Police say armed robbery frightening

Three Detroit area men were arraigned Monday on several felony charges in connection with the early Sunday morning armed robbery of a young Cass City couple at their Pine Street residence.

Arraigned in Tuscola County District Court were Fernando Vega, 20, Detroit, Lonnie Jordan, 20, Detroit, and Anthony Nerkowski, 23, Dearborn, who each face charges of armed robbery and breaking and entering an occupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny.

Vega and Jordan also face charges of possession of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Bond for Vega and Jordan was set at $500,000 each, while Nerkowski's bond was reduced Monday from $500,000 to $100,000.

All 3 men face a preliminary examination March 16.

Area law enforcement officials, including veteran Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson, are calling the robbery "frightening."

"That's never happened in this town," Wilson, who has served as police chief for the past 17 years, remarked Monday.

The incident, which involved a cooperative effort by the Cass City and Caro Police departments, Tuscola Sheriff's Department and state police troopers at the Caro Post, began early Sunday.

While on patrol at about 1 a.m., Cass City Police officer Craig Haynes was stopped by one of the victims, who stated that 2 men armed with shotguns had broken into his apartment at 6359 Pine St. and held himself and his wife at gunpoint.

Reports state that the 2 men, along with a third suspect who had been waiting in a car parked nearby, fled after rummaging through the apartment.

Haynes relayed a description of the vehicle and suspects to area law enforcement agencies.

The vehicle was stopped by state troopers Neil

Sweeney and Oren Johnson on M-24 near Caro at about 2:19 a.m. for a traffic violation, according to Lt. Donald Schummer, commander at the Caro post. The troopers quickly realized the occupants matched the description of the armed robbery suspects, he stated, adding that the vehicle sped off while the troopers were attempting to get the 3 men to exit the vehicle.

Schummer said the troopers fired 2 shots at the vehicle with a shotgun in an attempt to prevent a high speed chase. The shots didn't damage the tires or injure the suspects, he said. A second post car approaching from Caro, meanwhile, occupied by troopers Bill MacNicol and Larry Scott, headed off the fleeing vehicle, which entered a ditch while attempting to pull into a driveway. The suspects were then arrested without incident, Schummer remarked. He pointed out that the state troopers were assisted by Caro Police and a Department of Natural Resources officer.

According to police, "small amounts" of money, a wallet and a ring were taken in the robbery.

O-G prepares for financial tussle

If preliminary equalized valuation and enrollment figures hold, the Owen-Gage School District will join the ranks of "in-formula" schools next year and begin receiving "membership" (per-pupil aid).

The news is good albeit uncertain, but school officials caution that being "in-formula" would not be a panacea for the financially-strapped district.

"Either way it's going to be a tussle. It's going to be tight," school Supt. Harley Kirby remarked last week. Based on preliminary equalization figures, the Owen-Gage District has lost roughly $4.7 million in SEV from 1987 to 1988, a decrease of about 14 percent. That translates into the loss of nearly $193,000 in tax revenue.

Assuming the preliminary figures are accurate, this year's 14 percent decline means the Owen-Gage District has lost more than 40 percent of its tax base since 1985, when the SEV (half the true cash value) of the land was set at $47.88 million.

The district's preliminary 1988 SEV is about $28.7 million. Kirby estimated that Owen-Gage will be eligible to receive about $67,000 in per-pupil aid from the state if the district's 1988 SEV doesn't increase (final figures will be released in April), and if the district's enrollment, now 353, doesn't fall below 334 pupils.

Even if the district does receive the per-pupil aid, Kirby pointed out, school officials would still have to deal with the loss of property tax revenue, due primarily to steadily falling agricultural land values.

RENEWAL

Financial considerations for the 1988-89 school year are based on the assumption that voters in the Owen-Gage District are going to approve renewal of 15.5 mills for operations. Although the board has taken no formal action yet on a millage request, Kirby indicated that renewal of the 15.5 mills will be necessary.

The district received voter approval to levy the maximum amount allowed by the state last year, when renewal of 6 mills and an additional 9.5 mills were okayed. Currently, the district levies a total of 45.9157 mills, including 4.9157 mills for debt retirement.

Despite another year of tight finances, with little fund balance to fall back on, Kirby says he's optimistic.

"It's not going to be any better this year," he said. "We're stuck with what comes out of SEV." Still, he added, "We haven't gotten to the stage of cutting ev-everything out yet." "We'll have to do some paring, but I think we can make it work anyway," he continued. "The winter has been good to us so far so we've saved some fuel."

NEXT STEP

Kirby acknowledged, however, that major cuts, such as sports programs and transportation, are the next step if finances continue to worsen.

One major area expected to be affected by the district's on-going belt tightening is a new teachers' contract currently being negotiated. School and union officials, who last week began meeting again after several weeks without any bargaining sessions, "have been talking about (pay), but nothing has developed yet," Kirby said.

The superintendent pointed out that the school district's long-term future will be decided by 2 main factors—implementation of a more equitable method of financing schools in Michigan, and continued local support of the district.

"There's got to be more equity" in school financing, he said. "I know everybody's hoping the state will come up with something for 1988-89."

Kirby said he believes the state Legislature is "dragging its feet" on developing Please turn to page 10.

Zoning, street work attract 20 to Monday's council meeting

A special assessment district for curb and gutter construction drew several residents to the Cass City Village Council's regular meeting Monday night.

It was standing room only as about 20 persons gathered in the council's small meeting chamber during a 45-minute public hearing on the special assessment district.

Despite the attendance, there were few negative comments on the project, which involves construction of curb and gutter in addition to other improvements to one block of Third Street, from West street to Vulcan Street, and about 4 blocks of Leach Street, from Garfield Avenue to Pine Street.

The project may also allow for the paving of a portion of Main Street, according to village officials.

The Leach and Third Street project is expected to cost a maximum of $95,000, including $35,000 for curb and gutter to be paid by residents in the affected area based on per-foot assessments.

Two of 11 property owners in attendance voiced opposition to the project.

"I lived there 21 years and we haven't had a need for it. Why now?" Third Street resident Robert Pearce asked the council.

Trustees explained that water and sewer extensions have been placed along Third Street within the past year, and that curb and gutter is preferred for such new construction because of the resulting higher quality road.

Council President Pro

Tem Dorothy Stahlbaum, who conducted the meeting in the absence of President L.E. Althaver, remarked that the council's goal is to have hard surfaces on all village streets eventually. She added that merely covering a poor surface rather than doing a quality job in the first place is "putting good money into bad."

Phil Olsow, another Third Street resident, also stated opposition, saying, "I'm not paying for it because I didn't vote (on) it. That's the village's problem."

QUESTIONS

Questions regarding drainage and property boundaries also were discussed.

A total of 28 property owners are affected by the assessments. Total amounts to be assessed individual property owners range from $580 to $1,452, with the majority totalling about $1,161.

The council later approved the special assessment district and advertising for bids. Village Manager Lou S. LaPonsie also was authorized to seek bids on the cost of additional materials needed to pave Main Street in the downtown area.

LaPonsie stated that the Michigan Department of Transportation has indicated funding may be available for the project, depending on the cost. He noted that bidding the project along with the Leach and Third Street projects could mean a better price. If approved by the state, the majority of the Main Street paving would be funded by the state, he added.

In other business, the village's 1987 finances received a clean bill of health by representatives of Yeo and Yeo Certified Public Accountants, Marlette, during a brief audit report.

General Fund revenues in 1987 totaled $659,287, compared to total expenditures of $548,344. The village ended 1987 with a general fund balance of $148,672, compared to $114,416 at the beginning of the year.

The council approved a motion to retain Yeo and Yeo to handle the village's 1988 audit.

RECOMMENDATION

The council okayed a motion directing the village Planning Commission to make a recommendation regarding the proposed rezoning of recently annexed property, located southwest of the M-81-Doerr Road intersection, from Residential to General Business.

Peoples Oil and Gas Co., Pigeon, is proposing to build a combination 24-hour convenience store and gas station on the site. The company has already applied for an SDM licence, which allows the sale of beer and wine for consumption off the premises only.

In another zoning matter, trustees learned that Dale Bader and Dwight Walker, owners of the old UPS building in Cass City, are seeking a zoning change of the structure from General Business to Light Industrial.

The pair, along with Thomas Brawner of Caseway Industrial Products, Caseville, voiced their request at a Feb. 16 planning commission meeting, LaPonsie said.

The rezoning, which has not yet been approved, would allow for lease of the building to Caseway, which manufactures signs, adhesives and chemicals.

A request for establishment of an Industrial Development District was presented on behalf of Engineered Tools Corp., 4429 Doerr Rd., Cass City.

Company officials in a letter stated that they are considering an addition to the existing building.

TAX ABATEMENT

Once established, the development district would allow the council to grant a tax abatement of up to 50 percent on the new addition for up to 12 years, LaPonsie explained.

A public hearing on the request was scheduled for 7 p.m. March 28, the council's next regular meeting date.

LaPonsie was appointed by the council to represent Cass City at a meeting to be held Monday at the Tuscola County Road Commission office in Caro.

The purpose of the meeting is to designate a village-city voting delegate to represent all cities and villages in the county on a special regional task force that will approve certain rural primary road or major street

Meg's Peg
Points to ponder
By Melva E. Guinther

One of my Christmas gifts is a fascinating book by David Feldman called "Imponderables - The solution to the mysteries of everyday life."

Among the intriguing topics addressed are "Why aren't cashews ever sold in their shells?" and "When an elevator is illegally overloaded with passengers, who is criminally responsible?"

A cursory glance assured me that there's grist for a column or 2 here.

One of the imponderables that's been noted by every woman who's ever shared a vanity mirror is "Why do women open their mouths when applying mascara?" In researching the question, the author uncovered 6 theories with varying degrees of credibility, but settled on the "tighten up" concept.

Two eminent plastic surgeons reported that when contemplating eyelid surgery (blepharoplasty), they have their patients open their mouths. This tenses the lower lid and pulls the lids a little farther apart, they claim.

That sounds reasonable, but I doubt that the average woman is aware of or even thinks about the scientific aspect when she does it. So it must be an instinctive reflex action. Does that create another imponderable?

Regarding cashews, they aren't sold in the shell because they don't have one. Technically, author Feldman says, cashews are not nuts, but seeds. They grow on tropical shrubs similar to sumac plants, and are the seeds of the edible cashew apple.

I didn't know that. How about the question of guilt in overloading an elevator? Is the last person to board accountable? Are those already on the elevator responsible for allowing the one with the extra weight to enter? And who's going to tell the fat lady she can't get on?

I'm glad Imponderables reassures us that we need not lie awake nights worrying about it.

Most electronic elevators will simply refuse to budge if overweight. Many will not even close their doors. According to Feldman, it would be difficult to pack enough full-size adults into an elevator to exceed the stated limits.

In the unlikely event of an accident caused by overloading, people involved would be much more prone to sue the building owner and the elevator manufacturer. No one could dig up a case in which passengers were prosecuted for overloading an elevator. Boy! That's a relief!

Here are a couple of items for you to ponder: Why doesn't a clinical thermometer register room temperature when you take it out of the medicine cabinet? How can the relative humidity be under 100 percent when it's raining?

And why do needles from the Christmas tree embedded in the carpet defy the vacuum cleaner but cling to your socks?

Keep Your Diamonds Clean

Diamond jewelry does need care to keep it at its brilliant best! A clean diamond not only reflects light better, but actually looks bigger than one that is "dulled" by air-born, oily dust. Diamonds have an affinity for grease and should be cleaned once every month to keep on glowing their brightest.

Here are four simple ways to wash away the "film" that accumulates on diamond jewelry.

The Detergent Bath.

Prepare a small bowl of warm suds with any mild liquid detergent. Brush pieces gently with a tooth brush while they are in the suds. Transfer to a wire strainer and rinse under warm running water. Pat dry with a soft, lintless cloth.

Make sure you have your jeweler professionally clean and check your diamond jewelry for prong and gold wear every 6 months to keep your diamonds safe and secure.

McConkey Jewelry & Gift Shop

Phone 872-3025

Cass City

The Cold Water Soak.

Make a half-and-half solution of cold water and household ammonia in a cup. Soak the diamond for thirty minutes, lift out and tap gently (loosen dirt) the back and front of the mounting with a small brush. Swish in the solution once more and drain on paper. No rinse needed.

The Quick-Dip Method.

Buy one of the brand name liquid jewelry cleaners and follow the instructions.

The Ultrasonic Cleaner.

A small machine with a metal cup which you can fill with water and detergent. It creates a high-frequency turbulence which can clean most of your jewelry. Some other gems should not be put in ultrasonic cleaners. Be certain to follow instructions.

"If It Fitz..."

Mrs. Latewrench

By Jim Fitzgerald

I was seen kissing the pretty young blond waitress, even before she brought me a drink. I was heard calling her "honey." There was the suggestion that onlookers would think I was a dirty old man.

It happened in a restaurant 65 miles from my home. I began driving there at 10 a.m. Saturday and arrived at 1 p.m. Sunday. Among the miseries that made this trip misbegotten was another uncalculated reference to my age. It came from a taxi driver who rescued my wife and me from a gas station where two employees almost assaulted each other.

The first sign of trouble

4-H club sets annual supper

The Cass City Livestock 4-H Club has slated its annual spaghetti supper for 4:30 to 7 p.m. March 17 at the Masonic Temple, 4261 Maple St., Cass City.

Tickets are available by contacting any club member or by calling 872-3781.

came only 10 miles into the journey, when the red "temperature" light flashed on my dashboard. My wife immediately demanded to know the last time I bought anti-freeze. I said it didn't matter because it was permanent anti-freeze and permanent means forever, like a marriage. She said preventive maintenance would avoid freeway breakdowns. She always says that when it's too late, like after the marriage. I said thank you, Mrs. Latewrench.

I pulled into a Shell station where the man in charge proclaimed my Oldsmobile needed a new $40 thermostat. He assigned a hireling to install it but the hireling did it under protest, probably because the service bays were full and the work had to be done outside in a numbing windchill factor.

AVOID ANGRY MECHANICS

I wasn't aware of this disagreement until both men had their heads under my hood at the same time and their spirited conversation became loud enough to be heard inside the car over the sound of my wife detailing the benefits of auto checkups every 15 miles or every day, whichever comes first.

The hireling, in language that can't be precisely quoted here, said he had better things to do than render my car operable, and the man in charge, speaking the same language, said he'd heard enough of the hireling's complaints and threatened to report him to the station owner.

It was reassuring to have my car repaired by a mechanic so happy in his work. I was confident we'd soon be safely back on the freeway, in fine shape to make it to the next gas station. Wrong. The new thermostat didn't work, and the man in charge declared we'd have to leave the car there for more extensive surgery.

We took an $18 cab ride back home. Upon arrival, the cabbie, saying he was looking for a new home, admired our apartment building. Looking at me, he asked: "Are only old people allowed to live here?"

THE LAND OF GRANDCHILDREN

Many hours later, the Shell station reported by phone that the trouble had been discovered — the newly installed thermostat was damaged. I didn't ask if sabotage was suspected. Another thermostat was installed and the trip was resumed the next morning. This time I reached my destination — the land of grandchildren — with no more trouble than the usual reminders from Mrs. Latewrench about what is worth a ton of cure.

For me, the purpose of this delayed journey was to take three of my five grandchildren — Emily, 6, John, 13, and Melissa, 15 — to dinner at the E.G. Nicks restaurant in Lapeer. Tricia, 2, was left home with her parents and Grandma because her idea of a good time in a restaurant is jumping in everybody's soup.

We had to eat at E.G. Nicks, not only for the good food, but because a part-time waitress there is the only pretty 18-year-old blond who can't run from my embrace. She is Michele, the fifth grandchild. I thought it would be fun for her to serve two siblings, one cousin and a big-tipper grandfather. John thought it would be fun to leave behind the biggest mess possible for his big sister to clean up.

It was Emily who worried that strangers would think I was an old fool for kissing a waitress hello. It was also Emily who refused my suggestion that she pretend to be my date for dinner, or at least my daughter. "You're too old to be anyone but my grandpa," she explained.

Onward and Upward, tottering.

Fire damages chimney

Elkland Township fireman spent about 3 hours Friday morning working on a "stubborn" chimney fire at the David J. Sturtevant residence, 3550 Cedar Run Rd.

Fire Chief Dick Root reported that firemen had some trouble reaching areas that were burning in the chimney, which probably will have to be replaced due to heat damage. He estimated the cost at about $1,200.

The 8:27 a.m. alarm was the first fire handled by the Elkland Department in more than 5 weeks. The last was a car fire Jan. 18.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire
(And anyone else he can get to help.)

John Maharg evidently has a good memory and it paid off for him recently.

Maharg had secured 2 coveted tickets to the National College Athletic Association regional basketball tournament at the Silverdome in Pontiac.

They arrived and he promptly lost them, but not before he memorized the section, row and seats that the 2 tickets reserved.

He called tourney authorities and (a minor miracle) they will issue him replacements without charge.

A bald eagle anywhere in Michigan is a rare occurrence. One in Tuscola County is nearly unheard of. Mike Otulakowski spotted a young bird in a remote area south-east of Cass City Feb. 24. The sighting was confirmed by an official of the Department of Natural Resources using a "spotting" scope belonging to Otulakowski.

The bird is less than 2 years old, Otulakowski says.

Another thing that the area is not noted for is cross-country ski trails.

But it should be, notes skiing aficionado Sandy House. She says that she has skied in some of the more publicized areas of the state and last week tried a trail through the woods at Cass City Recreational Park.

People just don't know what we have here, she gushed, and someone should tell them. So we did.

We don't know, but we'd like to make a small wager that the oldest former Big Ten wrestling champion that will be at a special celebration this week at the University of Michigan will be Dr. H.T. Donahue.

The celebration occurs every 10 years. It starts with the wrestling tournament Saturday afternoon and includes a brunch Sunday morning at Crisler Arena.

Sunday afternoon, Dr. Donahue will be in the parade of champions that leads Sunday's wrestling finalists onto the floor.

In our opinion, Dr. Donahue should be at the very head of the parade.

Tom Monaghan, the pizza king, reminds me of a kid in a candy store with a buck to blow and dying to spend it. It seems like every other month or so he comes up with another scheme based on using part of the zillion bucks he has.

The northern Michigan island party extravaganza, the $5 million antique cars, the leaning tower of pizza, the Detroit Tigers ownership and other escapades have been carefully documented by an alert public relations department and splashed before us in every available media.

Last week he struck again. He wants to build a ritzy residential area on 500 acres he owns near Ann Arbor. The plan is to sell 2-acre lots for around a quarter million dollars each. Big buck boys wouldn't balk at that I guess. But wait, there's more. When prospective purchasers plunk down the cash they aren't home free.

When they buy they must agree to use one of a list of 30 architects approved by Monaghan. That could cause a little difficulty. Persons with the kind of loot that this project requires aren't used to having someone telling them how and what to build.

Then, too, they might not want to become embroiled in the on-going dispute that the pizza king has going with his neighbors. Zoning approval for the proposed subdivision has not been received. A citizens' group has been formed to block any further expansion of Domino Pizza headquarters and a lawsuit has been filed charging that Domino's violated zoning regulations.

Knowing Monaghan's track record you can expect that when he builds, it will be bigger and better than anything around and announced in the press. It will take a year to plan the house and among the amenities will be a swimming pool, tennis courts, and 2 sets of garages, one for his antique classics and the other for his regular cars.

Even with all the problems it's possible that the subdivision could attract tenants. But I can't imagine them agreeing to another stipulation involved in the sale. New homeowners have to agree to hold their homes open for public tours. Evidently there is not enough publicity involved with just building the subdivision and showing off his home, Monaghan wants to bask in the limelight of reflected glory.

That's a little much, but Mr. Pizza doesn't care. He plans to go ahead even if he has a 500-acre front lawn.

He'll get plenty of ink over all of this even if he never sells a lot and, if it falls through eventually, he can take steps to keep us titillated.

Hold another party or buy another car or if worse comes to worst spend a few more bucks to help someone who has hardly enough to buy a pizza.

I'd enjoy reading about that.

"So you want to be a clown"

Lewis shares unique skills in Cass City

by Tom Montgomery
News Editor

It isn't difficult to find Dave Lewis' community education classroom Tuesday evenings at Cass City High School.

For 2 1/2 hours each week, the hallway adjacent to Lewis' class is alive with friendly, informal conversation, interrupted by occasional fits of infectious laughter. Passersby, drawn to the classroom door, peek inside to see a small group of adults making faces at themselves in a mirror and at one another.

Lewis, meanwhile, not only tolerates the behavior, he encourages it.

The class, entitled, "So you want to be a clown," is the first of its kind offered by Cass City Community Education.

Lewis, who refers to himself as a semi-professional clown, says he hopes the class will lead to additional classes on the topic, and possibly the creation of a Thumb-based group offering the services of various clowns for parties, banquets, parades and other activities.

Currently, there are 4 women and 3 men taking the 8-week class, which covers a wide variety of topics ranging from the history of clowning and learning the 3 basic clown types (whiteface, Aguste and tramp) to makeup application and individual and group skits.

"The secret to being a good clown is to know yourself. Where do you come from? What's your favorite color? Are you happy or sad?" Lewis, also known as Dusty D. Clown, remarked.

He pointed out that one of the hardest things for potential clowns is learning how not to act their age. "As adults, we generally don't go around wrapping toilet paper around ourselves," he added.

MORE TO IT

"I know most people have the same impression that I had on the first day of class—'Wow, you put on some makeup and shake hands.' But there's more to being a clown than that," he explained.

Clowns, Lewis' pupils learn, are neither male nor female, they're ageless and they don't eat or drink. They never use tricks or gimmicks that might embarrass or harass their audience, and they quickly back off from a person who obviously is scared of or dislikes clowns.

Lewis urges his students to take the time to learn how to make the most of their unique characteristics—facial expression, body language and appropriate makeup and dress—rather than rely on expensive or complicated tricks.

He emphasizes perfection of simplicity.

It's an attitude and style the 38-year-old Pigeon-area resident has found successful in his 6 years of clowning.

Lewis, attracted by the Thumb's "small town, Christian-centered community" atmosphere, moved to the area a little more than a year ago from Westland, a suburb of Detroit. Originally from Wisconsin, he lived in Kansas for 15 years before moving to Michigan.

Like his students, Lewis started out by taking a community education class. "I took the class because basically, I was a shy person," he remarked, adding that he later attended a Ringling Brothers workshop.

TRAMP

Lewis has since taught the art of clowning for 4 years in addition to entertaining and competing in his specialty as a tramp clown.

Two years ago he was ranked sixth as a tramp clown at a Clowns of America International convention. He also earned first place awards in that category and in skit competition at the Michigan State Fair in 1984, 85 and 86.

While in Detroit, Lewis was a member of the Classic Clowns, an organization tied to Clowns of America International, and Clowns of the Abbey, a Christian clowning group.

Lewis has used his talent as a clown to supplement his income through teaching, entertaining at parties, company picnics and other activities. He also donates his ability via visits to nursing homes, hospitals and teaching, and by serving in Special Olympics.

PRIORITY

"That's the number one priority—kids," he said. "Clowning with kids brings some special thrills you can get nowhere else. There's more of a sense of honesty and spontaneity."

That's something Lewis' students are learning.

"It's something that makes you feel good," one current student, a 35-year-old dental technician from Caro, remarked. "They (kids) give you so much back for the little you do," he added. "They open right up to you."

The student, who already performs as a clown and magician, added, "I want to become better. There's no excuse for not doing the best you can for somebody."

Another current pupil, a 43-year-old painter from Gagetown, remarked, "Dave's a very good instructor. He wants us to learn right, and he has no trouble getting my attention." He added, "If worse comes to worst, I'll run away to the circus."

Regardless of how far his students take their interest in clowning, Lewis says he tries to instill in them some of the principles that have helped him.

"My goal is to have fun and constantly improve my clowning ability. If I can get a child to smile and shake hands, hopefully I've made it easier for the next clown," he remarked.

VETERAN CLOWN Dave Lewis (alias Dusty D. Clown), Pigeon, shares a number of tricks of the trade with the students in his Cass City Community Education class, including the proper technique in using a finger-operated wilting flower.

CLOWN IN TRAINING -- One of Lewis' students, who asked that his name be kept confidential until he's decided on a clown name, experiments with various facial expressions and makeup.

Waste landfill, incinerator needed

A recent report by the Departments of Commerce and Natural Resources said a new hazardous waste landfill is needed as well as development of a hazardous waste incinerator that would benefit industry.

The "Hazardous Waste Management Capacity Needs Study" also concluded that hazardous waste treatment and recycling capacity is generally in strong supply in the state and that small companies require continued education on hazardous waste regulations.

DNR Director Gordon Guyer said the findings in no way alter the department's preference for the reduction, recycling and treatment of hazardous wastes over landfilling. "It is clear, however, that landfill space will continue to be needed to dispose of treatment residuals and wastes for which treatment options have not yet been developed," he said.

Commerce Director Doug Ross reiterated that facilities which treat and dispose of hazardous wastes are part of the infrastructure needed by business. He noted that interviews conducted for the study showed that access to safe waste management facilities at reasonable cost is a clear concern of the Michigan business community.

While the study concluded that additional hazardous waste facilities are needed, both men said Michigan is in good shape when compared to other states.

Under federal law, they noted, all states must certify by October, 1989, that they have capacity to manage all hazardous wastes generated within their borders over the next 20 years.

States which cannot make this certification will lose eligibility for federal Super-fund money to clean up contamination sites.

"Research conducted for the study puts us way ahead of most states in simply understanding what we must have in place," Guyer said.

The report stated that more than 5,200 Michigan businesses, government agencies and non-profit institutions generated approximately 3.9 million tons of hazardous waste in 1986.

The majority was managed at licensed facilities for treatment, recycling or disposal.

The state's lone commercial landfill is expected to reach capacity in 3 to 5 years, the report declared.

That facility presently accepts approximately 380,000 tons of hazardous waste per year. Waste requiring incineration at a commercial facility must be shipped out of state.

The study was conducted by the 2 state departments, under the guidance of an advisory board composed of environmental, industrial and state and local government representatives.

It compared waste generation in Michigan to available capacity at existing treatment, recycling and disposal facilities. The effects of regulatory changes and other factors influencing disposal practices were also analyzed as part of the study.

Drinking/driving, larceny

7 enter pleas in circuit court Friday

Five persons entered pleas to drinking and driving charges, while 2 others entered pleas to charges of larceny Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

A guilty plea to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third offense, by 33-year-old Gagetown resident David J. Seibel, 6803 N. Colwood Rd., was taken under advisement by the court. Bond was continued at $500. Sentencing is to be set.

The plea stems from an incident Dec. 24, 1987, in Elmwood Township, court records state. The offense carries a maximum sentence of 5 years and/or $5,000, and license revocation.

David J. Vandemark, 26, 1975 Cameron Rd., Caro, also pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third offense.

The court, which took Vandemark's plea under advisement, continued bond at $3,000. Sentencing is to be set.

The plea stems from an incident Oct. 25, 1987, in Columbia Township, according to court records.

John P. Spellerberg Jr., 6319 State Rd., Vassar, entered a plea of guilty to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third offense.

Sentencing for the offense, which took place June 7, 1987, in Tuscola Township, is to be set. Bond was continued at $5,000.

Millington resident Gary C. Gipson, 27, 2075 Swaffer Rd., entered a plea to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, second offense, Sept. 23, 1987, in Millington Township.

Sentencing is to be set. The maximum penalty for the offense is one year imprisonment and/or $1,000, and license revocation.

Ronald A. Driskell, 30, 1012 Turner Drive, Caro, stood mute to charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third or subsequent offense, and operating a motor vehicle while his license was suspended or revoked, second or subsequent offense.

A pre-trial was scheduled for Friday. A motion to reduce Driskell's $5,000 bond was denied.

The charges stem from an incident Feb. 10 in Caro, court records state.

Caro resident Hugh J. Cain, 18, pleaded guilty to larceny in a building.

Sentencing is to be set. Bond was continued at $4,000.

The plea stems from the Jan. 25 larceny of a number of items, including tools and a microwave oven, from a mechanics shop at 4702 Saginaw Rd., Vassar, court records state.

The offense carries a maximum penalty of 4 years imprisonment and/or $2,000.

Also pleading guilty to larceny in a building was Richard W. Miller, 25, Fostoria.

Sentencing is to be set. Bond was continued at $10,000.

Miller was involved in the larceny of video cassette recorder tapes from a house at 554 Sears St., Fostoria, July 23, 1987, court records state.

LaFave joins race

5 plan to seek clerk's job

Another candidate has announced that she will be seeking the Tuscola County Clerk's position being vacated by Elsie Hicks at the end of her current term. She is among 5 county residents who plan to run for the job, which begins Jan. 1, 1989.

Planning to file as a Republican candidate for the nomination is Donna LaFave of Elmwood Township. A resident of the county for 35 years, she has worked for Tuscola County for 15 years and has been the assistant friend of the court for 8 years.

She believes that her experience in the office can be an advantage to the taxpayers in the continued efficient operation of the clerk's office.

LaFave has been active in the Tuscola County Republican party and was the organizer of the fund raiser that resulted in the visit of Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole's visit to the county in 1986. She is a member of the county GOP executive committee.

A member of Sacred Heart Church, Caro, she and her husband, Paul, have 5 children, all of whom live in the area.

Only 2 of the 5 persons planning to run for the clerk's position have filed nominating petitions in the clerk's office.

Candidates who have filed are Erma Brown, Mayville, and Janet Allen of Caro. Pat Sauber of Caro, Fostoria resident Beth A. Knox and LaFave hadn't filed nominating petitions as of Monday.

All 5 plan to run on the Republican ticket.

Brown has served as deputy clerk for the past 5 years. She has worked in the office for 10 years, and feels her years of experience would be an asset to the position.

Brown and her husband, Harry, both county natives, have 4 children and 4 grandchildren.

Allen, meanwhile, also is a lifelong county resident. Currently she is branch manager of State Savings Bank of Caro, a position she has held for 3 years. She previously worked as a bank teller for 7 years.

The mother of 2 grown sons, Allen says that the management and problem solving skills required in her work would be "definite assets" in taking over the duties of county clerk.

She also cites 6 years of experience on the Akron-Fairgrove Board of Education.

Knox is currently employed as a paralegal in the law office of attorney George Holmes, Caro.

The county native and mother of 5 says she feels her background in law

YOUR EYES
Dr. R.R. WatsonSAVE YOUR VISION WEEK

The first week of March is the 61st Anniversary of SAVE YOUR VISION WEEK, a national event. A Presidential Proclamation each year reminds the nation that vision is a priceless gift to be protected by each of us.

Regular eye examinations are the best way to protect vision. These examinations often pick up the early stages of eye diseases like glaucoma or diabetic retinopathy, diseases that can be treated to prevent vision loss. Regular eye examinations can prevent visual handicaps from impeding your child's learning. A prescription for safety lenses can prevent eye injuries in the factory or on the farm.

If you or your loved ones haven't had a complete eye examination recently, make an appointment now. It is the best way to observe SAVE YOUR VISION WEEK.

physically damage a child's eyes, but it does put extra stress on them. That can lead to problems ranging from headaches to the development of nearsightedness, says the president of the Michigan Optometric Association.

"Many common study habits can strain the eyes. For instance, working at a desk in a dark room with only a desk light is not an example of good studying conditions," said Dr. Edward F. Stein in a Save Your Vision Week (March 6-12) message. "A child's homework area should have over-all room lighting plus desk lighting which is no more than 3 times brighter than the light in the rest of the room. A 100-watt, shaded bulb is usually sufficient for desk lighting."

The desk light should be placed a few feet from the book and should not cast shadows on the pages. Glare from windows should be reduced with drapes or shades. And the chair and desk should suit the child's size.

"The way a child holds a book is also important," Dr. Stein said. "The book should be held 12 to 16 inches from the face. The child should also take frequent breaks during long periods of concentration. Parents should discourage their children from studying in bed or while lying on other furniture or on the floor."

And if the child works at a computer, overall room lighting should be reduced and the computer screen adjusted to 3 or 4 times the brightness of the room. Reference material should be placed as close to the screen as possible to avoid frequent head and eye movements.

"Most importantly, the child should have a thorough eye examination once a year to determine that he or she has all the vision skills needed for learning," Dr. Stein said.

THINK FAST, MR. PETERS by Stuart Kaminsky (mystery). Toby Peters, private eye, shares office space with dangerously inept dentist Sheldon Minck. Sheldon, distraught, announces that his wife Mildred has run off with actor Peter Lorre, so the tough but soft-hearted detective agrees to search for her. Toby is shrewd and fast working and soon discovers that Mildred's paramour is a Peter Lorre imitator called Sidney Kindem (alias Pete R. Lowry), now filming a "B" thriller on the roof of Eskian's hardware store. As Toby watches the filming, Sidney is shot and killed with Toby's own gun, the first of a series of Peter Lorre imitators to be shot or intimidated. Toby calls and barely escapes a murder attempt. He enlists the aid of the real Peter Lorre to find the busy perpetrator.

FAMILY BUSINESS by Anna Murdoch (fiction). When Jock McLean and his shady partner realize they aren't going to hit it big in the Colorado silver boom of the 1920's, they sell their worthless mining stock in exchange for stock in a small newspaper. Following Jock at its helm is his son James, and bearing closely on the heels of her father and grandfather is young Yarrow McLean, whose single-minded bid to run the paper is only briefly sidetracked by an unhappy wartime marriage. Eventually, Yarrow's grit and determination win her ownership of the New York Telegraph, an enterprise besieged by tough unions. With occasional aid from her long-time lover Elliot, a dealmaker of equal drive, she persists in her attempt to build a news empire, only to find as she reaches its pinnacle that the seeds of divisiveness that her own ambition has sown within the family threaten to ruin all of their lives.

THE PALACE by Paul Erdman (fiction). Danny Lehman may be plump, unlettered and without class, but (in addition to being mysteriously attractive to women) he knows what life is all about, or thinks he does. The crucial component is money, and Danny proves he has the skills to acquire it in vast amounts. From owning a modest coin shop he goes to bullion trading, to fencing the skim-offs from a Las Vegas casino, to owning the casino himself, to making it a dazzling success (after picking up a few tips from Europe). Eventually, he becomes the first to cash in on the gambling potential of Atlantic City. As if to the manner born, Danny dances through the minefield laid for him by the FBI, the mob and his own associates, and is not averse to arranging a rub-out or two on the way.

Your neighbor says

He's no better than Jim Bakker

The rise and fall of yet another, and even more well known, television evangelist has come and gone in the national headlines, but opinion on the topic hasn't dwindled.

Just when the controversy surrounding sexual accusations against Assembly of God minister Jim Bakker had subsided, evangelist Jimmy Swaggart, 52, also an Assembly of God minister, admitted to moral failure.

Swaggart, the president of a ministry with an estimated 1986 income of $142 million that broadcasts to 143 countries, recently was faced with accusations that he was seen entering a motel room with a prostitute.

News accounts indicate Swaggart confessed and has accepted the penalty for his actions, including being barred from his ministry for a period of time.

Your neighbor, Cass City native Ruby Sherman, says she believes Swaggart "had to get caught before he confessed. My opinion is that he's no better than Jim Bakker."

"The problem with Swaggart is that he jumped all over Jim Bakker. He's such a hypocrite," the 24-year-old remarked.

"It sure makes a poor reflection on the other churches whether they're a TV ministry or not," she continued, adding that money seems to be a major motive in the actions of many television evangelists.

Sherman, a 1982 Cass City High School graduate, resides in Cass City. She is a case manager for the Tuscola County Big Brothers/Big Sisters organization.

Minor damage reported in area vehicle mishaps

Minor damage was sustained by vehicles involved in 4 area vehicle accidents over the past 9 days, Cass

City police reported Monday.

A vehicle driven by a 16-year-old Deford youth struck a parked vehicle in the Charmont parking lot Saturday evening.

Reports state that the youth was southbound on Comment Drive at 9:10 p.m. when he turned east into a parking space and hit a vehicle owned by David W. Albrecht, 465 Wheeler Rd., Snover.

Man arraigned on negligent homicide charge

An 18-year-old Millington man was arraigned on a charge of negligent homicide Monday in Tuscola County District Court.

A preliminary examination for Dale S. Workman, 8996 S. State Rd., was scheduled for 1:30 p.m. March 8. Bond was set at $5,000.

Workman is charged with being the driver of a vehicle involved in an accident July 9 in Tuscola Township that resulted in the death of Kenneth E. Grover.

The offense carries a maximum penalty of 2 years imprisonment and/or $2,000.

In another 2-vehicle mishap, on Weaver Street north of Main Street Feb. 24, a vehicle driven by John W. Partaka, 5246 Downing Rd., Decker, backed into a vehicle driven by Carl J. Labish, 3075 Lamton Rd., Decker.

Police stated that both men were northbound and had stopped at a stop sign when Partaka's vehicle pulled out into the roadway and stalled. Partaka, who re-started his vehicle and backed up to get out of the path of a westbound vehicle, said he was unable to avoid striking Labish's vehicle.

David A. Mills, 5862 Kelly Rd., Cass City, was driving south on Cemetery Road north of Elmwood Road Feb. 22 when his vehicle struck a deer. Mills struck another deer 2 days later while driving north on Cemetery Road south of Severance Road, according to Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies.

Also reporting a car-deer mishap was Randall H. Gilliam, 6395 W. Shabbona Rd., Decker, who was traveling on Cemetery Road south of Shabbona Road when his vehicle hit a deer at 9:30 a.m. Feb. 24.

The featured instrumental soloist will be 21-year-old Amy Klosterman, winner of the Irene Tintner Award for outstanding young pianists, who will play the Mendelssohn G-Minor Piano Concerto with the Germania Symphony.

All Germania concerts are open to the public. Tickets are available at the Germania, music stores and at the door.

Area pupils compete in band fest

Nine Cass City High School band students have qualified to compete in the 1988 Michigan Solo and Ensemble Festival, slated for March 26 at the University of Michigan, Flint.

The students are among 17 Cass City musicians who competed in the Michigan State Band and Orchestra Association's District Solo and Ensemble Feb. 20 in Caro.

In that competition, Cass City received Division I ratings (the highest possible mark) for a clarinet duet and trio, and flute, trombone and snare drum solos. Students who receive Division I ratings advance to the state level competition.

Also, Division II ratings were awarded for 2 clarinet duets, 2 flute duets, a flute-clarinet duet and a clarinet solo. Flute and piano solos, meanwhile, netted 2 Division III ratings.

Group blasts anhydrous ammonia reclassification

If the U.S. Department of Transportation has its way, farmers won't be able to secure their favorite nitrogen fertilizer unless they've got a branch line railroad and railroad siding on their farms, according to Al Almy, director of public affairs for the Michigan Farm Bureau.

"If anhydrous ammonia is reclassified as a poisonous gas, it would not be legal to move it by truck over public highways, and it is public highways that farmers are dependent upon to move production inputs to their farms," Almy said. "The only way anhydrous ammonia could be legally moved would be by rail, and how many farmers have branch line railroads and railroad siding on their farms?"

Almy said prohibiting the movement of anhydrous ammonia on public roads would effectively stop all farm uses of it as a nitrogen fertilizer.

In a letter of opposition to the DOT, Michigan Farm Bureau President Jack Laurie said reclassification of anhydrous ammonia as a poisonous gas would impact on agribusinesses and rural communities as well as on farmers.

"The agribusiness infrastructure which produces and distributes anhydrous ammonia would be adversely affected. The substantial investments in anhydrous ammonia equipment would quickly be transformed into red ink from which some could not recover. Unemployment in rural areas would increase," Laurie said.

Laurie also told the DOT that reclassifying anhydrous ammonia as a poisonous gas would do nothing to improve the farm safety record.

"Farmers are very much aware that handling of anhydrous ammonia requires strict adherence to safety procedures. It is not uncommon for farmers to use protective clothing and recommended safety procedures. We believe the overall safety record is excellent," he said.

Bulldogs defend NCTL crown, expect long tournament trail

The Owen-Gage volleyball team, with the North Central D league title safely tucked away following impressive victories in straight games over Kingston Monday, Feb. 22, and Akron-Fairgrove Tuesday, Feb. 23, appear ready to make a strong showing in the Michigan High School Athletic tournament that is scheduled to start Saturday.

Certainly on the record the Bulldogs will be favored in the districts. For the season the potent spikers are 26-7 and in the league boast an unblemished 7-0 record. The Bulldogs ran past Kingston 15-9, 15-8 and 15-8. Marcia Draschil served 8 aces, had 7 kill sets and 21 assists. Angie Bolzman was credited with 3 aces. Andrea Mandich recorded 9 kill sets and 17 assists. Jane Billy drove home 19 kill spikes and 5 good tips while Susie Salcido chipped in 11 kill spikes and 2 kill tips.

Owen-Gage started strong against A-F with a 15-3 victory and then followed it with another one-sided win, 15-2, and rounded out the evening with a 15-6 decision in the third game.

Salcido showed the way with 12 kill spikes and 8 good spikes to go with 4 kill tips. Draschil registered 3 aces among 11 good serves and was responsible for 5 kill sets. Mandich chalked up 4 kills among her 11 sets.

WESLEYAN GAME
In a nonleague encounter

the Bulldogs rolled by North Branch Wesleyan in straight games.

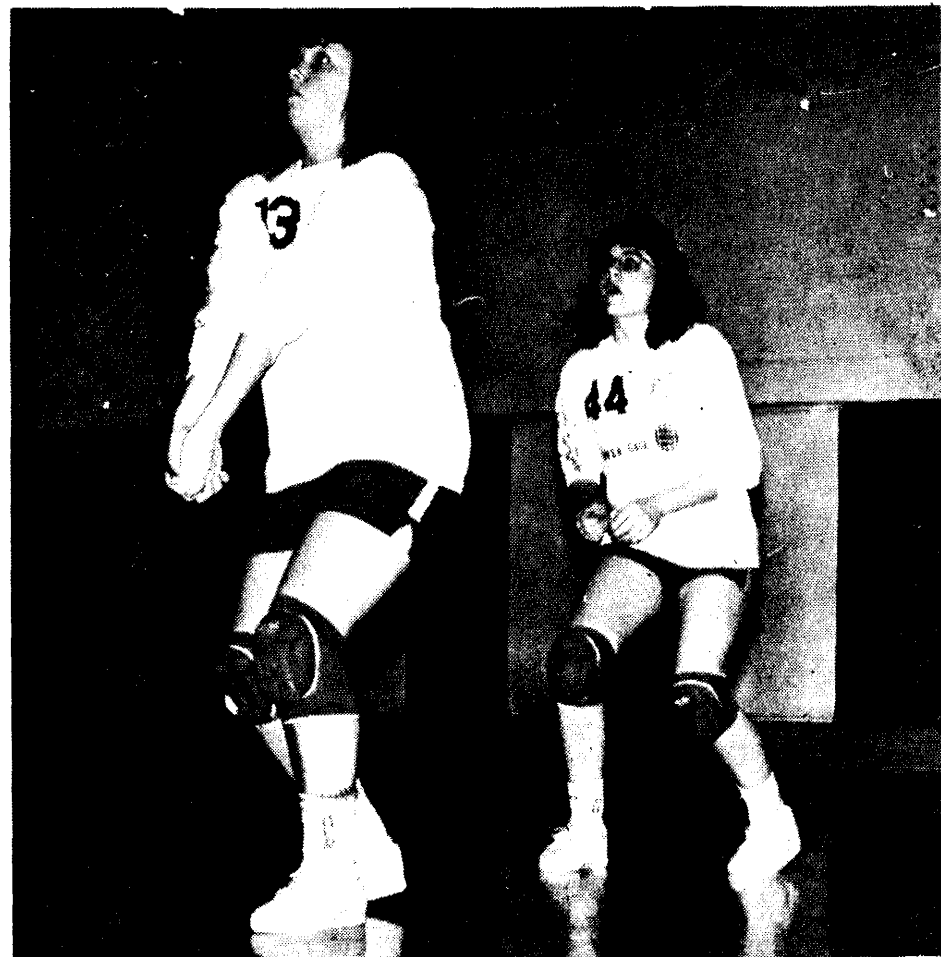

The first game was a relatively easy victory, 15-9, but the Eagles took the Bulldogs into overtime before bowing 16-14 in the second game. Perhaps stung by the close call in the second game, the O-G spikers put their game in high gear and applied the whitewash to their hosts, 15-0.

Salcido, with 4 aces and 10 good serves, and Billy, with 3 aces and 9 good serves, showed the way.

Billy also had 14 kill spikes and 5 kill tips while Salcido had 14 kill spikes among 19 good spikes and 3 kill tips.

Setting up their teammates were Bolzman with 5 kill sets and 18 good sets; Draschil with 2 kills among 13 sets, and Mandich with 2 kills among 11 assist sets. Salcido also had 4 kill blocks.

The Owen-Gage junior varsity also won each of the 3 meets. The JV defeated Wesleyan 15-2, 15-17 and 15-3. Kingston fell 15-9, 10-15 and 15-6 while A-F was victimized 15-4, 15-10 and 13-15.

SHIRLEY ASHMORE, left, and Hiella Nowaczyk prepare to receive a serve from Akron-Fairgrove. Owen-Gage won in straight games to preserve its undefeated record in North Central D League competition.

Season keeps getting longer in rebuilding Bulldog year

It's been a long season for the Owen-Gage Bulldogs, one in which the wins have been hard to come by, and it's not expected to be any easier this Friday in the last game of the season when Akron-Fairgrove comes to town.

The Bulldogs have won just twice this season following a pair of losses to league leading Deckerville, 72-36, Thursday and to North Branch Wesleyan, 58-46, Friday.

While the loss to Decker-ville was just a case of too much firepower for the Bulldogs to contend with, the loss to Wesleyan was typical of the way the year has gone for Coach Dean Roller.

The Bulldogs and the Eagles had matched baskets all through the game. It was 12-12 at the end of the first quarter and 16-16 at the intermission. In the third period Owen-Gage pulled in front by 3 points, 38-35, and things looked bright for O-G. The 2 teams battled neck and neck until the final 2 1/2 minutes when Gary Spaulding unleashed a shooting barrage that would have done Larry Bird proud. He sank 4 3-pointers in a row to break a 46-46 tie and ice the game for the Eagles. For the night he scored 6 field goals and all were for 3 points each.

Compounding the problem for the Bulldogs was a dismal performance from the free throw line. At crunch time, O-G missed 7 straight foul shot attempts and with the game on the line, the Eagles outscored the Bulldogs, 19-2.

The Eagles were led by Carl Coldwell with 25 points and Swadling with 21. O-G had 3 players in double figures. Chad Stirrett had 14, Marc Reinhardt, 19, and Chris Abbe, 10.

DECKERVILLE GAME

For all practical purposes the game was decided in the first quarter as the potent Deckerville

Eagles chalked up a 16-2 first quarter lead and then coasted in for the victory to keep their North Central D League record unblemished.

The Bulldogs were ice cold in the first quarter and when they missed, the Eagles' big rebounders, Rodney Tanton and Richard Barker, swept the boards clean.

Although Deckerville outscored Owen-Gage in every quarter, it was the first and third period totals that turned the game into a one-sided affair. After the horrendous first period, the Bulldogs were outscored 17-11 in the second quarter and trailed 33-13 at the intermission.

In the third period the O-G offense stalled again and Deckerville just kept rolling along. At the end of 3 quarters it was 50-18 and all that was left was mop-up in the final quarter. Chris Abbe was the only Bulldog in double figures, with 13 points. Tanton, 15, Barker, 14, and J. Vanharmer, 12, paced the winners.

In the first round the Hawks defeated Armada, 57-12. Wrestling particularly well for Cass City were senior co-captains Barry Brown and Mike Mikolon. New Lothrop advances to the quarter finals.

Sontag burns nets for 28 but Hawks fall in 3 overtimes

When streak shooter Jeff "Sonny" Sontag is on, there's no better shooter in the Thumb and he was on Friday night against league leading Vassar. His 3-point shot as the game was ending kept the Hawks from defeat in regulation play, and his 3-point efforts in each of the first 2 overtime periods tied the score as time was running out. Unfortunately, the senior guard was on the bench during the final minute of the third overtime and Cass City's chance of defeating the potent Vulcans for the second time this season went glimmering, 74-69.

Coach Ron Nurnberger unveiled a match-up zone defense for the league leaders and it worked well in stopping the Vulcans' best point producers, Mike Gohsman and Steve Gleeson. But 6-4 Tom Morley stepped into the gap for the Vulcans and scored 29, including 13 of 17 from the free throw line.

The Vulcans' ability from the charity stripe was a key factor in the game, especially in the crucial overtime periods. Morley made 7 of 10 attempts in the 3 overtimes and the Vulcans made 11 of 17. Cass City went to the line 8 times in the overtime periods and converted just 2.

In a close game there are always plays that are critical. For the Hawks the play that was devastating came in the 4th period with Cass City trailing with 2:23 left in the game. Sontag had broken clear for what appeared to be a lay-up when a Vulcan defender accidentally stepped on his heel. The play was missed by the referee and Vassar took the ball and quickly scored while Sontag was screaming at the official about the foul.

The Vulcans kept that lead until the final 2 seconds when Sontag ripped in a 20-footer from the top of the key. Cass City took a brief lead in the opening minutes of the first overtime on a bucket by Jeff Dillon. Some pressure defense by Gohsman resulted in a turnover and Morley sank 2 free throws and Troy Amend did likewise to pull Vassar back in the lead. Cass City missed a short shot and Morley sank one of 2 free shots to give Vassar a 3-point lead.

Cass City remained alive when Sontag shot with a Vulcan defender all over him and hit nothing but net to put the game into the second overtime.

That scene was repeated at the end of the next 3-minute period when he banked one in off the boards to tie the game again.

It was a rough game. Sontag, Mike Randall and Greg Hanby all were benched with 5 fouls before the game ended. Gohsman fouled out for Vassar.

Sontag, with 5 of 8 3-pointers and 6 of 7 2-pointers, led Cass City with 28 points and Paul Tuckey added 21. Gohsman, with 13, and Derrick Davis, with 12, were other leading Vulcan scorers.

JV BOWS

The Cass City junior varsity couldn't stay with the Vulcans on the boards and bowed 59-48.

Hawks stop Mayville star in crunch time for win

As Mayville's Duncan Thornton goes, so go the Wildcats, and last Tuesday night at Cass City the 5-9 senior guard was going all night except for the final 2 minutes and that momentary lapse enabled Cass City to sneak off with a 70-67 decision.

Coach Ron Nurnberger was satisfied with the Hawk offense against the Wildcats but lamented the lack of consistent defense. If we could play tough defense all game long, he says, we could be a very good team.

It was a game of streaks with first Cass City, then Mayville pulling into short-lived leads. The Hawks jumped off to a 9-4 advantage in the opening 4 minutes, but Mike Randall picked up 2 quick fouls and went to the bench. Thornton then opened up with the first of his point-barrages that netted 2 quick buckets on jumpers from around the key and a 3-pointer at the buzzer to move Mayville to within 2 points at the end of the period, 15-13.

In the opening minutes of the second period it appeared as if Cass City had control, displaying some pretty basketball to out-score Mayville, 15-4. Thornton took control again for the Wildcats, scoring 13 points to close the gap and push his team in front 38-36 at the intermission.

The third period was more of the same as the lead see-sawed back and forth with the Wildcats notching a 6-point lead only to fall back as Paul Tuckey scored 10 of his team-high 28 points to shove Cass City in front, 58-52, going into the final 8 minutes.

The Wildcats never again forged into the lead, but challenged for the win right down to the final 15 seconds.

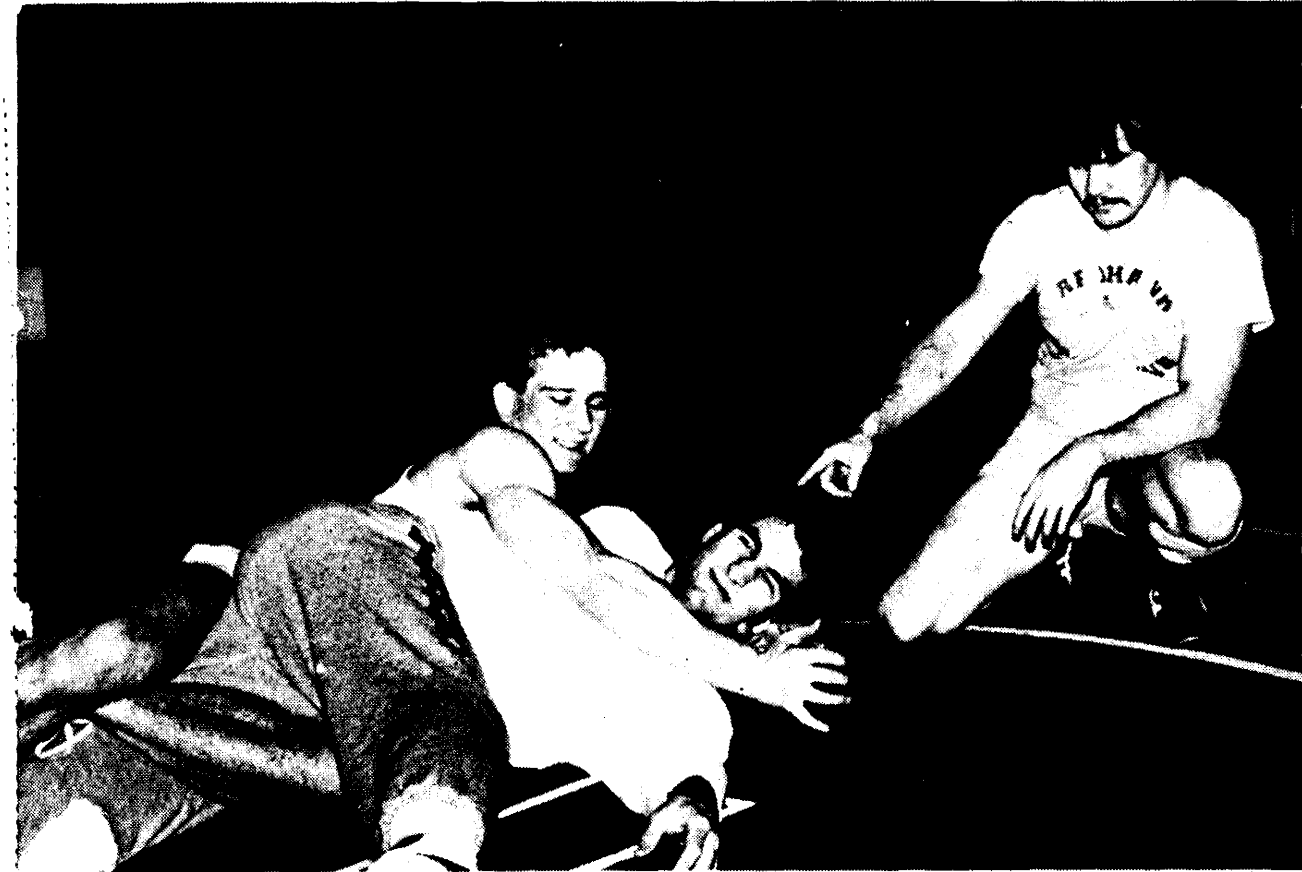

Cass City led 69-67 with 32 seconds left and had the ball. Thornton took one of his patented jumpers, the same shot that he had been burning Cass City with all night, but it missed. The visitors got one more shot at pulling out the game with 15 seconds left but again a Thornton bomb misfired and the Hawks had registered a victory over a team that will be in the same district tournament next week.

Besides Tuckey, Randall, 11 points, and Jeff Sontag, 10, were in double figures. Aaron Graham notched 13 for the Wildcats.

JEFF "SONNY" SONTAG drives for the bucket against Mayville. Defending for Mayville are Keith Brooks and Aaron Graham

WRESTLING COACH Don Markel instructs Mike Mikolon on proper positioning as he practices with teammate (bottom) Chuck Merchant.

Hawk wrestling star Mikolon says football is first love

Blaring from the radio is music by Bob Seger. There's laughter. Some guys are dressed in sweats while others are outfitted in ragged gym clothes. None of their attire matches. Sounds like a pajama party, right?

Wrong, it's wrestling practice.

And it's where Cass City wrestler Mike Mikolon has established himself as one of the best 155-lb. grapplers in the state.

Third year Coach Don Markel says Mikolon is probably the best wrestler he has ever been associated with.

"Mike is strong headed, but you almost have to be a this sport," said Markel who coached for 2 years at Marine City before taking charge of the Cass City program where he is enjoying his best season ever.

And Mikolon, who co-captains along with Barry Brown, is one of the big reasons for the success.

The confident, but not cocky, senior has a long list of accomplishments. Before regional competition, Mikolon boasted a 34-2 record with 30 of his victories coming with pins. He leads the team with 197 points scored.

Mikolon, who is not afraid to speak his mind, has also finished first in 6 tournaments this season and was runner-up in 2 others. He has been the best in the Thumb B for the last 2 seasons.

But his wrestling career has not always been so spectacular.

"I've been wrestling since 7th grade, but really didn't accomplish much until my junior year," said Mikolon when he finished 8th in the state.

The 4 year letter winner, who also co-captained the football team, says the best part of wrestling is not the publicity, not the recognition of his talents, but simply "just being with the guys."

Mike's fondest memory is also one of his most recent. It came a couple of weeks ago when he pinned Chad Daggy of DeWitt in state tournament play. Daggy was rated number 3 in the state at that time.

On the flip side of Mikolon's wrestling career, his biggest disappointment had to be at this year's regional competition where his individual season ended abruptly due to a severe neck injury. The Hawk grappler was well on his way to a first place finish until he was taken to the hospital for X-rays.

And although his Cass City wrestling career has drawn to a conclusion, the stubborn blond plans to pursue wrestling after graduation.

"I'll try out for the all-army team and then maybe the Olympics," said Mikolon.

Mikolon, surprisingly, favors football over wrestling despite all the success wrestling has brought him. I do like the self-pride that you obtain from competing one on one, he said.

Mike is the son of Fred and June Mikolon.

Deer involved in 4 out of 5 vehicle mishaps

There were no injuries in 5 recent vehicles mishaps--4 of them involving deer--in the Cass City area, according to reports filed at the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

A Kingston man was cited following a 2-vehicle crash on Kingston Road near Chapin Road in Kingston Township Thursday morning.

Reports state that a northbound vehicle driven by Diane L. Adamczyk, 2820 Froede Rd., Kingston, was attempting to pass another northbound vehicle, driven by William I. Kincaid, 3300 Phillips Rd., when Kincaid's vehicle turned left into Adamczyk's vehicle.

Kincaid stopped momentarily and then left without identifying himself, deputies said.

Kincaid was cited for failing to stop and identify, and driving with improper plates and no proof of insurance.

Also last week, several car-deer accidents involving minor damage were reported.

Kingston resident Gail A. Cook, 5355 Shay Lake Rd., was driving east on Shay Lake Road east of English Road in Koylton Township when her vehicle struck a deer Thursday at about 6:30 p.m.

Scott C. Kelly, 6632 Houghton St., Cass City, was driving south on Cemetery Road south of DeLong Road in Novesta Township when his vehicle hit a deer at about 7:15 p.m. Thursday.

A vehicle driven by Joel A. Monteil, 7485 E. Sanilac Rd., Kingston, struck a deer while traveling south on Kingston Road north of Gilford Road Friday in Novesta Township. The mishap occurred at about 8:15 p.m.

Cass City resident David A. Mills, 5861 W. Kelly Rd., was driving north on Cemetery Road south of Severance Road in Novesta Township at 7 p.m. Feb. 24 when his vehicle hit a deer.

Jack Laurie lauds stand on diesel tax

Senator Don Riegle and Representatives Bill Schutte, Fred Upton, Carl Pursell, Bob Carr, and Howard Wolpe were saluted by Michigan Farm Bureau President Jack Laurie for co-sponsoring legislation that would exempt farmers from having to pay excise tax when they purchase diesel fuel and then file for a refund.

"It is gratifying that we have representatives in Washington, D.C., who recognize the folly of collecting the 15¢ per gallon tax on diesel fuel from farmers and then send them a refund when they request it," Laurie said. "Farmers have never had to pay the excise tax on diesel fuel used in farm equipment because the tax is designed to pay for highway construction."

When Congress passed the recent budget reconciliation bill, they changed the way the fuel excise tax will be collected beginning April 1. Previously, the tax was collected at the retail level and the new law shifts it to the wholesale level.

"The change for farmers is that now, they will have to pay the tax, then request a refund. Technically, farmers will still be exempt from the tax, but under the new law, they'll have to pay the tax at the time of purchase, which will increase their upfront costs of production and create cash flow problems," Laurie said.

Farm Bureau has estimated that the U.S. Treasury Department would be getting in about $420 million in annual collections from farmers' diesel fuel purchases.

"Because of the added costs and the increased paperwork burden and the small amount involved for some farmers, many producers might not even file for the refund. This would provide a windfall for the U.S. Treasury," Laurie said. "When you consider the time and expense on the part of farmers and the federal employees involved in getting the refunds back to the farmers, it just doesn't make good economic sense," Laurie said. "We're thankful that a growing number of representatives have come to that same conclusion. They realize that farmers need their money a lot more than the federal government does."
