School boards nix request for Brinkman land transfer

by Tom Montgomery
News Editor

An area couple's fight to allow their children to continue attending school in the Owen-Gage district is expected to be taken to the State Board of Education following rejection of their request for a property transfer.

A request by James and Jeanne Brinkman to transfer about 2 acres from the Cass City School District to the Owen-Gage School District was denied Monday night on a vote of 5-4 by the Tuscola and Huron Intermediate School boards.

The vote followed a 45-minute public hearing on the matter, held at Gagetown Elementary School and attended by both the Owen-Gage and Cass City boards of education.

The Brinkmans' 2 children—one in kindergarten and the other in fourth grade—through an oversight have always attended Owen-Gage even though they live in the Cass City School District.

During Monday's hearing, Huron Intermediate School Supt. F. James McBride described the location of the property, at 6095 Richie Rd., which has a total state equalized valuation of $18,200.

He pointed out that transferring the property would create an "island" situation, with parcels in the Cass City School District being surrounded by property in the Owen-Gage District. Although the board prefers not to create such islands, he remarked, the transfer would be possible as the couple has agreed to allow access to land belonging to the Cass City district.

REASONS

McBride read the Brinkmans' petition, which listed the reasons for their request. They noted that both children had always attended at Owen-Gage; that Jeanne is a teacher's aide at Gagetown Elementary, which is convenient in terms of transportation and home supervision in the spring and fall (James is a farmer), and that the children would have to walk 3/4 of a mile to catch a bus to attend school in Cass City.

They also pointed out that a request to allow their children to continue attending Owen-Gage through graduation was denied by the Cass City School Board Jan. 18.

The board at that time did vote to allow the children to continue at Owen-Gage for the remainder of the year, with a review to be conducted before the next school year.

James Brinkman acknowledged Monday that he knew his property was in the Cass City district when he bought it in May 1981, but pointed out that nothing was said about his children attending Gagetown Elementary until this year.

"I think you'll find students going to both schools without permission" from the school boards, Owen-Gage Trustee Jack Brinkman stated.

Brinkman is the father of James Brinkman. Cass City School Supt. Kenneth Micklash agreed, but added, "We're attempting to take care of these situations."

DISTANCE

Micklash pointed out that the distance the Brinkman children would have to walk to reach a bus to Cass City could be adjusted in future bus routes, which change from year to year.

School officials at the meeting indicated, following discussion, that the Brinkmans' oldest child might be allowed to remain in the Owen-Gage district because his attendance may have started before state law required students to attend school in their own district unless permission to transfer is received from the home district.

Huron ISD Board member Fred Fortsch made a motion stating that board members in favor of the transfer request would cast "yes" votes, while those against the request would cast "no" votes. He withdrew the motion, however, when Tuscola ISD Board member James Welke argued that Fortsch had not made a true motion.

Welke then made a motion to deny the transfer because the Brinkmans were aware their property was in the Cass City district when they purchased it, and because of concern that "islands" would be created by approving the request.

ROLL CALL VOTE

Casting "yes" votes were Tuscola ISD Board members Welke, Theresa Streeter, James Ewald and Arnold Krumnauer, and Fortsch. The motion was rejected by Huron ISD Board members Janice Holz, Edward Schubring, Clarence Braun and Wilfred Binder.

Ewald commented that his "yes" vote was based in part on Cass City/Owen-Gage boundary problems, which he said should be handled by the 2 school districts.

Binder remarked, "We're more interested in children than boundary lines."

The Brinkmans, who have 10 days in which to file an appeal to the State Board of Education, indicated they probably will appeal the local boards' decision.

"I think some of the decisions are clouded by past" differences between the school districts, Jeanne Brinkman remarked after the meeting. "I think they're trying to set a precedent."

Allowing the Brinkman children to remain in the Owen-Gage district "just works out best in our case," James Brinkman said, adding that the request was not meant to reflect poorly on the Cass City district.

"It's too bad somebody sits up here, and they know what's best for my kids. I just don't understand that," he added.

Area boards of review to hear tax complaints Mar. 14-15

Area residents who believe their property tax assessment is too high can do something about it by contacting their local assessor.

When an assessment error is clearly pointed out, most assessors are willing to adjust an appraisal without requiring any formal appeal process. If a matter can't be resolved through that avenue, however, the next step is to file an appeal with a local board of review.

Area boards of review are set to meet Monday and Tuesday.

According to officials of the Michigan Consumers Council, persons planning to make an appeal should prepare by checking their records at the local assessor's office, which, by law, must furnish the forms necessary to present an appeal.

Persons should make sure that recorded dimensions of the house and lot in question are accurate; that portions of the house, such as unfinished attics and basements have not been misrepresented in the description, and that the appraisal worksheet did not miss defects that would reduce the house's value.

Because a successful appeal must be based on the validity of the tax assessment in question, persons making an appeal must be able to show that the assessors' judgement of the value of the property was in error.

The assessment process, which determines the true cash value ("usual selling price") of property for the purpose of calculating property taxes, involves some judgement and uncertainty, so mistakes do occur.

For example, the assessor may have valued a home way above the actual market value, the valuation may be above that of identical or similar houses in the area or there may have been inaccuracies in the structural appraisal on the house. It's possible that there may have been an error in the computation of the assessment.

An individual tax bill is computed by multiplying the state equalized valuation (SEV) times the local tax rate. The SEV is supposed to be equal to 50 percent of a property's true cash value.

The tax rate is often referred to as the millage because it's expressed in mills. A one-mill tax is equal to $1 for every $1,000 of SEV to which it applies. If a property is assessed and equalized at $10,000 and

Committee forms to push for approval of county tax

A committee composed of Tuscola County officials, citizens, businessmen and others is leading an effort to get a county-wide millage proposal approved by voters April 5.

The group, "Citizens for Better Government," was formed about a month ago and is well organized, with more than 20 persons serving on finance, publicity, telephone and target group subcommittees.

According to the group's chairman, life-long Arbel Township resident LeRoy Clark, the committee is gearing up to inform citizens via literature, advertising and telephone calls about why the millage—an additional 1.5 mills for 4 years—is needed.

"Our road patrol is involved, our health services are involved, our senior services are involved... this has a whole community involved," Clark, an Arbel Township trustee and chairman of the Human Development Commission Board, remarked.

"The purpose, as I see it, is to inform people on what this millage covers, what services we are trying to keep and what the millage will cost."

Aside from elimination of some $500,000 annually in federal revenue sharing monies, the State Equalized Value in Tuscola County has dropped approximately 22 percent,

Clark explained. "Decreasing property values affect all of us," the General Motors employee said, adding, "To maintain services, we must vote yes on the county's proposed millage. After all, would you move to a community that could not afford police protection, could not maintain their agricultural systems or could not maintain services?"

TOP OF THE LIST

County commissioners in recent months have indicated that the sheriff's 24-hour road patrol is at the top of the list for cuts if the millage request is rejected.

The combined road patrol and secondary road patrol cost nearly $700,000 annually.

Other nonmandated services that could be affected include health and senior services, cooperative extension, veterans counseling, animal control, substance abuse programs, soil conservation, economic development, mental health, planning commission, alcohol enforcement, marine safety and county parks.

Clark pointed out that with land values decreasing, the millage might cost less than some residents think.

"For the average homeowner, the cost will be $2.50 a month," he said, adding that the additional millage means paying $1.50 for every $1,000 of SEV to which it applies.

Clark noted that the county's operational millage hasn't been increased in some 23 years.

ALL LOSE

"Without a positive vote April 5, many more county services may be cut, which means eventually a poorer county with land values decreasing; therefore, we all lose in the long run," he said.

According to Clark, the committee, which has received about $350 in contributions from private citizens, hopes to raise a total of $1,500 to cover its campaign. Please turn to page 12

Few contests slated in village election Monday

Area village officials are expecting light turnouts in village elections slated for Monday, when races for trustee seats on 2 of 5 area village councils will be decided.

Two incumbents and 2 newcomers are vying for 3 trustee seats on the Kingston Village Council, while 6 persons, including 2 incumbents, are running for 3 trustee positions on the Uby Village Council.

No races are slated in Cass City, Gagetown and Owendale, but new faces will be seen on 2 of the councils as 2 incumbent trustees have decided not to seek re-election.

Registered voters can cast ballots at their respective election sites from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday.

CASS CITY

Barring write-in candidates, all members of the current Cass City Village Council, with the exception of one trustee, will return for another term. Newcomer Matthew G. Prieskorn will fill the trustee spot now held by Lynda McIntosh, who decided not to run again.

Trustees will be elected to 4-year terms, while officers will serve for 2 years.

GAGETOWN

In Gagetown, 3 trustees, including newcomer Sharon Wood, will be elected to trustee seats. Wood will replace Trustee LeRoy Stapleton, who decided not to seek re-election. The trustees will serve 4-year terms.

OWENDALE

All 3 incumbent trustees, as well as officers, are running unopposed for 2-year terms on the Owendale Village Council.

Newcomer William Putman, who was seeking to unseat one of the incumbent trustees, was defeated in Please turn to page 12

Shockers and thrillers

By Melva E. Guinther

In a strange place far from home, people will do things under cover of anonymity that they would never do in more familiar surroundings.

My deviant deed was perpetrated in a supermarket in Concord, Calif. I broke down and bought one of those tabloids that line the checkout counters.

After scanning the headlines while waiting in line over the years, I find it amazing that the publishers can continue to come up with anything shocking or sensational.

Clandestine affairs and infidelity are, after all, pretty tame stuff in our desensitized society. Celebrity gossip has become prosaic.

So what new avenues can be exploited to titillate avid readers? UFO encounters can't do it alone.

Among the stories in my issue is "REINCARNATION SHOCKER! My dead wife came back — as a goose!"

It tells of a 72-year-old widower in Arizona who swears his wife inhabits the bird who visited him daily in a park near his home. He's mourning her loss anew because park officials got rid of the goose and won't tell him where she is.

Another thriller is entitled "Corpse explodes in casket."

If the allegations in this story are true, a funeral home in Texas is in serious trouble. We won't go into the grisly details in case you're reading at dinner time.

An "Incredible new medical discovery" in the rag announces that "SNEEZING INCREASES YOUR BUST SIZE. Can't you see eager adolescents racing for the pepper?

Some of the tales recorded are downright sick. A miner in India allegedly peeled the skin off his legs to make sandals for the Hindu goddess of wealth, then hitchhiked 1000 miles to present them.

A family in Illinois bathed, dressed and caressed the mummified body of a husband and father who had been dead for 8 years, and a legless, armless dwarf was marooned on a bar stool in an empty tavern in Austria after hoodlums pulled off his artificial limbs.

Where do they get this stuff??

I have yet to read the details of the henpecked husband who "zaps lazy wife with booby-trapped vacuum cleaner," and a couple's "fight for custody of ghost who picks the horses."

Maybe it was worth 55¢. After all, I've filled a column just skimming the headlines.

If you catch me picking up another copy at the checkout counter, you'll know I'm experiencing a dry spell.

Brain mush

By Jim Fitzgerald

What is the most bizarre moment in the history of TV mini-series?

That's a culturally important question, and I have a nomination, but first here is this message:

"If you watch too much TV, your brain will turn to mush," Emily's mother told her. Emily began to cry at the thought of a mushy brain inside of her head, and her mother immediately felt bad and apologized for scaring her.

At age six, Emily takes very seriously everything her mother says. A few months ago, Mom told her how germs are transmitted, and Emily has been washing her hands every five minutes ever since. Much to my embarrassment, I learned there is no way to keep Emily out of the bathroom when she is earnestly engaged in germ warfare. The kid knows how to pick locks.

It is germane to mention I wasn't there when Emily was cautioned about TV-caused mushiness; I was 65 miles away. I heard about it from my wife, who got the story via open-line phone. And it occurred to me that one of the nice things about grandchildren you don't have to be with them to enjoy them. It's fun just hearing — and thinking — about them.

I'm reminded of my mother during the last year of her life, when poor health kept her grounded and too long separated from the people she loved most. Whenever I visited, she said: "Tell me what you've been doing; tell me what the children have been up to." She got great vicarious pleasure from hearing about even the most inane activities of her extended family and, after I left, I'm sure she enjoyed thinking about what I'd told her.

GRANDDAUGHTER IN SNOW

Recently I heard, second-hand, my daughter's description of Emily walking to school, only about a block from home. It was one of those marvelous bright mornings when the sun reflects off the banked snow and lights up your spirit; the cold air is stimulating, not threatening, and who needs Florida?

The first thing Emily did, after walking a few yards, was turn around and run back home to tell Mom what a great day it was. Then she set off again, taking a shortcut across vacant lots, while Mom watched through a window. Emily rolled in the snow, she made an angel, she jumped and whooped and stomped circles in the snow.

For a while, it appeared Emily might never get to school. Her mother didn't care; it was too much fun watching her. And, for me, it was just as much fun hearing about it. Just thinking about Emily enjoying the sunny snow that morning, as I write about it, makes me feel better than anything else could. The best things in life are bargains, especially when the kindergarten teacher, not me, has to help Emily out of her soggy snowsuit.

TURKEY IN HONG KONG

Anyway, a good time to think about grandchildren is during a TV mini-series, to fight off brain mush. But I wasn't thinking hard enough on a Monday night, during the second episode of something dreadful called "Noble House."

A huge pleasure ship, anchored in Hong Kong harbor, was suddenly on fire. From great heights, hundreds of passengers, some of them aflame, were jumping into the water, fully clothed, to save themselves from dying in such a turkey plot. It was a scene of unrestrained panic.

Except for the heroine, a weary wary looking actress named Deborah Raffin. For a long time she observed the flailing bodies hurriedly leap for safety. Then she calmly became the only one on board to strip before leaving.

In her scant underwear, Deborah mounted one of the ship's highest points and posed on her toes, with arms stretched wide in the crucifixion position. She looked like Esther Williams on the high board at the Aquacade. And she dived a perfect swan dive.

I think it was Rudyard Kipling who said: "If you can calmly dive a perfect swan dive while all those around you are jumping feet first in panic, you can be a TV mini-series star, my daughter."

That is my choice for the most bizarre moment in the history of TV mini-series. I can't stop thinking about it. I'd better think about Emily in the snow, before mush gets my brain.

Cass City vs. Reese Thursday

Academic Track to begin

Some 60 Cass City Intermediate sixth, seventh and eighth graders will open the 1988 Academic Track season Thursday, when they will host Reese at 6 p.m. at the intermediate school.

The remaining competitions will be held at 6 p.m. March 17 at Carrollton, 6 p.m. March 22 at Caro, and 5:30 p.m. March 29 at Caro (Tuscola County All-Star Meet).

According to dramatic reading coach Donna Emerson, Academic Track, which involves a method of scoring similar to an athletic track competition, offers all students the opportunity to experience interscholastic competition on a team basis.

Emerson explained that students compete in one or more of 3 sections—performing, written and art.

In the written section, students take a written test covering topics such as science, math, music, speech, art and trivia. First, second and third places are awarded for the top scores.

Students participating in the performing section present a variety of acts on stage, including voice and instrumental solos and group numbers, impromptu skits and interpretive and dramatic reading.

In the art section, meanwhile, students are given an object to draw with charcoal or colors.

"It's really exciting. It's as exciting as any sports competition," Emerson remarked, adding that this is Cass City's third year in Academic Track.

"It's a real push for academics," she continued. "It allows students to show off their talents. We have a good turnout of parents and students."

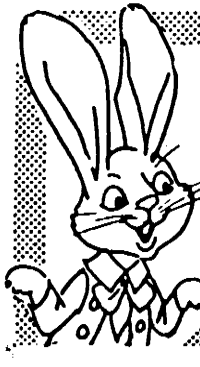

Tuscola circuit judge appointed to MJA board

Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Patrick R. Joslyn has been appointed to the Executive Board of the Michigan Judges Association by MJA's president, the Honorable Maureen P. Reilly.

He is currently serving on the Rules Committee of this association, whose members are the circuit judges of all the counties in the state of Michigan. The other members include the justices of the Supreme Court and the judges of the Court of Appeals.

As an executive board member, Joslyn hopes to have a voice in the policy making decisions of the MJA which will represent circuit judges from smaller counties and single judge circuit courts.

The Haire Net

Another chapter has been written in the continuing saga of Fozzie, our elephant-size lap dog. In the 6-plus years that Airedale has been dominating the household he's grown accustomed to the undivided attention of everyone on the premises.

That's why last week was filled with trauma for the world's most pampered pet. For last week Fozzie was playing second fiddle around the Haire household. Visiting for the week was our one and only grandchild, here because his mother combined a little business presenting a language seminar in Denver with a lot of skiing in the area which is a mecca for downhillers.

Now everyone knows it's the grandmother's right to spoil a grandchild, although probably not to the extent that it was carried out at 4172 South Seeger. After all it wouldn't hurt, would it, if the boy were allowed to cry twice before he was swooped up and cuddled for another 2 hours?

It didn't take long for Fozzie to realize that little Jimmy was stealing his thunder and he took steps to rectify this abominable situation. His first maneuver was to push between Jimmy and whoever was paying attention to him and staying right there until forced to get out of the way.

Over the years we've learned that our Airedale is really quite smart. He learns quickly when he wants to. Doesn't mind worth a darn most of the time, you understand, but not because he doesn't understand, just because he's a born rebel. He'll only do a trick or pay any attention at 2 times. One is when it suits his pleasure and the other is when there's something in it for him.

After a while with the pressure of ostracism on him, he was doing his repertoire of tricks (one) without being asked.

Failing again, he intelligently devised other methods. One was placing himself between the viewer and the TV screen and moving with the viewer so that it was impossible not to notice him. A 75-pound dog can block a lot of screen, believe me.

About the second day he devised his most successful scheme, by cocking his head, looking you straight in the eye and then starting to bark like crazy until you did something. Even getting booted outside on the rope was better than just being ignored, I guess.

Tell me I'm crazy, but I'll always believe that towards the end of the week ol' Fozzie was actually despondent, not moping around enough so that he wouldn't eat, mind you, but still plenty shook up by the new arrival.

While Jimmy was visiting, he was never far away from us and delighted in shoving his huge frame between us and the baby.

What pleased him even more, a couple of days after Jimmy went home, was the realization that his domain was again his and he could relax and return to his own independent status. And believe me, he has.

Cass City's Ray Stachura

Goal realized by Eagle Scout

Cass City High School senior Ray K. Stachura knows what it feels like to reach a long awaited personal goal.

The 18-year-old, who 10 years ago joined a Cub Scout troop in Deford with the intention of eventually becoming an Eagle Scout, the highest award available in scouting, has realized that goal.

Stachura, the first scout in Cass City to earn the rank of Eagle in 4 years, was honored at an awards assembly Saturday evening at Cass City High School.

"I always planned on it when I entered. I always wanted to get it," Stachura, now a Boy Scout assistant for Cass City's Troop 594, remarked. "It kind of makes you feel proud because you set a goal."

Stachura, the son of Raymond J. and Antoinette Stachura of Cass City, spent 3 years in Cub Scouts before beginning the first of his 7 years in Boy Scouts. He earned the Eagle rank by completing specific requirements.

He earned 11 required badges, 10 optional badges and 9 skill awards while climbing the ranks in Boy Scouts. The ranks, in order, are Boy Scout, Tenderfoot, Second Class, First Class, Star, Life and Eagle.

Area students to participate in leadership forum

Some 265 Tuscola County secondary school students are among 3,000 pupils in the state who will participate in 14 state Board of Education Student Leadership Forums this month.

The day-long Student Leadership Forums are held as part of Project Outreach, which was started by the state board in 1981 to improve public attitudes about public schools.

Locally, students from Tuscola County's 9 public school districts will hold their forum March 22 at the Tuscola Vocational Skill Center in Caro.

Sponsored by the Tuscola Intermediate School District, the forum will consist of a full day of programs and discussion on issues chosen by the students.

According to forum coordinator Rick Green, activities will include presentations by special speakers on topics such as parent-teen communication, teen suicide, choosing a college, Project Graduation and sex education.

Students will then have an opportunity to discuss and formulate policies on issues they choose. A student representative of the Tuscola County schools will present local students' recommendations to the state Board of Education sometime in June," Green remarked.

"The real emphasis is on the students because they plan the topics" and discuss the issues, he said, adding that the local Student Leadership Forum also provides students with an opportunity to discuss current issues with administrators and board of education members from their own districts.

Stachura earned his required badges by completing projects in national, world and community citizenship, emergency preparedness, first aid, safety, sports, personal management, environmental science, camping and communication.

The optional badges are for projects covering a wide variety of areas ranging from agriculture to electronics to zoology, while the skill awards involve activities similar to those in the required badge categories.

STAYED IN IT

"I've seen a lot of kids come in and out," Stachura said of the local troop, which experienced a somewhat inactive period during 1984-85 due to turnover in scout leaders. "I decided to stay in it because I enjoy it."

The local troop, which now includes 16 scouts, 3 assistants and a scoutmaster, is sponsored by the Cass City Rotary Club and is governed by a local 7-member committee.

"A lot of the boys are coming back now," he observed, adding that being one of the more experienced troop assistants has been an advantage for him. "The (scouts) like me and they listen to me. They'll come up to me and tell me their problems."

Stachura's years in Boy Scouting also have been a help to Scoutmaster Ken Spencer, who joined the troop in September 1986.

"When I first started out here, I didn't know squat. I knew how to run a Webelos program," Spencer said, adding that he had little experience in leading a Boy Scout troop. "With (Ray's) experience, it helps out quite a bit," he added.

Spencer, who noted that it takes at least 4 years to earn the Eagle rank, added, "I'd say one in 10 boys in a troop will end up going all the way through."

VALUABLE

For Stachura, "going all the way through" has been a valuable experience.

Boy Scouts, he remarked, "prepares you for the outside world. You're not just going to sit around; you're going to set goals."

Stachura's goals now include earning a 4-year degree at Oakland University in Rochester, where he plans to study mechanical engineering. He's now in his second year of studying mechanical systems design at the Tuscola Area Skill Center.

Despite his plans to move on, Stachura encourages boys to consider scouting to "get involved in the community and have fun in the process."

Aside from companionship and taking an active role in community projects, Boy Scouts offers guidance to youths faced with the pressure of drugs and other problems, Stachura pointed out.

"You learn at a younger age what effects (drugs) have on you. It kind of sets your morals straight."

Area youths aged 10 1/2 to 18 years who are interested in joining the local Boy Scout troop can contact Spencer at 872-4290 for additional information.

CASS CITY HIGH School senior Ray Stachura receives congratulations from Scoutmaster Ken Spencer on being the first Troop 594 member in 4 years to earn the rank of Eagle, the Boy Scout's highest award.

Sanilac Extension sets 3 nutrition workshops

The Sanilac County Cooperative Extension Service will offer 3 workshops in March in celebration of National Nutrition Month.

Registration for the workshops is due by March 14.

The first workshop, slated for 7 to 9 p.m. March 16 at the Farm Bureau Building in Sandusky, is entitled, "Take Heart in the Kitchen." The program will focus on reduction of cholesterol and fats in the diet.

The second workshop, "Get More Fiber in Your Life," is set for 7 to 9 p.m. March 23 at the County Conference Room in Sandusky. The role of starch and fiber in the diet, food sources of fiber and ways to increase fiber in the diet will be discussed.

The third workshop, slated for 7 to 9 p.m. March 28 at the County Conference Room in Sandusky, is entitled, "Shake the Salt Habit" and will include discussion on the relationship between salt and hypertension, and ways to decrease salt in the diet.

Additional information on registration and workshop fees is available by calling (313) 648-2515.

Jury conviction upheld recently

In an opinion released Feb. 26, the Court of Appeals Judges Cynar, Sawyer and Gillis affirmed the conviction and sentence of Anthony Bennett.

Bennett was tried by a jury in Tuscola Circuit Court on the charge of breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling with the intent to commit larceny. The defendant was sentenced to 3 to 10 years in prison by Judge Joslyn.

The defendant appealed his conviction to the Court of Appeals. On appeal he claimed improper evidence and improper procedures were followed during his trial. The Court of Appeals, in its 3-page opinion, addressed all the issues raised by the defendant and found no merit in the appeal.

FIVE YEARS AGO

A delegation of 4 county party and grocery store owners asked the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners Tuesday to remove the ban on sale of packaged liquor on Sundays. Ralph Retherford of Fort's Confectionary Store, Cass City, served as spokesman. The other members of the delegation were Harry Roth, Deford Country; Pat McIntosh, Brown's Party Store, Caro, and Bill Zabriskie, Zabriskie's Market, Watrousville.

Members of the varsity basketball team cut down both nets after the victory over Marlette gave Cass City its fifth title in 7 years. Final score was 48-43.

Jack and Elsie Blades' farm has been certified a centennial farm by the Michigan Department of State. Blades' grandfather purchased the 40 acres in 1881. Taxes that year were $1.94. The following year the taxes jumped to $4.35.

Mr. and Mrs. Rick Lorentzen of Mt. Morris were weekend guests of his mother, Mrs. Don Lorentzen.

The Cass City branch of the American Association of University Women met Tuesday evening in the high school library. Wayne Dillon, high school counselor and vocational education director, discussed the proposed county vocational education center.

As of Sunday, Gagetown Village President William Downing said there had been 3 or 4 instances of water lines to homes freezing.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Auten returned home Monday after spending a month at Jensen Beach, Fla.

Your neighbor says

Cass City's pretty safe from crime

Cass City has been spared of serious crime in recent years, with most police reports covering offenses such as breaking and entering, larceny and vandalism.

Many area residents think of Flint, Saginaw, Detroit and other larger cities when the topic of serious crime comes up in conversation.

Still, an attitude that violent crime always happens "somewhere else" was shaken here Feb. 28, when 2 men armed with shotguns robbed a Cass City couple at their Pine Street apartment.

The confiscation of 7 guns and a large quantity of marijuana from the Detroit area suspects' vehicle has prompted law enforcement officials to say the crime may have been drug related.

Your neighbor, Ed Wesolowski of Cass City, says the incident hasn't changed his opinion of living here.

"I feel pretty safe around here. If it (serious crime) happened only once in a great while, it wouldn't bother me that much," he remarked.

"Cass City's too small usually for something like that," Wesolowski said of the armed robbery. "The first thing I thought was that it had something to do with drugs. You hear about drugs more on TV" news-casts now.

"You really wouldn't think people from Detroit would come around here," he added.

Wesolowski, who has lived in Cass City for the past 6 years, works as a mechanic at Lyntex Manufacturing Co. in Ubyly. He and his wife, the former Val Gibas, have one son, Eric, 2 1/2.

Genes and viruses-- cancer link?

Cancer starts with one lone cell. Just what it is that transforms a healthy cell into a cancer cell has been the subject of increasingly promising research in recent years.

Genes That Cause Cancer

Several different genes that appear to play a key role in the formation of tumors have now been isolated from the DNA of human tumor cells. These genes are called oncogenes. Oncogenes are very different from each other in terms of structure, location and function. What they have in common is that they all arise from the normal genes present in all healthy cells.

In their normal form, these genes, called proto-oncogenes, control the proteins important to normal cell growth and development. Somewhere along the way, however, these normal genes are damaged and assume a dangerous role. The proteins controlled by oncogenes function abnormally and lead to the uncontrolled growth and spread of abnormal cells that are characteristic of cancer.

"More than 25 of these oncogenes have now been isolated, and much evidence exists to support the current hypothesis that changes in the structure of these cellular genes represent the fundamental cellular alterations that result in the development of cancer," says Robert A. Weinberg, Ph.D., professor of biology at the Center for Cancer Research, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Whitehead Institute for Biomedical Research, in Cambridge.

Oncogenes were discovered by 2 different lines of research that eventually converged.

The first was the study of retroviruses (viruses whose genetic material is RNA, ribonucleic acid, instead of DNA, deoxyribonucleic acid). Retroviruses have an unusual property: They can make a DNA copy of their genetic material that can then be integrated into the chromosomal DNA of the cell being infected. Some retroviruses carry among their genes a single gene that is responsible for transforming a normal cell into a cancer cell.

Such a gene was first identified about 15 years ago in Rous sarcoma virus (RSV), which causes cancer in chickens. This gene was named src, which stands for sarcoma. Subsequently discovered oncogenes were also given 3-letter abbreviations.

It was found, however, that src was not a true viral gene but that it was almost identical to a normal gene found in all chicken cells. This normal proto-oncogene had been picked up by a slightly oncogenic (capable of producing cancer) retrovirus during the course of infection. Somehow along the way the proto-oncogene became a cancer gene.

At least 20 oncogenes have been isolated from various retroviruses that cause several different types of cancer in experimental animals. In each case, the oncogene was found to be very similar to a normal gene and to regulate an oncogenic protein similar to a normal protein.

Tumor oncogenes: The second, more recent line of research involving oncogenes focused on human and animal cells rather than retroviruses. Genes in the DNA of various kinds of tumor cells were found that could transform normal cultured cells into cancer cells.

The ras oncogene: The most frequently isolated tumor oncogene is very similar to the retroviral oncogene known as ras, a family of genes found in vertebrate calls.

"Damaged ras genes have been found associated with about 20 percent of human cancers," says W. Gary Tarpley, Ph.D., research scientist at The Upjohn Company in Kalamazoo, MI.

"We are now studying the biochemical properties of the damaged product of the ras gene, called p-21, to determine exactly how it differs from normal and how it leads to the transformation of a normal cell to a cancer cell. If we could answer these questions, the hope is that it would then be possible to target this aberrant biochemical process selectively with anticancer drugs and ultimately halt the entire process," Dr. Tarpley says.

It has now been determined that p-21 is a member of the so-called G family of proteins, present in the cell's fluid, that mediate the signals which help regulate cell growth. "When a ras gene is damaged, the signal mechanism is altered, and the cells receive incorrect information that leads them to behave in an aberrant way," he says.

The retinoblastoma oncogene: Scientists have recently isolated the oncogene responsible for retinoblastoma (a cancer of the eye's retina that occurs in young children). This oncogene is of particular interest because, contrary to all other known oncogenes, it is a recessive, rather than a dominant, gene. This means that a child will not develop the disease unless both parents have the gene; for other oncogenes, only one parent need have the gene.

Viruses and Cancer: Making the Connection

Scientists have long known that viruses can cause both natural and experimental tumors in animals. Only recently has a connection been shown for several different viruses and cancer in humans. The evidence to date is only indirect, however, because it would be unethical to infect a human subject experimentally with a suspected virus to see if it caused cancer.

Some such evidence may have become available inadvertently in relation to human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), a virus believed to be a cause of acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS).

"The unfortunate people who have become infected with the virus after blood transfusions give a clear indication that the virus is responsible for their subsequent development of AIDS," says Robert C. Gallo, M.D., chief of the laboratory of tumor cell biology at the National Cancer Institute and the co-discoverer with Dr. Luc Montagnier of the Institut Pasteur in Paris of the virus now known as HIV.

Although AIDS itself is not a cancer, it does lead frequently to the development of several types of cancer - Kaposi's sarcoma, Burkitt's lymphoma and chronic myelogenous leukemia.

HIV is actually the third of a group of retroviruses called human T-cell leukemia viruses (HTLV), discovered by Dr. Gallo and others. The first one, called HTLV-I, was discovered in 1979 and leads to a form of leukemia and lymphoma.

The second virus, HTLV-II, was discovered in 1982 and causes a rare form of leukemia called hairy-cell leukemia. This disease has been the subject of much recent interest because nearly 90 percent of patients experienced remission when treated with alpha interferon, a type of biological therapy using agents derived from or similar to immune system agents.

Other viruses that show varying degrees of evidence of causing human cancers include the Epstein-Barr virus, linked to infectious mononucleosis, to a type of lymphoma called Burkitt's and to nasopharyngeal cancer; hepatitis B virus, linked to liver cancer; human papilloma virus, linked to genital warts and to cervical cancer; and herpes simplex virus type 2, possibly also linked to cervical cancer.

Human cancer viruses appear not to cause cancer by themselves, however. Other factors (called cofactors) are almost certainly involved, including cigarette smoking, diet, heredity, various carcinogens (cancer-causing agents), additional infections and the effectiveness of the individual's immune system.

Genetic Engineering: Hope for the Future?

"Remarkable advances have recently been made in genetic engineering that may relate to patients who inherit a tendency to develop cancer," says Henry T. Lynch, M.D., director of the Hereditary Cancer Consultation Center at Creighton University Medical Center in Omaha, Neb.

For example, the technology is now available to take from chick embryos the genetic material necessary for production of a specific enzyme (a substance that promotes a chemical reaction in the body) and insert it into cultures of mouse cells that are low in the same enzyme.

"If we could isolate cancer-resistant genes and transplant them into human cells that are deficient in them," says Dr. Lynch, "we could conceivably prevent the influence of the cancer-prone genes and produce a higher degree of resistance to carcinogens."

Researchers have yet to prove that cancer actually can be prevented in this way. It remains a question for the future.

Carpet Care

Sometimes high heels, pet's claws, sharp projections on floor-care equipment, or a child's toy will snag a carpet and pull up or "sprout" a tuft. These sprouts can be clipped off with small sharp shears. Don't pull at them, that only makes it worse.

Keeping a carpet looking and smelling new is easier than ever thanks to a new product made of tiny crystals called molecular sieves. It makes routine vacuuming a way to prevent soil build-up. Created by Union Carbide, the powder is sold by Arm & Hammer as Vac-U-Brite, an additive in a line of carpet deodorizers.

DRIVING TIPS FOR SENIORS

Many older Americans continue to drive well into their eighties. These drivers should have their eyes checked regularly to make sure that they can continue to be safe drivers. The following do's and don'ts will make you even more secure behind the wheel.

- Do have proper glasses for both day and night driving. You may need a stronger prescription for night driving when there is less light.
- Do wear sunglasses to cope with the glare of sunlight or its reflection on snow. Don't wear sunglasses for night driving; they reduce the amount of light entering your eyes and diminish vision.
- Don't wear frames with wide side pieces (temples). They block side vision.
- Do be sure your glasses -- and your windshield -- are perfectly clean. Don't buy a car with a totally tinted windshield. It cuts out too much light for night driving.
- If you have any difficulty driving at dusk -- and many seniors do -- don't drive at that time.

A secondary screening will be done March 23. Parents of children who appear to have scoliosis will be notified immediately with a recommendation that the child be taken to a family physician or orthopedist for further examination.

Parents who have questions about the screening can contact Tonti at 872-2433 for additional information.

Cass City reaches finals

Hawk and Bulldog spikers bow in District action

It was a case of oh, so close, but yet so far for Cass City and Owen-Gage volleyball teams Saturday as the girls from both schools were defeated in district competition.

The Cass City Red Hawks, who continued the improved play that marked their efforts in the latter part of the season and in the pre-district, bowed to potent Lakers, but not before almost pulling the upset of the season.

The Hawks had cruised by Harbor Beach in straight games, 15-12 and 15-12, in the semi-finals and defeated Sandusky, 15-8, 6-15 and 15-6 in the opening round to reach the finals.

The Hawks came out strong in the championship match to notch a 15-11 win in the opening game and jumped off to a 9-1 margin in the second before the Thumb B Association champs rallied to win, 15-13, and then take the deciding game, 15-7.

To get to the districts, the Hawks were forced to defeat Ubyly Tuesday, March 1, in the pre-district. The Bearcats had defeated the Hawks in the previous 2 meetings between the schools including a match in the semi-finals of a tournament at Caseville.

We used a video tape of the game to plan our strategy, said Coach Lisa LeValley. Our team was pumped up, she said, and was helped by a good crowd of parents and students.

We missed only 2 serves all night and that was a key to the win, the coach said.

Teri Summers scored 10 points and was effective on the back row. Darlene Monroe played outstanding volleyball with an assortment of service aces, spikes and blocks. Sue Papp showed excellent control at the net.

It was just a grand team performance, LeValley said.

OWEN-GAGE LOSES

It was a disappointing end for a great team that compiled a great season's record as Owen-Gage was eliminated in the District Class D volleyball tournament at Akron-Fairgrove.

What made it so hard to take was that the team's loss to Bay City All Saints was so narrow, that with a bit of luck the outcome could have been much different and it would have been the Bulldogs going on to regional play at Dryden instead of the Cougars.

We looked at the stats and the serves were so close that there wasn't really any difference, said Coach Judy Campbell. If we had a weakness, it was in our passes to the setters.

The Bulldogs rallied to win the second game of the match, 15-7 after losing the first game, 15-9. In the decisive third game, Owen-Gage had forged out a 12-8 lead only to falter in the stretch and lose a heartbreaker, 15-13.

Despite the loss, it was another very successful season for Owen-Gage that finished with a 33-8 record and another North Central D championship.

Playing their last game for the Bulldogs were seniors Jane Billy, Marcie Draschil and Susie Salcido. The girls are sure to be missed, but Owen-Gage should continue its tradition of fine volleyball teams as Coach Campbell has 9 juniors returning.

CASS CITY'S DARLENE Monroe goes down on both knees to make this save in pre-district action at Ubyly. Monroe has been the Hawks' savior all year.

Stirrett nets 33

Bulldog effort falls short 78-71

A lengthy regular season ended for the Owen-Gage Bulldogs Friday when they tumbled to visiting Akron-Fairgrove, 78-71. The Bulldogs' record now stands at 2-18, with both of their wins coming from Caseville, who is yet to triumph this year.

And although their season will most likely come to an end tonight when they face North Huron, who defeated Port Hope, 61-60, Monday night to open the Class D districts at Caseville, you can bet Owen-Gage will be ready to give a 110-percent effort.

And that's what they gave the Vikings on Friday, who proved to be just a bit more talented than their North Central Thumb League opponents.

The Bulldogs came out using a weaving back court offense in the first quarter, which provided some easy baskets when Akron-Fairgrove's defense broke down, but it was the Bulldogs' running game which spotted them a 2-point advantage, 16-14, at the end of the initial quarter.

Chris Abbe and Chad Stirrett led the Bulldogs in the early going. Abbe scored often on hard driving lay ins off the Bulldog break, while Stirrett cashed in on base line slides most of the night.

The Bulldogs' offense sputtered in the second quarter, but, according to Coach Dean Roller, it was the Owen-Gage defense that cost them the win and some much needed momentum with the district on tap next.

"We were out-rebounded 20-13 on the offensive boards, which gave Akron-Fairgrove too many second and third shots," said Roller.

The Bulldogs were able to put together a fine second half but couldn't overcome the 5-point spot the Vikings enjoyed at the half, 31-26.

It was Stirrett who kept the Bulldogs close the remainder of the evening.

Stirrett, a sophomore, finished with a career best 33 points, which included an 11-12 showing at the charity stripe with many of them coming during crunch time. His efforts kept the young Bulldogs within striking range throughout the last half.

Both squads quickened their pace in the final stanza as the Bulldogs made a final run at the taller Vikings.

Paced by 3 3-point baskets, 2 by Ted Zimmerman and one from sharpshooter Brad Susalla, the Bulldogs' best 3-point shooter, the Bulldogs were able to battle the Vikings to the final buzzer.

But the Bulldogs' fine outside shooting wasn't enough as Akron-Fairgrove's Troy Putnam poured in 12 markers in the final 8 minutes to preserve the win.

Cass City buries cellar-dweller Bad Axe with 3-point shooting

The Cass City Red Hawks completed the regular season with an easy victory over the Thumb B Association cellar-dweller Bad Axe Hatchets Friday, 79-64, and Coach Ron Nurnberger said that his team has continued to show some slight improvement for each of the last 6 games.

One player who seemingly has found himself after a mid-season slump is Jeff Sontag, who continued his fine outside shooting with 3 of 8 from 2-point range and 4 of 6 from the 3-point area.

Cass City opened the scoring with a 3-point shot from Jeff Dillon and the Hawks were never behind after that, although the Hatchets made one brief run in the last minutes of the first quarter before falling hopelessly out of contention in the second quarter.

Cass City had spurred to a 12-4 lead in the first 3 1/2 minutes and added 6 more points in the next 2 minutes while holding the Hatchets to a bucket by Dale Geiger.

The Hatchets then regrouped and closed the gap to 20-14 at the end of the quarter.

Cass City salted the game away in the first 4 minutes of the second period as Paul Tuckey and Sontag burned the nets and the defense kept Bad Axe from getting good shots. With 3:50 left in the first half, Cass City was ahead 32-14 and the rest of the game was mop-up time.

Eight of the 10 players suited for the game scored, including sophomore Jason Robertson, brought up to the varsity in time for the tournaments.

Four Hawks were in double figures, Paul Tuckey, 23, Sontag, 18, Mike Randall, 17, and Jeff Krol, 10.

The Hawks were better from 3-point range than from 2, making 7 of 13 3-pointers for 65 percent and only 23 of 65 for 35 percent from closer in. The Hatchets converted just one of 10 for 3 points. A bright spot for the Hatchets was sophomore Andrew Copeland, who led all scorers with 28 points.

Cass City shot a respectable 70 percent from the free throw line while Bad Axe converted just 63 percent.

Hawks face NCTL champs

The Cass City Red Hawks will face tourney favorite Deckerville in the opening round of the Class C District tournament at Mayville Wednesday.

Deckerville has everything going for it except the schedule. The Eagles have size, experience and a glittering 19-1 record. The team's lone loss was to Sandusky and in the return match with the Redskins, they won easily.

However, the North Central D League champions have played a much less rugged schedule than the remainder of the schools in the league.

Still the Hawks will have to find a way to contain 6-3 senior Tim Stolicker and junior Richard Barker, 6-2. There's help and size at the other positions. Jeremy VanNorman is 6-2 at guard and forward Rodney Tanton is 6-3. The other starting guard is Scott Popilek.

Given the size of the Eagles, the play of Cass City's front line on defense will be crucial.

Even if the Hawks should upset the Eagles, the road to the regionals would not be easy. In the bottom bracket, Sandusky will be favored to defeat Mayville and the winner should get by Marlette, considered to be the weakest of the 5 teams in the tourney.

Cass City holds 2 decisions over both Mayville and Marlette, but did not meet Sandusky in the regular season.

PAUL TUCKEY, Cass City's leading scorer for the season, registers another bucket in the Hawks' easy victory over Bad Axe in the final regular season game. Jeff Krol trails the play. Dale Geiger of Bad Axe looks for a possible rebound.

Plan pilot farm program

Huron County has been selected, along with Gratiot County, to participate in a pilot marketing program that will be administered by the local ASCS office.

Farmers in 40 counties in 22 states will be eligible to participate in a pilot program that is designed to protect and maximize the return to producers with respect to commodities they produce through trading on the futures markets and the options markets.

While the details of how the program will be administered are not available yet, an educational meeting to inform and provide basic futures and options information to growers is planned.

The training program will be offered March 21 at Bad Axe High School. A fee will be charged for the program, which includes materials and lunch.

The program will start at 10 a.m. with Dr. John N. Ferris and James H. Hilker, Michigan State University Department of Agriculture Economics, reviewing basic futures and option trading terminology and principles.

After lunch, the participants will be divided into groups of 20 to 25 for small group discussion. At the small group sessions, participants will also be given some worksheets to complete showing various marketing options and the net results. Brokers and Cooperative Extension personnel will be providing the training at the afternoon sessions.

The deadline for signing up is March 16. The registration fee and form should be returned to the Cooperative Extension office, 104 County Building, Bad Axe.

Tuscola Health Department

Family planning, WIC programs face shortfalls

by Tom Montgomery
News Editor

Tuscola County residents who receive assistance through the county health department's family planning and WIC programs may be without those services for at least one month this year.

Assuming expected shortfalls in funding are realized, health officials say reduced fiscal years for both programs are certain if voters defeat a county-wide millage request April 5.

"State and federal sources haven't allotted enough money for these programs to go the distance" this year, health department Director Ed Golson remarked last week.

"With the millage question coming up, if it is defeated, there's no question; they (programs) will close down" without more state/federal funds.

Both family planning and WIC are among the categorical programs (funded by outside sources for specific services) administered by the health department.

The family planning program was developed because of the recognition that pregnancies at an early age or late age, or spaced too closely, place both the mother and child at risk. The program offers services such as physical exams, including breast and pelvic exams and Pap smears, contraceptives, counseling, routine laboratory tests, education and medical referrals.

The services are available to all regardless of age, sex, race national origin, family size or marital status. Cost is dependent on ability to pay.

The WIC (women, infants and children) program, meanwhile, focuses on improving the health of women (pregnant, postpartum and lactating), infants and children less than 5 years of age by providing nutrition care, coupons to purchase WIC-approved foods (cheese, juice, milk, eggs, cereal, peanut butter, dry beans), and information about health services.

Nutrition education, counseling, and referrals also play a major role in the program.

$10,000 SHORT

According to Golson, the WIC program budget is about $10,000 short this fiscal year, which will end Sept. 30. The family planning budget, meanwhile, is expected to be $13,000 short.

If both figures hold, and the county-wide millage is defeated, the WIC program would continue to run through mid-August, and the family planning program would probably be shut down in early August, Golson predicted.

"If we knew for sure that we weren't going to receive a significant cut in our appropriation of $215,000 from the county, then we would be able to subsidize" the programs, he remarked, adding that the health department has in recent years supplemented the budgets of some programs in order to maintain current service levels.

In many cases, Golson remarked, state and federal funding are steadily declining or remaining stagnant, while demand for services and costs continues to grow.

"You cheapen your program, you cheapen your program...until it becomes a program just to say you have a program," he said. "We don't like to do that."

FULL TILT

"It's a feeling of the (health) board that we would like to run a program full tilt until the monies are gone, and then we'll close it down," Golson continued.

According to family planning coordinator Sue Dickson, a total of $43,000 has been allocated for her program this fiscal year, compared to a budget request of $56,000. Last year's budget totalled more than $57,000.

Much of the decrease this year is due to a reduction in state funding, but fees and collections are down by about $3,000.

The program has handled 800 cases this year, 100 more than last year at the same time. There was a total of 1,200 cases during the 1986-87 fiscal year.

Dickson fears not only that current clients might be without service for a month or 2 this year, but also that dwindling funding will eventually mean a forced reduction in the number of persons the program will be capable of serving.

"I would say at least 1/3 of the clients are middle-income families who have probably 2 or 3 children and both parents are working to make ends meet," she said. "I guess I feel for these people because they're in the same boat I'm in."

CONCERNED

WIC program coordinator Nancy Bortel also is concerned about the long term effects of declining funding in conjunction with a possible millage defeat.

"We could be forced to take only pregnant women and infants and children who have medical risk, which would cut our caseload considerably," she said, adding that a reduced caseload translates into reduced funding in the next fiscal year.

Bortel noted that eligibility in the supplemental food program, which requires clients to take a nutrition education class every 6 months, is now based on medical and nutritional risk, and income.

Bortel stated that her current budget totals $69,657, compared to a request of $84,000. Another $10,000 is needed to maintain current service levels. The 1986-87 budget totaled about $76,000.

CASELOAD

Bortel said her current caseload totals about 861, slightly from a year ago.

The value of WIC, she pointed out, is apparent in a number of national studies, including a Harvard University survey that showed that for every dollar spent on WIC (pregnant women), $3 was saved in medical costs.

As for the possible shut-down of the program this year, Bortel stated that clients might be able to get in a month earlier or a month later, but cautioned that she couldn't guarantee anything at this point.

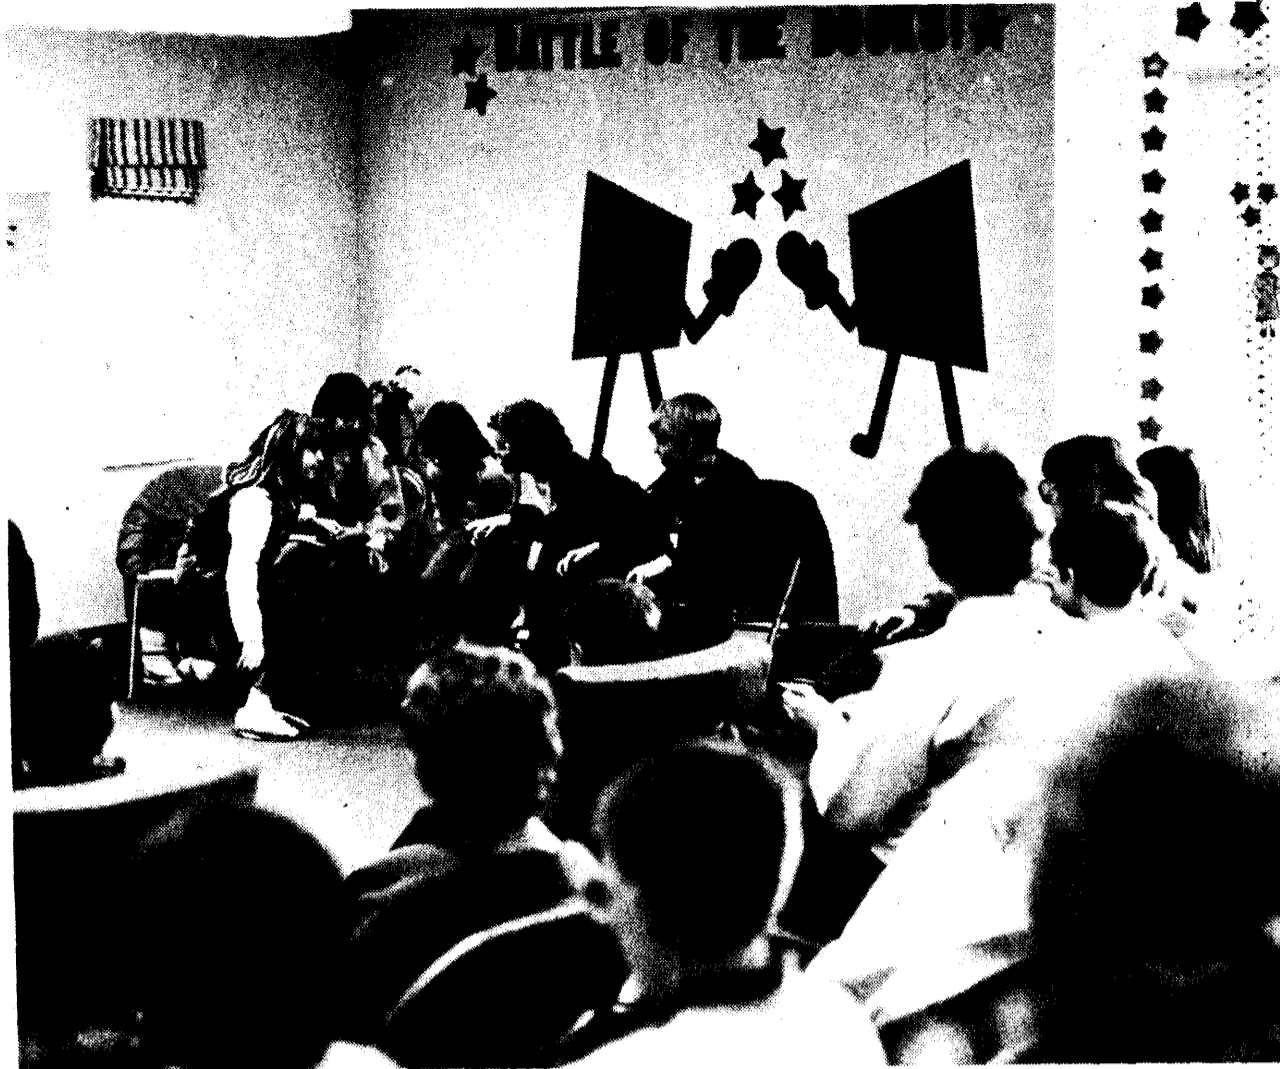

"It's a no-win situation. One way or another, we're going to have to have the funds," she added.

Golson agreed, adding that cuts, which would be inevitable if the county millage fails, would probably reduce or eliminate a number of health services.

Aside from not supplementing categorical programs such as WIC, family planning and Division of Services to Crippled Children, environmental health and nursing services would suffer, he said.

Such cuts might include deletion of the water quality program and handling pollution problems and water samples. Cutting the number of immunization clinics offered also is likely, he continued, adding that the department is already shy of personnel, including 2 nurses.

"The sad thing about it is people don't miss a program until it's gone," he commented. "We're here to provide service to the community. We don't want to cheapen the programs."

THERE WERE PLENTY OF spectators present during the first round of "Battle of the Books," held last week at Rawson Memorial Library. Above, members of the "Book Lovers" team discuss an answer during their battle against the "Crazy Cats" (not pictured).

the tax rate is 30 mills, for example, the tax would be $300 ($10,000 X .030) or $30 for every $1,000 of property value ($30 X 10).

Presentations before a Board of Review should include documenting a specific case with examples of comparable housing sold at lower prices than the appraisal in question, or of sales patterns in the individual's neighborhood.

Also, the appeal should be limited to questioning the validity of the tax assessment and cannot include arguments regarding the tax rate. By limiting remarks in this way, the chances for a favorable judgement are improved.

For persons who are still dissatisfied with the decision, the next step is to write the Michigan Tax Tribunal, P.O. Box 30232, Lansing, MI 48909; telephone, (517) 373-8850.

Appeals to the Tax Tribunal must be preceded by appeal through the Board of Review process and received no later than June 30 each year.

The letter should include the name and address of the property owner, the legal description of the property, the county and township or city where the property is located, the date of protest to the local board of review, and a brief statement of the reason for the appeal. There is no fee, and the Tribunal holds hearings at various locations throughout the state.

Additional information on appealing property tax assessments is available by contacting the Michigan Consumer Council at 517-373-0947.

Strickler seeks sheriff's seat

Sandusky Chief of Police Virgil Strickler has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the position of Sheriff of Sanilac County.

Strickler has been closely associated with county-wide law enforcement for many years and has been recognized for his leadership abilities by serving as president of the Sanilac County Law Enforcement Association (1981-1982); president of the Sanilac County Chiefs of Police (1986-1987); coordinator for Sanilac County Bank Security Officers Association's Mock Robbery Program, and presently as chairman of the county-wide Drug Task Force which was formed in 1987.

Strickler has been a police officer since 1971 and has served as Sandusky Police Chief since 1976.

"I want to provide the maximum law enforcement services to our citizens that allocated resources will allow. I believe that we can accomplish this goal through sound management practices, proper motivation and training of personnel, and cooperative use of resources on the local, state and federal level," Strickler remarked. "As sheriff, I would emphasize the use of these skills and concepts."

Strickler is a past president of the Sandusky Kiwanis Club, a member and Chaplain of the Sandusky Lions Club, a member and Past Master of Custer Lodge 393, and treasurer of the Sandusky Masonic Temple Association. He has also served as chairman of the Cub Scout Council and as a Little League coach since 1973.

Strickler and his wife, the former Ginny Bissett, have 2 children, Shane, age 9, and Anne-Marie, age 7, and are active members of the Sandusky First United Methodist Church.

He is a 1966 graduate of Sandusky High School, graduate of St. Clair County Community College with honors, and is currently working towards a Bachelor of Arts degree in Law Enforcement and Business. Strickler served his country as a Staff Sergeant in the U.S. Air Force and is a Vietnam veteran.

Martin hurt in tractor mishap

A Caro man was listed in "fair" condition Monday at Saginaw St. Mary's Hospital following a farm tractor accident Saturday on Cemetery Road south of Severance Road in Novesta Township.

A Tuscola County Sheriff's Department report states that William Martin, 40, 2459 E. Caro Rd., was driving a tractor towing a hay wagon south on Cemetery Road at about 3:35 p.m. when the left rear wheel of the tractor came off its axle.

Martin lost control of the tractor, which left the roadway and traveled over a bank on the east side of the road. Martin was struck in the back by a rolled bale of hay that fell from the wagon, reports state.

Martin was transferred to Hills and Dales General Hospital by Cass City-Mercy ambulance and then transferred to St. Mary's.

Lung Association launches campaign

A "Passkit" neighborhood campaign has recently been launched in Deford, Kingston, Silverwood, Reese, Cass City, Fostoria, Caro, Vassar, Millington, Akron, Fairgrove, Gageton, Mayville and Unionville by the American Lung Association of Michigan.

The campaign, patterned after a similar effort of the American Lung Association of Iowa, raises funds to support ALAM programs, including Superstuff and Camp Michi-MAC for asthmatic children; Freedom From Smoking programs; research into cures for lung disease; anti-smoking education in the schools, and protection from the dangers of secondhand smoke.

In a Passkit campaign, neighborhood leaders circulate a uniquely designed "Passkit" envelope on their block. Neighbors pass the kit to their next-door neighbor, and he or she in turn passes it to a neighbor. 694,949 Michigianians suffer from lung cancer or some form of chronic lung disease. The ALAM has 7 regional offices serving the state with public education programs and support groups for lung patients. Further information on the Passkit neighborhood campaign is available by calling the ALAM's Passkit Center at (517) 777-7400.
