Walbro faces take-over try

BULLETIN: An advertisement in the Sept. 9 issue of the Wall Street Journal by U.I.S., Inc., offered to buy 2,105,000 shares of the common stock of Walbro Corporation at $27.25 per share for the purpose of taking over the company.

Walbro's goal is to remain independent consistent with its obligation to its share holders, Forest Walpole, secretary, said Tuesday when discussing the big purchase of stock by U.I.S. Inc., a New York City based parts manufacturer.

The company was required to disclose that it has purchased 236,000 shares of Walbro stock that Walpole says is about 6.8 percent of the stock in the company. Tuesday, Sept. 1, the day that U.I.S. disclosed that it owned the big block of stock, 100,800 shares were traded, about 10 times the normal volume.

Walpole said that there is no way for the company to learn if U.I.S. has purchased additional stock other than the amount declared. However, volume since the Tuesday purchase has been about average. In addition, if U.I.S. purchases stock that amounts to over 10 percent of the outstanding issues it will be required to tell Walbro officials about it to comply with the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission's regulations.

Two area stock brokers have issued different opinions about the purchase. One sees it as a take-over attempt and the other said that it is unclear what the intentions of U.I.S. are.

The day that the volume purchases were made Walbro's stock jumped $3.50 per share. Since that time it has dropped back from the $26.25 it reached at the close of that day and volume has been normal.

Arrest Cass City suspect on drug delivery charge

It was a busy Labor Day weekend for the Cass City Police Department, which responded to several complaints in addition to arresting a Cass City woman wanted in connection with a county-wide drug investigation.

Officer William C. Hartzell was conducting a follow-up investigation on an unlawful entry complaint at 6730 Pine St. when he spoke with a woman who called herself Terri L. Anderson. Upon further questioning, the woman admitted that she is Shelly A. Foote, who is wanted on 2 felony drug warrants.

Foote, 22, is suspected of delivering marijuana in Novesta Township June 20, and delivering cocaine in Wells Township June 9.

Her arrest is among some 13 arrests to date stemming from a year-long drug investigation conducted by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department. In all, 24 warrants have been issued, with more expected.

Cass City police are seeking a warrant for Cass City resident Terry L. Holcomb, 21, 6730 Pine St., following a complaint Monday involving entering a building without permission.

According to a report on the incident, Holcomb allegedly entered 2 apartments located above Sommers' Bakery, 6530 E. Main St., Cass City.

Complainant Leona M. Engelhart stated that Holcomb, who said that he was looking for someone, first entered an apartment occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Roger F. Hurley, and then entered her apartment.

No arrests have been made in connection with a fight at Pizza Villa, 6637 Main St., early Sunday morning.

Police responded to the complaint, involving 2 men and a woman, at about 7:45 a.m. The incident remains under investigation.

Guilds stated that someone threw a stone through a screen door at her resi-

Council considers hiring consultant for insurance

The Cass City Village Council will consider hiring an independent insurance consultant following a special meeting last week on the village's insurance needs.

Another special meeting will be scheduled before the council's next regular session, Sept. 28, to consider the matter, Village Manager Lou S. LaPonsie said.

During the council's special meeting Sept. 1, the council and consultant Richard Beeckman reviewed the village's existing coverage and discussed some options, LaPonsie remarked, adding that Beeckman, if hired, would gather quotes from, and investigate a number of insurance companies.

"Our concern now is when we're insured, are we really insured?" LaPonsie said. "We don't know how stable some insurance companies are."

The council during its regular Aug. 31 session stated that a liability policy purchased through the Michigan Township Participating Plan, approved in July, had been cancelled on the recommendation of the village's insurance agent, Harris Hampshire Agency, Inc.

That policy was purchased at a cost of $29,500, compared to some $42,000 for the previous policy through Auto-Owners Insurance Co., which is again carrying the village's insurance.

Village officials decided to cancel the new policy because "they don't know the stability of the companies they're (MTPP) re-insuring with," LaPonsie explained.

That's where an insurance consultant comes in, he said, adding that Beeckman would look into the background of various companies--and their re-insurance companies--which handle municipal coverage.

Another advantage to hiring a consultant is that the council can be assured, if possible, that its insurance company operates on a "per-occurrence" rather than on a "claims made" basis, LaPonsie stated.

He added that some insurance groups, including the Michigan Municipal League, are or have switched to operating on a "claims made" basis.

LaPonsie explained the difference between the 2 types by saying that if a claim were made against the village on an incident that occurred 2 or 3 years ago, for example, the company insuring the village at the time of the incident (on a "per-occurrence" format) would be responsible for dealing with that claim. Assuming the company in question worked on a "claims made" basis and no longer insured the village, however, the same would not be true.

According to LaPonsie, deciding on an insurance company now is timely because existing coverage expires Dec. 31 and because the council would like to incorporate expected insurance costs into the upcoming budget process.

LaPonsie noted that the council and village attorney Clinton C. House will study Beeckman's proposed contract before making a decision on hiring the consultant.

Beeckman's contract calls for payment of $60 per hour with a minimum charge of $450.

Hartwick suffers 2nd degree burns in house fire

A morning fire Sept. 2 in Cass City caused an estimated $3,000 in damage and sent a man to Hills and Dales General Hospital with severe burns on his hands.

Allyn Hartwick, 6684 Huron St., who sustained second degree burns, was listed in "fair" condition Tuesday morning at the hospital.

The fire, thought to have been sparked by an electrical short in a lamp wire, was under control when members of the Elkland Township Fire Department responded to the 9:30 a.m. alarm.

Fire fighters didn't have far to travel as the house is located behind the Elkland Township Fire Hall.

Fire Chief Dick Root said that Hartwick, who was home with his young son when a couch on the first floor of the home caught fire, burned his hands "quite badly" when he moved the couch in an attempt to put the blaze out.

Luckily, Root said, members of a Cass City village crew, which was passing by, noticed smoke at the residence and responded with a fire extinguisher.

"There was quite a bit of smoke damage," Root said.

Packing the dishes

By Melva E. Guinther

It would be interesting to trace the origins of some of the customs and expressions that are unique to a family or a geographical area.

If someone says they're going to pack the dishes, you'd probably wonder where and when they're going to move. But when I was a kid we "packed the dishes" after every meal before washing them.

Today we call it clearing the table.

Another regular task back then was "putting the vittles on." In our household, this meant placing the salt, pepper, butter, toothpicks, etc., on the table before a meal.

It's never been clear to me whether "the vittles" is a corruption of something "vital" to a good meal or an unusual interpretation of victuals. We were not wealthy, but we always had more than condiments for food.

Perhaps those expressions originated with something that happened long ago, and were passed from one generation to the next without explanation.

It's like the story of the man who asked his bride why she cut the ends off the ham before baking it. She replied defensively that her mother had always done it that way.

One day while having dinner at the in-laws', he asked her mother the same question and received the same reply.

Finally he cornered Grandma with the question. She eyed him suspiciously before answering, "Because my baking dish was too small."

The spider, of course, was regularly heated, used for cooking and washed in Grandma's day. It's better known to my kids as a frying pan.

A friend with relatives down south says that having a "sorry" bunch of kids means they're irritable. In other parts of the country, they might be sorry if they didn't straighten up.

When a nephew and his wife moved to Florida, their new neighbors wondered about them when they asked if they'd like a pop. Down there it's soda or Coke, even if it's 7-Up.

Because we heard of it often, we went to Mario's on Second Street in Detroit, about a dozen blocks from downtown.

We went after attending a Tiger game and that was a mistake. Mario's is a restaurant where you should plan on taking a couple of hours to eat whatever pasta specialty selected. It's not a place to come dressed in shorts like we did.

The restaurant features valet parking and men waiters with decor to match. The prices are on the high side and if you booze it up a little, figure $25 for a meal.

If General Motors could run as efficiently as the Kelly-Miller Circus that came to town last week, it would make zillions. The circus came to town in the morning, gave 2 performances that day and left. What's more, after they left, the Cass City Recreational Park looked the same as it did before they arrived. Not a scrap of paper or dirt remained for the village to dispose of. No wonder that they are in demand for repeat performances. (It was the second visit to Cass City for the organization.)

Food distribution slated

The Human Development Commission will conduct a surplus commodity distribution from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sept. 17 at Cass City Village Park, Caro Fairgounds and the Ivan Middleton Hall in Vassar.

Due to the volume of commodities, individuals are asked to take cardboard boxes to carry their commodities.

The lottery business is on the decline, according to stories appearing in the papers recently. That's surprising because personally I have increased my purchases by 100 percent.

Every time the Lotto pot approaches $7 million or so I buy a ticket. That's happened twice and when it happened a month or so ago I plunked down my buck for my second ticket.

Now the pot may have been that big a time or two more, but twice is all that I am aware of. It just goes against the grain to invest any money in a proposition where about 60 cents of every dollar goes to the house for profit and expenses.

There is one rationale that makes sense if not cents. Regarding the ticket as entertainment, like paying a dollar to buy a magazine or a cut-rate home video.

Buying a ticket is the admission into fantasy land. What would I do if suddenly I'm rich? There never was a ticket buyer that didn't play that game. Judging by the commercial that shows the guy biting the finger of the boss, research must have shown that most players would immediately quit their jobs and go on from there.

I don't feel that way and I can't imagine sudden riches making me want to toss in the towel. Frankly I can't imagine winning a lot of dough making a whale of a lot of difference in what I do, although it would be nice to feel that one of those jazzy luxury cars could be owned without feeling guilty about it all.

My pet dream is figuring how I could share a bonanza with the kids without removing the need to work to survive. Although too much money is not as bad as having too little to live comfortably, I believe it's necessary to have to work towards goals to really appreciate them.

Whatever the dream, stories about big winners in the past show that their life has radically changed when they hit it rich. Most times the stories about what they intended to do and what they actually did are much different.

It would be nice if the decline in lottery revenue were due to the fact that former buyers who spent more than they could really afford on tickets were wising up. And maybe that's the case, but some of the steady ticket buyers that I've seen dispute it. It's similar to the phenomenon seen in hard times when the sale of cigarettes increased as incomes declined.

The closer to the bottom of the economic scale, the more you reach out for miracles to solve the problem.

Winning all that money would be a problem, I tell the kids. I'll chance it, they respond together as one.

After thinking it over, I just might lower my standards. I just might buy a ticket when the pot hits $6 million if I'm feeling lucky.

No injuries reported in car/deer accidents

A Deford man escaped injury Saturday evening when the vehicle he was driving hit a deer on Kingston Road north of Mushroom Road, according to a report filed with the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

Barrigar's vehicle sustained light to moderate damage in the mishap.

"If It Fitz..."

Painting, part II

By Jim Fitzgerald

Part II: By working day and night over a weekend — and by responding to phoned threats of cataclysmic consequences — the tardy painters made up for lost time and managed to complete their assigned task before we returned home from my summer vacation, driving slowly. That's the good news.

As reported last week in Part I, in preparation for the de-flecking of our apartment, several tons of books, dishes, appliances and linens were removed from their usual locations to allow the moving of huge bookcases and cabinets. After my wife pronounced the painting a success, she looked at the empty bookcases and cabinets and said it would be silly to refill them without first installing new carpeting. Now you know the bad news.

The tons of displaced material were temporarily stacked in the out-of-the-way places in our home where I usually go to contemplate hyphens. "Temporarily" now means about 2 months, instead of the original 4 days for painting, because Hudson's didn't have my wife's choice of carpeting in stock and it must be shipped in from Mars by mule.

I don't mean to sound like a whiny complainer. Actually, I get perverse satisfaction out of having to move several crates of saucers to find the typewriter in my den. This sort of marital abuse reassures me of the continuity — almost immortality — of life. If my wife weren't doing whatever she could to make my life difficult, would she still be the woman I married 32 years ago? Would I still be alive?

Incidentally, this strangely precious brand of continuity isn't confined to the spousal relationship. I realized this recently when reminded of something my son Nerd did 24 years ago, when he was 5. He answered a phone call from my Aunt Florence and she asked him if his daddy were there. "Yes," Nerd answered, and hung up.

What reminded me of that old family story was another phone call, this one answered last week by 5-year-old Emily, who was visiting her grandparents. Her Uncle Nerd was on the line, calling from work. Knowing I was watching the ballgame on TV, Nerd told Emily to ask me how the Tigers were doing.

"OK," Emily said. And she hung up and asked me how the Tigers were doing.

The most satisfying part is that I immediately phoned Nerd and didn't need to explain the only thing I said: "Now you know how Aunt Florence felt." He said yes and hung up. It's nice — almost immortal — to know that my son understands the fun of family continuity, despite any temporary anguish caused by unexpected carpeting.

Before Part II of my vacation travails is closed, it should be reported that while my wife and daughter Ferd shopped for that carpeting, I was under orders to amuse Emily and her 19-month-old sister Tricia for one hour in Oakland Mall, where we unfortunately discovered the entrances to 4 adjacent escalators headed in 4 different directions.

Emily's idea of fun was to ride any escalator that Tricia and I weren't riding, and she required that we all holler and wave at each other as our upward and/or downward paths parted or merged. The volume of the hollering increased whenever Emily couldn't see us because she panics easily.

Tricia's idea of fun was to sit on a step until it disappeared. Strangers stared and often looked alarmed.

Emily kept yelling, "Let's do it again," Tricia kept yelling, "Eeek, geek, yeek, week," which means the same thing. I kept stretching my arms to keep Tricia in custody and stretching my neck to keep an eye on Tricia's stroller parked below/above. If stolen, it would undoubtedly put further stress on my spousal relationship.

Believe me, after 60 minutes of escalating weariness, I was ready to go home and fall asleep in a crate of saucers. But — talk about perverse — it was the most fun I had on my summer vacation.

Novesta board okays road bill

The Novesta Township Board during its regular meeting Tuesday night approved a $9,000 payment to the Tuscola County Road Commission for recapping a one-mile stretch of Kingston Road north of Deckerville Road.

The payment is about half of the township's share of the project cost, according to township Clerk Nursie L. Kloc.

In other business during the meeting, Audley Horner and Bruce Holcomb, representing the Old Settlers' Reunion Committee in charge of placing a veterans' memorial at Novesta Township Cemetery, discussed initial plans for the project.

Also during the hour-long session, board members learned that Kloc and Township Supervisor William C. O'Dell will be attending the Michigan Township Association's district meeting Sept. 22 at the Colony House, Cass City.

For exchange students

Host families needed in Cass City

All over the world there are community leaders with fond memories of Cass City and the special families they lived 4 months or more with. This special cadre are the exchange students, about 30 of them, who spent a year in the community in the Rotary exchange program.

It is a unique concept and a unique experience, says Rotarian Mike Weaver, one of many to host a student.

The outstanding young men and women from all over the world come to your home and become part of the family for the 4 months they visit. They are expected to be treated like family and do family chores, to join in the everyday life of their hosts.

Persons like the Tom Proctors of Cass City, who have hosted many students, later have been entertained by parents of the exchange students in their home countries all over the world.

The cost to host families is minimal as the Cass City Rotary Club furnishes funds for out-of-pocket costs for the students. Each year 2 or more students become members of the community. The latest to arrive is Mario A. Haddad, 15, of Tehuacan, Mexico. He is spending the first 4 months of his year here at the home of Rod and Yvonne Sherman.

Needed are host families for the next 2 4-month periods, which are from Jan. 1 to March 31 and April 1 to July 31.

Haddad has most of the interests of young persons. He likes soccer, swimming, listening to music, reading and watching television. His long-term goals are to become an engineer and help in his father's factory.

While in Cass City he hopes to improve his English and to learn another culture and discover how other people live.

Persons interested in finding out more about the program to possibly host Haddad for one of the periods are urged to contact Weaver by calling 872-3613 during the day or 872-3283 in the evening.

Accident leaves one dead

A 20-year-old Caro man was killed and 2 other persons injured Saturday afternoon when the pickup truck in which they were riding overturned after striking a tractor in Sanilac County's Flynn Township.

Thomas G. Fountain was killed after being thrown from the bed of the truck at about 1:35 p.m., according to a trooper from the state police's Sandusky post. Fountain was pronounced dead at Marlette Community Hospital at 2:40 p.m.

Two Brown City residents, 19-year-old Paula Parr and Craig Jacobson, 15, meanwhile, were listed in "good" condition at the hospital Tuesday morning, a hospital spokesman said.

Jacobson was riding with Fountain in the back of the truck, while Parr and Andrew Blevins, 17, the driver of the vehicle, were in the cab, the trooper said. Neither Blevins nor Parr was wearing a seat belt.

Blevins was not injured in the accident.

According to the trooper, Blevins was traveling south on Maple Valley Road when he tried to pass a slow moving tractor. The truck overturned after the rear of the vehicle hit the tractor's front tire.

The driver of the tractor, Mathew J. Mahaffy, 15, Maple Valley Road, Marlette, was not injured, the trooper said.

Book fair slated at Campbell

Campbell Elementary Chapter I parents will hold a book fair at the school Sept. 15-18.

A wide selection of paperback books will be featured, with profits from the fair going to support Chapter I activities as well as the Young Author program.

The public is invited to attend the fair during regular school hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each day. Special evening hours have been scheduled, from 6 to 8 p.m., for those who are unable to attend during the day.

Sidewalk project completed

With a little help from the village, the sidewalk constructed on the west side of North Seeger for safety of students has been completed.

There had been a question about construction posed by the Cass City Board of Education, which contracted for the work.

The problem was how level the sidewalk had to be. The bid for the work was $7.00 per running foot, which amounted to about $8,000 for the walk which starts where the sidewalk ended at Hillcrest Street and runs to Chestnut Drive, across from the high school.

Village superintendent Lou LaPonsie said that the problem was solved with a minimum of trouble. The village staked out the walk and furnished fill for 2 low spots which might have caused trouble for the students. Otherwise the sidewalk will follow the contour of the land. The village will also assist in the cleanup of the area.

Total cost for village participation will be about $500, LaPonsie said.

Foote arraigned Tuesday

A Cass City woman is among 3 persons who were arraigned on felony charges in Tuscola County District Court over the past week.

Shelly A. Foote, 22, 6730 Pine St., was arraigned Tuesday on 2 drug delivery charges. She is charged with delivering marijuana June 20 in Novesta Township, and delivering cocaine June 9 in Wells Township.

Her arrest was one of several made during the past 2 weeks as a result of a year-long drug investigation conducted by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

A preliminary exam was scheduled for 8:30 a.m. Sept. 16. Bond on the first charge was set at $5,000, while a $20,000 bond was ordered on the second charge.

If convicted, Foote faces maximum sentences of 4 years imprisonment and/or a $2,000 fine, and 20 years and/or a $25,000 fine, respectively.

Also arraigned over the past week was Adrian P. Galaxiz, 29, a patient at the Regional Mental Health Center in Caro who was charged Friday with malicious destruction of police property.

Galaxiz allegedly destroyed the windshield on a state police patrol vehicle Sept. 3 in Indianfields Township, court records state.

His preliminary exam was scheduled for 9 a.m. Sept. 16. Bond was set at $4,000.

If convicted, Galaxiz faces a maximum sentence of 4 years imprisonment and/or a $2,000 fine.

A 22-year-old Caro man was arraigned Thursday on a charge of larceny in a building in connection with the theft of a video cassette recorder from Highland Pines School, 1381 Cleaver Rd., Caro.

Jeffrey A. Schneider, 607 S. State St., was to face a preliminary exam Wednesday (Sept. 9). Bond was set at $4,000.

He faces a maximum sentence of 4 years imprisonment and/or a $2,000 fine if convicted.

Marijuana harvested in area

State police troopers from the Caro post are investigating the harvest of some marijuana plants near Cass City Thursday morning, a trooper reported.

Troopers located the marijuana northwest of Cass City in Elkland Township after receiving a tip, the trooper said.

Farmers make good employees

by Betty Pattullo
Extension Home Economist

Attention employers!

Are you in need of employees that possess a variety of valuable skills plus years of hands-on experience? Would you be interested in a job applicant who has experience operating heavy equipment, maintaining and repairing machinery, ordering supplies, managing personnel, and maintaining records? Would you look twice at an application that indicated experience in construction, carpentry, painting, or welding? Would you be interested in an applicant who was accustomed to long working hours, accustomed to working hard, and who is frequently recognized as being an honest and responsible person? What if all these things were only a portion of the skills presented by a job applicant? "Most employers know that jobseekers such as this do not walk through their door every day. A shrewd employer knows that this is an ideal job applicant. This applicant is none other than the American Farmer," states Betty Pattullo, Extension Home Economist and Employment and Training Specialist for Tuscola County.

According to Pattullo, the current farm economy has caused many problems for the American Farmer today. Land values are not the same as they were 10 years ago. The price given to farmers for a bushel of corn or a gallon of milk has not nearly kept up with the rate of inflation.

In several Michigan counties last year, an overabundance of rainfall caused a devastating loss for the farmer. This year, farmers will face a problem of not enough rain. Although for some a way of life must change, life must still go on. A change of livelihood is not a tragedy, but a new way of doing things --a new way to raise our families and to reach our goals.

The current farm economy has encouraged farmers to supplement their income with off-the-farm work. "Some farmers have had to make the hard decision to discontinue the farm business in order to move forward in other directions. Employers in our rural area should recognize farmers as valuable assets to the American workforce and to our community businesses.

If you are an employer with job opportunities with room for growth and worthy of a skilled and experienced employee, please contact the Tuscola County Cooperative Extension Service office for more information on the Dislocated Farm Program. This program provides 50% wage subsidization, classroom training requirements, and the ideal employees that you are looking for. In Caro, the number to call is 517-673-5999, Ext. 228.

Weather determines fall color

Nature's paintbrush will drench the state in gold, crimson, copper and russet from mid-September until October, but the intensity of those colors depends on the weather, reports AAA Michigan.

Michigan usually has good displays of yellow and orange, but the weather must be just right for the deep reds. Bright, dry fall days and very cool nights produce vivid colors.

Extremes in fall temperatures and light -- such as clouds one day and sunshine the next -- can affect the intensity of the colors and produce lackluster hues in leaves.

An unseasonably hot, dry summer in some areas, especially south of Jackson, indicates that some leaves did not have the chance to "ripen," and fell off the tree before they could change color. If the leaf is green by early September, then the chances for a good color display are improved.

Leaves contain chlorophyll, a pigment that makes them green when combined with the right amount of light. Many leaves also have the pigments carotene and xanthophyll which color the leaves yellow and orange when the chlorophyll breaks down. The dazzling reds are caused by high concentrations of sugar which produce anthocyanin.

Colorful displays of leaves begin in the north with mid-September to early October the best time to view brightly hued leaves in the Upper Peninsula and the tip of the Lower Peninsula. From late September to mid-October, leaves are at their colorful best south of Alpena and north of Standish.

The mid-section of the state from Ludington to Holland is drenched in color from early to mid-October. And the sector south of Holland, and including southeast Michigan, is at its peak from mid- to late October.

Fall, with its cooler weather and lack of crowds at tourist areas, is popular with many travelers. A variety of tours have been arranged by the Michigan Travel Bureau that center around the dazzling displays of color.

A packet of fall color tour information is available free from the Michigan Travel Bureau by calling toll-free 1-800-5432-YES.

The AAA Travel Agency also offers fall color tours, including an Oct. 4 trip to Mackinac Island that features a horse-drawn carriage ride and 2 nights at the Island House Hotel for $230 per person.

A one-day bus excursion to Marshall, site of many historic homes, is planned Oct. 7. Cost is $45 per person and includes a buffet lunch at Schuler's Restaurant. Arrangements may be made with any AAA Travel Agency statewide.

Bicycle enthusiasts can ride for miles through brilliant displays of fall color on a 2-day trip that includes a wine tasting and accommodations at Saugatuck's Kirby House. Cost is $239 per person. For reservations, contact Bicycle Cruises of Ann Arbor at 1-800-222-2031.

Hear the autumn leaves crunch under a horse's hooves during a ride through acres of glorious color at any of the state's many riding stables, or glide silently along a river in a canoe while being surrounded by a kaleidoscope of changing fall hues. A list of canoe liveries is available at any AAA Michigan office.

Diet can reduce risk of cancer

Here's good news on the progress in cancer research and factors that may reduce your personal risk of cancer.

National Cancer Institute (NCI) scientists say nearly 50 percent of all cancer patients today are curable. The improvement for survival rates for cancer patients is due to many years of research and to advances in cancer prevention, diagnosis and treatment.

Institute scientists continue to develop new treatments. They're currently looking for ways to use drugs with greater selectivity and less toxicity and are developing new combination therapies with chemical and biological treatments, radiation and surgery.

The best news is about cancer prevention. In the past few years, scientists have identified many causes of cancer. Today it's known 80 percent of cancer cases are tied to the way people live. Once you know some of the factors that increase the possibility you might get cancer, you can take control over them.

Studies indicate certain foods may be associated with cancer. Findings suggest a high intake of dietary fat is a risk factor for some types of cancer. Population studies indicate obesity increases the risk of developing certain cancers. Other studies suggest foods high in some vitamins and dietary fiber may help protect you from developing some forms of cancer. Current evidence suggests eating a well-balanced and varied high-fiber, low-fat diet may reduce cancer risk. Ask your doctor for details.

Repeated exposure to sunlight has been linked to skin cancer. Protect your skin when outdoors! Avoid unnecessary x-rays and ask if x-ray shields can be used to protect other parts of your body. If you drink alcoholic beverages, do so in moderation. Discuss the use of estrogen with your doctor and use it only as long as needed. Finally, DON'T SMOKE or use tobacco in any form. All tobacco products increase cancer risk.

The VALOR project will still offer the 50% wage reimbursement, skill training and educational benefits.

HEALTH TIPS

It's worth the effort to shop for heart-healthy food

You've heard it a million times: "You are what you eat." "Eat less fat -- it's bad for your heart." "Cut down on salty foods -- do you want to get high blood pressure?"

The world is brimming with advice on how to eat -- some good and some not so good. You know that you should eat a low-fat diet, watch your salt (sodium) intake and maintain normal weight, especially to reduce your risk of heart disease.

But what does it all really mean when you're standing in the aisle at the grocery store, trying to pick out a good-for-you salad dressing -- with about 137 choices in front of you?

It can really be confusing. To make sure that what you're buying is heart-healthy (will actually help reduce your chance of heart attack instead of increasing it, you've got to be a pretty savvy shopper. But it's not impossible. It can be done --and the payoff is definitely worth the effort. Recent studies have shown that for every 1% you reduce your blood cholesterol reading, for instance, you reduce your risk of heart attack by 2%. That's a pretty good return on the investment of a little care in watching what you eat.

The American Heart Association of Michigan, along with all its affiliate Heart Associations throughout the country, is holding American Heart's Food Festival the week of Sept. 13-19. This event will be held in grocery stores all across the country to help people learn how to make healthy eating choices. A variety of free information will be available at participating stores, including heart-healthy dessert recipes.

So where do you start? First, keep in mind American Heart diet guidelines. There are three (3) major things to remember:

- Fat intake should be no more than 30% of your total daily calories. For instance, if you eat 2,000 calories in a day, calories from fat should be no more than 600. (One gram of fat contains 9 calories, a gram of carbohydrate, by comparison, contains a slim 4 calories.)

- Cholesterol, the fat-like substance that can build up on artery walls like rust in a water pipe, should be limited to 100 milligrams (mg) per day for every 1,000 calories you eat (with a maximum of 300 mg per day.) In a 2,000-calorie diet, your limit would be 200 mg of cholesterol.

- Sodium, often linked with high blood pressure, should be limited much the same as cholesterol - 1,000 mg for every 1,000 calories, with a maximum of 3,000 mg a day. (The 2,000 calorie diet would have a maximum of 2,000 mg.)

Other AHA dietary guidelines suggest limiting meat intake to 5-7 ounces a day, eggs to no more than 2 per week, eating fish 2 or 3 times a week, and increasing complex carbohydrates.

So how do you know just how much cholesterol and sodium you're getting? By being a label reader. Most labels contain an ingredient list and many have an actual analysis of the food, listing milligrams of fat, what kind of fat (saturated, poly-unsaturated, or monosaturated), sodium and calories per serving. From this analysis, it's easy to figure out what percent of the calories in the food come from fat.

Here are some other tips:

- Check bread and other baked goods for the kind of fat used. Many crackers, breads, donuts, etc., are made with lard (high fat) or coconut, palm and palm kernel oils (saturated fats.)

- Choose low-fat rather than whole milk dairy products. Whole milk, though it says 3.5% butterfat on the label, is actually about 50% fat by volume, one glass containing the fat equivalent of 2 pats of butter. (Note: The AHA recommends a low-fat diet only for people over 2 years old.)

- Look for "sodium" words on the label. All the following are forms of sodium: "MSG", di-sodium phosphate, sodium caseinate, and many others.

Look for whole-grain cereals and watch the sugar content, which can be as high as 60% in some cereals! Whole-grain breads are the best choice, too, as they're high in fiber, and a high-fiber diet has been linked to lower risk of both heart disease and cancer.

- If you like the convenience of a powder to "cream" your coffee, try powdered non-fat milk. (Most non-dairy creamers are made with highly saturated coconut oil.)

- Pick fresh or frozen vegetables, which will have far less sodium than most canned ones (although canned veggies with no salt added are becoming increasing available).

- Avoid solid shortenings which are usually saturated fat, and buy oils and soft margarines instead. A good margarine choice would be made from corn or other poly-unsaturated oils, whose label indicates twice as much poly-unsaturated fats as saturated.

- Don't be fooled by the words "no cholesterol" on a label -- the food can still be very high in fat.

Remember that ingredients must be listed in order of quantity, the first ingredient being the largest quantity and on down the list. This can give you a hint about how much fat, sugar and sodium the product may contain even when no analysis is given. For instance, an oatmeal cookie package may list sugar, flour, oats, etc. This means there is more sugar in the cookies than flour, more flour than oats and so on.

As you get used to reading food labels, you'll find it easier and easier to make good choices. Another benefit is that your grocery bill may drop a bit, since frozen entrees, mixes and other prepared foods not only tend to be higher in fats and sodium, but are usually more expensive, than fresh foods.

To get more information on free nutrition brochures, contact your local office of the American Heart Association of Michigan, a United Way agency.

Thumb Co-op nets accreditation honor

Thumb Electric Cooperative, Ubly, recently received a Certificate of Excellence from the Safety Accreditation Program sponsored by the National Rural Electric Association for the third consecutive time.

In order to qualify for the accreditation program, TEC had to undergo a safety audit conducted by several outside observers who use a checklist of 160 items that have bearing on accident prevention and job performance. The results of the audit are submitted to a 7-member National Safety Accreditation Committee which meets twice a year to review approximately 150 applications. Since the program's inception, 349 rural electric systems out of nearly 1,000 have received accreditation.

The program objectives are to establish an effective self-policing of safety activities by rural electric cooperatives, set standards for reducing disabling injuries and to encourage on the job system training programs and public safety.

Thumb Electric Cooperative serves almost 10,000 member-owners in Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola Counties.

Wildcats beat Hawks in grid opener

In recent years when the Cass City Red Hawks opened the season against the Mayville Wildcats, one thing was certain. It was going to be a low scoring game. The same script was followed in the opener Friday, but his year it was Cass City that was blanked instead of Mayville which had failed to score the previous 2 years. The score was 6-0.

Breaks decided the game and if the Wildcats didn't receive a huge one in the third quarter the 2 teams might still be playing

With fourth and long on their own 24, Cass City attempted to punt. However the ball sailed over the kicker's head and the Wildcats downed it for a first and goal on the 5. Shane Beach rammed it over with 5:20 left in the period. The Hawk defense was severely tested in the third period when the Wildcats recovered a fumble on the Cass City 22.

THIS PASS TO Paul Tuckey was complete, but symbolic of the night it was stopped for no gain after it was caught as the Hawks lost to Mayville, 6-0.

Fred McKenna, diminutive 125-pound, 5-4 halfback who was the best ball carrier in the game, went around end for substantial yardage in a drive that carried for a first down on the Cass City 7. Greg Mika made the play of the game on defense when he nailed the Wildcat ball carrier for a 4-yard loss, setting up a third and 10 for Mayville. A pass covered 7 yards and Mayville was 3 yards from paydirt. Shane Beach tried to ram it over, but was stopped after a yard gain and Cass City took over.

That kept Cass City in the game, but the goal line defense proved to be wasted as the Hawks could not muster a sustained attack all night. It was an ideal night to play football and the sparse crowd that attended saw the usual first game mistakes committed by both teams.

If the Hawks are to open the Thumb B Association with a win they will need to show offensive improvement and be on the very top of their game, for Friday the Lakers come to town to open the home season and the Green Machine is picked to successfully defend the league title won last year.

The Lakers, too, were not particularly impressive in their opener against USA last week. The Green and White defeated the Patriots by a touchdown and extra point, 7-0.

In one area the Lakers lived up to advance billing. The huge defensive line successfully shut down the Patriot offense. The Lakers boasts a line where each player weighs 200 pounds or more.

A bright spot for the underdog Hawks is that 2 of the players sidelined with injuries against Mayville are expected to be ready for action against the Lakers.

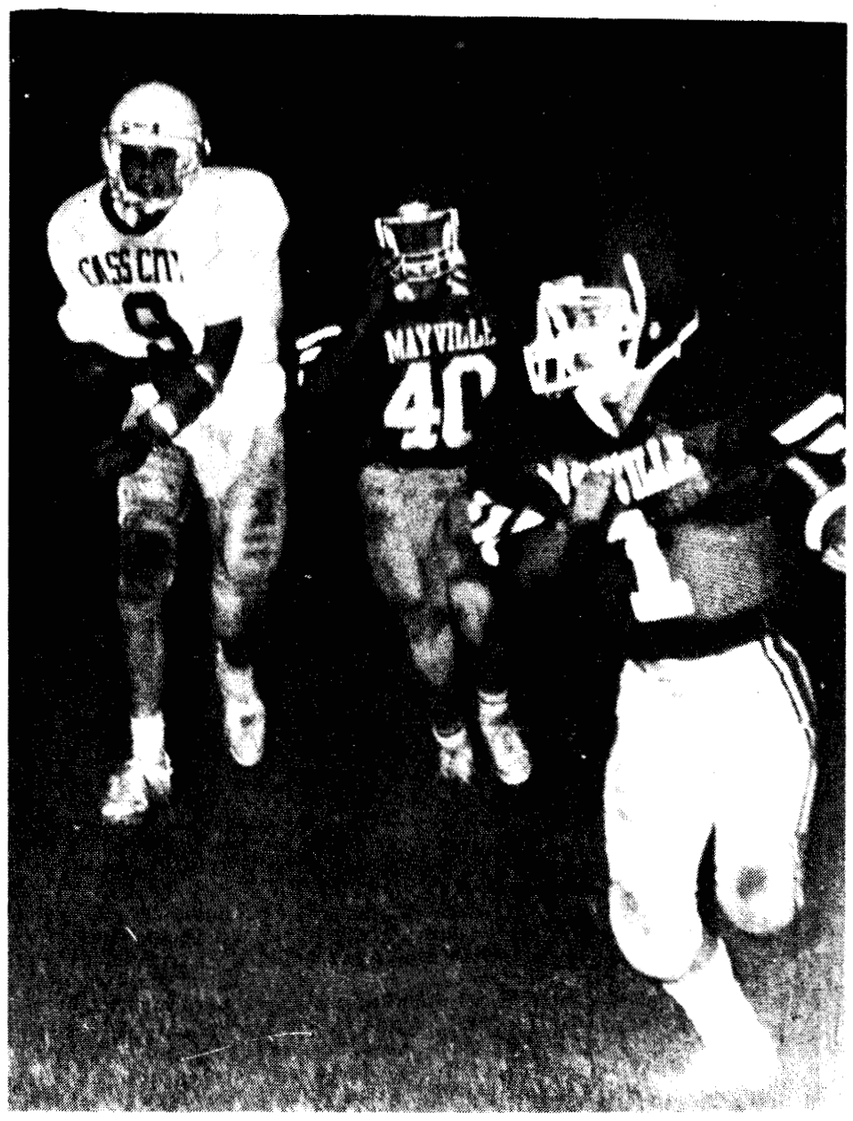
Brent Meininger, a junior weighing 210, has the size to compete with the massive Laker tackles. Darin Monroe, a senior 6-footer weighing 178 pounds, will help bolster the backfield.

Leading tackler for Cass City was guard Mike Mikolon who was credited with 10 stops for the Hawks even though he sat out much of the second half with an injury.

THE STATISTICS

The offensive statistics for both teams left much to be desired, but Cass City clearly won that battle. The Hawks had the edge, 4-2, in first downs and rushing yardage, gaining 75 yards in 25 tries, while Mayville netted 64 yards in 35 tries. Cass City passed for 47 yards with 6 completions in 15 tries while Mayville was one for 5 for 3 yards. In total yardage it was 122, Cass City and, 72 Mayville.

One of the keys of the game was fumbles lost. Cass City coughed up the ball 3 times, Mayville once And that didn't count the bad snap from center that decided the game.



LEADING BALL CARRIER of the game was Mayville diminutive halfback Fred McKenna who galloped for 16 yards on this play. Number 9 is Paul Tuckey and number 40 Shane Beach.

Arenac Eastern bows to O-G, Webberville is next

The Owen-Gage Bulldogs opened their 1987 season overpowering a smaller, less talented Arenac Eastern football team at home last Friday 26-0. Coach Arnie Besonen's Bulldogs will travel to tangle with Webberville this Friday before opening their exigent North Central Thumb D schedule with Kingston at home on September 18.

The Bulldogs needed less than 4 minutes to put their first points of the season on the board when Marc Reinhardt, last year's quarterback converted to halfback, capped a 7 play, 65 yard drive at the 8:10 mark of the first quarter on a nifty 7 yard jaunt. Brad Susalla's kick for point failed.

The Bulldogs' next tally was set up after picking off a poorly thrown ball by Arenac's Kurt Williamson. Driving half the length of the field, the Bulldogs found themselves facing a 4th and goal from the 6 yard line as time expired in the game's first 12 minutes. Coach Besonen's decision not to kick paid off when sophomore quarterback Chad Stirrett hit last year's leading receiver, Nick Pavlichek, over the middle for the marker. Brad Susalla's kick for point split the uprights, stretching Owen-Gage's lead to 13-0.

Arenac's best scoring opportunity on the night came right before the intermission. After recovering an Owen-Gage fumble near midfield, Arenac drove inside the Bulldogs' 30 yard line with the aid of a roughing the kicker penalty, but were unable to pick up a first down on fourth and long and turned the ball over on downs. From that point on the game's outcome was clear.

Arenac's Coach Mark Machulis felt if his gridders could have scored on that possession, things might have turned around. "We could have seen a different second half if we could have scored (before the half) and hit some passes to free up their linebackers to give Williamson some room to run." Williamson, Arenac's Mr. Everything, was clearly the quickest player on the field.

Neither team was able to score in the third period as penalties were the rule rather than the exception. Owen-Gage was hit with 8 flags on the night, while Arenac was guilty of 10 infractions, both netting 85 yards.

Coach Besonen noted his team's awkwardness. "We will have to improve our offensive blocking and timing in the backfield."

Owen-Gage scored twice in the game's final period. Jay Susalla found his way into the end zone on the receiving end of a 5 yard Stirrett pass with 10:05 left in the game. Stirrett's touchdown passes ended a 9 play drive which covered 20 yards. Brad Susalla's kick for point was good, making the score 20-0.

The game's final marker was recorded by the Bulldogs' workhorse, Graham Besonen. Besonen found pay dirt from 3 yards out putting the Bulldogs in front 26-0. Besonen's run capped a 6 play drive that also covered 20 yards.

The Bulldogs showed a balanced offensive attack, which was led by Reinhardt's 60 yards on only 9 carries. Besonen handled the ball 19 times while picking up 59 yards.

Owen-Gage's Nick Pavlichek caught 5 passes for 51 yards to lead all receivers.

Owen-Gage's defense was sharp, notably their backs which snipped 7 passes from Arenac receivers. "Our defense did an outstanding job," said a smiling Besonen. Leading the charge on defense were Chris Abbe and Jay Susalla, along with Reinhardt with 7 solo tackles apiece. Bryan Abbe was credited with 6 solo tackles.

NICK PAVLICHEK crosses the goal line on the first play of the second quarter to extend Owen-Gage's lead to 13-0. Kurt Williamson tries in vain to stop Pavlichek for Arenac Eastern.

O-G cagers bow in tourney finals

The Owen-Gage girls' basketball team went ice cold in the third quarter against the Mayville Wildcats last Thursday and couldn't recover, losing 39-26 in a preseason tournament held at Caseville. The lady Bulldogs advanced to the finals by routing Caseville Monday, August 31, 58-15.

Coach Dean Roller's cagers will have to improve their shooting eye, an area which hurt the Bulldogs last year in big games, before Thursday's contest with league foe North Huron if they expect to climb into the top echelon of the North Central Thumb D League. Owen-Gage was to have played Ubly Tuesday, Sept. 8.

The Bulldogs played some tough defense against the Wildcats, holding the Thumb C opponent to only 17 first half points, yet could only manage 5 buckets to go along with a couple of charity tosses and trailed at the intermission 17-12.

Owen-Gage's Susie Salcido, the Bulldogs' leading scorer last year, accounted for half of the team's first half points, as she netted 2 hoops in the opening period and picked up another basket on a short jumper before the half.

"No offensive rebounds and if our shooting doesn't improve we will have a hard time winning," lamented Roller.

The Bulldogs' shooting problems continued in the third quarter as they recorded only 4 points on baskets by Dawn Holland and Marcie Draschil. The Wildcats built a 27-16 lead as Mayville's Cindy McLane started to heat up and filled the nets for 6 period points.

The Bulldogs regained their shooting eye in the fourth quarter, but were unable to cut the Wildcat lead as they converted 4 of 8 free throws and went on to win by a 13-point margin.

Salcido was the only Bulldog to finish in double figures with 10 tallies. Mayville's Corie Harris led all scorers with 13 tallies, while McLane and Dana Wilson finished with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

Golfers lose by stroke

The Cass City High School golf team opened the 1987 season at Rolling Hills Golf Course and dropped a one-stroke decision to visiting Sandusky, 195 to 194.

Coach Jim Fox said that the Hawks are capable of playing much better than they did in the first non-league encounter. The next day in practice we beat that 195 score by 20 strokes, he said.

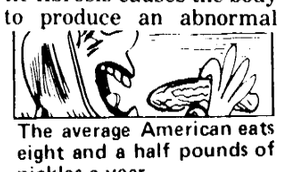
Possibly one reason for the inflated score was that the team this season is not experienced, with 2 sophomores in the starting 5. The Hawks were led by Jason McCallum and Mike Francis with a pair of 47's. Ken Micklash scored a 49 and Mike Scollon, 52.

Campaign for cystic fibrosis set in Gagetown

A door-to-door campaign to distribute information and solicit funds for cystic fibrosis will be conducted in Gagetown Sept. 11-30, Gagetown "Breath of Life" chairman Martha Adams announced.

September has been designated by the National Health Council as the month for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation to promote its educational and fund raising campaign.

According to state campaign chairman Gene Riley, cystic fibrosis kills more children each year than diabetes and muscular dystrophy combined. Cystic fibrosis causes the body to produce an abnormal amount of glue-like mucus that clogs the lungs and intestines, resulting in severe breathing and digestive problems.



The average American eats eight and a half pounds of pickles a year.

Loan closets are available

10 Michigan cities to receive awards

Governor James J. Blanchard will present awards to 10 Michigan cities in the fourth annual Municipal Achievement Awards competition of the Michigan Municipal League. The presentations were to be made at the League's Annual Awards Luncheon at noon, Sept. 9, during the 89th Annual League Convention at the Westin Hotel in Detroit.

The achievement awards are given in recognition of the efforts of Michigan cities and villages to make their communities better places in which to live through various programs and projects. The entries are judged on their creativity, innovativeness and citizen participation in program development or in the solving of community problems.

Under 5,000 population:

First Place: The City of Hudson for the Hudson Community Center, a senior citizen facility, which was developed through public/private cooperation.

Honorable Mention: The City of Clio, for the development of the 4th of July Family Fun Day, which was planned to bring the community together and has since grown and added new business to the Central Business District and other economic improvements in the downtown area.

5,001 to 10,000 population:

First Place: The City of Cheboygan, for the successful historic restoration of the Opera House which also houses the City Hall and Public Safety Department. The endeavor has stimulated economic growth and has become an inspiration for surrounding communities.

Honorable Mention: The City of Huntington Woods, for the Newspaper Recycling Program, a low cost civic program that represents citizen involvement and assists in preserving the environment.

10,001 to 25,000 population:

First Place: The City of Grand Haven for its Waterfront Tax Increment Financing Development Plan which has halted a decline in property values, increased the property tax valuation and promoted growth in the waterfront area of the city.

Honorable Mention: The City of Grosse Pointe Woods for the Compute-A-Care program, a computerized automatic phone dialing system which checks on the welfare of senior citizens who live alone or are alone during the day.

First Place: The City of Madison Heights for the Senior Citizen Center Program, a comprehensive service program that provides nutrition, transportation, education and home maintenance services to older residents of the community in order to assist them in maintaining an independent existence.

Honorable Mention: The City of Inkster for a differential police response system, which represented a determined effort by the city and the citizens working together with the police to maintain efficient service despite budget cuts.

Over 75,001:

First Place: The City of Kalamazoo for the Kalamazoo Enterprise Center, a public-private partnership for the development of a successful business incubator, a unique program which provides support for the start-up of small businesses.

Honorable Mention: The City of Sterling Heights for City Hall Television Channel 5. Using the cable access channel, the city has designed a local program that involves all city departments, boards and commissions, citizens, and the business community.

Twenty-four cities and villages submitted 28 entries. Judges for this year's competition were Lt. Governor Martha Griffiths, president of Eastern Michigan University Dr. John Porter, and Detroit Free Press Editor Joe Stroud.

The Michigan Municipal League, representing 497 member cities and villages is dedicated to the improvement of municipal government and administration through cooperative efforts. Norton Shores Mayor Merrill S. Bailey, president of the league, was to preside at the Awards Luncheon.

Sheriff happy with court decision about jail

The law giving counties the authority to release jail inmates early to relieve crowded conditions has been reinstated by a unanimous Supreme Court. The decision (in Kent County Prosecutor v. Kent County Sheriff, docket 74055) resolved a 3-3 split in the court last August on an appeal of a 1984 lower court ruling that the law is unconstitutional.

Michigan Sheriff's Association President Bernard Grysen said, "There is no question about (using the law). Some jails are well over capacity."

Jails in 3 counties — Kent, Kalamazoo and Macomb — are under court order to relieve overcrowded conditions.

About 30 of the 78 county jails in the state are over their rated capacity, according to a new survey by the association. A statement by the group said sheriffs believe much of the overcrowding may be the result of problems in the state system, and noted 40 percent of the persons housed in jails are on felony sentences.

Kent County Sheriff Philip Heffron said he was pleased with the ruling "from the standpoint it appears we won something."

But he said he would have to review the decision with attorneys before determining whether to use the state law or continue under a federal court order which has kept the jail population below 95 percent of capacity.

The federal court has twice ordered sentence reductions of all Kent County inmates by 10 days each time. Heffron said 42 prisoners were released early the first time; 51 the second time.

The county had also made the only use of the 1982 law, releasing 24 prisoners in 1983.

The law provides for early release when a sheriff declares an emergency because the county jail's population exceeds capacity. The circuit court chief judge sets the percentage reduction of sentences of prisoners he or she classifies as low risk. It is patterned after a state prison early release law, which Governor James Blanchard has refused to use since 1984.

The high court concluded the law does not infringe upon the powers reserved by the constitution to the governor to commute sentences.

It said the Legislature took an appropriate measure to respond to a legitimate concern of overcrowding while intruding upon the governor's powers — which encompass individual acts of clemency — as little as possible.

"The sentence reductions under the act are prompted by generalized conditions of the jail or jails within the county, not by the unique characteristics of the affected prisoners," Justice Michael Cavanagh wrote for the majority. The opinion said the early release is not a direct benefit to the released prisoners, but to all the jail inmates.

The court said the law is appropriate because it ensures enforcement of rules setting minimum space requirements for prisoners, helps avoid liability from lawsuits for unsafe or inhumane conditions, and avoids charges of cruel and unusual punishment.

The Hills and Dales Hospital Auxiliary is sponsoring a blood drive set for 1 to 7 p.m. Sept. 16 at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Organizers hope to reach a goal of 70 units during the drive, according to hospital spokesman Jane Mitchell.

"Usually we have to have at least 80 people come through in order to get 70 units," she said, adding that persons who don't pass a mini-physical at the blood drive site aren't allowed to give blood.

According to Mitchell, fear of the needle keeps a lot of people from giving blood.

"It's a common fear," she acknowledged, adding, "There's a simple way to eliminate much of that fear--bring a friend with you. Both first-timers and veterans find that going through the donation with a friend cuts down on nervousness and fear because they are visiting with each other."

Finding donors is a big job, Mitchell explained, especially considering that some 250 units of blood are needed daily within the region served by the Wolverine Red Cross District.

Additional information about the drive is available by contacting Mitchell at the hospital, 872-2121.

The United States, which is the fourth largest country in total land area, occupies 6.4 percent of the world's land area.

Your neighbor says

First circus was fun, very enjoyable

The Kelly-Miller Brothers Circus again proved popular in Cass City last week when the company set up its big top, unloaded animals and presented 2 shows at the village Recreational Park Sept. 1.

Despite the delayed arrival of some animals, the circus crew completed its setup in time for the first show at 4:30 p.m.

Complete with live music--an organist and drummer who tirelessly kicked out lively tune after tune--the 3-ring show captivated audiences with balancing and animal acts, aerial acrobatics, clowns and juggling to name a few.

Children in attendance, meanwhile, were given the opportunity to meet the circus clowns and even take a ride on an elephant.

Your neighbor, Cass City native Bill Bader, says he enjoyed the circus, his first, along with his wife, Celeste, and their 3 1/2-year-old son, Tyler. The trio were among those in line for the first show.

"I liked it," Bader remarked, adding, "I'd never been to one in my life."

"My son doesn't like clowns, so he enjoyed everything except the clowns," Bader continued. "We went to Sea World, and he was just petrified" of the mimes there.

Bader explained that Tyler's first encounter with a clown, during Cass City's July Fourth celebration 2 years ago, startled him. "Ever since then, he'll just shake" when he sees one, Bader added.

Bader, a 1975 Cass City High School graduate, has worked at the Village Service Center for some 14 years.

He and Celeste also have another son, Dustin, 3 months. The family resides at 4129 Leach St.

Special Olympics offers speakers

Michigan Special Olympics officials want more people to know about their year-round program of sports training and competition for mentally impaired children and adults. And so they have a pool of speakers ready to share the Special Olympics story with service clubs, civic organizations, professional clubs, church groups and others.

"The MSO Speakers Bureau is designed to provide quality presentations about our program to the public," explained Barb Merritt-Mosher, public education coordinator for MSO.

In its second year of operation, the MSO Speakers Bureau is made up of coaches, volunteers, parents of Special Olympians, MSO Board members and area directors, and other program supporters.

"We had a very good response to the Speakers Bureau in its first year," said Merritt-Mosher. "We filled requests from a variety of groups throughout the state."

To request a speaker, contact Merritt-Mosher at Michigan Special Olympics, 127 Rowe Hall, Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant, Mich. 48859, phone 517-774-3911.

New books at the library

POLONAISE by Jane Aiken Hodge (fiction). The setting is Poland. In 1802, an English woman, Jenny Peveral, and an American of Polish descent, Jan Warrington, are drawn into the intrigue-filled court of their friend and relative, the Princess Ovinska. By conceiving a son, Casimir, the Princess hopes to continue the ruling caste. Casimir, "the hope of Poland," becomes Jenny's charge, but the hapless child is doomed by the clash between Napoleon and the Tsar. Before that crushing event, however, subplots vividly illuminate tangled human and political destinies: the romantic liaisons of the Princess, the amours of Napoleon, Telleyrand and other historically significant personages, the machinations of the underground Brotherhood, a loyalist sect, all contribute to intriguing narrative.

PEARLS by Celia Brayfield (fiction). Lord James Bourton's suicide leaves his family up to their ears in debt and surrounded by whispers of a scandal that began years before with a woman he betrayed in the jungles of Malaya. Numbed by his death, Cathy Bourton tries to recoup her loss by marrying "well," but the womanizing aristocrat she chooses makes her life a misery until their divorce leaves her free to reap a fortune in London's financial district. Her sister Monty finds fame singing with a gritty rock group, but when success sours with those brawling skirtchasers, she sinks quickly into drugs and degradation before rising from the ashes to develop a hot new act.

WHEN RABBIT HOWLS by The Troops for Truddi Chase (non-fiction). Introduction and epilogue by Robert A. Phillips. Phillips, a Washington, D.C. therapist, explains that "The Troops" are the multiple personalities - approximately 80 men and women - of the pseudonymous Truddi Chase, who first consulted him in 1980. He further maintains that the patient, a successful businesswoman now in her 50s, has been "asleep" since she was raped at the age of 2 by her stepfather, who continued to sexually abuse her for 14 years. The cluster of personalities, speaking through a troop member dubbed the "Recorder," talk about their suffering for the primary victim who, it is also revealed, was mistreated by her mother as well. There are sensational episodes described by beings identified as social Alvira, hard Nails, alert Gatekeeper and others.

2 charged with drug delivery plead not guilty in circuit court

Two persons charged with drug delivery pleaded not guilty in Tuscola County Circuit Court Friday, while 2 others facing similar charges, including a Cass City man, waived their arraignments.

All 4 persons, in addition to several others, were arrested following a year-long drug investigation conducted by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

Gregory C. Guild, 18, 1585 East Dayton Rd., Caro, pleaded not guilty to delivery of marijuana. The charge stems from an incident Feb. 27 in Caro.

If convicted, Guild faces a maximum sentence of 4 years imprisonment and/or a $2,000 fine.

Also pleading not guilty was Anthony A. Ruiz, 179 State St., Caro, who faces 2 charges of delivery of LSD. Ruiz, 23, is charged with delivering the substance in Caro Aug. 14, 1986, and again Aug. 15, 1986.

Ruiz's pretrial hearing was scheduled for Friday, while bond was continued at $10,000.

The maximum sentence for each charge is 7 years imprisonment and/or a $5,000 fine.

Robert E. Severn, Vassar, and Paul G. Dybilas, Cass City, meanwhile, waived their arraignments on charges of delivering marijuana.

Severn, 22, is charged with delivering marijuana Oct. 23, 1986, in Vassar Township, while Dybilas, 24, is charged with delivering the substance May 10, 1986, in Cass City.

Pretrials are to be scheduled for both men.

B & E CHARGES

Two men facing charges of breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny in connection with a string of thefts involving more than $20,000 in cash and goods also were arraigned Friday.

Arthur L. Brinkman, 40, 301 S. Crawford Rd., Deford, waived his arraignment. He is charged with breaking into a house at 1575 Pineknoll Drive July 4 in Indianfields Township.

Leroy M. Ferguson, 554 E. Frank St., Caro, meanwhile, stood mute at his arraignment to 3 separate charges. Ferguson, 21, is charged with breaking into the house at 1575 Pineknoll Drive July 4 in addition to breaking into a house at 3782 W. Dixon Rd. July 4 in Juniata Township and a house at 4711 Unionville Rd. July 8 in Akron Township.

A pretrial for Ferguson was scheduled for Friday. If convicted, he faces a maximum sentence of 15 years imprisonment on each charge.

Tammy L. Carpenter, 25, 2194 W. Gilford Rd., Caro, waived her arraignment Friday on charges of larceny over $100 and receiving and concealing stolen property.

Carpenter is charged in connection with the theft of a diamond ring Aug. 4 in Caro.

GUILTY PLEAS

An 18-year-old Caro man pleaded guilty Friday to larceny in a building in connection with the theft of tools and saws March 29 from a basement garage at 1299 Luder Rd., Caro.

James T. Moore, 1246 Luder Rd., faces a maximum sentence of 4 years imprisonment and/or a $2,000 fine.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered. Bond was continued at $4,000.

Richard E. Nicholson, 6519 Valley St., Tuscola, pleaded guilty to the unlawful use of a vehicle. The conviction stems from an incident Aug. 23 in Tuscola Township, court records state.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Nicholson, 22, who faces a maximum sentence of 5 years imprisonment. Bond was continued at $8,000.

Edward A. Cain Jr., 3951 Washburn Rd., Vassar, pleaded guilty to probation violation. According to court records, he was unsatisfactorily discharged from the Sacred Heart Rehabilitation Center, Inc., in Memphis.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered, while bond was continued at $7,500.

Cain is serving 36 months of probation following his conviction Oct. 20, 1986, on a charge of unlawful use of a motor vehicle.

SENTENCED

An 18-year-old Millington man was sentenced for a conviction of concealing stolen property to a one-year delayed sentence, $300 in costs and 3 months to complete community service.

Charley M. Grignani, 10050 Belsay Rd., was convicted of concealing guns, stereo equipment and a calculator May 10 in Arbela Township.

Sentenced for sale of guns

A Cass City man was sentenced last month in U.S. District Court in Bay City on a charge of illegal transfer of a firearm, according to a spokesman in assistant U.S. attorney James Brunson's office.

Jon W. Finkbeiner, Cass City, was sentenced to 3 years probation Aug. 11.

He is one of 2 individuals involved in the illegal sale of firearms in Cass City, according to Tuscola County Sheriff's Department detective Larry Walker, who said that the second individual involved is expected to be arrested.

The pair of illegal firearms cases resulted from an investigation conducted over the past year by the sheriff's department.

Finkbeiner, who was arrested May 6 in connection with the purchase of an illegal silencer, pleaded guilty June 26.

The other suspect is being sought in connection with the purchase of a sawed-off shotgun, according to Walker.

Arrest area woman on warrants Aug. 31

A Tuscola County sheriff's deputy arrested a Cass City woman on 2 failure to appear warrants Aug. 31 while investigating a malicious destruction of property complaint near Cass City.

According to reports filed with the department, the deputy responded to a complaint registered by Bernice Jeffrey, the landlord of a rental trailer, at 3920 Little Rd., which had been damaged.

Someone had thrown 2 large stones and 2 potted plants through plate glass windows at the trailer, according to the report, which listed total repair costs at $100.

The deputy ran a check on the trailer's resident, Vickie L. Amon, 25, and learned there were 2 outstanding warrants out on her--a misdemeanor warrant for failure to appear in court on an original charge of felony drug charges, and a criminal bench warrant for failure to appear on a charge of delivery of a controlled substance.

dence, damaging the screen and breaking a ceramic ornament. The incident occurred sometime between 6 and 7 p.m., she said.

Police also responded to, and are investigating, larceny complaints filed by Cliff Ryan, 4282 West St., and Mable M. Brown, 6703 Houghton St.

Ryan reported that a 26-inch girls' bicycle is missing from the garage at his residence. The bike, purple in color, was taken after Aug. 28 but before Friday, he stated.

An estimate on the value of the bike was not available.

Brown, meanwhile, told police that an 8-foot picnic table was taken from the backyard of her Houghton Street residence sometime between Thursday and Saturday.

The table is valued at $68, she said.

Elkland board to meet Sept. 14

The Elkland Township Board's September regular meeting was rescheduled from Sept. 7 to Sept. 14 beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Elkland Township Fire Hall.

Girl Scouts to hold pow-wow

The mid-Thumb Girl Scouts will finish out the calendar year (Sept. 1986 to Sept. 1987) and begin a new one by holding a "Mid-Thumb Pow-Wow" at 7 p.m. Sept. 10 at Cass City High School.

The pow-wow is for girls interested in joining the Girl Scouts as well as those who already are members, Service Unit Director Kay Warner said.

There will be a brief opening program followed by an open house where scouts will be able to visit individual troop tables, buy and sell uniforms and have refreshments.

Additional information about the event is available by contacting Warner at 872-5479.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

If Jack Kemp ever had a chance of getting my vote in the presidential primary, he blew it in a recent speech in Toledo, in a single sentence. Here is the 84-word horror:

"It is absolutely essential to our hopes for peace, stability, democracy and better foreign policy to have a world that is growing and expanding with a tide that is rising, upon which all boats can rise, as opposed to this zero-sum, fiercely divisive Darwinian struggle into which nationals are backed into mercantilistic practices and protectionist policies that drive people apart, as opposed to bringing people together in a liberal democratic fashion as I think America was founded upon 200 years ago."

The program committee at a Delray Beach retirement center is asking me to talk at a gathering this fall.

The topic will be investments.

The average age of the audience will be around 80, and financially the members are pretty well off.

I am sure they are "sot in their ways," to borrow a phrase of the Scots. Come to think of it, most investors are sot in their ways, whether they are 80 years old, or whether they are 20.

I might try using the analogy of a milk stool to illustrate the pillars of investing. For the non-farmers among you, and for the farmers who have never used anything but a milking machine, a milk stool has 3 legs, so it will sit on even surfaces without rocking. Three legs and a top. That's all there is to it.

Think of one leg as representing security, safety of principal. For retired people, that's all you have to produce income. (Pass over Social Security. Claude Pepper and the AARP will take care of that for you, and send the bill to your children. Pass over your pension, because you have no control over that.)

Lose your capital, or your principal, and you've lost the goose that lays those golden eggs so regularly.

Call the second leg Income. You may have a nifty 40 acres in the North woods, but it produces nothing except a yearly tax bill. Nobody wants to buy it. You bought it as an "investment," but that's your definition -- not mine. So you have to have money coming in, to go along with your Social Security and pension and the $3 you won last year playing golf.

And we're speaking about "keeping money" -- after-tax money if you please. Despite tax law changes, just Federal income tax for 1987 can go as high as 38½%.

Leg No. 3 of this financial stool that you'll rest upon is liquidity -- something you can sell when you feel like it. Perhaps the original investment is in a field that's in bad shape now -- farming, rental property in the Bronx, an obsolete gas station. Things for which there's no market. We've all owned such dogs at some time.

Or you may need to raise cash for illness or injury, or some disaster in the family. You need an investment you can sell.

I like the kind that can be sold with a phone call. I dial the WATS line number of ol' John Grant at Thomson McKinnon in Bloomfiel. Hills, Mich.

"John, I don't like the prospects for the Pontiac Silverdome and I've got some of their bonds. Peddle them."

In 5 business days the proceeds are in my account.

Try that system on some farm acreage you own, and let me know how you mak out.

So now we have 3 legs for this stool:

1. SAFETY
2. AFTER-TAX INCOME
3. LIQUIDITY

Roughly, the legs have to be more or less the same dimensions. The balancing of one against the other is important to some extent, but not over-riding. Th stool will still be serviceable if one leg is a little shorter, a little heavier than the others.

The question I want to ask in closing:

Which leg of a 3-legged milk stool is most important?

Wedding balloon launch Aug. 1 results in 2 replies

Lou and Kim (Witherspoon) Rabedeau, who released some balloons following their wedding in Cass City Aug. 1, recently reported having received 2 replies--one from Pennsylvania--from persons who found 2 of the balloons.

The Rabedeaus, who reside in Detroit, launched the balloons after being married at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Cass City. Attached to each of the balloons was a tag listing their name, wedding date, location of the ceremony and the phrase, "Just Married."

Replies, both extending a hearty congratulatio were received from Eleanor M. Stein, 3462 Vincent Rd., North Street, Mich. (located just northwest of Port Huron), and from W. Kirkpatrick, Route 1, Ellwood City, Pa.

Interestingly, the reply from Pennsylvania noted that balloon landed Aug. 3, while the balloon that made it to North Street was foun Aug. 6.

Lumber still good in 75-year-old silo

A dinosaur among area modern farming structures was felled on a clear morning Thursday, Aug. 20, at the Robert Neiman farm, 5211 E. Cass City Rd.

THE 72-YEAR-OLD NEIMAN used a power saw to sever the 2 remaining 2 x 4s connecting the silo to an adjoining barn.

The structure, a wood silo, is among a remaining few of its kind, according to Neiman.

Admittedly, the structure has seen better days. Years of use and Michigan weather have turned the once useful silo into an eyesore, particularly when compared to the modern blue giants which speckle the countryside today.

But, like the 72-year-old Neiman, who scaled with ease an adjoining barn in preparation for the project, the old silo still has a lot of good years left.

"I'm thinking of taking it and building a patio at my cabin in Mio," Neiman remarked after he and Frank Cargill of Deford lowered the 30-foot silo, estimated to be some 75 years old.

"I was thinking about building a single-structure garage with it; it would have made a good one."

"It may be just an old silo, but it's made of good materials," he continued while examining the silo's redwood planks. Cargill nodded in agreement. "That'll last for thousands of years."

Further examination of the structure, specifically of some engraving on the silo's door hinges, showed that the structure was patented Nov. 30, 1915 and made by the E.C. Tecktonius Manufacturing Company, Wisconsin.

CAME HERE IN 1938

Neiman, a retired farmer and 20-year General Motors employee, bought the farm on E. Cass City Road, about 2 1/2 miles west of Cass City, in 1938. At the time, he was 24 and "never knew what it was to get tired."

When he purchased the farm, which covers some 80 acres, the silo needed some work. "It was twisted and leaning," he explained, adding that he reinforced the structure and built a chute.

"When I built the chute, I built a roof for it, and that probably would have lasted another 40 years," he commented.

"I used to fill it right to the peak and then re-fill it," he continued. Neiman said he started out with a dairy and cash crop farm, and then switched some 15 years later to beef cattle.

"I've been out of the cattle business for probably 20 years now. I haven't used it (the silo) in 25 years.

Neiman remembers some fantastic corn crops, when "I filled the silo on 3 acres of corn."

He also recalls a simpler time, when there was plenty of work to go around for area youths.

"When I was growing up, you could get a job on an 80 or 120-acre farm helping a farmer," he remarked. "I used to work at the Jim Tuckey farm when I was 14."

"Progress has gotten beyond its means," he said. "Today, there's nothing for kids to do. Where can they work--they can't get a job until they're 18 years old. Kids who are 16 or 17 and want to work should be allowed to work."

Neiman acknowledged that despite progress, it was only a matter of time before his old silo would be downed after he stopped using the structure. "With buildings, when you don't keep them up, it's time to do something," he noted.

"I wanted to take it down last summer. The roof was gone and it was leaning. It was just an eyesore," Neiman said. He added that he nearly sold the structure 2 years ago.

An interested passerby offered Neiman $400 for the silo, but the offer was flatly rejected. "I asked him $500. He said, '$400,' and I said, 'No, it'll sit there and I'll take it down myself.' "

College looks for alumni

Alumni of Great Lakes Junior College over the past 80 years are being asked to contact officials at the school.

"As Great Lakes Junior College has grown, changed its status as an institution and undergone name changes, we've lost track of past student records," Jim Lewis, school vice-president in charge of marketing, said.

According to Lewis, information on the whereabouts of Great Lakes alumni will be used to possibly develop an Alumni Relations Club, newsletter and reunion.

Past students of Bliss-Alger College, the Business Institute, Saginaw Business Institute and Great Lakes Junior College are asked to contact Tom Brubaker, public information coordinator, by calling 755-3444, or toll free at 1-800-248-0010.

State risks losing Fed road funds

Michigan is on the brink of losing federal highway funds totaling nearly $13 million if more motorists do not obey the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit during the next 5 weeks, Department of Transportation Director James Pitz said recently.

At a Lansing summit meeting attended by State Police Director Ritchie Davis and representatives from police and sheriffs' associations, Pitz called for an aggressive effort to reduce the state's current non-compliance rate of 50.5 percent, through increased public awareness and greater police visibility and enforcement and said he hopes motorists will voluntarily lower their speeds.

"Our third-quarter data shows there is still a chance to meet the 50 percent federal compliance standard if fourth-quarter speeds are kept down," Pitz said. "We can improve our compliance rate by the end of the fiscal year if at least 2 percent of drivers will reduce their speeds to 55," he said.

Davis, an opponent of the proposed 65-mile-per-hour limit, said he will instruct troopers to become more visible and increase the use of air speed radar.

"I am encouraging our patrol cars to spend more time in rest areas talking to the public about the importance of compliance. Slowing down will not only save the state money, it will also help save lives," he said.

Bill Tansil of the Department of Transportation planning division, said the state's non-compliance level has shown a steady upward trend over the last 5 years, from 47 percent in 1981 to 50.5 percent this year.

He said 44 monitoring stations at 44 random locations are used; 14 others yet to be monitored before the final report is submitted is where the state has a chance to reach compliance.

Tansil said the biggest problem is from drivers going more than 60 miles per hour, with police agencies generally not ticketing persons traveling not more than 5 miles per hour over the limit.

Other data gathered in the third-quarter showed a 67.6 statewide percentage of drivers exceeding the 55 limit in 1987, compared to 62.8 percent in 1986. The percentage of drivers exceeding 55 on urban interstates was 83.9 percent in 1987, up from 82.9 percent in 1986.

And there were 74.3 percent of drivers exceeding 55 on urban freeways, up from 72.9 percent in 1986. Rural interstate speeds showed the only decline, with 89.2 percent exceeding 55, compared to 93.8 percent in 1986.

Pitz said if the state fails to comply with the 50 percent rate, there would be a year grace period to argue the case and make adjustments in the non-compliance rate. He said a 65-mile-per-hour law would not necessarily guarantee better compliance.

The average urban interstate speed for 1987 in the third quarter was 62.1, up slightly from 61.8 last year, while the total average speed for all roads was 58.3, virtually unchanged from 58.2 last year.

"I would support the higher limit, but not with the removal of the point penalty system as it came out of the Legislature," Pitz said. "If the limit is raised to 65, but remains 55 on some roads and we don't penalize drivers for exceeding that speed, we'll have a real safety problem."

Flood recovery answers

Q: A very lovely young woman I've known all her life was buried last week. She was a wife and mother and I really don't know what went wrong, but she chose to take her own life. Is there any way to tell when someone is considering this?

A: The important thing to remember is that sometimes there are no warning signs. It is important to know what the warning signs are so that you can recognize them if need be.

1. Pronounced change in eating or sleeping habits.
2. Significant change in personality or unusual behavior.
3. Low self-esteem and feelings of worthlessness.
4. Suddenly not caring for prized possessions; giving away favorite things.
5. Extreme withdrawal or isolation from others.
6. Deep pain due to loss of loved one (death, divorce, etc.)
7. Talking about suicide or death and person has possession of weapon or pills.

Please bear in mind that a person who has shown any of these signs may not be seriously considering suicide, but perhaps just needs to talk or needs some special attention. TAKE THE TIME TO LISTEN. If you think the person is serious, then ask them "are you considering suicide?" If you get a positive answer, don't hesitate to get help from professional counselors. In Tuscola County the Hotline number is: 1-800-292-3666. Remember, you are limited in what you can do. Each person is ultimately able to control only their own behavior. Please call us at 673-8565 if you feel the need to talk further on this.

We would like to answer your questions dealing with Flood Recovery concerns. Please address them to: Flood Outreach Recovery Team Broadcast House, Suite 100, 1184 Cleaver Rd., Caro, MI 48723, 673-8565.

AROUND THE FARM

Tours scheduled

By Bill Bortel

Farmers and agriculture representatives are invited to visit a special phosphorus fertility management plot Sept. 17 at the Wehrman farm. This is the third year in a row comparing 60 pounds of applied phosphorus, 20 pounds of applied phosphorus and zero phosphorus during the growing season.

The first year (1985) corn was grown on the plot, with soybeans in 1986 and corn again in 1987. Growers will have an opportunity to view the various phosphorus treatments this year.

The meeting will start at 7 p.m. The Wehrman farm plot is located 5 1/2 miles west of Fairgrove on Fairgrove Road, or 138. The plot is on the north side of the road.

During the past several years, available phosphorus in Tuscola County soils has increased dramatically. The average phosphorus soil test levels were 117 pounds per acre as measured by the MSU Soils Testing Laboratory. The phosphorus reading from the soil test at the Wehrman farm is 118 pounds per acre, which is only the county average. This plot is being used to focus on better phosphorus fertility management priorities.

Growers, agriculture representatives and others will have an opportunity to view a special Tuscola County Soybean variety plot at the Fackler farm Sept. 24.

There are over 30 varieties of soybeans to compare and observe their characteristics. Growers will further have an opportunity to hear a discussion of production practices to meet the economic conditions of soybean farming today.

The meeting will start at 7 p.m. The Fackler farm is located southwest of Vassar on Buell Road. Directions are 3 miles south of Vassar to Ormes Road, 2 miles west to Buell Road and 3/4 of a mile north on the east side of the road.

Decker Chapter No. 438, Order of the Eastern Star, held its regular meeting Sept. 1 with Worthy Matron Carol Christensen and Worthy Patron Terry Hudson presiding.

Among those presented in the east and honored were: Mrs. Florence Schrader, OES Villa Board of Control member of the Grand Chapter, OES of Michigan, Ubly-Miriam Chapter No. 214; Mrs. Shirl Morse, Past Grand Chaplain, Decker Chapter No. 438; Mrs. Edith McQueen, Past Grand Martha, Huronia Chapter No. 81, Bad Axe; Mrs. Audrey Bittner, Grand Representative of Georgia in Michigan and presiding Worthy Matron of Ubly-Miriam Chapter No. 214, Ubly; Mrs. Joanne Vincent, assisting Marshal for Huron County association, Ubly Miriam No. 214. Others were Mrs. Judy Hudson, Guardian of the Grand Council of International Order of Job's Daughters, Marlette, Decker Chapter No. 214, and Mrs. Dorothy Caverly, Guardian of Job's Bethel No. 77, Caro, Decker Chapter No. 438.

Seven members from Ubly-Miriam and 2 from Bad Axe were in attendance.

A joint school of instruction with Mayville Chapter will be held Dec. 3 at 7:00 p.m. at Decker Chapter No. 438. The Worthy Grand Matron will be the instructor.

After Chapter closed, a slide presentation was given by Mrs. Edith McQueen of her 1985 trip to the Holy Land.

Lunch followed in the dining room. Tables were decorated with fall flowers. Serving on the lunch committee were Mrs. Evelyn Smith, Mrs. Irene Lee and Mrs. Merle Cumper.

Everyone participated in a country store auction for the Worthy Grand Patron's project this year, assisted by Chairman Mrs. Gertie Saigeon.

Snails

Sea dwelling cone snails are among the most deadly animals on earth. According to Ranger Rick magazine, these fish-eating snails have poison strong enough to kill a human!
