"Rough" fish dominate in DNR survey

Department of Natural Resources officials were scheduled to wrap up a partial survey of the Cass River this week.

VOLUME 82, NUMBER 9

The purpose of the survey, according to the DNR, is to verify the results of a similar survey conducted in August 1985. Specifically, the number of large game fish and large, nonsport fish to total standing stock will be evaluated.

In the event the results are similar, the DNR will propose a total fish kill in the Cass River system.

If treatment is supported public hearings, smallmouth bass, northern pike, walleye, channel catfish and minnows should be stocked after the river detoaccording to fisheries habitat biologist Don Nelson. In addition, he said, the river should be specifically surveyed to assess the quantity and quality of cover. In areas where such work is warranted, artificial cover should be created.

In the earlier survey, which covered 11 river "stations," or sections of river, 40 species of fish were collected. On a pound per acre basis, sport species, particularly northern pike, smallmouth bass and rock bass, comprised 9 percent of the total sample. Large, nonsport species, such as carp, redhorse, suckers and stonecats, represented 84 percent of the total collection on a weight conducted via a fish sampling method that the DNR began to develop in 1978.

Nelson explained the technique, saying rotenone, a chemical that's toxic to fish, is applied to the upstream end of each pre-selected river section shortly after a dye is introduced into the water. When the dye reaches the downstream end of the section, marked by a barrier net, a chemical called potassium permanganate is added to the river to neutralize the rotenone.

The barrier net is used to collect the fish, Nelson continued, adding that a crew of DNR workers scoops up both the fish which float down the river and those which die and sink before reaching the net.

Although fish count totals from the recent survey were unavailable early this week, an unofficial tally of the fish taken out of one of the river sections surveyed Thursday was compiled by Cass City resident David Dunn, a leading opponent of the fish kill proposal.

Dunn's figures are from a 400- to 500-foot section of river, located just south of Cass City, which previously had not been surveyed by the DNR. DNR officials, who agreed to survey the section on Dunn's request, had originally planned only on surveying about half of The recent survey was the same river sections included in the 1985 survey.

> According to Dunn, the fish taken out of the section included a large number of suckers, which he estimated at a total of some 200 pounds or more; 28 carp to-

Annual elections

2 schools seeking additional millage

Voters will decide additional millage requests in 2 of 4 area school districts as well as elect 2 board of education members in each district in annual school elections Monday.

The Cass City and Kingston School districts are each asking for 3 additional mills, while the Owen-Gage School District is request-ing renewal of its operating millage. Voters in the Ubly School District, which passed an additional millage question in a special election held March 29, will only fill 2 school board seats in the annual election.

CASS CITY

Cass City School officials are asking voters to approve 3 additional mills, including one mill previously earmarked for asbestos removal, for one year. If approved, the district would levy a total of 28.9 mills in the 1988-89 school year.

A mill in the Cass City district raises a little more than $100,000.

According to school Supt. Ken Micklash, the extra millage is needed to offset a combination of factors which, in recent years, have led to the near depletion of the district's fund said, are inflation, a state aid formula that isn't keeping up with rising costs and declines in school enroll-

The result is a projected $75,000 at the end of the curbalance, to 20 percent of Cass City's $4.6 million budget.

'Historically, we've had a fund balance in the neighborhood of $300,000 to $400,000" in recent years, he said. "We (haven't) had less than $100,000 since at least 1977.'

An increase of less than 2 percent in state aid is expected in the next school year, according to the superintendent. He also cited an enrollment decline of 40 pupils (equal to some $92,000 in state aid) in the 1987-88 school year, and an expected loss of another 20 students in the 1988-89 school year.

Also Monday, no sur-prises are expected in the election of school board members as incumbents Fred Matthews and Beverley Auten were the only persons to file nominating petitions for 2, 4-year seats.

OWEN-GAGE

Owen-Gage School officials, who continue to struggle with severe state equalized valuation losses over the past 3 years, will ask voters to okay renewal of 15.5 mills for 2 years.

Approval of the measure would mean the district would levy 41 mills for operations in the next school balance. Those factors, he year, the same as in 1987-88.

Although Owen-Gage is expected to begin receiving "membership" (per pupil) state aid in the 1988-89 school year, school Supt. fund balance of $25,000 to Harley Kirby cautioned that the amount of state aid rent fiscal year. venue due to a drop in SEV (half the true cash value of all property in the district) of 16.65 percent from 1987 to 1988.

The Owen-Gage district, which has a total 1988 SEV of $27,837,506, has lost nearly 50 percent of its tax base since 1985, when the district's SEV totalled $47.88 million.

Kirby remarked that the decrease of $5.56 million in SEV from 1987 to 1988 translates into an estimated loss of $227,981 in tax revenue, compared to the $102,422 the district might receive in membership state aid.

We're looking at areas where we're going to have to do some cutting," Kirby said. The superintendent emphasized the importance of renewing the 15.5 mills, which would raise $431,481 in 1988-89.

Aside from millage, voters will select 2 of 4 candidates running for the school board's 2 open seats. Vying for the positions are incum-bent Ronald Good and newcomers Randall L. Howard, Walter W. Swiastyn and Richard Roth. Incumbent Don Cummins did not seek re-election.

KINGSTON

In the Kingston School sure, if approved, would by the loss of about $215,000 raise about $150,000 in 1988- due to declining revenue, Laycock echoed Micklash's remarks re-garding the state aid formula, saying increases in the formula simply aren't matching the increasing cost of operating the school.

The Kingston district has relied on some $200,000 in fund balance over the past 2 school years to cover deficits in addition to implementing $130,000 in cuts last Laycock noted, a fund balance of $135,000 is expected at the end of the current school year. The district's fund balance should total at least $220,000, he added. Laycock said both of the candidates running for school board seats are newcomers. Judy A. Smith and Marlene Powell are expected to replace incumbents Albert Ruggles and John Borek, neither of whom filed for re-election, on the board.

UBLY

Four candidates are running for the 2 available seats on the Ubly School Board. They are incumbent John Rutkowski and newcomers Bob Main, Anthony Rutkowski and Martin Kubacki. Incumbent Marshall Grifka didn't seek reelection.

Voters in the Ubly District turned out in record numbers for a special election March 29, when a request of 4 additional mills for one year was approved by a 237-vote margin.

The extra millage will raise some $225,000 for the district, which will levy a total of 30.6 mills for operations in the 1988-89 school

School lists economy

measures

While it is apparent from comparison with other area school districts and districts state-wide that Cass City is getting full measure for every dollar spent for educating its students, it's fair for taxpayers to ask if every possible economy has been initiated.

When that question comes up, Supt. Ken Micklash refers to 4 economy steps taken as the enrollment dwindled. When the elementary art teacher left 2 years ago, she was not replaced.

The teaching staff in the Intermediate School has been reduced by 4 teachers.

The high school assistant principal position was eliminated at the start of the second semester this

Three bus routes have been eliminated in the last 4 years. Micklash estimates that these 4 steps have reduced cost to the school by about 4 mills or approximately $425,000 a The changes were invoked without having to fire anyone from their jobs. They were made when staff members left or retired. The request for extra millage by Cass City Schools is the first since 1982, other than the one mill for 2 years Please turn to page 14.

But in 1939, only a few years after I horned in on his class picture, Bill Gleason, 27, died of injuries suffered in an auto accident while driving from Lansing, where he was secretary to a state Supreme Court justice, to visit the Fitzgeralds in Port Huron. Bill's obituary in the Detroit News pointed out that his first Lansing job was janitor in the state Capitol building, and speculated that, if he'd lived, Bill might well have attained his admitted goal - gover-

Gray wins outstanding student of year award Cass City Intermediate Principal's Award for the an annual awards assembly at the school.

Intermediate school Principal Don Schelke, who presented the award, and the entire school staff congratulated Gray for his accomplishments, range from academics to athletics.

Gray has been on the honor roll in each of the five marking periods to date in the 1987-88 school year. He received all As during one of those periods.

He also has won academic honors in math, history, English and science in addition to receiving a perfect attendance award and the Presidential Fitness Award. Gray has served as vice-president of the Student Council, and filled in as president for one month due to a vacancy in that post.

Gray, the son of Phil and Linda Gray, 6773 Third St., Cass City, also participated in seventh and eighth grade basketball.

Army taps 24 seniors for award

Twenty-four area high school seniors recently were honored for their combined scholastic and athletic achievements and received the U.S. Army Reserve National Scholar/ Athlete award.

The prestigious Olympicstyle bronze medal and an authenticating award certificate are given to an outstanding male and/or an outstanding female at selected high schools.

pients are Brenda Severance from Cass City High School. Mary Chamber Among the local reci-School, Mary Cherniawski from Kingston High School, Susie Salcido from Owen-Gage High School, and Joseph Pichla and Sarah Landeryou from Ubly High School.

Last year, teachers, coaches and administrators from more than 10,500 high schools throughout the United States chose 20,056 students as National Scholar/Athlete winners.

This was the highest number ever to attain the levels of excellence required to qualify for the award. Since the program began in 1981, more than American high school students have been recognized through this program.

The U.S. Army Reserve National Scholar/Athlete Award has become a strong tradition in many high schools. Like the award it sponsors, the Army Reserve also has an impressive tradition. It is the oldest federal reserve force in the country. More than 250,000 members serve in more than 3,000 units nationwide.

Possible hospital closing empty. It was very upsetting to see such a thing. And scares Kingston resident

Editor,

I am reacting to recent newspaper articles concerning the real potential that many of our State's small and rural hospitals may have to close.

This really scares me! The county hospital administrators tell us that they have been given the responsibility of treating the Medicaid population, but have not been provided the funds for it. How can the hospitals be asked to provide this service and then not be paid?

Just as the State budget must be balanced, our hospitals have to balance their budgets. This is becoming impossible to do because of continual cuts in Medicaid reimbursements and the obvious discrimination bet-

TELEVANGELISM, POWER AND POLITICS by Jeffrey

K. Hadden, and Anson Shupe (non-fiction). The relationship between religion and politics is given timely analysis by sociologists Hadden and Shupe. Focusing on the electronic-for social movements, they see evidence that "the marriage of evangelical Christianity and politics is not a passing fad....and may be nothing short of a second Protestant reformation." They note that "Electric Christianity" is a hybrid, transmitting a message to mostly nonmainstream Americans that is not primarily theological but that supports the electronic empires of the highly organized transmitters. Recent scandals involving electronic evangelists are cited as cases in point that con-

"Principals love kids" is the inscription on a coffee mug sitting on the desk of Campbell ` Elementary School's principal, Jacqueline Freiburger.

The principal, ending her 22 years at Campbell in late June, plans to finish the school year in the same professional style with which she's always approached her job.

Under all of the care she puts into her time and effort administrating, Freiburger believes the phrase on her mug sums up what some 37 years in elementary education have been based upon.

In recognition of her superior achievements in administration, the Region XI Executive Board of Michigan Elementary and Middle School Principals has chosen Campbell's exiting principal as the recipient of this year's Outstanding Practicing Principal award.

Region XI's 175 members work in the counties of Arenac, Baldwin, Bay, Clare, Gratiot, Huron, Isabella, Midland, Saginaw, Sanilac and Tus-MEMSPA membership is only one aspect of her administrating career that Freiburger will leave behind her in her retirement.

Freiburger pointed out that of all her job's experiences she will miss the students most of all. 'Working with students

(and) the camaraderie of teachers" has made the years as a teacher and administrator a "great experience that I would have hated to have missed," she said.

The veteran educator explained that her earliest experience with teaching sparked the affinity she has for working in elementary education.

Critical analysis from instructors during a year of student teaching at Central University, Michigan where she earned a 2-year degree and a state limited teaching certificate, impressed upon Freiburger that she had a knack for teaching. The criticism and encouragement she received, which she refers to as "the best experience," reinforced her desire and ambition to teach, she said.

Freiburger disclosed that she had an early ambition to become a math teacher at the secondary school level. However, she later changed her mind.

After completing her student teaching at a rural school north of Mt. Pleasant and her first year of teaching at a Sandusky school, she said, "All other ideas left my mind. I had no more ideas of teaching at another school (other than elementary).

Campbell's exiting principal worked toward a bachelor of science degree in elementary education at CMU while continuing her career as a teacher. She noted that her 15 years of teaching at Schall Elementary in Caro helped her to decide to go for a master's degree.

Principal Lillian Dunlop "encouraged me to get my master's in administration," Freiburger said, adding "She told me I'd make a great administrator" and that a master's "would open another door for me. I thought, why not?"

ADMINISTRATOR

Freiburger said that leaving teaching for administration was not an easy decision.

"I love teaching. When you love teaching you miss it," she said, pointing out that the greatest benefit of administration is that "as a principal I can bring about more of a change."

Freiburger explained that she planned class schedules in the school. She said her math background helped and pointed out, "I like the challenge of administrating.'

Over the years in education, the principal hasn't observed a big change in the attitudes of students and teachers.

"I've heard other principals say that (students and teachers change), but I don't see that here," she remarked. "The students are honest and open and like coming to school. They haven't built up that block yet."

The teachers at Campbell are "very good," she continued. "I've got a top staff.'

The long time administrator attributes recent changes in students to the changing times but not to any difference in sentiments concerning school.

CHANGES

One change Freiburger has noticed over the past couple of years is truancy. "There's been more of that lately," she said. The principal attributes the problem to more families moving and more families with 2 working parents.

She explained that such cases of "educational neglect" make her "the most angry."

"A kid misses 50-60 days of school a year. We call a truant officer, build a case and we've had a judge throw it out of court." Freiburger continued, "You hear that too many kids drop out of school. If our system lets kids miss 50-60 days of school, where are they going to be when they are 16?'

To remedy the problem, Campbell's top administrator sees the need for stronger laws that back up school officials in their effort to keep kids in school.

Preventing problems at an early age is the key, she added.

Freiburger believes that programs at her school are effective in catching and dealing with problems.

Response to counseling and a certain class designed to help students cope with the loss of a close relative has been growing lately, she said.

"Parents are calling now to talk to the social worker about a problem like a death in the family,' Freiburger pointed out.

Other than counseling, a program the seasoned administrator deems important to elementary education is the Gifted and Talented Program. Freiburger commented that she would like to see the gifted program "moved along." She stated that she believes the budget for the program should be increased. providing teachers with the materials needed to help gifted stu-

Freiburger has been a member of the Gifted and Talented Association for some time. Among the many organizations she belongs to, she believes the work of "expanding experiences of kids" is one of the most important.

RETIREMENT

After her retirement, the education advocate plans to devote more time to the organizations to which she belongs.

Most of all, she plans to devote more time to the church.

A member of St. Pancratius Catholic Church, Freiburger explained that she was active in the church while her 3 children were in school. Since working as principal she remarked that her involvement in church functions has lessened, adding that "I expect that I will do more," after retirement.

Also on the list of after retirement activities is traveling.

Of the many places she would like to visit, Ireland stands as her first choice.

Freiburger traveled to Ireland about 4 years ago. In planning the trip she discovered the idea of studying her family history. While in Ireland she went to Dublin to begin the study of records. She said she discovered there that family research would take "a lot more (work) than I thought."

"I will spend more time once I retire working on that," she said.

No matter what the project, Freiburger does not expect to remain idle in her retirement.

 $Freiburger\,noted\,that\,she$ decided to retire this year because there are so many things she wants to do.

At 62 years of age, she pointed out that she did not want to keep working and retire late in life, leaving no time to complete the projects she wishes to begin.

job, Freiburger said she looks forward to retirement "I'll miss the young kids," she said. Referring to her coffee

Though she will miss her mug, she repeated the words "Principals love kids," adding in the confident voice familiar to her many students, "If they don't, they shouldn't be in the job.'

FIVE YEARS AGO

The seemingly never-ending rain this spring has caused severe problems for farmers trying to get their crops planted. The problem will become even more severe without a couple of weeks of sunshine and warm temperatures.

Pvt. Jill A. Middaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theron Middaugh of Phillips Road, Cass City, has completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C. The private is a graduate of Cass City High School.

The public is invited to attend rehearsals of the Cass City Community Choir. The choir will be rehearsing for their appearance at the Fourth of July Festival. Persons with questions concerning the choir may contact Andrea Hofmeister Dave  $\mathbf{or}$ Lovejoy.

Harold Prich Gagetown was one of 332 students inducted into Sigma Iota Epsilon at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant. SIE is a scholastic business and management honorary.

TEN YEARS AGO

Floyd and Madeline Aiehm were presented a plaque at the Owendale-Gagetown athletic banquet last Thursday night for their contribution to the district. The couple has 11 children, the oldest of whom started in the then Owendale district in the 1940s. Their youngest, Roger, just graduated.

George S. Hosner of Deford has been presented the American Trucking Association Safe Driving Award by Sawyer Transport, Inc. The award signifies an average of 90,000 accidentfree miles of driving per year.

Kim Witherspoon was the only Cass City High School athlete to place in the Class C state track meet Saturday, earning seventh place in the 880-yard run with a time of 2:26.9.

Voters Monday will have a choice of 2 candidates for the one seat open on the Cass City School Board. J.D. Tuckey, who is seeking a second term, is being challenged by Danny B. Allen.

Dry weather hurts alfalfa

The dry weather this spring, has reduced forage vields in first cutting alfalfa, according to Eric Frahm, Tuscola County Extension Agricultural agent.

The dry forecasts for the summer are making yields of second and third cutting alfalfa and corn for silage look low also. These factors may cause people to consider some alternative forage crops to stretch a short feed supply, Frahm said.

There are several sorghum types available for pasture, silage and hay production. These include older forage sorghum varieties, hybrid forage sorghums (non-heading), hybrid sudangrass, and sorghum-sudangrass hybrids. "These are all warm season annual grasses that can be planted from about May 15 to June 15," Frahm remarked. "These crops are slightly more drought resistant and heat tolerant than corn. However, they still need moisture to get started.'

He added that a nonheading (sterile) hybrid forage sorghum may be planted on set-aside acres and harvested as silage after Oct. 1. "This type of sorghum has management requirements similar to corn silage and will produce about 70-80% of the nutrient value of corn silage. Sudangrass and sorghum-sundangrass harvested 2 to 4 times in a growing season and cannot be harvested from set-aside acres," Frahm concluded.

More information is available by contacting Frahm at the Cooperative Extension Service office in Caro, 673-5999, Ext. 228.

The Cass City American Legion Post and the Legion Auxiliary collected $401.54 in poppy sales. Top salesman was Vern McConnell, who sold $118.60 worth. Second best salesman was Stanley Wojtowicz. Junior members who were tops in the class were Peggy McConnell, Dorothy and Carol Tracy and Gloria Stine. Charlene Ann MacRae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin W. MacRae, was awarded a $250 scholarship toward her nursing education from the Michigan Federation of Women's Clubs. She is enrolled in the September class at Saginaw General Hospital School of Nursing.

Linn I. Paladi

Paladi, the son of Ivan and Arlene Paladi, 180 N. Englehart Rd., Deford, is a 1987 graduate of Cass City High School.

According to Technical Sergeant Mike Stutso, the Air Force recruiter in Caro, Paladi's entry into the Delayed Enlistment Program serves 2 purposes. First, it allows the Air Force to schedule an opening for him to attend basic training and be assigned to a job or skill area. Second, the program allows Paladi to wrap up his personal affairs before leaving home.

Paladi will enter the regular Air Force Nov. 16. Following graduation from a 6-week basic training course at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, he will receive technical training in the electronic aptitude area and be assigned to an Air Force duty station.

> The American Cancer Society, the National Institute, the Cancer American Medical Association and The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists were among the groups that agreed to the new guidelines. Those guidelines state that all women who are at least 18 years old, or who are sexually active before age 18, should have a Pap smear once a year. If 3 consecutive annual smears are negative, and you are not at high risk for any of the conditions that could lead to cervical cancer, then your doctor can decide if you need to continue having the test every year, or if you can have it on a less frequent basis.

Many women should continue to have the exam every year, even if 3 consecutive smears are negative. These women are considered to be at high risk for cellular changes on their cervix. They are women who have had more than one sexual partne whose partner has had more than one partner, those who were sexually active before age 18, those

If a woman is in one of these high-risk groups, an annual Pap test will provide an early warning system to protect her health and her life. If an abnormal condition exists on your cervix, the Pap smear can detect it in the beginning stages when it can be treated and cured. If you are not sure whether you fall into a high-risk category, it is a good idea to continue to have a Pap smear every year.

By Bill Myers

J. Fabozzi. Feldstein is manager of the municipal research for Merrill Lynch. Fabozzi is professor of business at Lafayette College.

The authors have the credentials, but I have the

There is a chapter on the risk of buying municipal bonds. There are tales going back to 1850 of chicanery and mis-management. One state treasurer from Louisiana took the engraving plates used for an issue of Louisiana bonds to Europe with him on vacation, and had 2 more sets of bonds printed up.

The governor of South Carolina, Robert Scott, in the early 1870's had $22 million in certificates printed up for a $1.2 million issue. He induced some of his prostitute friends to sign for other state officials on the phony bonds. Ever after, history buffs have them whorehouse bonds.

Besides such risks in days of yore, the book tells of present-day risks of inflation, credit becoming unworthy, economy going bad in some regions, construction problems, and on and on. Well, most of these risks apply to other investments,

They tell how a bond issued with 12% coupons has the risk that you can't reinvest the interest at 12%, so it really isn't a 12% yield. True. It also works the other way. You buy an 8% bond, such as today, and the rates go to 10%, you can re-invest the interest to fetch you more than 8%.

The street runs both ways. We read that between 1972 and 1983 there were 113 that defaulted. Sounds terrible.

In this period there were about 130,000 new issues of bonds that came out. (Michigan, with 3% of the U.S. population, had 460 issues in just 1987.)

Out of 130,000 new issues alone in the 11-year period, plus a lot of old ones already out, 113 defaulted. This is .000869 -- about 1/11th of 1%. But read on. Of the 113 defaults only 31 were true municipal bonds -- ones issued for general obligation debts, water and sewers, housing and hospitals. The others were for bonds issued to finance private purpose commercial and industrial facilities. Municipals in name only, because private corporations were the only source of repay-

So we have 31 out of 130,000. Divide that out and the answer is .0002. That's purer than Ivory soap. Feldstein and Fabozzi detail the steps that should be taken to analyze a municipal bond issue, and I'm telling you, it would take you a year to do the job. The bonds would have been sold 51 weeks before you were crew leaves done. So they're talking to pro's, not to you and me, not even to medium-sized banks and insurance companies. You can't do your own research. You must rely on reports of others. and your own general knowledge of areas, and types of projects.

For example, for some years, nursing homes have had a lot of trouble. So you just stay away from them. You don't need fancy analysis.

The chapter on insurance (AMBAC, FGIC, BIG, etc.) is not accurate in saying insurance is paid on the date the bond is due. Actually, insurance pays interest when due, and they have the option of paying off the bond itself when due, or taking title to it when interest is past due, and paying you now.

The chapter on "moral obligations" of govern-ments to make good on certain issues (Michigan 'Qualified schools" for instance) has a fearful tone that is uncalled for. Even with morals being what they are nowadays, a state isn't going to weasel out of such obligations. Not if they plan to go back to the market some day. That conclusion is not my own. That's what D. Hale Brake, one of the great state treasurers of Michigan told me. Brake, a Democrat, was so great that we Republicans helped re-elect him.

If you read the book, I doubt if you'd ever buy a voted to conduct a hearing municipal bond again with- and survey related to the out trembling. The authors have lots of expertise, but it's not all that useful for us common people.

Bill Myers is a retired editor and investment counselor.
