Operation asbestos removal continues

The second phase in operation asbestos removal started Monday when the Cass City School Board awarded contracts worth about $38,000 for air monitoring and asbestos removal in school boiler rooms.

The removal contract was awarded to low bidder Asbestos Control Services of Saginaw for $29,581. Air monitoring will be by DeLisle and Associates for $600 per day, not to exceed $9,000.

Supt. Ken Micklash said that there was about $75,000 left to spend from the one-mill tax levy for 2 years for asbestos removal and that the remainder of the money will be spent on removal of asbestos from the tunnel at the school. Every dime raised for asbestos removal will be spent on the project, Micklash said.

There may be more than originally thought for the work if a grant from the Asbestos Hazard Emergency Response Act is received. Cass City will apply and if successful, expects to receive between $6,000 and $7,000.

Bids for garbage removal were received from 2 firms. The lower of the bids was submitted by Rich's Disposal. The contract is for 3 years and will cost $12,945.

Prison work crews to be reviewed by Jill L. Schmidt

Staff Writer

The use of a prisoner work crew to remove brush along rural Elkland Township roads will be reviewed at the next Elkland Township Board meeting, slated for June 6.

Inefficiencies in the crew's work will be among the topics, Elkland Township Supervisor David Milligan said, adding the work crew recently cut down trees that were not supposed to be destroyed. Also, a recent letter from the County Road Commission needs to be discussed, Milligan said. The letter states that property owners should give written permission before any brush removal on their land may take place.

The road crew, consisting of about 10 prisoners, has been working along township roads since late November. The prisoners are from Camp Tuscola, a state facility in Caro.

The prisoners are participants in the Resident Trust Fund, a state program designed to give state prisoners the opportunity to work outside of state facilities.

Under the watch of one township supervisor, the crews come into Cass City to pick up and drop off equipment at the Elkland Township Fire Hall in the morning and again at night. They also take a lunch break at the fire hall.

Any government including and within the state of Michigan may utilize the program.

Elkland Township officials first became aware of the program about a year ago when a crew supervisor residing in Cass City informed the township board of the camp work crews, Milligan said.

Last fall the board approved hiring a work crew for brush removal work, Milligan said.

Elkland Township pays for the work through the Resident Trust Fund.

Monthly payments are made at $2.50 a worker per day. The state then pays Camp Tuscola, which in turn pays the individual prisoner for his month's work, said Camp Tuscola official Lieutenant William Block.

The Caro facility provides prisoners for 6 work crews, including the group that works in Elkland Township.

According to Block, a 3-week screening process precedes a man's dispatch onto a crew. Block said he tries to handle all screening himself.

Camp prisoners who pass screening, and are not from the area a work crew is to be sent, may participate on a crew, Block said.

Camp Tuscola holds prisoners convicted of crimes other than sex offenses and arson, Block pointed out. The criteria for choosing participants does not include the nature or severity

After observing a man's behavior in prison, a prisoner thought to be eligible for a work crew is usually sent to a work group in an unpopulated area, such as a Department of Natural Resources crew, Block stated. DNR crews pay $90. Please turn to page 14.

Mother, daughter slated to graduate, but not together

by Tom Montgomery
News Editor

It's been a tough, yet rewarding senior year for Linda and Carrie Franzel.

Like most friends, the pair have helped and supported one another over the past school year when busy schedules and classes seemed too much to bear. It wasn't easy.

Now, they're both more than ready to graduate. And although they don't attend the same school, they plan to see each other graduate.

As mother and daughter, they wouldn't have it any other way.

Linda, Carrie's mother, is among 17 persons ranging in age from 18 to 65 years who will graduate from the Cass City Adult Education program May 24, 2 days after Carrie is scheduled to graduate from Ubyly High School.

For Linda, who decided on her own to return to the classroom after 22 years, commencement is synonymous with accomplishment.

Her decision to go back to school was prompted last year when she found a flyer on the local adult education program in her mailbox. "I thought I'd try it," she remarked, adding that Dott Manufacturing Co., Deckerville, where she is employed, "was getting kind of slow and it was contract time. I thought I'd better get my diploma because you can't get a job without it" anymore.

Linda began working at Dott Manufacturing nearly 22 years ago, shortly after she quit school 3 months into her senior year at Ubyly High School. She recalled having a lot of trouble in school, which led to her decision not to finish.

The fear of not being able to master school subjects again, coupled with the awkwardness of going back to school as an adult was frightening, Linda said.

APPREHENSION

Regardless of the apprehension she felt, however, Linda found herself in the office of Cass City Adult Education Director Dave Lovejoy last fall. "Dave said after the first 3 weeks, things would be okay," she recalled. "He said, 'you've got to give it a try, at least 3 weeks.'"

In retrospect, Linda remarked, the encouragement from Lovejoy and the adult education staff as well as from family and friends helped her realize her goal of earning a high school diploma.

"I've had a lot of support from my daughter and family, and friends at work," she repeated.

"Once I went back to school, she (Carrie) didn't want me to take any (days) off," Linda recalled. "She said, 'I go to school 5 days a week; you can go to school at least 2 nights a week.' She cared enough to want me to fulfill the goal I started."

Carrie, an honor student who plans to study accounting and business administration at Central Michigan University in the fall, provided her mother with a variety of support, ranging from taking over the cooking duties to offering an occasional good-natured scolding.

"She (Linda) wanted to quit one time, and I told her she wasn't going to quit school because I would quit school," Carrie commented.

Despite the frustration of trying to combine work and school, and learning how to concentrate and study again, Linda said she's glad she followed her plans through.

BETTER GRADES

"It makes me feel good. Once you go back (to school) it isn't as hard as you thought it would be," she said. "I got better grades in night school than I did in day school."

Linda, who attended classes 4 nights a week during her first semester and 2 nights a week during her second semester, added that she would recommend adult education to any person who quit school.

The Cass City Adult Education staff "helps you if you need help," she remarked. "If you have problems, you can talk to Dave and he'll help you out. It isn't that bad."

Linda indicated she has no plans to seek additional education. She's content with her newly earned diploma, and the knowledge that her daughter will be better prepared than she was to enter the work force.

"I'm glad she's going to college so she can get a good job instead of being stuck in a shop like I am."

Gagetown

Return as Evans Products sale OK'd

by Tom Montgomery
News Editor

The president of Rail Car Specialties Inc., Alsip, Ill., last week announced his company has finalized the purchase of Evans Engineered Products Co. in Gagetown.

The purchase has already resulted in 7 employees being called back to work at the Gagetown plant, and officials say they're optimistic that more work and manpower are in the local facility's future.

Evans personnel, whose future has been uncertain since the company filed for bankruptcy in March 1985, are calling the consolidation a relief.

According to Rail Car Specialties Inc. President Albert J. Buthman, Rail Car through a subsidiary completed its acquisition of substantially all of the assets of Evans from Evans Asset Holding Co. last Wednesday.

He declined comment on the purchase price.

"We are very pleased to be bringing together 2 of the finest and oldest rail car parts manufacturers in the country," Buthman remarked. "This combination will allow (us) to provide a much broader product line and even better service to (our) customers."

Buthman said Evans will now be known as RCS - Engineered Products Co. Inc., which will be a subsidiary of Rail Car Specialties Inc.

Both Rail Car Specialties and Evans Engineered Products manufacture and market various parts, components and accessories for the railroad industry. In addition, Evans manufactures and markets automotive material handling racks.

ABUNDANCE

According to Buthman, the purchase of Evans was prompted in part by an abundance of work at Rail Car Specialties' manufacturing facility in Omaha, Neb. "We have more work than we can handle," he said, adding that his firm has been subcontracting to other fabricating plants.

He pointed out that Rail Car Specialties has already placed a work order at the Gagetown plant for coil car cross members. The part is a load restraining bar for a gondola for coil steel movement on the railroads.

"We do expect that there will be other additional business that will be placed with the Gagetown facility," Buthman continued. "I certainly hope that's going to require additional manpower."

Evans General Manager Thomas J. Houghton, who

along with the rest of Evans' current salaried and executive staff members will continue with the company, is equally hopeful.

"We have many things that we have to accomplish," he said. Houghton explained that Evans' rail sales office is being moved to Rail Car Specialties' corporate offices in Alsip, Ill., a Chicago suburb.

Rail Car Specialties "has a sales force that is active in the field," he continued, adding the consolidation gives the Gagetown plant a big boost in terms of sales representation. The sales office in Gagetown, in contrast, was "too small to cover the industry. Please turn to page 14.

Bibles in school?

Gideon Dan Allen wants to distribute New Testaments free to 5th graders

A request by Dan Allen of Deford, a member of the Tuscola County Gideons, to be allowed to distribute New Testament Bibles sparked another discussion of the school policy at the regular meeting of the Cass City School Board Monday night.

Because of an opinion by the Michigan Attorney General citing numerous court cases that say the distribution violates the constitution, the distribution has been barred for several years in Cass City.

Allen disputes this finding and said that every school in Tuscola County except Kingston, Cass City and Mayville allows the free distribution of the Bibles.

Since it was a board policy not to allow the distribution, the board's rule is not to vote a policy change without waiting a month to vote on any policy change proposed.

Allen's request will be considered at the June meeting and Supt. Ken Micklash said that he will contact other schools and get more information before the next meeting.

GRIEVANCE HEARD

Lloyd Schinnerer, president of the Cass City Education Association, appealed a provision in the master contract between the school and the Tri-County Bargaining Association. Schinnerer pointed out that a teacher entering the system from another school with a year of experience would be a step higher on the increment scale than one that taught the same amount of time in the Cass City system.

President Ed Scollon and Trustee Dick Wallace said that was pointed out to Sheldon Markley, union negotiator, during negotiations and he told us it was alright.

The board turned down the grievance. It was necessary for the union to go to the school board before the issue could be submitted for arbitration. The board wrestled with 2 other familiar topics in its session. Requests for transfers from Deford and Evergreen were heard. The first was from the Harvey Bells for a son and daughter. Previously the son had been granted permission to attend Campbell Elementary School for 2 years with permission granted a year at a time.

The Bells wanted permission to transfer the boy and a daughter who will be entering kindergarten this year to Campbell on a permanent basis. The board granted permission for the next school year, but the Bells will need to come before the board next year to have their children attend Campbell. The vote was 5-2, with Fred Matthews and Beverley Auten voting no.

The vote to allow the child of the Wallace Crawfords to attend Campbell from Evergreen School was passed unanimously by the board. The Crawfords sub-

Astrology holds no real truth

A recently distributed book by an ex-White House chief of staff claims first lady Nancy Reagan consults an astrologer. The book suggests that President Reagan relies on astrology in planning his schedule.

The president denied that he follows any astrological advice while making or considering policy decisions, but shied away from directly answering the question of using astrology in planning timings of public appearances, surgery and even the announcement of his reelection campaign.

Some political thinkers say that even the rumor of a president believing in astrology is detrimental to his leadership.

Many fundamentalists, who say religious belief negates all astrology or the like, and call it evil, reiterated that view after hearing about Reagan's interest in astrology.

Others find nothing wrong with the reading of a horoscope or consulting with an astrologer to find the right time to take a vacation or ask for a loan.

Your neighbor, Nancy Babisch of Owendale, says she has no interest in astrology. "I don't read horoscopes (and) don't believe in astrology," she remarked.

The mother of 6, Babisch says she's "totally against it (astrology)," but has no problem with those who follow it.

Babisch's son, Jerome, 15, attends Thumb Christian Academy, where students are taught that astrology is wrong.

Nancy Babisch noted that she makes no judgement related to rumors about Reagan's interest in astrology.

Still, she has no plans of taking up astrology herself. "I don't think they (astrologers) are right on it anyway," she said.

Local artists to hold display at library

Local artists and craftsmen will be exhibiting and demonstrating their work May 23-30 at Rawson Memorial Library, Cass City, in celebration of Michigan Week.

The artists will have examples of their work on exhibit all week. The exhibits will be open to the public during regular library hours. Demonstrations by craftsmen will be from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, and 7 to 9 p.m. Monday and Friday.

Artists taking part are Janice Horner, weaving; Faye Stoll, basket making; Pat Britt and Marilyn Biefer, painting; Nancy Hutchinson, china painting; Marge Johnson, tapestry; Lynn Sorenson, sculpture, and Tina Hoard, spinning.

Regular library hours are 9 a.m. to 5:50 p.m. Monday through Friday, 7 to 9 p.m. Monday and Friday evenings, and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

May 23-30 Buckle Up Week aired

It's a message that's been heard before, it's a message that no doubt will be heard again: Safety belts save lives.

Each year in Michigan and across the nation, thousands of lives are spared and serious injuries averted when drivers and their passengers use safety belts. Still, according to Tuscola County Sheriff Paul Berry, less than half of Michigan drivers do.

The sheriff's comments come as part of the department's involvement in the upcoming All-America Buckle Up Week, scheduled for May 23-30. The national effort is dedicated to making drivers and passengers aware of the benefits of wearing safety belts while driving or riding in an automobile. The sheriff said the department will promote the week-long event, with an extra special emphasis on enforcement of the safety belt law.

"While Michigan's safety belt law has saved many from serious injury and death, it has the potential for saving even more lives. It's disappointing to realize how many drivers still don't buckle up," Berry remarked. He added that according to the latest study, "we are achieving only about 48 percent compliance with the Michigan law."

The Michigan safety belt law, enacted in July 1985, requires all front seat passengers to wear safety restraints. Further, the state law also requires that children under one year of age be buckled in an approved safety seat and youngsters between one and 4 years of age be buckled if riding in the back seat, or buckled in a special, approved safety seat if riding in the front.

Sheriff Berry said this fourth annual All-America Buckle Up Week will conclude on Memorial Day. He said this year is expected to be the most successful ever, with combined, local events across the United States, all promoting the use of safety belts and safe driving.

Seeding no-till alfalfa

By Bill Bortel

During the various training sessions which were conducted around the state, several energy technicians asked questions about seeding no-till alfalfa. The concerns centered on the issue of fertilizer application and autotoxicity.

The Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service's current recommendations on fertilizer and lime application of no-till alfalfa do not really differ from conventional recommendations, according to Dr. Rich Leep and Dr. Oran Hesterman, Michigan State University. Fertilizer rates should not be reduced when broadcasting. As always, our first recommendation is to band the fertilizer under the seed if the drill has this capability.

Fertilizer should not be placed in the furrow with the seed, since recent research at MSU has shown that both phosphorus and potassium can cause injury to the seed. Continuing research may show us new methods in the future for fertilizing no-till alfalfa at planting. Actually our current recommendation resembles a top-dressing application in terms of effectiveness.

Autotoxicity, or "allelopathy" as it's also called, refers to compounds secreted by the plant which may inhibit other plants around it from germinating or developing. Autotoxicity is more specifically defined as inhibiting growth and development within the same species. These compounds may be released as root exudates or from dead or decaying vegetative matter, depending on the plant species. Alfalfa plants have been found to secrete compounds which can inhibit other alfalfa plants growing around them from growing although all of the mechanisms are not yet known.

While research is still going on, it is known that "established" plants may inhibit other plants from growing while seedlings apparently do not.

Currently, the rule of thumb is to beware of stands which are one year old or older when considering zip-seeding or no-tilling into that field. Growers should wait 3 weeks after applying a herbicide to kill the stand, before reseedling alfalfa using the no-till method.

Cooperative Extension Service programs are open to all without regard to race, color, national origin, sex or handicap.

Co-ops honor Bob Traxler

Rep. Bob Traxler May 12 accepted a special recognition award from Michigan's electric cooperatives for his support of rural electrification.

The 8th District Democrat from Bay City was recognized for his "leadership and untiring efforts to build a better rural America," and for his "steadfast support of the rural electrification program and REA funding." The award was presented in Traxler's office in Washington, D.C.

Some 2 dozen representatives of Michigan's electric cooperatives gathered in Washington May 11-13 to meet with Michigan's Congressional delegation during the annual Legislative Conference organized by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

"Rep. Traxler has been one of the principal proponents in Congress of the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) program, which reflects his consistent support for agriculture and rural people," said Raymond Kuhl, executive director of the Michigan Electric Cooperative Association.

"We are honoring him in recognition of the leadership and strong support for rural America that he has shown for 14 years in the U.S. Congress," said Kuhl. "Without people like Bob Traxler in Congress, we would have lost the REA program and rural people would be paying much higher electric bills."

PUBLIC NOTICE VILLAGE OF CASS CITY CASS CITY, MICHIGAN 48726

Sampling by the Michigan Department of Public Health has confirmed the presence of lead in drinking water from certain piping systems where the water has remained stagnant for a period of time. Levels in excess of the current drinking water standard (50 parts per billion) have been detected. Laboratory testing has shown that the principal sources of lead are lead piping and lead based solders and fluxes used to join copper piping. Based on these results and those from other studies, the Michigan Department of Labor, Bureau of Construction Codes and the Michigan Department of Public Health have supported legislation which prohibits the use of lead based solders and fluxes in potable water piping systems. The plumbing industry and homeowners who may construct potable drinking water piping systems must no longer use lead based solders and fluxes for joining copper piping. Other solder materials or joining methods are available and must be used. Lead piping has not been allowed for new installations for about the last ten years. Building copper piping water systems constructed to date likely contain lead based solder and flux.

Water is the universal solvent and even relatively stable water when stagnant for a period of even a few hours in contact with lead solder and flux can result in a significant concentration of lead in the water. The health department is recommending that those piping systems in which the water has remained stagnant overnight or for longer periods be flushed for several minutes prior to using the water for drinking or cooking purposes. This typically has been found to satisfactorily reduce the level of lead and other metals that may concentrate in the water within the building's piping system.

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million (ppm). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard.

EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women.

Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest:

- if your home or water system has lead pipes, or
- if your home has copper pipes with lead solder, and
- if the home is less than five years old, or
- if you have soft or acidic water, or
- if water sits in the pipes for several hours

Besides lead in water from certain piping systems, there are other exposure pathways to lead including:

- air - from industrial discharges, automobile exhaust
- food - from airborne deposition of lead on crops and lead solder seams in some food containers
- non-food items - lead based paint, dirt, solder, or any object containing lead

It should be noted that the major source of lead exposure and lead poisoning in the United States is due to children consuming lead based paint chips.

People who may have concerns about the concentration of lead from their building or household piping are advised to contact a reputable private laboratory for a water analysis. Others who may have specific concerns relative to any possible health effects are urged to contact their physician.

For more information about this matter, please contact your village manager at 872-2911.

NOTICE

The village of Cass City is pleased to inform its residents that the Cass City water supply falls well below the mandated limits for lead in its water supply system.

Mother's Day guests of the Les Munros were their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ray DeShano and daughters of Vestaburg. Mary McKellar and Betty Good attended the annual Huron County school cooks' dinner at Al's Restaurant in Harbor Beach.

ELMWOOD EXTENSION

The May meeting of the Elmwood Extension was held May 4 at the home of Florence Karr. Eleven members attended and answered roll call with a "personality profile." The group welcomed Mamie Russell as a new member. During the business meeting, the upcoming rummage sale, June 13-18, was discussed. The following new officers were installed: president, Florence Karr; vice-chairperson, Janet Martin; secretary-treasurer, Helen Stock, and council members, Helen Stock, Frankie Anker and Gladys Laurie. Ten members will attend the spring tour, a cruise on the Detroit River aboard the "Star of Detroit" and a visit to Greek Town.

Agatha LaFave gave a report on how to deal with difficult people and Elma Miklovich spoke on extension as a whole. The next meeting will be Sept. 7 at the home of Mary and Alma Wald.

Mrs. Velma Helwig was the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Jim and Dee Helwig of Midland, for Mother's Day dinner at Wildwood Farms.

Gloria McKellar of Sebewaing and Mary McKellar visited Mrs. Fred Werth at Caro Community Hospital.

BANQUET HELD

The Gagetown Methodist Church Women's Group held its annual mother-daughter banquet May 6 in the church hall. Seventy-four mothers and daughters attended.

Janet Muntz was in charge of decorations. The program featured Ruth Flugge, puppeteer.

Among those attending were Mary McKellar with her granddaughter, Tara McKellar, and Marge Karr with her daughter-in-law, Cyd Karr of Ann Arbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kehoe were Mother's Day guests of their son and daughter-in-law, Steve and Barbara Kehoe of Ann Arbor. Other guests were Carol and Jack Bieth and Mike of Highland.

Eugene and Marian Comment were Mother's Day guests of the Garfield Turner families for brunch at the Charmont in Cass City. Last weekend they were guests of the John Arvoys of Owosso for a belated celebration.

While Bill Ashmore visited his daughter and son-in-law, Floy and Ray Arnold of Cass City, Mrs. Ashmore attended the mother-daughter breakfast at St. Michael's Church, Wilmot, with her daughter Sally Wood, Kristy and Katy. The event is held annually and the meal is cooked and served by men of the parish.

WOMEN'S SOCIETY

St. Agatha's Women's Society met May 10 in the church hall with 20 members attending. President Arlene Enderle conducted the business meeting and roll call was answered with "your ancestry."

A nominating committee was named for the June election of new officers and the June day-long outing to Meadowbrook was discussed. For the program, each society member brought a keepsake or heirloom and told something of its history.

Hostesses Louise Ashmore, Ila Seuryneck and Gen Kehoe served dessert and coffee.

Bruce family holds gathering

Beau Michael Bruce was christened Sunday at the Moravian Church in Unionville. The son of Nancy and Garry Bruce of Deford, he was born March 25 in Hills and Dales Hospital. Godparents were Keith Fischer, uncle, and Gary Silvernail of Saginaw, great-uncle.

A family gathering was held at the Bruce home. Among the guests were great-grandparents: Nelson and Bernadine Kramer of Akron, Jesse Bruce Sr. of Deford and Bruce and Martha Silvernail of Deford. Grandparents are Jesse and Pat Bruce of Deford and Dwayne and Mary Lou Fischer of Akron.

Old Settlers conducting memorial drive

There's still time to make a donation for a veterans memorial being planned by the Old Settlers of Deford, who plan to use funds raised over the past year to place the memorial at the Novesta Township Cemetery.

Interested persons can send donations to the Cass City State Bank, or call Bruce Holcomb, 872-3835, or Everett Field, 872-2877.

According to Audrey Horner and Bruce Holcomb, the memorial project was approved last year by the Old Settlers during their annual meeting.

The group has since received permission from officials in Novesta Township to place the memorial, in honor of former military and war dead of all the wars, on a vacant lot at the cemetery.

Horner said more than $1,000 has been donated for the project to date. He noted that final arrangements for the memorial will be decided during the Old Settlers 78th reunion, slated for June 18 at the Novesta Church of Christ, 2892 N. Cemetery Rd., Cass City.

Burdon named to Alma dean's list

Senior Paula Burdon of Gagetown was among 203 Alma College students named to the dean's list for outstanding academic performance during the 1988 Winter Term, which ended April 15.

Students who achieve a 3.5 or better grade point average during a term while carrying a minimum of 13 credits (at least 8 of which are evaluative grades), are named to the dean's list.

Burdon, a 1984 graduate of Cass City High School, is the daughter of Paul and Barbara Burdon, 4950 Owendale Rd., Gagetown. In April she received a bachelor of arts degree with a major in business administration.
