Eye new plastic company plant in Novesta Township

Novesta Township will get an economic boost and more than 20 new jobs over the next year if plans announced by a plastics manufacturer become reality.

Businessman James A. Astley hopes to locate a new company, Silverwood Products Ltd., on farm land he owns on Phillips Road, about one mile west and a half-mile north of Deford.

Astley, who's confident he can resolve zoning and other matters which must be approved before he can proceed with the business venture, says he hopes to begin operation in 2 months.

Among the obstacles he faces are approval for rezoning the land from Agricultural to Light Industrial, and getting the land out of a 10-year P.A. 116 contract which began 2 years ago.

Astley met with township planning and zoning officials last week and was slated to meet with the Zoning Board of Appeals Monday on the zoning issue. Last week, he assured township officials that his company would produce minimum noise and traffic. He said his firm's manufacturing process requires no chemicals, only water for cooling, and there would be no air pollution.

Thumb Electric Co-operative Inc., Uby, has agreed to provide power to the factory. Operations Manager Les Teel said he expects necessary construction would be completed in 4 to 6 weeks.

Silverwood Products Ltd. won't shoulder the construction cost, Teel said, because that cost would be less than twice the factory's estimated annual electrical usage, according to a Public Service Commission rule for permanent facilities.

"I was kind of enthused when he brought it (proposal) to us," Teel remarked. He noted the co-operative already is serving residential customers in the township.

PRODUCTS

According to Astley, Silverwood Products' primary manufacturing product will be thermo plastic sheets used in vacuum forming, mainly for automotive tray packaging. He explained the trays are used by the automotive industry to hold parts during the assembly process.

"We're also getting into injection molding and plastic reclaim," Astley remarked, adding that the reclaim process is a form of recycling plastic for use in manufacturing and for sale in the form of plastic chips, which are heated and molded into various products.

Aside from the plastic sheets, Silverwood Products Ltd. also will produce plastic mud flaps for trucks, and indoor siding.

Astley's site plans include refurbishing 4 buildings at the farm, including a house that will serve as office space. He says he'll be using only 5 to 10 acres of the 80-acre parcel to start the operation.

Astley estimates his preliminary investment to begin operations at more than $100,000.

"There's 6,000 to 7,000 square feet that we have to work with," he said. "In a year, I'm hoping to increase it to 23,000 square feet."

Employment is another area Astley says he's confident will grow over the next year.

"We'll start with 8 to 10 people, with the potential next year of (increasing) to 20 to 28" employees. "My intention is to hire new people in here who don't know anything about" the business, he continued, adding that he wants to train all new workers.

Farmers struggle as hot dry weather blankets area

by Jill L. Schmidt
Staff Writer

Hot and dry weather continues to plague some Tuscola County farmers, but Cass City area farms are doing better than the county as a whole, according to Tuscola County Co-op Extension Director William Bortel.

Oats, barley and alfalfa fields need rain most of all, Bortel said Monday. Also, dry beans, usually planted from June 1-20th are only partially planted. They can't be planted until fields receive more moisture, Bortel explained.

Currently, "there is no moisture in the area," Bortel said, adding that the evaporation rate per day of area farm land averages about .02 inches.

"We had a good situation about 10 days ago," he said. Rains fell measuring .04 inches, giving farms 2 days of relief from the dryness.

The brief reprieve gave many farmers the opportunity to seed dry bean fields so that at the present time most, but not all, Tuscola County bean fields have been planted, Bortel said.

The dry weather has not played a major roll in the progress of early corn and sugar beets. Both crops, which are completely planted, are "doing well," Bortel said.

Because of the recent dry spell, 37 lower Michigan counties' farmers were recently granted permission to use land idled by the Set Aside and Conservation Reserve Program to feed livestock. Tuscola and Huron are among those counties.

Use of at least a portion of the program lands could partially avert a shortage of livestock feed and higher consumer prices later, Senator Nick Smith, chairman of the Senate Agriculture and Forestry Committee said.

"It should help the livestock people," Bortel commented. He added that the measure to allow set aside land to be used expressed the deep concern over the severity of the dry weather.

Okay millage for 4 area schools

There was plenty of good news following annual school elections Monday, when millage proposals in each of 4 area school districts were approved by voters.

With the exception of the Kingston School District, there were few surprises in the election of 2 school board trustees in each of the districts.

CASS CITY

Only about 21 percent of the registered voters in the Cass City School District voted in Monday's annual election to approve a request for 3 added mills for operation for one year and reelect without opposition trustees Fred Matthews and Beverly Auten.

The millage issued passed, 358 to 308, a winning margin of 53.7 percent. Auten received 584 votes and Matthews, 563 votes. There were several token write-in votes and several candidate ballots that were not marked.

Although the vote was light, it was heavier than last year when a renewal millage vote was approved. In 1987, 575 votes were cast.

The 3 mills for operation approved will raise a little over $300,000 for the school district. Supt. Ken Micklash has indicated that the money will be enough to erase the deficit that the school has been operating under and start rebuilding the fund balance that this year had dwindled to around $50,000.

KINGSTON

There was some excitement in the Kingston School District, where voters narrowly approved a millage request and elected 2 write-in candidates, including an incumbent who did not file for reelection, to the school board.

The millage request, 3 additional mills for 3 years, was approved on a vote of 217-210.

About 36 percent (430) of the district's registered voters cast ballots. There were 3 spoiled votes.

Neither of the candidates who filed for 2 available school board seats was elected. Selected to serve 4-year terms were incumbent Albert Ruggles, who did not file for reelection but received 247 write-in votes, and Wesley Boyl, another write-in candidate, who received 229 votes. Candidates Judy A. Smith and Marlene Powell, meanwhile, netted 125 votes and 167 votes, respectively. Write-in votes also were cast for incumbent John Borek (3), who also did not file for reelection, David Kolacz (3) and Jeff Newton (4).

OWEN-GAGE

Owen-Gage voters approved renewal of 15.5 mills for 2 years by an 84-vote margin, 249-165.

School Supt. Harley Kirby lauded members of the community for their continued support and their willingness to think of students first, which, he added, is more than state legislators have been able to manage in terms of approving a school finance reform package.

"These voters... in all the districts that pass millages have kids' interest in mind," he remarked. "I really believe they (legislators) just don't care. They're just worried about being reelected. There's a lot of lip service, but when you get down to it, it's Democrat and Republican."

Also in Monday's election, voters chose incumbent Board of Education member Ron Good and newcomer Walter W.

Swiastyn to serve 2, 4-year terms on the board. Good received 256 votes, while Swiastyn received 228 votes.

Also getting votes were challengers Richard Roth (187), Randall L. Howard (92) and write-in candidate Dick Glidden, who received one vote.

Kirby reported that 436 (29 percent) of the district's 1,465 registered voters made it to the polls. Of the 436 voters who cast ballots, 414 voted on the millage proposal, he said.

UBLY

In the Uby School District, 355 of the district's 2,900 registered voters cast ballots to elect 2 school board trustees.

Elected to the posts were incumbent John Rutkowski, with 195 votes, and newcomer Martin Kubacki, with 202 votes. Other candidates were Anthony Rutkowski, who received 154 votes, Robert Main, who netted 95 votes, and John Smigielski, who received one write-in vote.

Walbro announces joint agreement

Walbro Corporation has announced that it has signed an agreement to form a joint venture with AB Svenska Elektromagnet (SEM), Amal, Sweden, to manufacture and market ignition systems, flywheels and related components to customers in the small engine industry worldwide, with the exception of Europe.

Walbro Corporation is the world's largest independent manufacturer of small engine carburetors. SEM manufactures ignition systems and other electronic and electromechanical devices.

The joint venture company will be known as SEM-Walbro Corporation. Walbro will own 51 percent of the joint venture, with SEM holding a 49 percent interest. Headquarters for SEM-Walbro will be located in Cass City.

In announcing the joint venture agreement, Walbro Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer L.E. Althaver said,

"We are pleased to expand our product offerings in the small engine industry through the establishment of this joint venture with SEM. Their high quality, innovative ignition products are a logical complement to Walbro's lines of small engine fuel system components."

SEM President Erling Edmunson stated, "This joint venture with Walbro is a very positive development for SEM. Walbro's experience in the worldwide small engine industry will give us much quicker access to the market outside Europe."

"We also believe that the joint venture will result in interesting possibilities for the development of improved small engines in the future, specifically through combined ignition/carburetion systems, which have great potential for development," Edmunson added.

Board hears complaint about O-G bus driver

A recently completed asbestos inspection and a parent's complaint involving a bus driver were among the topics of discussion during a regular meeting of the Owen-Gage Board of Education Monday night.

School Supt. Harley Kirby told board members that the federally mandated asbestos inspection, which covered analysis of 71 samples taken from the Gagetown and Owendale schools, has been completed by DeLisle Consulting Inc. of Kalamazoo.

Kirby said he is now waiting for additional information in order to interpret a report on the inspection, which cost the school district $1,633.

Turning to the parent's complaint, Kirby presented a letter from Judy Harp of Gagetown to the board. The letter accuses a bus driver, who wasn't named, of harassing and instigating trouble for her children. The letter also requests a different driver next year.

Kirby stated that he has spoken with Harp, the children and the bus driver on the matter.

"I believe the driver stopped this alleged harassment when I told her to," he continued, adding that he was told the children involved continued to be disruptive, rude and vulgar.

Board members discussed the matter briefly, but took no action on Harp's request.

In other business during the 2-hour monthly meeting, the board approved motions stating appreciation for the Band Boosters and others who have donated money for activities such as field trips and sports camps. Such groups and individuals provided extras the district was unable to due to its tight financial situation, board members said.

Also Monday, the board: --Approved holding a special board meeting at 8 p.m. June 27 at Owendale High School to discuss the district's 1988-89 budget.

--Discussed teacher contract negotiations in a 42-minute executive session.

--Heard a report from elementary Principal William Britt, who said the elementary school's "read-a-thon," held June 3, raised a little more than $600. He also acknowledged donations totalling "several

In honor of Father's Day and all the dads we know, we've composed these Beatitudes for Fathers.

Blessed is the father who lives what he preaches to his kids. He realizes that a lecture on the ills of drugs will sound hollow to a teenager whose dad abuses alcohol. And that he can't expect basic honesty from children who see their father skirt the law, cheating on taxes, etc.

Blessed is the father who communicates freely with his children and their mother. He knows that it's unfair and unrealistic to expect those he loves to read his mind.

Blessed is the father who spends time with his children. He recognizes that rearing children may be the most significant accomplishment of a lifetime, and he refuses to relegate the task to Mom.

Blessed is the father who builds self-esteem in his children. He treats them with respect and listens to them, aware that self-worth is the foundation on which other qualities are built.

Blessed is the father who is secure enough to say "I'm sorry" when he's been wrong. He realizes that there is no better way to teach a child that it's okay to make mistakes and learn from them.

Blessed is the father who leads his family, rather than driving them. He understands that it's not enough to make a set of rules and regulations. He must show the way by example and with consideration.

Blessed is the father who recognizes and respects the individuality of his children. He knows that each one is unique, with distinct aptitudes and interests. He doesn't expect or insist that they fit someone else's mold or follow in his footsteps.

Blessed is the father who is not too tough to be sensitive. He considers the out-moded notion that real men don't show emotion foolish and detrimental and knows that the man who believes the myth misses out.

Blessed is the father who is dependable. He provides not only for material needs, but also for the emotional and spiritual well-being of his family. They can count on his consistent and unswerving values.

Blessed is the father whose kids know he loves them, unconditionally, just as they are. He tells them and he shows them. He recognizes the importance of assuring the child of his constant love even when he may be unable to condone his unacceptable behavior.

The child who knows he's loved can never be a loser, and neither can his father.

"If It Fitz..."

Emily's prop man

By Jim Fitzgerald

Various businesses are forever sending me news releases and photographs, in search of publicity. On behalf of Emily, I thank them for all this helpful material.

Like most 6-year-olds, my granddaughter Emily lives much of her life in fantasyland. She pretends to be a teacher, waitress, entertainer, mother and soon. Whatever role she's playing, Emily is always a person in authority, giving orders to imaginary idiots who wouldn't know how to breathe without her firm guidance.

All this play-acting requires props, preferably from the real world, not the toy store. Emily doesn't want to read to her students from childish Dick and Jane books, she wants real adult books, the kind of authentic reading that can make you emotional when you get to the page that Emily's little sister, substituting for an imaginary idiot, colored with purple

Concert set

"Living Truth" will be in concert Sunday at 6:30 p.m. at the Evangelical Free Church, 6430 Chestnut Blvd., Cass City.

"Living Truth" is a music group composed of 5 members, from the Elkton and Caro areas, who play a total of 17 instruments, both antique and contemporary. They have traveled throughout much of the United States presenting a diversified musical program in combination with testimonies of their relationship with Jesus Christ.

I am Emily's prop man. I mail her news releases and photos that used to go into my wastebasket. This stuff looks important to Emily, who has never met a public relations representative in heat. Emily shuffles the papers on her desk, or distributes them to the imaginary idiots, or reads aloud from them in her most intellectual voice, even though she can't read. She glues the photos to walls.

Emily's mother, Ferd, appreciates my supply of press pap because it distracts Emily from more incendiary activities, such as giving her little sister a horse-back ride down the basement steps, on roller skates. My reward is that Ferd sometimes eavesdrops on what Emily does with the pap, and reports back to me.

It is my contention that the most fun a stealthy adult can have is to crouch in the shadows and watch the pretending of innocent little kids who have no idea you are such a big sneak. Emily and I get together only once or twice a month, so I must depend on her parents to keep me up to date on her fantasy world. The latest report may be the funniest.

The morning mail from me brought Emily a press packet promoting Sesame Street traffic safety program. She immediately set up a classroom in her bedroom, while her mother peeked through a crack in the door.

"Before passing out the news releases to her students, Emily told them there were certain rules they would have to obey, or they couldn't stay in school," Ferd later told me. "One of those rules, Emily said, was no running in the hallway."

"Then there was a long pause, and Emily said there was one exception - they could run in the hallway if they had to get back to the classroom in a hurry because they were hurt."

"Another long pause. 'Of course,' Emily said, 'if you hurt your foot or leg, you won't be able to run, so a friend can run for you!'"

"Then there was an even longer pause, and Emily said: 'If you don't have a friend, and your leg or foot is hurt, you can scootch along on your butt, like this.' And Emily demonstrated the half-butt scootch for her pupils."

"There was another pause while Emily pondered further. 'Of course, if your left arm and left leg are hurt, you won't be able to scootch like that,' she said, 'but you can scootch like this.' And Emily demonstrated the half-butt scootch."

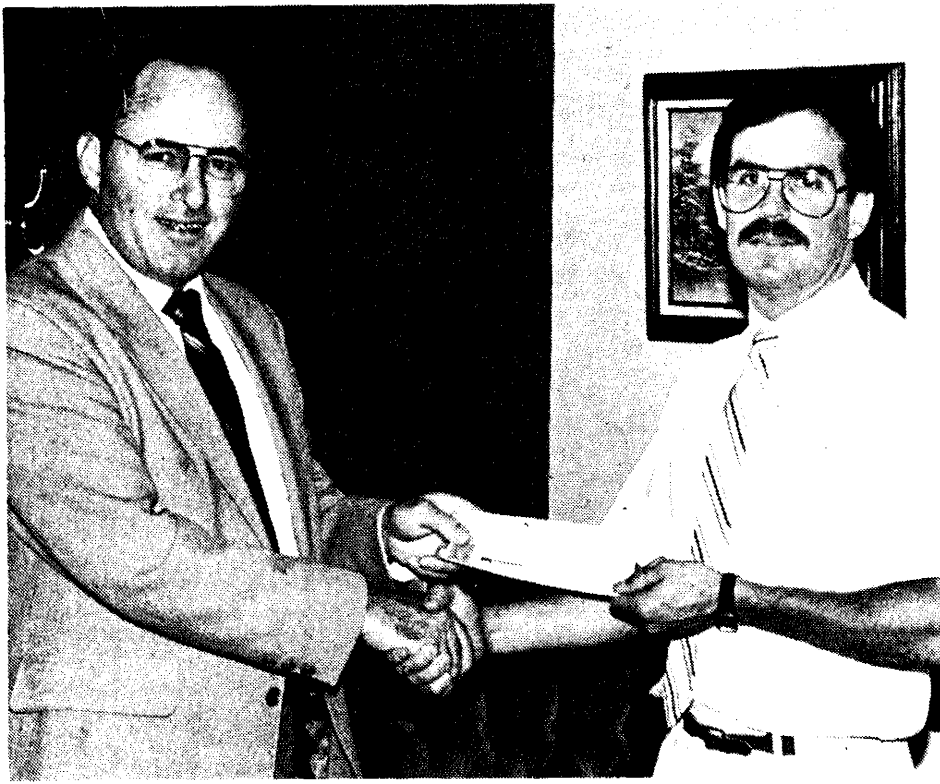

At this point sneaky Ferd had to retreat so Emily wouldn't hear her laughing. So I can tell you how a student with both legs and arms hurt manages to scootch. It probably helps to have a very talented butt.

Speaking of butts, the giant slide on Belle Isle recently opened for the season, and Emily and I were there, butts on burlap mats, plunging down the slick bumpy surface, sometimes airborne, often screaming. After 3 trips, I said no more. It wasn't the ride down that was killing me, it was the walk back up.

"People will laugh at an old man like me on a kids' slide," I told Emily.

"They won't laugh if you're with the famous Emily," she said.

She was pretending I was Dr. Frankenstein and she was Boris Karloff.

CASS CITY LIONS Club representative Curt Strickland (right) last week presented a $2,000 check to village manager Lou S. No injuries reported in 4 area vehicle accidents

A 2-car mishap on East Caro Road east of Gerou Road in Ellington Township last week resulted in slight damage to both vehicles.

According to a report filed at the state police post in Caro, vehicles driven by Angela A. Dennis, 1882 W. Deckerville Rd., Caro, and Russell A. Kneale of Port Austin collided at about 6:10 p.m. Both vehicles were northeast bound when Dennis' vehicle, which had slowed to make a left turn, struck Kneale's vehicle as it attempted to pass.

Dennis was cited for a defective turn signal, reports state.

Another minor 2-car accident was reported on Kelly Road east of Warner Road Saturday morning in Novesta Township.

According to troopers, vehicles driven by Vern B. McConnell, 2977 N. Dodge Rd., Cass City, and Lisa A. Britt, 5820 Greenland Rd., Cass City, were westbound on Kelly Road when McConnell's vehicle stopped in the roadway and was struck from behind by Britt's vehicle.

Also, Cass City resident Kenneth D. Spencer reported he was driving east on M-81 west of Green Road Thursday when his vehicle struck a deer. Damage was slight in the 9 p.m. mishap.

Fred E. Wagner, 6901 Cass City Rd., Cass City, also reported hitting a deer. The mishap occurred on Cemetery Road north of Shabbona Road at 11 p.m. June 7. Wagner also reported slight damage to his vehicle.

The Haire Net

There is only one thing certain following the survey of the Cass River by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) last week. It is that Dave Dunn knows the river's best fishing holes.

It was from the section of river that Dunn asked the DNR to survey that the most and the biggest (10.4 pounds) pike were taken.

Dunn also says that poisoning the stream sets back the insect life and generally will kill the stream for fishing for 4 or more years. The DNR estimates from 2 to 4 years.

The opinion here is that the DNR should be encouraged to poison the river and then restock it. Before you ask, it's true that I have no personal knowledge of the Cass River and have never fished it.

But my opinion is based on more than reading the results of the survey. While never a Cass River fisherman, over the years hundreds of hours have been spent flaying the trout streams in Michigan.

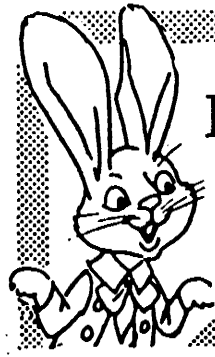

Over the years some of my favorite fishing holes were taken over by suckers and chubs on the Manistee River near Frederick. The DNR came in, poisoned out that stretch of river, and then re-stocked it. It was successful. A national organization, Trout Unlimited, is now working and raising money to do the same in sections of the Rifle River, another great trout stream gone to pot.

Trout Unlimited includes a host of sportsmen vitally interested in promoting fishing and a better environment. Veterans of the outdoors, they are knowledgeable about rivers and about fishing. They support these conservation practices because it has been their experience that they work. It's hard to see how this fish management practice would be different on the Cass.

While the DNR's belief that fishing will improve in the long run by poisoning out the "rough" fish, is shared here, let me stress that it is not the panacea for all that's wrong with Cass River fishing.

For my favorite trout stream spots in northern Michigan fishing after the poisoning was not what it was 20 years previously. To expect that is wishful thinking. Fishing for me as a youth was better than it was for my kids and my kids will have it better than my grandchildren.

There are legitimate concerns about pollution of the

by John Haire
(And anyone else he can get to help.)

Dick Wallace says that I missed the real human interest factor last week when I reported on the holes in one scored by Keith Murphy and Jerry Toner.

It was pointed out that Toner was a teenager when he connected and Murphy is a senior citizen.

Wallace says I should have said that it runs in the family since Murphy is Toner's uncle.

Monday the temperature soared into the 90's. Last Thursday night there were frost warnings issued. Only in Michigan.

One of the persons attending the funeral Monday of my mother-in-law in Pinconning was Dr. F. Letchfield.

The doctor is a long-time acquaintance of mine and has a Cass City connection. He graduated from dental school with Dr. Edwin Fritz of Cass City and the late Lewis Pinney, brother of Fred Pinney and a native of Cass City who practiced in Saginaw.

Dan Lackowski of Uby cashed in a gift certificate for $25 he had won in July 1986 at Rolling Hills Golf Course, Monday. He received the certificate for getting a hole in one on No. 5.

So what did he do Monday when he came to lucky No. 5? Shot a hole in one, of course.

Historical Society to show film

The Cass City Historical Society is extending an invitation to all interested persons to view a video Monday on the early life of E.B. Schwaderer and his road construction.

The program is slated to begin at 7:30 p.m. at Rawson Memorial Library in Cass City.

HEALTH TIPS

Smokers are playing Russian roulette

C. Everett Koop, M.D.
Surgeon General of the U.S. Public Health Service
Department of Health and Human Services

During the years that I have served as Surgeon General, I have been given a number of complex assignments — the treatment of handicapped children, the transplantation of major organs, the improvement of the nation's blood supply and, most recently, that devastating and baffling disease, AIDS. But one issue has been a part of my daily agenda, and has been consistently high on my priority list, for the past 6 years. That issue is smoking.

At first, I had the assignment simply because it belonged in my office. It was the Surgeon General, after all, who warned people about the dangers of smoking. I had no choice in the matter. But now, having been immersed in the smoking issue for all this time, and after closely observing just how the cigarette industry operates, I make no apologies for the fact that I'm keeping this assignment by choice!

In addition to my own yearly reports on smoking and health, I have called for the goal of making the United States a smoke-free society by the year 2000. Since then, I am pleased to report, this goal has been adopted by other Federal agencies, by state governments and even by foreign governments.

I announced that goal almost 4 years ago. At the time, I must admit, I wasn't sure it could be achieved. But the response from average Americans — from the people at the "grass roots," as we say — has been very positive and very strong. Many voluntary and professional associations, including all the major ones in medicine and public health, plus literally millions of ordinary citizens, have taken up the challenge of making America smoke-free by the year 2000.

Why are these people and institutions so enthusiastic about clearing our air of the smoke from cigarettes? The answer is to be found in about 30 years' worth of top-drawer research. For about that period of time, biomedical researchers, physicians and public health personnel in more than 80 countries have been generating studies — more than 50,000 studies, in fact — about the effects of smoking on the health of smokers and those around them. What we have learned...what the overwhelming majority of all these studies has concluded...is that cigarette smoking is either a contributing factor or the primary cause of far too many cases of unnecessary illness and far too many premature deaths each year in this country and abroad.

Thanks to this vast body of research (and I might add that about 2,000 new studies are added annually), we know...that a smoker has a risk of sudden cardiac death that is 3 times that of a person who does not smoke...that about 85 percent of all lung cancers in the U.S. are caused by cigarette smoking. People who smoke a couple of packs a day have a lung cancer death rate that is as much as 25 times greater than the rate for people who don't smoke at all...that cigarette smoking is the major cause of chronic obstructive lung disease, especially emphysema and chronic bronchitis. Emphysema is quite common among older people who have smoked, but it is rarely found among older non-smokers, and...that women who are pregnant have an increased risk of delivering their babies prematurely, or of aborting the fetus spontaneously, or of delivering a stillborn child or of giving birth to a child who is unable to survive more than a few days outside the womb.

These are the facts. They are incontrovertible. They have been published in 18 official reports by U.S. Surgeons General over the past 24 years. What they add up to is this: if you smoke, you are playing a kind of Russian roulette with your health and, perhaps, with your life.

There is an old saying, a saying that young people find humorous and many older people find cruelly ironic. "If I had known that I was going to live this long," the saying goes, "I would have taken better care of myself."

Will you help me clear the air? No, don't do it for me; do it for yourself and your family. Stop smoking today so that, someday, you won't have to look back and wish that you had quit while there was still time....

Mihoko Yokota

Japanese exchange student adjusts to small town living

by Jill L. Schmidt
Staff Writer

Moving to a foreign country forces a newcomer to deal with many changes.

Cultural distinctions such as language and food naturally confront the novice and demand his attention, patience and effort in adapting to new surroundings.

For Mihoko Yokota, a first time visitor to Cass City and the United States, learning to function in a small town has proven to be her most trying cultural change.

Yokota, a Rotary Youth Exchange student, arrived here in March from her home of Kawasaki-shi, Japan, near Tokyo, a city of some 11,000,000 people.

This town "is not what I expected," she recently remarked, admitting that she didn't know what she would be confronted with in the United States.

She classified the differences between here and home in one word. "Small," she said with a laugh as she looked out of her host family's living room window.

Yokota said she likes Cass City, but is still adjusting to the change in cultures, most of all the remarkable difference in city size. She noted that she's never been to a small town before, adding, "Small town experience is good, but strange."

Living in a small town has given Yokota the opportunity to view school and social activities with a new perspective.

In Japan, where Yokota attended high school, she would travel one hour and 15 minutes through the city to school everyday. After walking about 15 minutes to the train station and traveling on 3 trains, Yokota would arrive within a 10 minute walk from the private school she attended.

SHORT WALK

Here, Yokota enjoyed a short walk to the public school where she is a senior and will remain until March.

Also at Cass City High School, unlike the Japanese school she graduated from, Yokota found comfort with the absence of certain regulations.

At the Japanese school Yokota attended, she was restricted on how she could wear her hair. A school uniform was required to be worn by all, and mandatory study directly after school affected all upperclassmen.

Mandatory study is required to help students prepare for university entrance exams, which are "very difficult," according to Yokota, who gained acceptance into a university before coming to the United States.

While Yokota studied a great deal in Japan, she pointed out that she was overwhelmed by the amount of homework assigned here.

"I expected Cass City High School to be easy," she recalled, adding that much studying was required of her in Japan, but not as much as is assigned by Cass City High instructors.

BARRIER

The barrier of language also added to the time consumed by tackling the task of homework here, Yokota remarked.

Study habits are only one area in which students differ between Japan and the United States in terms of what students do on weekends.

Underclassmen in Japan "go to the coffee shop after school," Yokota said. Juniors and seniors sometimes join the younger students after their study sessions.

During the school year, on weekends, Yokota and her friends would usually go into the city, shopping or bowling or attend a movie or play.

A lack of many of these activities in Cass City contributes to what the city's smallness means to Yokota.

Improving her English remains a goal of Yokota's stay in the United States.

Yokota's original reasoning in choosing the United States over another country partially rested on the way Americans speak.

The Rotary Youth Exchange program offered only 3 English speaking countries for Yokota to choose from. She excused the ideas of traveling to Australia or New Zealand because she did not want to be exposed to the accents or slang there.

American language has provided enough difficulty for Yokota to break through, however. Yokota studied English for 6 years before she came to the United States, but acknowledged, "speaking is hard."

DIFFERENCES

Other evident differences between here and home include meals.

Yokota pointed out that she eats a lot of "bread and meat" now. Though she likes the food, it is quite different from home. In Japan, she would eat less of both. Rice, served with every meal, would accompany the spicy flavor that cannot be found in American cooking.

Breakfast is also much different here, Yokota said. In Japan the entire family sits down together at breakfast for a meal similar to the dinner ritual in America. Yokota has learned that nearly no one follows this tradition in the United States.

Another new concept Yokota discovered during her stay with the first of 3 host families, the Adelbergs, 4830 Hospital Dr., is cable television. Japan has no such equivalent. About 10 different stations may be tuned in at the Yokota residence in Japan.

With the time she has left, Yokota said she hopes to learn more about America and Americans as well as improve her English speaking skills.

Beyond Cass City, visits to Saginaw and Frankmunth have been Yokota's extent of knowledge of U.S. life. She hopes to return to Frankmunth again before she leaves the area. Also, an uncle residing in New Jersey, just across the river from Manhattan, has extended an invitation to Yokota that she would like to accept sometime this summer.

Yokota remarked that she's dreamed of visiting the United States since she was 16 years old. When the visit ends, she'll return to Japan to immediately enter Aoyama Gakuin University.

With hope, she commented, she will leave Cass City quite fluent in English and well versed on small town life.

Cigarette may have caused grass fire

A cigarette tossed from a window of a passing car ignited a grass fire along E. Cass City Road at the corner of Crane Road Monday afternoon, according to Elkland Township Fire chief Dick Root.

The fire started at about 3:30 along the property of Robert Neiman, 5211 E. Cass City Road.

Root said that Neiman attempted to control the fire himself, but the

HER HIGH SCHOOL yearbook reminds Mihoko Yokota, a Rotary exchange student living in Cass City, of her home in Japan.

General Cable airs joint venture

A fiber optics joint venture between General Cable Co. and Furukawa Electric Co., Ltd., was announced Thursday.

Dr. Etsuji Kusakabe, representative director and president of Furukawa Electric, and Denis R. Brown, president and CEO of Penn Central Telecommunications Company, announced the formation of Fitel General Inc. The new company will combine Penn Central Telecommunications' domestic Fiber Optics Division, which has operated within General Cable Co., with Fitel Corporation, Furukawa's subsidiary in this country.

According to Henry A. Macchio, vice-president and director of marketing and sales for General Cable, the joint venture will not affect operations at the General Cable Co. plant in Cass City. Macchio said the local plant specializes in optics cables and related products.

Immunization
cut back

Due to the recent millage failure, immunization clinics held by the Tuscola County Health Department are being cut back to twice a month.

The clinics will be held on the first Thursday of the month, from 1 to 7 p.m., and the third Thursday of the month, from 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3:30 p.m. However, in the month of June, the second immunization clinic will be held June 23 instead of June 16.

Please call the Health Department at 673-8114 to schedule your child's immunization.

Your neighbor says

Clashes in baseball
don't bother me

Recent fights involving baseball managers Pete Rose and Billy Martin bumping and throwing dirt at umpires has shined additional light on the issue of umpire/manager disagreements.

Questions like what to do about Martin in particular and how severe punishments should be regarding overly enthused displays of temper on the baseball field are currently being asked by the public and baseball officials.

Your neighbor, James Caraballo, 24, of Cass City, sees no easy answers to these questions. Officials "can't stop it (fights)," he remarked, adding, "They've been doing that (managers and umpires arguing) for a long time in baseball. They (managers) all yell and kick dirt."

Caraballo agrees with the comments many have made lately about Martin. "He's probably one of the worst (when it comes to fighting) around," Caraballo stated.

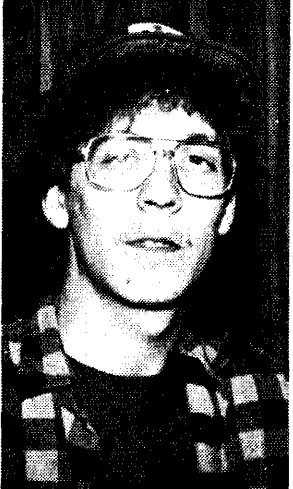

It has been pointed out, by broadcaster Al Kaline for one, that many people in baseball don't like Martin. It has also been stated that fans love Martin and go wild when they see Martin yelling at an umpire, or any manager/umpire argument.

"They (arguments) don't bother me," Caraballo pointed out. "I find them kind of funny actually," he stated.

Caraballo explained that though he is not a Martin fan, he likes to keep up on what Martin does in baseball. "I like to hear if Martin has been fined or in a fight," he commented, adding, "They've been pushing him (Martin) around the league. It doesn't seem like anyone wants him."

Caraballo stated his opinion on fines. "They're pretty high," he commented. Since they don't seem to work, "they (baseball officials) might come up with something else if he (Martin) keeps it up. Who knows?" Caraballo added, "There's not much that can be done to stop it (fighting)."

A Tiger fan himself, Caraballo moved to Cass City from the Detroit area some 7 months ago. He recently acquired a position driving a truck for Kociba Dairy of Bad Axe.

PUBLIC NOTICE

VILLAGE OF CASS CITY

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN 48726

Sampling by the Michigan Department of Public Health has confirmed the presence of lead in drinking water from certain piping systems where the water has remained stagnant for a period of time. Levels in excess of the current drinking water standard (50 parts per billion) have been detected. Laboratory testing has shown that the principal sources of lead are lead piping and lead based solders and fluxes used to join copper piping. Based on these results and those from other studies, the Michigan Department of Labor, Bureau of Construction Codes and the Michigan Department of Public Health have supported legislation which prohibits the use of lead based solders and fluxes in potable water piping systems. The plumbing industry and homeowners who may construct potable drinking water piping systems must no longer use lead based solders and fluxes for joining copper piping. Other solder materials or joining methods are available and must be used. Lead piping has not been allowed for new installations for about the last ten years. Building copper piping water systems constructed to date likely contain lead based solder and flux.

Water is the universal solvent and even relatively stable water when stagnant for a period of even a few hours in contact with lead solder and flux can result in a significant concentration of lead in the water. The health department is recommending that those piping systems in which the water has remained stagnant overnight or for longer periods be flushed for several minutes prior to using the water for drinking or cooking purposes. This typically has been found to satisfactorily reduce the level of lead and other metals that may concentrate in the water within the building's piping system.

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million (ppm). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard.

EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women.

Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest:
-if your home or water system has lead pipes, or
-if your home has copper pipes with lead solder, and -if the home is less than five years old, or -if you have soft or acidic water, or
-if water sits in the pipes for several hours

Besides lead in water from certain piping systems, there are other exposure pathways to lead including:
air - from industrial discharges, automobile exhaust food - from airborne deposition of lead on crops and lead solder seams in some food containers non-food items - lead based paint, dirt, solder, or any object containing lead

It should be noted that the major source of lead exposure and lead poisoning in the United States is due to children consuming lead based paint chips.

People who may have concerns about the concentration of lead from their building or household piping are advised to contact a reputable private laboratory for a water analysis. Others who may have specific concerns relative to any possible health effects are urged to contact their physician.

For more information about this matter, please contact your village manager at 872-2911.

Farm Bureau picks
students for seminar

High school students selected to attend Farm Bureau's Young People's Citizenship Seminar from Tuscola County should return with a spirited interest in their American heritage and the nation's political system, Duane Weber, Farm Bureau Young Farmer Committee member, remarked.

The 25th annual seminar will be held June 20-24 at Olivet College.

According to Weber, students will perform as political party delegates, candidates and registered voters during the seminar. In addition to participating in political rallies and campaigns, they will learn about United States and world economies, the freedoms Americans take for granted and the cultures in other countries.

Selected to attend the seminar are Sheila S. Elward, Silverwood; Jamie L. Freeland, Fostoria; Laura K. Lawless, Mayville; Penny A. Nichols, Caro; Anna E. Peter, Kingston; and Jennifer L. Smith, Mayville.

One of the first American magazines, The General Magazine, founded by Benjamin Franklin in 1741, carried the first known American magazine advertisement.

B. Root wins

Collegiate award

The United States Achievement Academy recently announced that former Cass City resident Barbara A. Root has been named a United States National Collegiate Award winner.

The award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the academy recognizes less than 10 percent of all American college students.

Barbara Root

A 1985 Cass City High School graduate, Root, now a junior at Michigan State University, was nominated for the award by an advisor at the university.

The daughter of Roger and Kathy Root of Cass City, she will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Collegiate yearbook, published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly United States Achievement Academy award winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," Dr. George Stevens, executive director of the academy, remarked.

He said the academy selects winners on the exclusive recommendation of professors, coaches, counselors or other schools sponsors and on the standards of selection set forth by the academy.

The criteria for selection, Stevens added, are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude, cooperative spirit and dependability.

"CAMPERSHIP" DONATIONS OF $100 were accepted by local scout leaders Friday. Knights of Columbus Grand Knight Alan Witkovsky of Council 8872 presents the checks to Connie Iwankovitsch of Cub Scout Pack 3594, David Kirby of Boy Scout Troup 589 and Ken Spencer of Troup 594.

Extension specialist:

Drought-stricken farmers face herbicide failure

Recent drought conditions have caused widespread herbicide failure for most farmers in Michigan. "Farmers with weed problems in their corn and soybeans have the options of mechanical weed control, such as rotary hoeing or cultivation, or they may elect to apply a post-emergence herbicide," Jim Kells, a Michigan State University Extension weed control specialist, says.

He points out, however, that farmers run the risk of a second herbicide failure if they apply a post-emergence herbicide under current hot, dry conditions.

Kells says weeds under moisture stress are more difficult to control because drought-stressed weeds don't absorb the herbicide as rapidly as actively growing weeds. Farmers who delay the application of a post-emergence herbicide in hopes of rain may find that the weeds have grown too large for effective herbicide control.

"Post-emergence herbicides are most effective in controlling grassy weeds in corn when the weeds are very small, up to 1 inch tall," Kells says. "But broadleaf weed control in corn can be effective when the weeds are larger, often up to 4 inches tall."

Soybean growers will find that post-emergence herbicides are effective for control of grassy weeds up to 6 to 8 inches tall, but in most cases broadleaf weeds must be treated when they are less than 2 inches tall.

"Timing of post-emergence grass control in corn is critical, and the risk of delayed application is great," Kells adds. "In soybeans, the risk of waiting for rain for effective broadleaf weed control is very high."

Based on the risks associated with the proper timing of post-emergence herbicide applications, Kells suggests that mechanical weed control is the more desirable option.

"Rotary hoeing provides a very effective method of controlling small emerged weeds or weeds that are about to emerge, though it will not control larger weeds," Kells says. "Cultivation will control annual weeds between rows, including weeds under heat and moisture stress."

Mechanical methods should control existing weeds and help buy time for a rainfall to occur, Kells adds. Previously applied residual herbicides will still be present in the soil, so when it does rain they should provide control of emerging weeds. If a post-emergence herbicide is needed later, the mechanical weed control approach will keep weeds in check until field conditions improve.

Farmers who elect to use a post-emergence herbicide should contact their local Cooperative Extension Service office for assistance in choosing the correct herbicide based on the weeds to be controlled, growth stages of the weeds and the crop, and other factors that will affect weed control performance. Farmers also need to consider the effects that the herbicide will have on future cropping practices for the field.

K of C council helps Scouts go to camp

Helping to send area Scouts to camp, the Knights of Columbus Council 8892 donated $100 each to 3 local scouting organizations.

Thursday night bingo at St. Pancratius Hall provided for the majority of contribution moneys.

Beyond the campership donations, Boy Scout Troop 594 seeks additional funds. The troop is currently selling coupon booklets redeemable at area Pizza Hut locations at $5 a piece. Persons who would like to purchase a booklet should call Scout Master Kenneth Spencer at 872-4290.

A registered nurse, Profit will assume a substance abuse counselor position at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. He presently is employed at Clinton Valley Center in Pontiac, where he has worked since 1964.

Profit, who now resides in Clarkston, plans to return to Wayne State next year to earn a master of science degree in nursing, with a specialty in oncology.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Peters of Vassar and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Profit of Bay City.

Picky panda

The picky panda: Of the 20 bamboo varieties, the giant panda eats only five. And only certain parts of those plants at certain times. According to International Wildlife magazine, only bamboo stems are on the menu in spring. At other times, pandas prefer the leaves and shoots. Researchers believe the animal alters its diet because of seasonal changes in the parts of the plant that are most nutritious and taste the best.

Sanilac Historical Museum to open

The Sanilac County Historical Museum opens its doors for the 1988 season Saturday. One of its major goals for this year is a membership drive asking each of the present members to recruit a new member and to spread the news of what this museum - one of the few county-wide museums in Michigan - has to offer.

Jane Miller, executive director of the museum, points out that the future of this museum rests with the present members and their new members. So much of the work of maintaining

"Movie Time" slated Friday

Rawson Memorial Library's "movie time" for senior citizens has been slated for 1:30 p.m. Friday at the library, 6495 Pine St., Cass City.

The films scheduled to be shown are "America: The New Found Land," a 2-part series which focuses on how the white man got to North America and what he was seeking, and "Two Tars," a Laurel and Hardy movie in which the comedians are sailors on leave who go for a joy ride in the country, but encounter a massive traffic jam en route.

and financing the museum depends upon volunteers and present members.

Located at the south edge of Port Sanilac on M-25, the 25-room Victorian mansion was built in 1872 by Dr. Joseph Loop as a family residence and also as his office for his medical practice. He was the first doctor to practice in this area in 1852.

The mansion was donated to the Sanilac County Historical Society by the grandson of Dr. Loop - Captain Stanley G. Harrison, in 1964. A colorful sea and lake captain he had sailed most of his life. His home port, he always said, was the house in Port Sanilac. He died at the age of 93 in 1977.

The museum is located on several acres of land. It offers visitors a pioneer barn, the historic Banner log cabin, and a dairy museum. The log cabin will be featured June 26 on what has been designated by the state legislature as Log Cabin Day.

Probably one of the oldest historical societies in the state was formed in the area for a brief period during the nation's centennial. Due to the devastating fires which swept this area the original records were lost and very little is known about the early founders.

Summer youth programs set by county extension

With the overwhelming popular response to last year's summer programs offered through the Tuscola County Extension office, area youth will once again be able to enjoy exciting summer programs thanks to some special local sponsors and their generosity.

"Last year Walbro was our key sponsor. This year I am excited with the additional sponsorship of 4 other local businesses. Our successful programs have been highly complemented by participants, Walbro Corporation and area communities," John Wurm, Tuscola County Extension 4-H Youth Agent, remarked.

Two very talented ladies from our area will be helping this summer. They are Barbara Merchant of Cass City and Ann Loftis of Caro.

Merchant is currently pursuing a degree in secondary education at Central Michigan University, where she is a junior. Merchant is heading up the Super Summer Enrichment Program geared for Tuscola County youth, ages 8 through 12 years of age.

The program promises an educational and exciting summer for young people. It will run on Tuesdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., June 28 through Aug. 16, and will be held at the Wilbur Memorial Hall, located at the fairgrounds in Caro. Each week there will be different activities, speakers, films and crafts dealing with subjects such as space exploration, careers, prevention of drug and alcohol abuse, animals and more.

There also will be 2 field trips days where youth will be able to tour area businesses, including Walbro Corporation, Caro Community Hospital and the Tuscola County Courthouse. The other day will be spent in Lansing at the Capitol and the Impressions 5 Science Museum.

The Super Summer Enrichment Program is made possible through the Tuscola County 4-H Council, Walbro Corporation, Heritage Press, Tuscola County Advertiser and Ames Department Stores.

Loftis, Wurm's other assistant, is currently pursuing a degree in elementary education at Harding University, Ark., where she is a senior. She is busy with 4-H preparation for the Tuscola County Fair, which will run July 31 through Aug. 6.

Loftis is also creating a Career Resource Handbook for area schools. The handbook is being designed to give teachers local career resource people who are eager to help educate our youth. A wide variety of people will be listed, each with their own interesting careers and informative tips.

"These young ladies make a great team and will be helping each other with both fair preparations and the summer programs," Wurm said.

Anyone interested in more information on the Super Summer Enrichment Program or would like to be listed as a career resource person in the handbook, is encouraged to call the Cooperative Extension office at (517) 673-5999, ext. 228.

Hawks come up on short end of pitching battle

The tournament trail for the Cass City High School softball team came to an end Saturday in the opening round of the regionals at Breckenridge. The Hawks bowed to Shepherd, 5-0.

It was the final game of plucky Tammy Hurd's pitching career in high school and the diminutive Hawk hurler made it a good one, matching winner Roxi Holebein pitch for pitch throughout the game. She allowed the winners just 4 hits and one earned run, striking out 4 while walking 6. Holebein allowed 7 hits, walked 6, but struck out 12.

The difference in the game, Coach Jim Fox said, was that our defense that was so good in the districts slipped and we committed 5 errors that figured in the scoring.

Another factor in the game was the lack of a hit in the clutch. The Hawks had chances galore to put some runs on the board, but each time Holebein registered the key strikeout to quell the threat.

Cass City put the lead-off runner on 4 times in the 7-inning game and had a runner on every inning except the fourth. Cass City left 2 runners stranded twice and in the second inning loaded the bases.

The hard throwing Shepherd hurler wasn't much of a puzzle to Tanya Hatmaker, who rapped out

2 hits and walked in her 3 times to the plate. She was the only Hawk to collect more than one hit. Single safeties were picked up by Teri Wilson, Brenda Severance, LeAnn LaRoche, Terri Gibson and Hurd.

All the runs that winners were to need were counted in the first inning. An error, walk and a hit put the first 3 runners on and they all scored. Shepherd added single counters in the fourth and fifth as they advanced to the regional finals.

FIRST FLIGHT WINNERS Ed and Paul Pasant

SECOND FLIGHT WINNERS Mike Lefler and Mike Diegel.

Pasants win Lions' Tourney

About 100 golfers, in 2-man teams, competed in the annual Cass City Lions Club best ball tournament held Saturday at Rolling Hills Golf Course.

The handicapped tournament was divided into 2 divisions. The 'A' flight included golfers with 18-hole handicaps of 18 or less. The 'B' flight consisted of golfers whose handicaps were greater than 18.

The winners in the 1st flight were Ed Pasant of Cass City and Paul Pasant of Bay City, who recorded a net score of 57 in sunn but breezy conditions.

Runners-up were Cass Cityans Dale McIntosh and Kim Glaspie, who finished one stroke back at 58.

Third place went to Jerry Degelbeck and Terry Hiske, both of Marlette, who finished at 59.

Winners of the 2nd flight were Mike Diegel and Mike Lefler of Cass City, who posted a score of 53 to nudg out last year's champions Mark Swanson and Dick Haley, also from Cass City, by one stroke.

Third place went to Ken Campbell and Bob White, who ended the day with a score of 55. Campbell and White reside in Caro.

Many new faces seek office in Sanilac County townships

Five candidates are seeking the post of Sanilac County Sheriff, now held by first term Republican incumbent John G. Osborn. Osborn is being challenged by Republicans Virgil Strickler, who is Sandusky Police Chief, and Marlette businessman Douglas Brock. Also seeking the post are former under-sheriff William Lakatos and Frederick Graff of Sandusky.

Long-time Treasurer Ken Rhead, who has held his post for 12 years, decided not to seek reelection. Vying for his post are Marlette Republican Carol Dale and Republican Ed Jarosz, Lexington.

The race for register of deeds also will be decided in the Primary as 3 Republicans are seeking that position. They are newly appointed Register of Deeds Esther Lee, Sandusky Mayor Emmett E. Morrell and Sanilac Township Clerk Jerome Essenschmayer Sr.

Three Republicans and a Democrat are vying for the job of drain commissioner, which will be vacated this fall by Stuart Armstead, the longest holder of that office in Sanilac County. Those battling for the post are Drain Inspector Harold Donaghy, Carsonville resident James Bowerman and Lexington resident Howard Osterhout, and Democrat Walt Tereschuk, Sandusky.

For the first time in county history, a road commissioner will be elected, rather than appointed. Incumbent Carl Reisner is being challenged by former county commissioner and Brown City Councilman Robert Warren for the 6-year term. Both candidates are Republicans.

County commission races are set as follows: Republicans and former commissioners Helen Jaromolowicz and James D. Young are challenging Crosswell Democrat Diana Pynnonen for the District 1 seat; Democrat challenger Helen Takacs, Melvin, is challenging Republican incumbent Howard Beals Jr. for the District 2 post; Democrat Irene Stoliker, Elmer Township, faces incumbent Republican Les Kraft in District 3; Republican incumbent Della Wright faces Democrat Ken Mater, Sandusky, in District 4; and incumbent Eugene Foote will battle Deckerville Mayor Bradley Apsey for the right to face Democrat Joanne Dawson, Forestville, in November.

Running unopposed are Clerk Delene Schultheiss, Prosecutor James V. Young and Probate Judge George E. Benko.

Voters also will decide 2 countywide millage requests. They are renewals of .2 of a mill for 4 years for senior citizens, and .2 of a mill for 4 years for libraries.

EVERGREEN

Long-time Evergreen Township official Otis Dorland decided not to seek reelection after serving 18 years as clerk. Republicans Arthur Severance and Fred Matthews are both seeking the 4-year post.

Officers running unopposed are Supervisor Audrey Leslie, Treasurer Wayne Whittaker and trustees James R. Brown and Ronald Rockwell. The office of constable has been abolished.

GREENLEAF

No races are planned in Greenleaf Township, but voters will decide a one-mill renewal for 5 years for roads.

Incumbents running unopposed are Supervisor Gerald Bock, Clerk Clare Brown, Treasurer Aletha Fox, trustees Vera Nicol and Mark Battel, and Constable Henry Bartnik.

LAMOTTE

Lamotte Township Trustee Charles Roggenbuck didn't seek reelection after serving as a township official for 16 years. Vying for the 2 available trustee seats are incumbent Ronald Shaw and newcomers Michael Innes, Gwen Navarro and James D'Arcy. All the candidates are Republicans.

Incumbent Supervisor Michael Redman also faces competition. Challenger Jack Gillig, also a Republican, will try to unseat Redman in the Primary.

Township officers running unopposed are Treasurer Linda Hirsch and Clerk Wayne Adam.

Police arrest man for driving on grave sites

Cass City Police arrested a 30-year-old St. Clair Shores man Saturday night after he was seen driving a pickup truck over graves and grave displays at Elkland Township Cemetery.

Forest J. Hudson was arrested on suspicion of reckless driving, transporting open intoxicants in a motor vehicle, and no proof of insurance.

According to a report filed on the incident, Sgt. Don Miller observed the pickup traveling left of the road center line while westbound on M-81.

The vehicle then turned south and entered the cemetery and accelerated, driving over graves, Miller stated, adding the vehicle then turned east, accelerating over graves, and then turned back onto M-81. Hudson, who was observed traveling 55 miles per hour in a 45 m.p.h. zone and 50 miles per hour in a 35 m.p.h. zone, stopped after turning north onto Sherman Street.

A 14-year-year Cass City youth was treated and released from Hills and Dales General Hospital Friday after the bicycle he was riding collided with a vehicle at the intersection of Main and Sherman streets in Cass City.

Reports state that the youth, Michael Furness, 6405 Sixth St., was westbound on Main Street at about 5:40 p.m. when he attempted to cross the intersection and collided with a northbound vehicle driven by Juanita M. Bradley, 4207 Sherman St., Cass City.

A vehicle owned by Sharon Kraft, 4453 Leach St., Cass City, was struck twice by an unknown vehicle Friday evening while parked at Cass City High School.

The vehicle, which was parked at the school from 9:30 to 11:55 p.m., was hit on the right side and left rear. Police believe the damage may have been intentional.

Also reported was a minor 2-car mishap June 6 at the United Parcel Service parking lot.

Reports state that a vehicle driven by Raine T. Smith, 4047 Kelly Drive, Cass City, was northbound in the lot when it was struck by a vehicle driven by Phyllis R. McIntosh, 5117 Kelly Rd., Cass City.

McIntosh was backing from a parking space when the 6:10 p.m. accident occurred. Slight damage to Smith's car was reported.

Tuscola County Circuit Court

4 sent to jail on separate charges

A 27-year-old Pahoek, Fla., man was sentenced to prison Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court for felonious assault, fleeing and alluding a police officer and resisting and obstructing a police officer.

Doug R. Kurmas was sentenced to 32 months to 8 years for the first offense, 6 months for the second offense and 24 months to 4 years for the third offense.

He was convicted of the charges March 1 by a jury. According to court records, all 3 counts, including a knife assault on Millington Police Officer Gary Oliver, are related to an incident Oct. 8, 1987 in Millington.

Carl E. Lawrence, 18, 5346 Otter Lake Rd., Otter Lake, also received a prison term.

Lawrence, who pleaded guilty May 13 to breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny, was sentenced to 80 months to 10 years, with credit for 39 days served, to run concurrent with a sentencing in Lapeer County.

The recent conviction stems from the Dec. 1 break-in of a house at 9901 Fostoria Rd. in Watertown Township, court records state.

Fostoria resident Brian C. Crain, 6239 Willits Rd., was sentenced to 3 to 15 years in prison, also to run concurrent with a sentencing in Lapeer County, for the break-in of a house at 920 Goodrich St. in Watertown Township.

Crain, 18, was convicted May 13 of breaking and entering an occupied dwelling.

Also sentenced Friday was Cass City resident Grant J. Hulburt, 17, 7409 Daus Rd.

Hulburt was sentenced on a delayed sentence to 60 days in the county jail, with credit for one day served, and 3 years probation. He also was ordered to pay $400 in fines and costs. Participation in the work site program was granted.

Hulburt received the delayed sentence after he was convicted of stealing a .22 caliber automatic pistol from the Cass City Hardware store Jan. 19.

However, the delayed sentence was ended after he was arrested in Cass City early this month on suspicion of larceny equal to $100 or less. Hulburt pleaded guilty to that charge, which stems from the theft of cigarettes May 6 from Old Wood Drug Store in Cass City, Monday in District Court.

Sentencing in District Court is set for Monday.

In other proceedings Monday, an 18-year-old Flint man pleaded guilty to a charge of felonious assault.

Sentencing is to be set for Matthew J. Saylor, who assaulted Richard Jacques with a pipe or club Nov. 30, 1986, in Watertown Township, according to court records.

Saylor faces a maximum sentence of 4 years imprisonment and/or a $2,000 fine.

Christine A. Brown, 1518 E. Deckerville Rd., Caro, entered a plea of guilty to attempted uttering and publishing.

Sentencing is to be set for Brown, 20, whose bond was set at $5,000.

The plea stems from an incident involving a check for $150.43 that was dated Nov. 22, 1987, and drawn on American Home Bank in Indianfields Township, court records state.

The maximum penalty for the offense is 5 years imprisonment.

Races set for primary election in Huron County

Races for sheriff are heating up in Huron and Sanilac counties. The races highlight a host of battles for county and township posts to be decided in upcoming elections.

Also to be decided are various township and county-wide millage proposals.

The Primary Election is set for Aug. 2, while the General Election will be held Nov. 8.

HURON COUNTY

The race for sheriff in Huron County opened up late last month when veteran Sheriff Richard V. Stokan surprised officials by announcing that he wouldn't file for a fifth term.

Among those vying for Stokan's job are Under-sheriff Robert F. Finkbeiner, Sebawaing, who is challenging former Emergency Management Director Mike Gage, Kinde, for the Republican nomination. The winner will face Democrat John Stickney, Port Hope, in the General Election.

In races for county commissioner posts, incumbent Republican Bruce Kuhl, Sebawaing, will be running against Republican challenger Gerald Millerwise, Sebawaing, for the District 1 seat.

In District 3, Republican newcomers Robert Hogan, June Bowerbank, James Umphrey and Judith Stokan, all of Bad Axe, will battle for the seat now held by Commissioner Ed Mazure, who did not seek a second term.

Incumbent Albert Thoms and challenger Robert C. Witherspoon, both Republicans from Port Hope, are seeking the District 5 seat.

In District 6, Republican incumbent Warren Krohn, Elkton, is being challenged by Republican Martha Thuemmel, Port Austin, and Democrat Robert Quinn, Caseville.

District 2 Commissioner R. Dale Wertz, a Republican from Bay Port, and District 4 Commissioner Jean Talaski, a Republican from Harbor Beach, are running unopposed.

Also running unopposed are Republicans Francis Holdwick, register of deeds; Karl Kraus, prosecutor; Roberta Moetteli, treasurer; Helen Lemanski, clerk; and Russell L. Brown, county surveyor.

Two candidates are seeking the non-partisan ballot for Huron Probate Court Judge. They are incumbent David L. Clabuesch of Pigeon and Bad Axe attorney Peter Capling.

Huron County voters also will decide a millage request of .2 of a mill for 4 years for senior citizens.

BINGHAM

All Bingham Township officers filed for reelection and are running unopposed. They are Donald Wright, supervisor; Joseph J. Trepkowski, clerk; Lynn Tyll, treasurer; and trustees Jim Osentoski and John Rutkowski.

Township voters also face a proposed millage renewal of 3/4 of a mill for 10 years to purchase and equip fire and ambulance vehicles.

SHERIDAN

Incumbent James E. Shaw, Republican, and newcomers John Cieslinski, Republican, and Diane M. Lepek, Democrat, are vying for 2 trustee spots on the Sheridan Township Board. Incumbent Trustee Stanley Heleski decided not to seek reelection.

Running unopposed are Supervisor Robert Becking, Clerk Ronald J. Hoffman and Treasurer Helen Szeve.

Also facing voters are 2 millage questions. One is renewal of 2 mills for 2 years for roads, and the other is renewal of one mill for 2 years for fire and ambulance protection.

BROOKFIELD

All incumbents in Brookfield Township are running unopposed for reelection. They are Supervisor Walton Brown, Clerk Edmund Good Jr., Treasurer Robert McPhail, and trustees Lloyd Kretzschmer and Victor Wissner.

GRANT

Similarly, all Grant Township officials are seeking reelection unopposed. Running are Betty Powell, supervisor; Donald Reid, clerk; Marcia Hoffman, treasurer; and trustees Donnie Metzger and Ottomar Sting.

Brinkmans seek offices in county

Voters in the area are apt to see the name Brinkman splashed around the area in profusion in the next 3 months and unless they read closely, many think they are seeing double.

That's because there are 2 Brinkmans running for office in Tuscola County. And there is a lot of similarity in the backgrounds of the 2 candidates.

Both are Republicans. Jack Brinkman is running for Tuscola County Commissioner from District 2. Robert E. Brinkman is running for register of deeds.

Both Jack and Robert are active in Owendale-Gagetown Schools, Jack as treasurer for the school where he has served on the board for 14 years. Robert is a past president of the Owen-Gage Band Boosters.

Both are life-long members of the Tuscola County Farm Bureau.

Both are life-long residents of Tuscola County.

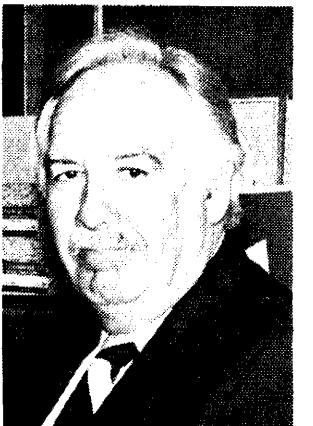

Both are Korean war veterans.

Both are married and both are farmers. Robert points to his work as an insurance representative, in addition to his farm management, as one of his practical qualifications for the job of register of deeds.

Robert is a charter member of the Evangelical Free Church of Cass City. Jack is unopposed for the nomination for commissioner and is expected to face incumbent Kim Glaspie, Democrat, in the general election.

Robert is one of 3 Republicans seeking the nomination for register of deeds and the winner will face Democrat Sheri L. Rundel.

Court conviction affirmed

In an opinion issued May 25, the Court of Appeals affirmed the conviction and sentence of James Frederick Bucholz, who was convicted of Criminal Sexual Conduct, first degree, after a jury trial in circuit court before the Honorable Patrick R. Joslyn.

Bucholz claims on appeal the court improperly admitted his confession into evidence and that it was for the court to consider other acts of Criminal Sexual Conduct with other family members when it imposed a sentence of life imprisonment.

Bucholz was convicted of having sexual penetration with a 13-year-old girl.

At Hills and Dales Hospital

Liability rates hurt recruiting

High medical liability insurance rates are obstructing the search for a full-time obstetrician-gynecologist by Hills and Dales General Hospital administrators.

Hills and Dales, without a staff OB/GYN since June 1987, "saturated Michigan (before beginning a) coast to coast" search for an OB/GYN specialist, according to hospital administrator Ken E. Jensen.

Hills and Dales' last OB/GYN left the hospital to join a larger OB/GYN staff in California. Jensen pointed out that Dr. Sang Park, who practiced at Hills and Dales for some 8 years, left partly because of the overwhelming workload he faced but mostly because the cost of his "malpractice insurance doubled."

While OB/GYNs pay more than most other specialists for liability insurance in most states, Michigan insurance rates are higher than any in surrounding Great Lake states, according to a recent Michigan State Medical Society study.

The study compared yearly fees for $100,000 coverage between specialties. A Michigan metropolitan area OB/GYN pays $51,952, while for the same coverage a physician in Indianapolis pays $14,408, in Columbus $18,570 and in Chicago $34,255.

The study also produced statistics showing that 60 percent of doctors in residency programs in Michigan plan to leave the state after completing their education.

Malpractice rates play a significant role in a doctor's decision to leave Michigan. Also, many physicians who stay out of Michigan, particularly OB/GYNs, do so to avoid high insurance rates, according to a nationwide physician search team retained by Huron Memorial Hospital.

So far insurance rates have played a big role in keeping the Hills and Dales staff void of an OB/GYN.

According to Jensen, efforts to recruit a new physician have produced "no nibbles on the carrot."

Hills and Dales administrators have been advertising in a number of publications, working with Michigan state government and many medical organizations. "Letters to hundreds of individuals" have been written, Jensen said.

With no response to the need at Hills and Dales there is no telling when the OB/GYN position will be filled, Jensen remarked.

In the meantime Hills and Dales is providing OB/GYN care through a Wednesday morning clinic staffed by Bay Medical Center physicians.

Physicians Thomas Markus, Douglas Saylor, and William Vandenberg rotate the 9 a.m. to noon shift that opened Feb. 10.

The 3 partners learned of the clinic idea about the time they felt the need to expand their office hours and Bay Medical Center administration expressed a desire to expand its hospital's services in the Thumb, according to Markus. "Everything came together at once," Markus remarked.

Demand for service at the clinic has been growing since its installation, Markus pointed out. When the clinic began about 3 patients were seen in a day. Less than 4 months later, about 12-15 patients are being seen in a day, he said.

Keeping up an OB/GYN appearance at Hills and Dales should benefit the hospital once a full-time OB/GYN begins practice there, Markus noted, adding that starting a practice from nothing would be difficult. He also pointed out that finding and bringing an OB/GYN to Cass City will not be easy.

Markus and Vandenberg searched for 3 years before they found their partner, Saylor, who has been with Bay Medical for 2 years, Markus explained.

Markus also pointed out that Hills and Dales is not alone in its present search for an OB/GYN. The staff at Bay Medical is not large enough to be called satisfactory in the opinion of Markus or Karen Brown, director of nursing for obstetrics and pediatrics.

One more OB/GYN would help the current 7-member obstetric staff at Bay Medical, Markus said. Two may be needed if the talk of a couple of physicians on retiring or leaving results in action, he stated.

Brown said she knows of one physician in particular who has expressed thoughts on leaving Bay Medical and Michigan for a state with lower insurance rates.

Even with the great motivation to abandon or refuse to practice medicine in the state of Michigan, some physicians, even OB/GYNs, do stay.

Physicians like Markus stay in Michigan because they do not want to uproot. Markus explained that he grew up in Michigan, likes it here, and does not feel like moving.

Markus said that if he had to choose where to start practice now he might not pick Michigan. He added that as long as he is here he plans to stay.

Arrest Caro man on OUIL charge

A preliminary examination was to have been held today (Wednesday) for a 25-year-old Caro man charged with 2 driving-related offenses.

Mark A. Martin, 183 W. Gamble St., was arraigned recently on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third offense, and operating a motor vehicle while his license was suspended or revoked.

Martin was arrested by Caro Police June 9 on Coling Road near State Street in Caro.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

From now until November we will hear the Democrats holler about "the stupendous budget deficit, and how the Reagan tax cuts of 1981 produced it. A while ago, Milton Friedman the renowned economist, now a senior research fellow at the Hoover Institution at Stanford, came up with some figures:

Budget deficit at a percentage of Gross National Product -- GNP:

Federal:	1975	1980	1986	1987*
	4.3	2.2	4.8	3.4

*--2nd quarter

Tax reductions produced a big deficit?

Fed. Tax	% of GNP
1980	22.5
1987	23.9

Fed. Tax	1980	1987
revenues	20.3	20.4

Even Jim Wright ought to be able to see that the government's tax income went up in the Reagan years, and the big jump in the deficit came from Jim and his cronies in Congress spending more.

The broker boys are having a harder time peddling Single Premium Life policies for 2 reasons:

1. Customers are beginning to discount the flowery promises of tax-free income, policy loans at little or no cost, and life insurance a frosting on the cake.

Moreover, Congress is talking of taking away some of the tax-free features.

Basically, we don't buy these life insurance deals for several reasons:

1. The broker gets too high a commission, and it is taken out of your money, naturally. You buy other securities with about 1% commission. Why pay 6% or 7% for this product?

You are guaranteed a return only for one year. Right now you are assured about 8%. But the rate can go to as low as 4% after that.

Policy loans aren't free at all. The money advanced to you does not earn interest after they give it to you. If you had money in a bank account, and the bank let you have some of it, would you expect to be paid interest on the amount withdrawn?

There is a penalty for cancelling the policy for 5 or 6 years after you buy it. Penalty starts at 5% or 6% and drops 1% a year during the period. You buy a $10,000 policy, (single premium paid in advance) the salesman nicks say $700 off that. You have only $9300 working for you. You cancel out the first year and you pay $500 or $600 for the privilege.

The "life insurance" part of the deal amounts to little, relative to the premium. You want to buy life insurance, get a quote from one of these places advertising in the Wall Street Journal. I have used Select Quote of San Francisco, and found them prompt in getting quotes from 4 or 5 well-rated companies. You save a bundle.

As for the tax-free part, the earnings from the single premium policies are deferred from taxes, not exempted. When you cash in, you pay tax, same as for U.S. Savings bonds.

A better deal than single premiums, a better deal than U.S. Savings bonds, are zero-coupon municipals. Not long ago I bought some Dade County, Fla.

(Miami) single family mortgages on a 10.50 yield. They have better-than-usual call protection and are tax-free, now and at maturity. They mature 9-14, and cost 6.75% on the dollar. For $6750 I bought $100,000 par value of these bonds. In 2014 a grandson will be 30 years old and ready to buy a house, and the bonds will mature and buy him a shelter. That is, unless he settles on Long Island or Greenwich, where they will provide only a lean-to.

YOUR EYES

Dr. G.W. McNiven

GLAUCOMA

Acute glaucoma is not a major cause of vision loss in the United States. Because this type of glaucoma attacks suddenly, accompanied by pain, headaches and often visual "halos," and reduces vision rapidly, it usually receives quick medical attention.

But chronic glaucoma, which is the leading cause of blindness in the nation, sneaks up on you. There is no pain, and central vision usually remains clear. Yet the vision loss sustained by the patient can be severe and irreversible. This loss of vision starts with the loss of peripheral vision and then progresses to the loss of central vision.

Picked up early, chronic glaucoma is controllable. And the best way to check is through routine eye examinations that include special glaucoma testing. Adults over 35 should have this glaucoma test annually, especially if there is any history of glaucoma in the family. Your optometrist can perform glaucoma tests and refer you for further treatment if necessary.

NEARLY 200 YEARS OF service to the Cass City School District by 7 retired employees was recognized Friday at a luncheon in Cass City. Among those honored were (from left) Don Crouse, Robert Stickle, Lyle Clarke, Marjorie Gage and Jacqueline Freiburger. Missing from the picture are Elizabeth Bigham and Enid Craig.

200 years of service

Retirees feted at luncheon

Seven Cass City School employees who have contributed a combined total of nearly 200 years of service to the school district were honored Friday during an annual luncheon at the high school.

Gifts and lifetime activity passes to all school sponsored functions were presented to each of the employees, who have announced their retirements.

Some 120 members of the school district staff and administration attended Friday's ceremony, which included remarks by school Supt. Ken Micklash, Board of Education President Edward Scollon and other school officials, as well as from some of the honorees.

The employees recognized last week, in order of their announced retirements, are food service worker Elizabeth Bigham, who has been with the district for 26 years; former school superintendent Donald Crouse, who served 23 1/2 years with the district; teacher and principal Robert Stickle, who served 33 years; bookkeeper Enid Craig, a 21-year school employee; teacher and Principal Jacqueline Freiburger, who has been with the district for 27 years; Marjorie Gage, a bus driver in the district for 24 years, and teacher Lyle Clarke, whose retirement after 35 years with City City Schools surprised many of those in attendance Friday. Clarke submitted his notice of retirement early last week.

The retirees' combined years of service totals 189 1/2 years.
