OK $25,000 water main project

A block-long section of an old water main believed to be causing rust problems for Third Street residents will be replaced this year, the Cass City Village Council decided Monday night.

The council voted unanimously to pursue the estimated $25,000 project, which will involve replacing a section of main between Woodland Avenue and Ale Street.

Councilman Nat Tuttle, chairman of the council's Public Services Committee, recommended approval of the work.

"We sincerely hope that will take care of the whole problem," he told the council, adding that if problems continue, village officials will take steps to investigate further.

A petition requesting immediate action on the water problem, signed by more than 21 Third Street residents who live between Woodland Avenue and Seeger Street, was presented to the council last month.

Village Manager Lou S. LaPonsie at that time stated that weekly testing by the village confirmed "objectionable" levels of iron in water from the main. He estimated the main is more than 50 years old.

LaPonsie Monday stated that the project will be covered by funds in the village's Water System Fund.

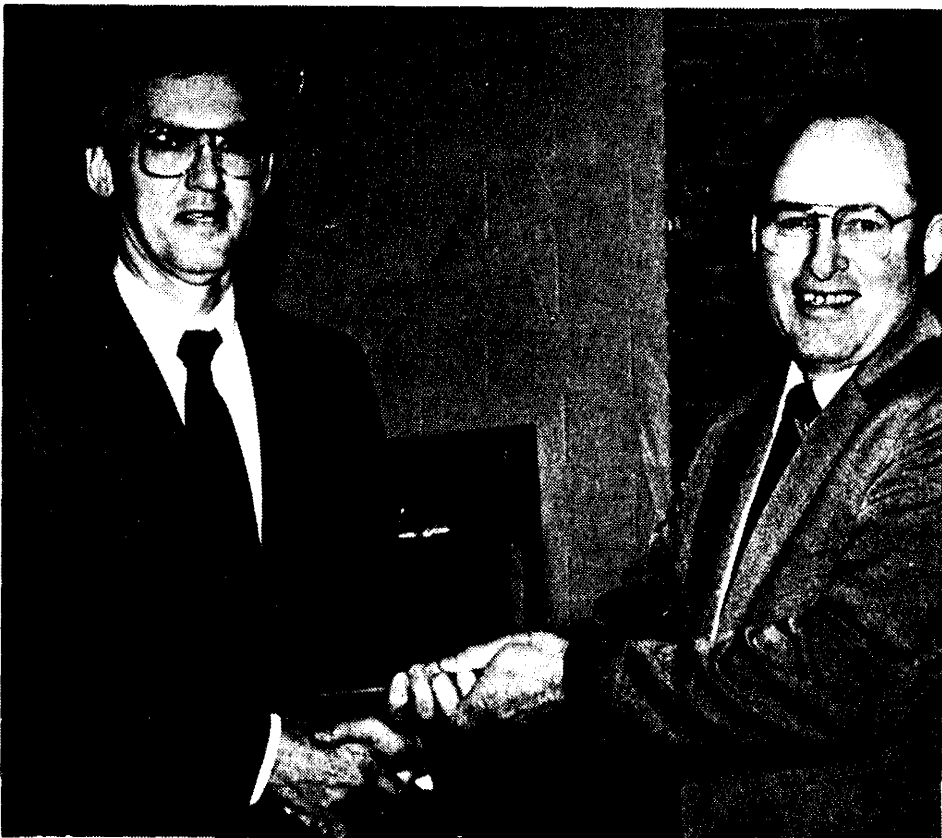

In other business during the 40-minute rescheduled monthly meeting, the council approved extending an existing contract with Gateway Sanitation Services, Almont, through Dec. 31, 1989.

The extension, a one-year contract beginning Jan. 1, 1989, calls for continuation of the current service rate of $3.50 per month per resident. The agreement also states that Gateway has the option of raising the service rate should landfill costs increase.

A representative of Gateway who attended Monday's meeting indicated that service rates could increase slightly. He said a 20 percent landfill price increase to Gateway would translate into a hike to residents of only about 5 percent.

The contract extension was approved on a vote of 4-1. Trustee Joanne Hopper, who stated she believes the contract language regarding a possible service rate increase is vague, cast the lone dissenting vote.

Also Monday, the council received a petition signed by 18 Fourth Street residents who requested that their street, between West and Vulcan Streets, be resurfaced; appointed new trustee Matt Priesskorn as the village's Memorial Day Parade chairman, and rescheduled its regular May meeting from Memorial Day to May 23.

CITIZEN OF THE YEAR MIKE WEAVER accepts congratulations from last year's recipient, Lou LaPonsie.

CHAMBER BOARD member John Maharg presents the "Junior Citizen of the Year Award" to Senior Dave Burnette, who shared the honor with Jane Dickinson who was unable to attend.

Area police say more help needed in war on drugs

Extensive drug raids conducted by federal, state and other officers in Bay, Saginaw and Tuscola counties last week have been deemed a major victory in the war against drugs in the Saginaw Bay area.

The operation, which netted charges against 30 persons, including a Cass City area resident, was praised by law enforcement officials in Tuscola County.

At the same time, however, county officials say the recent drug raids are a frustrating reminder that the drug problem here is bigger than local law enforcement officials' ability to fight it.

Last week's raids, conducted by some 170 law enforcement officers, were the result of lengthy investigations conducted by the FBI and BAYANET (Bay Area Narcotics Enforcement Team).

According to Lt. William

Burns, a member of the criminal investigations section of the Michigan State Police, the April 12 raids turned up guns, cash, large quantities of cocaine and 25 to 30 vehicles.

One of the investigations resulted in the arrests of 12

At Chamber banquet

Althaver predicts more jobs at Walbro

In addition to learning who won honors for the year, members of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce attending the annual banquet Tuesday night at Cass City High School enjoyed a varied program and heard some good news from Lambert Althaver, village president, who presented the state of the village address.

Althaver called attention to the progress in the business community in the year and said that the prospects for industrial growth were "very, very good."

Althaver, who is also president and chairman of the board at Walbro Corporation, said that there will be new opportunities for employment at Walbro before the end of the year.

Guests also got a sneak preview of this year's Christmas creation by Lloyd Vyse and Carl Schell, a large cow-like papier mache figure named Hilda.

Althaver also dressed in a ringmaster's outfit and brought out a group of clowns to announce the "greatest show on earth" that was a hint of what is in store for Cass Cityans and visitors during the Christmas season.

KEYNOTE SPEECH

Stanley Beach, retired United States Marine Chaplain who was awarded the Bronze Star, showed slides and described life with soldiers on the front. Citing the odds, he said that Marines in Vietnam after a few days at the front talked about when they were going to be hit by a bullet rather than if, he said. We owe these men a debt of gratitude, he continued, and said that publicity about the inability for returning vets to adjust is heard everywhere, but the facts are that veterans as a group have better jobs, graduate more from college and are more successful than those who were not serving overseas.

On a personal note, Beach said that he had lived in 18 different homes during

Weaver honored for long service to community

A long record of public service stretching back to when he joined the Cass City business community 20 years ago has earned Mike Weaver, 42, citizen of the year honors for 1988. The award, together with the co-junior citizen of the year awards were announced Tuesday, April 12, at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet at Cass City High School.

The junior citizens are David Burnette and Jane Marie Dickinson.

Weaver has been active in virtually all of the organizations promoting Cass City for business and industry. He currently is serving his second term as a member of the village council and is active in the Salvation Army.

He is active in the Cass City Chamber of Commerce and the Retail Division of the Chamber and is a past president of both organizations. As a Chamber member he was one of the originators of the annual homecoming parade and served as the first parade chairman. He also served on the board of the Hills and Dales Medical Center and as secretary and long-time board member of the Cass City Industrial Development Corporation. He is a member of the board of Chemical Bank Bay Area in Cass City.

He is a member and past president of Cass City Rotary. Weaver has been secretary and president of the Thumb Area Pharmacy Association and a member of state and national drugists' associations.

He entered the business community after purchasing Mac & Scotty Drug Store, later expanding it twice and renaming it Coach Light Pharmacy.

He is a member of St. Pancratius Catholic Church in Cass City and served as a member of the parish council.

He and his wife, Toby, have 2 children, Jean, a freshman at the University of Michigan, and Wendy, a sophomore at Cass City High School.

School board says no to Millington

Millington High School's entry into the Thumb B Association, regarded as virtually certain before a surprise vote by the Cass City School Board at its regular meeting Monday at Evergreen School, is now up in the air.

The Cass City board voted 4-3 not to allow Millington in the league to replace Imlay City in the 1989-90 season.

The unexpected action now leaves the fate of Millington's entry into the league up to Marlette's board of education, which tabled the request at its meeting. Cass City Athletic Director Don Schelke told the board that it takes 6 votes (three-quarter majority) to allow a team in the league. Since Imlay City abstains, 6 of the remaining 7 league schools must approve accepting a new team.

The objections to Millington were its size, about 750 students compared to Cass City's 550, and the travel distance involved. It was pointed out that Millington would be about the same size as North Branch and Caro among league teams. Cass City is about in the middle in enrollment with Bad Axe, Lakers and Marlette smaller.

Voting to allow Millington to join were President Ed Scollon, Dick Wallace and Allan Hartwick.

Leading the opposition was Ben Hobart, who said that he felt that Millington was not the school for the league and that if necessary could be admitted in a year or 2. Also voting against admittance were Fred Matthews, Jim Turner and Beverley Auten.

Schelke told the board that a 7-team league poses serious scheduling difficulties. He said that Millington needs a decision so that the school can plan its athletic schedules. Whether or not the league admits Millington will not be known until Marlette reaches a decision.

ADOPT POLICY

A policy change proposed at the last meeting was adopted. It was made necessary to qualify for $50,000 extra state aid. Changes included a requirement of a semester of computer education and a change in graduation guidelines for other courses that Principal Russ Biefer said was no great problem.

In a related action the board heard a proposed policy change in the adult education program, also made necessary to qualify for state aid. What it amounts to, Director Dave Lovejoy told the board, is that adult education must have core education requirements that compare with the regular day school. Students already enrolled in adult education will not be affected by the change, Lovejoy explained.

Policy changes must be considered for a month before passage and it is expected that the changes necessary will be adopted at the next regular meeting.

APPEAL TRANSFER

Supt. Ken Micklash has received notice that Mr. and Mrs. James Brinkman have appealed the denial of their request for a transfer of land from Cass City to Owen-Gage school district before the State Board of Education. No hearing date has been set.

Micklash told the board that he had talked with Supt. Harley Kirby over the phone about the situation that involved 2 children of Brinkmans and 2 of the

A nickel
a pickle

By Melva E. Guinther

"A nickel isn't a pickle." That's how I remember that nickel is spelled "el" not "le."

For some strange reason, pickle doesn't give me any trouble, but I had to look nickel up in the dictionary continually before inventing the clever little phrase.

Every gimmick helps. The "I before E except after C" jingle probably helps some people. It holds true more often than not.

Some spelling devices, however, are of dubious value. Frankly, I find it easier to remember the letters in "geography" than "George Eastman's Old Grandfather Rode A Pig Home Yesterday," or "A Rat In The House May Eat The Ice Cream" for spelling arithmetic.

If it works for you, great! "Hors d'oeuvres" is not a word that the average person is called upon to spell frequently. When it does come up, I usually check the dictionary for corroboration. That is, I did before someone told me to remember "horse, doe and uvres." (The person offering the tip explained that uvres are purple animals with 3 horns.)

Since it's the "oeu" that's confusing, that will prove helpful. (Another hint learned recently is that "HOMES" will help in remembering the names of the Great Lakes, Huron, Ontario, Michigan, Erie, Superior.) Actually, spelling is comparatively easy for me. I don't know if it's a knack one is born with or if it reflects early training or temperament. I do know that it mystifies those who don't possess it when those who do can correctly spell words that aren't even in their vocabularies.

Bart Hall, a bright young 8th grader at Cass City Intermediate School, recently represented the school and came in 7th at a regional spelling bee that included 23 schools.

That reminded me of the county bee in which I participated as a 4th grader at Brown School.

The word that did me in was "parallel." Two schoolmates had already spelled it incorrectly. Deep down I knew that the only spelling left was p-a-r-a-l-l-e-l, but that lone l dangling at the end seemed aesthetically wrong and I refused to accept it.

So although the last speller standing, I had to divvy up the $10 prize with the others whose spelling paralleled my own. I've never forgotten how to spell the word, but it still doesn't seem right.

"If It Fitz..." Vacation report

By Jim Fitzgerald

It's hard to begin this vacation report. I thought I'd start by bragging that my hair isn't red and rough, and I don't have to cover my head in embarrassment in public.

For traveling, my wife conserves luggage space by transferring some toilet items from big bottles into tiny bottles. Headed south, in several motels she handed me shampoo that produced such paltry suds that I finally demanded an investigation that revealed it wasn't shampoo, it was hand lotion. When we got to Florida, I stopped strangers and instructed them to notice I didn't have chapped hair.

But there was an evening in a motel when I overheard my barefoot wife ask our 6-year-old granddaughter, Emily, "Does my right big toe smell like gasoline?"

Immediately I wrote those unlikely words in my travel diary. Such a strange question seemed like an appropriate beginning for today's column, or the name of a country-western song.

An hour earlier we'd become lost while searching for the Marriott motel near Atlanta's airport. This was the fault of my wife the navigator rather than her husband the pilot. Her job, as always, was to read maps and tell me which way to steer. My job was to steer. The only other person in the car was Emily, and it was her job to keep quiet as per instructions received from her mother before leaving home: "Just keep your mouth shut when Grandpa yells at Grandma for getting lost."

NAVIGATOR GETS GAS PAINS

We stopped at a gas station where the attendant said several times that we could get to the Marriott by "bearing right." We kept asking him to repeat himself because every time he said "bear right" he swooped his left hand to the left. When I finally mentioned this apparent geographical contradiction, he used his right hand to explain himself, causing the nozzle to jump out of our gas tank and splash Shell on the dumb navigator's right shoe, serving her right.

After sniffing, Emily's answer was: "Grandma, your right big toe smells like gasoline."

That might have been a good opening line, with guitar accompaniment.

But then there was Emily's 2-year-old sister, Tricia, who flew to Florida with her parents. We took her to a fancy cocktail party given by my barely younger sister, Mary Lou, to honor our much older sister, Terrible Jean, also known as America's Guest. Terrible Jean distinguished herself this winter by spending all of it in Florida without sleeping in the same guest bedroom more than one week. She walked down I-75, from Tampa to Naples, to avoid the trouble of finding a parking place near the homes of unsuspecting friends, acquaintances, and people she once stood behind in checkout lines.

When Terrible Jean mailed her Florida itinerary to Mary Lou, she magnetized it to her refrigerator door. The door fell off.

Anyway, cute Tricia made a big hit with the party guests, and kissed them all goodbye. Immediately after, it was revealed Tricia had just been discovered in the bathroom, brushing her teeth with the toilet bowl brush.

SAME TRAPS, SAME PHOTOS

That charming story might have made a good beginning for a column including the dangers of vacationing with 2 small grandchildren. But the big reason for motoring with Emily was to take her to the same tourist traps — Silver Springs, Weeki Wachee and so on — we took her mother to 25 years earlier. We made the poor kid pose in the same places her mother posed in 1963, and now we have duplicate mother-daughter vacation snapshots with which to bore people twice as much as usual.

So maybe I should have begun this column with a description of what Emily did after her exhausted grandfather finally reached the beach in Naples and sat in one of those low-slung canvas chairs that are much easier for an old poop to get into than out of.

"Give Grandpa a hand," Emily's mother instructed her as I struggled upward. Emily applauded.

Maybe I should begin again Friday.

Onward, anyway.

Caro man hurt in Friday crash

An 18-year-old Caro man was listed in "satisfactory" condition Monday at Caro Community Hospital following a one-car crash Friday morning in Wells Township.

According to reports filed at the state police post in Caro, David W. Campbell, 2801 Lee Hill Rd., was northwest bound on East Dayton Road northwest of Riley Road at 7:40 a.m. when his vehicle left the roadway at a curve.

Police said Campbell apparently lost control of the vehicle, which re-entered the roadway, crossed the center line and entered a ditch, struck a large boulder and then hit a tree. It appears Campbell was traveling at a high rate of speed at the time of the mishap, reports state.

Campbell's vehicle sustained extensive damage.

Service cuts expected to be aired soon in Tuscola County

An ad hoc committee charged with studying planned service cuts in Tuscola County may present its proposals as early as the county board's next regular meeting, slated for April 26.

The committee, composed of commissioners Kim D. Glaspie (D-Cass City), Michael Green (R-Mayville) and Chairman William Worth (D-Millington), was appointed during the board's April 12 regular session.

The appointments were one of several actions, including the tabling of appropriations requests from Community Mental Health, the Health Department and Veterans Service office, tied to the rejection of a county-wide millage request April 5.

Commissioners also rejected, on a vote of 4-3, a labor contract proposal made by Probate Court employees.

According to Glaspie, the ad hoc committee was expected to meet this week.

"We're going to look at a number of different options. I really don't know how extensive the cuts will be, although I'm sure the sheriff's road patrol will be the (primary) focus," he remarked last week.

Glaspie noted that the county's 1988 budget was prepared with the assumption that the millage request, 1.5 mills for 4 years, would pass. The reserve funding included in the budget was based on that premise, he said, adding that commissioners at that time believed serious service cuts could be avoided if the additional millage was made available beginning in 1989.

"My feeling is that we should look at this (cuts) in terms of the county's 4-year plan," he added. "We can always amend budgets, so I'd rather see us make cuts now."

Glaspie indicated that commissioners will take the millage request to voters again this year.

In the meantime, he observed, "there are some tough decisions ahead."

CONTRACT VOTE

Commissioners rejected the Probate Court labor contract proposal following an 18-minute executive session. Details of the contract were not released.

Casting "no" votes on a motion to approve the contract were commissioners Worth, Green, Terry Houthoofd (R-Akron) and Robert Russell (D-Vassar), while commissioners Glaspie, Chris Taylor (R-Caro) and John Goodchild (R-Fairgrove) voted "yes."

The board tabled appropriations requests of $21,000 from Community Mental Health, $54,750 from the Health Department and $2,784 from Veterans Services.

Commissioners indicated the requests, all involving nonmandated services, will be held pending the ad hoc committee's recommendations.

In other business, the board did approve spending some $127,000 for a new insurance package.

Schillinger and Schillinger will handle all but the county's vehicle insurance package, which was awarded to the Othersen Agency.

County Controller Michael Hoagland stated that the board's decision to split its insurance coverage between 2 companies was based on an expected savings of $4,000 to $6,000 due to the lower vehicle package bid from the Othersen Agency.

Also last week, the board received the Road Commission's annual report, and approved the following finance related requests: transfer of $5,754 from Contingency Equipment Capital Outlay to pay for a project involving additional cell space in the county jail, payment of $11,744 for maintenance of effort at the Medical Care Facility and transfer of $11,924 from the Medical Care Facility millage fund to cover new lights in patients' rooms, and payment of $2,488 to former treasurer Eugene Keller for past administrative work on delinquent taxes.

TAM TRUDEAU, manager of Training and Development for Walbro Corp., addressed GLJC students at a "Women in Business" symposium last month.

Professional women speak at GLJC

Great Lakes Junior College, Caro, held a Professional Women in Business symposium in honor of professional business women March 30.

A panel of guest speakers, Tam Trudeau, manager of Training and Development for Walbro Corporation, Cass City; Lucy Schiller, executive director of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Tuscola County, and Janet Allen, branch manager of State Savings Bank, Caro, spoke on the role of professional businesswomen in today's professional environment.

Tam Trudeau spoke specifically on aggressiveness vs. assertiveness. She discussed various proper uses of assertiveness in the working environment. She also addressed the employer-employee relationship, and various hurdles which she had to overcome as a woman in a management position.

Lucy Schiller spoke on how various life influences and the overcoming of certain childhood misfortunes helped mold her into choosing her present-day career.

Janet Allen spoke on how her work today, and the skills she uses, are a reflection on her past job positions and voluntary work experience. Allen also provided GLJC students with information on Caro's Business and Professional Women's Association.

Great Lakes Junior College students also addressed the panel regarding proper dress in the work environment and coping with various employer personalities. All 3 women belong to the Business and Professional Women's organization.

7 exposed to rabies virus in Mayville area

The Tuscola County Health Department last week announced that 2 domestic animals—a dog and a cat—in the vicinity of Mayville and east of Mayville have been found to be infected with rabies.

The department is currently in the process of providing the immunological materials to individuals exposed to the disease, according to Health Officer Edward Golson, who added that the agency is working closely with veterinarians and physicians to protect residents who have been in contact with animals infected with the rabies virus.

As of last week, 7 persons, including one individual who was bitten, have been exposed to the disease, Golson said.

The Tuscola County Health Department has alerted county animal control officers in Tuscola as well as in adjacent counties on the presence of the disease.

Golson said the local department will continue to monitor, evaluate and take appropriate action regarding the domestic and wild animal populations in the affected areas. To date the situation has been isolated to the Mayville area and concerns only domestic animals which have not been properly immunized against the rabies virus.

Golson urged residents to properly immunize their domestic animals, which, he said, provide a buffer between the human population and the wild animal population present in rural Tuscola County.

In addition, the health department urges residents to avoid contact with wild animals, which may act as a reservoir for rabies.

Golson pointed out that the department will continue to monitor the situation and take appropriate action as necessary. Officials also will continue to appraise those individuals involved and continue to monitor and control the situation as it relates to the wild animal population.

"America and Me"

Area essay winners announced

Six area high school students have been named local winners in the America and Me Essay Contest, sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance Group.

The students, who earned first, second and third place awards for their schools, are (first) Debbie Timmons, Owen-Gage, and Brenda Rockwell, Cass City; (second) Lisa Dorsch, Owen-Gage, and Shawn L. Sherman, Cass City, and (third) Maelin Damm, Owen-Gage, and Wendy Baker, Cass City.

All 6 students received award certificates for their achievement. In addition, the first-place winners names will be engraved on a plaque for permanent display in their respective schools.

The first place essays now advance to the state level competition, from which the top 10 essays in Michigan will be selected. The top 10 statewide winners, who will be announced in May, will receive plaques and U.S. savings bonds valued from $500 to $1,000. In addition, the top 10 essayists will be honored at a banquet in Lansing and at a meeting with Michigan's top governmental leaders in late May.

A team of finalist judges that includes Gov. James Blanchard and Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths will determine the top statewide winners.

Several thousand eighth grade students from more than 500 Michigan schools participated in the 1987-88 America & Me Essay Contest, which was conducted with the help of Farm Bureau Insurance agents across the state. The topic of the 1987-88 contest was "What The Future Of America Holds For Me."

Started in 1968 and open to all Michigan eighth grade students, the contest encourages Michigan youngsters to explore their roles in America's future. As sponsor of the contest, Farm Bureau Insurance Group has earned 11 national awards from the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge.

Cass City millage meets slated

The Cass City School Board officially adopted a resolution asking for 3 mills for operation, of which one will be a renewal of money voted for asbestos removal and 2 will be additional, bringing the total millage to 28.90, well below the average for the state and Thumb schools.

The millage vote will be held at the regular June school election, when 2 members of the board will also be elected.

To acquaint voters with the issues, special informational meetings have been scheduled by Supt. Ken Micklash at district schools. They are:

AT DEFORD-Thursday, April 28, 7:30 p.m.

AT EVERGREEN-Thursday, May 5, 7:30 p.m.

AT CASS CITY HIGH SCHOOL-Thursday, May 12.

The board also went on record as being available to any club or organization that wants to learn about the millage request and the reason it is necessary.

Election inspectors were also authorized. They are: Chairman Norma Wallace, Kay Rutkoski, Patricia Wells, Joan Little, Helen Lorentzen, Charlotte LaPeer. Alternates are Jessie Goodall and Mary Rabideau.

In another action, the board authorized a special meeting May 11 at 12:30 p.m. to consider bids for the removal of asbestos from the school. Contracts will be awarded at the regular monthly meeting May 16.

Michigan farmers can save millions of dollars on fertilizer purchases if they improve the efficiency of their nitrogen and phosphorus applications.

"Researchers estimate that only 50 percent of the nitrogen and 20 percent of the phosphorus applied to Michigan crops each year is effectively used," says Maurice Vitosh, Michigan State University Extension agronomy specialist. "This inefficiency results in reduced farm income, wasted energy in fertilizer production and application, and the potential degradation of surface and groundwater quality."

Vitosh is an official of the Michigan Energy Conservation Program for Agriculture and Forestry (MECPAF). The program is intended to help farmers and foresters substantially reduce energy costs through practical conservation practices.

"Many farmers believe that applying more fertilizer will substantially increase yields," Vitosh says. "Though yields have increased in response to fertilizer usage, they did not grow in proportion to the additional amount applied. As a result, many farmers are experiencing very high soil test levels for phosphorus."

These excessive fertilizer applications also pose a threat to surface and groundwater quality in some areas of the state. Fertilizer nitrates may become a groundwater problem in areas where sandy soils are predominant. Soil erosion and excessive use of phosphorus is causing phosphorus loading of Michigan lakes and streams, and contributing to the degradation of surface water quality.

Vitosh estimates that an improvement of 20 percent in nitrogen efficiency would save Michigan farmers more than $10 million annually. Increasing the efficiency of phosphorus applications by 40 percent would cut fertilizer bills by more than $3.6 million.

To cut fertilizer application without sacrificing production, Vitosh strongly recommends that farmers have their soil tested. Farmers specify yield goals on the soil test form and then are told exactly what nutrients the crop needs in what amounts. When filling out the soil test form, farmers should remember to take full credit for the fertilizer value of legume crops grown in the field the year before, and for manure that they have applied.

"Farmers who haven't had their soil tested recently may find they don't need to apply a phosphorus starter fertilizer," Vitosh says. "Liberal applications of phosphorus over the past 20 years have built-up phosphorus levels to the point where additional applications may not be needed."

To cut nitrogen costs, Vitosh recommends that farmers sidedress nitrogen. Research indicates that many fields have large amounts of residual nitrogen left over from previous applications. Farmers can often reduce the amount of nitrogen they side-dress by 20 to 30 percent without reducing yields.

Vitosh notes that discrepancies often occur between the fertilizer recommendations of commercial and university soil test laboratories. The commercial laboratories often recommend more fertilizer.

"If farmers follow MSU recommendations, they should be able to obtain equal yields with less fertilizer," Vitosh says. "This will improve their profitability and at the same time cause less degradation of the environment."

To show how fertilizer use can be reduced without yield loss, side-by-side demonstrations will be set up throughout the state. At these demonstration sites, growers can see how crops respond to traditional fertilizer applications and reduced rates of phosphorus and nitrogen.

Farmers who are interested in participating in a side-by-side demonstration should contact their local Cooperative Extension Service office or their District Soil Conservation Service office.

Elkland firemen buy pagers

The success of a year-long fund-raising campaign conducted by the Elkland Township Fire Department translates into good news for area residents.

The campaign, which netted $8,464, has allowed local fire officials to purchase 23 pagers.

That, according to fireman Ron Pawloski, means the department now has a more dependable method of contacting volunteers, regardless of where they are, when a call for help comes in.

Pawloski, who along with fireman Janet Hurley headed up the committee in charge of the pager campaign, explained that the fire phone system relied on by the department over the years hasn't been effective in securing enough volunteers for some fire runs.

The Department currently has 20 regular volunteers plus 5 auxiliary members, yet it isn't unusual for only 5 or 6 volunteers to show up when the fire whistle blows, Pawloski said.

"There's been times when we've had to call for assistance because we didn't have enough personnel," he remarked.

Pawloski noted that cur-

Area motorist hits deer

A car-deer accident report involving a Cass City resident was filed last week at the state police post in Caro.

Rodney A. Anker, 4511 Milligan Rd., was westbound on M-81 west of Colwood Road in Ellington Township April 12 when his vehicle struck a deer.

Damage to the vehicle in the 10:30 p.m. mishap was light, the report states.

rently, the local fire department phone number rings the phones in 18 Elkland Township firemen's homes as well as a Tuscola County Sheriff's Department dispatcher in Caro. The problem, he added, is many of the volunteers work during the day, so unless they hear the whistle, they don't know they are needed.

The pagers, like the fire whistle, will be activated via radio waves set off at the sheriff's department.

Fire Chief Dick Root pointed out that the fire phone system will continue in a few firemen's homes. The reason, he explained, is the system would allow a few volunteers to be contacted at home if the phone lines in Caro were to go down temporarily.

Pawloski, who pointed out that all but about $1,500 of the money raised over the past year was raised by the firemen, stated that the department's next goal is to purchase a private paging system, which would allow officials to activate the pagers from the fire hall in Cass City. The system costs about $300, he estimated.

Big crowd expected for Senior Power Day, April 27 in Lansing

Steeped in a tradition of long-established customs and mutually shared beliefs, Senior Power Day 1988 is said to promise great things for all Michigan older adults who plan to attend this annual gathering.

Scheduled for April 27 at the Civic Center in Lansing, "the seniors have, for months now, been looking forward to this day," says Julius Otten of Dearborn, this year's SPD Steering Committee Chairperson.

Otten says a quality of life platform, focusing on key issues in the areas of health, housing, employment, transportation and state and federal support for aging programs (Elder Aid), comprise the core of what advocacy efforts are expected to be put forth Senior Power Day.

"It's a platform," he says, "that's action-oriented and one that seniors can work to see implemented, not only to ensure their own well-being, but that of all future generations who will reside in this state." The platform, traditionally presented to the governor and key legislative leadership for response, is a highlight of the day's many scheduled events.

"The notion that most seniors retire with fat pensions and winter in Florida is simply not true. The fact is that almost a third of Michigan's older adults are near or below the poverty level. Senior Power Day and the presentation of a thoughtful and thought-provoking platform," says Otten, "can do much in the way of dispelling myths about older persons — myths that seem to persist even in the face of demographics that strongly point to the need for an improved quality of life for many of our seniors."

Conveners of this event, expecting the crowd to exceed 6,000, suggest that all who are interested in attending contact their nearest Area Agency on Aging (AAA). Tickets on a first-come, first-served basis are available through AAAs which ensure seating in the main auditorium.

A boxed lunch will be available at noon at a suggested donation of $2. Transportation to and from the Lansing Civic Center, from many areas of the state, is available.

Senior Power Day, Inc., convener of the state's largest advocacy gathering of older adults, is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to research and advocate issues affecting seniors and then to present these issues at their annual public forum: Michigan Senior Power Day.

Stachura accepts scholarship

Cass City High School senior Raymond K. Stachura, Deford, has accepted the Student Life Scholarship from Oakland University.

The $1,000-per-year scholarship is awarded to fall freshman or transfer students who have been cited for academic achievement and have been active in community affairs. A student may renew the award by maintaining involvement in the university community and continuing good academic standing while living in residence halls.

Stachura, 18, plans to study mechanical engineering at Oakland. He currently is in his second year of study in mechanical systems design at the Tuscola Area Skill Center. The son of Raymond J. and Antoinette Stachura, he recently was honored for earning the Boy Scouts' highest rank, the Eagle, and now serves as a Boy Scout assistant in Cass City.

HEALTH TIPS

Healthy baby teeth require early care

Your baby's teeth begin to form early in pregnancy, and that's when you should begin to care for them. The minerals, vitamins and other nutrients that will give your baby strong teeth and bones are supplied by the foods you eat. And the foods that are good for you — meat, milk and dairy products, fruits and vegetables and breads and cereals — are best for your baby, too. Calcium, found in milk and cheese, turnip greens, collards and kale and dried beans, is particularly good for your baby's teeth and bones and should be an important part of your daily diet during your pregnancy.

At birth, your baby will have about 20 teeth growing inside its tiny jaws. Usually, the first teeth to appear are the two upper front ones. Even though these baby teeth and those that follow will, someday, be replaced by permanent teeth, it is important that they be kept healthy and cavity-free. Why? Because children, no less than adults, need healthy teeth if they are to eat and speak properly. Also, infected baby teeth can alter the formation and placement of permanent teeth as they develop in the gums.

Baby teeth collect plaque (sticky masses of germs), just as adult teeth do. When plaque and sugar meet and interact, they produce an acid that will eat away tooth enamel and produce a cavity if it is not removed. So, as soon as your baby's first tooth appears, clean it by wiping it with a washcloth or gauze pad. As more teeth appear, brush them with a soft brush, gently and carefully every day.

By the time your baby is two-and-a-half years old, all the baby teeth probably will be in, and you can begin to teach your child to brush his or her own teeth, using a soft toothbrush with a fluoride toothpaste. Remember, though, that your child will be unable to adequately remove plaque. You should continue to do the brushing until your child is about seven years old.

If your community's water supply is fluoridated, it will help protect your infant's teeth against decay. If your water is not fluoridated, ask your dentist about fluoride drops or tablets. Drops usually are recommended until a child is

Soil Stewardship Week scheduled

Emphasizing everyone's role in protecting soil and water resources for future generations, the Tuscola Soil Conservation District is encouraging local churches, organizations and individuals to join the nationwide observance of Soil and Water Stewardship Week, April 24 - May 1.

The Tuscola Soil Conservation District, which works throughout the year on soil and water conservation measures, is providing literature that highlights man's responsibility to be active stewards of our nation's soil and water resources.

Tom Hess, chairman of the TSCD, said that while farmers and ranchers know that good conservation practices help increase yields and improve their profit potential, they also know the importance of passing on well-cared-for natural resources for future food producers. "We could give our children all the money in the world, but it would do them little good unless we also give them a productive soil on which to live," he remarked.

Since 1955, the National Association of Conservation Districts has sponsored Soil and Water Stewardship Week in cooperation with nearly 3,000 local conservation districts nationwide as one way to emphasize the importance of good stewardship of basic soil and water resources.

The TSCD provided more than 7,000 bulletin inserts and booklets especially designed to convey the 1988 theme "Stewardship Is Our Future" to over 30 churches throughout the county.

old enough to take tablets. Fluoride tablets should be taken through the teen years.

Because sugars play such a large role in tooth decay, you should avoid creating a sweet tooth in your baby. Don't sweeten cereal or fruit to encourage the child to eat. Children will eat unsweetened food just as readily, and, when they're older, they won't crave candy, cookies, cakes and other decay-producing foods.

Many babies who go to sleep with a baby bottle develop severe tooth decay, often in their front teeth. The problem is the sugars in the milk, formula, fruit juices and sweet drinks. During sleep, the liquid is not always swallowed quickly. It may pool behind the baby's teeth and keep them bathed in sugar for hours. Sometimes, these teeth become so decayed that they cause severe pain and may break off or have to be pulled.

Parents can avoid "baby bottle tooth decay," as this condition is often called, by holding their baby while the last bottle before bedtime or naptime is given. Babies who need extra suckling will be satisfied with a bottle of plain water, and if the water is fluoridated, that's an extra bonus.

Children are ready for their first visit to the dentist by about the age of two or two-and-a-half, when all their baby teeth have come in. It's a good idea to take the child with you on one of your visits to the dentist, so that he or she can watch you sit in the chair and see that visiting the dentist is a routine part of growing up.

Baby teeth need to be filled if there is decay, because untreated cavities can cause pain for the baby, and lost baby teeth can lead to badly placed permanent teeth and problems with feeding and speaking. Make it a habit to take your child to the dentist regularly. And remember the other rules for healthy baby teeth. First, start caring for your baby's teeth when you are pregnant by eating the right foods. Second, be sure your baby's teeth have fluoride protection. Third, brush baby's teeth regularly and carefully. And, fourth, have any decay in your child's baby teeth repaired promptly.

Basement finish seen for young Bulldogs in NCTL

The Owen-Gage boys' track team will be hard pressed to improve on their 5th place finish of a year ago in the North Central Thumb League.

Although Coach Arnie Besonen's thinclads will feature 6 returning lettermen, graduation losses will take their toll on the youthful Bulldogs.

Start with Steve Root. Root was a state qualifier in the shot put, and also was counted on to help out on the relay teams.

The Bulldogs will also miss the services of Billy Kuhl and Stu Stirrett. Both were regional qualifiers in the sprint relays. Stirrett also earned points in the high hurdles.

Further, the Bulldogs will have to replace the point production Ricky Salcido provided in the high jump, where he consistently cleared over 6 feet.

Coach Besonen's squad, which does not include one senior, does have some promising returners along with a couple of newcomers that Besonen feels could develop into consistent point earners.

Marc Reinhardt is the team's best sprinter. He also will be the team leader, along with the team's best threat of being a triple winner as he also high jumps 6' and long jumps over 18'. Reinhardt will be called on to anchor both the 440 and 880 relay.

Another speedster is Graham Besonen. Besides the 100 and 200 meter dashes, Besonen should earn points in the long jump.

Another long jumper and the team's best is Chad Stirrett. The lanky sophomore will also run the low and high hurdles.

The Bulldogs will need to find someone to create points in the distance events and Coach Besonen feels that newcomer Robert Schenk and freshman Mike Kady will help immensely in that area.

Besonen sees Deckerville and Akron-Fairgrove as the teams to beat in the NCTL this year, followed closely by Kingston and North Huron. Their season opens Tuesday, April 19, at Akron-Fairgrove.

Not hitting well

Girls split opener

The Cass City Red Hawks split a doubleheader at Akron-Fairgrove Monday, April 11, winning the opening game, 6-5, behind veteran Tammy Hurd and losing the nightcap, 12-5, as freshman Brandy Eason had control problems.

Coach Jim Fox says that his charges have not yet found a groove at the plate and are not hitting well.

An exception to that is Cindy Powell, who was 3 for 3, scored a run and was involved in 2 other run producing rallies.

The game was tight all the way after the Vikings staged a 3-run rally in the fourth to tie the score. Cass

City came back in the top of the fifth to score the deciding run and Hurd shut the door in the final 2 innings. Hurd was tapped for 8 hits, but had perfect control, not walking a batter. Salgat took the loss, allowing 6 hits and walking 5.

In the nightcap, Eason was just unable to get the ball over the plate and lasted just two-thirds of an inning, gave up a hit and walked 6. Despite the dismal start, Fox regards the freshman as an excellent prospect who will win lots of games before she graduates.

By the time the first inning was over, Akron-Fair-grove had pushed 6 runs across the plate and the Hawks were never able to catch up.

Cass City managed to close the gap to 2 runs with 3 tallies in the top of the fourth to make the score 7-5, but Hurd tired after pitching most of the 2 games and the Vikings batted around in the bottom of the fourth to put the game out of reach while scoring 5 runs.

Leading the offense for Cass City was Vicki Robinson, who cracked a double that drove in 2 runs.

Adams went the distance for Akron-Fairgrove, allowing 6 hits and 3 walks.

Krol throws 2-hitter

Boys take pair

The Cass City Red Hawks opened the baseball season on a bright note with a doubleheader victory at Akron-Fairgrove Monday, April 11.

The Hawks rolled to an easy win in the opener, 9-1, behind the 2-hit pitching of Jeff Krol, who was helped by a lusty 9-hit attack by his teammates.

The game was actually decided in the first inning when the Hawks sent 10 men to the plate and scored 7 times.

In the first inning the Hawks combined 4 hits with 2 walks and 2 errors in the scoring spree. Cass City was led by Paul Tuckey with 3 hits in as many tries. Tuckey was the only Hawk with more than one hit. Six other players each collected a hit, all singles.

Krol walked 3 and struck out 11 while Miller walked one in addition to yielding 9 hits.

Jeremy Capps chalked up the win in the nightcap, as he went the distance, allowing 3 hits in Cass City's 4-2 win. Schmitt took the loss and was touched for 9 hits.

The Hawks won the game with a pair of 2-run rallies in the second and third innings. Hits by Krol, Steve Wright and a single by Jeff Sontag to drive them in accounted for the first 2 runs.

In the fourth, an error and hits by Dillon, Krol and Wright accounted for the scores. The Vikings scored their only runs in the fourth as Fry singled and Volk lashed a home run.

Krol led the Hawk attack with 3 hits in 3 tries and Wright and Dillon were each 2 for 3. Capps struck out 8 and Schmitt, 4.

The Hawks open the Thumb B Association season Thursday at Cass City Recreational Park with a doubleheader against the Caro Tigers. Game time is 4:30 p.m.

Walpole, Hurd help teams

A pair of athletes from the area are doing well in college, according to announcements of sports departments of their respective schools.

Pete Walpole, Cass City, went 3 for 4 and knocked in 3 runs for Colorado College against Colorado School of Mines. After 23 times at bat, Walpole has 9 hits and is hitting .391.

Yvette Hurd of Gagetown, a graduate of Cass City High School, is a sophomore at Nazaret College in Kalamazoo and a member of the 13-person softball team. The team plays 12 doubleheaders and the schedule is completed April 23.

EIGHT DOWN AND COUNTING towards his goal of visiting all of the ball parks in the major leagues is Jerry Degelbeck of Marlette. The hat and the programs are souvenirs of his visits.

In major leagues

Degelbeck continues quest to visit every ballpark

What makes the diminutive, friendly, balding 54-year-old fan different is his campaign to visit every one of the 26 ballparks in the major leagues.

Jerry "Diggy" Degelbeck's job is selling insurance from his home on Oakes Street in Marlette, but his joy is baseball and it has been since the 54-year-old fan was 12 years old.

That's not unusual and thousands of others like him can be found in the legion of fans that follow the game. What makes the diminutive, friendly, balding 54-year-old fan different from your average fanatic is his campaign to visit every one of the 26 ballparks in the major leagues.

He already has visited 8 of the parks and confidently plans to add 2 more to the list this year.

He has tickets for Kansas City over Memorial Day weekend. At the end of summer Degelbeck and his wife have a pair of free plane tickets to use and if their son is in California as expected, Candlestick Park in San Francisco will be next to be enjoyed and evaluated.

Degelbeck is a sports fan probably because he played baseball, basketball and football in the early 1950's in Marlette. He was an average player, he confessed, in football (he kicked off in an important game against a Bay City team and in basketball (scored a point in the state finals of the Michigan High School Athletic tournament after the game was hopelessly lost).

But baseball was his game and he was far and away better on the diamond than on the hardwood or gridiron.

In his day there weren't any carpeted ball fields. The game was played on grass, outside and in the daytime and perhaps that's one reason why, when it comes to baseball, Degelbeck is a traditionalist.

Another reason is that Degelbeck fell in love with the game when he was a kid and "for a buck and a dime for a streetcar ride I could watch the Tigers play, and I must have seen half of the home games that summer."

Although visiting all the major league parks is now a project to be determinedly pursued at every opportunity, it didn't start out that way. He drifted into it because of his love for the game. It started in 1973 when he happened to be in Oakland during play-off time and learned that tickets were available. I called up and got 2 tickets. Reggie Jackson hit 2 home runs, he said, smiling at the recollection.

TIGER FAN

As might be expected, Diggy is a Tiger fan. His 2 favorite players in Tiger history that he saw play are Hal Newhouser, left-handed ace hurler in the 1940's, and Mickey Lolich, another southpaw, who won 3 games in the 1968 World Series among his many accomplishments.

Not only is Diggy a Tiger fan, he is a Tiger Stadium fan and was one back when it was called Navin Field and Briggs Stadium. Fix it up and keep it like it is, he says, and while they are at it "add a few more day games."

While still an avid fan, Degelbeck doesn't see as many games as he used to, perhaps half a dozen each year, but he still monitors them closely on radio and television.

STADIUMS REVIEWED

Degelbeck has memories and opinions about each of the stadiums visited:

RED SOX Tops of any he has visited. Unique. The wall and the size and the closeness of the seats make it great.

WRIGLEY FIELD-CHICAGO Beautiful. Has a great atmosphere, great fans and is a great place to see a ball game. (Always in the daytime, too.)

TORONTO It's another favorite.

Exhibition Stadium is unique, there isn't another like it, Degelbeck says, the only drawback is the artificial turf.

MILWAUKEE It's okay. An older park, but in a smaller community and the atmosphere reflects it, Degelbeck feels.

CLEVELAND Not one of the more celebrated parks, but Degelbeck ranks it over some of the newer ones. It's in the open right on the lake and there is character, a sense of history and that wind coming off the lake gives it something that the others lack.

OAKLAND Nothing much memorable about this park and it ranks near the bottom of the 26 visited.

CINCINNATI Riverfront Stadium has everything

Fred Mikolons and said that it appears that an agreement can be reached. Kirby is expected to meet this week with Micklash in Cass City.

A student from the Laker district was granted permission to attend Cass City Schools from kindergarten through graduation unless the Laker district becomes eligible for state aid. A second child not yet of school age was also granted the right to attend school in Cass City.

The request was made by David and Patty Metzger, who live on Hartsell Road where a Cass City bus travels. Metzger works in Cass City and said that was the only reason for requesting the transfer.

OTHER BUSINESS

Ron Laeder and Theresa Shiffer, speech therapists from the Tuscola Intermediate School District, explained their program to the board. They are teaching 53 students with speech problems in Cass City Schools, most of them in the first 4 grades, although students are handled from birth to 25 years old. Laeder said. There are 9 speech therapists in Tuscola County that care for about 600 students.

Letters of commendation for Mrs. Donna Emerson, of the teaching staff, and Barb Hutchinson of Rawson Memorial Library were authorized for their work promoting the "Battle of the Books" reading program.

A new 3-year contract with Canteen Service Co. was authorized by the board. It can be reviewed annually. Micklash said that the hot lunch program is in the black and no increase in prices is expected for the next 2 years.

that traditionalist Diggy abhors in baseball parks. It's antiseptically new and has artificial turf. Just a big cement block building, disdains Degelbeck.

The next park to be visited (Kansas City) is also new, but Degelbeck may find this one to be pleasing even if it lacks a long-time tradition and has a carpet instead of grass. After all, Ernie Harwell told him personally that it was a great stadium and Diggy is looking forward to his Memorial Day visit.

As a traditionalist when it comes to baseball, you might suspect that the baseball hall of fame would appeal. If so you are right. "I spent most of a day there and really enjoyed it," he said enthusiastically.

As a traditionalist you might expect him to rank Tiger Stadium up there with his all-time favorites, which he does.

As a traditionalist and a long-time Tiger fan, you might expect him to have an opinion about this year's Tiger team, which he does.

Third behind Toronto and New York, he says with conviction.

Recent drug raid frustrating reminder for county police or 13 suspects, including Dennis Todd, 36, and Charlene Todd, 35, both of 2610 Ringle Rd., Vassar, and Cass City resident Larry Williams, 47, 6840 Severance Rd. Each of them is charged with conspiracy to distribute cocaine.

That investigation and related raids, Burns said, netted more than 4 pounds of cocaine (more than a pound at the Todd residence and 3 pounds at the Williams residence); more than 100 weapons (many at the Todd residence), including automatic weapons with silencers; a total of some $100,000 in currency, and about $250,000 in coins.

"We're still compiling evidence," Burns remarked last week. "The case is still under investigation."

IMPORTANT

He noted that the drug arrests are important for Tuscola County, where, like in other rural areas, local police agencies are unable to stage large-scale drug enforcement operations.

Burns pointed out that Tuscola County Sheriff Paul Berry has been trying to beef up drug enforcement locally for years.

"Unfortunately, the law enforcement in these areas is spread thin," he explained. "It's difficult because you can't get money...to do it."

"That hits the nail right on the head," Berry concurred.

"The (drug) activity is here, but we really don't know how involved it is," he remarked, adding, "I would love to have the means to get the equipment and manpower to do the job, (but) we haven't had the finances for a full-blown investigation."

"We do have people working on drugs in the county, but we're just scratching the surface," Berry continued. He noted that the local organization ENACT (Eliminate Narcotic Activity in the County of Tuscola), was created to help finance county drug trafficking enforcement.

"We just don't have enough dollars to go around," the sheriff said. "We may never be able to do it as one departmental unit; we may have to band together with a couple of other counties in the area."

Tuscola County Prosecutor William Bond agreed that local efforts against drug trafficking are limited, but said he believes local officials "do a good job with what they have to work with."

POOR OPPORTUNITY

"We have a very poor opportunity to investigate and prosecute drug activity in the county because we don't have the resources," he added.

According to detective Larry Walker of the sheriff's department, maintaining existing drug enforcement may get a lot tougher due to voters' rejection April 5 of a county-wide millage request.

Walker, who noted that the county has been faithful in providing some funding for drug enforcement, pointed out that lay-offs of road patrol officers would prevent officials from using county funds to hire part-time undercover officers.

The county board has indicated the sheriff's road patrol would be reduced or eliminated without approval of the millage.

Walker indicated the loss of any funding hurts because the drug problem here is already more widespread than many people realize.

"There's just so much of it, it seems everywhere we go, we run across it. People don't have any idea," he remarked, adding that investigations in Tuscola County have turned up everything from marijuana to "crack."

Walker noted that ENACT, which began a 3-month fund raiser this month, hopes to raise $12,000 for drug enforcement.

"It takes a lot of time and money" to investigate and fight drug trafficking, he observed. "But we don't feel we can give up on it."

Girls, boys struggle in first track meets of year

Two factors combined to make it a long afternoon for the Cass City Red Hawks in the opening track meet Monday, April 11, at Frankenmuth. The Eagles are loaded with talent and the Hawks will be struggling all year to remain competitive in the Thumb B Association.

As a result, Cass City boys were buried in a triangular meet that also included Vassar. Frankenmuth rolled to victory with 129 points; Vassar was second with 31 points, and Cass City third with 15 points. Frankenmuth won all but one of the track events and duplicated the feat in the field events.

Vassar's Kevin Klinesmith won the 100 meter low hurdles and Cass City's John Wright was first in the shot put with a heave of 41-9.

Other points earned by Hawk thinclads were: 2nd by 400 meter relay team of Dadacki, Stilson, Ross and Beecher; Steve Tuckey, 3rd in 800 meter; Brent Wood, 4th in 300 low hurdles; John Thomas, 3rd in the 200 meter, and Wright, 3rd in the discus in addition to his win in the shot put.

Frankenmuth had 2 double winners at the meet. Jeff Grainger won the 1600 and 3200 meter runs and Terry Sutorik won the 200 and tied for first with teammate Scott Jacobs for first in the 100 meter dash. In the high jump, Frankenmuth won all 11 points with a sweep of the first 4 places.

GIRLS' MEET

Vassar and Cass City fared a little better in the girls' competition, but Frankenmuth still won easily. The scores: Frankenmuth, 92; Vassar, 51, Cass City, 21.

Cass City registered 2 firsts. Sue Papp won the long jump with a distance of 16-3 and Jandi Hillaker took the 200 meter dash in 28.97. Papp also was fourth in the 100 meter low hurdles. Hillaker ran a leg on the 400 relay team that finished second. Others on the team were Jane Marker, Sandi Hutchinson and Jennifer Nye.

Other points earned by Hawks included: Laura Stine, 3rd in 1600 meter run; Dana Johnson, 4th in 400 meter run; Susie Scollon, 2nd in 3200 meter run and Nye, 4th in high jump. Frankenmuth won 11 of the 16 events.

ST. LOUIS RELAYS

Charge it off to experience. The girls' and boys' teams competed in the St. Louis Relays Saturday and failed to win points. There were 24 teams entered and the Cass City teams finished between 11th and 19th.

The Hawks return to competition at home Thursday against the Lakers.

$600 million for schools in Blanchard's tax plan

Governor James J. Blanchard, attempting to reach a compromise on school finance reform, revised and pared down his tax loophole package for quality programs and will support a 2-percentage point increase in the sales tax, aides said recently.

And solidifying an earlier position, the aides said a sales tax proposal, which would require voter approval, must be placed on the August ballot.

Treasurer Robert Bowman cautioned that the loophole package, which eliminates higher insurance taxes and includes a 4-cent per pack increase in the cigarette tax, "is not set in concrete. We're trying to raise options and choices. The only thing we're trying to argue forcefully is there must be statutory revenues. There seems to be sentiment that moves that way."

The governor had proposed several new/increased taxes in his State of the State Address as a first step toward education reform while saying he would only "consider" a sales tax proposal at that point.

Although now supporting the 2-cent level, to a tax of 6 percent, he is still insisting the Legislature approve those revenues first before putting a sales tax measure before voters. William Kandler, legislative liaison, said.

Blanchard had 3 weeks ago still refused to commit himself to a specific sales tax hike level, but Bowman said with Senate Republicans and the State Chamber of Commerce out front on a 2-cent hike, "It becomes a much less partisan issue." House Democrats had already indicated their support for that level.

But Bowman added an August, rather than November, election on such a proposal "is where we've pitched our tent" saying the primary elections provide a less partisan atmosphere.

The Senate passed a proposed constitutional amendment, aimed for the November ballot, with a 2-percentage point sales tax increase and hiking the share of general fund money to schools but without raising any other taxes devoted to education programs.

Bowman called the Senate action a "crucial first step" but said it falls short.

The revised Blanchard administration plan would provide about $600 million in new revenue for schools when fully implemented after 4 years, plus $1 billion to cut property taxes.

The Senate-passed plan provided about $236 million in new revenues for school programs.

The loophole package at $187 million in new revenues when phased in in 1991-92 instead of the $250 million first proposed by the governor, includes:

- * eliminating industrial tax abatements for school purposes
- * taxing large lottery winnings
- * taxing pay of active military personnel
- * eliminating preferential treatment of utilities
- * taxing lump sum distributions from certain corporations
- * taxing smoke-less and other non-cigarette tobacco products
- * increasing the cigarette tax another 4 cents.

The cigarette tax, just raised in December by 4 cents to 25 cents, would be increased 2 cents in 1988, one cent in 1989 and one cent in 1990.

Bowman said a proposed increase in taxes on Michigan-based insurance companies, hotly opposed by Senate Republicans, was eliminated because school finance "is too important an issue to break down on ideological concerns."

Also eliminated from the governor's initial package was a strict limit on eligibility for property tax credits for homeowners, a provision which yields far less revenue if property taxes are reduced through the sales tax hike.

ROGER BOARD, owner of Board Chrysler/Dodge/Plymouth, hands over the keys to Lion raffle winners Todd and Jeanine Comment who won the 1988 Horizon Friday night.

Letter to the editor

Mother upset with little league article

To the Editor,

Last year, my oldest son had the fun and experience of playing baseball in the Cass City Little League. This year he won't. He won't be able to play because I called to sign him up on the morning of March 30.

I learned of Little League sign-up days by the article printed in the Chronicle. We marked the date on our calendar, and our 7-year-old son was anxious to sign up. As circumstances happened we were unable to get to the school by 8 p.m. March 29.

However, I didn't realize there was going to be any problem as there were names and numbers to call given in the paper. I quote, "Players must register on one of these dates or contact Dan Ulfir or Ken Schott in order to play."

When I called the next morning I was told the deadline was the night before and that was the rule. I can understand that with so many children and people involved a deadline is necessary to organize everything. But, why not make it clear to parents? Why make it sound like I had the option to call? It did not say call by March 29. I had no idea I was too late!

I just want to make parents aware that if sign up dates are given, they should realize that it is also a deadline. Don't interpret as I did, that one could call if not able to make the date.

If this letter will save anyone's son the disappointment of being denied the chance to play Little League, it was worth writing.

Sincerely,
Marcy Brinkman

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

One thing about bond-buyers — they're cautious. The same man who will buy cats and dogs in the stock market on rumors, hunches, tips from his barber or bartender, will change his whole personality when the subject is bonds.

"Those Florida state bonds — I hear they've got some highway problems, won't have enough money to balance the budget...Michigan bonds, not for me — auto companies aren't doing so well — wouldn't get anything that wasn't insured..."

With great apprehension, this sort of person will finally buy a few bonds — but nothing over a 5-year maturity.

This would be all well and good if interest rates were around the 3 to 4% range of 25 years ago. Then, if interest rates went up (and prices went down, of course) the 5-year bonds would fall off less than the 20-year bonds. And you wouldn't have to wait so long to maturity, when you'd be paid off and could re-invest in bonds at higher interest rates.

This scenario does not fit today. Rates are already high. Personally, I think it's better over the long haul to get "longer" bonds — ones that don't mature for 20 years or more. The extra income will take care of the fall-off in prices if you give the market a few years to work for you. Not always, but in the last 20 or 30 years, more times than not.

Let's get down to the situation today. Here are some rates on new A-rated issues selling at par, or 100:

5 year maturity 6%
20 year maturity ... 7.65%

Super-cautious Sam buys the 5-year bonds, Charley, his opposite, buys 20-year bonds.

Three possibilities lie ahead:

1. Bond market stays the same as today.
2. Interest rates go up (and bond prices come down.)
3. Rates go down and prices go up.

Now flip the calendar to 1993.

Sam's 5-year bonds mature. He has gotten 6% for 5 years on his $10,000 investment — or $3,000. (Skip compounding for simplicity.)

Charley had 20-year bonds, that paid him 7.65%

during this 5 years. His $10,000 he invested now, in 1988, has earned $3,825. We have assumed no price change when 1993 comes around.

Outcome No. 2: Rates go up and prices come down. Assume Charley's long bonds that were bought at a 7.65% rate find the 1993 market with overall rates 1% higher — a pretty good swing. That doesn't mean his 7.65% bonds will sell on an 8.65% yield. His bonds now — 1993 — have only 15 years to go, so the time factor has offset some of that — say, .25%, so they are priced at 8.40% (8.65 - 0.25 = 8.40).

The question: What is market price of a 7.65%-coupon bond, 15 years to go, selling at an 8.40% yield? You need a bond calculator.

The answer: 93.67. But Charley is still ahead. Remember he got $3,825 in interest, while Short-term Sam got only $3,000. Tabulate:

Short term Sam:
Bonds matured $10,000
Interest, 5 years 3,000
Total, 1993 $13,000

Long-bond Charley:
Value, bonds, 1993 . . . $9,367
Interest, 5 years 3,825
Total, 1993 $13,192

"Not a big deal," I can hear my baby sister out in San Francisco yip. "About enough to buy a pair of shoes."

But there are some fringe benefits:

Charley doesn't have to go back into the market because his bonds still have 15 years to go. Sam has to buy some new ones when his short bonds mature in 1993. Figure maybe a $100 commission.

Charley's bonds are worth $633 less. If he wants to, he can sell them and take a capital loss, taking a deduction of 28% of that, or $177. Every little bit helps, as the old lady said.

Outcome No. 3: Rates come down and prices go up, 5 years hence. Ol' Sam will still cash in his bonds in 1993 at 100. His income will still have been $600 a year, for a total of $3,000.

Far-out Charley will be rejoicing. His 7.65%-coupon 20-year bonds with a 1% change in interest rates will not only go to a 6.65% yield, but to an even lower yield because of the time factor. They're now 15-year bonds and selling at a 6.4% yield. Their price will be 112. Meanwhile the coupons of 7.65% keep coming in.

Compare: (Rates 1% lower, 1993)

Short-term Sam:
Bonds matured $10,000
Interest, 5 years 3,000
Total $13,000

Long-bond Charley:
Value bonds, 1993 . . . $11,200
Interest, 5 years 3,825
Total $15,025

So Charley in all 3 cases is ahead. Rates stay the same, $825 ahead. Rates go up (prices down), $192. Rates go down, $2,025.

Walbro sales reach new quarter high

L.E. Althaver, chairman, president and chief executive officer, Walbro Corporation, reported sales from continuing operations of $35,644,000 for the first quarter ended March 31, compared with $31,003,000 for the same quarter in 1987. Income from continuing operations for the quarter was $2,152,000 compared with $3,000,000 for the first quarter of 1987. Net income for the first quarter of 1988 was $2,128,000 compared with net income of $3,386,000 for the same period in 1987.

Busy circuit court sentences Unionville man

A 22-year-old Unionville man was sentenced to 4 years to 10 years in prison Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court for a conviction of breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling.

Scott B. Miller, 4711 Unionville Rd., was convicted by a jury March 9.

The offense involved a cement block building at 6675 Center St., Unionville, Aug. 12, court records state.

Also sentenced Friday was Andre J. Paquette, 220 Plumb St., Vassar, who was convicted on a plea of guilty March 4 to a charge of delivery of marijuana.

Paquette, 22, was ordered to serve 60 days in the county jail with work release and 2 years probation. He also was ordered to pay a $100 fine and $150 in costs.

Paquette's conviction stems from an incident Feb. 28 in Vassar.

Two Caro residents received one-year delayed sentences.

Hugh J. Cain, 18, 654 Meek St., received the sentence for a plea of guilty Feb. 22 to larceny in a building.

The offense, which occurred Jan. 25 in Vassar Township, involved the larceny of tools and other items from a mechanics shop at 4702 Saginaw Rd., according to court records.

David J. Vandemark, 27, 1975 Cameron Rd., meanwhile, received a delayed sentence for a guilty plea to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third offense.

Vandemark, who also was convicted on a guilty plea Feb. 22, was arrested on the charge Oct. 25 in Columbia Township.

In other proceedings Friday, Caro resident Gerald M. Houghteling, 52, 2135 Fenner Rd., stood mute to a charge of Criminal Sexual Conduct, first degree, during his arraignment.

A pre-trial is to be scheduled. Bond was continued at $50,000.

Houghteling is charged with engaging in sexual penetration with a person under the age of 13 years March 28 in Juniata Township. The offense carries a maximum penalty of up to life in prison.

Also standing mute during arraignment was William C. Pomeroy Jr., 21, Caro, who is charged with breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny, and larceny in a building.

A pre-trial is to be scheduled. Bond was continued.

Pomeroy is charged with taking 10 cases of beer from the M-46 Party Shoppe, 1020 W. Sanilac Rd., March 3.

The breaking and entering charge carries a maximum sentence of 10 years imprisonment, while the larceny charge is punishable by a maximum of 4 years imprisonment and/or $2,000, court records state.

Flint resident Brad R. Lapenas, 18, 2602 Churchill St., entered a plea of guilty to a charge of attempted breaking and entering an occupied dwelling.

Sentencing is to be scheduled. Bond was continued at $15,000.

based on an average of 3,465,284 shares outstanding.

In discussing Walbro's first quarter results, Althaver noted that sales reached a new high for a single quarter, up 15 percent from the previous record set in the first quarter of 1987. Income from continuing operations was down 29 percent compared with the same period in 1987.

Althaver said that the first quarter results were in line with expectations. "Demand for most Walbro products in the first quarter was strong," Althaver said. "Shipments of electric fuel pumps for automotive original equipment applications remained high, and Walbro's offshore small engine carburetor manufacturing facilities continued to operate at full capacity to satisfy the demand for diaphragm carburetors."

"The lower income was due in part to exceptionally high throttle body shipments in the first quarter of 1987. A one-time gain due to an accounting change also distorted first quarter 1987 results," Althaver added.

The Walbro chief executive predicted continued strong sales for Walbro fuel system products through the year. He also noted that the acquisition of Whitehead Engineered Products, Meriden, CT, early in the year added to the company's financial performance in the first quarter, and should continue to do so throughout 1988.

Vehicles suffer minor damage in accidents

A 29-year-old Gagetown man was arrested on suspicion of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor following a 2-vehicle accident early Saturday morning in Elkland Township.

According to a Tuscola County Sheriff's Department report, Lyn A. Bolzman, 3741 Dale Rd., was arrested following a mishap at the intersection of Bay City-Forestville and Cemetery roads.

Bolzman was westbound on Bay City-Forestville at about 12:30 a.m. when he drove through the intersection and struck a vehicle driven by Russell V. Badger, 6989 Elmwood Rd., Cass City, reports state. Witnesses stated that Bolzman did not stop at the intersection.

Both vehicles sustained light damage.

Also reported last week were 3 minor accidents April 13.

A vehicle driven by Gregory J. Lenda, 4036 Crawford Rd., Cass City, sustained minor damage in a one vehicle crash on Greenland Road about 1/2 mile south of Elmwood Road in Novesta Township.

Lenda told deputies he was northbound on Greenland Road at 7:40 p.m. when he lost control of his vehicle after reaching down to pick up an object.

Also in Novesta Township, Darin J. Gyomory, 1296 Englehart Rd., Deford, was driving west on Mushroom Road west of Crawford Road when his vehicle struck a deer.

Damage to the vehicle was light in the 3:45 p.m. mishap.

A vehicle driven by Kingston resident Jonathan D. Powell, 5850 Fisher St., struck a deer while traveling south on East Dayton Road in Wells Township.

The accident, which resulted in slight damage to the vehicle, occurred north of Bevans Road at about 8:45 p.m., reports state.

PUBLIC NOTICE

VILLAGE OF CASS CITY

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN 48726

Sampling by the Michigan Department of Public Health has confirmed the presence of lead in drinking water from certain piping systems where the water has remained stagnant for a period of time. Levels in excess of the current drinking water standard (50 parts per billion) have been detected. Laboratory testing has shown that the principal sources of lead are lead piping and lead based solders and fluxes used to join copper piping. Based on these results and those from other studies, the Michigan Department of Labor, Bureau of Construction Codes and the Michigan Department of Public Health have supported legislation which prohibits the use of lead based solders and fluxes in potable water piping systems. The plumbing industry and homeowners who may construct potable drinking water piping systems must no longer use lead based solders and fluxes for joining copper piping. Other solder materials or joining methods are available and must be used. Lead piping has not been allowed for new installations for about the last ten years. Building copper piping water systems constructed to date likely contain lead based solder and flux.

Water is the universal solvent and even relatively stable water when stagnant for a period of even a few hours in contact with lead solder and flux can result in a significant concentration of lead in the water. The health department is recommending that those piping systems in which the water has remained stagnant overnight or for longer periods be flushed for several minutes prior to using the water for drinking or cooking purposes. This typically has been found to satisfactorily reduce the level of lead and other metals that may concentrate in the water within the building's piping system.

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million (ppm). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard.

EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women.

Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest:

- if your home or water system has lead pipes, or
- if your home has copper pipes with lead solder, and
- if the home is less than five years old, or
- if you have soft or acidic water, or
- if water sits in the pipes for several hours

Besides lead in water from certain piping systems, there are other exposure pathways to lead including:

- air - from industrial discharges, automobile exhaust
- food - from airborne deposition of lead on crops and lead solder seams in some food containers
- non-food items - lead based paint, dirt, solder, or any object containing lead

It should be noted that the major source of lead exposure and lead poisoning in the United States is due to children consuming lead based paint chips.

People who may have concerns about the concentration of lead from their building or household piping are advised to contact a reputable private laboratory for a water analysis. Others who may have specific concerns relative to any possible health effects are urged to contact their physician.

For more information about this matter, please contact your village manager at 872-2911.

NOTICE

The village of Cass City is pleased to inform its residents that the Cass City water supply falls well below the mandated limits for lead in its water supply system.

Thumb literacy project slated

The governing boards of the Thumb Area Employment and Training Consortium have commissioned the Center for Governmental Research at Central Michigan University to conduct a Literacy Identification Project in the Thumb.

The $5,000.00 award, funded through the Michigan Department of Education 8% Coordination Grant, will provide a needs assessment survey on literacy in the Thumb which will address 2 principal areas—community services available and private sector needs.

Questionnaires will be mailed in early April to more than 90 Thumb service providers which offer assessment, training, or supportive services to adults who are deficient in basic educational skills. The objectives of the survey are (1) to determine what services are currently available, (2) to identify strategies which have proven successful with the adult learner and (3) to provide recommendations through which a regional plan for combating illiteracy may be developed.

Thumb businesses will also participate in the Literacy Identification Project. A separate questionnaire will be mailed in early April to more than 400 Thumb business owners and personnel managers to develop a composite picture of the literacy needs of area employers.

"Literacy is becoming an employment necessity," stated Marvin N. Pichia, director for the Thumb Area Employment and Training Consortium, "and the fight against illiteracy must result in an alliance of business, education, labor and government leaders."

The Center for Governmental Research will disseminate a final report of the findings, based on the 2 surveys, in June. The report will be available for public review in the Small Business Library at the Central Office of the Thumb Area Employment and Training Consortium.

Further information on the Thumb Literacy Identification Project is available by contacting Etta MacDonagh-Dumler, Center for Governmental Research, at (517) 774-3316 or Rebecca Nicholsen, Thumb Area Employment and Training Consortium, at (517) 635-3561.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Art Holmberg received his "Citizen of the Year" award from Jim Ware. Present to see him receive the honor were his children, Paul Holmberg of Northville and Joan Pollock, Rochester.

Bobbi MacKay has been named to the dean's list for the winter term at Ferris State College, Big Rapids. A freshman, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacKay of Cass City.

State qualifiers from Cass City High School in a regional industrial education fair were Jay McCluskey in mechanical drawing and Brent Szarapinski, best in class in woodworking for his electric guitar.

The Progressive class of 4 honored at Northwood

Four area residents have been named to the dean's list at Northwood Institute, Midland.

The local students are freshman Lisa A. Hirn, daughter of Robert and Mary A. Hirn of Cass City; sophomore Brian J. Gyomory, the son of Jim and Judy Gyomory, Deford; and sophomores Matthew L. and David R. Purvis, the sons of Shirley Purvis, Deford.

Each of the students earned the honor by achieving a minimum 3.0 grade point average on a 4.0 scale.

Northwood Institute is a private, coeducational, accredited college specializing in practical career preparation in business-related fields. The college's curriculum includes both 2-year and 4-year career degree programs.

Salem United Methodist Church met last Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Stoutenburg. Shirley Geiger led the devotions and Dick Gaffney presided over the business meeting.

TEN YEARS AGO

Cindy Ware of Cass City finished in first place at the end of the Bible quiz season in the Saginaw Valley Truth for Youth association. Cindy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferris Ware and is a junior at Cass City High School.

Maynard McConkey, county commissioner for district No. 2 on the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners, has announced he won't run for reelection this November. The Cass City Republican will complete six years on the county board when his term ends. He is presently serving his second year as chairman of the board.

Lynn R. Babich of Deford is now working part-time as a registered nurse at Saginaw General Hospital. She graduated in December from the nursing program at Delta College.

Damage was estimated at up to $10,000 in a house fire reported Saturday night. The fire was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grosbeck of Gilford Road.

25 YEARS AGO

There are 2 open school board posts at Cass City Public Schools. The 4-year terms of John A. Esau and Donald Reid are expiring. Esau, currently board president, has announced that he will not seek a second term. Reid, also completing his first term, has declared himself a candidate for reelection. Mrs. Gerald Prieskorn has also announced that she intends to be a candidate.

FIELD OF VISION

Central and peripheral (side) vision allow us to see a broad field. We use central vision when looking directly at an object or space. We read, watch television, or recognize a sign or person directly in front of us. Peripheral vision allows us to add an overall view of the environment around us. It makes going down a staircase or driving on a highway a more comfortable, safer experience.

Damage to either area of vision makes seeing difficult. During a routine eye examination, the optometrist tests your field of vision by moving small lights, colored spots or a finger across your total field of vision. If unusual blind spots or field losses occur, further tests will try to determine why. If the cause of these losses is a disease, treatment will be recommended to control the disease and prevent further loss of vision.

To see completely, both central and peripheral vision are essential.

Your neighbor says

Increasing drug traffic frightening

The war against drugs in Michigan and those involved in transporting and selling the substances continues to hit closer to home.

A major drug raid last week conducted by nearly 200 federal and state law enforcement officials is a prime example. Cocaine, large amounts of cash, weapons and cars were confiscated via search warrants in the case, which ended in 30 arrests.

Tuscola County was one of 3 counties involved, with 3 residents—one from the Cass City area—being arrested and some 4 pounds of cocaine seized.

The incident worries Cass City resident Olivia Torres, who recalls the apparent drug-motivated armed robbery of a couple near her Pine Street home less than 2 months ago.

"It's really shocking and scary, really. I can understand (that happening) in a big city, but not in this town," she remarked.

The mother of 7 grown children, Torres said she chose to live in the Thumb because of the small town atmosphere, which included less of a drug problem compared to metropolitan areas. She recalled a time when doors could be left unlocked and keys left in her car.

"So now I lock my door, but what good does it do? What good is a locked door?" if someone comes to your home with a shotgun, she added.

Torres, who retired from her job as a cook at Hills and Dales General Hospital last May, resides at 6372 Pine St. with her daughter, Jan Crowley.

She moved to Cass City about 8 years ago after living in Gagetown for 6 years. Before that she was an Elkton resident for 25 years.
