ONE WOMAN WAS KILLED and 3 persons injured Friday in Sanilac Gounty when a car (above) crossed the center line of M-53, sideswiped a pickup truck (inset) and collided with a van. The county marked its 10th and 11th traffic fatalities over the weekend. A second accident, Saturday night, claimed the life of a Cass City man.

Two persons were killed in separate accidents on M-53 last week.

A Sandusky woman is dead and a Snover woman remained at Hills and Dales General Hospital Monday following a 3-vehicle accident Friday afternoon on M-53 just north of Robinson Road in Sanilac County's Greenleaf Township. Iras Behr, 72, of Sandusky was killed when the car in which she was a passenger sideswiped a pickup truck and then collided head-on with a van at about 3:55 p.m.

the car, was listed in "fair" condition Monday at Hills and Dales General Hospi-

Also injured Melinda Rambo, 23, Bad Axe, a passenger in the pickup truck, who was treated and released at Huron Memorial Hospital in Bad Axe, and August Kesek, 40, of Sterling Heights, the driver of the van.

The driver of the pickup, Vernon Rounds, 48, of Bad Axe, and 2 of his passengers, Julia Rounds, 45, and Scott Rambo, 25, were not injured.

According to Sanilac County Sheriff's Deputy Linda Schuster, Behr's vehicle was northbound on M-53 when it crossed the center line, sideswiped Rounds' southbound pickup, which was pulling a fifth-wheel trailer, and then collided head-on with Kesek's southbound van.

Sanilac deputies were assisted by state police troopers from the Sandusky post and the Elkland Township Fire Department. Also on hand were ambulances from Caro and Cass City, Schuster said.

Jaworski, meanwhile, was treated and later released at Huron Memorial Hospital in Bad Axe. Warford apparently sought his own treatment for injuries.
According to deputy

Linda Schuster, Jaworski's vehicle had met a car going southbound just prior to the accident, which occurred in Sanilac County's Greenleaf Township. She stated that the Warford vehicle did not have its lights on.

Funeral services for Hill will be held Thursday at one p.m. at Little's Funeral Home, Cass City. He was born Aug. 2, 1965, in San-Mrs. Clifford Hill of Cass City. He was a 1984 graduate of Cass City High Šchool.

Officials announce plans for opening days of area schools ringing to summon students back to their classrooms in most school districts the first day of September, while Ubly students return Aug. 31.

Reese and Caro school districts are in financial straits, while a stabilized Kingston district even managed to add a few programs to their curriculum this

Owen-Gage, Reese and Ubly teachers have contracts to negotiate this fall, while Caro recently settled a 2-year contract, and Cass City and Kingston are beginning the second year of 2-year contracts.

Cass City and Caro are currently in the process of filling vacancies opened by departing faculty.

Cass City teachers are slated to report to their classes Monday, Aug. 31, at 9 a.m., with the students returning Tuesday, Sept. 1 at 8:25 a.m. for all elementary and intermediate school students and 8:30 a.m. for high schoolers.

Hot lunch will be served the first day with prices set at 90 cents for elementary students and 95 cents for intermediate and high school students, according to Supt. Donald Crouse.

The district is currently interviewing candidates for positions in special education and in an elementary grade, which is being in-rising enrollment in the elementary school.

It is anticipated that the enrollment will remain steady or decrease only slightly from the 1,475 students in school last year, he added.

budget won't be finalized tember. Crouse said it looks like Cass City will be running on a deficit budget.

'It looks like state aid is going to be modified. We started the budget in June and with the current figures at that particular time, it looks like we'll be running in the neighborhood of $80,000 in deficit spending. But that's subject to change," he explained. Caro is expected to greet some 2.500 students when they return Sept. 1 at 8:15

'We're expecting a decrease of about 20 students," according to Supt. Tom Lanway.

The first day of school will be a half-day, with dismissal at 11:45. Faculty and staff report to work Aug. 31 at 8:15.

Lunch prices remain the same at 75 cents for elementary students and 85 cents for secondary students.

CARO Because of projected de-

School bells will soon be creased by one class due to clines in enrollment and a possible cut in state aid, Caro is expected to have financial troubles this year,

Lanway said. "At this point, we're looking at a deficit of $320,000 for this year. At the dded. (Aug.10) school board Although the school's meeting we cut PREP (Pre-school until after the official Program) and we cut a sci-Fourth Friday count in Sep- ence position in the high school, a math and half-tine language arts position in the junior high and a halftime special education pos-

Schubel, Lanway said. Replacing VanHoost will be Joan Helwig, formerly a guidance counselor in the junior high school. Taking the counseling position in the junior high school will be Dorothy Van Allen, formerly a special education teacher in the elementary school. Alma Michalak has been named as the new athletic director. She replaces Lynn Werth, who is returning to a full-time teaching posi-

Michalak had been employed half-time as a physical education teacher. She will continue her teaching job and work half-time as athletic director.

The school district is also in the process of choosing a teacher to be added to the elementary school due to increased enrollment in the kindergarten,

"We will be hiring someone from within, but we don't know who yet," he added.

OWEN-GAGE

The first day for students at Owen-Gage will be a full day session on Sept. 1 starting at 8:30 a.m. Staff members will report to work Aug. 31 at 8 a.m.

Hot lunches will be offered in both the Owendale and Gagetown buildings on the first day. Prices at this time are set for elementary at 70 cents and grades 7-12 at $1.00. Bus routes will be about the same as they were for the 1986-87 school year. Supt. Harley B. Kirby said he recommends students be on the watch for the first week to establish a timetable for their route.

Owen-Gage teachers started negotiating their contracts in July and have not settled a contract, Kirby said.

"We just had our third meeting a week ago. Things are coming along," he Steady enrollment is expected in the school district. Last year the enrollment was 374 students. Owen-Gage voters approved a 15.9 millage increase in June, so the financial situation at the school district "doesn't look too bad," Kirby said.

'The millage was enough to offset the decreased SEV (State Equalized Value) revenue, but things don't look like they're going to get any better real soon," he added.

There are no staff vacancies right now and it looks like the staff is going to be about the same as last year.

REESE

Reese students will be returning to their classrooms Sept. 1 at 8:15 a.m., with a full day scheduled. Faculty and staff return to work Aug. 31 at 8:15 a.m.

Hot lunch prices are set at 75 cents for elementary and middle school students and 85 cents for high schoolers, with no price change from last year, according to Supt. Charles H. Twork. No changes in enrollment or staff are expected. The enrollment last year was about 1,060 students. The Reese teachers' contract is expiring and negotiations are expected to start in September, Twork said. Projected reductions in state aid spell trouble for

After 16 years

Father and son are reunited

Cass City resident Judy she explained, adding, "but Montreuil knew her husband's son would some day return to Michigan to find his father, even after the pair had not seen each other for some 16 years.

She was right. Judy's husband, Lloyd Montreuil, was reunited with his son, Martin P. Montreuil, July 30 in Farmington, N.Y., where Martin resides. According to Judy, who along with Lloyd lives at 4091 Crane Rd., Martin, 25, was in Lansing on business last month when he tried to locate his father. "He went to Gagetown-we had a farm there and he remembered he had been there when he was little,"

all that's left there now is a barn.

Having hit a dead end in his search, Martin asked at Wright's Service Station in Gagetown, where he learned of his father's current address.

Judy noted that only she and her son, Rodney, 23, were home when Martin knocked on the door--Lloyd was working at Buick's plant #10 in Flint, where he's been employed for nearly 20 years.

Judy said that she didn't recognize Martin, who "handed me a (business) card and said, 'This will probably explain'." She added, "He had his fiancee his name or anything. 'We hadn't seen him since we had him on the farm--he was 10--and that was 15 years ago," Judy continued, adding that Rodney pointed out that the man who left his card was Lloyd's son.

SHOCKED

Judy handed Lloyd the card when he got home. He understandably was shocked, he said.

The next day, Lloyd called Martin and the pair made plans for Lloyd and Judy to travel to New York and spend 5 days beginning July 29.

"I didn't think I would" with him. He didn't mention see him again, Lloyd, 47, said, adding that the weeklong visit was "too short to cover everything.

Llovd explained that he married his former wife in 1961 while in the service. A year later, Martin was born, and Lloyd got out of the service--he was stationed at Fort Niagara-in 1963. Shortly thereafter, he and his wife were divorced, and Martin remained with his mother in Buffalo, N.Y., Lloyd explained.

He added that Martin's week-long visit with himself and Judy at their Gagetown farm years ago was the only contact he's had with Martin. Lloyd and Judy, who will Judy added, "I always told him (Lloyd) Martin would come looking for him one day. You just have to have faith.'

Dick Hampshire, Cass City, was an eyewitness of the plane disaster at Metro Airport Sunday. He was in the observation tower watching the planes while waiting for his daughter, Lori, to fly in.

From where he was watching all he could see was a huge ball of smoke. His daughter was on one of the first planes to fly in after the airport re-opened.

We short changed the work of the Cass City pool staff, the participating swimmers and the community in an ad last

Due to a typo the ad said that the 100-mile swim raised $100 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Actually it was $700 that was earned.

Special note in case you have forgotten. The Tuscola County Health Department offers free immunization clinics at 2266 W. Caro Road, Caro, for Tuscola County residents, ages 2 months through school age. Adults can receive shots for $5 each.

A new vaccine is offered to fight a strain of polio (Haemaphilus B Meningitis) for children 2 to 5 years old.

Regular readers of this trivia will recall that it was reported that persons that remember Harry Jarkey from his days at the Casino in Wenona Beach, Bay City, are knocking on retirement.

Not so, says Clare Comment, who also remembers seeing his act. How could that be? I was under age, Comment confides, but I sneaked in to watch anyway.

3rd annual

Kingston fest a success

Despite a string of hot and humid days, and periods of rain, a number of area residents flocked to the 3rd annual Kingston Celebration Days, held Thursday through Sunday.

'There were more, by far, people here this year than there were last year, despite the bad weather,' event chairman Sandy Lance remarked. "We had a good turnout." Activities over the 4-day festival ranged from an allmale "prettiest legs" contest to a firemen's water fight to an "anything goes" competition.

Also successful was the annual parade, held Saturday, which included more than 50 units, according to Lance, who added that the Kingston Fire Depart-

"If It Fitz..."

It's not easy...

By Jim Fitzgerald

Several times my wife has had dinner with one of the sexiest men in America. It was something for me to think about when the Michigan Department of State said my face was unacceptably ugly.
Also, John T. Molloy, the famous "Dress for Success" men's fashion guru and author, said I was a low-class, sloppy weakling.

All of a sudden, it's not easy being me. Or being married to me.

My wife's occasional dining companion is Elmore (Dutch) Leonard, the Birmingham author of crime novels and movies. His wife, Joan, and I are also at the dinner table, and in the past I've been comfortable with the situation. I've never regarded his superior writing talent and wealth as a threat because I'm taller than he is and I know more piano bar enter-

But the editors of Playgirl magazine just declared Leonard one of this The fire department, nation's 10 sexiest men, which is celebrating its 85th ranking him right up there birthday, hosted a number with such impressive hunks of displays, including a as actor Tom Cruise and "Jaws of Life" demonstra-basketballer Michael Jor-

I don't mean to be unkind, but I was surprised. I always thought Leonard looked something like Gabby Hayes. He is slightly for reunion built, has a scraggly beard, and looks old enough to be Roy Rogers' cantankerous uncle.

"This is just one more example of honoring a City Recreational Park, celebrity because he's a nding. celebrity instead of recog-nizing the sexiness of a les-Mark and Becky nizing the sexiness of a les-Zmierski will continue as ser-known person like me who is too modest to have his picture on the cover of The 1988 reunion is Newsweek," I explained to scheduled for the third Sunmy wife.

new driver's license arrived today," she said as she put a velvet rope in front of the chair Leonard sat in the last time he visited our home.

It will be recalled that my youngest grandchild lost my old license, and I was terribly embarrassed while applying for a replacement. When the woman at the Secretary of State's of-fice gestured me toward a machine, I pressed my face against it and peeked into 2 holes, looking for the eye-test chart. But the machine was a camera, and I was supposed to be standing 3 feet away from it. So I was prepared for the resulting photo to reflect nearly as much chagrin as sexiness. I wasn't expecting total humiliation. Rather than sexy, I looked embalmed. And enclosed with the new license was a message saying the picture was so bad I should come in and try again.

I've heard dozens of people complain about the lousy pictures on their driver's license, but I've never before heard of anyone looking so awful they were recalled for repairs. It was enough to make me suspect that my appearance suffered from more than the momentary embarrassment of looking into a camera lens to test my

As for John T. Molloy, the heat got me. I usually walk to work and back, so when the temperature reaches over 90 degrees, I don't have an air-conditioned car to keep me from sweating between an air-conditioned home and an air-conditioned office. If I wore a suit coat and long-sleeve shirt I'd be soaking wet before walking one block.

So I dare to go to the office sans jacket in a short-sleeve shirt. And on the same day my wife roped off our Sexy Elmore Leonard Chair, she handed me a newspaper clipping quoting a Molloy book as saying:

"If you intend to take anything I've said in this book at all seriously...you will never, ever, as long as you live, wear a short-sleeve shirt for any business purpose, no matter whether you're the office boy or the president of the com-pany...Short-sleeve shirts are symbols of the lowermiddle class, and therefore pack no psychological authority or power. Upper middle-class tives...just do not wear short-sleeve shirts, as well they shouldn't.'

Onward and Upward. It's Sexy Leonard's furn to buy dinner, and I can only hope that some of it gets stuck in his beard.

Paul Asher part of international tour

While former Cass City resident Paul Asher was in West Germany and Denmark last month, he was advised not to drink tap water or eat the vegetables.

He also opted not to eat a treat served one night.

"They gave us raw ham-burger. I didn't go anywhere near it," said Asher, 17, while in Michigan recently to visit his grandparents, Al and Joann Asher and Alton O'Connor, all of Cass City. His parents are David and Sharon Asher of Phoenix, Ariz.

The Ashers moved to Phoenix in January and until then Paul had been raised in Cass City. He spent part of 5 summers at the Blue Lake Arts Camp because of his clarinet play-

They offer the tour every year and last year in August I saw the sign-up sheet and signed my name.
That was it," he noted.
Some 85 students from all over the world were in the tour band. The first time most of them had met was when they went to a band camp in Rottenbuch, West Germany, in Bavaria.

"We were there for 2 weeks before going on tour. We practiced 4 1/2 hours a day. The first few days were awful on everybody's mouths," he remarked.

When the symphonic, of which Asher was member, and jazz bands weren't practicing, the combined groups would form a choir, practicing an additional 2 hours a day.

"We only had 2 weeks to there really wasn't any other choice for them or else we'd sound terrible on tour," Asher explained.

When the 2-week camp was over, the bands traveled on bus to get to the cities on their tour, which included 7 stops.

"On the expressway in Germany there's no speed limit so it's mad chaos. But the bus went 55 miles per hour the whole time. We got a lot of horn-blowing and cars passing us," he said. The first 3 stops were in Germany before crossing on ferry to Denmark. "It was the first time I've ever been on a ferry and it was fun. No one got seasick, either," he pointed out.

HOST FAMILIES

At each stop on the tour, band members would stay with host families. "The host families were great. Every one of them had kids anywhere between 14-17,' he noted.

"There was one host family in Denmark where they had a 17-year-old boy and we went to a discotheque and took a tour in Copenhagen. They were really nice, and they'd had people there before," he added.

Each host family would take some band members in and treat them like one of the family. The members would spend evenings with the families, visit and eat

Denmark were similar. Every morning for breakfast they'd have hard rolls with butter or jelly and lunch meat, including salami and bologna.

'After awhile breakfast got a little boring," he remarked.

"Lunch was like our dinner here, the big meal. They'd have soup and salad and then steak and potatoes type main course," he explained. Dinner was similar to lunch, with lunch meat sandwiches.

In Germany, the group was told not to drink the milk or tap water or eat fresh vegetables.

'We were pretty close to Chernobyl and they said with the radiation it wasn't safe. We had to buy bottled water in pop cans for about $1 apiece," he explained.

The living conditions in both Germany and Denmark are similar to life in the United States, Asher

"They had microwaves; it wasn't much different than here. The standard of living was pretty close to ours," he pointed out.

The host families would often take their visitors on tours. One such tour Asher went on was to see the castle after which the Walt Disney World's castle was modeled.

'That castle was huge, and it was only part done when the owner died," he Neuschwanstein Castle was one of 3 built by King Ludwig of Bavaria between 1869-1886. It was Ludwig's favorite castle and the largest.

"There were paintings everywhere and the king had a jewelry box bigger than a boot box.'

'They wouldn't even let us take pictures because all the flashes would hurt the paints," he remarked.

SOUVENIR SHOPPING

Another tour took them to Munich, where the group spent most of their time shopping.

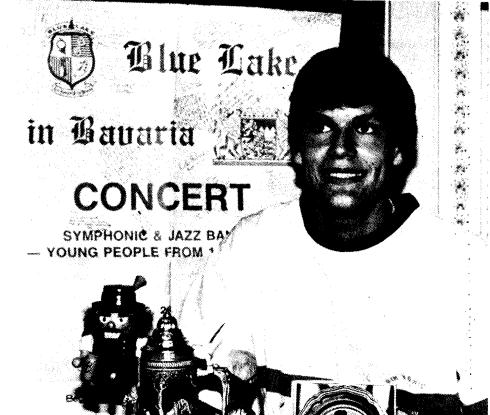

"I got some Hummels and when I tried to explain to my host family that people collect them in the U.S., they just couldn't understand it. They don't know about them," he said. Performing in 7 different cities in 2 countries was also quite an experience, with full houses every night.

'We had similar programs and we wouldn't play one piece unless there was an encore, which there always was," Asher added.

When asked if he'd go again, Asher said, "It's iffy, but probably not. I'h be going to college and majoring in either pharmacy or dentistry, so...

Asher will start his last year of high school at Corna Del Sol High School in Phoenix this fall.

Area teen participates in "Mission Encounter"

A Cass City resident may have gotten a lot of satisfaction and good times on her 2-week trip to the West Indies country of the Dominican Republic, but there was one thing she did not get that she had hoped she

"I was hoping to get a decent suntan while I was there. As you can see, I didn't get much," Kristy Marshall remarked.

The 17-year-old Cass City High School senior and her cousin, Sandy Marshall, 17, of Marlette, filled out applications last fall to go on the Mission Encounter III, sponsored by the Michigan Missionary District Church, which oversees Missionary churches in Michigan's lower peninsula, including Lamotte Missionary Church in Marlette, where the Marshalls are parishioners.

The Mission Encounters are a series of 2-week trips taken every 2 years. Each Encounter could be in a different place -- in 1985 it was in Jamaica, she pointed

"I've always been interested in taking off and seeing different countries and cultures, and I had applied for other trips with longer stays.'

'I don't know; it seemed like the right one to get involved in. I wouldn't have to worry about getting stranded in the middle of nowhere. I was interested in the program and I decided to give it a shot," she said.

In November the Marshalls and another church member, Kurt Gippert of Marlette, attended an interview in Davison before the Youth Board.

They picked Davison because it was centrally located for everyone who had to go there. There were some kids from pretty far up north and it still took them a long time to get there," she explained.

Marshall heard of her selection on the work ministry team in the beginning of December, as did her cousin and 8 other young people around the state. A sponsor couple were also selected from Brown City, the Rev. and Mrs. Stanley Inniger from the Fellowship Bible Church.

PREPARATORY MEETINGS

One might think this would be all that'd have to be done before leaving from Detroit Metropolitan Airport July 20. Not so, Marshall says.

"Starting in February, we had about one meeting a month in Davison to discuss what to expect on the trip," she explained.

'One meeting we went over the culture things about the country and a job summary," Marshall remarked. The teams before them had been involved in a variety of work projects including painting buildings, clean-up, minor repairs and construction. Marshall's group ended up spending most of their project time painting

'We had to paint the walls, ceilings and the trim around windows and doors, everything," she noted.

"The ceilings were so warped -- no way with the weather they had could they not be -- that the ceilings had to be brush painted instead of using paint rollers, It was a slow job," she pointed out.

HIGH HUMIDITY

temperature throughout the Dominican Republic reached up to the 100 degree range but the humidity "made it feel like 200 degrees. It also rained every day, a nice tropical storm.

"It was a different type of hot. It was so humid the air was stifling and your clothes stuck to everything," she noted.

'There were shade trees situated around the schools to keep the rooms cooler and we were inside.' We also didn't work bet-was nice. Then we either crashed or played cards, she remarked. The group played a lot of cards and other games during the evening or free time, as electricity was not reliable. "I think the lights went out at least 2 or 3 times a day while we were there. One time it went out during a church service and it stayed out for 41 hours,' Marshall explained.

When the electricity went out, the group used lanterns and flashlights to keep painting if they were painting. During the blackout. they were painting the outside of a church where the electricity or lack of it didn't affect their progress.

Also because of the inefficient electricity, the water only came in one temperature -- cold.

"We had a hard time living with the water. In the cities there they have cisterns, not wells."

"It got to the point where everyone could either wash their hair or take a shower once a day. With the humidity, it made things rough,"

LANGUAGE BARRIER

Dominican Republicans' language Spanish, so it created a language barrier between the team and residents.

"I've had 2 years of Spanish, so I could listen to them and translate everything slowly in my head. It was an exhausting pro-

Some of us didn't know Spanish at all. When you're listening to a sermon and you don't understand the language or very little, all you can do is sit there and get bored," she said.

As a result, the group really learned to appreciate speaking English and being able to have a conversation in English. 'When we went back on the plane to go to Metro, everyone spoke English and everyone understood each other," she pointed Marshall admits she had a lot of fun and would go again to any foreign country if she were given the opportunity.

'As far as the program I took, I'm not sure they'd take me back. But if they would, I wouldn't think twice about it.'

KRISTY MARSHALL, 17, Cass City, returned last week from a 2-week stay in the Dominican Republic on a mission

GOD'S CHILDREN by Stephen Freind (fiction). Set in Pennsylvania, this gripping timely novel portrays three charismatic men whose deeply ingrained Catholicism doesn't assuage their feelings of guilt and self-doubt. Kevin Murray, Pat Carney and Vince Grosso meet and become friends at Villanova University in the mid-60s. Years later, Kevin is a state representative known for his irreverent wit, integrity and vehement pro-life stance. He serves every constituent tirelessly, yet is remorsefully aware that he gives little time to his harried wife. Pat, a priest, habitually dodges responsibility and behaves selfishly to expedite his rise in the church's hierarchy. These weaknesses pain him and destroy his widowed father, who dies because of Pat's neglect. Vince, Pennsylvania's Mafia chief, savagely intimidates or slaughters his foes, though he agonizes after harming decent people. When Vince blackmails Kevin to coerce him into backing a bill, the crisis that ensues envelops all three men, testing their wills and convictions.

EVERYTHING TO GAIN: MAKING THE MOST OF THE REST OF YOUR LIFE by Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter (non-fiction). The Carters write jointly to tell the story of their lives after leaving the White House in 1980. Frankly acknowledging the trauma of the lost election, the Carters record their efforts to overcome the difficulties of making a fresh start while deeply in debt, adjusting to life in a small house in Plains, Ga., and other challenges. They describe in helpful and heartening detail the stages they went through on their way to building a new life and making the most of their abilities. There is practical advice from both husband and wife about exercise, good health habits and hard, useful work. Although they despair over the ills besetting society, the Carters do their best to make a difference. Volunteers in Habitat for Humanity, they help construct shelters for the homeless in the U.S.

THE TIMOTHY FILES by Lawrence Sanders (fiction). These three detective tales feature Timothy Cone, "the Wall Street dick," who works for an investigative agency, has an affair going with his boss Samantha and, though unprepossessing in manner and appearance, feels driven to uncover the scams behind the glossy fronts of wealthy business; he can also smell a dummy corporation or a money-laundering operation a mile away. The files deal respectively with a murderous real-estate conglomerate, a fertility clinic devoted to considerably more than "original biotechnological research, and drug dealing.

HEALTH TIPS

Television may be making children fat

Recent findings that American children are getting fatter has many health professionals worried, reports the Dairy Council of Michigan. Obesity has in-creased by 54% over the past 20 years among U.S. children age 6 to 11 and by 39% among teenagers 12 to 17 years, according to a new study just published in the American Journal of Diseases of Children.

The study showed that in children 6 to 11 years old, the greatest increase in obesity occurred among boys. Among adolescents, girls were the greatest gainers. Obesity also was more common among white than black children.

'Not only is the pediatric population getting fat-ter, but...the fatter members are becoming more obese," says the author Gortmaker, a sociologist at the Harvard School of Public Health, and his colleagues. The big question is why? Genetics may be the key.

Investigations of twins suggest that obesity or fatness is inherited. And a recent study involving 540 adults adopted as children showed that adult body weight - from very thin to very fat - correlated best with biological parents, not adoptive parents. While genetics is strongly impli-cated in weight control, says Dr. Albert Stunkard, a psychiatrist at the University of Pennsylvania and the principal investigator of above study, it is by no means the sole explanation.

Environmental factors such as eating habits and exercise also affect body weight. Watching television, for example is closely associated with obesity in children and adolescents, says Dr. William Dietz, head of clinical nutrition at New England Medical Center in Boston.

American children spend about 24 hours/week watching television. In fact, children spend more time in front of the television set than they spend in school! Television watching is a sedentary activity which not only burns fewer calories, but takes time away from energy-expending activities such as bike riding or playing ball. It also tends to increase intake of high-calorie snacks such as sugared breakfast cereals, cookies, and carbo-nated beverages, the researchers explain. Children are advised to get their calories from high nutrient foods selected from the 4 food groups - the milk, meat, fruit-vegetable, and grain groups. Wise choices of a variety of foods from these groups will pro-vide children with essential nutrients without exceeding their need for calories, explains the Dairy Council of Michigan.

The upward trend in childhood obesity is of concern to clinicians and other health professionals. Some physicians believe that obesity in children leads to adult obesity and other problems in later life such as high blood pressure, diabetes, and orthopedic problems. The more severe and earlier the onset of obesity in children, the more likely the condition will persist.

Treatment of childhood obesity is tricky because reducing calorie intake may interfere with the child's growth. But because of the increased prevalence of obesity in our youngsters and the potential for adverse effects, "we can no longer afford to ignore obesity as a medical probMissey and Gortmaker. Priority should be given to preventing obesity in children.

In Michigan, efforts are being made to instill good exercise and healthy eating habits in children, says Guy Reiff, a University of

Findings such as these have led to the development of the "Fitness for Youth" program offered as part of school physical education classes. Consisting of twice-a-week, 30 minute periods of rigorous aerobic exercise and nutrition information, this program reaches over 57,000 children in 12 Michigan school districts. Children's blood pressure, body fat, weight, flexibility, strength and endurance are measured at the beginning and end of the school year. The ultimate goal, according to Reiff, is "to make kids understand that fitness is a lifelong personal responsi-

The plan, which would also provide funds for improving quality of education and decrease inequities between school dis-

Under the plan, which would require voter approval, the state sales and use tax would be increased from 4 cents to 6 cents on the dollar on all but residential utilities costs, resulting in about $1.38 billion in additional revenue to be earmarked for education.

To balance the increase in revenue, local school boards would be allowed to levy up to 18 mills on residential and agriculture property without voter approval, with voter approval allowing levies up to 38 mills, instead of the current cap of 50 mills. Business and commercial property tax would also be addressed in the plan, with a state-levied, permanent rate of 23 mills.

There is a way you can protect your piece of the American dream: your home. There are three basic types of protection available from home

Some builders offer only a minimum of protection with a personal warranty covering defects in workmanship and materials for a year or two. If problems arise, home owners must rely on the builder's goodwill for a resolution. Without second-party backing, a personal warranty may not be enough. If the builder is unable or unwilling to make the repairs, homeowners may have to turn to a costly and time-consuming lawsuit.

In most states, a builder's warranty is implied by law. While this holds builders accountable for their work, the dissatisfied home owner again may have to turn to the courts.

A third type of protection is a builder warranty and insurance plan. Things got going for Evangelical in the top of the first as Steve Ross led off with a base hit to left field. Three batters later, Bert Brinkman hit a single to score Ross for a 1-0 lead.

The Catholics bounced back in the bottom of the inning by loading the bases. Jurgen Roth's sac fly to center scored Gary Robinson from third and the game was even at one

The Catholic second inning proved to be the fatal one for Evangelical. Once again the Catholics loaded the bases and Jeff Dillon hit a shot to shortstop Steve Ross, who promptly sent the ball to home base. Catcher Rick Brinkman's tag was too late and the ball got away, allowing another run to score.

With one man on, Lee Langenburg singled, sending home another runner. Langenburg took home on several throwing errors, to make the score 5-1.

It was all Catholics from that point on. The Catholics scored 2 runs in the third, 2 more in the fourth and added 2 more in the sixth for the 11-2 final.

The Catholics scored their 11 runs on 11 hits and yielded just 2 errors. Evangelical scored their 2 runs on 6 hits, but committed 8 errors.

Pitching wise, the Catholics' Gary Robinson settled down after giving up 4 hits in the first 2 innings. Robinson retired 13 of the last 14 batters he faced, retiring the side in order in the fourth, sixth and seventh innings. He struck out 4 and walked one, facing just 28 batters.

For Evangelical, Bill Bader faced 36 batters, walked one and struck out Robinson also batted 3-4 with one RBI and teammate Kurt Mika was 2-4. Evangelical's Brinkman was 2-3 with 2 RBIs.

Evangelical vs. Colwood: Strong pitching from Bill Bader and capitalization of mistakes were both keys for Evangelical, who got themselves a ticket to the finals with a 10-3 victory over league favorite Colwood.

Colwood once again sent hurler Dwayne Smith to the mound, replacing the injured Dale Smith. Evangelical staved off what could have been a nightmarish inning in the first when they retired 3 straight batters after allowing the bases to be loaded.

In the bottom of the second, Evangelical's Darin Ross hit a double which drew first blood, scoring one. Evangelical scored 2 more to take a 3-0 lead. They added one more in the third, 2 more in the fourth and 4 more in the sixth.

Good help

It's tough to find good household help these days - but not for some owls. According to International Wildlife magazine, Texas screech owls capture blind snakes and carry them to their nests. The snakes, which normally live underground and feed on termite larvae, help rid the nests of insects that parasitize young birds. Apparently the housecleaning pays off. Biologists found that young owls in nests with snakes grew faster and had a lower mortality rate than those in snakeless nests.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Half the people think interest rates will go higher. Half think they will go lower. The rest of us have no opinion.

Now, if rates go higher, then bond prices will go lower. Think of this truism as a teeter-totter: If one end goes higher the other goes lower. I hope it's not necessary to add "vice versa," for so few read Latin.

Prof. Paul McCracken, venerable and justly-famed economist of the University of Michigan, reminds us that we should always look at the REAL rate of interest. That is the published or quoted rate, less infla-

For example: A government bond yields 9%. Current inflation is 4%. The difference is the real rate--or Personally, I don't try to predict interest rates. Rather than trying to figure out where they're going, I'm content to find where they are now, relative to years gone by

Steven Leuthold in his fine book, "The Myths of Inflation Investing," did a study going back nearly 200 years in the U.S., and found an average rate of 2% inflation--much, much less than most people are predicting for years ahead. The years under Carter when the rate hit 13% are still fresh in memories, even though the past 5 years have averaged under 4%. A nice girl named Marie Brown with Thomson McKinnon's Bloomfield office in Michigan dug up for me some figures on municipal bond rates going back to 1938. Some points of interest:

From Feb. 1938 to April 1943: The averages never got up to 3%. Half of that period the rates were below 2.5%. (Averages of A-rated and AA were used).

May 1943 to October 1947: averages were below 2%; half that period, below 1.5%. (I recall a small issue of school bonds in the school district of Lapeer, Mich., selling for 1.625% in 1947.)

November 1947 to December 1952: a time of a mite of inflation, rates crept up to 2.5%, but half of that period they were still below 2%.

At 2% it would take 35 years for your money to double when compounded.

age of five years before it is ready to be plucked.

At today's municipal rates of 8%, your money doubles in 9 years. January 1953 to June 1966: below 3% all the time, and few months even below

The period of 1958 to 1965 was the period of the least inflation in all U.S. historyaround 1% a year. Ah! Happy days.

July 1966: first time over 4%. Then to January 1969 the rate crept up to 4.89%. February 1969: tax-exempt bond rates hit 5.02%, and never since have they dropped below that.

February 1969 to December 1976: rates crept up quite steadily and hit 7.04%.

By the end of '76, rates had slipped back down to 5.93% — the first significant drop in many years. They stayed under 6% except for a few months, until Nov. 1978, when they hit 6.08%. They've never been 6%

Starting in 1979, things began getting wild. Here are the highs and lows in yields the past 8 years:

Year	High%	Low
1979:	6.88	6.02
1980	6.98	6.88
1981	12.76	9.39
1982	13.14	10.06
1983	9.85	9.83
1984	10.46	9.50
1985	11.92	9.68
1986	9.59	7.62
1987 - J	uly 24	7.72

The figures point up: 1. "Real" rates right now are not the best in the 50-year span we've covered-but they aren't far from it at 4% after inflation has been subtracted.

2. Current rates of around 8% are about a full one percent higher than they were in March this year.

3. If you want to translate yield into prices of say 7%, 20-year bonds, a jump of 1% in yield means a drop of 10 points in price. The 7% bond due in 2007 which you bought in March, 1987 can now be bought for 90. 4. If you want to indulge in hindsight (my father called it 'mental masturbation') you could have bought long bonds anytime in the first 6 Reagan years and done very nicely. I offer this to offset some of the bashing the President has

What's ahead? I don't predict, but historically real rates now are better than almost anytime in the last half century. And while long bonds go up and down more violently than short ones, they do pay off at 100% at maturity. Know any common stocks that do

"In the next couple of years, we'll be heading into serious financial problems. Reese is in the lowest 10 (school districts) in the state as pertaining to money spent per child," Twork explained.

The school district cut several programs last year and is cutting the agricultural and co-op programs, and a middle school industrial arts position this year.

Prices for hot lunch remain the same at 90 cents for elementary students and 95 cents for high school students.

Enrollment is expected to remain stable, with about 750 students.

The curriculum at the school district remains unchanged, except for a recently added commercial department and the addition of a science position at the high school, according to Supt. Dr. Jerry Laycock.

The teachers are starting the second year of a 2-year contract, while all other groups have had contracts

Tuscola soil district one of 2 winners

Montcalm Soil and Water Conservation District and Tuscola Soil Conservation District are grand award winners in the 40th annual Conservation Goodyear Awards Program.

The Michigan districts were among the 102 top prize winners nationwide in the competitions sponsored by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company in cooperation with the National Association of Conservation Districts.

An independent judging committee of state agricultural leaders selected the winners on the basis of the districts' accomplishments in soil and water conservation, according to Skip Scherer, awards program director.
