in Taxation laws since 1980. Village officials also cite the loss of $46,000 in federal revenue sharing funds.

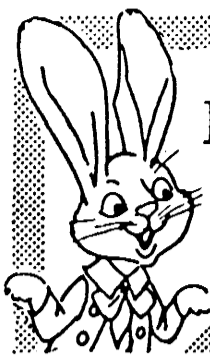

The hike, which would increase operation revenues by 11.8 percent, or $40,741.58 (1.4755 mills), will bring the millage rate in Cass City back up to 1980 levels.

The village levied 14 mills in 1980, which has since fallen to 12.5245 mills in 1987. The village's SEV, meanwhile, has increased steadily over the same period. The additional millage, if approved, will be included in the regular tax billing, expected to be mailed out in early July.

The additional millage would mean a tax bill increase of $18.42 over last year's bill for a resident whose house is assessed at $15,000 (half the true cash value), while the owner of a house assessed at $22,500 would pay $27.62 more, and the owner of a house assessed at $30,000 would pay an additional $36.83.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

With today's crazy-quilt pattern of airfares, it's sometimes necessary to take the long way around. It's seldom that it's necessary to go to the extremes that Colleen Whittaker did to save a buck.

She left Cass City to spend the summer at a lodge at St. Mary, Montana. To take advantage of a super saver fare she was forced to fly to Seattle and then drive 600 miles to her destination.

Wandering around the Lake Huron shore Sunday, the stop was at Lexington. Because of the day (hot) and the view of the lake (great), we decided to give the "Surfsider" a try.

We had eaten there before and weren't too impressed. Now either the management or the chef has been changed because the food was good. Moderately priced with dinners for 2 coming to $24 and change.

Just remember. It was only about 7 months ago that we were wondering if it would ever stop raining. It was just 2 months ago when we were wondering if winter would ever end.

It was just a week ago that we pulled out the jackets and the long sleeved shirts.

The day after tomorrow? Who knows? This still is Michigan, after all.

Open house set on proposal to extend M-24

The Michigan Department of Transportation will hold an open house June 30 in Unionville to talk about proposed extension of state highway M-24 from Caro northwest to Unionville.

The public meetings are scheduled from 3:30 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Sebawaing Elementary School, 2296 Church St., Unionville. Area residents are invited to drop in at either session for informal discussion with department representatives on the status of the proposed project.

The project would involve a combination of upgrading existing roads and new construction. The right-of-way width for the improved roads, including M-138, has been reduced from 150 to 100 feet but the project would require acquisition of property from both sides of the road involved.

The department stressed that the meeting is not a public hearing on the recommended highway improvements, as none have been selected. It is intended to obtain the views of local residents and to stimulate communication and cooperation.

Information on the planning projects, or any other MDOT planning project, may be obtained by calling 517/373-9534.

4 $500 scholarships given

Four Owen-Gage High School graduates have been named recipients of $500 scholarships awarded by the Owen-Gage Band Boosters.

Recipients of the awards are Kendra Reehl, Michelle

McPhail, Tiffany Reinhardt and Terry Thorp. Reehl and McPhail will be attending Central Michigan University with majors in music education and business, respectively, while Thorp plans to study religious education at Adrian College. Reinhardt plans on attending Michigan State University.

The scholarships are a first for the boosters organization, which has been active for the past 10 years.

Sanilac County Historical Museum is open for 1987

The Sanilac County Historical Museum, located at the south end of Port Sanilac on the west side of M-25, is now open for the 1987 season.

Jane Miller, museum executive director, said the museum will be open from 11 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, and from noon to 4:30 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

Built by Joseph Loop in the 1870s as a family home and as his medical office, the 20-room Victorian mansion now operated and maintained by the Sanilac County Historical Society is still furnished with original articles of that day.

Upon the death of Dr. and Mrs. Loop, the home was bequeathed to their only daughter, Ada, who was married to the Rev. Julius Harrison, a well-known minister in the Thumb. Their son, Capt. Stanley Harrison, a colorful sea and lake captain, inherited the mansion and in 1964 deeded it to the county historical group.

Also of interest on the museum grounds is a pioneer barn and Banner log cabin, named for the community for which it was originally built. There also is a dairy museum with many of the pieces of equipment used by farmers in the past.

Guided tours are available for groups as well as individuals. Appointments can be made by calling the museum at 662-9946.

The Haire Net

It's not surprising that Ron Erickson, former superintendent at Owen-Gage, is in the headlines again. Even his sharpest critics concede that Ronny has an unsurpassed ability to get his name in the paper.

Getting his name in the paper and his school in the courts was standard operating procedure in his decade at Owen-Gage.

While doing so he spent a quarter million dollars or so in lawyer and court fees and leaves behind an appeal of a decision that leaves annexed land from Owen-Gage to Cass City intact.

During his years in Owen-Gage he had the strong support of the board of education and one member said when he accepted a new post at Allendale that Erickson was responsible for keeping the school district intact.

We challenge that. What has kept O-G operating is the unwavering support of the people in the district. It was displayed again last week when voters approved 41 mills for operation, the legal limit in the state.

Judging from his track record at Owen-Gage, we'd be inclined to believe that there is merit to both positions taken in the conditions that led to his firing at Allendale.

According to a story in the Detroit News, Erickson said that he was fired because he refused to flout the law and allow prayer in the school. In Owen-Gage his battle cry was that neighboring districts, especially Cass City, were trying to put Owen-Gage out of business.

An Allendale board member said that wasn't the case. He said that Erickson had divided the district and caused dissension. Visit Owen-Gage today, a year after he left, and you'll be hard pressed to find anyone without a definite opinion about Erickson. Both pro and con.

You have to ask if all of the fighting, the law cases and the name calling that marked the Erickson regime were really productive.

There's no answering that, of course. The opinion here is that a more rational approach might have worked to the advantage of all the districts involved. Certainly it would have been less expensive.

Residents in the Owen-Gage district have shown that they want their local school and, more important, have demonstrated that they are willing to pay to keep it. Given the falling land values and the lack of state funding, financial problems are probably still ahead.

Given the district's willingness to solve whatever problems they have faced, you have to believe that by hook or crook they will continue to have their own school.

They continued under the strife torn leadership of Erickson and under the less volatile tenure of Harley B. Kirby.

Owen-Gage survives because the people in the district won't let it die.

"If It Fitz..."

On the first tee...

By Jim Fitzgerald

On the first tee, where the bets are made, I explained why I would be playing unusually lousy golf and deserved special consideration, such as 2 strokes per hole. The other members of the foursome wouldn't believe all the terrible things that happened to me on my way to the golf course. You won't, either. But I swear every word that follows is the complete truth, so help me Tammy Bakker.

Actually, although the golf game was on Friday, the misery began on Wednesday. Because I hadn't played since last fall, I went to a driving range to knock the rust off my mighty swing. I hit 100 balls and raised a horrible blister on my right thumb.

I am one of the few right-hand golfers who own a right-hand glove as well as the widely used left-hand glove. I used to think it looked sissy to wear 2 golf gloves, but then I noticed that big league baseball players put special gloves on their hands for running the bases on their feet. And I decided I shouldn't be ashamed to wear 2 golf gloves, even if my opponents did ask if I were expecting a snowball fight.

But I left the right-hand glove in my car at the driving range. Two days later, the blister still hurt something awful and a lesser man would have canceled the golf match. However, I'd been watching the Pistons-Celtics basketball playoffs and was determined to play with pain. Perhaps my opponents would be shook into double bogies by the sight of my clenched-teethed grit, not to mention the bandage making a fearful bump in the Thumb of the right-hand glove that I would surely not forget a second time. The game was 40 miles north, at Indianwood Golf Club in Lake Orion. I decided to drive my World Series car — the 1977 Olds with 130,000 miles on it. Usually the only time I drive it is when I don't want Tigers fans to celebrate a world championship by setting my 1984 Olds on fire. But my wife was driving the newer car that morning, leaving home at the same time and going in the same direction, but 20 miles farther.

She passed me in Pontiac, waving happily, just 2 minutes before the radiator blew up and my World Series car stopped running. A passing motorist (Tom Hawthorne of Rochester, may Tammy Bakker bless him) took pity on an elderly fellow pounding his car hood and sobbing. He drove me to a phone where I arranged for a tow truck and for Jim Sherman to come rescue me.

Sherman publishes 5 newspapers a week in Oakland County (that's not much circulation but, then again, he doesn't need many paperboys). He is the poor fool who invited me to Indianwood. Sherman arrived at the busted-car scene in time to help me discover my trunk lock was broken and I couldn't get to my golf clubs, golf shoes and right-hand glove. Under those circumstances, I thought an appropriate solution was suicide. But Sherman insisted I play with clubs borrowed from a man named Pansy (this is still the complete truth, folks). In street shoes. In a right-hand glove purchased at Indianwood for $15, more than Michael Jackson pays for one glove, which only increased my agony.

It was decided the only fair thing to do was force each of the 3 other players to have me for a partner for 6 of the 18 holes. The winner turned out to be the guy who had me for the last 6 holes because by that time the 94-degree heat forced me to quit swinging and remain seated in the cart with my head in ice in a gin and tonic. The only decent drive (for me) I hit all day was lost because, in honor of my visit, Indianwood grew knee-high rough directly in front of many tees.

My World Series car is still in the repair shop, and my golf clubs are still trapped in the trunk. The plan is that my next golf game will be played the day after the Tigers win their next World Series.

Sherman had to drive me back home to Detroit. When I thanked him, he said he never wanted to see me again as long as I lived.

Warrant sought for area man after 2-car mishap

The Tuscola County Sheriff's Department reported a 2-car accident in Novesta Township June 2.

According to the report, Larry R. Wood, 1405 Crawford Rd., Deford, was northbound on Cemetery Road when a vehicle driven by John C. Bulla, 6777 Kelly Rd., Cass City, pulled out from a stop sign on Kelly Road into the path of Wood's vehicle.

Witnesses told deputies they saw Bulla walk away from the scene of the accident, the report stated. Bulla told deputies later he couldn't avoid the accident and he went for help, came back to the scene an hour later but the scene had been cleared. Deputies stated they were at the scene for an hour and 45 minutes.

The case is open pending a warrant for Bulla's arrest for leaving the scene of an accident.

Severe damage was reported in a 2-car accident in Unionville Friday.

Sharon K. Ahler, 7175 Main St., Owendale, was traveling on Center St. in the process of making a left turn onto Russell Street when a car driven by Anna M. Niedrich, 6402 Staley St., Unionville, collided in the rear with Ahler's vehicle, the report stated.

Niedrich told deputies she was unable to stop and avoid the accident. She was cited for failure to stop at a clear distance.

Niedrich's vehicle sustained moderate damage while Ahler's vehicle sustained severe damage.

Slight-to-moderate damage was reported in an accident in Gagetown June 8.

A Gagetown youth was eastbound on Center Street east of Lincoln Street when he bent down to pick up something that had dropped to the floor and collided with a parked vehicle belonging to Linda L. Roe, 4804 Center St., Gagetown.

No citation was issued. No injuries were reported in a car-deer accident in Novesta Township Saturday afternoon.

According to the report, Kenneth L. Orton, 5820 Severance Rd., Deford, was northbound on Dodge Road when a deer jumped from a ditch striking the passenger side of his vehicle.

BIG ACRE FERTILIZER PROGRAM FOR NAVY BEANS
* For High Yield and High Quality
Our Simple, One-Step Approach:
At planting, band 300 lbs. of BIG ACRE SUPERPEL 15-15-15.
Here are the benefits you'll receive from using BIG ACRE SUPERPEL 15-15-15 for your navy beans:
■ Your crop will be off to a fast start with SUPERPEL's nitrate nitrogen.
■ MSU recommends at least 40 lbs. of nitrogen per acre. You can obtain this level using BIG ACRE SUPERPEL 15-15-15 as we recommend.
■ SUPERPEL 15-15-15 contains stable nitrogen so that no toxic nitrite and ammonia buildup can take place. This can happen with use of blended fertilizer.
■ The acid fertilizer band of BIG ACRE SUPERPEL 15-15-15 and its localized nitrogen provide micronutrient availability.
■ SUPERPEL 15-15-15 nutrients are chemically combined resulting in greater nutrient utilization and uniform feeding.
■ BIG ACRE SUPERPEL is soluble so your plants respond quickly to faster nutrient availability.
OUR ALTERNATE PROGRAM:
Under some conditions, it is advantageous to use BIG ACRE SUPERPEL 21-7-14. Discuss with your BERGER AND COMPANY representative.
*All recommendations are pounds per acre.

New books at the library

THE FREE FRENCHMAN by Piers Paul Read (fiction). Beginning with the companionship of 2 classmates at a convent school in the 1890's and crystallizing with the marriage of their children, Bertrand de Roujou and Madeleine Bonnet, to each other, the narrative then follows Bertrand who becomes a wealthy Catholic government official whose acquaintances include communists, royalists and representatives of other bickering factions. With the arrival of the Nazis and the rise and fall of his own love affairs, Bertrand escapes to England, to become the free Frenchman of the title.

AMERICAN DREAMS by Norma Klein (fiction). This is the story of 4 New Yorkers distressed by uncertainties, tempestuous, romances and painful relationships with their parents. It spans 20 years, and consists of 4 sections, each focusing on a member of this quarter; every section begins with episodes from an evening in 1963, when Xenia, Jay, Susan and Conrad attend their Columbia University senior prom. Brassy, volatile Xenia mesmerizes Jay. Soon after they wed, he realizes that Xenia's effervescence and sensuality cannot compensate for her exasperating idolization of her father, whom she emulates by becoming a psychoanalyst. Jay, a reporter and short-story writer, experiences feelings of inadequacy intensified by his well-intentioned but unsophisticated parents. Handsome, seemingly self-assured Conrad, a homosexual, strives to conceal that fact from his highly conventional family, despite his lover's pressures to acknowledge their liaison. Susan, always meek and unobtrusive, earns accolades for her photography, but she is tormented by an inability to "fit in" anywhere.

A NICE CLASS OF CORPSE by Simon Brett (mystery). The story begins with Mrs. Pargeter moving into a "nice" hotel for "nice" elderly men and women. They conduct themselves according to a routine set by the prim owner, but which the new guest ignores. Interested in and curious about everyone in the place, Mrs. Pargeter ponders events following the fatal fall of one harmless old lady and the odd behavior of another. The forthright widow asks questions and gets answers that uncover startling facts about both the innocent and the guilty. Subtle hints on the source of the late Mr. Pargeter's fortune, a legacy to his beloved, add to some neat twists in the story.

Volunteers needed for fund raisers

Volunteers are being requested to help the Tuscola County Big Brothers/Big Sisters program raise capital through fund-raising activities being sponsored by the organization in the county this summer. There are 2 benefit car washes being planned; one for July 18 in Caro and the other for August 22 in Vassar. Each event will take place from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. with about 8 volunteers needed for each one-hour time period.

Tentative plans for the fourth annual Big Brothers/Big Sisters Slow-Pitch Softball Tournament are being made for July 31-August 2 in Reese. Both men's and women's teams are invited to participate in the benefit (double elimination) tournament. Trophies and T-shirts will be awarded for top finishing teams.

All proceeds generated by the benefit car washes and softball tournament events will be directed toward the operation of the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program in Tuscola County and will be used to identify and screen more volunteers to serve nearly 60 children waiting for Big Brothers or Big Sisters.

Tuscola County Big Brothers/Big Sisters, a United Way member agency, depends upon fund-raising activities and events (including the Second Chance Thrift Shop) and other contributions to raise money for its operational funds.

To volunteer to wash cars or register your team for the tournament, contact the program at 673-6996.

HEALTH TIPS

We must learn to measure stress

From the time they first met 8 years ago, Fred and Tami had been inseparable. Then, quite by accident, Fred's doctor found a lump under Fred's arm during a routine physical examination. It was soon diagnosed as lymphoma. Fred had less than a year to live. The cancer spread quickly to his vital organs, and he died shortly after surgery to remove the growth.

Tami became distraught. She refused to eat and couldn't sleep. One morning, only 2 weeks after Fred's death, Tami died. Cause of death unknown. Was it a "broken" heart? Remarkably, Fred and Tami were Siamese cats.

What Do People Think?

When a group of people were asked what they thought caused heart disease, 55 percent said stress and 24 percent bad diet. In fact, cardiovascular disease is a complex problem with multiple causes. Established primary risk factors include smoking, high blood pressure and elevated blood cholesterol levels. Yet it appears that these risk factors account only in part for the high incidence of heart disease in the United States.

The American Heart Association estimates that nearly one million people died of cardiovascular diseases in 1984. In about half of all patients treated for these diseases, the primary risk factors were not present at all. Heredity is one of the missing links. But is it possible that stress or other psychological factors provide other links?

"Since We Cannot Define Stress, We Cannot Measure It...Yet We Must"

One man's meat is another man's poison. Just so the causes of stress, which are identified variously according to the person experiencing it. But despite the difficulties involved in defining stress, researchers must do so in order to measure its effects scientifically. According to one definition, stress results when the demands put upon an individual exceed that person's ability to perform or function adequately. A difficult situation, for example, can produce a high degree of uncertainty, which in turn provokes extreme stress in some individuals.

Similarly, stress may be induced by the feeling that one has lost control over a situation or by the fear that one cannot ever establish control. In the British Civil Service, administrative supervisors often experience acute pressure in the course of carrying out their responsibilities, but heart disease is more common in the lower grades, where workers are not so pressed but have little control over their situation. Nonetheless, studies have shown that the negative impact stress can have on the cardiovascular system can be largely offset by a supportive, intimate relationship.

The Human Stress Response

The body reacts to short-term stress with the familiar "fight or flight" response. This primitive biological reaction occurs when your nervous system tells your body that something alarming is happening or is about to happen. It is triggered by the sympathetic nervous system and the adrenal glands (which produce the hormones norepinephrine and its relative, epinephrine, also known as adrenaline). A sudden release of adrenaline will produce an increase in heart rate, blood pressure, respiration, and muscle tone. Chronic stress can prolong some of these effects.

Other important physiological responses to stress include release of the sex hormones -- estrogen, testosterone and progesterone -- and the corticosteroids, such as cortisol. Exposure to excess corticosteroids during prolonged stressful periods can cause retention of sodium and water, resulting in acute attacks of high blood pressure. Emotional stress also causes blood platelets, which are involved in the clotting process, to become sticky and to adhere to the walls of blood vessels. This can be the first step to formation of a heart-attack-inducing clot. And it is an example of a direct mechanism whereby stress can cause a biological change that is clearly linked to cardiovascular disease.

Being a "Hot Number" May Not Be So Hot

The type A personality -- ambitious, competitive, hostile, time-pressured -- has, for some years, been thought to be at increased risk of developing cardiovascular disease compared with the more easy-going type B individual. However, stress reactions other than those associated with a person's apparent behavioral style may better predict vulnerability to cardiovascular disease.

Individuals can be categorized as either "hot" or "cold" reactors. Hot reactors experience blood vessel constriction and an increase in blood pressure and heart rate when confronted with routine but demanding tasks. Surprisingly, the type A personality does not necessarily exhibit a "hot" reaction to a taxing situation. Likewise, type B personalities are not always "cool" responders.

Hot reactors may learn to lessen this response through stress modification techniques such as biofeedback or relaxation-response training. Unfortunately, we note that many people who register normal blood pressure readings in the doctor's office are hot reactors in the more stressful situations common to everyday life.

Stress has also been implicated in cardiac arrhythmias and coronary artery spasms (constriction of blood vessels in the heart). Such cardiovascular irregularities can cause a sudden death or heart attack even in the absence of blockage in a coronary artery.

Anxiety After a Heart Attack

Once a patient has had a heart attack, anxiety (mostly about death) usually peaks in the first 2 days. In some patients, anxiety may cause a slowing of the heart rate and an alarming drop in blood pressure, instead of the expected stimulation. This paradoxical response is due to an excessive release of acetylcholine -- a chemical transmitter of nerve-cell messages -- from the parasympathetic nervous system. Ordinarily this system functions to conserve energy, counteracting the adrenalinelike effects of the sympathetic nervous system and slowing the heartbeat. (Both divisions of this part of the nervous system work automatically and are not under conscious control.)

After a heart attack, patients may find it difficult to sleep because of fear, anxiety or depression. Lack of sleep can slow recovery. In this situation, the patient may be given an anti-anxiety drug if excessive daytime anxiety persists.

The Threat of Untreated Anxiety

The relationship between the mind and the heart is both romantic and pragmatic. At one time, the heart was considered the center of a person's being. Today, we perceive the brain-heart relationship as central. The 2 are joined by complex biochemical systems that respond to subtle changes in the functioning of either organ. In this context, short-term anxiety can be viewed as a normal response to a stressful event or serious illness. But prolonged and unchecked anxiety can be the root of illness that cripples both heart and mind.

Your neighbor says

Easy to buy for fathers

It doesn't seem possible, but in a few short days Father's Day will be here.

Along with it comes the last minute brain-storming sessions to try to figure out what to get Dad, what the kids can do to make him feel like the day isn't really like any other day, it's Father's Day. After all, Mother's Day is special to Mom, so why shouldn't Dad's designated day be the same way?

Your neighbor, James R. "Doc" Johnson, says he thinks Mother's Day is a really big day for moms, but Father's Day is not necessarily big for dads.

"It seems to me that the mother's closer to the family because she's with the children all the time while the father's working," he said.

Johnson and his wife have 3 children and he said he worked in the construction industry for 35 years and there were times when he'd "be gone for a week at a time, so I couldn't be around all the time."

He grew up in Missouri, where on Father's Day the whole family usually got together.

"We lived by the river, so my father, my grandfather, uncles, and the whole family would go down to the river, went fishing and stuff and made a day of it that way," Johnson explained.

It may be easier to get gifts for a father than for a mother, he noted.

"With mothers, I think it's more of a job to get presents because you don't know what to get them. With fathers, you can get them work clothes and gloves, stuff like that," he explained.

Johnson, 73, is retired and lives at 6620 Third St. Besides his 3 children, he also has 5 grandchildren.

Lions usually spend 20 hours a day sleeping or resting.

Seek candidates for Tuscola Bean Queen

An opportunity awaits for several young ladies to vie for the Tuscola County Bean Queen crown for 1987, according to Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Director.

All contestants will receive a minimum of $50.00, and the winner will receive $100.00.

"The Tuscola County Bean Queen Committee is seeking candidates and would like to expand the small number of participants from the last 2 years. This would be an excellent opportunity for communities or groups to select a candidate from your area and submit her name to the committee," Bortel remarked.

Entry forms are available at the Cooperative Extension Service office in Caro, or at the County Farm Bureau office in Caro. The event will be held in connection with the Tuscola County Fair Wednesday evening, July 29. The deadline for entering the contest is July 15, and the following Monday evening, July 20, the contestants will be meeting with the judges for a dinner interview.

Rules for entering are as follows:
 1. Must be unmarried and a farmer's daughter, who has grown beans within the past 5 years.
 2. Age limitations -- 17 to 25, inclusive (as of July 1 the year of the contest).
 3. County Bean Queen of previous years, not eligible.
 4. Dress must be formal.
 5. An $8 check must accompany the entry blank by the sponsors to cover the cost of the contestant's corsage, which will be given to the girl the evening at the fair.

The Tuscola County Bean Queen Committee members are Mike and Mary Findlay of Caro, Jeff and Lorraine Harrington of Reese, Barry and Sally Hedley of Unionville and Brenda Ryan of Akron.

In warm weather

Food poisoning a threat

Don't let warm weather and the threat of food poisoning spoil your barbecue or picnic - store foods properly during summertime outings to reduce risks posed by salmonella bacteria, Michigan Department of Agriculture officials suggest.

"Warm temperatures, coupled with mishandling of foods on the part of picnickers, usually result in more food-borne illnesses," Dr. Edward Heffron, director of the MDA's Food Division said. "Generally, food should be kept hot, cold, or not at all."

Salmonella, the most common cause of food-borne illness, thrives in moist, high-protein foods which are stored in warm temperatures. Most bacteria multiply at temperatures between 110-140 degrees and can survive in temperatures from 70-140 degrees. The primary causes of salmonellosis are improper holding temperature, mishandling and improper cooking of foods.

Salmonella bacteria are most commonly found in meat, poultry, salads, and dairy products. Symptoms of salmonella poisoning usually appear 12-36 hours after ingestion and include vomiting, fever, and diarrhea.

According to Heffron, the risk of salmonella poisoning can be greatly reduced if consumers:

- Thoroughly cook all meat -- especially pork and poultry -- to an internal temperature of 165-170 degrees or until no part of the meat is pink.
- Avoid "counter-top thawing." Meats spoil approximately 4 times faster

- at room temperature than when refrigerated.
- Prevent cross-contamination by washing hands, utensils, and cutting boards with hot, soapy water between uses on different food products. Do not let surface-touching uncooked meat touch cooked meat until thoroughly washed.
- After cooking, store hot foods at 140 degrees or above and cold foods at 40 degrees or below until serving.
- Do not carry foods in the trunk of a car unless well-insulated in cold or hot containers. During picnics, leftovers can be preserved by wrapping in newspaper and storing in an insulated container.
- Do not keep leftovers unless they are held above 140 degrees or refrigerated within 2 to 3 hours.

As the winner of the award for his design of the Curwood Festival button, Tim Arvoy of Owosso rode in the festival parade last Saturday.

Hittlers co-host newcomer dinner

More than 60 men, women and children gathered for a Cass City newcomers' potluck dinner June 9.

Chairpersons were long-time residents Tom and Elaine Proctor, and Dan and Jane Hittler, who moved here last fall.

Held at the Hittler home, the newcomers provided most of the food. An international flair enhanced many dishes, as did the crowd. Some new neighbors are Paul and Lilly Cheng from Hong Kong, the Costin Dragneas from Hungary, Owsald and Juliet Baasch from Venezuela and the de Sainte Maries from France.

After enjoying each other's cuisine, Tom Proctor welcomed the guests and introduced various chamber board members and spouses. Included were Gerald and Geraldine Prieskorn, Georgine and Ken Jensen, Bob and Barbara Stickle, Bert and Holly Althaver, Dick and Mona Gorz, Mike and Toby Weaver and Chamber President Tom and Linda Heron.

Clerical newcomers present were the Rev. and Mrs. Randy Geary and family from the Church of God and the Rev. and Mrs. Charles Emmert and family from the Novesta Church of Christ. Bob Scott of Scott Motors and Don Dohn of Revive Carpet and Upholstery Cleaning Company represented new businessmen in Cass City.

Other families in attendance were the Tim Cummings, Pat and Jim Bess, the David Dyers, Col. (retired) Stan Beach, the Craig Guernseys and Dave Miller, as well as the Dan Derfyns and Alice Guernsey, guest supporters. Other newcomers were the Mike Krapewnicki and Jim Ceranski families. Looking to the future, the group will have a picnic for anyone new in Cass City at the city park in July.

File now for disaster loans

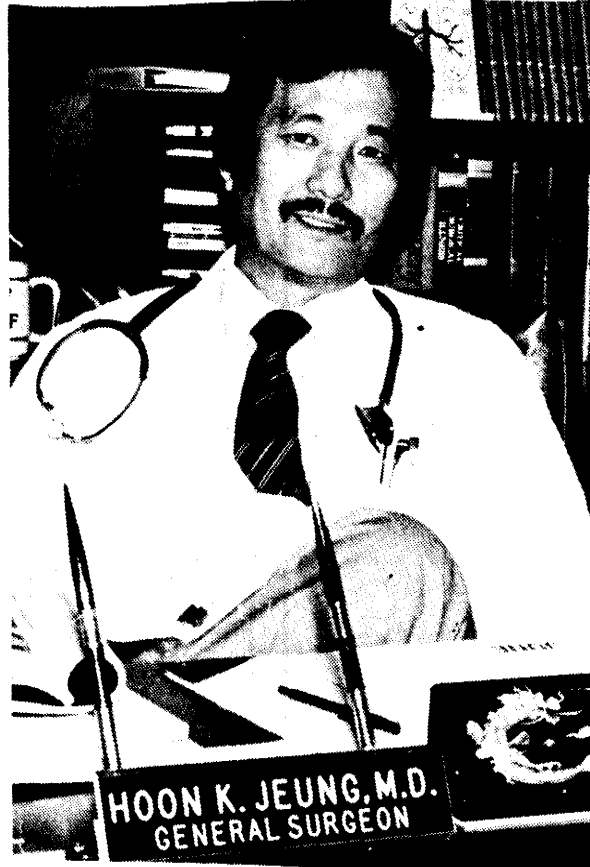

Changes in disaster relief assistance places farm producers under rigid time line to make final applications for disaster relief.

The Michigan Disaster Relief No Interest Loan program will end June 30, 1987, at which time all applications must have been processed. This means that those wanting to apply under this program will need to apply prior to the deadline to allow the agency time to process the application.

"The new twist to the state disaster relief program is that alfalfa producers can apply for loans based on losses of established alfalfa fields," Dennis Stein, Tuscola County Extension Agricultural Agent, said. A complete loss of an alfalfa field could mean up to $25/acre value, which can be used for qualifying for disaster relief. Use of the Michigan Disaster Relief program loans can benefit farm producers by lowering debt payments for the next 36 months. However, after the 36-month period, the debts return to a normal payback schedule.

"It is very important for all farm producers to take advantage of any relief program that may improve cashflow," Stein explained. This may not be the greatest answer, but it may help ease the load.

On the Federal level, it looks like producers who were prevented in planting wheat last fall will be able to take part in a 0/92 program. More information on this program will be released from the ASCS office when details have been completed.

CASS CITY physician Hoon K. Jeung recently was elected a Fellow in general surgery by the International College of Surgeons.

Dr. Jeung elected to College of Surgeons

A Cass City physician is among some 150 doctors from 50 countries who were recently elected fellows by the International College of Surgeons.

Dr. Hoon K. Jeung, 48, received the honor, which recognizes excellence in the field of medicine, during a special ceremony in Washington, D.C. April 1.

Dr. Jeung, who specializes in general surgery, previously was named a Fellow by the American College of Surgeons Oct. 28, 1982.

"I really enjoy the area, that's why I'm here," Dr. Jeung said in a recent interview in his office, located at 6230 Hospital Drive. He remarked that a misconception held by some persons is that physicians who practice in rural areas, such as the Thumb, are less qualified than doctors in cities such as Detroit or Saginaw.

Dr. Jeung began his practice in Cass City July 1, 1976 after completing his internship and residency at hospitals in Chicago, Ill., and Saginaw. Dr. Jeung graduated from Korea University Medical School in 1966.

He and his wife Yun H. have 2 sons; Andrew, a sophomore in a pre-med program at the University of Michigan, and Jeffrey, who will be a freshman at Cass City High School in the fall. The family resides in Cass City.

To boost tourism

Campaign for after Labor Day opening for schools

The Michigan State Chamber of Commerce recently announced plans to participate in an effort to launch a state-wide petition drive relating to a post Labor Day school opening in Michigan.

A post Labor Day school opening would increase travel by about 15%, according to Phil Guyeskey, state chamber manager of Small Business Programs. He pointed out that based on figures from the Michigan Travel Bureau, a 15% increase would boost direct travel expenditures by some $25 million.

"This would be quite a shot in the arm to one of the state's largest industries -- tourism. It also would help to further diversify Michigan's economy, increase tax revenues to the state, provide additional employment opportunities and allow families to better plan vacations," Guyeskey said.

Guyeskey noted that the state chamber is one of the members of the Say Yes to Michigan Tourism Committee. He said the committee is made up of a variety of statewide businesses and groups which have actively planned, endorsed and funded the petition effort.

Other groups participating in the committee include the Michigan Boating Industries, Michigan Association of Private Campground Owners, and various local chambers of commerce, convention and visitors bureaus and regional tourist associations and bureaus.

Private businesses participating in the petition drive include Bronner's Christmas Wonderland, Shepler's Mackinac Island Ferry, Arnold Transit, Star Line, Soo Locks Boat Tours and the Frankenmuth

Bavarian Inn. Guyeskey explained that because there has been a lack of legislative action to date, the committee was formed to undertake the petition effort. The goal is to secure 240,000 signatures by the end of November. If the petition drive succeeds, the Legislature would then have 40 session days in which to act on the issue.

Guyeskey pointed out that according to the results of a recent survey of Michigan voters, the opening of schools after Labor Day enjoys strong broad-based support from various geographical areas (including Detroit), party affiliations (Republicans, Democrats and Independents) and employee types (blue and white collar).

In the event the Legislature doesn't take positive action, the question of a post Labor Day school opening would appear on the ballot in November 1988.

Guyeskey urged interested voters to call the Say Yes to Michigan Tourism Committee at 1-800-332-MICH for more information and to obtain petitions.

Few summer jobs available for students

Matt Jones and Shannon McIntosh have both been working for the village for a few years. McIntosh, 18, daughter of Dale and Lynda McIntosh, 6824 Houghton, started working at the park the summer of 1983. For the last week of the summer season at the pool she was asked to serve as a lifeguard since some of the regulars had left for college. She continued as a substitute lifeguard in 1984 and went to a full-time lifeguard in 1985. McIntosh said she had earned her lifesaving card but there were not openings at the pool so she started working at the village "because, I needed some money." She earned her Water Safety Instructor's (WSI) card in 1985. A WSI is required in order to become a full-time lifeguard, Director Laura Richards said. Jones, 19, son of Gary and Doris Jones, 6809 Herron Dr., said he started swimming at the pool when it opened in 1976 and when he was 15, the director at the time encouraged him into taking the lifesaving course to receive his card. He earned his WSI in early 1986. Both lifeguards were named assistant directors at the pool last week, Richards said. "We felt those 2 would be the best to take the positions since at least one of the directors is leaving and we wanted to let them have some responsibility before taking over as directors next year," she said. Jones is a sophomore at Central Michigan University and McIntosh will be attending Ferris State College in the fall, so they were probably lucky to find a job in an area they liked. "I'm going into elementary education. I like the kids," McIntosh said. "I like swimming a lot and I really like the job," Jones remarked. Other Cass City teenagers may not be so lucky as they start looking for summer employment.

Public Works, 10 in the pool area and 2 students working in the waste-water treatment plant, she explained. The village hired about the same number of students this year as last. For young people seeking employment at a service station or party store, the ones asked reported no openings. Clare Mellendorf of Clare's Sunoco said his sophomore-aged son is on the cooperative program and is working with him this summer and they won't be hiring anyone else. Kim Anthony, owner and manager of Anthony's Party Store, said he had hired summer help last year, but has hired enough full-time employees not to warrant hiring part-time temporary help. Young women seeking a job sometimes may be able, if qualified, to work in a beauty salon. Helen's Beauty Salon isn't hiring anyone at the present time, said owner Helen Agar. This past academic year there were over 100 students enrolled at the Tuscola County Skill Center, according to a spokesman. The students work for $20 a day and receive high school credit besides, the spokesman added.

Around the state, however, seasonal hiring was the major contributing factor in the state's employment rate slipping from 8.6 percent in April to 8.1 percent in May, according to Richard Simmons, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission. The number of residents finding work grew by 43,000, an all-time state high.

LOCAL LIFEGUARDS Shannon McIntosh (left) and Matt Jones teach 4 youngsters how to swim in the Cass City Park pool. They are 2 of the 10 lifeguards, and 2 of 17 students working for the village.

General Cable won't be hiring anyone on a part-time or temporary basis this summer, according to Industrial Relations Manager John Cooper. "Last year we hired some people for the summer but this year we don't have the jobs available," he explained.

There are between 10 and 15 college-bound or college attending students working in the business offices this summer at Walbro Corporation, Human Relations Director Don Tonti said. "All those positions are taken and they were limited to individuals attending college in the fall. We hired the same this year as last year," he added. The number of inquiries for positions has remained the same as in past years, he noted. The village currently has all its summer positions filled, village secretary Rona Hillaker said. "We hire students both from high school age and college age," she said. There are 2 students working in the arts and crafts area, 4 in the park area for the Department of

O-G Schools to end 1986-87 year in black

Tentative budget figures for 1987-88 were reviewed briefly and adopted by the Owen-Gage Board of Education during a special meeting Monday night. School Supt. Harley B. Kirby presented both an amended 1986-87 spending plan and a preliminary proposal for 1987-88. According to figures provided by the superintendent, revenues for the 1986-87 fiscal year, which ends June 30, totalled $1.49 million, while expenditures were $1.42 million.

Revenues projected at this time for 1987-88 total $1.48 million, with expenditures set at $1.41 million, Kirby told the board. He cautioned that the figures don't represent actual totals as certain revenue, such as that received from federal sources, is not known yet. Adoption of a preliminary budget by boards of education by June 30 is a state requirement, he noted.

Questions also were raised about a drop in expenditures for drivers education from $4,000 to $500. Kirby remarked that the drop is a result of using one vehicle instead of 2, and consideration of a program in which certain students would not be required to complete 6 hours of driving time as part of the course. Kirby noted that many Owen-Gage students begin driving at an early age on family farms. Some of those students may not need all 6 hours, although all students need the 30 hours of classroom time. He added, "I know some kids are going to need more time" behind the wheel. Kirby noted that the district drivers education costs are among the highest locally, with 2 instructors each receiving $11 per hour.

district will be assured of needed cash flow in the first week of July. Considering problems experienced recently with county delinquent tax revolving funds, he said, the district can't depend on receiving an expected $204,000 in delinquent taxes by that time. "If we don't get it (delinquent taxes) by the first week of July...we'll be having some cash flow problems," he added. Aside from eliminating the risk of a pay-less pay day July 10, borrowing from the authority is an advantage in that you have someone who will buy your notes, Kirby said, adding that the interest rate is expected to be about 5 percent, with a maximum rate of 5.5 percent. Also Monday, the board met in executive session to discuss teacher contract negotiations, and set its annual organizational meeting for 7:13 p.m. July 13, prior to the board's monthly meeting.

Copeland hurt while training race horse

A Cass City man sustained several injuries in a harness racing accident over the weekend at the Bad Axe Fairgrounds. Robert J. Copeland, 4685 Hospital Drive, was listed in "stable" condition Tuesday morning at Huron Memorial Hospital. Although few details were available early this week, a family member said that Copeland was jogging a horse Sunday at the fairgrounds when he was thrown off the cart he was riding in. Copeland, a co-owner of Copeland and Gornowicz Insurance Agency, Inc., Cass City, sustained a broken hip, shattered knee and broken ribs in the mishap.

Earlier this month, the board approved borrowing on the district's full 41 mills, which would total $705,000, but Kirby said he believes $600,000 will be adequate. The superintendent pointed out that by going through the authority, the result of the cooperative effort which involves participation from other law enforcement agencies as well as the public. Knuth said the best and cheapest way to prevent marijuana from reaching the streets is to stop it at the source. Locally, some 464 marijuana plants (8 plots) were harvested in early September in Vassar Township after the plants were spotted by the Saginaw County Sheriff's Drug Enforcement plane. The State Police, Knuth noted, recognize the difficulty in identifying and apprehending individuals involved in the this illegal activity, and the public is being asked to assist. Transportation dept. slates bridge work

Bids were put out last week on bridge and road projects slated for several Michigan counties, including Tuscola and Huron, the Michigan Department of Transportation announced. In Tuscola County, plans are set for removal of a bridge and construction of a concrete box beam bridge and approach work on Vassar Road over Gooding Creek and approaches on Bray Road over the Cass River. The work is expected to be completed in November. In Huron County, an existing bridge will be removed and a concrete plank bridge and approach work constructed on Berne Road over Bad Axe Drain. Also planned is removal of 2 existing structures and construction of a concrete plank bridge and approach work on Haist Road over the Pigeon River and the Pigeon River Overflow. The work is expected to be finished in July 1988.

Ag Field Day set July 11

Area beef, dairy and sheep producers may be interested in attending Michigan State University's Livestock-Forage Field Day, slated for July 11 at Lake City, located about 15 miles northeast of Cadillac.

"The program is designed to help producers improve their forage and livestock management techniques," Harlan Ritchie, MSU Extension animal science specialist said. "Anyone who produces forage and/or is involved in ruminant animal production is encouraged to attend." Producers are invited to bring one dry hay sample for a free NIRS feed value analysis. The event, to be held at MSU's Lake City Research Station, is scheduled to begin with registration at 9:30 a.m. Admission is free, while lunch will be available for a nominal fee.

Operation HEMP

Area residents asked to tip police on pot plantings

Michigan State Police officials are again asking area residents, as well as persons across the state, to participate in Operation HEMP as another seasonal attack on marijuana planting gets underway in Michigan. According to Detective Lt. Michael Knuth, project coordinator, planting of the illegal crop is an annual problem throughout the area and state. "We do get a significant number of plants out of Tuscola County," he remarked, adding that while southwest lower Michigan appears to yield the largest marijuana crop, other areas in the state produce a substantial number of plants. Last year, nearly 50,000 plants were destroyed as a

The "Beaver." Unlike most mammals, a beaver never stops growing. According to Ranger Rick magazine, the biggest beaver found in recent times weighed over 66 pounds! But that's puny compared to the beavers that lived 10,000 years ago. Some of them grew to be the size of grizzly bears!

Voters to decide 1-mill tax request

Residents in the Tuscola Intermediate School District's 9 local school systems, including Cass City, have until 5 p.m. Monday to register for a special election slated for July 20.

Voters are being asked to approve an additional one mill for the intermediate school district for operation of programs for handicapped students.

The request is a charter millage, in effect until voted out, and would raise some $690,000.

According to Al Mahan, assistant Superintendent of Special Education with the district, the millage, if approved, would be used to maintain the quality of programs now offered to some 1,300 handicapped students in the county.

He pointed out that plummeting land values, decreases in the state and federal governments' share of the cost of special education and increases in the cost of special education have led to financial problems for the district.

"We're obviously having some difficulty in making ends meet," he remarked, adding that a decline in the enrollment of Caro Regional Center students (non-resident severely mentally impaired persons) also has meant a reduction in revenues to the district. The number of resident handicapped students, meanwhile, has experienced a steady increase.

Mahan noted that by law, all special education students are to receive the education and other services they need from birth through age 26. In 1982, he said, the state's share of the Tuscola special education budget was 42 percent; last year it was 26 percent. The federal government's share has dropped from 13 percent in 1982 to 9 percent currently.

SHRINKING FUNDS

The district currently levies 1.6 mills, which raised about $1.35 million in the 1986-87 school year, Mahan continued, adding that officials have been forced to dip into fund equity—an average of $300,000 to $350,000 in each of the past 3 years.

"As of July 1, 1988, we would be facing a near $60,000 fund equity to run a $3 million program" if the millage doesn't pass, he commented.

Mahan, who said the additional mill would cost $22.50 per year to an average homeowner in Tuscola County with a $45,000 house, added that rejection of the special request would leave the district with few alternatives.

"It's a 2-edged sword," he commented. "I would probably be able to cut 3 programs; music, physical education and aquatics. I don't make any bones about (not) wanting to cut them out."

Mahan said that cutting the 3 programs probably would save an estimated $100,000, compared to an expected budget deficit in the 1987-88 school year of $345,000. All other programs offered by the district are mandated by the state or federal governments, he said.

A similar situation, he observed, is staff cuts. Five professional and 3 para-professional positions were laid off this year, and now district officials expect to be forced by mandate to add 2 para-professional positions (speech therapists) to the staff.

EAST CASS CITY resident Rudell Ratz (above) hasn't minded regular visits from this opossum, who has raided cat food at the residence over the past several months. But when the mammal showed up last week with a family (12 to 14 babies), Ratz decided to coax the toothy mother and babies into a cage and call the Department of Natural Resources for help.

Cass City girl, 8, bruised in off-road vehicle accident

An 8-year-old Cass City girl was released from Hills and Dales General Hospital Sunday after the 4-wheel off-road vehicle she was driving hit a washout and rolled over her near her home Friday evening.

Brenda Lounsbury sustained only bruises in the accident, which occurred on Elmwood Road west of Crane Road at about 6:50 p.m.

Brenda's vehicle was traveling behind another off-road vehicle driven by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norris L. Lounsbury, 3996 Dodge Rd., at the time of the mishap.

According to a Cass City Police report, she was eastbound on Elmwood Road when she hit a washout and drove into a ditch on the south side of the road. The vehicle she was driving then rolled over her.

She was not wearing a helmet, police said.

Also reported during the past week were 2 accidents involving vehicles owned by Richard and Janice Hunt, 6549 Main St.

Janice Hunt was involved in a 3-car mishap Friday evening on Main Street west of Sherman Street. According to the report, Hunt was eastbound on Main Street when she struck from behind a vehicle driven by Selma A. Schulz, 6242 River Rd. Upon impact, Schulz's vehicle struck from behind a vehicle driven by Jack L. Callender, Marlette, who was stopped at the intersection and was preparing to turn north onto Sherman Street.

No citation was issued in the accident, which resulted in minor damage to all 3 vehicles.

Richard Hunt also filed a report. He told police that his son parked the family car behind their store, 6549 Main St., June 10, and later discovered a dent in the passenger's side.

Mark D. Ackerman reported that someone struck his vehicle Saturday while parked in the alley behind Old Wood Drug Store, 6498 Main St.

Ackerman said he discovered the minor damage after returning to his residence, but indicated he's sure the vehicle was struck while parked behind the store.

Next year, if Speaker Jim Wright of Texas will leave the rates alone, the top rate will be 28%.

In spite of the lower tax rates this year--and even lower next year--tax-exempt bonds are still a better buy for any couple making over $28,000 a year.

The table above shows you'd have to have a taxable yield of 11.13% to beat a tax-exempt bond yielding just 8%.

There aren't any quality corporate bonds yielding 11.13%. Yields are more like 9.5% to 10% at this writing early in June.

We haven't considered state income taxes in the above figures. That would make tax frees even more attractive.

Thirty-five of the 50 states tax municipal bonds issued outside their own state. That's a point worth considering. In Minnesota, Hawaii, New York, West Virginia, Connecticut, Montana, California, Maine, Massachusetts,

Drive charge brings arrest

A 21-year-old Akron man was arrested June 4 in Wells Township by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

Brady was arrested and lodged in the Tuscola County jail.

transportation and tools, while the state grant would be used to pay the salary of a supervisor for the inmates, according to Polk.

Also Tuesday, commissioners approved an Aug. 1 merger of the substance abuse programs offered by Community Mental Health and the Department of Public Health.

Under the proposal, CMH will provide all substance abuse services out of offices provided by the Department of Public Health.

Currently, CMH provides drug abuse counseling, while the Department of Health offers alcohol counseling and screening services.

ESTABLISH TAX FUND

A motion to establish a Delinquent Tax Administration Fee Fund was approved by the board.

The fund as provided by state law allows the county treasurer to take a portion of returned earnings from the Delinquent Tax Revolving Fund and use those monies to cover administration costs, Hoagland explained.

In a related matter, the board approved a motion to continue on a full-time basis a position in the treasurer's office which previously was responsible for conducting a summer tax collection.

The action is effective June 29 through the end of 1987, with review of continuing the position for 1988.

Hoagland said funding for the position will be covered by money in the Delinquent Tax Administration Fee Fund.

SPLIT VOTE

The board on a 4-2 vote approved appropriating funds to the probate court budget sufficient to raise the probate judge recorder's salary to the level now received by the district court recorder.

According to County Clerk Elsie Hicks, the difference in the 2 salaries is about $2,000.

Commissioner Michael Green and board Chairman William A. Worth cast the "no" votes, while Commissioner Christopher Taylor abstained.

Commissioners approved continuing the Troubled Youth Program through 1987, but did not approve additional funding for the program, operated through the Cooperative Extension Service.

The board indicated it will conduct a budgetary review of the program at the end of the year.

A Tax Increment Financing Plan and Downtown Development Plan for Kingston received the board's blessing.

Hoagland explained that the plan allows funds resulting from an increase in state equalized valuation due to improvements in the village to be used to retire debts related to such improvements.

The board also approved a county seal designed by 1987 Vassar High School graduate Fred Reinfelder; okayed a resolution sponsoring an industrial survey in cooperation with the Tuscola County Economic Development Corporation and Michigan Bell; heard and accepted an annual report presented by Bill Bortel, director of the Cooperative Extension Service; went into a 40-minute executive session to discuss personnel matters; granted approval to the Community Health Board, allowing employees to participate in a deferred compensation plan; approved third quarter appropriations to the Health Department and Veterans Affairs office of $53,750 and $2,733, respectively, and approved a second quarter payment of $72,500 for probate court child care.

Retirement planning

People who plan to retire in the near future naturally are concerned about their post-retirement income once they are no longer employed, William T. Clynes, Social Security manager in Saginaw, said recently.

Social Security can provide an immediate answer to this question for people 60 and over. All they have to do is call the Saginaw office and ask, Clynes said.

People under 60 can also get an estimate of their benefits, but it will take a little longer. Those in this group can obtain a free form, "Request for Statement of Earnings," fill it out and mark it to show they want a benefit estimate, and mail it.

A retired worker and his or her spouse can get full monthly payments if they wait until 65 to start receiving benefits. The length of time a person must have worked in employment or self-employment covered by Social Security to be eligible for benefits depends on the person's year of birth. But no one ever needs more than 10 years of credit for work under Social Security, Clynes explained.

People who would like more information about estimating benefits should contact the Saginaw Social Security office. The office is located at the corner of East Genesee and North Warren Streets. The telephone number is 754-4311.

S. Agar at naval school

Stephen Agar

A 1979 Cass City High School graduate, Agar was assigned to his new post after attending instructors school in Newport, R.I.

He joined the Navy in November 1979, and was assigned to the USS Dixie in San Diego, Calif., after completing basic training. After the ship was decommissioned, he was assigned as a corpsman at the San Diego Naval Hospital. Agar's second enlistment included being assigned as a corpsman with the Marine Corps at Camp Lejeune, N.C., for 3 years.

Agar, 26, is the son of William J. and Joann F. Agar, 5965 Shabbona Rd., Decker.

ROSEBUD STANDS her ground against Tasha, one of 2 Siamese cats owned by the Hendricks. The pets, which have tolerated each other to date, don't know what to make of one another, Hendrick says.

that would be the end of it, Hendrick said.

"Anybody I've talked to says they make terrific pets," he said, adding that baby skunks are taken from their mothers very early because mother skunks teach their offspring to be "nasty."

Hendrick indicated that he's been faced with some interesting dilemmas in terms of raising Rosebud, who appears to never run out of energy, or curiosity. "She just doesn't sit down; she's on the move all the time," he said.

Food was a major problem up until recently because Rosebud showed little interest in a bottle. "It was just by chance we were having a custard roll from Sommers' Bakery," Hendrick explained, adding that Rosebud really went after the custard. So, he continued, custard mixed with formula has solved the problem for now.

BATHS NO PROBLEM

On the other hand, baths, a must with an animal who sits in its dinner while dining, haven't been a problem. "I put her right in the bathtub and turn on the water," Hendrick commented. "She just walks around."

Hendrick said that his cats don't appear to be sure of what to think of Rosebud, whose interaction with her housemates has been limited to brief confrontations. "Their (skunks') eyesight is very bad. When they come up to something, they stomp their feet. Their sense of smell is their strong point," Hendrick noted.

"The only thing worrying us now is house breaking her. With skunks, I was told, you set out 2 or 3 (litter) boxes and they choose which one they want to use," Hendrick said. He added that the animals usually pick an out-of-the-way location.

"My wife said, 'I'll tell you one thing, she (Rosebud) isn't going to select it... where I'm working.'"

School offers gymnastics

A summer gymnastics course for area children aged 4 through 10 years is slated to begin July 13 at the Cass City High School balcony, Cass City Community Education officials announced.

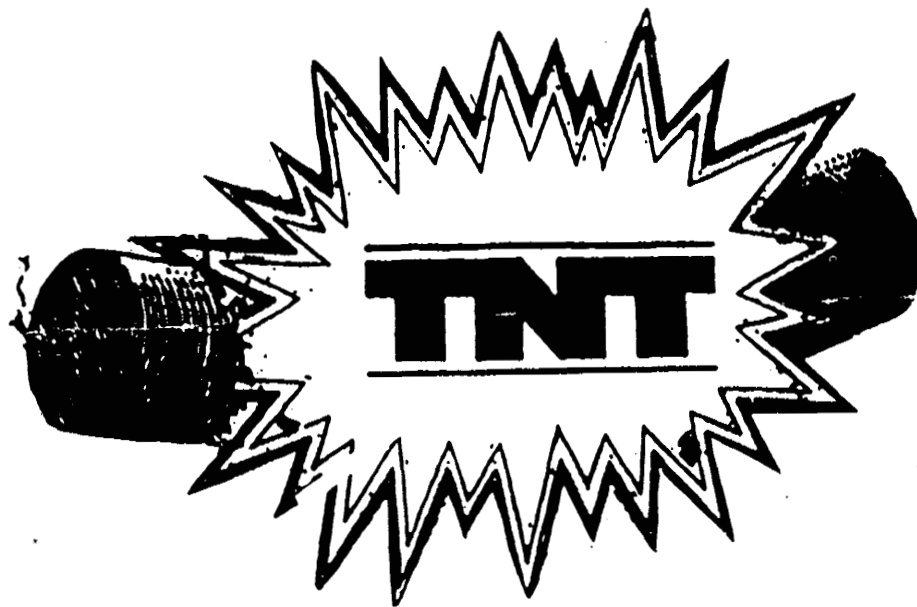

The deadline for registration, available by calling the education office at 872-4151, is July 6.

The class, open to boys and girls, will introduce students to gymnastics for fun, fitness and coordination. Students will also be introduced to the terminology and apparatus associated with the sport.

The 50-minute sessions will be held Mondays and Wednesdays for 3 weeks, with times to be determined at a later date.

A fee will be charged for the class.
