WORSE THAN IT LOOKS -- Damage to the Richard Haley residence, 6662 Seed St., Cass City, is more extensive than it appears, according to the couple, whose home was hit by a vehicle early Saturday morning. The impact of the crash iolted the structure from its foundation. No damage estimate was available Tuesday.

School's money need great despite economy operation

Ken Micklash explained while outlining the proposal for extra millage in the Monday, June 13, election. Voters in the district are being asked for 3 mills, of which one mill was previously authorized for the removal of asbestos. A mill is $1 per $1,000 of the state equalized value (SEV) of property. The SEV is based on 50 percent of true cash value.

In 1982, voters were asked for 5 1/2 mills extra for operation and the school had a cash balance of over $350,000. At the end of the current year, we are projected to have a cash fund of around $50,000, which is practically nothing in a school budget that is $4.6 million, around Micklash says.

Micklash and members of the school board have conducted 3 informational meetings in Cass City. Deford and Evergreen to explain the school's financial plight. None have generated a great deal of interest.

That's unfortunate for residents who support the millage because the school has a compelling story to

Funding saves W.I.C. program

Tuscola County residents taking part in the W.I.C. (Women, Infants and Children) program, which earlier this year faced an early shutdown in its current fiscal year, which ends Sept.

According to W.I.C. Coordinator Nancy S. Bortel, the local program recently received word from the Michigan Department of Public Health that additional funds will be available this year.

The additional funding, more than $14,000, will insure service to area W.I.C. clients through the end of the current fiscal year.

program, which has a total budget of nearly $84,000 with the extra funding, would probably have closed down in mid-August without the additional money.

W.I.C. is among the categorical programs administered by the Tuscola County Health Department, meaning the funding is provided by outside sources for specific services.

In recent years, as state and federal funding have dwindled, the local department has subsidized such programs. However, financial setbacks, particularly defeated recently county-wide millage request, have forced local health department officials to end that practice.

The result has been budget shortfalls. "When you have to shut down, you have to bring everyone back at a later time, and you have to work overtime, which costs even more,' Bortel remarked. "It's devastating when that hapshe continued, adding that it took 5 months to recover from a reduction in the W.I.C. program's caseload last August.

Bortel, who noted that the local W.I.C. caseload last month totaled 931 reci-

Minor injury to driver

James A. Palmateer, 6292 W. Main St., was north-bound on Ale Street at about 3:40 a.m. when he attempted to turn west onto Seed Street, according to Cass City police, who stated he was traveling at a high rate of speed. Palmateer lost control of the vehicle, drove over a curb and onto a lawn at 6675 Seed St. before going south and striking the house at 6662 Seed St.

Police said Palmateer was arrested after he was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital, where he was treated and released for minor injuries.

Police also reported several minor vehicle mishaps over the past 9 days.

A vehicle driven by Gordon Innes, 1293 Main St., Snover, struck a vehicle driven by Mark C. Krueger, Elkton, Friday at the intersection of Seeger and Church streets.

Reports state Innes was westbound on Church Street at about 3:20 p.m. when he stopped and then pulled out into the intersection, striking Krueger's southbound vehicle. Krueger's vehicle sustained light damage.

A recent string of scorching 90-degree days has many area residents trying to recall a year when May temperatures were hotter than this year.

It shouldn't be too hard to remember.

High temperatures a year ago stayed in the 90degree range from May 27 through May 30, 1987, before plunging to a "cool" 84 degrees May 31.

Although May 1988 doesn't appear to have broken any records in terms of heat, it was the driest May in years, according to statistics compiled by Cass City Wastewater Treatment Plant Supt. Rick

Measurable amounts of precipitation fell only 3 times last month--May 9. 15 and 26--for a total of .71 inches, a little more than half of the total recorded in May

Compare the 1988 figure to previous years: 1.37 inches fell in May 1987, 2.56 inches in May 1986, 2.28 inches in May 1985, 4.66 inches in May 1984, 4.81 inches in May 1983, 2.35 in-ches in May 1982 and 3.27 inches in May 1981.

May 1988 had 9 days of 80-plus degree temperatures, including 3 days in the 90s. The first 80-degree day came May 8.

Similarly, temperatures in May 1987 reached 80-plus degrees 12 times, including 490-degree days, while May

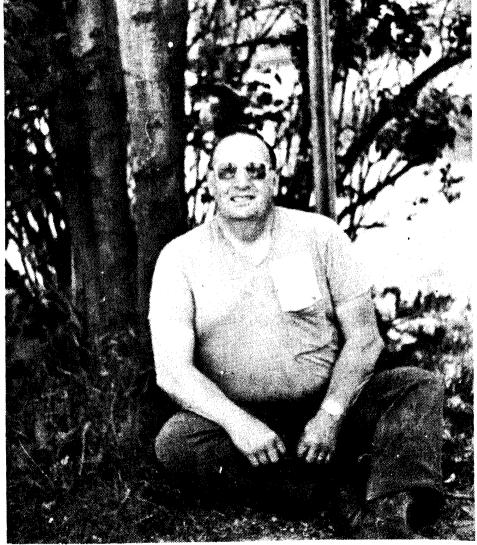

Although a pleasant 1986 had 7 80-plus degree days; May 1985 had 12 days Memorial Day was welcomed by area residents, in the 80s; May 1984 had most sought ways to beat only 3 days in the 80s; May 1983 had no days in the 80s (2 78-degree days), and the heat, which continued into this week. May 1982 had 16 80-plus dein the low 90s.

According to Matt Jones, director of the Cass City Village Pool, many residents have taken advantage of the pool, which, he said, has been very busy since it opened Saturday.

Officials recorded near capacity crowds (225 persons) at the pool Saturday and Sunday, and a capacity crowd Monday.

WELCOME RAINS brought relief to area residents Wednesday morning following 3 consecutive days of 90-plus degree heat. Above, Fred Morin of Elkton rests in some shade in Cass City before unloading his milk truck.

explicit government-produced pamphlet that came to your home and to every other home in the United States last week cost 20 cents each to produce (the postage was "free"). Was it worth it? Maybe, but the suspicion here is that many of the persons that paid no attention to newspaper, television and radio barrages on the subject will not read the pamphlet either.

In over 35 years in the business this is the first time this bizarre turn of events occurred.

It concerns the graduation of Genevieve R. Kinney. The Chronicle always tries to call graduates to get additional information. Looking in the phone book, staffer Jill Schmidt called a Kinney, asked if it was Genevieve, and was assured that it was. She got the history and subsequently reported it. It was the wrong person. We called to find out what happened and were informed that the Kinney we called worked nights, was half asleep when the call came and that she graduated as a nurse's aid. The graduating Kinney's story appears elsewhere in this issue.

Not uncommon was another boo-boo that this trivia writer was personally responsible for. We called the Cass City track team winless for the year, when actually the boys defeated Lakers in a dual meet. We wrote from memory and should have known better.

Sunday, June 5, is open house day at all of Michigan's 86 state parks. No entrance fee will be charged. Special events are planned at several parks, but none are scheduled for Thumb area parks.

Remember that story in the Chronicle this spring telling about the gypsy wagon created by Charles and Ida Jewett, Cass City? M & S Products, Chesaning, will manufacture it. Terms are still under negotiation, the Jewetts say.

will be the eye of the hurricane, the calm before the will be the eye of the hurwind starts to blow again.

It would be great if every graduate in the Thumb could look back at the summer of their high school graduation as a time overflowing with pleasant memories.

The summer will be the time of transition as high school friendships and activities tend to erode away. Never again will as many members of the class be together as they were during final ceremonies.

Whatever it is that has been placed on the back burner, that long cherished activity that has been postponed until later should be hauled out front and center.

As the years pass by, more time will be spent thinking of what's gone before, the good times and the bad. Now should be one of 2 the great times for every graduate if they let it. More than once it's been \Box said, I wish that I had gone 🖛

I am writing in response views voiced in the letter to the editor aren't shared by all the citizens of Cass City.

The comments concerning the inefficiency of the work crews, that we don't work too hard and that the repair bills are kinda high are somewhat of a false-

Personally I have been on the crew in Cass City since the first part of February and also 7 other members and I can say that since then we have put alot of pride and effort into our work. Not only in clearing brush and trees from the ditches but to beautify the landscape in the Cass City

There are 3 people who run saws and I know we take excellent care of the saws and do what we can to cut down on repair bills. Without the saws we don't work.

Now to address the letter to the editor, "Are our children safe." This is very disturbing to me. It implies that we are irresponsible and sex offenders.

There are no sex offenders in the camp program for one thing and most of us have children of our own and hold our respect for children very high.

The members of the crew won't stand for rude or snide remarks about children or women. We discipline our own in that area. We won't let the actions of one inmate mess up all our chances to work in the community In fact most of us on the crew would risk our own lives to help a child or face disciplinary action to keep a child from harm and to imply we'd hurt any children really upsets me.

In closing I once again would like to say that since February this crew has gone to great lengths to do a good job for the residents of Cass City and I don't feel that the Cass City Chronicle is covering this story adequately. We are not ir-responsible child molesters. We are simple human beings who have made a mistake in life and trying to improve ourselves.

County voters face 3 millage ballot proposals

CASS CITY CHRONICLE—THURSDAY, JUNE 2, 1988

County Board of Commissioners in its regular session last Tuesday voted to again ask voters for extra funds for operation. This time the request will be made in 3 ballot proposals for specific purposes: to reinstate the sheriff's department road patrol, finance senior citizen programs, and pay for improvement for county roads. If all are approved, the total tax increase will be 3.1 mills. The vote was 6-1, with Commissioner Christopher Taylor, 4th district, voting against the proposal.

Taylor voted no because he felt that the proposed 0.9 mill for road patrol was not enough. Commissioner enough. Commissioner Kim Glaspie, Cass City, explained that the proposed patrol millage would raise about $505,000 and that the remaining funds needed to reach the required $626,000 could come from remainder of revenue sharing money and other Federal funds.

Taylor disputes this, saying that funds cut from the county mental health department, Cooperative Extension Service and animal control department would not be reinstated. He also

As expected, the Tuscola said that $626,000 does not provide for officers' fringe benefits or purchase of new police cars.

> Another ballot request will be for 2 mills for 4 years for improvement of county roads. It will raise more that $1.1 million in extra property taxes.

The final ballot proposal asks for 0.2 mill for senior citizen programs that include meals for groups and home-delivered transportation and home repairs. The tax would raise about $112,000.

OTHER BUSINESS

Fees for services were increased. A sewage disposal permit for new sewage systems jumped from $50 to $100 and for existing systems from $25 to $50, a 100 percent increase for both. Cost for water and sewage evaluations went from $40 to $100 for a complete evaluation and to $60 for a partial evaluation. A charge of $5 will be made for handling water bottle samples. A survey of the 3 neighboring counties revealed that a complete sewage inspection cost $125.53 based on a cost per hour of $42.89.

New books at the library

JUST ANOTHER KID by Torey Hayden (non-fiction). A talented special education teacher with a gift for writing, Hayden dramatically describes the difficulties and joys of working with a small group of severely emotionally handicapped children. The subject of this book is Ladbrook Taylor, mother of one of the children. Lad is very beautiful, very wealthy, highly educated, yet emotionally fractured, withdrawn, and alcoholic. She joins Hayden in the classroom as a volunteer aide. This potentially explosive situation gradually leads to a deepening relationship between the two women that ultimately allows Hayden to help Lad. In the process, Lad reveals her startling past, containing buckets of melodrama

HOT MONEY by Dick Francis (mystery). Amateur British jockey Ian Pembrooke tells what happens after the murder of his father Malcolm's fifth wife, Moira. A rapacious, sharp-tongued woman, she has caused a break between Malcolm and Ian, who despised her for marrying his father solely to get her hands on his considerable fortune. But two attempts on the old man's life compel him to ask lan for help. Although the trusted son isn't fond of his eight half-siblings or their mother - or even of his own - he's loath to suspect them of conspiring to kill Malcolm which seems to be the case. To protect his father, Ian takes him to America and other countries, where the two attend the glamorous, big-purse horse races before returning warily to England.

FREAKY DEAKY by Elmore Leonard (fiction). The characters in this novel are mainly veterans of the youth rebellion of the 1960s. Chief among them are Chris Mankowski, 38-year-old Detroit police sergeant, newly transferred from the bomb squad to sex crimes; Woody Ricks, alcoholic auto scion; Donnell Lewis, ex-Black Panther who is acting as Woody's driver, nursemaid and would-be swindler; Robin Abbott, ex-con, exfugitive (she bombed a federal office building) who has plans for a million dollar movie based on Woody's life, with help from her old boyfriend and erstwhile bombing partner Skip Gibbs, now a movie dynamite expert. The only character who does not have ties to the '60's is Greta ("Who's Huey Newton?") Wyatt, stagenamed Ginger Jones, who meets Chris when she reports that Woody has assaulted her. When Chris pursues the investigation, he is suspended from the force, ostensibly for nonresidence in Detroit but really because of Woody's clout. Now determined to get to the bottom of things, Chris is caught up in a web of scams plotted by Robin, Skip and Donnell.

PRIVILEGED LIVES by Edward Stewart (fiction). Heiress Beatrice "Babe" Vanderwalk Devens wakes one morning to find herself, not in her own bed at home with her pillow from Altman's, but in a hospital room. More confusing, it is not the next morning, but seven years and seven months later: Babe has been in a coma. Meanwhile, in an exclusive new building high atop the Museum of Modern Art, the real-estate agent showing an apartment to a prospective buyer discovers the bound and mutilated body of a handsome young man. Attractive widower Vince Cardozo, the detective investigating the grisly murder, also pays a hospital visit to Babe. Since her ex-husband had admitted attempting to kill her with an insulin overdose, the police have an interest in whether she regains consciousness - or dies. Cardozo is taken by Babe, a charming woman quite unspoiled by her wealth and social position. But more terrible events are in store for her, as the two separate strands of Cardozo's investigations eventually become unpleasantly entangled.

Kingston camp fight is moving to court Friday

A hearing has been scheduled for Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court in a suit involving the controversial "work and learn camp" scheduled to open in Koylton Township.

Pioneer Human Services Inc. and the owners of Kingston Hills Camp Inc. filed a suit May 20 against the Tuscola County Department of Public Works, DPW Administrator Paul Lefler, the Koylton Township Zoning Board, zoning board chairman Donald F. Ashton and zoning board member Russell Mayer.

The suit, filed in an effort to begin work on the juvenile rehabilitation camp, requests an injunction requiring Lefler to issue necessary building permits for the planned renovation work.

At issue in the case is whether the camp is in vio-

The camp, located 1 1/2 miles south of Kingston, has been used as a summer camp for inner city youth in recent years.

Township zoning officials, including Mayer, however, say the camp has been and is in violation of township zoning.

Mayer said the camp was 'grandfathered' into the township's original zoning ordinance in 1972 as "a boy and girl summer camp. However, he added, the use of the camp was changed 12 years ago to serve as a "rehabilitation" facility for lation of township zoning.

The Michigan Department of Transportation is a national leader in converting old highways to new ones by reusing the materials that built the original highway.

The results are evident all over the state, but on heavily traveled freeways built 25 years ago or more. Aged roadways worn down by the wear and tear of hundreds of millions of vehicles are being replaced by new, long-lasting pavement that contains most elements of the old.

Recycling can be done both on asphalt and concrete roadways. In Michigan, asphalt recycling started in earnest in 1977 with the renovation of more than 10 miles of I-75 Freeway near Indian River in Cheboygan County.

Concrete recycling began in 1983 with the reconstruction of nearly 6 miles of I-94 west from Battle Creek. It was the first rural freeway

need for funds

Micklash said that the projected state aid for the next school year is less than 2 percent. This has been going on year after year, he points out. The state aid formula has not kept up with inflation.

Like all area districts, the school has been battling decreased enrollment. Each student in the Cass City district means $2,302 in state aid. At its peak, there were over 2150 students in the district. Today there are 1,655 in all grades. In the current school year there was a 40-student drop in enrollment that equals $92,080 less revenue from the state.

Micklash estimates that inflation, of which the biggest factor is salaries, will run about 5 percent.

The school has been running at a deficit for several years and has reached the point where it cannot operate any longer with a complete program without operating funds, Micklash said.

In 1982 when the millage was defeated, several difficult economy measures were initiated, including abolishing extracurricular activities, student buses and cutting the teaching

Micklash says that the school already has been paring down costs and outlined the ways in the special. school meetings. A discussion of the economy moves will be presented in the June 8 edition of the Chroni-

"Recycling has many advantages," State Transportation Director James P. Pitz says. "It's cheaper than using all new materials and it saves on use of dwindling natural resources such as the aggregate material (stone and gravel) used in the pavement. That's a pretty hard combination to beat.

In 1987 alone, the department recycled the equivalent of more than 500 miles of 2-lane asphalt roadway. The process saved more than 500,000 tons of aggregate, 10,000 tons of asphalt and between $3.5 million and $4.5 million in project costs. Savings on concrete

State specifications require at least half of the new material to be virgin asphalt and aggregate. This is necessary because of limitations in heating reclaimed asphalt without causing air pollution. The remainder of the used material can be used by the contractor on other jobs.

On all the concrete recycling jobs, the broken-up pavement is hauled to the contractor's plant where large chunks are crushed volves tearing out the exist- to small pieces and the rein-

Coordination needed for all state-funded programs

Michigan has not done an adequate job of evaluating its human investment programs, such as the Youth Corps and Governor James J. Blanchard's proposed Opportunity Card, according to a preliminary study of the state's employment and training programs by University of Michigan professor Malcolm S. Cohen.

Findings of the first phase of the 3-phase study

"I've been concerned for some time that some of these programs are needlessly duplicating services. The initial findings reinforce what I've thought all along -- that we must do a better job of coordinating these programs to get the most for the money the state spends," Cruce said.

Cohen reported that although over $800 million a ear in government funds is being spent on 70 programs in the state, not a

In addition, the report criticized the governor's Michigan Opportunity Card -- intended to help individuals take better advantage of the myriad of programs -- which could prove to be a data processing nightmare unless properly targeted. "The $80 million already spent by the Michigan Employment Security Commission to automate its systems could seem like a bargain compared to the cost of standardizing all of the state systems at the state and local levels to achieve the ultimate objectives outlined by the administration for the Opportunity Card," the report said.

Senate Fiscal Agency paid Cohen $30,000 for the 5-month study, but Cruce said he had planned to include the cost of the study in the Department of Labor budget until House members balked. "I don't see it as a parti-

Long weekends are for camping

One day a year is set aside to honor those who gave their lives in the service of their country.

Memorial Day, originally held on May 30, is now observed on the last Monday in May. This year tradition and modernization collided as Memorial Day fell on May 30.

There were many different ways to spend the day off from work this year.

To some, the day off meant attending Memorial Day observances. Parades, ceremonies and programs were held and attended to pay tribute to fallen U.S. servicemen as well as for the pure enjoyment of the

By Bill Myers

The boys peddling so-called securities by phone have a knack of calling me in the middle of supper.

It's an effort to be fairly courteous, but I try, because they're making a living the hard way. Can you imagine making 100 calls a day to people you don't know, and try to sell them something? And get turn down after turn down on 95 of those calls?

The other 5 might be lukewarm prospects that will accept further calls. Maybe couple of them might place a small order. In a week, perhaps one decentsized account might result.

Why anyone should buy from an unknown phone caller puzzles me. You wouldn't buy a carpet or a television or a used car this

In my own case, I tell these fellows that I'm not in the market, but if they want to send me brochures or whatever, to go ahead. I don't prolong the conversation because I know they have dozens more calls to make.

I do make an exception if the caller is from one of the recognized brokerage firms on the New York Stock Exchange. Even then want to see the printed material relative to the stuff they're selling.

The phone solicitors don't like this. Some will say that the big offer in coins has to be taken up at once or the deal is off. Hang up quickly if you hear this one.

Beware of oil well partnerships, real estate deals, old coins, ceramics, antique furniture and beeffeeding schemes. There are enough problems with the old stand-bys -- listed stocks, corporate and municipal bonds and money-market funds. And even salesmen of the big brokerage houses have plenty of junk to sell the unwary. Try to find one, or maybe 2. brokers who are on the conservative side, and who want to work with you for your particular needs. The long haul, and not the fast buck, should be their philosophy.

Meet them in their office. and size them up. Don't be in a rush to plunge into the market. It took a long time to accumulate what money you have. Spend it carefully, with someone you

Practically every broker would love to sell you a mutual fund. But they will sell the kind with a "load" or commission of 8 or 9% of which the salesmen will keep about half. His commission on a "load" mutual fund will be 3 or 4 times as much as selling you the same amount of bonds or

The no-load funds -- ones without commission you'll have to buy yourself. But it's no problem. Your neighborhood bank will likely help you, after you've chosen a fund to buy. Ones that advertise in the Wall Street Journal will send you information after a WATSline toll free call. Personally, I like the Scudder Funds, because they've been around almost as long as I have, and their funds are conservative. T Rowe Price funds have a good reputation, too.

My Baby Sister of San Francisco puts down her crocheting to write and ask about these "book entry" bonds. Are they safe? she

Well, Sis, they're neither riskier nor safer than the same bond would be if it was in certificate form. Nowadays a fourth of new issues of bonds are in book-

Government bonds have been this way for a long time. The money you put in a bank savings or checking account is handled as a book-entry. You don't get a certificate for every deposit -- just a receipt, and an entry on your monthly statement.

So if you buy a book-entry bond, you get a confirmation, same as for non-bookentry bonds. Your purchase is shown as a credit by the Depository and it is shown on your monthly statement from the broker. Payments

HEALTH TIPS Most uterine fibroids rarely cause problems

During your routine pelvic exam, your doctor may detect the presence of fibroids in your uterus. Although it's a cause of concern, you shouldn't panic. Eight out of 10 fibroids rarely cause problems, and rarely are they cancerous. Fibroids often afflict women in their 30s and 40s.

Fibroids grow directly within the walls of the uterus. Sometimes fibroids grow singly, but more often they grow in groups. Their size varies tremendously from a lump the size of a pea, to a 5 or 6-inch round growth.

Most experts believe that the female hormone, estroinfluences their growth. Normally, they grow slowly except during pregnancy, when your body produces higher amounts of estrogen, or if you take birth control pills. When estrogen production stops after menopause, fibroids usually shrink and often disappear.

Most fibroids cause no symptoms, but when symptoms do occur they include heavy or prolonged periods, pelvic or lower back pain, or frequent urination.

If your fibroids do not cause trouble or they are small, or if you are nearing your menopause, your doctor may decide not to treat them. But, if they grow quickly, or cause painful periods or abnormal bleeding, your doctor may suggest that they be removed surgically.

One surgical procedure is the myomectomy, in which only the fibroids are removed. The other is a hysterectomy in which the entire uterus is removed.

If you have fibroids, your doctor will want to check them at regular intervals so that he or she can detect any changes that may need attention and continue to be sure that the fibroids pre-

REFLECTIONS

I've been in this community now for approximately 6 months. It's a nice community, full of pride, and one where the people REALLY do make the difference. I like this community. This weekend through the efforts of Jim Bess and Dick Gorz at Cass City State Bank a sale of great proportion will be held on the bank grounds. It's an opportunity for the citizens to cash in on genuine savings. We'd like it to be a success, so I've come up with a few myths and facts that I think you might be interested in.

MYTH: Cars cost less in Detroit because they buy in bigger volume.

FACT: Cars actually cost MORE in Detroit because the dealers contribute to a city advertising fund that adds up to $140 more to the cost of the car over what Cass City dealers pay. In addition, it is a violation of Michigan Franchise agreements to offer any dealer a discount for volume purchases.

MYTH: You get a better selection in Detroit.

FACT: Both your Cass City dealers have all the inventory of the Detroit dealers at their fingertips with expensive computer locater services.

MYTH: Interest rates are lower in Detroit.

FACT: Most Detroit dealers have finance departments internally that dictate the rates and they are designed to generate income not to offer you a lower rate.

Between Scott Chevy/Olds and Board Chrysler/Plymouth/Dodge we employ approximately 30 people that eat, sleep, worship, bank, buy houses, invest and generally spend money in Cass City. Do not buy from us if the price is bad; we're not asking that, just give us a chance before you buy. Whether you buy from Scott or Board, it doesn't matter. What does matter is that you TRY TO BUY in Cass
