Report brisk sidewalk sales

Comments from local merchants were generally good about the success of last week's annual sidewalk sales promotion, marked this year by normal summer weather that seemed temperate compared to the heat wave endured during sidewalk sales last year.

The sidewalk sales got off to a brisk start opening day Wednesday, with a lull in the heat wave from the previous week and this week.

"I feel that through the comments I've gotten from some of the merchants that things went very well this year," said Cindy McConkey, co-chairman of the sales promotion with Bill Kritzman of Kritzman's and Dawn Vandemark of Dawn's Country Casuals.

"For us (McConkey's) it was very good, especially on Wednesday. It started brisk and stayed good into the evening," McConkey said.

"It was kind of slow Saturday but that's natural anyway," she noted.

Kritzman was just as encouraging in his appraisal. "For my store it was real good. It was one of the better years for us," he said.

Tom Proctor, owner of Old Wood Drug, Inc., said sales were about normal.

"It's difficult for drug stores - we don't have clothing and clothing's what usually sells. It was good on Wednesday and then tetered off," he explained.

"We had a good sale and we had a lot of fun," he remarked.

Mike Weaver, owner of Coach Light Pharmacy, said "Generally speaking it went real well.

"It was a good year - we had tons of merchandise and stuff like fans did well and we had a good mix."

Geraldine Prieskorn, co-owner of Ben Franklin store, said "sales-wise we were ahead of last year.

The weather was nice and there were no problems."

"We sold a lot of children's clothing, domestics and summer clothing. Anything for warm weather."

Okay '15' tax in light vote

A charter one-mill request for the Tuscola Intermediate School District was approved by voters Monday by 58 votes, according to unofficial tallies reported Tuesday morning.

The unofficial count is 798 "yes" votes, 740 "no" votes, and 5 spoiled votes. The turnout, as expected, was low, with 1,543 residents casting ballots.

Despite approval, voters in 5 of the intermediate district's local districts, including Cass City, rejected the request, which will remain in effect until voted out.

Districts rejecting the request were Cass City (72-108), Caro (197-215), Akron-Fairgrove (41-73), Kingston (33-37) and USA (69-148). Approval of the measure was posted by voters in the Mayville district (68-54-5 spoiled), Millington (142-57) and Vassar (145-17). Voters in the Reese district, meanwhile, tied at 31-31.

The millage, to be used for operation of programs for some 1,300 handicapped students, is expected to raise about $690,000, according to intermediate school officials.

Approval of the additional mill brings the intermediate district's levy to 2.6 mills. The district's 1.6 mill levy raised $1.35 million in the 1986-87 school year, but a dwindling fund equity has raised concerns among officials, who have cited an expected fund equity of $60,000 July 1, 1988, without the millage increase.

Diving land values, decreases in the state and federal governments' shares of the cost of special education and increases in the cost of running the programs are blamed for the district's financial difficulties.

Intermediate school district officials were unavailable for comment prior to press time.

$19,625 hospital grant

Hills and Dales to use money to install computerized energy system

Plans for a computerized energy system at Hills and Dales General Hospital, expected to net some $13,500 in savings annually, will soon be reality following news that the hospital has been awarded a $19,625 grant.

The Cass City hospital is one of 39 Michigan schools and hospitals recently awarded matching-fund grants by the U.S. Department of Energy, U.S. Senator Donald Riegle announced.

The grants are designed to help institutions better control future energy costs.

While 2 types of grants were awarded—one for technical assistance audits and the other for the purchase and installation of energy-saving devices—the work slated at Hills and Dales will involve both areas, administrator Ken Jensen said.

Jensen explained that the grant, to be matched with hospital funds, will be used to install a computerized system capable of automatically controlling air, heating, exhaust, water circulation and other energy functions.

"It will be a fully computerized system," he added. "When there's a demand, (the system) will turn it on; when there isn't a demand, it will turn it off."

The total project cost is set at $39,250, with installation expected to take about 2 months to complete, according to Jensen, who said a starting date for the work hasn't yet been slated.

He noted that the energy system is expected to pay for itself in about 2 1/2 years, with natural gas savings expected to total $7,000 per year and electricity, $6,500 annually.

"We are delighted. We gave it (the grant) our best shot," Jensen remarked, adding that the funds will provide a head start in making the hospital more energy efficient.

The 39 grants provided by the Department of Energy total some $1.57 million. Applications were made through the state of Michigan, which ranked them and made recommendations to the Department of Energy offices.

Walbro 2nd quarter sales, earnings up

L.E. Althaver, chairman, president and chief executive officer, Walbro Corporation, reported sales from continuing operations of $30,876,000 for the second quarter ended June 30, compared with $23,938,000 for the same period in 1986. Income from continuing operations for the second quarter was $2,037,000 compared with $1,037,000 in 1986.

Wet fall, dry summer hurt

Wheat yields lower but quality good

by Chris Murray

Wheat yields on area farms are somewhat lower than normal due to fall rains and June's dry spell.

The quality of the grain is higher than last year, though.

Almost 80 percent of Tuscola County's wheat has been harvested and yields have been averaging 10-20 bushels per acre below normal, said County Extension Agent Bill Bortel.

"Normally we run 60-70 bushels but this year it's been running around 50-60 bushels," he remarked.

There have been little or no disease problems in the wheat harvested.

"The quality of the grain is above normal. There hasn't been much diseased wheat in this year's harvest," he said.

The straw from wheat stems is shorter than normal this year, too, largely due to the drought.

"With the extreme drought, the plants weren't that high this year," Bortel noted.

Dick Shaw, field representative at Berger and Co. elevator in Cass City, said newly harvested wheat from area farmers "is not really too bad in our test weights. They're running 60-70 pounds weight, while 50 is a good test weight."

"There've been a few shrunken kernels, but not enough to make a big difference."

Even though the grain is good, the yields haven't been up to par this year, he added.

"It was too wet last fall and too dry in the spring. Last fall the wheat got in late because of the rain and it had problems in the winter," Shaw remarked.

Shaw agreed that the straw is generally shorter this year, but he gave another reason for its lack of height.

"The varieties of wheat used now have shorter straws than the varieties used 10 years ago, but it still is shorter than normal," he explained.

The wheat harvest in Sanilac County is about a week ahead of schedule, with more than 50 percent of the wheat harvested, said agricultural agent Martin Nagelkirk.

"We hope by the end of the week, with no rain predicted, that the rest of the wheat will be harvested," he said.

The yields in Sanilac fields have ranged from very good to very poor.

"Some farmers have said they've been getting 60-80 bushels per acre, while some are getting as low as 25 bushels per acre. It's a very broad range in our area and it's hard to even guess an average until it's all in," Nagelkirk explained.

The range in yields can be attributed to the wide range of precipitation in that county over the past 2 months.

"Some areas have gotten close to normal rainfall, while others have gotten almost none," he said.

The quality of the grain has been quite good in Sanilac County too.

"Part of it is the lack of moisture keeps it from molding and mildewing.

New attractions, old favorites set for 106th Tuscola County Fair

Tuscola County Fair workers this week are painting, setting up and putting the final touches on preparations for the 106th annual event, one of the state's oldest fairs, set to begin Sunday night.

The 7-day extravaganza, spread across some 40 acres at the fairgrounds in Caro, is expected to again draw about 40,000 persons.

Highlighting this year's fair are a number of new attractions, including free grandstand admission July 26, 27, 28, and 29.

According to Walt Jackson, president/manager of the fair for the past 18 years, grandstand admission will be charged July 30, 31 and Aug. 1, traditionally the fair's busiest days. Among the top draws during that period are the demolition derby (7:30 p.m. Thursday), tractor pulling (1 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Friday) and motorcycle racing (6 p.m. Saturday), he said.

Both new and old entertainment groups will greet spectators this year, with a renowned trapeze/aerial artist leading the list. New to the Tuscola County fair, Tino Wallenda Zoppe will perform shows twice daily (1:30 and 7:30 p.m.) Monday through Saturday.

Also new is John Patrick's Country Western

Band, led by former Caro resident John Patrick, who regularly works with a band based out of Nashville, Tenn., and has 2 songs on the national music charts. Patrick, the son of John and Veda Timko of Caro, will perform at 8 p.m. Tuesday with a band he formed locally especially for the fair.

Also slated to perform is Cedar Point-The Amazeement Park Revue, a 10-member band featuring 45 minutes of variety and top 40 hits beginning at 8 p.m. Wednesday. This is the group's second Tuscola fair appearance.

Jackson said other popular fair attractions will continue as they have in past years. A total of $25,000 in premiums is expected to be paid out on 4-H and open class exhibits. About 600 4-H exhibitors are expected, while 500 persons are set to participate in the open class, he added.

Four days of harness racing, a crowd pleaser, will again be held, with races slated for 8 p.m. Monday and 2 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday.

A special event—displays on Michigan civil war volunteers—will be held near the grandstand all day Thursday in honor of Michigan's 150th birthday.

Christene Ackerman, Tuscola County's 1986 Bean Queen, will relinquish her crown during the 1987 Bean Queen Pageant set to begin at 8:45 p.m. Wednesday. There are 8 contestants vying for the title.

Also, there will be 80 merchandise booths set up in the Merchants Building, which Jackson noted has been repaired since a fire struck in October. About 1/3 of the building burned, but most of the $30,000 in damage was covered by insurance, he said.

Jackson added, however, that the 18-member Fair Board is more than willing to accept donations for improvements made last year, specifically a new grandstand roof which cost some $30,000.

Daily ticket prices during the week-long event will be $2 for outside gate admission, 50 cents to park and $4 per person at the grandstand (Thursday, Friday and Saturday). Kids under 11 get in free. Season passes also will be on sale, with gate admission tickets going for $5 and parking passes going for $2.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire
(And anyone else he can get to help.)

The best effort on assignment of the Chronicle's summer intern, Chris Murray, definitely wasn't the story about employees who retired from Cass City Schools.

She attended a retirement dinner and came back with a picture, but no details of the various persons involved.

In a follow up story she missed one of the group again. He was Harold Ballagh who spent 15 years at the school and was the high school custodian supervisor for 5 years.

Only in Michigan. You enter a building on a cold day in winter and your glasses steam up. You leave a cool car in summer and the same thing happens.

*****

I haven't seen it, but you know that it happened. There's a paper in Michigan that will show an egg frying on the sidewalk.

That's almost as traditional as a shot of a corn field on the Fourth of July.

Business was good in front of the Chronicle during sidewalk sales. We had a stand out front, but it wasn't the one doing the business. The big volume producer was the Mennonite food stand which shared our frontage.

They did more in an hour than we did in 3 days. Over-the-counter sales at the Chronicle aren't much, especially on the day that the paper comes out.

It's likely that the ladies generated more cash flow than the Chronicle, not only on the sidewalk, but inside, too.

Event set for newcomers

A "Mid-Summer's Eve Picnic" for new Cass City residents and Chamber of Commerce members is slated to begin at 6 p.m. July 28 at the Village Park.

Activities will include games, a barbecue and swimming. Persons planning to attend are asked to contact Jane Hittler (872-3147) or Linda Herron (872-2217).

The chamber will cook meat and supply drinks, while those planning to attend are asked to bring a dish to pass.

ELMWOOD QUILTERS Florence Karr and Alma Wald were 2 of many women working on quilts during a quilt show held Wednesday through Friday.

W.I.C. program

Announce 37-40 openings

Tuscola County residents' summer schedules combined with additional funds has provided openings in the county's special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children.

Nancy Bortel, W.I.C. coordinator of the Tuscola County Health Department, explained, "This supplemental food program... now serves 883 to 927 participants in Tuscola County. Additional funds have been secured to enroll 37-40 pregnant women or breast feeding women who meet eligibility requirements.

The W.I.C. program provides food and nutritional education services to low and mid-income pregnant women, new mothers, infants and children at nutritional or health risk. Additional information about the program and how to enroll is available by calling the health department at 673-8114.

Lightning may never strike in the same place twice, but rural car thieves do. Oh, yes, they do, they do, they do.

Our 1981 Olds diesel has been heisted again. Same car, in the same location. If the police catch them, and it's the same thieves, they have to be the second dumbest people in Tuscola County. You know who ranks first when his car is stolen twice within about 6 months. This is being written about 2 hours after our car was missed last Wednesday. Who knows what may develop between now and next Tuesday when the paper is printed?

We can understand how the car could be watched and the habits of the drivers logged. But we did make changes in the way we handled the parked car. We took the keys out of the ignition and tossed them into the glove compartment.

It figured that for any rational crook that would be deterrent enough. If they were planning to take a car and worked out a plan to do it, why wouldn't they zero in on a choice car? Or a semi-choice car? Or at least a car with good tires?

We're not talking about a Mercedes or a Lamborghini here. We're talking about a diesel that's 7 years old. We're talking about a car that at one time I'd have welcomed a thief coming in to take it off my hands with open arms.

It's a car that defied the best mechanics at GM and refused to start for them or for anyone else for about 6 months. It took a couple of country mechanics in Colorado to figure out what was wrong and fix it.

Maybe the guys or gals that took the car know about it well enough to know that for a year and a half now the car has started beautifully. It just looks pitiful.

It's a lead-pipe cinch that the diesel wasn't nabbed for resale. Diesels aren't even made anymore by General Motors and to say that the resale market is down is like saying the Pope is Catholic.

What gets me is how brazen these crooks are. Even though I tend to get nervous travelling 30 in a 25-mile per-hour zone when a patrol car passes by, I can see how it would entice potential thieves to take a car when the Chronicle and the rest of the town has closed for the night.

How little I know. The Olds was swiped at about 9 a.m. from the private parking lot directly in back of the Chronicle building. It walked off about noon the first time it was lifted.

The crooks were caught that time and the car found abandoned west of Detroit. It ended up in a ditch, out of gas.

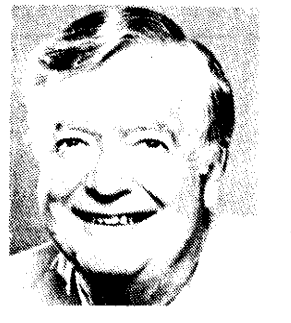

It's now Thursday morning and the car theft has been solved. It was "stolen" by Cass City Tire for a clean and polish job and returned spick-and-span late Wednesday afternoon. We called off the police hunt and hunted for a hole in the ground.

If our faces were red Wednesday morning, they turned absolutely crimson Wednesday afternoon. C'est la vie.

"If It Fitz..."

Ollie envy

By Jim Fitzgerald

On Wednesday, a full-page advertisement in the nation's largest newspapers revealed what I always suspected: There is nothing covert about the hair on Lt. Col. Oliver North's chest.

The ad urged everyone to read Life magazine's exclusive interview with North's wife, Betsy, in the August issue. A huge photo shows Betsy with the top two buttons of her shirt unbuttoned, and Ollie with the top three buttons unbuttoned.

Ollie's chest hair begins at the base of his neck and, as it reaches the third button, appears to grow as thick as mattress stuffing. Just looking at it must make the average resident of New Jersey feel completely secure against invasion by Nicaragua.

For me, it was also reassuring to note that Ollie apparently has no battle stars tattooed on his chest. I'm sick of wise guys accusing Ollie of using his six rows of battle decorations to win sympathy and a permanent job as a float in military parades.

There is nothing wrong with a soldier wearing earned ribbons. I remember how proud I was to wear the ribbons I earned during World War II. When people asked why I wore them in my hair, I explained they were typewriter ribbons and easy to tie into bows.

Which is just the type of limp joke you would expect from someone who is jealous of Lt. Col. North. I admit it. There isn't enough hair on my chest to stuff a gnat's mattress. And the only time I showed enough courage to deserve a military medal was after my draft physical examination — bravely, I didn't cry when the doctor said I'd passed.

The bitter truth is that some of us just don't have what it takes to be questioned by a congressional committee on national TV. Even though I can't help feeling qualified to testify that, as far as I know, President Reagan never knew anything and never will.

The thing I envy Ollie

North the most is his lawyer. It must be comforting to have someone put an arm around your shoulders and whisper in your ear every time you're asked a question you don't know how to answer. If I'd had a lawyer with me during my draft physical, I surely would have given a different answer when the doctor, noting I was over six feet tall but weighed only 95 pounds, asked if I thought I'd gain weight while benefiting from the regular meals and sleep offered during basic training.

I answered yes because I wanted my mother to be proud of her soldier son and couldn't face her disappointment if she were forced to take down the "Room for Rent" sign she'd already pasted to our front window. A smart lawyer would have advised me to look wan and faint on the doctor's feet.

But that was long ago. Much more immediate is the significance of Life's photo of Ollie's chest hair. Why did he have three buttons unbuttoned but his wife only two? In a previous issue, Life featured exclusive words from Donna Rice, Gary Hart's good friend, and a steamy picture of her in a bathing suit. Does this indicate that Life regards Ollie as a male bimbo?

I hope not. By common definition, a bimbo is a not-too-bright woman who uses her physical assets to get more out of living than is usually enjoyed by more intelligent women who are smart enough to wish they looked half as good as Donna Rice does in a bathing suit. I don't see how Ollie North fits into this category.

If Ollie were a bimbo, in his TV appearances he would use chest hair instead of battle ribbons to divert attention from the rather astonishing fact that a lieutenant colonel knows more about our foreign policy than his commander-in-chief does.

Onward and Upward, and what the heck: If a lawyer had whispered, "Look wan" to me at my draft physical, it wouldn't have done any good. I would have thought he was suggesting Chinese food for lunch.

Cass City banker earns certificate

An assistant cashier and operations officer at Chemical Bank in Cass City recently was awarded a certificate of achievement by the Robert M. Perry School of Banking at Central Michigan University.

Charles Brown, 25, received the award after completing instruction which included 2, 2-week summer sessions in addition to home study work and projects.

Brown, a 1979 Cass City High School graduate, joined the Cass City bank in July 1983 as a loan officer. He then worked for 6 months as a branch manager in Marlette before returning to Cass City in September as operations officer.

Brown and his wife, Deanne, reside at 4319 Seeger St.

July 4 Festival deemed success by committee

After the Fourth of July Festival, the committee took some time to catch its breath and then regrouped July 17 to evaluate the success or failure of the day. Residents may be pleased to know that the Cass City Fourth of July celebration was considered a success and the committee discussed plans for the 10th festival in 1988. Each event was evaluated in terms of number of both participants and spectators, as well as location and finances. There were few complaints to report. Most people had a good time and many events showed a profit. The ticket sales from the July 3 event made about $40, according to coordinator Margo Donahue. The Irish Gaels were a no-show and a folk singer took their place at the last minute, she said. The committee considered alternatives such as a pig-roast or a dance for Saturday, July 2, 1988. The committee is going to check with booking agencies for other alternatives. It was concluded that all the events in the park were successful. The Jaycees' mud bog drew a lot of people and with mud volleyball going on at the same time, the committee has gotten comments about the festival being called the "Mud Festival." The teen dance went over very well. About 33 teens showed up and no problems were reported. The absence of the softball tournament was noticed. There were no umpires available for the weekend so the tournament had to be cancelled.

The committee suggested having the softball tournament next year, even if it means having to pay more for the umpires. Some minor bugs were discussed, such as location changes and the need for earlier planning and advertising for some events. It was mentioned that other events, such as the bed race, can still be expanded upon. Suggestions for next year include bike races before the bed races and a lip-synch contest instead of the queen's pageant. The queen's pageant has been discontinued due to lack of interest and the event not being profitable. Bills and money are still trickling in, so finances are not concrete, but it is expected that the festival made money, maybe more money that last year. The committee had some suggestions for new events and can always use ideas and people to help. They will be starting the planning early for next year, with a meeting in November.

Former area man honored by firm

Former Cass City resident Robert W. Zinnecker, president of Continental Telephone Company of New York, has been honored by the company on his 25th anniversary. Zinnecker was named president of Contel Corporation's New York Company in October, 1983. His telephone career began in 1962 when he was named assistant treasurer and then treasurer of the Michigan Telephone Company in Caro, forerunner of CTC-Michigan. He was promoted in 1966 to controller of the Central Western Company, the former Midwest Division of Contel located at Wentzville, Mo. In 1970, Zinnecker was named director of data processing for Contel Data Corp., also of Wentzville. Two years later, he was appointed vice-president of Contel Data Services Corp. Zinnecker was transferred to Knoxville, Iowa, in 1977 as division president and general manager. Zinnecker has been in-

Farmers eligible for petroleum refund

Between Aug. 19, 1973 and Jan. 27, 1981, a number of oil companies were found to have illegally charged excessive prices for crude oil. These charges were passed on to the consumer of refined petroleum products. Farmers are eligible for a refund for all gasoline, diesel fuel, heating oil, propane, motor oil, and lubricants used on and off the farm which were purchased from independent suppliers between August 1973 and January 1981. Products purchased from a farm cooperative do not qualify. Cooperatives are scheduled to receive refunds that will benefit farmer members through the patronage system. The refund amount will vary with the type and size of the farm. On a per-gallon basis, the refund will be between $.0008 and $.0015 per gallon of petroleum product used during the 7½-year period. A form has been developed by Farm Bureau to meet the Department of Energy requirements and is available from the Tuscola County Farm Bureau office, 1023 E. Caro Rd., Caro. Phone 673-4155.

Hazel T. Moore

Mrs. Hazel T. Moore, 88, a lifetime resident of Cass City, died Monday at the Hoyt Nursing Home in Saginaw. She was born July 16, 1899, to Andreas (Andrew) Pfann and Jennie (Buckingham) Pfann of Cass City and spent her childhood on a small farm southeast of Cass City and attended the old McConnell School. Bay Shore Camp airs activities

The biggest events of Bay Shore Evangelical Camp's year—the family camp and assembly—are scheduled to begin July 23 and last through Aug. 2, camp director Lew Tibbits announced.

It's the 76th summer of activities at the United Methodist Church's camp on Saginaw Bay, open to all denominations. Activities will include a 10-day period of daily worship, Bible study, music, crafts, camping and recreation for all ages, he remarked.

"Whenever anything is scheduled for adults, there is always a ministry or activity for all ages," Tibbits said. He added that the camp and assembly will include busy schedules for Sundays and weekdays for adults, all-week programs for children, and 25 events for "Keenagers" (those 55 and older).

The highlight of the annual event, Missionary Day, is set for July 31, with Lena Eschtruth as the special speaker. Eschtruth, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Young, is a native of Pinnebog in Huron County who has been serving in Zaire, Africa.

Additional information and registration are available by contacting Tibbits at (517) 883-2501, or at 450 N. Miller St., Sebawaing.

All-Class Reunion committee donates $2,000 to school libraries

Some 160 new books will be on Cass City Public Schools libraries' shelves when students return in the fall, thanks to an All-Class Reunion committee contribution of $2,000.

The All-Class Reunion committee found they had funds left over from the last 2 All-Class reunions. The

All-Class Reunion is conducted every 5 years, with the last 2 reunions in 1981 and 1986.

The first time there was money left over (in 1981), the committee decided to leave the money in a bank and let it draw interest. When the 1986 reunion went in the black without using the money in the bank, the committee decided to give it to a needed cause, said committee member Wayne Dillon.

"There was no sense having it sit in the bank again and run the chance of the 1991 reunion going in the black, too," Dillon added.

The Cass City Elementary and Intermediate Schools staffs decided to use the donated money in areas of strong enjoyment reading interests to the students.

"All too often, with money scarce, we have been forced to overlook this important area in order to supplement curriculum needs," said Elementary and Intermediate Librarian Donna Emerson.

The books were distributed to 4 libraries: the Cass City Intermediate Library and the Campbell, Deford and Evergreen Elementary libraries.

Book plates were placed in each book to indicate that it was an All-Class Reunion gift, Emerson noted.

New books at the library

EARLY REAGAN by Anne Edwards (non-fiction). This is an account of Reagan's lifelong interest in politics and his abiding conservatism. Edwards show that, while raised a Democrat and idolatrous of FDR, Reagan always called conservatives and even reactionaries his best friends. The author details his work as board member and president of the Screen Actors Guild, and his canny appearance before the House Un-American Activities Committee, emphasizing that he was ever a hard-hitting political pragmatist and at the same time very naive in his anti-Communism and superpatriotism. He emerges here as finally a rather gray figure, utterly lacking intellectual or emotional depth, for which Edwards compensates with absorbing sketches of the careers of both his wives, Jane Wyman and Nancy Davis, and of SAG, and with captivating short takes on many of the stars, pols, and union figures who have crossed his path.

SEVENTH SON by Orson Scott Card (science fiction/fantasy). The story is set in the early nineteenth century of an alternate-world America. Settlers beyond the Appalachians have brought with them powerful folk magic — charms, hexes, petitions — to ease the hard work and danger of everyday life. Into this world is born Alvin Miller, a seventh son carrying powerful magic. Unfortunately, Somebody or Something is determined that Alvin won't grow up. This gripping tale features some memorable characters (Peggy the Torch, Tale-swapper, the Reverend Thrower).

FIRST BORN by Doris Mortman (Fiction). Passions are inflamed and loyalties obscured as four beautiful, ambitious cousins vie for power, position, and men. Capitalizing upon their immigrant grandmother's spiritual legacy of pride and determination, the female members of the Rostov clan tackle and conquer a succession of social, political, and economic challenges. Despite their remarkable individual triumphs, these talented women jealously guard their successes and desperately compete for the ever-elusive brand of love and security each assumes to be her natural birthright. The family saga spans 20 years, and extends across several continents.
