Scattered showers not enough

Rain needed now to save crops

by Chris Murray

Parts of the area received as much as 2 inches of rain during the weekend, relieving some of the crops.

But others are still waiting for rainfall and for some it's too late.

"The majority of (Huron) County received at least a little rain, with Harbor Beach getting 2 inches and the Uby area getting .75 inches," said Huron Extension Agent Jim LeCureux.

"But that rain in itself isn't going to do this much good with the soil so dry," he added.

He said some of the fields in the county are drying up fast, with beans and corn being the hardest hit.

"Some of the beans may get a second growth with the rain we got, but a lot have lost their blossoms and there won't be any beans without the blossoms," he remarked.

While Huron County fared relatively well with rainfall, only the northern part of Tuscola County received any rain at all.

"The Gagetown area got about a half inch and Fairgrove about 2 tenths, but the rest of the county received little or no rain at all," according to Tuscola Extension Agent Bill Bortel.

According to the Cass City Waste-water Treatment Plant, the village received a trace of rain from Friday a.m. to Saturday a.m. and .08 inches of rain from Saturday a.m. to Sunday a.m.

Bortel lamented, "I'm sorry to report that it's not a good situation. The noose keeps getting tighter and tighter on us."

He added some bean and corn fields are at the extremely critical stage right now.

"Some of the blossoms on the beans are aborting -- falling off without pollinating. Also, on the corn the silks and tassels are not ready at the same time so not all the kernels are pollinating," Bortel remarked.

"In other areas, depending on the field and the situation, rain could still help," he added.

Sanilac County crops seem to be managing somewhat better than their Tuscola County counterparts, with some areas receiving as much as an inch and a half of rain during the weekend.

"But it was from localized storms so some parts of the county that needed it most got only traces of rain -- some kind of the same old story," according to Sanilac Agricultural Agent Martin Nagelkirk.

"Some of the guys did get some relief but it wasn't consistent. Everybody was hoping for a nice, broad shower," he noted.

Nagelkirk added parts of the county receiving the most rainfall were areas along Lake Huron and parts of the southern portion of the county.

"I've even heard reports of hail north of Lexington," he remarked.

The percentage of fields not responding to rain if it did come doesn't seem to be as high as in other area counties.

"Overall, all the fields would respond to rain, not too many fields are too far gone, but to look at some fields you've got to wonder," Nagelkirk said.

Village to insurance costs $12,500

A change in liability insurance plans, approved by the Cass City Village Council Monday night, will save the village about $12,500 annually.

The council approved purchasing all of its liability coverage from the Michigan Township Participating Plan for $29,500, instead of again purchasing its liability coverage from various carriers.

Following recent notification that the village's public officials liability insurance won't be renewed, village officials began investigating several alternatives, village Manager Lou S. LaPonsie explained. The investigation also was prompted by projected premium increases and varying expiration dates of different liability policies, he said.

LaPonsie, who noted that the village liability insurance will continue to be obtained through Harris-Hampshire Agency Inc., Cass City, noted that the insurance plan includes $1 million in liability coverage with a $2 million umbrella policy.

The new coverage will go into effect Aug. 1 and expires in December, he said, adding, "We should see a savings of approximately $5,000" in that 5-month period.

In other business during the 40-minute monthly meeting, the council learned that income related to the village pool is more than twice the amount this year to date as it was for the same period last year, and lauded Wastewater Treatment Plant employee Kenneth C. Schott.

According to a report from the pool staff, revenue at the pool to date this season totals $10,947-$3,823 from lessons, $1,070 from passes and $6,054 from admissions. Last year's total at this time was $5,188.

Pool staff members indicated that the increased revenues may be attributed to warmer than usual weather and more staff members being certified as Water Safety Instructors.

The average pool-related income each year is about $8,500, according to LaPonsie, who noted that expenses usually total $42,000 to $48,000 annually.

Turning to Schott, the council lauded the village employee for recently earning his certification as a sewage treatment works operator from the state Department of Natural Resources, and for completing a maintenance course for motors and pumps through the American Water Works Association and the Michigan Department of Public Health.

Also Monday, the council received a letter of appreciation from the Tuscola County Economic Development Corporation for allowing the EDC to hold its August meeting at the Cass City Municipal Building. The meeting is slated to be held at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 19.

Council President Pro Tem Dorothy Stahlbaum, conducting her first meeting since former president Larry Davis' resignation last month, noted that the council has 2 options in replacing Davis after receiving a written resignation from him--by council appointment or by a vote of the people.

The council heard a suggestion by Stahlbaum that village retailers be made aware of the street sweeping schedule (Friday mornings) and that they be encouraged to sweep their walk areas on Thursdays.

Huron Fair to draw 50,000

Some 50,000 persons are expected to visit one of the oldest fairs in the area, the 119th Huron Community Fair, set to get underway Sunday afternoon and run through Aug. 8 at the fairgrounds in Bad Axe.

"We've been going up every year" in attendance, fair manager Wayne Henne remarked, adding this year's event will include a number of popular attractions, both old and new.

The fair's top draw this year is expected to be the Joie Chitwood Thrill Show, featuring some of the best professional stunt men in the business beginning at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Also new this year will be the company in charge of the fair's midway, which is expected to be 1/3 larger than in past years. The company, Crown, will provide a large variety of carnival rides and attractions, Henne said.

Other popular features back this year are the various pulling events, with horse pulling set for Monday (7:30 p.m.), a pickup pull Tuesday (7 p.m.), tractor pulling Thursday (7 p.m.) and a pony pull Saturday (1:30 p.m.). Henne noted that both the pickup and tractor pulls this year are being sponsored by the fair.

The ever popular demolition derby is slated to begin at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Another crowd pleaser, "Chicago Knockers Mud Wrestling," will make its third appearance in 6 years at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The fair will get underway at 2 p.m. Sunday with the annual "Indian Trails Rodeo," which includes events ranging from steer Please turn to page 12

For Intermediate School District

Schools to share in tax boost

Local school systems in the Tuscola County Intermediate School District are expected to see an increase in their special education reimbursements following approval July 20 of a special millage request.

Voters in 9 local districts approved by 58 votes an additional (charter) mill for the intermediate district which is expected to raise some $690,000.

Although approval of the millage doesn't mean an expansion of programs offered to handicapped students in the county, it does mean the quality of existing programming will be maintained, and that the local districts will receive increased reimbursements for special education, intermediate Supt. Dr. Bruce Dunn said.

The reimbursements are for the "extra costs" of educating handicapped children. Those costs include the salaries of special education professionals, maintenance of special ed. classrooms, instructional materials and other expenses.

"We're studying this now and we will have a recommendation ready for Aug. 18 (board) meeting," Dunn remarked about the reimbursements. "We will be recommending an increase."

Dunn said he's not sure how much of an increase will be recommended, but noted annual reimbursements to the local districts have been frozen at a total of some $200,000 since 1981, compared to $280,000 before then.

"Even though we have had to lay off some people because of monetary reasons, we have tried to maintain that ($200,000) and we have maintained that," he added.

Dunn explained that the amount of money reimbursed to the local districts is based on what the intermediate district can afford to pay. In the 1985-86 school year, for example, Cass City's 100 percent reimbursement was set at $51,040. But the district, which has 5 special ed. classrooms, actually received $18,144, leaving a shortage of $32,896.

Aside from bringing reimbursements back up to previous levels, much of the revenue brought in by the additional mill approved last week will be used to cover an expected budget deficit of $345,000 in the 1987-88 year.

The millage also will be used to cushion the impact of fewer federal dollars and shrinking land values. "We are anticipating declining

Dedication set

Dedication ceremonies for the Department of Natural Resources' new Field Office near Cass City have been slated for 1 p.m. Aug. 8 at the office, located at 4017 E. Caro Rd.

An open house will be held from noon to 3 p.m.

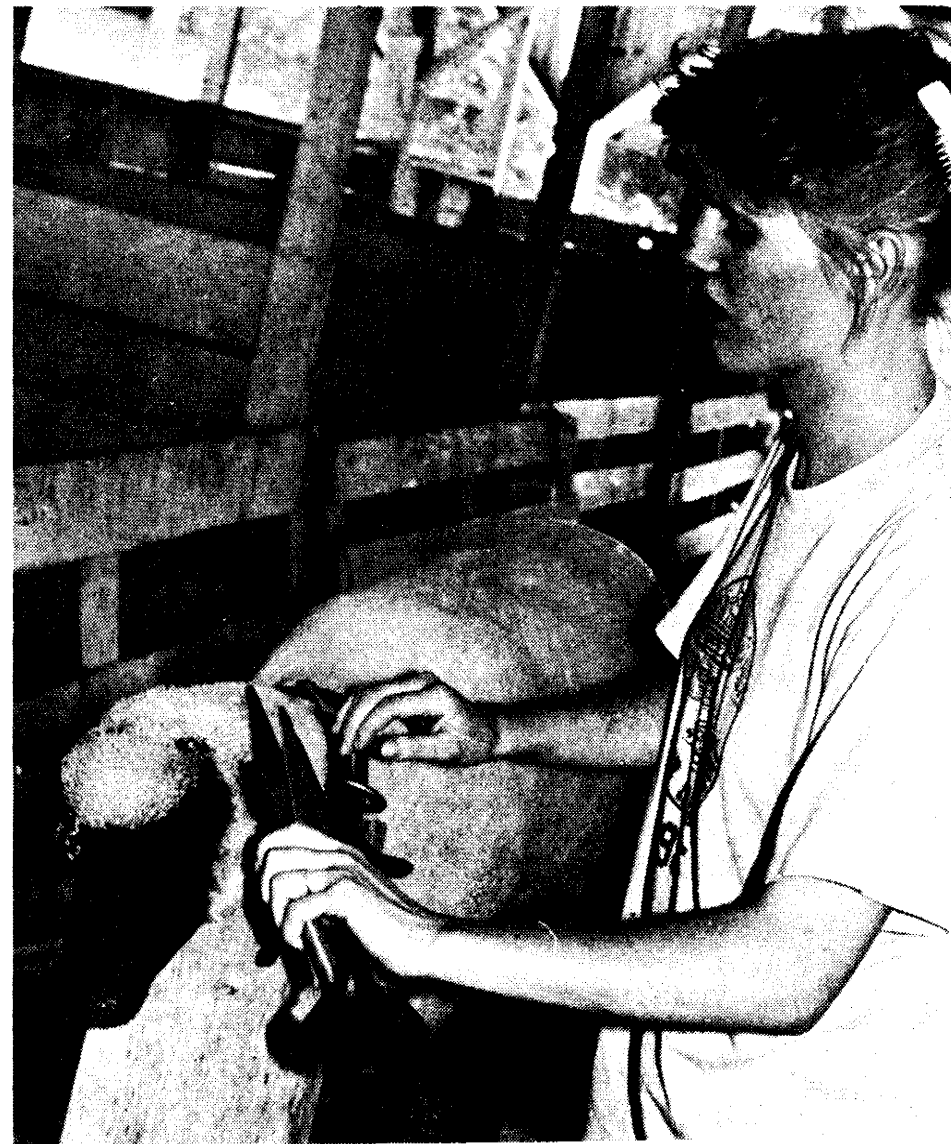

According to DNR Deputy Director Michael D. Moore, the new office, about 5 miles west of Cass City, is a converted equipment dealership and garage. Renovation of the new office began in mid-April.

The office replaces an outdated facility south of Caro which served Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties since 1946, and will be responsible for the state's Fire Prevention Program in the Thumb and management of 13 state game and wildlife areas in the 3-county area.

Although the new office will house 5 full-time employees of the Forest Management and Wildlife Divisions, and administrative support, it will also function as a general information office for the area, Moore said, adding that services normally expected from a DNR Field Office will be provided at the Cass City facility.

On staff at the new location will be Fire Officer Jim Melin, Forest Management Division; and Wildlife Division employees Bud Jarvis, wildlife biologist; Richard Robinson, wildlife technician; Franklin Babcock, farmer; and Sue Lagos, secretary.

Keeping cool

By Melva E. Guinther

Keeping the house livably cool during the recent heat wave required a great deal of engineering skill -- and extension cords.

Extension cords are, without a doubt, the most elusive and uncooperative objects ever invented. When you finally locate one, it's inevitably 3 inches too short to reach the ideal location for a fan.

While swiping a cord connected to a clock, in a room where nobody really needs to know the time, I was reminded of a recent Andy Rooney column.

Andy wondered why, in this day of advanced technology, we can't have attractive, conveniently located electrical outlets.

Good question. Why is it necessary to throw something out of joint to get to a baseboard outlet behind the sofa?

Back to cooling the house. It's necessary to stay up late and arise early to turn on the strategically placed fans to draw the cool air into the house.

Then you have to keep an eagle eye on the indoor and outdoor thermometers, because if you miss that critical point at which the outdoor temperature exceeds the indoor temperature, you end up blowing hot air inside.

When the respective temperatures are equal, it's time to turn off the fans and close the windows and doors. That's as cool as it's going to get, folks.

There's also the controversial and highly subjective matter of when and which fans to turn around in the windows as exhausts.

Recognizing my status as domestic engineer, Stan leaves that up to me.

Last week I managed to purchase one of the last fans in existence. A truckload got as far as Caro before being captured, and 6 12-inch oscillating fans actually made it into the store. The remaining 5 were gone by the time mine was secured in the trunk of the car.

Someone once told me that "fans don't really help; they just make you think you're cool."

Hey! That's all I ask.

"If It Fitz..."
Embarrassing moment

By Jim Fitzgerald

It happened last Monday in the downtown Secretary of State branch office. It was one of my life's most embarrassing moments. Who to blame? Tricia? A brain fogged by standing in line too long? My forgetting to knock on wood?

Begin with the superstition. A few days ago I bragged here about never losing anything, as compared to more careless people such as my son who loses his car keys twice a week. Specifically, I was referring to my original Social Security card, which I've carried safely in my wallet for 47 years. Naturally, this patting of my own back caused an alarm to ring in the office of the gremlin in charge of punishing brag-garts. Last week my Social Security card was still in my wallet, but my driver's license wasn't. As everyone knows, this calamity could have been averted if I'd knocked on wood immediately after writing that I'd never lost anything. However, we urban dwellers live in a plastic, tile and metal world.

Even things made of wood look like they're made of something else. A tree is the only thing I know for sure is wood, and no tree grows within blocks of my computer terminal. I didn't want my co-workers to wonder why the old weirdo was knocking on a phony pine picture frame, so I left myself defenseless, the victim of a modern barren forest.

How did the driver's license get out of my wallet, where it was securely tucked into a tight corner? That brings us to Tricia, my 18-month-old granddaughter. She is like no other child or granddaughter I ever had. To use an old saying that might not be familiar to you, Tricia was "born with a leg up on the world."

This is a silver-spoon-type saying that means a child was born with certain advantages. It originates from the fact that, before the automobile, to ride somewhere a person first had to get a leg up and over a horse's back. But in Tricia's case, it means she was born with a leg up and poised to somehow find a foothold on the sheer face of a refrigerator.

The kid is a climber. She is most often found standing on top of tables, chairs or cupboards, laughing happily while the nearest adult has heart failure rushing to prevent a fall. Tricia has bloody accidents, but they don't discourage her. No matter what the obstacles, she is dedicated to scaling the tallest structure so she can trash everything she discovers on top.

That's what happened to my driver's license when I was dumb enough to leave my wallet on a table less than a mile high. From experience, Tricia's mother guessed the license will turn up the next time we recarpet or otherwise dismantle our entire home. In the meantime, I stood in line for 45 minutes waiting to get a duplicate license.

The only way I can survive such a wait is to read a newspaper and pretend I'm somewhere else. I'm not used to reading from a standing position; it's similar to sitting down to dance. I become disoriented and, by the time I reach the head of the line, I'm confused about where I am, and why.

But when the nice woman at the Secretary of State office gestured me toward a machine, I snapped back to reality. I remembered taking dozens of eye tests to get a driver's license. I pressed my face against the front of the machine and peeked into 2 holes, looking for the eye chart.

The nice woman laughed. So did the people in the line behind me. "We don't need a close-up," the woman said between giggles.

I wasn't looking into an eye-test machine, I was looking into the lens of a camera. As plainly indicated by the line and instructions printed on the floor, I was supposed to be standing about 3 feet away from the camera.

To cover up my embarrassment, I started to cry. That's when my picture was taken, and I can hardly wait to see it. I can hardly wait to leave it where Tricia can get a leg up.

KINDE RESIDENT Doris Webster Hendrick was visiting Steve and Jane Frank, 4819 N. Seeger St., Cass City, and brought with her a 5-year-old cactus plant that had never bloomed before. The flower is yellow with purple stripes and is covered with fine hairs.

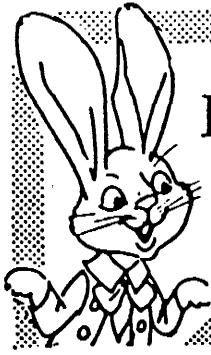

Cass City Police report quiet week

July continues to be a quiet month for the Cass City Police Department, which has reported that overall activity is down compared to last month.

A complaint involving larceny of a bicycle was filed by Ronald Harp, 6446 6th St., who stated that someone stole his 27-inch, 10-speed bike Friday evening. The bicycle, taken from the back porch of Harp's residence, is maroon in color and valued at $100, he said.

Also filing a report was Gagetown resident Eugene K. Kady II, 5016 Maxwell Rd., who told police that someone stole the hub caps from his 1981 pickup truck, Hampton Mall in Hampton Township, July 17.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire
(And anyone else he can get to help.)

Calvin MacRae of Cass City came in to the office to show us a second planting radish from his garden. The root was 34 inches long due to the lack of rain in the area.

The lack of rain hasn't hampered the produce farmers in the Saginaw Valley. The melons, sweet corn and other vegetables are good and the hot weather has moved the season ahead about 2 weeks, according to one roadside vendor.

It's not unusual to see cars make U-turns on Main Street. (I confess that I've done it.) But Monday a new mark was set. A big semi-truck from Grand Rapids did a U-turn faster than most of us could do it with a car.

There used to be signs prohibiting U-turns on the main stem, but they were taken down on the street that is controlled by the Michigan Department of Transportation because it is part of M-81. But, beware. There is a law that says U-turns in business districts are illegal, with or without signs.

Free nitrate testing for corn, sorghum plants set

Farmers interested in learning the level of nitrate in their corn and sorghum plants can have a sample of their crop analyzed free of charge from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Elktion Cooperative/Farm Produce Co.

The event, "Silage Service Day," is being offered by the Huron County Cooperative Extension Service and the Elktion Cooperative.

Nitrate analysis equipment will be available through an independent laboratory.

"With this summer being unusually hot, many people have questions and concerns about levels of nitrates in their animal feed," extension agricultural agent Amy Duffield said. "During the Silage Service Day, questions will be answered and levels of nitrate can be measured."

"Nitrates are not a serious threat if the feed is fermented," Duffield explained. "If you want to green chop or pasture animals on these crops you may like to bring in samples for analysis."

A sample for analysis should be representative. Farmers are asked to take 5 to 7 random plants, the complete plant from the ground up. A chopper will be on hand to prepare them for chemical analysis.

The Haire Net

It's been a while now since we've had a hot summer like this one. When it happens it's a reminder of how good we have it here in Michigan. The recent streak of 90-plus temperature days was rare enough so that the conversation around the coffee tables centered around previous hot spells that can be remembered.

There are always a few blank stares when Michigan's weather is lauded as the temperature and the humidity climb and climb. It's as if I didn't know that the nights made restful sleeping impossible.

What makes Michigan weather great is that weather that we experienced last week is so unusual that it was front page news across the state. Weather like this wouldn't even cause much of a comment in the south or southwest. 90-degree-plus days are the norm, not the exception, south of the Mason-Dixon line.

When I declare that there isn't enough money to lure me to the south to live, someone invariably reminds me about air conditioning. Sure that helps, and without it life in the sun belt would be almost like living in Michigan in the winter without heat.

But the air conditioning has yet to be invented that refreshes and invigorates like a cool breeze provided by nature.

When hot summers of the past are the subject, most folks have a hot time to talk about, but most often they are not the same. The reaction to hot weather is tempered by the conditions in which they are experienced.

The hot time in the old town for the Haires came back in 1950. I can remember that a couple of the days at least were beyond the 100-degree mark. Home then was in an upstairs apartment in Wyandotte. The only air conditioning available was in the motels. After a couple of days we decided to bite the bullet and rent a room for the night, just to cool off.

Unfortunately, others had the same idea and none was available. We retreated to the apartment where at the top of the stairs was a landing about 5-feet square. No screens of course, but it was in the back yard. Good thing, too, because we stripped to the buff and rested until the sun started to come up.

Really I can't remember how long that hot spell lasted. It probably wasn't much over a week, but in memory it lasted most of the summer.

There was one thing going for us during that heat wave that I appreciate now and didn't appreciate at all then.

I was 28 years old.

Report damage in one-car crash

Moderate to heavy damage was reported in a mishap in Ellington Township July 21, according to the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

Jean M. Grannell, 36, Caro, was northbound on Hurds Corner Road south of Little Road when she braked for a curve and the vehicle went out of control on the rough gravel road, the report states.

Grannell sought her own treatment in the 10:25 accident.

No citation was issued.

A car-deer accident was reported Friday in Elmwood Township.

According to the report, Keith J. Goslin, 3351 Bay City-Forestville Rd.,

Gagetown, was northbound on Hurds Corner Road south of Hoppe Road when a deer crossed into the vehicle's path from the east. The vehicle struck and killed the deer.

The vehicle sustained slight damage in the 9:45 p.m. mishap.

No citation was issued.

Carolan is admitted to state Bar

Richard J. Carolan has been admitted to the Michigan State Bar following his bar examination in February, a Detroit law firm recently announced.

Carolan is the son of Rachel Carolan, originally from Cass City, and Gary Carolan of East Detroit. He is the grandson of Esther Iseler, also formerly of Cass City, and Geraldine Carolan of Gagetown.

Carolan graduated from Michigan State University in June 1983, with a bachelor's degree in humanities, before graduating from Wayne State University Law School in December, 1986.

He is now associated with the law firm of Chambers, Steiner, Mazur, Ornstein and Amlin, P.C., a firm specializing in products liability, medical malpractice and labor law.

FIVE YEARS AGO

About 250 people attended the Gagetown High School all class reunion at Sherwood On the Hill Saturday evening. The years included 1910 until 1950 when Gagetown High School consolidated with Owendale. The alumni enjoyed a buffet dinner, a short program with Lloyd Finkbeiner as master of ceremonies and dancing.

Thursday Craig Helwig pitched Croft-Clara to a win against Sports Page of Saginaw, 5-0. Jerry Toner had 3 hits.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Davis of Bad Axe and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Bouck of Caseville spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Olm Bouck.

Thirteen members of the Cass City American Legion Auxiliary gathered for a final dinner meeting Tuesday evening at Veronica's Restaurant. Three of the charter members, Reva Little, Rachel Wright and Evelyn MacKay were members for the entire 35 years of the organization's existence.

TEN YEARS AGO

PFC Edward W. Baer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baer of Decker, recently returned to Ft. Campbell, Ky., from Puerto Rico. The private is a 1970 graduate of Marlette High School. His wife, Sheila, lives in Clarksville, Tenn.

Friends of Mrs. Anna McComb visited her at her new residence in Caro Senior Commons, July 19. They enjoyed visiting and games. Rosella Cherry of Caro served dessert refreshments.

Ira Robinson, Clayton Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lowe and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lapeer were among a group who attended the Robinson-Lowe reunion Sunday at Forest.

Karen Wallace of Van Dyke Road is taking part in the band program in the third session at the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp.

25 YEARS AGO

Thirty young people from Shabbona MYF attended the swim party and wiener roast at Caseville Saturday night, sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Dale Turner and Mrs. Alvin Burk.

Eighty-six relatives attended the annual Koepf family reunion Sunday at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. John Koepf Sr. Potluck dinner was served and accordion music was played by Mrs. Rocky Meess of Oscoda.

For 2 Cass City High School girls, Sharon Profit and Beryl Copeland, summer fun included a course at the Smith Walbridge Twirling Camp at Syracuse, Ind. The girls spent a week at the camp attending classes in dance, baton and strutting.

Miss DeeEllen Albee arrived home Friday night from a 12-day bus caravan trip sponsored by the Detroit district of the Methodist Youth Fellowship. Visiting 8 states, the highlights of the trip were a visit to the United Nations and Washington D.C.

35 YEARS AGO

Al Hanna, manager of the Nestle's plant in Cass City, announced this week that effective Friday the union employees of the company will receive the insurance benefits from his organization that were granted to non-union employees in June.

Mrs. C.P. Hunter accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hunter and family north Saturday where they are vacationing on Lake Huron near Oscoda.

Mrs. Eunice Catton, Okemos, daughter of Mrs. Walter Schell of Cass City, has received orders from the American National Red Cross for a two-year tour of duty to be served either in Japan or Korea.

Ferris Ware, inducted into the army July 17, was sent to Fort Riley, Kan., for training and Clifford VanVleet, John Gruber, Elwyn Helwig, Robert Karr and Thomas Silvernail reportedly were sent to Camp Breckenridge, Ky.

Diamonds

Diamonds are forever. According to International Wildlife magazine, microscopic diamonds older than the sun and the planets have been found imbedded in 3 different kinds of meteorites. The diamonds -- over 4 and a half billion years old -- may be the oldest particles ever discovered. They were created in the atmosphere of a distant star and were strewn across space when the star later exploded.

Recipe contest offered at fair

The Caro-based Flood Outreach Recovery Team is sponsoring a "budget stretchers" recipe contest through Aug. 1 at the Tuscola County Fair.

The recovery team is sharing a booth in the Merchant's Building with the Cooperative Extension Service.

To submit a recipe, persons must print or type their name, address and telephone number, along with a recipe, on a 3 X 5 card and mail it or drop it off at the team's booth during fair week. All recipes will be compiled and made available, free of charge, at the team's office and at the Cooperative Extension office.

Rules for entering are that recipes submitted must be a main dish, the dish must contain at least 6 servings and the total cost of ingredients used must not exceed $5.

A drawing will be held Aug. 7 and gift certificates awarded to the winners.

Your neighbor says

Sideshow games are tops at fair

The old county fair days are back again.

Kids scream at all the rides, take chances on a ring toss, and pet every animal they can get their hands on.

Adults go to the grandstand, walk through the merchant's building, eat, scream at all the rides, take chances on a ring toss and pet every animal they can find.

People go to fairs every year and enjoy themselves thoroughly.

Tuscola County's fair is this week, with fairs in Huron and Sanilac counties coming in August.

Your neighbor, Phyllis McIntosh, says although she likes to go to at least one fair, it's doubtful if she'll go this year.

"If I don't go this year it'll be because of the heat. It'll have to cool off first," she explained.

If she does go, she says her favorite aspect will be the sideshow games like the ring toss, swimming ducks and ball throw.

"I like to watch the people play and lose money. I used to spend my money on them but now I hang on to it," she said.

McIntosh says she's always liked going to the fair, especially when she was a little girl.

"I always went on the rides -- I went on the 'Bullet' once. That scared me. I don't go on the rides as much anymore," she remarked.

Whenever she goes to the fair, she checks out the 4-H and open class exhibits. She also has seen special grandstand shows.

"I think the girl mud wrestlers were the most fun," she explained.

She says she used to go to the fairs in Bad Axe and Sandusky also.

"My company, Thumb Welding Supply, has set up exhibits before up there," she noted.

McIntosh lives at 5107 Kelly Rd. and has 2 sons, John and Bob.

Plan picnic for senior citizens

Area senior citizens are invited to attend a potluck picnic sponsored by the Tuscola County Council on Aging at noon Aug. 15 at the county fairgrounds in Caro.

Soft drinks and coffee will be provided, with each person asked to bring a dish to pass and table service. Games, contests and prizes will be available.

The picnic was slated by the council during its July 13 meeting, held at the Millington meal site. The group's next meeting is set for Aug. 10 at the Kingston VFW Hall, 3719 Ross St.

Topics of discussion at the July meeting included health care for everyone, with a need for better legislation; reports of services rendered from Oct. 1, 1986, through June 30, and a general report on expenditures, with a request for more itemized expenditures for Tuscola County.

Additional information on the council and upcoming events is available by calling 1-800-843-6394 before 9 a.m.

Pete Pastor of Newfield, N.J., spent a few days visiting former neighbors and friends in the area of the old Brookfield No. 5 school, now the residence of Mary McKellar. He was Mrs. McKellar's guest for lunch.

Other guests were Mrs. Jim LeVasseur of Bay City and Mrs. Sue Penrod.

During the past week Mrs. Aurea Beaudon underwent throat surgery and Mrs. Irene Hunter underwent eye surgery.

Marge and Leonard Karr spent a day with their son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Kurt Karr of Ann Arbor.

Mary McKellar and Sue Penrod were guests last Tuesday of Mrs. Mamie Ernst of Utica.

Mrs. Charlotte Muzzleman Britt of Pigeon died Wednesday, July 22, after undergoing heart surgery earlier in the week in Saginaw. Her funeral took

Register at Kilmanagh

The voters of St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Bach and St. John's in Kilmanagh have approved plans for opening a combined kindergarten and preschool for the coming school year, according to Ken Hass, principal.

Enrollment is still open. Registration will be held Aug. 20, 11 a.m.-2 p.m., 6 p.m.-8 p.m. at the school in Kilmanagh. For further information call 883-3701.

The kindergarten will meet every morning Monday through Friday and the preschool will meet with the kindergarten Tuesday and Thursday mornings.

O-G reunion successful

The second Owendale and Gagetown All-School Reunion was a success, according to committee member Carol Howard, with nearly 700 attending the gathering July 18 at Colony House.

Included in the final tally were about 380 of the 1533 living graduates from 1913 to 1983. Also in attendance were 21 staff members.

"The people seemed to be happy and having a good time at the reunion," she noted.

The doors opened at 5:30 p.m., with cocktails being served until dinner at 6:30 p.m. Following the dinner, a band played tunes one could dance or listen to while reminiscing for the rest of the night.

The all-school reunions are organized every 4 years, with the first one having been in 1983, Howard said.

"Since alcohol is served at the reunions, we only have classes with members 21 or older participate in them so we don't run into many problems," she explained.

The oldest graduates attending the reunion were Selma Schnepf Eldridge and Vernita McCullough Kling, both 77 and in the class of 1927.

The youngest graduates were 8 members of the class of 1983 who are 21 years old.

The graduate traveling the farthest was Marvin Barnes, class of 1973. He resides in Iceland.

The 700 people at the 1987 reunion outnumbered those who attended in 1983, when the count was 655, Howard said.

Yuhas takes part in exercise

Tech. Sgt. John E. Yuhas has participated in the Strategic Air Command's annual readiness training exercise, "Global Shield 87."

Yuhas, the son of Elmer and Mary L. Yuhas of Dearborn Heights, and his wife, Lea, the daughter of Cyril and Louise Stierman, 2277 Argyle Rd., Snover, are stationed at Wurtsmith Air Force Base.

Selected Air Force Reserve and Guard units joined with SAC units worldwide in the extensive exercise designed to enhance readiness and support U.S. national policy.

A material facilities supervisor, Yuhas is a 1973 graduate of Crestwood High School, Dearborn Heights.

Exchange student Lana Harris, Cass City, finds Brazilians friendly, open

Ask 17-year-old Cass City resident Lana Harris what she thinks of Brazilians and other South Americans and chances are good you'll hear one word—friendly.

"They're a very open people; a very warm people. It's incredible—they want to talk to you. They really try to get through to you," Harris said last week after returning from a year-long stay abroad.

Harris, a Rotary Exchange Student, spent the past year in Foz do Iguaçu, a city of about 150,000 people in Parana, located in the southern tip of Brazil.

"I thought it was pretty exciting for a complete stranger to arrive and have everybody love you. It was instant," the Cass City High School senior remarked.

"After the first day of school, I went to a friend's house."

The South Americans Harris met didn't hide their interest and curiosity about Americans, Harris said.

"I didn't know everyone, but everybody knew who I was, just walking down the street," she commented, adding that if nothing else, most people she met knew she was "the American girl."

"I felt like I was special. Everybody tried to speak to you in English; if they didn't know English, they would try. It was like, if you didn't know someone, they would ask you to come over for coffee or tea."

Harris recalled a boy in her class who, the day after meeting her, came to school with 5 books on translating Portuguese to English.

BIG CITIES

Despite living in a city several times larger than Cass City, Harris indicated Foz do Iguaçu doesn't compare in size to other cities she visited as an exchange student. The friendliness, though, was a common denominator among both large and small cities, she pointed out.

"Compared to Cass City, it's (Foz do Iguaçu) a metropolis, but it's smaller than some cities I've seen," he said.

Harris took advantage of her city's close proximity (about 15 minutes) to the borders of 2 other South American countries—Paraguay and Argentina.

As an exchange student, Harris lived in Brazil throughout her year-long stay, residing 3 to 4 months with each of 4 host families.

But she still found time to travel.

"People would stop you on the street and ask, 'Are you an American? I want to talk to you. I want to try my English,'" she continued.

Language wasn't a major barrier for Harris, who had a handle on understanding Portuguese some 3 months after arriving in Brazil. It took a little longer to learn how to speak the language, but 2 years of Spanish study helped as Spanish is similar to Portuguese, she said.

Now, the problem is learning how to shift gears again, she remarked, adding that she spoke no English during the final 6 months of her stay. "I'm having problems (going) back to English."

NO SAUCES

Harris' diet also is undergoing some changes since her return to the states. Brazilian fare, she explained, is dominated by 2 staples and rarely includes sauces.

"Almost everyday they eat rice and beans. Usually you just cook your rice and then put your beans over it," she said. "It was kind of bland, but it had its own taste."

"They don't have sauces to put on everything they eat," she observed, adding that Americans' taste for various sauces is well known in South America. "That's a big joke (there). They say Americans put catsup on everything."

Eating out also has a different meaning there, Harris recalled. While the larger cities have a number of fast-food restaurants, going out to eat in the smaller towns usually means visiting another home for traditional Sunday barbecues, she said. The outdoor cooking is done on "flats" rather than on grills.

"It's nothing" for persons attending such meals to take 2 hours or more to eat, with the menu starting out with sausage appetizers, followed by steaks, beef and pork, Harris explained.

SCHOOL

School, too, was different. But Harris' 1986-87 school year wasn't too difficult to swallow. In fact, most of her local classmates probably wouldn't mind a similar experience.

Harris, who spent Christmas on the beaches of Rio De Janeiro, said that she attended 5 classes a day, from 8 a.m. to noon. She and some 40 classmates each were required to wear a school T-shirt and navy blue slacks, including blue jeans.

An interesting twist compared to the local school system is that in Brazil, Harris remained in one class throughout her school day, while the teachers, many dressed in blue jeans, moved from class to class.

She didn't stop at merely tending to academic activities. She also was a member of a championship girls' basketball team.

The basketball season consisted of training for a couple months, and then going on week-long road trips for tournaments at other schools, Harris said, adding that the team would stay at other schools while competing in the tournaments. The basketball games were all played outdoors, she added.

Harris, who rejoined her family—parents Newell and Lois Harris and sister Pam, 21—July 10, is now gearing up for her senior year in Cass City.

But the bittersweet feelings she has over leaving her Brazilian families and friends remain strong, as well as a sense of having undergone some important personal changes.

"It was a great experience. I feel like I've grown a lot older," she noted. Harris added, "It's good to get back, but I now know there's something else out there."

Lehrman re-enlists in Air Force

Staff Sgt. Robert H. Lehrman has re-enlisted in the U.S. Air Force after being selected for career status.

Lehrman is the son of Robert H. Lehrman of Decatur, Ind. His wife, Kelly, is the daughter of Erwin G. and Amy M. Hall, 5825 Main St., Deford.

Assigned with the 366th Component Repair Squadron at Mountain Home Air Force Base, Idaho, Lehrman was approved for re-enlistment by a board which considered character and performance.

The sergeant, a 1974 graduate of Belmont High School in Decatur, is an automatic test station specialist.

Woman gets 2 years probation

A 17-year-old Cass City woman was sentenced in Tuscola County District Court Monday on a June 30 conviction of impaired driving.

Penny K. TerBush had pleaded guilty to the charge. She was sentenced to 2 years probation and ordered to pay $207 in fines, $143 in costs and $60 in restitution.

TerBush also had her license restricted for 6 months.

She was arrested May 25 in Cass City by the Cass City police.

John C. Zwemke, Caro, was arraigned Friday on charges of breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny in a building and larceny.

A preliminary exam has been set for Zwemke, 27, on Wednesday at 8:30 a.m. Bond was set at $1,500.

Zwemke is charged with breaking and entering an occupied dwelling in Caro July 4. He was arrested by officers from the Caro Police Department.

If convicted, Zwemke faces up to 15 years imprisonment.

Mark A. Martin, 24, Caro, was arraigned Monday on charges of operating a motor vehicle under the influence of intoxicating liquor, third offense, and operating a motor vehicle while license is suspended.

Martin's preliminary exam has been set for Aug. 5 at 8:30 a.m. Bond was set at $200.

Martin, 24, was driving on M-81 July 11 when troopers from the Michigan State Police post in Caro arrested him in Indianfields Township.

If convicted, Martin faces 5 years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine. He also faces having his drivers license revoked.

Jay C. Lind, also of Caro, was arraigned Friday on charges of breaking and entering and larceny over $100.

CORRECTION

The correct driver was not listed in an accident report printed in the Chronicle July 22.

Kenneth R. Crawford, 40, Millersburg, was the driver of the vehicle involved in a mishap July 17. Kenneth Crawford II, 18, Millersburg, was a passenger in the vehicle.

Both the driver and passenger were wearing seatbelts at the time of the mishap.

The Chronicle regrets the error.

Lind's preliminary examination has been set for Wednesday at 8:30 a.m. Bond was set at $10,000.

Lind, 17, is charged with breaking into a dwelling in Fremont Township July 16. He was arrested by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

If convicted, Lind faces a sentence of 15 years imprisonment.

Jeff Hall, Millington, was arraigned Monday on charges of breaking and entering and larceny.

Hall's preliminary exam has been set for 8:30 a.m.

Aug. 5. Bond was set at $10,000.

Hall, 20, is charged with breaking into a house on Clio Road in Arbela Township Jan. 11. He was arrested by deputies from the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

If convicted, Hall faces a sentence of 15 years imprisonment.

Bradley J. Smith, also of Millington, was arraigned Monday on charges of breaking and entering and larceny.

Smith's preliminary exam has been set for Aug.

5 at 8:30 p.m. Bond was set at $10,000.

Smith, 19, is charged with breaking into a house on Clio Road in Arbela Township Jan. 11. He was arrested by deputies from the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

If convicted, Smith faces a sentence of 15 years imprisonment.

Colwood hung on to their one-game lead over the Catholics in the National Division, while Lamotte and Evangelical both scored victories in last week's church league softball race.

With one week of play left, the American Division showdown will be played Tuesday, July 28, at 9:00 p.m. as Evangelical will host Lamotte. The winner will take the division crown. Colwood can take the National Division with a victory this Thursday, July 30, over Novesta.

Cass City all-star Little Leaguers win at Bad Axe

The Cass City Boys' Little League All-star traveling team won 3 straight games to win the Bad Axe Tournament championship. The Bad Axe Little League sponsored the tournament Friday and Saturday.

Cass City won their first game blanking the Bad Axe Gold team 7-0. Greg LeValley and Billy Graham combined their pitching skills, along with good team defense, to keep Bad Axe scoreless.

Jason Morgan delivered a 3-run home run in the third inning to give Cass City a 6-run lead. Graham, Richard Kubacki and Mark Kubacki each had 2 hits.

Cass City faced Elkton in their second game. Cass City scored early with 3 runs in the first inning and 6 runs in the second on their way to a 15-0 win. LeValley, Morgan and Jason Walther each had 2 hits. LeValley and Graham again pitched excellent games which, combined with team de-

Recapping last week's games:

JULY 21

Trinity vs. Colwood: Colwood trailed 1-0 in the bottom of the first until Mike Wilson sent a 3-run homer over the left field fences to help Colwood take an eventual 12-2 win, their 10th of the year.

Colwood scored 4 more runs in the third and added 4 insurance marks in the sixth. Dale Smith was the winning pitcher, while Mike Stec was charged with the loss for Trinity.

Evangelical vs. Baptists: Evangelical's Bill Bader went the distance and teammate Bert Brinkman went 3-3 as Evangelical remained in an American Division title chase with a 12-7 win over the Baptists.

The Baptists scored 6 runs in the third with the help of Ron Ouvry's 2-run triple to take a 6-5 lead. But Evangelical bounced back for 6 runs in the fourth and never trailed again. Dan Bostick was 3-3 for the Baptists. Gary Mellendorf took the loss.

Shabbona vs. Novesta: Dean Severance struck out 7 as Shabbona held on for a 10-7 victory over Novesta.

Shabbona led 8-7 in the bottom of the sixth when Novesta's John LeBioda hit a double to put the tying run on second. However, Dave Speirs' line drive shot to right field was caught by Shabbona's Dan Cooper, preserving the win. Phil Klaus was 3-4 and Francis DeLong 2-3 with 2 RBI's for Novesta. Speirs was the losing pitcher.

Missionary vs. Lamotte: Carl Nicol was 2-4 and Len King 3-4 as Lamotte defeated Missionary, 10-4.

Lamotte rallied for 7 runs in the third to post their ninth victory of the year. Rev. Jim Keller was the winning pitcher for Lamotte while Al McKee was the loser.

JULY 23

Lamotte vs. Deford: Lamotte's Brian Hirsch hit a solo home run over the left-center field fence in the third inning to help Lamotte defeat winless Deford, 18-4.

Hirsch's home run came in the middle of a 5-run rally. Lamotte followed that up by scoring 6 runs in the fourth. Deford got on the board in the bottom of the fourth when Mike Dale hit a bases loaded shot to left field that was misplayed, resulting in 4 runs. Rev. Jim Keller was the winning pitcher, while Jeff Willis was charged with the loss.

Colwood vs. Shabbona: Colwood's Jerry Toner hit a bases loaded triple in the second to cap a 6-run inning and lift Colwood to a 12-2 victory over Shabbona.

Toner also had an RBI single in the first and collected another single later to make him 3-3 for the game. Dwayne Smith was also 2-3 for Colwood, now 12-1. Randy Severance had an RBI triple for Shabbona. Mike Wilson was the winner, while Dean Severance took the loss.

Novesta vs. Catholics: Gary Robinson recorded 9 strike outs for the Catholics, who defeated Novesta 7-1.

The Catholics' Jeff Dillion was 3-4, with a double and triple and Robinson was 2-4. Dave Speirs managed to strike out 6 in a losing effort. The Catholics have 2 games remaining and must win both and hope for a Colwood defeat to share the divisional title.

Notes from around the league....

As of last week, Trinity United Methodist will no longer field a team. The team dissolved last week after apparent internal struggles.

The loss of one team from the league at least makes the playoff picture a little bit clearer. With an even 10 teams now remaining, here's how the playoff structure will work: On Aug. 4, the number 4 and 5 teams from each division will play each other in what could be termed a "mini-divisional" playoff. The winner of each of those games will then play the division winner from the opposite division. The number 2 team will play the number 3 team from the opposite division, with both winners eventually meeting in the championship game Aug. 13.

It is interesting to note some of the families who represent the various church league teams. Some of the brother tandems in the league this year: Bert and Rick Brinkman and Steve and Darrin Ross of Evangelical, Randy, Tim and Dean Severance of Shabbona, Dave and Skip Speirs of Novesta, Ron, Terry, Keith and Tom Czekai of the now-disbanded Trinity team, Dave and Doug McArthur from the Baptists, Ron and Randy Guinther of the Lutherans and Joe, Lee and Mike Langenburg of the Catholics. Also Dean and Dave Little of Novesta.

Not all brothers play on the same team, however. Doug Hyatt played for Trinity, while brother Dennis plays for Shabbona. And Gary Robinson is a hurler for the Catholics while brother Ed was a center-fielder for Trinity. The most interesting sibling match-up of the year was not so fraternal, however. Evangelical's Bill Bader found himself pitching against sis Sherri for Shabbona a few weeks back. The older brother got his sister to pop out the first time, but she took a base on balls the next time up. Wonder who Mom and Dad Bader were pulling for?

Speaking of women in the league, Bader was not the first female to break the gender code this year. The Baptists' Wendy Mellendorf, daughter of manager Gary Mellendorf, played second base early in the year for a game. The most consistent female of the league, however, has been the Lutherans' Tracy Abbot, who has seen action in nearly every game.

Bert Brinkman has put together a streak of 7 straight hits in his last 2 games for Evangelical. My apologies to Bert, who I wrote up as B-U-R-T last week. Maybe it was a good luck charm though.

Finally, to no one's surprise, league leading Colwood has confirmed that they will enter the Michigan State Class E Fastpitch tournament this August. Colwood will be without the services of hurler/sluggo Mike Wilson, who already plays for a city league team, but the rest of the team will play. A good showing would certainly give Cass City's church league some legitimacy.

SHABBONA FIRST baseman Dennis Hyatt tries unsuccessfully to pick off Colwood's Greg Tomlinson in Church League action Thursday night. Colwood won the game, 12-2, to stay in first place in the National Division.

Sanilac County 4-H Fair expected to draw 40,000 to Sandusky

An exciting stunt show featuring several Hollywood stunt professionals Monday will highlight attractions slated for the Sanilac County 4-H Fair, set to begin Sunday and run through Aug. 8.

Fair officials expect 30,000 to 40,000 persons to visit the week-long event, which is in its 56th year.

The featured attraction, Joie Chitwood's Thrill Show, will begin at 8 p.m. at the fairgrounds in Sandusky and includes stuntmen featured in some of this season's episodes of "Miami Vice" and "Spencer: For Hire."

Also new this year will be a talent show beginning at 8 p.m. Thursday in front of the grandstand.

The event will pay $100 to the first-place act, $35 for second place and $20 for third place. A wide selection of talent varying from singing to acrobatics is expected.

Persons interested in entering the contest can fill out an application at Kohn's Music Store in Sandusky, or contact Debbie Miller at (313) 648-2515.

According to fair organizers, this year's event promises to be "bigger and better than ever, offering something for the young and old alike."

Aside from various activities, an estimated 3,700 entries to be shown by 1,000 4-H and open class exhibitors will be on display during the week, with judging set to begin Monday and conclude Saturday.

Horse pulling (light and heavyweight divisions) will kick off fair events at 2 p.m. Sunday. The 4-H king and queen coronation will be held at 7 p.m., followed by the annual Gospel Sing, sponsored by the Sandusky area Council of Churches, at 7:30 p.m.

Open class, 4-H and F.F.A. judging of non-perishable exhibits will begin Monday morning along with the first of several 4-H horse and pony shows scheduled to be held during the week.

McDonaghs Amusements will again put the fair into full swing with the opening of carnival rides beginning at about 5 p.m., which is also the planned starting time for the judging of fairgrounds decorating exhibits.

Tuesday, a "pay one price" day on the midway ($6 to ride from 1 to 5:30 p.m. or from 6 p.m. to closing), will feature Tracey Lynne and the Mountain Express Show. The top 40s country band will begin its show at 8 p.m. at the grandstand.

Wednesday is "Children's Day," with rides available at a reduced price. Kids aged 4 to 11 years are welcome to enter a pedal tractor pull, slated to begin at 1 p.m. Registration for the event, which requires a $1 entry fee and a parents' permission slip, begins at 11 a.m. at the fair office. Trophies and ribbons will be awarded.

A dairy quiz bowl will be held at the community tent at 11 a.m., while a tractor and pick-up pull will get underway at 7:30 p.m. That event, an annual favorite, will include farm, open and modified tractors, and stock pick-ups.

Thursday is also a "pay one price" day, and will include the start of judging of all dairy entries, the talent show and a pony pull slated for 7 p.m. (free admission). Another "Children's Day" and a "Handicapped Day" (free gate admission) are scheduled for Friday.

Coronation of the Sanilac County Bean Queen will take place at 7 p.m., followed by more tractor and pickup pulls at 7:30 p.m. The pulls will include super stock pickups, and farm and antique tractors.

The popular 4-H and F.F.A. livestock sale and a small animals sale will be held Saturday, with the livestock sale set for 1 p.m. at the livestock arena and the small animals sale to begin at 3:30 p.m.

Saturday will be another "pay one price" day, and will feature a demolition derby at 7 p.m. at the grandstand. The event will see some 40 vehicles compete in 4 regular heats and one powderpuff heat.

Admissions during the week are $3 per person for gate and grandstand Thursday, with pre-schoolers free; $4 per person evening grandstand shows Friday and Saturday with pre-schoolers free; and $1 per person gate admission Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday (12 and under free).

HEALTH TIPS

We're still at square one in evaluating sleep patterns

"When we consider REM (rapid eye movement) sleep, most of our previous notions about sleep seem to fly out the window," says Charles P. Pollak, M.D., head of the Sleep-Wake Disorders Center and assistant professor of neurology at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center in White Plains, N.Y.

Although we spend nearly a third of our lives in sleep, it holds mysteries that sleep researchers and experts have just begun to investigate this last decade. Chief among these mysteries is the strange sleep cycle we repeat several times each night. As the night progresses, the cycle includes increasing amounts of time spent in REM sleep, replete with vivid dreams.

An entire sleep cycle lasts some 100 minutes, after which the pattern is repeated. Adults spend as much as 2 hours -- about 20 to 25 percent of their sleep time -- in REM sleep.

What is REM Sleep? Why is it Important?

REM sleep, also called "paradoxical sleep," is the period of sleep associated with dreaming, mild involuntary muscle twitches, activation of sexual organs and rapid eye movements (usually under closed lids). REM sleep periods occur 4 to 6 times each night, depending on the total time asleep. Heart rate, breathing and brain waves all go through periods of acceleration during REM sleep.

In contrast, most non-REM sleep is characterized by slow brain waves, and regular breathing and heart rate, and by relaxed muscles and little movement. It's the kind of sleep that fulfills our image of a restful night.

Some researchers believe that REM sleep helps us form permanent memories. Other scientists speculate that this paradoxical stage of sleep serves to rid our overly stimulated brains of useless information. Alternate theories abound. Whatever the actual purpose of REM sleep in particular, sleep in general seems to be a restorative period for the mind and body. It allows replenishment of vital chemicals depleted during the day and helps us conserve energy.

The Sleep Cycle: Round and Round we go -- And Why? Nobody Knows

We begin each night's slumber with nonREM sleep of progressively deepening levels and pass eventually into REM.

"REM sleep races our motors kind of hard," says Rosalind Cartwright, Ph.D., director of the Sleep Disorders Service and Research Center and professor and chairman of psychology at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago. Restfulness may not be REM sleep's primary function.

In an adult, dreaming fills about 85 percent of total REM sleep time. It's not that we don't dream during nonREM sleep, but such dreams are generally more thoughtlike and logical. In contrast, REM dreams tend to be vivid, intense, storylike and often bizarre.

Freud believed that remembering these dreams could shed valuable light on unconscious drives that we repress when we're awake. He theorized that our drives are revealed -- albeit in disguised form -- when we lower our guard during sleep. What Freud didn't know is that we have many dreams each night and forget most of them. In fact, we're likely to remember a dream only if we're awakened while it's still in progress.

So what purpose do these unremembered dreams serve? Or, to focus on the larger question, what functions does REM sleep serve?

"All Our Knowledge Brings us Nearer to Our Ignorance"

"Every sleep researcher has half a dozen theories on the purpose of REM sleep and dreams," says Dr. Cartwright.

Among the most compelling theories on REM sleep are these:

- It's necessary for the development of the central nervous system. Evidence suggests that a third-trimester fetus spends a considerable portion of its time in REM sleep and a newborn about 8 hours a day. We don't know whether they're dreaming, but it seems unlikely.

- It permits us to adapt to or deal with threatening experiences we've had during the day. In this view, dreaming relegates to the unconscious those experiences and emotions that are difficult to deal with or better forgotten.

- It allows us to discharge instinctual drives -- fulfill sexual and aggressive desires, for example -- in dreams, rather than have them complicate our waking lives.

- Dreams help us sort through temporarily stored information so that the irrelevant is discarded and the important is stored more permanently -- a process known as memory consolidation.

We're still at square one in terms of evaluating most of these theories, however, because it's extremely difficult to design and carry out experiments to test them adequately.

Dreaming is Forgetting -- Or is it For Remembering?

As half the team of Watson and Crick, Francis Crick, Ph.D., won a 1962 Nobel Prize for historic work in genetics. Dr. Crick, now Distinguished Research Professor at the Salk Institute in La Jolla, Calif., has recently turned his attention to REM sleep.

"Almost all mammals have REM sleep, particularly young children," says

Dr. Crick. "Also, if you deprive someone of it, you get REM rebound (an increase in REM sleep) on subsequent nights. An acceptable theory must explain all of this."

During REM sleep, the brain stem (a primitive area of the brain) fires signals, seemingly at random. These stimulate the cortex (conscious brain), causing the spurts of brain activity characteristic of REM and probably triggering the dreams as well.

Quite a bit of research has attempted to demonstrate that REM sleep facilitates the learning of complex material -- a foreign language, for example. After being exposed to new information, an individual who gets sufficient REM sleep that night will retain more of that information the next day. In other words, REM sleep may help consolidate memory.

This theory -- like many others regarding REM sleep -- is controversial.

"It's very difficult to deprive people of REM," says Dr. Crick. "You can't do it for very long. So we don't really know what the effects of REM deprivation are. The studies to date just aren't adequate."

Dr. Crick's own theory attaches particular importance to the unconscious dreams in REM sleep. He sees them as materials our brains are discarding. In other words, "we dream in order to forget." Random stimulation by the brain stem helps higher brain regions "tune up." It removes useless brain cell connections formed during early development or by modifications resulting from unimportant memories which may flash by us as dreams. The concept is somewhat like gently shaking a tree to rid it of overripe fruit.

"REM makes our brain more efficient," says Dr. Crick. "It allows us to function with smaller brains than we'd otherwise need if they remained cluttered with everything we've ever seen, heard or felt. If we didn't have this process," he adds, "we'd have more fantasy and get similar ideas mixed up, especially in childhood." So this "forgetting," in effect, helps us remember what we need to know.

What's the Evidence?

There is no direct test at present, according to Dr. Crick, that can prove the theory. Such a test of the REM sleep forgetting, or "reverse learning," theory would have to show that "unconscious dreams reduce the probability of such thoughts occurring in the future," says Dr. Crick. "This is far beyond the methods we have available today."

"The only way to test this theory is to see what happens at synapses -- connections between brain cells -- during REM sleep, and for technical reasons, that won't be possible for a number of years,"

Local American Legion Post officially disbands

After some 40 years in Cass City, the Tri-County American Legion Post 507 officially disbanded July 20.

That night its 15 members met for the last time to discuss any leftover business to be settled before the organization disbanded, charter member Andy Kozan said.

"One of the things was we still had about $4,500 in our treasury, so we had to decide what to do with it," he noted.

The members decided to divide the funds among various non-profit organizations.

Last week they started distributing the money to the following organizations chosen by the members: the Elkland Township Fire Department, Hills and Dales Hospital Auxiliary, Lions, American Cancer Society, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans. Each organization received at least $500, Kozan pointed out.

The Tri-County American Legion Post was formed in June of 1946. The post received its charter from the state post Jan. 13, 1947, with a roll call of 49 members. The post's first commander was Arthur Little.

Also among the first ranks was Vern McConnell, now one of the oldest American Legion members in Michigan at 91 years of age. McConnell joined the Adams Seeger American Legion Post of Cass City when it was formed in 1918. The Seeger Post disbanded during the Great Depression, and he then joined the Tri-County Post.

The American Legion in Cass City was strong in the 1950s and 1960s, with a peak membership of 90 in 1962.

"The American Legion was quite active for a number of years and did a lot of good in Cass City," said past serviceman William O'Dell.

"We built a basement on Main Street on the west end of town to hold our meetings," he remarked. Plans for construction of an above-ground building never materialized.

Membership started slipping in the 1970s, O'Dell said. Older members were dying and there were no younger servicemen joining the Legion to take their place.

"The last straw was when the quarters (basement) became damaged. We sold the property and met for a few times at my farm," O'Dell noted.

The remaining members, headed by then-Commander Cass Bartnik, decided to stop having meetings.

That was some 10 years ago. The state revoked the post's charter a couple of years ago, and the old Legionnaires met and disbanded the funds July 20, he added.

The American Legion Auxiliary joined forces in 1947. Its membership also climbed into the 90s in the 1960s.

"The women remained active a long time after the men decided to stop meeting," Jack Esau of Cass City said.

The auxiliary disbanded a couple of years ago, he added.

Some of the 15 members left have joined the Caro American Legion Post 7, while others have joined the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post in Cass City.

There are other veterans organizations in Cass City, such as the VFW and the Disabled American Veterans, but the American Legion's official disbanding ends another chapter in Cass City's history.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY PRESIDENT Betty Russell accepts a $500 check from the recently disbanded Tri-County American Legion Post 507. Andy Kozan, charter member, said the Legion donated some $4,500 from leftover funds to several organizations.

Church attendance remains steady, many area pastors say

The number of church-going people may be dropping these days throughout the country, but in Cass City, most church pastors are saying their congregation size is either increasing or staying steady.

The Rev. A.E. McFarland, pastor of the Cass City Church of The Nazarene, says attendance in the church has risen a bit since becoming pastor a little more than 5 years ago.

"When I came in, there was no way to go but up. We're not large now, but we've grown quite steadily over the past 5 years," he said.

Eldred Kelley, pastor of the Evangelical Free Church, said attendance has been increasing steadily since the church was developed 4 1/2 years ago.

"Attendance is very excellent; it's increasing all the time," he said.

While attendance overall has been increasing at the Cass City Baptist Church, the church has lost some families due to job transfers.

"The last few we've lost were because they could find better paying jobs (elsewhere) or they were transferred," said the Rev. John R. Wood, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

"We've lost them due to economic reasons, and there's nothing we can do about that," he remarked.

Other pastors say attendance has remained steady for the last 5 years.

"In the last 5 years attendance has gone up, at least, that's what the parishioners tell me. In the last 2 years we've leveled off and are holding our own," said the Rev. Julius Spleet, pastor of St. Pancratius Catholic Church.

"We've had people move or die, but with Walbro coming in the last several months, some of them are Catholic families so it's generally speaking up rather than down right now," he added.

Chuck Emmert, pastor of the Novesta Church of Christ, said attendance has stayed pretty steady, but that may not be necessarily good.

"A church should be growing at least a little all the time. A steady attendance is not healthy," he explained.

ATTENDANCE SLIPS IN SUMMER

The clerical community was pretty much in consensus that attendance in their churches dropped slightly during the summer.

"Sure, the attendance goes down in the summer months. There's no major church festivals to attend and people go on vacation to their cottages," said Allen Fruendt, pastor of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church.

"We have what we call a 'summer slump,'" McFarland said.

"In the summer there's open houses and weddings to go to, and people go to weekend outings, so I'm sorry to say attendance lags a bit," he added.

Some pastors, however, said attendance isn't affected much in the summer.

"We have a number of people going to cottages in the summer, but we also have a number of retired people who like to get away from the weather and go to Florida, so attendance pretty much stays the same throughout the year," said the Rev. S. Joe Robertson, pastor of Trinity United Methodist Church.

"There was a graph done for a six-year period and February was a low spot for us as far as attendance goes, and it really doesn't go down in the summer," Emmert said.

"In fact, attendance in June has been better than January-May of this year," he noted.

A slump in attendance can mean less money gathered at weekly collections. That isn't necessarily true for all churches, pastors say.

"Attendance and what's received in collections go hand in hand. If attendance is down, so are collections," Fruendt said.

"The amount received in collections goes down a little, but some of our parishioners try to keep up and some make it up in the fall," Spleet remarked.

"(Money received in collections) slacks off, but we don't have the overhead in the summer with smaller heating bills, so we make it all right," McFarland pointed out.

The section of the new tax law that could affect church offerings states that if a person files a short form, he can not claim exemptions on money given to nonprofit organizations including churches, Wood said.

"Someone told me it used to be the way it is now (under the new law) until they changed it a few years ago, and now they've (the government) just reverted back," he said.

He added that offerings at the church haven't been affected much by the new tax laws.

"It's really too early to tell, but the church doesn't teach that how much you give is related to how much of a tax break you get," Robertson said.

"It doesn't seem to have affected it yet, but it may be too early to tell," Kelley noted.

Melvin and Lee Pasanski

Area couple hired as "extras" in movie

by Tom Montgomery
News Editor

There may be some truth to a belief held by the late Andy Warhol, who once said that everyone gets a chance to be "famous" for at least 15 minutes.

At least that's the way it turned out recently for Cass City residents Melvin and Lee Pasanski.

The area couple worked as "extras" this month in a number of chase scenes shot in Detroit for a movie, "Collision Course," starring Pat Morita (of Karate Kid fame).

Melvin Pasanski describes the recent adventure with excitement that defies his 60 years. His stocky 5'10" frame, broad grin and animated gestures remind one of the type-cast shopkeepers and malt shop owners portrayed in a number of television shows over the years.

And indeed, that's the type of image he and his wife were asked to present in the movie.

The chase scenes of the movie are set in Detroit's Eastern Market, located just east of the downtown area, where the Pasanskis spend 2 days per week selling eggs and produce for a living.

The pair, both originally from Detroit before moving to Yale and then to Cass City in 1970, have been going to the market, which covers a 5-block area, for the past 15 years.

When a firm called "Sign of the Ram Productions, Inc." put out a sign asking for persons interested in working as extras, the couple agreed to "give it a try."

CAR CHASE

Melvin, who noted he and his wife spent 4 days—July 8, 9, 10 and 12—working on their scenes, said that it took about 3 hours to shoot his first scene, which involved a car chase near his produce stand.

"It was where my truck was parked on a corner and I was supposed to be unloading my truck," he explained. "When I had my last crate, the cars were racing past and I was supposed to be looking around, surprised."

"It was a lot of waiting around to be called," he continued.

Lee agreed, adding, "They were shooting scenes all around the market. When it was busy, it was fun, but when you were just standing around, it was terrible."

According to Melvin, the 4-day shooting session will be condensed into about 15 minutes of footage.

He described another scene in which the 2 tables he owns and uses regularly at the market were demolished by cars chasing each other. As in real life, he was supposed to be selling eggs and vegetables at the time, and the cameras zoomed in on his "surprised" expression as he witnessed the speeding cars.

"They hit our tables and smashed the eggs and produce," he remarked. Lee added, "We were told to run between 2 trucks when we saw the cars coming."

Following that scene, the Pasanskis explained that they witnessed a young man in his 20's attempt to get an autograph from Morita.

But, Melvin noted, the man didn't have much luck. He was stopped short by Morita's bodyguard, who Melvin described as being 6'8" and weighing about 300 pounds.

MEETING PAT

Shortly thereafter, Morita walked over to the Pasanskis. "He came over and shook hands with us," Melvin said. "He (Morita) said, 'It was nice working with you, even though it was a short time.'"

Melvin agreed, but observed that show business really isn't all it's cracked up to be. He pointed out a 14-hour day on Sunday. On the second day of shooting, he added, "I almost ran out of gas because I moved the truck so many times" for various scenes.

Still, the Pasanskis, who reside at 5102 Schwegler Rd., say they enjoyed meeting Morita, who stands about 5'5", according to Melvin. And the couple received about $800 for their acting efforts over the 4-day period.

The Pasanskis, who have 10 grown children ranging in age from 18 to 37, also received a memento of their brief albeit exciting acting careers—the remains of a produce stand which was smashed during a scene.

And something else important, Lee commented.

"We needed something different in our life; that's why we took this opportunity," she said, adding that she enjoyed watching makeup artists applying some convincing wounds during a crash scene.

Melvin added that the money (they were paid on a per day basis rather than by the hour) is a good incentive. "If you figure it by the hour, it wasn't a high-paying job. But when the first of the month comes around, we need the money," he said.

Melvin, who isn't new to television cameras (he's been interviewed a number of times by Detroit television stations) hasn't ruled out an acting career.

"We could do a couple more things and then retire," he said with a broad grin.

Lee smiled. "He's just hoping someone will see him in the movie and offer him a contract."

AT HOME WITH their "now-famous" truck are local movie "stars" Melvin and Lee Pasanski, who worked as "extras" in an upcoming movie starring Pat Morita. At left are the remains of a fruit stand, smashed during filming of a car chase.

Flood recovery answers

Q: I am 16 years old and my life is a real mess. No matter what I do, it doesn't seem to be enough. I can't please anyone, including myself. I help my dad with the farming and my mom with the house chores and if there is any time left over, I feel guilty (or am made to feel guilty) about taking it for myself. I think I'm going crazy.

A: Many families in our area are going through a very difficult time right now. Sometimes parents don't realize the pressure that their children feel. When a family has a problem, no member escapes from it, everyone is affected. It is important to know that you are not alone in this, many teenagers are probably feeling the very same way. You might try getting a group of friends together and discussing the feelings and frustrations that you share -- avoid doing a lot of complaining and instead, try to come up with some ideas of how to deal with the situation.

The desire to help our parents and remain loyal to the family is both common and good. If we feel that we are not being loyal or helping enough, most of us feel guilty. What we have to realize is that we have needs, too, and those needs must somehow be met. Balance is the key. You might start out by making a list of all the things that others expect of you. Sit down with your parents and put it in order according to what is important to everyone and what everyone can live with most comfortably. It could be that your parents just don't understand how you are feeling, and what is important to you right now. By doing this, perhaps everyone will feel better.

If you could use a little outside help, please give us a call.

We would like to answer your questions dealing with Flood Recovery concerns. Please address them to:

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

"It's been obvious for years that Americans save far too little," says Gary Shilling in the Wall Street Journal. Gary heads his own economic consulting firm, and is highly regarded.

That doesn't mean we all have to agree with him. Take this statement of his in a recent article, quoted here.

So savings accounts are down. No quarrel with that. But a lot of savings accounts are combined in NOW accounts, which are checking accounts that pay some interest. Are money market accounts included in the national figures on individual savings?

There's a big item that is not in the savings totals -- and that's Social Security taxes. This year here's the tax on the first $42,000 of earnings:

Employer...7.15%...$3,003
Employee...7.15%...$3,003
TOTAL $6,006

There's $6,006 pure savings. Granted, the worker doesn't get the benefits until he's 62 (or is disabled), but it's still in an account for him, and if death occurs earlier, then the spouse can benefit at a specified age.

If you're self-employed, then you will pay in 12.3% of the first $42,000 you earn. The tax:

$42,000x12.3% = $5,166
That looks like "savings" to me. Maybe not to Gary.

Social Security payments are now at a $760 maximum per month. If the spouse is also 65 then this is increased by 50%. Should the spouse (not entitled to payments in his/her own right) want to start drawing benefits at 62, then the payments are 37.5% of those eligible to the spouse.

One person's benefits are a max. $760 a month, or $9,120 a year.

Couple, both 65 years old...$13,680 a year.

Give 'em 15 years to live and the total amount they'll draw is $205,200.

Another big item that doesn't come into the official savings figures is a person's pension. Grab a pension figure -- say $500 a month. $6,000 a year at retirement.

Say it costs a company 4% of a worker's pay to provide this sort of pension. This comes out of the pool of earnings allocated to labor. If the company didn't have a pension plan, it could pay the worker say 4% more. Call it $1,500 a year per worker, and let's also call it savings.

There's also the bargain savings a worker can pick up by having a personal IRA. An IRA contribution up to $2,000 is deductible from income, and that's worth an immediate saving of whatever your tax bracket is. If it's 28% then it's $560 you save with each year's contributions. You've gotten a cut-rate retirement plan for yourself, courtesy of Uncle Sam.

(There are some restrictions on personal IRA's if you're covered by a company pension, but in the $40,000-$50,000 income range, they are of little significance).

So we have 3 forms of "savings" which escape the economists' definitions. Two of them are involuntary. One, the IRA, is up to you.

1. Social Security (you pay and the company pays) total $6,006 a year.

2. Company pension, a guess as to what in effect comes out of your pay, say $1,500 a year.

3. IRA contribution, $2,000 a year if you can spare it.

Total of all 3, all pointed toward retirement -- $9,506.

Whatever the economist may want to call it, it's a lot of money put away in the sock.

Bill Myers is a retired editor and investment counselor.

2 car-deer accidents reported in Novesta

Two car-deer accidents were reported in Novesta Township last week by the State Police post in Caro.

The first one occurred Saturday when Carl L. Lounsbury, 5714 River Rd., Cass City, was eastbound on River Road west of Warner Road when a deer ran out from the north into the vehicle's path, the report stated.

Lounsbury told troopers he was unable to avoid hitting the deer.

The vehicle sustained slight to moderate damage in the mishap and Lounsbury sought his own treatment.

No citation was issued. Ronald L. Kappen, 3192 E. Cass City Rd., Cass City, was northbound on Cemetery Road south of Severance Road Sunday when a deer ran into the vehicle's path from the west side, the report stated.

Kappen told deputies he swerved to try to avoid colliding with the deer but was unsuccessful.

His vehicle sustained slight damage in the mishap.

No citation was issued.

MICROWAVING MEAT

Beef Roasts

1. Select roasts weighing no more than four pounds.
2. Place roast fat side down, on rack in microwave-safe dish.
3. Do not add liquid. Cover with waxed paper.
4. Microwave at MEDIUM LOW (200 watts or 30 percent power).
5. Allow 18 to 22 minutes per pound for rare to medium.
6. Rotate dish ¼ turn every 20 minutes.
7. Invert roast to fat side up midway through cooking.
8. Cook until 5° below desired doneness. To determine doneness of beef roasts use the oven's temperature probe or a meat thermometer after roasts are removed from the oven.
9. Remove from oven; tent with foil; let stand 15 to 20 minutes.

Pork Roasts

1. Select roasts weighing approximately 3 to 3½ pounds. Boneless roasts should have a diameter of no more than four inches (or five inches for the shoulder blade Boston roast).
2. Place roast into a 10x16-inch oven cooking bag and place in a microwave-safe baking dish or place on a microwave-safe rack with sides.
3. Evenly sprinkle roast with dried herbs or a package (24 grams) of pork or brown gravy mix.
4. Close bag loosely with string or a ½-inch strip cut from open end of bag.
5. Allow 20 to 22 minutes per pound.
