TUSCOLA COUNTY OFFICIALS, department heads and citizens gathered Friday in Caro for a news conference that focused on specific non-mandated services slated to be reduced or eliminated if a county-wide 4-year, additional 1.5-mill request is defeated in a special election April 5. Detroit trio bound over to circuit court for Cass City robbery

Three Detroit area men accused of robbing a Cass City couple at gun point Feb. 28 allegedly came to the area to rob 2 "dope houses," according to testimony presented at the trio's preliminary exam March 16.

Following the 3-hour exam, Tuscola County District Judge Richard F. Kern bound all 3 men over to circuit court for trial.

Charged in the case are Fernando Vega, 20, Detroit, Lonnie Jordan, 20, Detroit, and Anthony E. Nerkowski Jr., 23, Dearborn, who each face counts of armed robbery and breaking and entering an occupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny.

Vega and Jordan also face charges of possession of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Vega and Nerkowski, who late last week waived arraignment in circuit court, face pre-trials at 9 a.m. April 15. Jordan also was expected to waive his arraignment.

Following the preliminary exam last week, Nerkowski was arrested a second time in connection with the Feb. 28 breaking and entering of the Joseph D. Rocheleau residence, 5935 Walsh Rd., Gagetown. He was arraigned the same day on charges of breaking and entering an occupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny, and larceny in a building.

Nerkowski was to face a preliminary examination on those charges March 22.

He is the only one of the trio out on bond, which was set at $100,000 for the first 2 charges, and $15,000 for the subsequent charges. Vega and Jordan, meanwhile, are being held on $500,000 bond each.

TESTIMONY

At last week's preliminary examination, state police Trooper Oren Johnson of the Caro post testified that Nerkowski made a statement, after the 3 men were apprehended on M-24 south of Caro, stating that he and his 2 buddies had robbed alleged "dope houses" in Cass City and south of Gagetown.

Nerkowski, Johnson said, indicated he directed the trio to the locations, but that he himself didn't enter either dwelling. He advised that he hates dope houses and that's why they were robbing the houses, Johnson said.

Johnson had earlier testified that he and his partner, Trooper Neil Sweeney, had observed a southbound vehicle occupied by the 3 defendants at about 2:20 a.m. Feb. 28 on M-24 south of Caro. The troopers stopped the vehicle after observing it weave across the road center line.

Johnson stated that he called for back-up after talking with the occupants, whom he believed matched the description of the suspects in the Cass City armed robbery. Cass City Police had earlier provided a description via radio of the suspects based on the victims' description.

The vehicle sped off while the troopers were attempting to get the men to exit the vehicle, which was headed off minutes later by another state police vehicle.

Several shotguns and rifles, as well as a pound of marijuana were confiscated from the trunk of the vehicle by police.

The Wildings, meanwhile, testified that 2 men

Gagetown area man faces obstruction justice charge

A Gagetown area man was arrested last week in connection with a case involving the armed robbery Feb. 28 of a young Cass City couple allegedly by 3 Detroit area men.

Lawrence A. Nerkowski, 38, 7791 Bay City-Forestville Rd., has been charged with threatening and/or offering payment to Larry Wilding, Cass City, in an attempt to hinder or discourage him from appearing or testifying as a witness in a criminal case pending in Tuscola County District Court.

Nerkowski was arrested at the Tuscola County Courthouse March 16, where he had apparently planned to attend a preliminary examination for his brother, Anthony Nerkowski, 23, Dearborn, who along with Detroit residents Fernando Vega, 20, and Lonnie Jordan, 20, has been charged in connection with the early morning armed robbery of Larry and Karen Wilding at their upstairs apartment at 6359 Pine St., Cass City.

Lawrence Nerkowski, who allegedly threatened and/or offered money to Wilding Feb. 29 in Elmwood Township, was arraigned March 16 on a charge of obstruction of justice. Bond was set at $5,000. A preliminary examination was to have been held March 22.

The offense carries a maximum sentence of 5 years imprisonment and/or $10,000.

Staying in Cass City

Bishop talks about his church

It was merely coincidence that Ken Untener, bishop of the diocese of Saginaw, is spending about 2 months at St. Pancratius Church in Cass City while the parish's regular pastor is on a leave of absence.

The personable, greying Catholic priest has made visiting and staying in one of the 115 parishes in his diocese a way of life and when his short stay at St. Pancratius is finished, he will have stayed at his 35th parish.

Unlike Greta Garbo, Bishop Untener doesn't want to be alone. When he first was appointed bishop, he inherited a large comfortable home on the Saginaw River.

But he soon found that the isolation of living there removed him from the people, and he sold the house and now makes his home where his hat is.

It's an unusual way for a bishop to operate, Untener concedes, and his fellow bishops questioned if it would work. But work it has and will continue.

Why do it? It's my way of learning the needs and the direction the church is going in the diocese, the bishop feels. When I was in that big house in Saginaw, I felt just out of it. Maybe it was because I have always been a parish priest and I miss the fellowship and input from members of the church and the problems they encounter.

And Bishop Untener is quick to concede that there are problems in the parish and in the church. Start with money, or the lack of it. Catholics, he said, just don't give like members of other denominations. Tithing is something foreign to most of our members.

Foreign, too, to many of the older members of the church, are the many changes that have occurred in the Catholic rituals and dogmas. It's understandable that many are uncomfortable with them, Bishop Untener points out. When something precious is taken away it is always hard.

The thing is, he continued, that in the last 30 years there have been changes that have been nearly universally accepted, but we forget about them. Services for suicides, marriage of Catholics to non-Catholics in the church and similar changes have been applauded by most members of the church.

Remember, too, he said, that the changes that are foreign to older members will be "the way it is" for younger members who have not experienced any other symbols of the church.

PASTOR PROBLEM

Today the shortage of priests is a critical problem and if Bishop Untener is right, it will get worse. He predicts that in 20 years there will be only half as many priests as there are today and that each priest will be serving 3 or more churches.

Perhaps that's one reason that the bishop would like to see the traditional vow of celibacy changed so that priests could marry. He points to Peter, who was married, as Bishop Untener points to Peter, who was married, as strong evidence that priests could marry and do the work of the church.

There are 39 priests serving in the United States who are married.

strong evidence that priests could marry and do the work of the church.

Many people don't realize this, he adds, but there are 39 priests serving in the United States who are married. They were ministers of another faith who converted to Catholicism and received special dispensation from the Pope.

Bishop Untener is a native of Detroit and spent his entire life there, including the time he was a parish priest, leaving only to take his post in the Saginaw diocese. But he doesn't find it much different here than it was in Detroit. We can read the same papers, the weather is about the same, and we can follow the Tigers, Lions and Red Wings.

The bishop has also arranged it so that he can do what he likes to do best. Administer to the people. The first thing I try to do when I come visiting, he says, is to take communion to shut-ins. Then there is a series of meetings with the rank and file workers in the parish, the people who make the wheels turn.

I hold separate breakfast or lunch meetings with the secretaries, the maintenance persons and the youth directors.

That's one of the most serious shortages we have (youth directors), he says, and finding people to handle the youth is vital.

School to ask for 3 mills for operation

The Cass City school board voted to seek 3 mills for school operation, 2 of which are new and one which is a renewal of a levy passed for the removal of asbestos. The levy is the absolute minimum that can be raised to continue operation of the school with its present curriculum, Supt. Ken Micklash told the board at its regular meeting Monday night at the school.

If the 3 mills are approved by the voters in the regular election in June, the total millage for operation will be 28.90. A mill in the Cass City district raises slightly over $100,000 annually.

The superintendent presented figures showing that Cass City spends less per pupil and has a lower millage rate than nearly all schools in the area. The complete review of the district's spending and curriculum will be presented in future issues so residents can judge the merit of the millage request.

Cass City has been operating at a deficit for 4 years while a healthy fund balance has been used to cover the cost of operating the school. This school year the deficit is expected to be $167,000 and the fund balance will be about $51,000. Two years ago the balance was $310,447.

OKAY TRANSFER

A move towards thawing relations between Cass City and Owendale-Gagetown School districts was achieved when the 2 children of the James Brinkmans were granted permission to attend Owendale-Gagetown for the 1988-89 school year.

Trustee Ben Hobart, who made the motion that was unanimously passed by the board, suggested that a joint meeting be arranged with the O-G board to talk about the transfer problem and other areas of concern between the districts. Two Mikolon children who live in the Owen-Gage district attend Cass City Schools and want to continue to do so. The students have permission to attend Cass City this year, but the O-G board has made no decision for next year.

CURRICULUM CHANGE

The board discussed a change in the curriculum required for graduation because payment of $30 per pupil from the state depends on it. Starting with students entering high school next year, students will need 2 credits of a foreign language, fine or performing arts, vocational education, or practical arts, or any combination of these subjects.

Also required will be one-half credit in computer education. Principal Russ Biefer, who outlined the changes, said that the 2-credit requirement does not pose a problem, but the computer requirement will be a change as only about 20 percent of the students now meet the guidelines. The required courses will replace the elective courses. Please turn to page 10.

If millage fails

Ubly outlines curriculum cuts

Ubly School students will pay dearly if voters in their district defeat a request of 4 additional mills for one year in a special election slated for March 29.

That prediction, announced by school officials weeks ago, was made clear Monday night, when the Ubly Board of Education unveiled a massive list of proposed cuts to be ordered if the millage question goes down.

School Business Manager Mark Tenbusch outlined the proposed cuts following the 2 1/2-hour rescheduled regular meeting.

Specific cuts approved by the board are:

--Band (fifth-sixth grade, junior and senior high, pep and marching bands), including an instructor, supplies and band festivals and solo and ensemble contests.

--Agriculture programs, including an instructor, supplies, and all ag classes and Future Farmers of America activities.

--Home economics, art and shop classes, including related supplies and 3 instructors.

--Two elementary teachers.

--All athletics for boys and girls, including cheer-leading.

--A bus driver and one route, a bus mechanic, janitor, 2 food service staff members and a teacher's aide.

--Forensics, adult education classes, academic track and the Young Fives program.

--Purchases of elementary, junior and senior high supplies, and library books and periodicals.

--A reduction in the Please turn to page 10.

You may argue that a cat isn't a person -- but don't tell Sam.

Even her plants are faring better. Her veterinarian suggested applying ginger, which acts as a cat repellent. It seems to be working.

So there's another little "Memo from Meg," for cat and plant lovers.

Did you see the story in the daily about the woman who was burned and temporarily blinded when a snail exploded on her plate in a New York restaurant?

She probably won't include escargot as part of her birthday celebration next year.

Another daily carried a report of a mental patient who cured himself when he fired a bullet through the left side of his brain.

Pretty drastic treatment, if you ask me.

First of America's TV commercial, featuring the guy who locked his keys in the car in a tow-away zone, is the most entertaining we've seen in a long time. It's the only ad, besides the California raisins, that I catch myself watching deliberately and enjoying. The sequel, with the unfortunate maestro, is less effective, probably because it's harder to identify with a music conductor.

Do you suppose they'll ever give out Addies for best TV commercials?

TIME IS MONEY...

WHEN YOU INVEST IN AN IRA.

Time is money, the adage goes. Especially when your savings are working for you in an IRA.

Over the years, an IRA's tax-deferred, compounding interest turns your contributions into a surprisingly large fund. For example, at six percent interest, $2,000 saved each year will grow to $77,985 in twenty years—you have deposited $40,000 and earned $37,985 in interest!

How does this happen? I returned from Denver, Colo., by direct flight on Continental Airlines and in our group there were 8 pieces of luggage.

One piece didn't make it. How can one piece of luggage among the 8, all loaded at the same time and with no transfers, come up missing?

There will be more about Colorado and the skiing if the luggage with my notes is found. Let me say that as a business, skiing in Colorado compared to Michigan is like comparing a Hummer to a Rolls Royce. Both are cars.

Need I add that Colorado is the Rolls Royce? One example. There must be at least 250 or more buses that transport skiers to the various ski areas.

Sunday was the first day of spring and was also Agriculture Understanding Day. A group of facts concerning farming was released by the Tuscola County Farm Bureau. Some of these you already know, I'm sure. Others may be surprising. Michigan ranks among the top 10 states in number of agriculturally related jobs in food and fiber.

The industry generates $15 billion annually in Michigan. In 1985 there were 63,000 Michigan farmers farming 11.4 million acres, an average of 181 acres. A farmer produces food for 114 persons on less land than ever before.

Burning caution urged

Damage light in area fire

There was little damage in a fire March 16 at the Ron Voss residence, 1860 Crawford Rd., according to Elkland Township Fire Chief Dick Root, who urged caution by persons planning any spring burning.

Last week's fire, which started in a laundry room, was out by the time firemen arrived on the scene, shortly after the 5:36 a.m. alarm, Root said. He added that a furnace is suspected in the blaze.

The fire was only the third handled by the department in more than 2 months, but Root warned that the risk of outdoor fires this spring is expected to be high due to a lack of snow cover.

Jim Melin, fire officer at the Cass City Department of Natural Resources office, agreed.

"The situation is that we didn't have a lot of snow this winter. We haven't had a lot of moisture, and the ground is dry," he pointed out, adding that erratic wind changes that accompany spring increase the risk of an outdoor fire "getting away" from someone.

"We urge caution if they burn large brush piles or brush and leaves on a muck or peat type soil to make sure, after it burns, to dig down and make sure that the ground isn't warm and burning."

Registration for youth citizenship seminar set

High school students in Tuscola County have the opportunity to participate in Michigan Farm Bureau's 25th annual Young People's Citizenship Seminar, June 20-24 at Olivet College in Olivet.

The seminar provides students with several "hands on" experiences that help them understand their responsibilities as U.S. citizens. Topics covered include: the free enterprise system, the democratic political system, the American way of life and peoples and cultures around the world. Students are exposed to a variety of viewpoints from political, motivational and patriotic speakers.

Participants are involved in political activities where they can run for a state or county office or help a candidate campaign. All students learn to vote by 3 methods (paper ballot, voting machine and computer punch card) and participate in party rallies, caucuses and conventions.

To be eligible for the seminar, the student must be a junior or senior in high school during the 1988-89 school year. Students must also be willing to report on their experiences when they return from the seminar.

Applications may be obtained from the county Farm Bureau office, area high schools or Farm Bureau Insurance agents. The registration deadline is March 31, 1988.

Elizabeth Cameron

At a recent Rotary program in Cass City, members were asked to compare business in 1986 with 1987 and forecast what 1988 and beyond would bring.

You know what that brought forth, right?

A tale of gloom and doom? After all, there have been long established businesses going down the tube. Farm foreclosures by the dozens. Increased competition from big cities. Rising taxes, debt ridden schools and no relief in sight.

Well, that's not the way it was. As hard hit as anyone in the last 2 years have been the farmers. But a former Rotarian told about the bad times in 1986, the better times in 1987 and forecast a good year in 1988.

Equally optimistic was the forecast for local industry from manufacturing personnel in the club and for small businesses in the community.

Let's get one thing straight. While all segments of the community were optimistic, they were not predicting wildly successful years ahead. It was more like a cautious feeling that things were going to be okay in 1988, as good as, or better than 1987.

It was almost as if each speaker was attempting to search out the positive conditions as they affected their business and forgetting about the negatives.

For instance, the farm rep talked about the falling dollar increasing exports. About the diminishing supply of government-stored produce and the leveling off of the price of farm land. He didn't talk a minute about the chances that interest rates could take off again, or that weather could ruin everything one more time, or the loss of investment credit, or the change in accounting to figure loss in the revised tax law. All negatives.

That same basic approach was heard from all the speakers. Now it may be that the reason was that they wanted to put their best foot forward speaking publicly. I'm sure that was part of it.

But an even bigger reason is that small business people are by nature optimistic. Otherwise you wouldn't find them working for themselves. You have to have a certain ego to invest money and time knowing that about two-thirds or so fail in new businesses.

Of course, it's true, too, that there are businessmen holding on by a thread who rue the day that they started working for themselves, but can't do anything about it.

But for the vast majority, after they have been the big frog in their own very little puddle, it's hard to be anything else.

Sure, we may be kidding ourselves. Actually we are more tied down, more subservient to our bosses (our customers) than nearly anyone who works for a salary or wages.

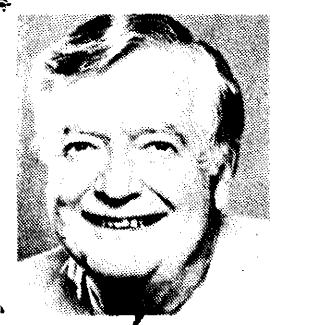

When it comes to security, call it a draw. Business persons are at the mercy of economic conditions and can be swept away by the winds of adverse business conditions at any time. For the workers, who knows when the rug may be pulled out from under them and the job eliminated?

The ultimate truth is that there are no guarantees for workers or their bosses. Just take it one day at a time and hope for the best. What else can you do?

Isn't that a hoot?

By Jim Fitzgerald

Gov. Blanchard recently said he was afraid casino gambling in Detroit would lead young people to believe they could get rich without education and hard work.

Isn't that a hoot? What does the governor think about the ubiquitous advertising for the state lottery — in newspapers, on TV, radio and billboards, and pulled by helicopter? "Someone will win — why not you?"

Why not, kid? The odds are only about 7,000,000 to 1 against you.

I've never seen a race track. I'll go when a horse tells me he enjoys being whipped and kicked and exhausted just so some bozo gamblers can bet on him. But Lewis Herrick of Lathrup Village has been to the races, and this is what he said in a letter to the Free Press:

"Gov. Blanchard...or his appointees should be witness to the goings-on at Ladbroke Detroit Race Course on any given Sunday or holiday to observe the pathetic scene when track management offers free admission to ladies and 'their children.' They would be devastated to see children...in all sorts of unpleasant surroundings...the 3- to 6-year-olds literally are left alone to play on floors in less than sanitary conditions. Others, aged 10 to 13, are left on their own vices, causing all kinds of mischief as they are not chaperoned by a responsible adult."

But even more disheartening is overhearing these children asking their parent or parents to bet on a horse for them."

How does the governor like that for leading children to believe they can get money without working for it?

How about the youngsters, in grocery stores and shopping malls, who see their parents stand in line to buy lottery tickets? What do bingo mothers tell their children? The hypocrisy is monumental.

LOTTERY MESSAGES ALL OVER

Does Gov. Blanchard really believe casinos would have a worse influence on children than the lottery? In Las Vegas and Atlantic City, you must be 21 to enter a casino. In Michigan and dozens of other states, a 5-year-old can look at TV and see what a joyous occasion it is when some lucky gambler wins the lottery. There's nothing on the 6 o'clock news about the mother who spends $20 a week on the lottery but doesn't feed her children properly.

If the governor wants to oppose casino gambling, that's fine. Most people would say he's on the side of the angels. But it's nonsense for him to give children as a reason. Statewide, our children are continually bombarded with colorful hype about the marvelous chance to get rich quick playing the lottery. They watch adults gobble the bait.

The influence of a few Detroit casinos on children would be piddling compared to a TV feature about a man who bought a plush home, 3 cars and a yacht with lottery winnings. If Blanchard doesn't realize that, we've got a dumb governor.

When it comes to gambling and children, perhaps the toughest thing is making a child understand why it's legal to bet a dollar on the lottery but against the law to put a quarter in a slot machine. Or why it's lawful to go to the track and bet on horse races all over the country, but illegal to bet on blackjack and dice.

How do you justify that kind of discrimination to a child? Moral grounds are crumbly — no one is forced to gamble, and Mother plays the lottery. Casinos will attract crime and high-rollers? That's another hoot. We already have crime up to our eyebrows, and the welfare mother dreaming of hitting it big can easily spend a bigger percentage of her income on lottery tickets than a high-roller spends on craps.

No way would casino gambling even come close to solving all Detroit's problems. It would merely provide a few jobs and some glitz to attract tourists — to downtown, not Belle Isle, please. It's easy to be against casinos, but I can't be that hypocritical.

I'll change my mind when Gov. Blanchard says the state lottery should be outlawed because it's a bad influence on youngsters.

MRS. POLLIFAX AND THE GOLDEN TRIANGLE by Dorothy Gilman (mystery). While Emily Pollifax and her husband Cyrus Reed are vacationing in Thailand, she is to pick up some valuable information on drug smuggling from an informant called Ruamsak. Everything goes awry immediately: Ruamsak is murdered, Cyrus is kidnapped and Emily joins forces with Bonchoo, an intriguing stranger with complex reasons of his own for wanting to find Cyrus. The usual phalanx of muddled but supportive CIA agents try to follow Emily through the jungles of Thailand and are seriously rattled when one of their directors abruptly vanishes, only to reappear in the Golden Triangle as the head of all illicit drug trafficking. Pollifax needs all her wiles and her considerable skills in the martial arts, not only to track her husband but also to put a serious dent in the heroin trade.

MURDER IN THE CIA by Margaret Truman (mystery). Although she makes occasional stops in Washington, D.C., Collette Cahill roams mainly from Budapest to the West Indies to London in order to track the culprit who murdered her best friend, Barrie Mayer (a courier for the CIA). Cahill's interest, however, is based on more than friendship. As a CIA agent attached to the Hungarian embassy, she has been ordered to plug the dangerous leak that led to the murder of her friend. Cahill's investigative techniques are unbelievably amateurish; she consistently swoons over the very men that muddled and endangered her friend's life.

MAN WITH A GUN by Robert Daley (fiction). Phil Keefe is a former journalist and an inexperienced New York police commissioner whose promising career is shot down in a sudden display of bravery, idealism, and naivete. A man wrongly accused of a crime is holding a woman hostage when Keefe attempts to intervene. The woman is saved, but the man is shot. Keefe's police chief buddies are less than supportive, his girlfriend leaves for California, the press hang him out to dry, and the one colleague in the force he trusts is occupied with insurmountable personal problems.

YOUR EYES Dr. G.W. McNiven

THE WAY WE SEE

It's a miracle! From the moment you open a book, six small muscles aim each eye exactly at the words you want to read. The iris changes in size to admit just the right amount of light your eyes need to see clearly. Other tiny muscles adjust the thickness of each lens to focus an image on the retina, the light-sensitive screen at the back of the eye. Millions of cells react to the intensity of color and light, generating signals to a portion of the retina that gives us clear vision. The rest of the retina gets a general view of the rest of the environment in your field of vision.

The signals from both your eyes travel along a bundle of nerve fibers to a section of the brain where what you see is translated into a single picture. This picture includes color, detail, light, shadow, depth and motion.

All this happens instantaneously, automatically and continually. Why not protect the miracle of sight with regular eye examinations?

Hopes high for legislation repealing diesel excise tax

Director of the American Farm Bureau Federation Washington office, John Datt, told a group of Michigan farmers meeting in the nation's capital March 15 that he is optimistic that legislation repealing the diesel fuel excise tax for on-farm use will be passed by April 1.

"Our goal was to have 218 members of the House of Representatives and 51 in the Senate by March 15 who would co-sponsor legislation to repeal the diesel fuel tax provision that was passed last December as part of the budget reconciliation," Datt told the members of the Michigan Farm Bureau delegation.

"We have achieved our goal. We're hopeful that given this majority of the House and Senate, we will have bills through both houses. We're optimistic. We think we've got better than a 50/50 chance that by the first of April, we'll have legislation passed that will repeal the diesel fuel tax provisions for on-farm use."

Datt urged the Michigan farmers to encourage co-sponsorship of their representatives who had not yet done so and to ask those who were co-sponsors to talk to other members of the House leadership to make sure that action is taken on the issue.

"We must have action before April 1 because the Internal Revenue Service has said 'this is a law that we can't do anything about delaying,' so we must do something in terms of legislative action," Datt said.

Unless action is taken before April 1, farmers will have to pay the 15 cent per gallon excise tax on their diesel fuel purchases and then file for a refund or credit later. It is estimated that this will be an annual $420 million collection from farmers nationwide.

When the Michigan farmers arrived in Washington, both of their senators, Levin and Riegle, and 9 representatives, Davis, Henry, Kildee, Purcell, Schuette, Traxler, Upton, Wolpe, and Carr were already co-sponsors for the repeal legislation.

Dam builders

Thanks to those dam builders... Czechoslovakia is importing industrious beavers from Norway to help conserve wetlands. Beaver dams create a natural irrigation system that protects marshlands from droughts and floods. They also encourage an abundance of fish, waterfowl and plant life. According to National Wildlife magazine, Czechoslovakia hopes the imported beavers will restore its beaver population, which was wiped out in the 1850s.

DNR appreciates turkey sighting help

Dear Readers,

terest and cooperation.

Bud Jarvis
DNR - Wildlife Biologist

The DNR appreciates the many reports of turkey sightings in Tuscola and Sanilac County during the past winter. From this information, the DNR is certain that the flock of 22 turkeys released in 1984 now numbers at least 150. From the various reports, it appears that the turkey flock has spread from Deford north to Cass City, east to Sanilac County, south to M-46 and west to M-24. With continued protection and support from the public, we can expect the flock to nearly double each year and expand their range 3 to 5 miles annually.

I believe we have a truly wild turkey in Tuscola County and a welcome addition to the wildlife resource. I urge that well-meaning sportsmen refrain from bringing into the county any so-called wild turkeys from game farms or other areas. Most so-called wild turkeys have some domestic blood in them or they may possess diseases that could spread to the turkeys already present.

Area farmers named in 2 suits filed by Berger

Suits and counter suits have been filed in Tuscola County Circuit Court between 2 area farmers and Berger & Co., which has an elevator in Cass City.

Named were David Milligan of Cass City and Smith Farms of Unionville, which includes Gary Smith and C.R. Smith Jr.

Berger is attempting to collect on beans contracted for but not delivered because of the flood of 1986. What the firm seeks to recover is the cost difference between the contract prices and what they claim was the market price at the time of delivery. Berger said that it was forced to buy beans to fulfill its contracts.

The 2 farmers are counter, suing saying that duress and coercion were used in notes signed by Smith Farms for $4,324.16 and Milligan for $6,000. Smith Farms' contract was for $14 per hundredweight and Milligan's for $15 per hundredweight.

In the court briefs filed by the farmers, it is claimed that Berger refused to make payment for beans delivered unless promissory notes were signed. The farmers also claim that they were not required to make delivery of the beans because they were ruined by an act of God.

The farmers also claim constructive fraud because Berger failed to inform them of legal defenses available. The brief also claims that Berger is involved in monopoly price fixing and that the "board" price is whatever the company wants it to be.

Berger claims that it has a right to establish the price for the beans.

A similar case involving William Merchant of Cass City was dropped by Berger when an out-of-court settlement was reached. Terms were not revealed.

Appeals court reverses order in lawsuit

The Court of Appeals, in a published opinion, reversed an order granting a summary judgment entered by Circuit Court Judge Patrick R. Joslyn. In the case of Stoick versus Caro Community Hospital, et al, the Court of Appeals reversed Judge Joslyn's determination that Doctor Dante Loo, M.D. was immune from any liability because the Plaintiff failed to plead facts in avoidance of governmental immunity.

The Court of appeals found that there was a factual issue raised by the affidavits submitted by the parties. The Court of Appeals affirmed the circuit judge's determination that there was no liability because of the claimed intentional breaches of care allegedly committed by Dr. Loo.

Deer blamed in 3 area auto mishaps

Three deer-related vehicle mishaps involving DeFord motorists Friday were reported by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

A vehicle driven by Betty Kulling, 1371 Spencer St., struck a deer while traveling south on Cemetery Road north of Severance Road in Novesta Township, reports state.

Her vehicle sustained moderate damage in the 7:45 p.m. accident.

Christopher P. Zemke, 5878 Bruce St., was driving west on Stevens Road east of Froede Road in Wells Township at about 4:15 a.m. when he saw some deer in the roadway, hit his brakes and lost control on the icy road surface.

The vehicle, which sustained moderate damage, left the road on the north side.

Also Friday, a vehicle driven by David K. Curtis, 1525 Kingston Rd., struck a deer while traveling east on Deckerville Road west of Cemetery Road in Novesta Township.

Reports state that damage to the vehicle was slight in the 4:20 a.m. mishap.

Some people once believed that they could make it rain by getting a black cat to swim across a stream.

Long-term outlook good for farmers - ag specialist

Michigan's diverse agriculture, coupled with an improving farm economy, should set the stage for an improved long-term outlook for Michigan farmers.

"Most of the adjustments needed to turn around the farm crisis have been made," Jake Ferris, a Michigan State University agricultural economics specialist, said. "We can see the light at the end of the tunnel."

Ferris will be a featured speaker at the Agricultural Economics Program during MSU's ANR Week, March 21-26 in East Lansing. The Agricultural Economics Programs begins at 10 a.m. March 22, in room 105 of the Kellogg Center.

Ferris projects that by the early 1990s, the bulging grain surplus that has hampered America's farm industry throughout much of this decade will be virtually eliminated through acreage reduction programs and increased export sales. With modest growth in the world's economy, particularly in underdeveloped countries, expansion in demand for animal protein and attendant livestock feeds should improve the market for U.S. exports of feed grain and soybeans.

"I would say that, for the most part, Michigan will stay with our basic crops," Ferris says. "There may be some shifting of acreage from one crop to another, but I don't see any of our conventional crops going completely out of the picture."

One crop that may be vulnerable is dry beans, Ferris says, pointing out that Ontario, Minnesota and North Dakota have expanded their dry bean acreage.

"It's possible that we could lose it, but I think we have enough going for us in terms of existing producers, grower expertise and a strong market structure to stabilize the industry," he says. "We're still No. 1 in production, but we're not very far ahead of North Dakota."

Several new crops are being considered for commercial production in Michigan. These include canola, sweet legumes, exotic mushrooms, artichokes, broccoli and cauliflower. The demand for canola by the vegetable oil industry has recently increased, Ferris notes.

When researching new crops for Michigan farmers, a committee of researchers and leaders in the agriculture and food industries look at the potential impact on the state's economy and the demand outlook for the crop, and they determine if Michigan would have a comparative advantage in the market.

One comparative advantage that Michigan has over other states is that most of its agriculture and food industry is located near large metropolitan areas.

"A big population very close at hand permits extensive direct marketing through roadside stands and farmers' markets," Ferris says. "These metropolitan areas, with a strong industrial base, offer farm families the flexibility of off-farm income. This is a characteristic that other states do not have and has been a plus in weathering the recent economic storm."

Easy access to fresh water resources and Michigan's proximity to large population areas in North America are also advantages for producers.

"We have a lot going for us here in Michigan," Ferris says. "We have a broad base of rural leadership, firms, institutions and state government agencies involved in the economic development of Michigan's agriculture and food industry."

Refresher courses aired by GLJC

Great Lakes Junior College will begin offering a series of occupational courses beginning spring term (March 22).

The courses, Reading, Math, and Language Usage, are designed to help students who need to upgrade their skills in those areas. These courses will be offered at the Saginaw, Midland, Bay City, and Caro campuses.

Deb Suffety, developmental coordinator of the Occupational Courses program, explained, "Some of our students have been away from the classroom for a while. There are specific skills which they do not use on a day-to-day basis. The occupational courses will act as a refresher in these areas. In this way, we increase the student's chances toward success in their college courses."

"For example, we are basically concerned with making sure that if a student enrolls in Data Processing, they will have the skills to read, understand and explain that material," she said. "I use data processing as an example, but it applies to all curricula."

Suffety, a Saginaw campus faculty member, was recently recognized by American College Testing for a reading skills test unit she developed for the Career Placement Assessment Test, the forerunner which determines who must enroll in the occupational courses.

The Placement Assessment Test is a national exam given to students in vocational and junior colleges. It's designed to measure the entry-level skills of students planning to attend career schools, colleges and other post-secondary institutions offering specific job-related educational programs. The CPAT exam is required to be taken by all students entering Great Lakes Junior College.

Your neighbor says

The tax laws needed changing

Simplification has taken on a new meaning for many area residents trying to figure out the new tax laws while attempting to complete their tax forms in time to meet the April 15 deadline.

According to the experts, itemizing, calculating interest and searching for that extra deduction will require anywhere from 10 percent to 50 percent more time to figure per individual return this year thanks to the 1986 tax overhaul.

The flood of new tax codes and forms has pushed even seasoned tax professionals to the brink of early retirement, according to one recent newspaper article.

Your neighbor, long-time Cass City resident Elaine

LaJoie, says she decided not to attempt figuring out her tax return this year.

"I just chickened out and had mine done by a preparer. He had a calculator and did it in just a few minutes," she remarked, adding that although she did her own return last year, she's depended on professional tax services to handle the task in previous years.

Despite the complicated changes, LaJoie says she was glad to see the implementation of new tax laws.

"I think the tax laws have been unfair. I was glad to see they revised it," she commented. "I think it (tax law) should be changed because I think too many rich people get away without paying anything."

A registered nurse employed at Provincial House in Cass City, LaJoie resides at 6474 River Rd. She has 2 sons, Brian, 19, a cook at the Charmont, Cass City, and Eric, 20, who is serving with the Army in Germany.

Several legislators have indicated that they will be in attendance to observe student performance and to respond to questions relative to educational issues.

Tuckey shines in defeat

USA presses past Hawks on way to regional title

A lot can happen in just a few days.

That's probably how members of Cass City's basketball team felt early in last week's semifinal game against Unionville-Sebewaing at the Frankenthum Class C Regionals March 16.

After roaring past Mayville, 85-72, in the district final 4 days earlier, the Red Hawks, whose team health had deteriorated since then, struggled Wednesday against a quicker Patriot squad, which posted a 65-56 win.

"Their quickness was the difference, no question," Cass City mentor Ron Nurnberger remarked. "We knew it (press) would bother us, but we still did not handle it well."

Weakened at the guard spot by an injured Jeff Krol and a sick Jeff Sontag, Cass City managed to stay close to USA through much of the contest, thanks to a career high 30-point performance by Paul Tuckey.

It was the Patriot's press, however, that proved too much for the Red Hawks in the end.

Cass City trailed 41-40 going into the last quarter. USA went ahead 43-40 before a baseline jumper by Tuckey--the first of his 12 points in the quarter--brought the Hawks to within one point. That's as close as Cass City would get as the Patriots' Bill Brinkman nailed a 3-pointer and teammate David Francomb added 2 more unanswered buckets for a 50-42 lead with 5:44 left.

Tuckey came back with 2 consecutive field goals, but both were matched by USA with 2:39 left. The Patriots went on to maintain a lead of at least 5 points, outscoring the Hawks 24-16 in the final period.

Despite the final score, the 2 teams rarely were more than 3 points apart through the first 3 quarters.

Cass City jumped out to a 4-point lead early in the first period, but Brinkman, Francomb and Brad Winter combined for 8 points to put USA ahead, 12-8 after 5 minutes of play.

USA took a 15-14 advantage into the second quarter, but Cass City fought back to take a 19-17 lead with a 3-pointer by Sontag. USA's unrelenting press continued to take its toll as the Patriots turned 2 steals into baskets to end the quarter with a 29-26 advantage.

The Hawks twice clawed their way back to lead by one in the third period only to lose the advantage.

Nurnberger made no excuses for his squad, but pointed out that Krol's ankle injury, the result of a mishap Saturday, "was a factor because we did not match up at the guard position. Krol had his 2 best games of the year against USA," he said, adding, "In the last 3 weeks he has played tremendously."

Krol, who scored 19 points against Mayville in the district final, played Wednesday, but didn't score.

Fellow guard Sontag, who also played a key role Saturday, meanwhile, was the only other Cass City player to score in double figures Wednesday. He chipped in 15 points, despite a bout with the flu.

For USA, Brinkman poured in 18 points, while Paul Desmarais, Kyle Ewald and Kendall Riemann each chipped in 8.

Overall, the Patriots were one for 2 in 3-pointers, compared to the Red Hawks' 3 for 8 performance (38 percent). In field goals, Cass City converted 21 of 54 shots for 39 percent, while USA made 28 of 60 field goals for 47 percent.

Nurnberger lauded season efforts by seniors Sontag and Greg Hanby, who closed out their high school careers Wednesday. As part of the first Cass City basketball team to win a district title since 1984, he said, "They were fine leaders and competitors."

RARE MOMENT -- There were few instances during Cass City's Class C Regional semifinal game against USA in which the Hawks were able to shake the Patriots' press, but Paul Tuckey managed to break free for 2 of his 30 points late in the game. Above, he's pursued by USA's (left) Matt Prime, Kyle Ewald and Bill Brinkman.

Patriots to meet Dundee Wednesday

Unionville-Sebewaing became regional champions Friday night with a last-second win over Brown City, 63-62, at Frankenmuth. It was the first regional title since 1976 for the Patriots.

USA now moves on to Troy-Athens High School to meet Dundee at 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday. Dundee has a 22-2 record for the season. USA has an 18-6 mark, but has been on a roll in the class C tournament with victories over the Lakers as well as Cass City, 2 teams which defeated the Patriots during the regular season.

Surprisingly, league champion Vassar placed only Mike Gohsman on the first team and Tom Morley on the second.

The Lakers placed 2 senior players, senior Paul Elenbaum and junior Kendal Wertz, on the first team.

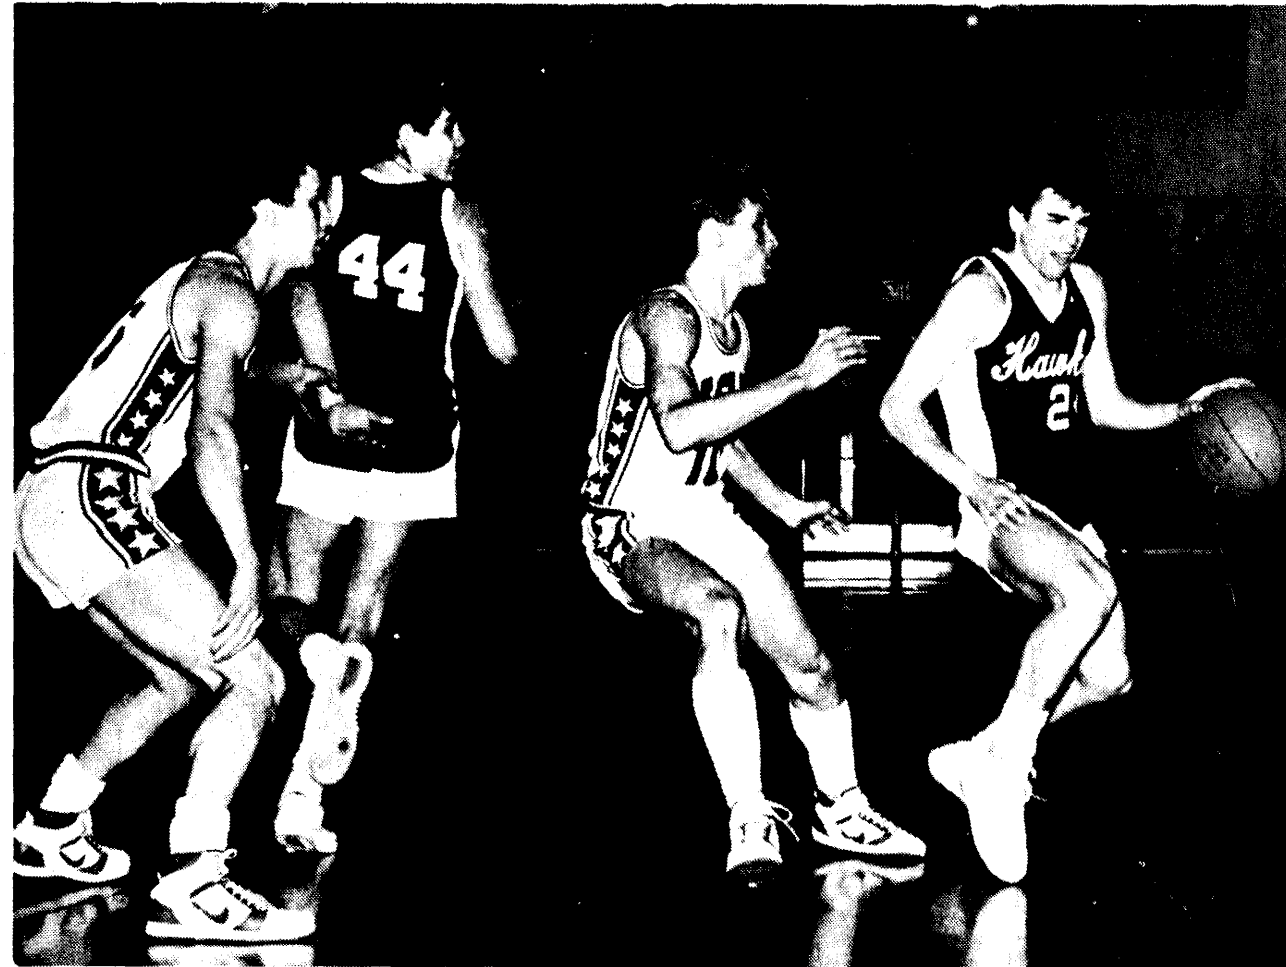

The final first team spot was won by Ryan McFall, senior, Imlay City. This year 3 teams were selected in addition to honorable mention.

Area residents interested in serving on a local school board have until 4 p.m. April 11 to file nominating petitions with their local school superintendent's office.

Two trustee seats on each of the Cass City, Owen-Gage, Kingston and Uby boards of education will expire this year. Voters will fill the 4-year terms in annual school elections to be held June 13.

To be eligible as a candidate, persons must be at least 18 years old, an American citizen, a resident of Michigan for a minimum of 30 days and a registered school district elector.

Individuals who plan to file a nominating petition, available at the superintendents' offices, must obtain at least 20 signatures, although school officials suggest that potential candidates obtain at least 25 signatures in case one or more signatures is deemed void.

In the Cass City School

District, trustee seats now held by Fred Matthews and Beverley A. Auten will expire this year. Auten was elected to a one-year term last year after completing the third year of a 4-year term previously held by now school Supt. Kenneth Micklash.

Micklash pointed out that persons who plan to run for one of the school board seats should file separate nominating petitions for each township in which they intend to obtain signatures. Regardless of the number of petitions a candidate files, the total number of signatures required is still 20, he said.

Other area school board members whose terms will expire this year are Owen-Gage Board of Education President Ronald Good and Trustee Donald Cummins; Kingston School Board Vice-President John Borek Jr. and Trustee Albert Ruggles, and Uby Board of Education trustees Marshall Grifka and John Rutkowski.

2 sign up dates left for softball

Area girls interested in playing in the Cass City Girls' Softball League have 2 days left to sign up.

Registration will be held from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Thursday at Cass City Intermediate School, and from 7 to 8:30 p.m. March 29 at Cass City High School.

The league will again be divided into 3 divisions. Girls who are at least 8 years old but not more than 14 years old will be in 2 divisions. The first will be composed of 8 and 9 year-olds, while the second will be for girls aged 10 to 14 years. Girls in the third division must be at least 14 years old by July 1, but cannot be 18 years old before Sept. 1.

At the final sign up, girls aged 10 to 14 years who did not play previously in the league's second division are asked to participate in a workout, which is designed to help place participants on teams where they will play the most, and to help teams become more evenly matched.

Sign-up sheets are available in the offices of Cass City Schools as well as at the scheduled sign-up locations.

League officials are still looking for persons interested in serving as head and assistant coaches in the league. Additional information is available by contacting Jim Turner at 872-2474, or Ken Micklash at 872-3927.

Expect larger fish in very good steelhead spring season

Nearly ideal stream conditions and a large number of spawning fish returning to parent waters should propel Michigan to a very good spring steelhead fishing season for the fourth consecutive year, according to AAA Michigan.

Since streams are clear and at normal water levels, anglers should find steelhead ready to strike in fairly heavy numbers on the 48 rivers listed in AAA Michigan's 1988 Steelhead Guide.

Fisheries biologists from the Department of Natural Resources expect peak runs to start in mid-March. Last year, the first push of spring runs began in early February in many southern Michigan streams but slowed later when water temperatures dropped.

This season's best results are expected from mid-March to mid-April in southwest Michigan, early to mid-April in southeast Michigan, mid-April to early May in central Michigan and northern lower Michigan and late April to mid-May in the Upper Peninsula.

Along Lake Michigan, best runs are expected on the St. Joseph, Kalamazoo, Grand, Rogue, Muskegon, Little and Big Manistee, Betsie, Platte, Elk, Jordan and Boyne Rivers.

The Cheboygan, Au Sable, East Branch of the Au Gres, Rifle and Pigeon Rivers should be the top streams off Lake Huron.

Along Lake St. Clair, the Huron and Clinton Rivers should provide very good action.

The most productive U.P. streams should be the Manistique, Days, White Fish and Big Cedar Rivers off Lake Michigan; Carp, Sucker and Big Two Hearted Rivers off Lake Superior, and the St. Mary's River off Lake Huron.

The majority of this year's spawning runs are from 1984 and 1985 plantings and should weigh between 8 and 11 pounds. The 1986 plants will enter streams for the first time and should weigh from 2 to 5 pounds. Michigan's record steelhead is 26 1/2 pounds.

Beginning next spring, anglers should find larger and perhaps more spawning fish. Last year, the DNR increased the size of fish being planted from 4.5 inches to 7.3 inches, which should help increase the survival rate by 40 percent.

Anglers stream fishing for steelhead often use salmon eggs or the roe from a captured fish as bait, tucking eggs into a piece of nylon to make a half-inch sack. The bag should bump along the bottom through deep holes away from light, usually found near rocks, stumps or submerged logs. Other methods include using spinners, flies and plugs.

The minimum size for "keepers" remains the same as last season. Steelhead must be at least 8 inches on Lower Peninsula streams and 7 inches in the U.P. The daily limit is 5 in any combination with salmon and other trout species.

The 1988 Michigan Fishing Guide contains regulations for specific streams and their upstream limits. Anglers should refer to pages 12-15 for the list of steelhead streams with extended seasons. The guide is available free wherever fishing licenses are sold or it can be obtained from the DNR or one of its field offices.

The guide also contains health standards regarding consumption and tips on how best to clean, prepare and cook fish. Although contaminant levels in Great Lakes fish have dropped in recent years, health guidelines should be followed by children and pregnant or nursing women.

Boys' Little League sign up days set

Area boys aged 7 years to 12 years who are interested in joining the Cass City Boys' Little League will have 2 days this month in which to sign up.

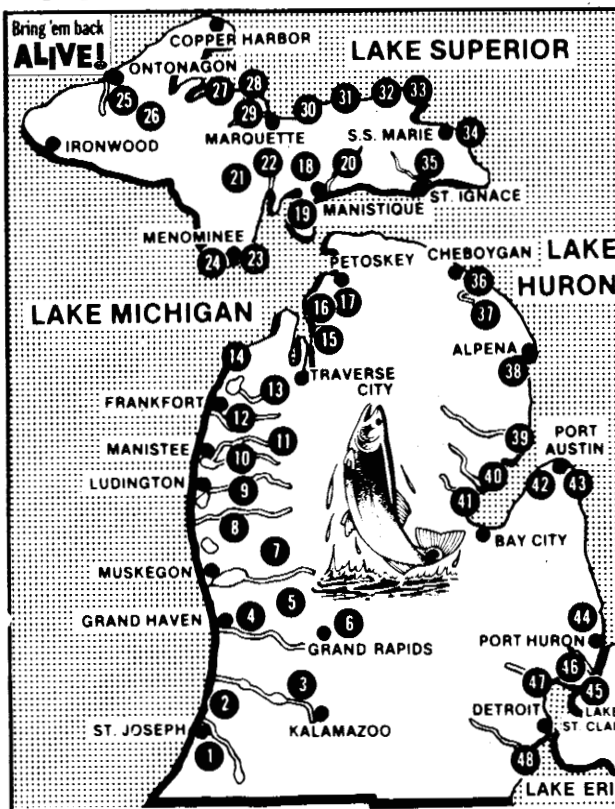

Registration will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. March 25 and 29 at the Cass City Intermediate School cafeteria. Players must register on one of these dates, or contact Dan Ulfig or Ken Schott in order to play.

Also, youths must have been born after Aug. 1, 1975, but before July 31, 1981, in order to join the league.

Cost to participate is $6 per player, with a maximum fee of $12 per family.

League officials say they're looking for adults willing to volunteer their time as coaches and umpires. Interested persons can contact Ulfig at 872-2702 or Schott at 872-3589.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

The top 10 of the big brokers, running from Merrill Lynch on down to Kidder Peabody, have $221 billion in mutual funds of their own.

It's another giant figure in this field of mutual funds. Did you know that there are more mutual funds than there are stocks on the big board? 'Big board' is what we call the New York Stock Exchange when we want to act sophisticated, which is often. It's like reporters in Washington referring to Congress as "the hill."

Total value of all mutual funds—some 2,100+—is $750 billion. Good heavens, that's $3,000 or so for every man, woman and child in the USA.

There are even some mutual funds that invest just in other mutual funds. Next will be mutual funds that invest just in mutual funds that invest just in mutual funds.

And of course there are market letters that tell you which mutual funds to buy. And surely some fellow has a letter telling you which market letters are best. In time there will be a super-letter advising which of the market letters analyzing the field of market letters does the best job.

Don't go away. Mutual funds are open-end and closed-end. There should be letters available for each of these segments of the market. In fact, Thomas J. Herzfeld, a Miami broker, has written a book devoted only to closed-end funds.

In the open-end mutual funds, there are the no-load funds (no buying or selling commission) and the load funds, where for $1,000 worth of funds your $1,000 buys only $920 worth of assets.

Among other late wrinkles in the industry are "sector funds" where a fund acquires only stocks in one sector of the business world—semi-conductors (whatever they are), utilities, drugs, transportation, and so on and so on. Fidelity, the biggy of funds, has 35 sector funds. Just when the fund peddlers had people convinced that one of the major virtues of mutual funds is diversification, then they turn 180 degrees and sell the customers on the merits of not diversifying.

Lots of salesmen push mutual funds pretty hard, because commissions are high. These brokers sing the merits of diversifying or sector funds and professional management and automatic reinvestment of dividends and whatever else comes to mind.

A couple things the salesmen don't tell you:

1. The load funds—the ones where you pay up to an 8 or 9% sales commission—charge a management fee. Typical annual charges are 6/10ths to 1% of the value of your shares.

2. Until the last quarter of 1987, the performance of mutual stock funds was poorer than the Dow Jones stock average. In the last quarter "the Dow" fell off 23% and mutual funds fell off 21%.

This was a fairly typical after-golf conversation with a member of the foursome talking about his investment views:

"I have some bonds and I have some stocks," said Al. "Bonds, I have only triple-A. My wife complains I don't get enough income from them."

"Stocks aren't working out so well for me. My IBM got up to 175 and I watched it go down to 105. When it got back to 120 I figured it was going higher so I bought some more. Then it went to 132. Then it fell down to 116. I was afraid it would back to 105 so I sold out. Now it's 122, and my wife is unhappy about this, too."

After this sad tale of a stock like a yo-yo, we clucked sympathetically. I offered a suggestion on his bond problem with income from an assortment of triple-A's.

"Why don't you swap your triple-A's for some single-A's? You'd increase your income about 10%. A triple A gives you about 7.2% now, and a single-A coupon would be 8%."

Another old-timer chipped in, "I remember a lot of A-rated bonds in the depression (1932, that is) that defaulted."

My suggestion of single-A bonds had fallen with a dull thud. This happens to me frequently.

We then went on to a more cheerful subject, our oyster stew. Mine had 14 oysters in it. Even for this famous concoction at the golf club, it was close to a record.

I do find it interesting that people who play around in the stock market without thought of risk, suddenly become very conservative when they buy bonds.

Even Barron's and the Wall Street Journal when comparing stock and bond yields use AAA bonds versus a mixed bag of stocks, far away in stability and security.

In spite of all this prejudicial slanting toward stocks, even a triple-A tax-exempt bond returns 3 times the after-tax income of the average stock.

Stocks, I freely admit, are much more exciting than these old bonds I speak of so often. They're more fun, too. That is, they were until Oct. 19, 1987.

April 5 election

Many services tied to millage

Both old and young, rich and poor, sick and healthy will be affected if a special county-wide millage request is defeated April 5.

That was the message presented by a host of county officials, department heads and citizens at a news conference held Friday in Caro. The gathering was sponsored by Citizens for Better Government, a volunteer organization pushing for passage of the 4-year, additional 1.5 mill request.

Although county commissioners and Citizens for Better Government have long been saying cuts will affect "nonmandatory" services such as health and senior services, sheriff's road patrol, mental health, alcohol enforcement and others, Friday's meeting focused on specific services that would be in line for cuts if the millage question should fail.

The brief news conference touched on a number of county service areas, including:

—Road Patrol—Sheriff Paul Berry noted that the road patrol provides not only 24-hour protection, but also is a source of peace of mind for citizens.

Last year, the patrol answered more than 6,749 calls and assisted with 5,841 calls.

3 mills sought by Cass City board

That can be used for graduation from 11 to 8 1/2.

The board is nearly certain to make the changes official at the next board meeting, that will be held at Evergreen School April 18. Because it is a change in board policy, the board must wait a month before taking official action.

HONORED

The board has selected 2 persons to be honored for work with youth from the district. Bob Stickle, nominated last year and missed because of a foul up by the committee in charge, will be recognized this year. This year's other nominee will be Walt Goodall of Cass City, avid sports fan and school booster for a half century.

OTHER BUSINESS

Trustee Fred Matthews attended a meeting concerning agriculture at the Tuscola Area Skill Center and reported that a meeting of school boards and administrators in Tuscola County is planned for sometime in September to see what can be done to preserve agriculture education in the county.

He said that 2 speakers at the meeting told how agriculture education in other schools has flourished under new leadership. One of the schools had less than 300 students in the school, Matthews revealed.

Intermediate Principal Don Schelke reported on the academic track program in the school and stressed that volunteer help from teachers and others has made the program successful at a minimum cost to the district.

"If the millage doesn't succeed, there will be no road patrol as I understand it," Berry remarked. He added that the state police post in Caro would have to "pick up the slack" if the road patrol were cut.

Only 2 county municipalities have 24-hour police departments, he pointed out, adding that other village departments, which provide patrols for a certain number of hours per day, probably would not be willing to leave their respective municipal boundaries.

—Senior Services—Senior citizen spokesman Vivian Winter stated that services now offered, such as home delivered meals, transportation, chore services, home repair and others, allow many seniors to maintain their independence.

Rejection of the additional millage would mean that many seniors would fall back on their families or nursing homes, she said.

—Agriculture—Without the additional millage, services offered locally to farmers would be crippled, according to Cooperative Extension Director Bill Bortel, who remarked, "The 4-H program would disappear in Tuscola County."

Assuming cooperative extension were eliminated, Bortel and other officials pointed out that technical expertise provided to farmers on crops, soil, livestock and related issues would be unavailable. Also, the Displaced Farmers Program, which last year placed more than 85 farm family members into off-farm employment, would be in jeopardy, as would $250,000 in support, staff time and technical expertise donated by Michigan State University.

—Health Services—County Health Officer Ed Golsen said the health department would suffer cuts in both public health nursing and environmental health programs.

Examples are reduced clinic services for immunizations, testing for sewage pollution and investigation of housing complaints regarding unsanitary housing conditions.

Fees would be instituted for many services, such as drinking water analysis, now provided free, and local support for programs such as Family Planning and WIC (Women Infants and Children) would be withdrawn completely, he said.

—Mental Health—Community Mental Health Director Dennis Johnson offered an example of the loss of federal and state dollars that would occur if the mental health budget were to be cut.

If $10,000 were cut from the county allocation of $87,900, he said, mental health, which provides services for the developmentally disabled and the mentally ill/emotionally disturbed, would lose an additional $150,000 in state funds and revenue from insurance, mainly Medicaid.

—Libraries—Barbara Hutchinson, representing county libraries, stated that overall, penal fees in the form of traffic tickets provide 45 percent of county libraries' budgets. About half of those tickets are written by the sheriff's road patrol, she added.

Hutchinson, director of Rawson Memorial Library in Cass City, added that one library, in Kingston, depends on the ticket revenues for 84 percent of its budget. Rawson Memorial Library depends on the source of funding for about 1/3 of its budget.

"For all of us, it would be a significant loss of income," she said.

—Other Services—Other county services that would be affected include veterans counseling, which had contact with more than 3,000 veterans and their families in 1987; animal control, which last year handled 992 incidents of animal complaints in pick-up last year; soil conservation, which has assisted hundreds of farmers with technical advice on reduced and no-till applications, and reforestation; Economic Development Corporation, and marine safety, which includes the Boat Safety Certification Program and Drowning and Boat Rescue Services.

"The county's financial problems are very real," county Controller Michael Hoagland emphasized.

He explained that the need for the additional 1.5 mills, expected to raise $826,000 in 1989, is based on a combination of factors.

They include the loss of about $500,000 annually in Federal Revenue Sharing funds and a combined loss of $626,000 in property tax revenue in 1987, 1988 and 1989 due to a 22 percent drop in the county's State Equalized Valuation over the 3-year period.

Further, he said, the 17 percent decline in SEV from 1985-87 was the largest drop among Michigan counties, while Tuscola County's operating millage is the lowest among counties in Michigan, and has remained unchanged for the past 24 years.

Area man sentenced in district court

A 26-year-old Kingston man was sentenced Monday in Tuscola County District Court for a Feb. 22 conviction of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

William D. Maxson Jr., 4680 Rossman Rd., was sentenced to 5 days in the county jail and 2 years probation, and ordered to pay a $267 fine, $183 in costs and $60 in restitution. He also was ordered not to drink alcoholic beverages.

Maxson was arrested Aug. 6, 1987, in Kingston Township, according to court records.

Also Monday, Brian K. Martlock, 22, Berkley, was arraigned on a charge of possession of a short-barreled shotgun.

Martlock was released on a $3,000 personal recognizance bond. His preliminary examination was scheduled for 9 a.m. March 30.

The offense, which allegedly occurred March 4 in Indianfields Township, carries a maximum penalty of 5 years imprisonment or $2,500.

Minor auto mishap reported in Cass City

A minor vehicle accident Saturday was reported by the Cass City Police Department.

Reports state that a vehicle driven by Kenneth R. Harris, Greenland Rd., Cass City, struck a sign post while backing out of a private drive at 6684 Huron St. Damage in the 3 p.m. mishap was slight.

knocked on their apartment door at about 1 a.m. Feb. 28, and then smashed the glass in the door and broke in. The pair, armed with shotguns, identified themselves as police officers and demanded money and drugs, the Wildings said.

Karen Wilding, who stated that there were no narcotics in the apartment, testified that one of the men forced her husband on the floor and held a shotgun to his head, while the other man began turning on lights and rummaged through the apartment. The men were in the apartment for 4 or 5 minutes before they heard a car horn and left the dwelling, she said.

The couple listed a pocket knife, wallet, a ring and a $2 bill missing from the apartment. Karen Wilding identified Vega as the man who rummaged through the apartment. She also identified the sweat suit allegedly worn by Jordan, but neither she nor her husband could positively identify Jordan's face.

Additional charges are expected to be brought in the case, according to Tuscola Sheriff Department Detective Larry Walker.

Bird feeding helps pair enjoy nature

Bird feeding may not be the first thing that comes to mind when considering top-rated winter activities, but a number of area residents say the hobby is a great way to enjoy Michigan wildlife.

Residents throughout the state apparently agree, according to a recent national survey, which estimates that one of every 3 households in Michigan actively tends feeding stations for birds.

Comments by 3 area residents indicate that while bird feeding can be an expensive proposition, it also provides hours of enjoyment.

Maurice and Margaret Haag, 6457 Elizabeth St., are enjoying their second year of bird feeding.

The Cass City couple's feeding area, located in front of their neatly landscaped home, appears to offer something for everything, and at every height.

They've set up a ground feeder, a 4-foot high stationary feeder and 36-to-8-foot high hanging feeders.

"We have several feeding stations because different birds like to feed at different levels," Maurice explained.

"The blue jays and cardinals prefer the ground level, as do the morning dove and junco," he said, adding, "The stationary feeder (is) preferred by the grosbeak and several species of finches. The hanging feeders (are) preferred by the finches, chickadee, nuthatch and pine siskin."

RARE VISITORS

Aside from the more common Michigan species, Haag says he's also had some more rare visitors, including the house finch.

"They're rare for the Midwest. We saw our first one last winter, and this winter, we've seen 2 males and one female," he said. The house finch, which has bright red coloring on its head, breast and at the tip of its tail, is common to areas west of the Rockies and along the east coast.

The Haags also have attracted squirrels and rabbits, which are fed via a bowl of feed and a few corn cobs scattered on the ground.

"When we got married, we decided to put in some bushes and trees—kind of landscape," Haag continued. He explained that adding natural cover near a planned feeding area provides a more suitable and attractive environment for birds.

"We started with one hanging feeder, and (we) had 30 birds trying to land on one perch, Haag recalled. He noted that the couple put up a second feeder, and then a third. Haag says that the birds go through about 200 pounds of feed per winter. The cost, by buying in bulk, totals about $50.

"The (feed) they prefer is sunflower hearts. It's one of the highest quality foods, and it's one of the most expensive."

MIXED FEED

The Haags also use a mixed feed consisting of millet, thistle seed, cracked corn, milo, sunflower and whole wheat.

Haag says "he believes bird feeding can be a good hobby for any couple, but cautions others to consider the expense before making a decision to feed birds during the winter."

"You have to make up your mind that if you start feeding them, you keep feeding them through the winter," he remarked.

"They depend on this food supply. If you don't feed them for a couple days, they'll hang around, but they'll begin to weaken" in harsh winter conditions, Haag explained. He pointed out that birds can die under such conditions if suddenly left without a food source they've become accustomed to, particularly if other sources of food aren't available nearby.

Despite the responsibility and cost, Haag commented, "We figure that as long as we enjoy it, it isn't too high a price to pay, all things considered. It's good for them and it's good for us."

Deford residents Harriet Warner and her mother Effie, agree.

"My mother's 90 years old and we both enjoy them (birds)," Harriet remarked.

She stated that she has a feeder mounted on a post, as well as a ground feeding area. "They really come if you put it on the ground," Harriet said. "One day we had between 10 and 15 evening grosbeak, and we have cardinals and blue jays. We have a woodpecker once in a while and we have lots of sparrows." Chickadees, juncos, gold finches and doves also are frequent visitors, she added.

EXPENSIVE

"I think feeding birds is quite expensive, but we enjoy it," Harriet said. "I have a great big garbage can that I fill, and that's half gone."

Harriet, a retired educator who taught for 38 years, including 26 years in the Cass City School District, said she's been feeding birds for nearly 10 years.

"Somebody gave me a bird feeder for Christmas and that's how I got started. I do it all winter."

Another pair of Deford residents, Clarence and Phyllis Cox, have enjoyed the hobby for 12 years.

"They're hungry little rascals," Phyllis remarked. "It's fun to watch them."

She noted that while 100 or more pounds of bird feed over the winter can add up in terms of expense, she and her husband believe they're getting a good return on their money.

"There's nothing prettier than a cardinal on the feeder when there's snow on the ground," she said.

MAURICE HAAG refills one of 3 hanging feeders outside his home. It's a task he performs about every other day.

Appeal by William S. Day dismissed by court

The Court of Appeals, pursuant to an agreement filed on behalf of defendant William S. Day and the prosecution's appellate counsel, ordered a dismissal of an appeal filed on behalf of Day.

The case has been pending in the Court of Appeals since the fall of 1986.

Day pleaded guilty to assault with intent to commit kidnapping, and prison escape, March 3, 1986. He was sentenced April 14, 1986, to 80 months to 120 months in prison by Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Patrick R. Joslyn, who further imposed a sentence of 60 months to 90 months to run consecutive to the 10-year sentence.

Day subsequently escaped prison again from the forensic center in Ypsilanti with the assistance of an employee of that institution, and is now in the state of Texas awaiting trial on a number of murder charges.

Stepped up income tax program nets $226 million

Michigan's stepped up income tax enforcement and compliance program has produced $226.1 million since it began with an amnesty plan in 1986, Treasury officials reported.

The program has permanently expanded the tax base, producing several million in additional revenue, and new efforts include issuing $7.8 million in tax due statements to individuals identified through matching state records of licensed occupations.

Treasurer Robert Bowman said the computer match of occupations, in part the result of a profile of a typical "tax cheat," will now be conducted annually, as will automatic reviews of individuals who filed returns in previous years who fail to file new tax returns.

The profile, drawn from a 10 percent sample of the 20,496 persons who paid taxes under the amnesty provisions, is of a single male management/executive (either self-employed or in sales), earning about $56,000 a year.

It is the first such analysis in the country and officials said Michigan is the only state to use its amnesty program to create a data base for better targeting future enforcement.

A computer match against IR files and other state agencies resulted in $19.6 million in tax assessments against 125,230 persons in the first 13 months of operation of the Discovery Division.

The tax assessments against individuals holding occupational licenses resulted from computer matches of 100,252 persons in 15 fields.

Of the $7.8 million in tax assessments, over half, $4.5 million, was assessed against 508 builders who had failed to file returns, followed by $1.3 million against 82 certified public accountants.

Bowman said he was surprised by the relatively high portion (76.1 percent) of those taking part in the amnesty program who continued in the tax base by filing 1986 returns.

He said it indicates taxpayers believed the amnesty was a one-time chance to avoid penalties, which since have been increased to a maximum of 50 percent of the tax owed, plus interest.

While difficult to calculate with precision, he said better enforcement and higher voluntary compliance would add over $100 million annually to the state's revenue base.

The total amount produced to date includes $109.8 million from the amnesty program; another $88.1 million has been collected in voluntary payments above the base year in 1985, and $27.4 million has been paid under stricter audits, a report compiled by Revenue Commissioner Susan Work Martin said.

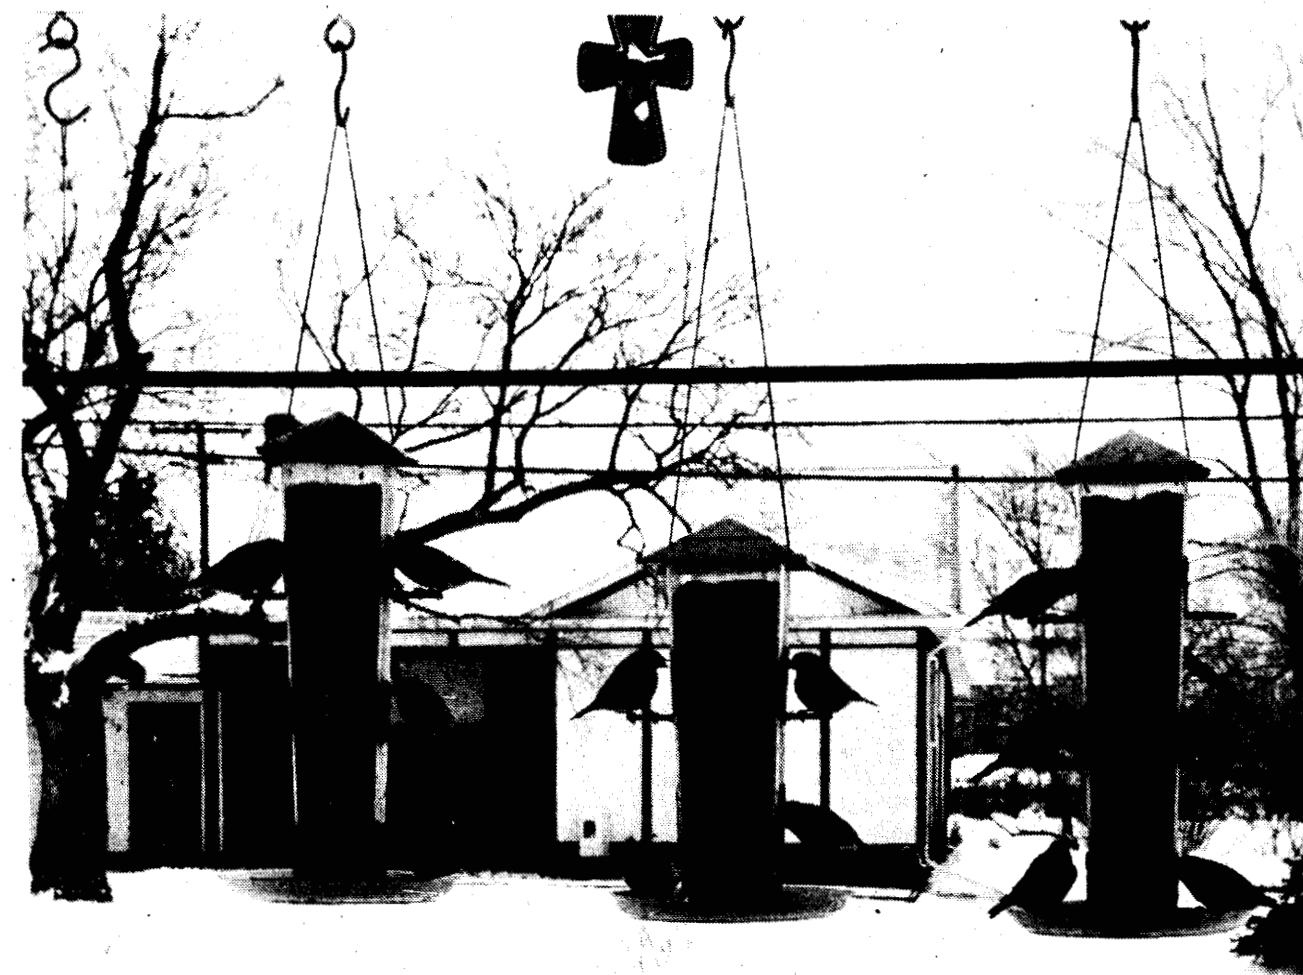

Garbage can reported stolen

The larceny of a garbage can from a Cass City residence was reported recently to the Cass City Police Department.

David Knight, 6396 Garfield Avenue, stated that the can, valued at $15, was taken sometime after 11 p.m. March 16 but before 9 a.m. Thursday.

Treasures

Biological treasures: Amber is fossilized plant resin that takes about five million years to form. Many pieces of amber contain the remains of insects, other animals or plants. The oldest known amber-preserved insects date back 130 million years. According to International Wildlife magazine, some researchers say that such insects may help explain the course of evolution. They may even help scientists better understand dinosaurs, what they looked like and how they acted.

FEEDING TIME -- Despite the appearance of cooperation among these birds enjoying a free meal at the Maurice and Margaret Haag residence in Cass City, the birds can often be seen bickering and jockeying for position among the hanging feeders installed by the Haags, who say they enjoy winter bird feeding.

at their hall on Ryan Road. Mr. and Mrs. Leo Seuryneck arrived home last Tuesday after spending the past month with their daughter and family, Bruce and Mary Lee Houghton of Dallas, and David Seuryneck, also of Dallas.

Mrs. Bert (Elizabeth) Bain is a patient at St. Joseph's Hospital in Pontiac.

The Owen-Gage elementary students celebrated March as Reading Month with a showcase decorated with favorite book covers designed by the reading class and by taking part in U.S.S.R. The winners were: first grade, Melissa Albrecht; second grade, Robbie McClorey; third grade, Corey Packard; fourth grade, Austin Brinkman; fifth grade, Michelle Pisarek, and sixth grade, Tim Tarver. Friday, Cathy Sullivan and Sister Nancy were among the luncheon guests at the Brentwood in Caro.

Alfred J. Crowle, Ph.D. of the Webb-Waring Lung Institute and the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center in Denver, says that his finding demonstrates, for the first time, that a natural substance is capable of inhibiting the growth of Mycobacterium tuberculosis in human macrophages under laboratory conditions.

Nine members attended the March meeting of the Elmwood Extension which was held at the home of Millie Laurie. They answered roll call with an Irish superstition. Helen Stock read the minutes of the last meeting and reported on the council meeting. The lesson on grocery shopping was given by Elma Miklovich.

The April meeting will be hosted by Agatha LaFave Tuesday, April 5. Anyone interested in joining the extension may contact a member.

Lesson material for group or private use is available at the Extension office in Caro.

HEALTH TIPS

Sunlight can help in cure of tuberculosis

The fresh-air tuberculosis sanatoriums of the 1920's may have been on to something: Sunlight may ward off TB and even help in its cure, according to a Colorado researcher.

Treatment of human cells of the immune systems with Vitamin D, which is normally produced in the skin during exposure to sunlight protects these cells against the microorganism that causes tuberculosis.

Alfred J. Crowle, Ph.D. of the Webb-Waring Lung Institute and the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center in Denver, says that his finding demonstrates, for the first time, that a natural substance is capable of inhibiting the growth of Mycobacterium tuberculosis in human macrophages under laboratory conditions.

"This discovery opens up new vistas of research into how immunity to TB is expressed," Dr. Crowl said. "It may eventually lead to the discovery of other substances capable of preventing TB and other infections."

Macrophages are a type of cell which play a major role in the body's response to invading microorganisms. When Dr. Crowle infected macrophages with tubercle bacilli and then added Vitamin D, the bacteria did not reproduce in the macrophages. This was in stark contrast to the rapid bacterial growth

Square dance at high school

Town and Country Square Dance Club will hold a dance Saturday, March 26. It will be at Cass City High School, 8:00 till 11:00 p.m. All square dancers are welcome.

Special services at Juniata church

Easter Sunday will mark the beginning of a revival campaign at Juniata Baptist Church. Evangelist Pete Rice of Murfreesboro, Tenn., will conduct a 6-day series of special services, commencing Easter Sunday morning.

Rice has preached at the Juniata church several times over the past 10 years and is well known in this rural community. Brought up on a ranch and trained as a cowboy, Evangelist Rice spices his sermons with true stories of ranch life.

Easter services will begin at 10 a.m. April 3 with a Sunday School Rally attended by classes of every age group. Rice will take part in the rally program. The rally will be followed by the Easter service, which will include special music and a sermon by Evangelist Rice.

All 9 of the church Sunday School buses will be running on Easter to provide transportation. Those interested in having the bus come to their homes should call 823-7848 or 823-2189 for more information.

The Juniata Baptist Church is located between Vassar and Mayville at 5656 Washburn Road.

Evening revival services through April 8 will begin at 7:30 p.m.

HDC food distribution slated March 31

The Human Development Commission will be having a surplus commodity distribution from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. March 31 at the Cass City Village Park, Caro Fairgrounds and Ivan Middleton Hall, Vassar.

Due to the possible elimination of the Commodity Distribution Program, re-registration will not take place at this time. Persons who are currently enrolled in the program are urged to keep their cards for any future distributions.

Due to the volume of commodities, individuals are asked to bring cardboard boxes to carry their commodities.

Individuals must report to their distribution site in person and present their Surplus Commodity Registration card. Persons who are physically unable to go to a distribution site may have someone pick up their commodities only if the registration card is presented.

The surplus commodities have been made available to the HDC, the local Community Action Agency serving Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac and Lapeer counties, from the federal government and are intended for personal consumption by eligible low income families.

Tootsie Roll drive set

The Knights of Columbus, Cass City-Gagetown Council 8892, will conduct its annual Tootsie Roll drive in both towns Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Members will be at main street intersections and at local grocery stores to collect funds.

About 80 percent (minus expenses) of the proceeds collected are donated back to the local community for mentally handicapped persons and/or programs, according to Daryl Iwan-kovitch, recording secretary for Council 8892. The remaining 20 percent, he said, goes to the state fund.

The local council over the past 2 years has donated nearly $4,000 in Tootsie Roll funds to special education programs at Cass City and Owen-Gage schools; Provincial House in Cass City and Gagetown Senior Manor in Gagetown.

Area residents who have suggestions on where the funds might be donated are urged to contact any area Knights of Columbus member.

Thumb Singles to hold party

The Polkalodians will perform at the YMCA Thumb Singles Club's next party, at the Sandusky Maple Valley Elementary School, Saturday, March 26, from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

Guests are welcome.
