Stickle lauds community for help in 37-year career

A 37-year career in education, all but 5 years of it in the Cass City School system comes to an end next week for Robert "Bob" Stickle, Cass City Intermediate School principal. Stickle who announced his retirement at the end of the semester several months ago, can look back at a varied career in the classroom and as a supervisor. He began teaching in Farwell, spent a year there, transferred to another high school and spent 3 years in education related work before coming to Cass City to teach science. He was appointed as teaching principal at Deford and served a year as assistant principal at the high school before assuming his present post as Intermediate Principal. Stickle has long been active in sports. He was Cass City's athletic director for 10 years and coached track and junior varsity football. He was a charter member of the board of the Thumb Meet of Champions and for his efforts earned recognition as the outstanding individual from the Cass City School District for service to area youth. Stickle is an active member of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Gavel Club. A member of the Army Engineer Corps in World War II, he landed on the beach at Normandy on D-day. Stickle, and his wife, Barbara, have 3 children and 6 grandchildren. His retirement plans are indefinite. His wife still teaches in Cass City so travel is not on the immediate agenda. However, Stickle said, he has a real estate license and may do some of this work in his retirement. Stickle said that being involved in education in Cass City has been a fulfilling career and that he was grateful for the community support received all during his career.

Reorganized chamber notes progress for year

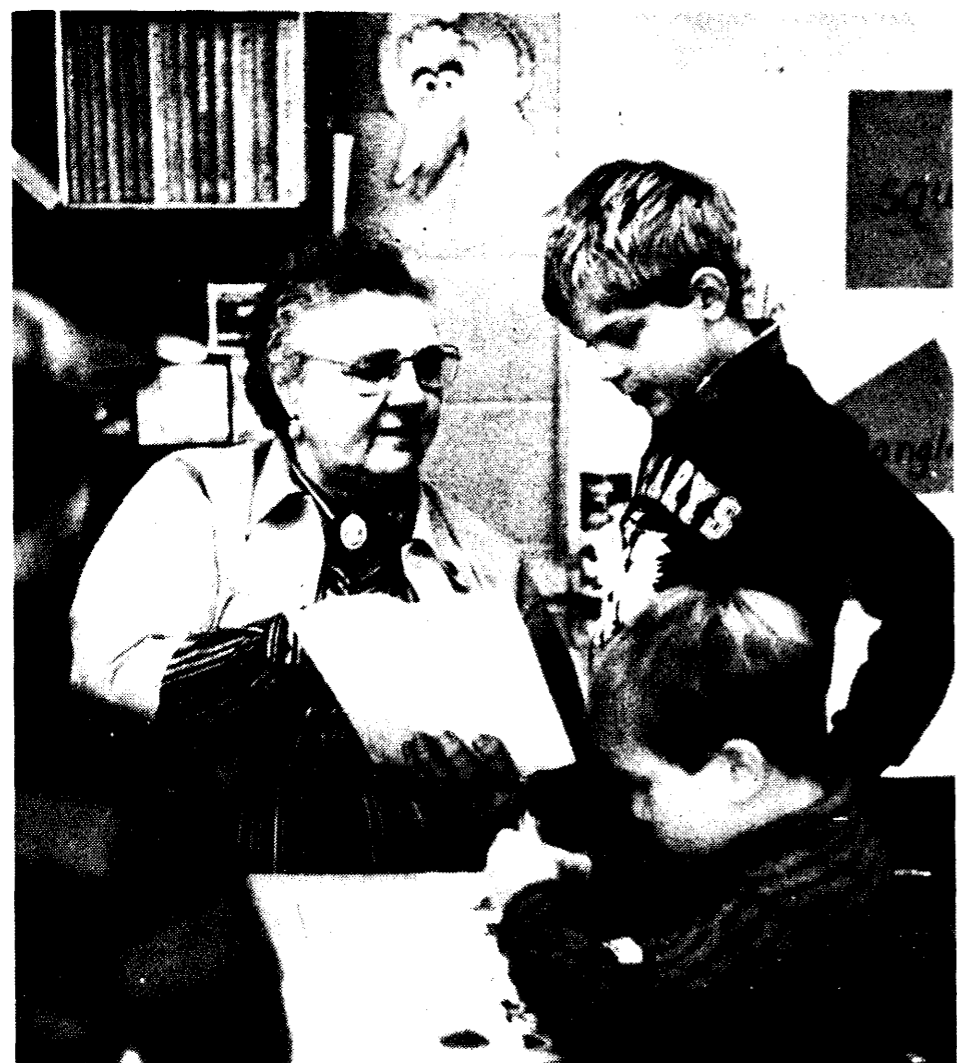

The Cass City Chamber of Commerce is ending its first year since its revitalization and, highlighted by the successful "Storytime"

Christmas display, has been successful in promoting the community, judging by the reaction of area residents to the new programs.

Almost 13,000 cars drove by the display and Lambert Althaver, Cass City, a member of the board, said that plans are already underway to enlarge the display for next year. Althaver estimated that over 1,000 man hours were donated to the Christmas display project and 25 persons worked on the display figures. In addition there were many others who assisted in erecting the display.

Over $2,000 was spent on the display and authorities were extremely pleased that there was not one incident of vandalism during the weeks the display was outdoors. In another activity of the Chamber, planning is underway for the annual spring Chamber dinner where the citizen of the year is selected. The Chamber board welcomes nominations for the honor and asks that they be sent to Tom Herron, 4861 Spruce, Cass City. The Chamber is financed from membership dues and notices will be sent to the membership now for 1988 dues. Last year for the first time individual Chamber memberships were sold for $10. The money helped the Chamber programs, officers said, but more important were the interest and the help provided by these members. We would like to expand these memberships to assure that the progress started this year will continue, Herron said. Individual memberships remain at just $10 and new memberships can be secured by mail from Herron or by contacting the Chronicle.

Asbestos remains problem at school

The approval of a contract for Intermediate Principal Don Schelke and the promise of a continuing problem and expense to manage and remove asbestos highlighted the regular meeting of the Cass City School Board Monday night at the high school.

Supt. Ken Micklash outlined the asbestos problem for the board in the first regular meeting of the board since he became superintendent. Micklash explained that a new law passed in October covering asbestos in public buildings has made it mandatory for the school to take further steps in asbestos control.

It requires that the school submit to the state a management plan to inspect the buildings every 6 months for asbestos. It also requires a re-inspection of the school by a qualified firm. Estimated cost for this work is from $3000 to $5,000. Micklash said that he has received 2 bids for this work and is waiting for a third. It is probable, judging by bids received, that the school will join with other schools in the Tuscola Intermediate District to have the work done because it looks as if it will be cheaper than signing individual contracts.

Micklash said that Cass City is in a better relative position than most schools in the area because of the removal of asbestos in all classrooms and halls last summer and arrangements to have asbestos contained in areas not frequented by students or personnel. District taxpayers approved a one-mill tax levy for 2 years for the work. It expires this year. The tax provides about $200,000 for the work.

SALARY SET

On the recommendation of the salary committee the board set the salary of Intermediate Principal Don Schelke at $42,000 per year. Dr. Ed Scollon, one of the members of the committee, said that a review of salaries in area school districts showed that the salary is near the mid-point for the area, with 3 principals receiving more and 5 receiving less than the salary approved.

In addition to his duties as principal, Schelke will assume the duties of athletic director formerly handled by the assistant high school principal, a position that has been abolished in an economy move. Schelke will receive all of the fringe benefits offered to administrators and will have 5 weeks' vacation in the summer. Retiring elementary principal Robert Stickle received $42,630.

POSITION THAWING?

Jack Brinkman of rural Gageton appeared before the board to request that his 2 grandchildren, the children of Mr. and Mrs. James Brinkman, be allowed to continue to attend Owen-Gage School. The James Brinkmans' property is in the Cass City school district, but through an oversight the children have been at Owen-Gage, one of them for 6 years.

The request sparked a comment by Trustee Ben Hobart, who said that cooperation between districts is a 2-way street. He pointed out that of 3 requests for students to transfer from Owen-Gage to other districts, only the Cass City request was denied. Brinkman, a member of the Owen-Gage board, said that it was turned down because the persons making the request didn't have a reason.

Trustee Richard Wallace observed that there must have been a reason or the request would not have been made. He said that he hoped that perhaps some of the hard feelings between the districts could be dissipated. The board granted permission for the Brinkman children to remain in Owen-Gage this year and will review the transfer again before the next school year.

If cooperation between the districts is evident, it's very probable that the children will be allowed to remain at Owen-Gage.

A request was made by Linda Regnerus, Cass City, to have her daughter remain at Campbell Elementary School if she and her husband purchase a home which is serviced by the Deford Community School. The board said that the student could remain at Campbell this school year but would be required to attend Deford School next year. Mrs. Regnerus said that they would probably not make an offer on the home if their daughter were not able to attend Campbell School.

CONTRACTS APPROVED

The board approved a teacher contract for Sean Zawilinski for a half day teaching job for the remainder of the school year. She will replace Russ Biefer, who taught a half day before becoming the high school principal.

Seven teachers were approved for winter semester adult classes as requested by Community Education Director Dave Lovejoy. The teachers and their subjects are: U.S. History, Kathy Tuckey; typing and accounting, Judy Brown; English, Doty Scollon; government, Patricia Bess; basic math, Deb Hobbs; reading improvement, Fran Lovejoy, and science, Sandra Bolton.

OTHER BUSINESS

Letters of recognition were sent to parents of 153 students who achieved a 100 percent score on the Michigan Education Assessment Test.

Russ Biefer presented highlights of the curriculum in the high school.

Bids were received for 4 engines used in the high school farm shop program, which is no longer offered. Three bids were received and the high bid was from Bartnik Service, Cass City, for $300 for the 4 units. All the engines are old and parts are missing from them.

Meeting dates were set for round-table discussion among various employee groups and the school board.

James Turner, Dick Wallace and Ben Hobart were appointed to a committee to review nonunion salaries for 1988-89.

Berger wins, but farmers hail verdict

Although Berger and Co. won its case in Gratiot County Circuit Court last week against Carl Dunn, farmers with unfilled bean contracts with Berger and other farm elevators were pleased with the decision.

The jury ruled that Dunn needed to pay Berger $20,000 for failing to meet the terms of his contract because he sold about 60,000 pounds of beans to another elevator for 3 times the contract price.

However, it was decided that the contract between a farmer and the company was a grower contract rather than a broker contract.

The significant difference is that in a grower contract the contract can be broken through an act of God while a party in a broker contract is responsible to meet the terms of the agreement.

Berger said that it incurred extra costs because the company was not able to meet its contracts with farmers because farmers failed to deliver crops.

Interested persons are invited to attend 2 more meetings on the topic, set for Feb. 15 and 29 at Owendale High School.

PETITION FOR THE ENLARGEMENT OF THE CASS CITY VILLAGE LIMITS

TO THE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS OF TUSCOLA COUNTY, MICHIGAN:

Pursuant to a resolution unanimously approved at a meeting of the Village Council of Cass City, Michigan, held December 28, 1987, a copy of which resolution is attached hereto as Exhibit A, the Village of Cass City does hereby respectfully petition you to alter the boundaries of such Village so as to include the following described premises which adjoin the present limits of said Village:

Beginning at Northeast Corner of Northeast 1/4 of Northwest 1/4 of Section 33, Town 14 North, Range 11 East, running thence West along Section line 183.0 feet; thence South 217.0 feet; thence East 183.0 feet to centerline of Doerr Road; thence North along centerline of Doerr Road 217.0 feet to point of beginning.

Beginning at a point in the centerline of Doerr Road which is 217.0 feet South of the Northeast corner of the Northeast 1/4 of the Northwest 1/4 of Section 33, Town 14 North, Range 11 East, running thence West along the section line 183.0 feet; thence South 217.0 feet; thence East 183.0 feet to centerline of Doerr Road; thence North along the centerline of Doerr Road 217.0 feet to the point of beginning.

The reason for this request is that the present owners of the properties in the above described parcels wish to obtain for their property all of the services, protection, and benefits which would be available if these premises were included within the incorporated Village of Cass City, and the Village of Cass City would also benefit by having said properties included within its corporate limits.

"If It Fitz..."

Blame it on Tricia

By Jim Fitzgerald

Blame it on Tricia. An old friend was astonished to learn I didn't spend my holiday vacation in Pasadena watching my alma mater, Michigan State, win the Rose Bowl.

make big-college sports much more professional than amateur. I'm old-fashioned enough to have fond memories of when young men played football where they went to college, instead of attending college where they played football.

ture in sight, scream and jump off in the sitting position. But there are quiet moments. One came when I heard Tricia awakening from a nap in her darkened bedroom. With some trepidation, I went to lift her out of the fenced bed. It's a task usually performed by her mother or father. Tricia didn't even know I was in town and I was afraid she'd greet my unexpected presence with a train wreck.

I was a little surprised myself. Back in the '50s and '60s, when the Spartans occasionally made it to the Rose Bowl, I ached to go with them but could never afford it. This year I could have made the trip, probably on an expense account, but didn't want to. I preferred staying home. Why? Old age? After 60, the hassle of getting there and back, especially through clogged airports, sometimes doesn't seem worth the pleasure of being there. But my old friend wouldn't buy that explanation. He pointed out that I regularly fly south for family vacations and, just a few years ago, had a great time driving all the way to California and back.

But I watched the 1988 Rose Bowl on TV and rooted for MSU just as foolishly as when I was a student there 38 years ago. I was thrilled that the Spartans ultimately prevailed and sure they couldn't have done it without the help of my cheers and groans — uncommonly loud noises that prompted my wife to say the grandchildren would think I'd flipped my lid.

But she didn't. She said, "Hi, Papa." She said it slowly and softly, drawing out each syllable, and I thought of cotton balls, bouncing. Tricia showed me each stuffed animal in her bed and wrapped her tiny arms around my neck. She was happy to see me. Who needs the Rose Bowl? The youngest child always gets — and requires — the most attention. But all my grandchildren were better than a holiday in Pasadena. Especially intriguing was my participation in six-year-old Emily's fantasies.

No more school spirit? There's no denying I'm increasingly bugged by the recruiting and rewards that

Which, of course, brings us to the most likely reason I didn't go to the Rose Bowl. It has to do with being too old — but not too old to travel or cheer my alma mater. Rather, I'm too old not to realize that the years are swishing by and I might never have another two-year-old grandchild to drive me nuts. A week's vacation between Christmas and New Year's is marvelous for visiting — and being visited by — the newest grandchild. Tricia is different than the other four in that she is louder. She can say several words and mostly they sound alike. They sound like a train wreck. Her first favorite thing to do is scream — either in delight or anger, it doesn't matter. Her second favorite thing is to climb the highest furni-

Emily put a golf glove on my left hand, spread my right hand flat in a plastic dish cover, and sprinkled both hands with water from a baby bottle. She asked my name and if I were a grandpa. After I answered truthfully, she said she was sorry but, now that I was fingerprinted, I would have to go to jail for "streetmugging."

programs, health operations and the jail, added that the estimate of $140,000 is "very rough." Still, he said, a projected third consecutive year of falling land values means a combined loss of some $673,000 in property tax revenue over a 3 year period beginning in 1987.

County Controller Michael Hoagland said that the board's decision to reduce its request was based on several factors.

Former area man named principal

Former Cass City resident David E. Binder, 44, recently was named the new junior-senior high school principal in the Bronson School District, located southwest of Coldwater.

A 1961 Cass City High School graduate, Binder, the son of Lois Binder of Cass City, officially began his new job Monday after receiving the appointment Jan. 4. He was chosen from a list of 26 applicants.

Binder has been employed by the Bronson School system for the past 2 1/2 years. He has served as interim principal for the past 6 months, and was assistant high school principal and athletic director before that.

After graduating from high school, Binder attended Central Michigan University, where he earned his bachelor's degree. He then earned a master's degree in the teaching of science from Western Michigan University. He recently applied for admission to a doctoral program in educational leadership.

Before coming to Bronson, Binder served as a teacher at Mattawan High School for 17 years and was also athletic director there for much of that period.

He also taught for a brief time in the Caro and Kingston School districts.

During his career, Binder has coached several sports, including track, basketball, football, baseball and golf.

Soybeans, grain top '88 farm economy outlook

Continued improvement in Michigan's farm economy in 1988, especially in the soybean and grain sectors, is the prediction of Michigan Farm Bureau agricultural economist Robert Craig.

"We're very bullish on soybeans," Craig said. "A lot of that has to do with increased foreign demand. This fall, the Soviets became big buyers of soybean meal as well as soybeans. With the successful summit between Secretary Gorbachev and President Reagan, we think there is a potential for that trade to continue and possibly expand. We may have an average of around $6 in 1988 for cash soybeans and certainly that's going to be a big improvement over what we've seen the last couple years."

"I think we're going to have a steady to stronger market in corn. We'll probably only see corn average around $2, but that will also be a big improvement over the last few years. I think we can also look for better prices ahead for wheat, likely to be pushing the $3 level."

"One of the reasons we're bullish on both wheat and soybeans is because we're seeing year to year declines in government stocks and that will continue to improve the price picture," Craig said.

He stated that the outlook for navy beans is "sideways to slightly higher" for winter markets with a spring planting rally that will bring prices possibly up to the $13 range.

"Because navy bean prices are so depressed, and if soybeans are as good or better than what we're looking at, we may see more acres going out of navy beans and into soybeans. If that happens, we could see navy bean prices rallying even higher than $14," he said.

The problems of California vegetable growers could have a positive impact on Michigan's growers. For the state's fruit growers, however, Craig's outlook was not as optimistic.

The Farm Bureau economist advises farmers to continue keeping a close eye on their costs.

"Farmers have been doing an excellent job of cutting their costs and their production expenses in particular. They're going to have to continue to keep a close eye on their costs. I'm concerned that we may not see much of a decline in interest expenses, depending on how the Federal Reserve Board deals with monetary policy. I think the best thing farmers can do to control their interest expenses is to continue to reduce their debt, both short and long term," Craig remarked.

Craig said there is "no question" that fertilizer expenses will increase. Land values have bottomed out, he said, and predicted a slight increase in 1988.

Animal science seminar slated

Sanilac County volunteer 4-H leaders involved with animal science projects may be interested in the 4-H Animal Science Leaders' Seminar, set for Feb. 16 at the Bavarian Inn in Frankenmuth.

All leaders interested in dairy, livestock, goat, poultry, rabbit, horse or veterinary science projects are invited to attend the seminar, which will begin at 9:30 a.m.

Seminar workshop sessions will focus on topics such as working with 6- to 8-year-old 4-H members, handling unexpected county fair occurrences, basic livestock nutrition, new ideas for the 4-H rabbit program and horse safety.

A fee will be charged for the seminar. The deadline for registration is Feb. 1 at the Sanilac County Extension office.

Additional information is available by contacting Hal Hudson at (313) 648-2515.

Mini ponies

Big things in small packages: Miniature horses -- no bigger than Saint Bernard dogs -- have been around since the 15th and 16th centuries. Most experts say small ponies such as Shetlands and Welsh were used to breed the first minis. At one time, minis were used to pull carts in coal mines. The horses' small size made them perfect for a low ceiling life. Today, however, miniature horses are used mostly for show. According to Ranger Rick magazine, a mini under 30 inches may sell for tens of thousands of dollars!

Peters recalls Central America tour

by Tom Montgomery
News Editor

Brief video shots of armed soldiers, impoverished families living in homes made of corrugated metal, and hearings focused on military aid are as close as most area residents have gotten to war-torn Central America.

The conflicts in El Salvador and Nicaragua, and U.S. policy in those countries, seem unclear and distant to many.

Cass City resident Anton Peters has devoted much time and study to the topic, and doesn't hesitate to share his opinion that support of armies in Central American countries by other nations, including the United States, is wrong.

That belief was strengthened last summer, when Peters and 10 other representatives of the Presbytery of Lake Huron participated in a 13-day travel seminar in Central America.

"After my visit and after what I've studied and learned, I'm convinced that the people of Central America have a right to solve their own problems with their own leadership," Peters, a member of the First Presbyterian Church in Cass City, remarked.

"They have a right to follow their own destiny. We (or any other country) don't have a right to tell them what that destiny is." He added, "Before I went, I felt this way in an abstract way; when I came back, I felt it in a concrete way."

THE TRIP

The trip, coordinated by the Center for Global Education, Augsburg College, Minnesota, included several stops in El Salvador, Nicaragua and Costa Rica. The visit included talks with church and government officials as well as residents of those countries.

"We simply went from group to group," Peters explained, adding that those on the tour represented a wide variety of political views.

"The trip was planned as an opportunity for a few people to get a first hand experience of living conditions in Central America. We went to bring back to our congregations and the Presbytery... some understanding of the situation."

Peters outlined some general impressions of his visit and background on Central America. The tour began in El Salvador, the smallest nation in Central America in area but the largest in population (6 million people).

While there, Peters' stops included visiting a farm cooperative composed of 20 families who had fled their farms because of guerrilla activity, and a meeting with the head of the Committee of Press of the Armed Forces.

"He (Col. Mauricio Hernandez) explained that the million and a half day we send them in military aid is not enough—that the U.S. must continue funding the country against guerrillas," Peters said.

RULED BY FEW

Peters explained that El Salvador has been involved in a war with guerrilla forces for 10 years or more, and that the country elects a president that is picked from the upper class and rules for the upper class. It is said, he added, that the country is ruled by 14 families.

Also during the tour, Peters met with the Committee of Mothers and Families of the Politically Imprisoned, Disappeared and Killed.

El Salvador, Peters explained, has what is known as "death squads," which are said to be responsible for the deaths of some 25 persons per month. Six or 7 years ago, the squads were killing about 900 persons each month.

"Every place you go, you see soldiers, you see guns," Peters commented. A scene he witnessed from a restaurant in San Salvador remains particularly vivid.

A group of soldiers drove up in a jeep, stopped, and one of them aimed a flashlight at certain motorists (one at a time, at random) and flashed 2 quick beams of light, Peters explained.

"The significant thing is that the cars stopped. These people didn't wait for the soldier to come up to their car, they (drivers) literally flew out of their cars to the soldier," who would check their papers, he said.

DEPLORABLE CONDITIONS

He added that overall, living and housing standards in El Salvador are deplorable for the lower classes. The country has 50 percent employment for 9 months a year, and 100 percent employment for the remaining 3 months, when plantation owners hire peasants to pick coffee.

Nicaragua, in contrast, is the largest country in area, with about 3 million people. Peters said that housing in the nation appears to be a little better compared to El Salvador.

Nicaragua, he noted, had a revolution in 1979 after nearly 50 years of rule by the Somoza family, and is ruled today by the Sandinistas. The form of government there is somewhat uncertain, Peters commented, adding that although the country is ruled by few, he believes there may be attempts by the government to benefit the country as a whole.

He pointed out that the United States is providing aid to the Contras, who are trying to topple the Sandinista government. The U.S.S.R., meanwhile, is funding the Sandinistas, who, when they took power, took land from the rich, including some American companies, and gave it to the peasants, Peters said.

Costa Rica, meanwhile, is closest among the 3 countries to being a democracy, according to Peters. The country of some 2.5 million people has the highest standard of living in Central America—about $2,000 per year per person, compared to an annual per capita income of about $200 per year in the other countries.

MANY REFUGEES

Unfortunately, 20 percent of the country's population consists of refugees—primarily from other Central American countries—which has strained Costa

Rica's economy.

Peters pointed out that the country's more democratic government is unlike those in El Salvador and Nicaragua because of its strong middle class. In the 1880s, land was given to people who would farm it, thus developing a middle class social structure in Costa Rica, he explained. Following a revolution in 1948, the country's army was eliminated, and there have been peaceful elections since.

An understanding of why there is so much conflict in Central America lies in the history of the region, Peters says, adding that a major factor is a change in the attitude of the lower classes over the past 20 or 3 decades.

Historically, peasants in the predominantly Catholic region were taught to follow a doctrine which emphasizes an afterlife, rather than the condition of life on earth, Peters explained.

However, he added, the peasants have turned to a new "Liberation Theology" in which they are no longer content with poor living conditions, Peters said.

This "new" theology is present throughout Central America, not only in countries such as El Salvador, which has an oligarchy form of government, where the few who rule the nation reap the benefits of the nation.

NO QUESTION

"The peasants of the Central American countries are demanding that they share in whatever their countries have to offer," Peters said. "They're going to get it one way or another. If it takes a gun to get it, they'll use a gun. There's no question in my mind."

Peters continued, "the thing we don't understand is that what they're asking for is an acre or 2 of land to grow food; they're not asking for cars and golf courses."

The Arias Peace Plan, approved by the presidents of the 5 Central American nations in August, is a step in the right direction in Peters' opinion. The plan, in part, stresses a desire by Central America to solve its own problems without the help or hindrance of foreign nations.

"It's a good step... because it was initiated by the Central American countries," Peters said. "I hope our government will support it instead of fighting it. My feeling is we've got to sit back and give it some time."

SLIDES AND MAPS are among the souvenirs Anton Peters uses to share what he learned during a study trip to Central America last summer. The Cass City resident currently is working toward a degree in education at Saginaw Valley State University.

Girl, 3, is "driver" in crash

A 3-year-old area girl who put her mother's parked car in gear and then went on a brief "joy" ride, crashing into a fence and a parked vehicle Friday morning, escaped injury, Cass City police reported.

Police Chief Gene Wilson stated that 3-year-old Amber Richards, 3837 N. Phillips Rd., was waiting for her mother, Pamela Richards, to return from the post office at about 9:30 a.m. when the mishap occurred.

The child had been left alone briefly in the vehicle, which was parked with the motor running near the post office, Wilson said. He added that the vehicle, once in gear, made a 360-degree turn in reverse, first striking a fence and then the parked car. Richards' vehicle sustained extensive damage, Wilson said.

The accident remained under investigation Monday morning.

Minor damage was reported in a 2-car mishap Thursday on Maple Street north of M Street.

Reports state that a northbound vehicle driven by Clara M. Gaffney, 6567 Elizabeth St., pulled into the path of another northbound vehicle, driven by Gayle E. Nicol, 4230 Robinson Rd., when the accident occurred.

The road was icy at the time of the 3:40 p.m. mishap, which resulted in moderate damage to Gaffney's vehicle, and slight damage to Nicol's vehicle.

Police arrested a 26-year-old Cass City man early Saturday morning on suspicion of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

Gregory S. Guinther, 6397 Seventh St., was stopped on Oak Street near Main Street at 2:20 a.m., according to reports, which state that his vehicle had a loud exhaust.

Also last week, Steven J. Fobear, 6627 Pine St., reported that his vehicle was struck by an unknown vehicle while legally parked on Pine Street west of Sherman Street.

Fobear told police that the incident, which resulted in slight damage, occurred sometime between Jan. 10 and Jan. 12.

CASS CITY SCHOOL NEWS

Superintendent's Letter to the Community

The community of Cass City is highly respected by its neighboring communities. Why? Because of its aggressive business section, its progressive leadership in local government, its strong religious values, its sound health care system, its solid industrial development, its school district that meets the needs of the district's children and adults, but most of all because of its people, who have been positive supporters of the community as a whole. All of these elements are vital if our community is to thrive and grow. Each of these elements are essential if our community is to remain a preferred place to live.

As the new superintendent of the Cass City Public Schools, my primary concern centers upon the life of our school district. We have a sound educational system, one which has been wisely managed, one which has met the educational needs of our community, and one which we certainly can all be proud of. My primary goal is to work to maintain, as well as continually strive to improve (within our means) the educational opportunities for our area's population. This goal can not be met without your help. It is my hope that our area residents will continue to be strong supporters of each element that helps to make our community a healthy and wholesome place to live. I especially hope that our school district continues to receive your needed support as we move forward to meet the challenges of the next century.

Sincerely,
Kenneth J. Micklash

YOUR EYES

CONTACT LENSES AND SPORTS

Certain types of contact lenses are better suited for some sports than others. Soft contact lenses are an excellent choice for those who engage in contact sports such as football or boxing. They fit close to the eye and are larger than other types of lenses so they are more difficult to dislodge. If you jog or ride horses, soft contact lenses offer better protection from dust particles for the same reason.

Campers, hunters and bikers who take overnight trips may prefer extended wear lenses. These do not have to be removed every night.

Some athletes, however, see best with gas-permeable or standard hard contact lenses because of their type of vision defect that needs correction. To prevent a dislodged lens from spoiling your game, keep a second pair of contact lenses with you. This advice makes good sense for all contact lens wearers.

This week decides

Cass City: pretenders or contenders?

Hawks win 48-45

This is the week that will determine if the Cass City Red Hawks are pretenders or contenders to successfully defend their Thumb B Association crown as league leading Vassar was to have been in town Tuesday. A postponed game with Lakers is scheduled Saturday after a home game with Bad Axe Friday.

If Cass City should win all 3, dust off another spot in the trophy case. If they lose all 3, well, there's always next year.

The key game at Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port will be played earlier than regularly scheduled games. The freshman game will start at 4 p.m., an hour earlier than usual. The earlier start means that the varsity contest will start at around 7 p.m.

To defeat the league powers the Hawks will probably have to move their game up another notch from where it's been in the last 3 games.

The Hawks travelled to Marlette Friday and were happy to escape with a victory, 48-45.

Coach Ron Nurnberger probably can find plenty to find fault with over the performances of the team against the Red Raiders, but he has to be happy with the clutch free throws of his charges at crunch time.

It was free throw shooting that enabled the Hawks to pull out the win in as close a game as you could get. Fans with weak hearts shouldn't be attending Cass City games this year as the team has a habit of going almost to the wire before winning or losing.

It was nip and tuck all night between the Hawks and Raiders. With 1:45 left in the game, Tony Starr hit a pair of free throws to put Marlette ahead, 44-43. Cass City forged in front on a pair of clutch free throws by Mike Randall. Marlette had the ball for 2 possessions, missed a shot and lost the ball when Paul Tuckey made a key interception.

Jeff Krol then made a pair of free throws with 7 seconds left to assure Cass City of a tie. Marlette almost succeeded in putting the game in overtime when Scott Hewitt tossed a bomb from 3-point range that hit the iron, spun around the rim twice before falling out as the buzzer sounded.

The game started off like a laugher for Cass City as the Hawks streaked to a 10-4 lead in the first 4 minutes. But it proved to be a short lived lead as the Raiders moved into a full court press that bothered Cass City.

The press, coupled with some poor Cass City shooting, enabled Marlette to come charging back and at the end of the first period forge in front, 14-12. After that the lead saw-sawed until the final whistle.

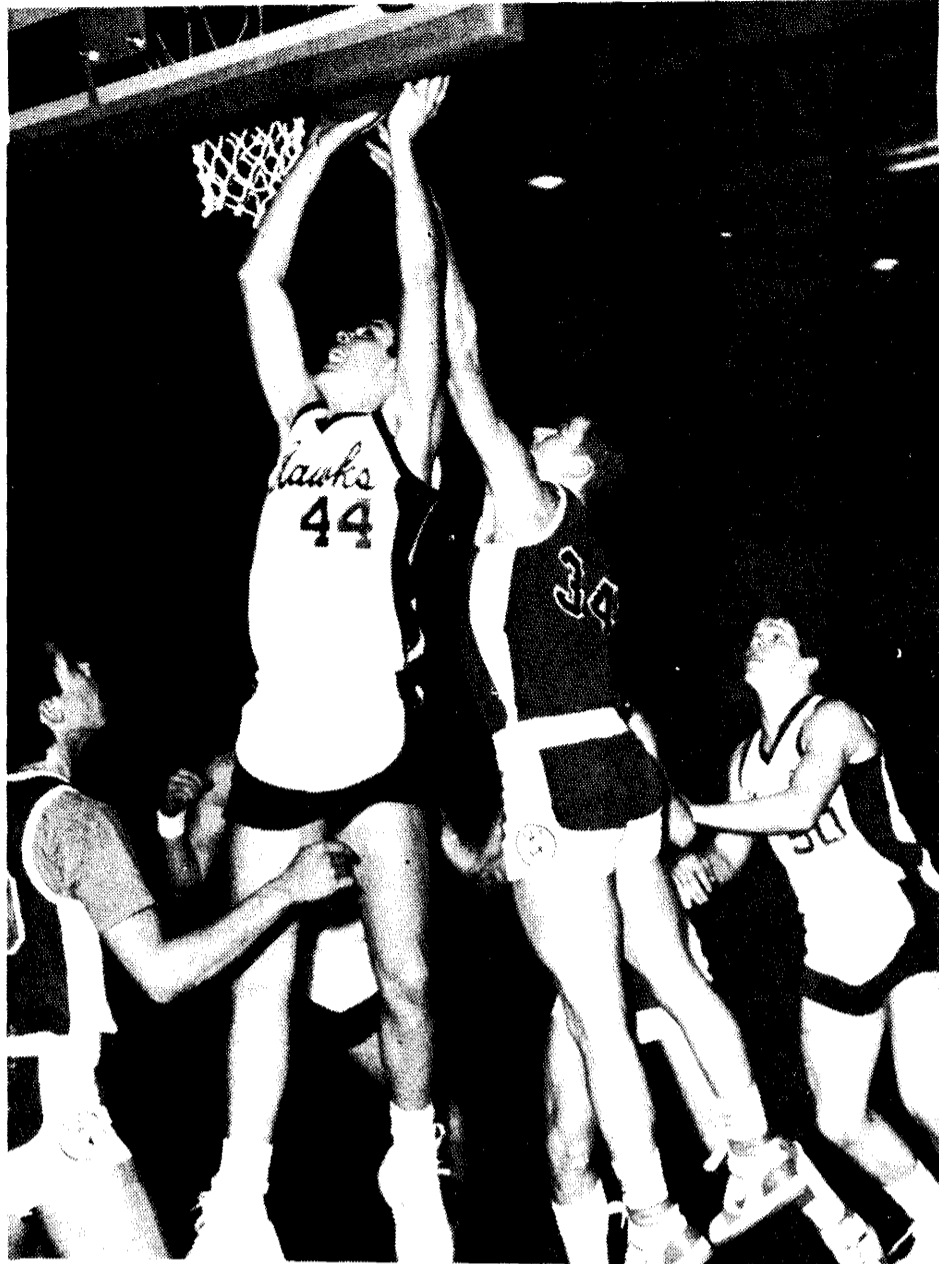

Tuckey led the Hawk attack with 17 points and 8 rebounds. Randall scored 11 even though forced to sit out for over a quarter because of foul trouble and Jeff Sontag netted 13 including 2 of 3 from 3-point range. Marlette was paced by Starr with 14 points.

FIRST WIN

The Cass City Junior Varsity broke its losing streak with a 46-36 decision over the Marlette JV.

Hawks drop Pats, 60-49

If the Cass City Red Hawks ever realize that the first 2 quarters of the game are as important as the last 2, the team will have a better chance of successfully defending its Thumb B Association title.

For the second successive game, Cass City died in the first half, but was able to salvage the game at Unionville - Sebewaung Tuesday, Jan. 12, 60-49.

Coach Ron Nurnberger used his bench liberally in the first 3 quarters as Darin Monroe, Greg Hanby and Brent Meiningger picked up valuable playing time.

Nurnberger tried many combinations during the first 3 quarters and none were very effective. Cass City was guilty of shoddy passing, poor shot selection and inability to handle the USA press well.

Cass City was able to stay in the game only because the Patriots were equally inept for much of the game and Cass City played a better defense than it did in previous games. Holding USA to 49 points was the one factor in the game that pleased Nurnberger.

For awhile in the third quarter it appeared that Cass City was going to follow its disappointing loss to North Branch with another to USA. After playing on even terms in the first quarter the Hawks dropped behind in the second period. It was a comedy of errors as both teams did their best to give the other side the ball. Turnovers were much more frequent than baskets in the first 4 minutes and as a result the combined scoring total of the teams was a meager 5 points. At the intermission Cass City trailed, 24-21.

It appeared as if USA was going to take charge in the opening minutes of the third quarter as Kendall Rieman and Scott Kieser combined for 6 unanswered points and a 30-22 lead.

From that point on the Hawks switched into high gear and played like the challengers for the Thumb B title that they were supposed to be. Paul Tuckey kept the Hawks in range for most of the remainder of the quarter with a couple of pretty driving lay-ups and when Cass City's guards finally came alive, the Hawks started to fly. Jeff Sontag, who has been in a horrible shooting slump, hit a 3-pointer and Jeff Krol added a pretty drive and by the end of the third period the team had closed the gap to a single point, 38-37.

A minute into the final quarter, Cass City took the lead for the first time, 39-38, on a bucket by Mike Randall. The teams traded baskets for a couple of times down the floor before Cass City forged in front to stay, 45-42, with 14:07 left in the game. The lead was widened as Cass City took advantage of its free throw opportunities, sinking 9 of 11, including 4 for 4 by Jeff Dillon.

Tuckey led the attack with 22 points. Mike Randall scored 12 and picked up 14 rebounds. Sontag added 11. Kieser led USA with 17.

Car/deer mishaps abundant in area

Minor injuries were reported in 2 vehicle accidents involving area residents Jan. 13, according to the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

A Kingston woman sought her own treatment after she lost control of the vehicle she was driving on East Dayton Road west of Riley Road in Wells Township.

Reports state that the vehicle, driven by Diane E. Lance, 31, 4901 S. Phillips Rd., left the roadway and struck a rock.

Lance's vehicle sustained moderate damage in the 2:10 p.m. mishap.

Also sustaining minor injuries was Bobby W. Redmond, 28, 1479 Spencer Rd., Deford, who was involved in a one-car crash at 7 p.m. Jan. 13.

Redmond, who was westbound on Deckerville Road about 1/2 mile east of Phillips Road in Novesta Township, stated that he was reaching for a cigarette lighter when his vehicle went off the shoulder of the road. He then over-corrected, causing the vehicle to cross the icy roadway and enter a ditch.

Damage to the vehicle was light, reports state.

Also last week, the sheriff's department reported 5 area car-deer mishaps, all resulting in minor damage.

A vehicle driven by Arden R. Lapp, 1405 Spencer St., Deford, struck a deer while traveling south on Cemetery Road south of DeLong Road in Novesta Township Jan. 13.

Reports state that Lapp's vehicle entered a ditch after hitting the deer at about 6 p.m.

Paul R. Woodward, 6687 Severance Rd., Cass City, was northbound on Cemetery Road north of Severance Road at 7:50 p.m. Friday when his vehicle struck a deer.

A vehicle driven by Annette S. Vandemark, 4704 Gilford Rd., Deford, hit a deer while traveling east on Deckerville Road east of Phillips Road at 7:40 p.m. Friday.

Donald A. Englehart Jr., 7820 Shabbona Rd., Deford, was southbound on Crawford Road north of Shabbona Road at 6:10 p.m. Friday when the vehicle he was driving hit a deer.

Also Friday, Cass City resident James D. Fox, 4047 Kelly Rd., was northbound on Doerr Road north of Elmwood Road when a deer ran into his vehicle at about 5:50 a.m.

Inconsistent Bulldogs lose lead, bow to Blue Stars in league play

THREE IS A crowd to Owen-Gage's Brad Susalla, who sandwiched his way between 2 Blue Star defenders to get off this shot as another Blue Star positions himself for a possible rebound. The Bulldogs found little room all night and were whipped 59-45 in North Central Thumb League play.

A FRUSTRATED Dean Roller (left) and assistant coach Jim Wissner, try in vain to re-direct their team's play, which squandered an 11-point 3rd quarter lead Friday to Port Hope. Despite a 1-8 start, Roller seems to have his squad moving in the right direction.

Bulldog spikers seek back to NCTL crown and more

The Owen-Gage volleyball team will be following a tough act.

Coach Judy Porter's spikers will be trying to improve on their 1987 season.

That will be no easy task considering the achievements accomplished by last year's fantasy season.

They won the North Central Thumb League Championship, they were crowned champions at the Laker invitational in early February, they recorded another tournament championship at Caseville in late February and demolished everything in their path en route to a near perfect season.

The only disappointment the 1987 volleyball team suffered was a major upset in state district play to Caseville, a team they battered several times during the regular season.

But don't be too sure this year's squad won't do one better.

Graduation losses are sure to take their toll on this year's squad.

Start with Cindy Enderle and Tiffany Reinhardt, two of the best setters in the NCTL.

Add to that list Charlene Goslin, Heather Dorsch and Barb Hellebuyck and a rebuilding year would seem likely. Not so.

Returning from last year's squad are many superb athletes.

Let's start this list with seniors Susie Salcido and Jane Billy.

Salcido, an all conference basketball player, oozes with ability. She will be expected to carry much of the load along with Billy at the .et.

Juniors Dawn Holland and Andrea Mandich, who lettered as sophomores, will be called on to set up the front line attack.

Coach Porter also anticpates superior play from Marcie Draschil, another setter who possesses all the tools.

The Bulldogs, who are off to a 6-1 record in pre-season tournaments, will defend their NCTL crown beginning Feb. 1, when they host North Huron.

Your neighbor says

Million-dollar lottery win would mean long cruise

One of the hottest conversations around the coffee shop tables this week is the fact that no lucky individual was able to lay claim to the state's largest lotto jackpot last Saturday which reached 18 million dollars, making Wednesday's drawing worth somewhere in the 25 million dollar range.

Your neighbor, Dave Bartnik, experienced the lotto bug for the first time last week. "I played 'easy pick' numbers last week, but plan on using my own numbers from here on," stated Dave.

When asked what Dave might do if he beat the odds and became the state's newest millionaire, the lifelong Cass City resident responded with a grin, "I'd take a long, long cruise."

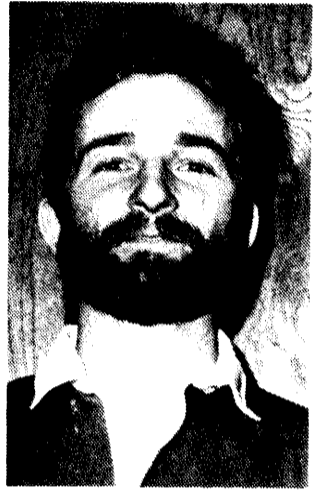

Bartnik, who has been employed for the last 10 years by the Fuelgas Division of Emro Propane Company and doubles as a service technician and bobtail driver, says he knows the chances of winning the lotto are astronomical but plays because he feels the state uses their share of the money for "worthwhile things like education."

The 1977 graduate of Cass City High School revealed that the lotto isn't the only type of gambling he has been known to do.

"Our bowling team plays a form of poker every week and I've also had my share of friendly wagers over the years," remarked the 29-year-old.

Dave is the eldest son of Henry Bartnik and lives near the intersection of M-53 and M-81. He has one brother, Gerald, of Cass City and two sisters, Gloria, who lives in Reese, and Chris, who now lives in Georgia.

State police report one minor mishap

Only one mishap involving Cass City area residents over the past week was reported by troopers at the state police post in Caro.

Troopers reported that Robert J. Graham, 1184 Deckerville Rd., Snover, was westbound on Deckerville Road east of Murray Road in Ellington Township Jan. 12 when the vehicle he was driving struck a deer.

Graham's vehicle sustained moderate damage in the 6:20 p.m. mishap.

Circuit court

3 sentenced to prison, Monday

A 23-year-old Detroit man was sentenced to prison Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court for a Nov. 24 conviction of receiving and concealing stolen property valued at more than $100.

Joseph M. Marano was ordered to serve 2 to 5 years in prison for the conviction, which stems from an incident involving a 1986 Chevrolet van Feb. 9 in Koylton Township.

Also sentenced Monday was Vassar resident Edward D. Carlisle, 56, 5057 W. Sanilac Rd., who was convicted by a jury Dec. 10 on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third offense.

Carlisle received a term of 40 months to 5 years in prison in addition to having his driver's license revoked.

He was arrested on the charge Dec. 19 in Vassar Township, court records state.

Jeffrey A. Schneider, 607 S. State St., Caro, was sentenced to 32 months to 4 years in prison for a Jan. 8 conviction of larceny in a building.

The winner from each state will receive an Olympia electronic portable typewriter, a certificate of award and the opportunity to compete against other state champions in the national championship, to be held in April at each contestant's school.

Students in the national championship will compete for cash awards of $500 for the designated national champion, $350 for the first runner-up and $200 for the second runner-up.

Reese man arraigned in district court

A 20-year-old Reese man was arraigned in Tuscola County District Court recently on a charge of illegal entry; larceny in a building.

Matthew J. Bauer, 1714 Farm Lane, faces a preliminary examination at 9 a.m. Jan. 27. Bond has been set at $4,000.

Bauer is charged with stealing automotive tools and equipment from Reese High School, 1696 S. VanBuren Rd. Dec. 29.

The offense carries a maximum penalty of 4 years imprisonment and/or a $2,000 fine.

Also arraigned was Edward L. Duchane, 24, Bridgeport, who faces a charge of writing a nonsufficient fund check for more than $50.

The charge stems from an incident July 26, 1984, in Gilford Township involving a check for $95.58.

A preliminary examination for Duchane has been scheduled for 9 a.m. Jan. 27. Bond was set at $3,000. If convicted, he faces a maximum sentence of one year imprisonment or a $500 fine.

Home Builders Association to continue "associates' night" event

Officials of the Home Builders Association of the Thumb said that an associates' night was held Jan. 6 to allow concerns to demonstrate what their business has to offer homeowners.

Association members voted to make the associates' night an annual affair. The group meets the first Wednesday of each month, September through June at Wildwood Farms Restaurant in Cass City.

Foster Grandparent program

Seniors, kids benefit from friendship

by Tom Montgomery
News Editor

Lillian Lamke and Irene Guigar hardly ever miss a day of class in the resource room at Uby Elementary School, but when they do, the 2 ladies are sorely missed.

Both long-time Uby residents, the pair have helped staff the resource room for the past 4 years. They're not certified instructors, but both do plenty of teaching, and caring.

Their job title? Grandmother.
Lamke and Guigar are among some 50 senior citizens who work part-time as "foster grandparents" in Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac Counties.

The program, sponsored by the Human Development Commission through ACTION, the federal volunteer agency, unites persons who are at least 60 years old with children in need of personal attention and special help.

The grandparents, whose role is to establish and nurture one-on-one relationships, serve 20 hours a week. They earn $2.20 per hour and receive transportation assistance, daily meals and an annual medical checkup.

Although the program does provide a small stipend, Lamke and Guigar agree that the pay has little to do with their reason for being foster grandparents.

In fact, they remarked during a recent interview at the school, it's often hard to tell whether they, or the children, are reaping the greater benefit from their ongoing relationships.

THE REWARDS

"The rewards are the children," Guigar remarked. Lamke added, "The reward is that you helped them (kids) and they achieved something."

During the interview, each lady paused occasionally to attend to "their" kids, who have grown close to "Grandma Guigar" and "Grandma Lamke." Both women work with students individually with a variety of school assignments.

Guigar, a foster grandparent for the past 8 years, met Lamke about 5 years ago when both were working with handicapped children in Sandusky. She is the mother of 3 and has 5 grandchildren and one great-grandson. Lamke, meanwhile, has been in the program for 5 years. She has 5 grown children and 7 grandchildren.

The closeness of the relationships that develop between grandparents and the children is particularly clear when a couple of days of school are missed because of health problems, Guigar pointed out. "You get laid up for a couple of days and you're just lost without" the children, she said, adding, "The kids want to know why you were sick, why you weren't here."

Lamke agreed. "You, yourself, miss the children," she remarked, adding that she missed several days of school after an accident in August. "They missed me, but I think I missed them harder."

HUGS

"They give you hugs just like your own. They holler and they come to me and hug me. If they have problems, they discuss it with you," Lamke said.

"I love to work with children. It keeps me busy. It keeps (me) younger," she added. Guigar nodded. "It keeps me from feeling sorry for myself at home."

Elrae Herp, the special education teacher in charge of the resource room at Uby Elementary, says that the presence of Guigar and Lamke alone has made a big difference in her classroom.

With 20 children ranging from pre-school age to 6th graders, Herp said, it can be difficult for one person to attend to all the needs of the youngsters, who are receiving special help for a variety of learning disabilities. She added, "It really is a big help because when you have kids at so many levels... you have to operate like a country school."

The children are "sometimes overwhelmed and they don't want to try," Herp continued. "Grandmother can be there to encourage them. When they (kids) feel good about themselves, they want to try harder."

That's a major benefit of the program, according to Beth A. Lentner, director of the nearly 10-year-old Foster Grandparent Program in the tri-county area.

"The kids have someone who's willing to give them a hug anytime. The kids have a pat on the back in the classroom."

For the grandparents, she remarked, "It gives them a reason for living—a reason to get out of bed in the morning. They really feel like they're being a positive influence on someone's life."

It didn't take Guigar long to reply when asked what she likes best about being a foster grandparent.

"It's that wonderful smile, knowing that grandmother is here. I don't know how to put it, but I just think it's wonderful to work here."

Editor's note: persons who are at least 60 years old and are interested in becoming a foster grandparent can learn more about the program by contacting the HDC at 1-800-843-6394, or (517) 673-4121.

LIKE MOST GRANDPARENTS would, Lillian Lamke is more than willing to share her lunch with one of her many foster grandchildren. "It seems like we're accepted as grandmothers throughout the school," Lamke said of herself and fellow grandmother Irene Guigar.

Recommend changes in Michigan Lottery program

Increasing payouts, improving methods of agent ticket distribution and marketing via direct mail for the lottery's instant game have been recommended by Governor James Blanchard's Task Force to Review the Michigan Lottery. But the task force said expectations for revenue growth of the lottery must be lowered.

"We generally found the lottery to be in good health," said task force Chair Ron Thayer. "Lottery sales increased for the first 15 years and now they're leveling off. We think the lottery can move ahead and be one of the top lotteries in the nation."

lated recommendations include improved training and marketing support, increased cash incentives, more frequent visits from lottery sales representatives and an improved communication with Lottery Commissioner Michael J. Carr through the designation of a Lottery Agent Liaison.

Other recommendations include: --using direct mail to publicize the lottery. "We can do a lot more with our advertising dollars than use them on television ads," Thayer said. --having Lotto drawings later in the day so tickets can be sold until 8-8:30 p.m., instead of the current closing time of 7 p.m. Thayer said that the task force discovered that 38 percent of all Lotto betting is done between 5 and 7 p.m. --establishing a 5-member Lottery Advisory Board which would complement the lottery's management team by providing advice and expertise from a variety of business disciplines. --placing lottery ticket booths in shopping malls and airports. Thayer said the task force recommends adding 50 terminals to the 5,000 already in place statewide.

The task force also discovered that ensuring more frequent Lotto payouts is not a good method for increasing sales. When the Lotto jackpot is at $1.5 million, 3 million Lotto tickets will be sold, Thayer said. But when the jackpot climbs to $10 million, Lotto ticket sales jump to 7.5 million.

The 15-member panel, appointed Sept. 29 to review stagnant lottery sales -- which despite an increase for the year fell $82.5 million short of projected revenue in fiscal year 1987 -- and administrative policies and practices, said the best method of improving lottery sales was to emphasize instant lottery ticket game sales.

Thayer noted that people in Massachusetts spend $1.44 a week per capita on instant lottery tickets, but Michigan residents spend less than 25 cents.

Michigan ranks second nationally in gross lottery revenue at $1 billion, but instant lottery ticket sales account for only 11-12 percent of that, Thayer said. He added that the Daily 3 and Daily 4 games account for 49 percent and the Lotto game accounts for 38 percent of the lottery's gross revenue.

Recommendations to improve the instant game include: increasing payouts to 55 percent instead of the current 45 percent (Thayer noted that Massachusetts pays out 65 percent), and the improving distribution of tickets by delivering them to agents by courier instead of the current system that requires agents to pick the tickets up at banks.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Bowing to a number of pointed suggestions--and brother, when you bow to a pointed suggestion, look out you don't get it in the eye. Actually, I got it in the eye. A hearing aid. We used to call them ear trumpets, which didn't need batteries and did have some features in common with these electronic gadgets. For instance, you can't use either kind in a high wind.

Just as the audiologist said, I entered a new world once I got this gadget plugged into my ear canal. Before, eating celery was no particular experience. Now it sounds as though I'm breaking up, inside my skull. Sounds resemble those of a depth-charged submarine as it sinks to the bottom and the hull caves in... crunch... c-r-r-runch... C-R-R-R-ONK.

You do get some relief because you don't wear the things when you sleep or bathe. Already I find myself showering more often, which others may regard as a fringe benefit.

There's a financial angle to most things I write, and so I must tell about bargain ear-testing. Look up Easter Seals in your phone book, and schedule a test with them. (Fort Lauderdale has 3 of the clinics, for instance.)

My tester was Diane Moonen, with a master's degree in the subject from Michigan State, which right away put her on my list of approved people. Diane took an hour to do all the tests, and then recommended an office that sells hearing aids. Easter Seals checks out these offices, suggests the type of aid you should have, and they also know what the price should be. They send you only to places they've had good experience with, and where the price is right.

For all this Easter Seals charged $25. It's even deductible--I think.

lead-based paint. The government says you can claim a deduction for taking off the lead paint if it's a hazard to your children. Right away, if you're old enough to read about money, your children are too old to eat wall paint. My son, for example, is 47, and besides, he's a vegetarian.

But say you do have a Tiny Tim in the house who is just nuts about wall paint. So you want to get it sanded off the wall and take a deduction. Before you hire a paint remover specialist you should know that you can't take a deduction for the re-paint job.

Here's another rub--you can take a deduction for removing the nasty old toxic lead paint only as high as Tiny Tim can reach. If he's 2 years old, maybe he can reach his sticky hands 40 inches high. Check this out on your white curtains to see where the stains stop.

So the walls are 8 feet high--96 inches. Roscoe, that little rascal, can reach 40 inches, so if the paint-removing man charges $35 per wall, then you can deduct 40/96 x $35 = $14.58. Presuming you have already run up deductions exceeding the 7.5% of your "adjusted gross income" justed gross income" you've got a $14.58 deduction and you can move the lower 40 inches of paint. Next year Roscoe will have figured out how to stand on your mahogany end table and reach up another couple feet, which will allow you to deduct 24/96 x $20, say, (cost of removing a 2-foot strip) or a $5 deduction.

Bill Myers is a retired editor and investment counselor.

Farm wagon reported stolen

The larceny of a farm wagon from a Koyloun Township cornfield earlier this month remains under investigation by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

John Borek, 5462 S. Phillips Rd., Kingston, told deputies that he believes the equipment, a gravity wagon, was taken Jan. 1 or 2 from the field, located near Clothier Road between Harris and Centerline roads. The wagon is valued at $1,500.
