Cass City man drowns in bay

A 34-year-old Cass City man over the weekend became Huron County's first drowning victim of 1988. A Huron County Sheriff's Department dispatcher reported that Byron J. Davidson, 6415 Garfield Avenue, drowned in Saginaw Bay, off Caseville County Park, at about 1:58 p.m. Saturday. The dispatcher said Davidson and Raymond Abbe, Owendale, entered the water from a sailboat, anchored 150 yards off shore, and attempted to swim in together. A short time later, Davidson called for help. He disappeared from sight before Abbe was able to come to his aid. Davidson's body was recovered at 3:56 p.m. by a team of Huron County Sheriff's Department divers.

Drought forces switch in bean planting methods

by Jill L. Schmidt
Staff Writer

Like many other area dry bean farmers, William Merchant of Cass City delayed seeding this year in hopes that a shower of long overdue rain would allow the dusty field at the northwest corner of Milligan and Schwegler to accept a standard planting. Ceasing the seemingly endless wait, Merchant, 6067 Cemetery Rd., began seeding a shallow field of navy beans last week, still hoping for rain.

Merchant said he normally plants navy beans one to one and one-half inches deep, but now is seeding at about one-half to three-fourths inches deep.

Now is prime time for Upper Thumb farmers to begin planning ways of cutting their losses this year, according to Tuscola County agriculture agent Eric Frahm.

So far Michigan's worst drought has irreparably damaged crops, hampered herbicidal effectiveness and delayed planting, making newly seeded fields more susceptible to dryness related failure.

Waiting on rains, many farmers have just begun or have yet to start planting their dry bean fields, which are usually completely seeded from June 1-20.

People waited "to the point where there is not much hope left," Frahm said, adding that it is still too early to tell how late into the season some farmers will wait to plant.

If they decide to plant at all, dry bean farmers will most likely do one of 2 things, Frahm noted.

Farmers presently planting dry bean fields are either using a method of planting termed "deridging" or planting shallow in the hopes of making the most out of the least amount of rain, Frahm said.

Frahm explained "deridging" as cutting away top soil in a "V" shaped trench about 3 inches deep, in front of individual planting units. Seeds are then planted about 2 inches deep, the normal depth for dry beans, but making the seeds' actual depth in the soil about 5 inches. Once rain falls, the plants are hoped to benefit from their position in the deeper and damper soil.

Though the much needed rain would help "deridged" crops, a problem with "deridging," Frahm pointed out, is that a heavy rain could fill in the ridges, leaving the plant deep in the flooded soil.

While "deridging" remains the most productive option for dry bean fields during this dry weather, according to James McCure, Huron County agriculture agent, another option for farmers is planting shallow.

Last Wednesday's rain averaged two-tenths of an inch in the area, which is also the average daily evaporation rate. "Basically

Sex education part of new AIDS course

The threatened AIDS (acquired immune deficiency syndrome) epidemic promises to establish a program that has been discussed over the years in tentative fashion by Cass City school boards without coming close to fruition. Because of a new law, sex education will be taught as part of a course designed to combat the spread of the always-fatal AIDS.

The school board has a policy change under consideration and will act on it at the July meeting of the board, the second Monday of the month. Supt. Ken Micklash explained why the AIDS course is necessary. In January the Michigan Department of Education said that Public Act 185 that mandated the AIDS course takes precedence over Act 226, which allowed sex education but did not make it mandatory.

According to the course outline, the material to be presented in grades 7 and 8, 9 and 10 and 11 and 12 will include an explanation of how AIDS is and is not transmitted and how it can be prevented.

To do that, Micklash said a discussion about sex is necessary and would probably include information about condoms.

Micklash also pointed out that students would be excused from the course if their parents desire it.

Present plans call for 3 lessons for students in grades 7 and 8; 5 lessons for students in grades 9 and 10 and 4 lessons for students in grades 11 and 12.

Before any AIDS class can start, teaching of the staff will be necessary. In-service meetings with the help of the Tuscola County Health Department and the staff at Hills and Dales General Hospital are planned. For grades 7 and 8 the course will be taught in physical education classes. In the high school it will be taught in the ADEC program.

When all 3 courses are completed, students will have been taught about the links in the communicable disease chain. They will have complete information about AIDS and the scope of the HIV infection in the United States.

High risk behaviors for contracting AIDS will be identified as well as ways to reduce the risk of infection. Students will be able to distinguish facts, myths, opinions and unknowns related to AIDS testing.

The course will also point out that casual contact is not the way that the AIDS virus is transmitted.

(the small amount of rain) did as much to relieve the individual for a day and give him hope," Frahm said.

Merchant remarked that the "two-tenths of an inch doesn't do much in 80 degree weather. It gets you through a day," he said, adding that all crops he's seen need "quite a bit of rain."

Other effects of the dry weather Merchant expects to see are an early harvest of wheat on his Cemetery Rd. farm. McCure explained that the "timetable has gone ahead because of the hot dry weather. "That's no problem," Merchant stated, adding that he believes corn to be on the verge of being critical." The only remedy Merchant and Frahm see for corn is a return to normal rain or any rain for starters.

Because all crops have different drought resistances, what rain could do for crops now or soon varies, Frahm noted, adding that it isn't too late yet.

"We're at the point where in another week people will start to combine," Frahm said, "so a rain is not going to help small grains, wheat and oats."

"Rain could still provide a reasonable crop of sugar beets and early planted soybeans," Frahm noted, explaining that the deep roots Please turn to page 14.

Permit needed for free Bibles

Supt. Ken Micklash this week explained the procedure in which Bibles will be distributed by the Gideons to 5th graders in Cass City Schools. He said that no one will receive a Bible if they do not want one and to find that out a permission slip will have to be taken home to the parents and signed.

Micklash said that the slips would need to be furnished by the Gideons without expense to the school district. The distribution will need to be made so that it does not take away from the instructional time of the students, Micklash added.

Dan Allen, the Gideons member who is spearheading the distribution effort, said that he had no problem with these regulations. In the Gideons, he pointed out, individual members take care of the incidental costs of distribution. I'll be happy to pay this expense, he said.

The Cass City School Board voted to allow the distribution after it had been banned for several years after the Michigan Attorney General had issued an opinion saying that it was illegal to distribute the Bibles in schools.

Investigation by the superintendent and information presented to the board by Allen showed that all other county schools with the exception of Mayville were allowing the distribution of Bibles by the Gideons.

McDonalds executive says Cass City too small for store

by Tom Montgomery
News Editor

City City residents who love an occasional Big Mac and fries apparently will have to continue to travel to Caro, Bad Axe or Sandusky to visit the Golden Arches.

McDonalds' officials have put to an end, at least for now, rumors regarding the restaurant chain's plans to locate in Cass City. Those plans were nixed early last week, when an official from McDonalds' corporate offices in Chicago inspected and then turned down the Cass City site.

Despite the rejection, community leaders in Cass City say they're not giving up hope.

Officials had been optimistic that the proposal would receive final approval early last week after representatives at McDonalds' regional office in Southfield and at the chain's corporate offices in Chicago okayed the purchase of 2 parcels on the north side of Main Street, just east of Nestle Street, in the village.

"The project was okayed at the state level, but (it) was turned down by the administrative vice-president who reviewed the site," Richard B. Fletcher said.

Fletcher, a Saginaw Realtor who conducts location site work for McDonalds and who has worked on the Cass City proposal since last fall, added, "He felt Cass City is too small."

Fletcher noted that last week's inspection ordinarily would have been conducted by the state regional manager in Southfield, but he was replaced by the official from McDonalds' corporate offices in Chicago due to illness. Although the McDonalds' proposal apparently is dead, Fletcher said he isn't giving up on the site. "I'm going to see if I can contact a couple of other restaurant companies to see if I can get some interest out of them," he remarked.

Fletcher declined to say what companies he might contact, but acknowledged the task of luring another restaurant chain to Cass City may be tougher because of the McDonalds rejection.

"I'm disappointed. I felt McDonalds had a good opportunity to have a successful store," he said.

Village officials, who also spent time and effort on the project, say they still hope to convince McDonalds' officials that Cass City is a good place to do business.

"We're not accepting this as a final decision," Cass City Village Manager Lou S. LaPonsie commented. "Community leaders are going to be stepping up efforts to attract McDonalds."

LaPonsie, who indicated such efforts may include community leaders writing to McDonalds' regional office, pointed out he believes the Cass City area could support a McDonalds.

Information on the village's 5 most recent land sales, traffic counts and population figures were given to McDonalds, he continued, adding that the Cass City service area, which covers a 10-mile radius, totals some 26,000 people. A traffic count at the intersection of Main and Seeger streets revealed a daily average of 17,200 cars, he said.

"If It Fitz..."

Bread box blues

By Jim Fitzgerald

For Father's Day, right on my dinner plate, my wife gave me a full loaf of white bread and a half-gallon carton of milk. Several important things have gone wrong with our 33-year marriage, and this was her way of saying she doesn't care; she thinks my legitimate complaints are a subject deserving derisive laughter instead of respectful consideration.

Usually, just before we sit down for dinner, she asks if I want bread. What kind of a question is that for a wife to ask her husband? And please don't tell me if I want bread I should get it myself. Ours is an old-fashioned, one-pay-check relationship.

If we were both employed outside the home, as in so many modern marriages, I would happily exchange my aid in table-setting for her aid in paying the bills. As it is, however, I finance all the bread, so it shouldn't be necessary for me to get a court order to force her to put the bread on the table.

"I don't know if I want bread, it depends on how hungry I am, and how much other food I eat," I always say. "Why don't you pretend this is a decent restaurant, or you are a decent wife, and just put a plate of bread on the table, and if I want some,

Moonstruck

Moonstruck: The next full moon might cause some strange goings on. But if you're daring enough to brave the werewolves, you might try planting a garden. National Wildlife magazine reports that many vegetables, particularly tomatoes, corn, and sweet peas, grow better when planted under a full moon.

"I'll take some?" "Don't be silly," she always says.

ORDER TO SPECIFICATION

To get bread in my home (except when we have company), I must custom order it in advance. Then my wife will put one slice on the table, not on a bread plate but on top of my meat or leaning against a candlestick. And if I don't eat it, and she has to put it back in the refrigerator, she says, "You didn't eat your bread; why did you ask for it?" She says this in a tone that plainly suggests I am the village idiot, she is Joan of Arc, and I just put a match to the kindling at her feet.

Put the bread back in the refrigerator? Yes, which brings up an important sociological question: What happened to the bread box? My wife insists that, because it takes me so long to eat a loaf of bread (I wonder why), the only way to keep it from getting moldy is to refrigerate it. I hate cold bread. She says if I don't want it cold, I should tell her on Monday that I want a slice on Wednesday, and she'll thaw it out in time.

Furthermore, my wife claims it has become so common to refrigerate bread that the bread box is now a thing of the past. I don't believe it. How do people know what something is smaller or bigger than?

FEAR OF GOING BUMP

Another thing I don't believe is the darkness that lately has been greeting me every night when I leave our bathroom to enter our bedroom. My wife usually goes to bed 2 or 3 hours ahead of me, giving her plenty of time to sink into a deep sleep. For most of the past 33 years, on my way to the bathroom, I've turned on the little light on the table at my side of the bed, so I won't have to worry about tripping in the dark after switching off the bathroom light.

A few months ago, something strange began happening: When I returned to the bedroom, my light was out. After this happened a few times, and I suggested we should call an electrician, my wife admitted she was turning out my light the second I disappeared into the bathroom.

Although her back is to the light, and her eyes are shut, she said that dinky little light wakes her up. I don't believe that any more than I believe the demise of the bread box. I accused her of wanting me to fall in the dark; she said I could see by the streetlights coming in the window. I said we lived on the 26th floor and those must be some light poles.

On Father's Day, along with the loaf of bread on my dinner plate, there was also a carton of milk because my wife needed the added laugh at my expense. I never know ahead of time how much milk I want, so I often suggest the carton be put on the table so I can pour as needed. My wife insists a carton of milk looks terrible on the dinner table.

Worse than a slice of bread leaning against a candlestick?

My problems are bigger than a bread box.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Keyser

Martha and Hiram Keyser of Ubyly celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the K of C Hall in Bad Axe Saturday, June 11.

About 200 relatives, neighbors and friends attended the party which was hosted by their children, Gene and Carol Becker and family, Larry and Bunny Keyser and family, and Helen Keyser and family.

The buffet table was decorated with a large centerpiece of gold and white silk roses, presented to them by their granddaughter, Suzanne Wakefield. The 3-tiered wedding cake, also gold and white was made and decorated by Lois Remsing. The cake was served by Olive Derpinghaus, sister of Mrs. Keyser, and Phyllis Johnson of Iron Mountain.

A surprise appearance of 3 clowns entertained guests and the children by making balloon animals. Martha Ertel and Hiram Keyser were married May 21, 1938, at Caro by Rev. French of the Presbyterian church. Attendants were Shirley McCaslin Rabideau and Bob Gracey. Mr. Gracey Back defending the championship that it has won for several years in the annual July 4 Festival parade will be the float entered by residents at Provincial House in Cass City. Surprise package. Linda (Koeppgen) Holder lives in South Dakota and gets the Chronicle. As a single subscriber in the area, her paper is stuffed in an open ended envelope for delivery.

She reached in the envelope to get the paper and instead of the Chronicle, it was a paper from Cadillac.

Her mother, Nell Maharg, figured we placed the wrong paper in the envelope. Wrong! We don't get any papers from Cadillac. What must have happened is a postal clerk at a sectional center was killing a little time on the job and read both the papers and stuffed the Chronicle in the Cadillac wrapper and the Cadillac paper in the Chronicle wrapper. Incidents like this go a long way towards explaining why papers that are mailed at the same time each week sometimes arrive at out-of-area destinations as much as 2 days apart.

A common expression dealing with gambling, business and fate in general is "I'd rather be lucky than good." That goes double for farmers in this drought year. Farming is a crap shoot in the best of times. This year being lucky was really important. Crops planted just a few days apart and a few fields apart are showing vastly different potential yields. Those planted that got a rain when needed aren't doing too badly despite the lack of rain. Those that weren't, forget it.

Tree Value: Keep in mind that the trees that are dropping those leaves in your yard are also saving you money. And come winter, trees may lower heating bills by as much as 15 percent by deflecting winter gusts.

The Haire Net

By the time you read this, that little maple tree seedling will probably be withered away. You have to expect it under the conditions that it was planted. A person with a green thumb I'm not.

Even when I try my best, the results rank from poor to pitiful. Let me explain. It was perhaps 15 years ago that the stately trees in front of the house succumbed to Dutch Elm disease, were removed and new young trees planted to replace the 2 that were removed.

I can't tell you what they were, but one of them died the year it was planted, despite the loving care I tried to give it. The other grew well for a couple of years and then someone snapped its trunk. Not off, but enough so that I figured it might not survive.

Strangely enough, it started to grow again. It wasn't pretty, but it was green in the summer. Then about 5 years ago it started to deteriorate. Each year there were less and less leaves and more and more withered branches over its 20-foot height.

The battle was lost and when Dave Ware came to the house to help with tree trimming, he summed it up nicely with "It isn't much, is it?" Given the okay, it didn't take him long to remove it and leave nothing but a circle of bare ground in the middle of the lawn.

When that tree was removed the village-owned land in front of the house was barren. Remember that first tree that succumbed when planted? It was replaced by a red maple about 5 feet tall. Believe me when I said that I gave that maple plenty of tender loving care. Loving care, not expert care, and it wasn't enough. After 3 years in which that tree grew about 3 inches, it was snapped in 2. That vandalism merely hastened the inevitable. Even I could see that the tree just wasn't going to make it.

That brings you up to date on the tree situation in our yard, unless you count a couple of lilac bushes that died after taking a bruising from the lawn tractor.

So it's easy to see why even under the best of conditions, a tree planted in our yard has very little chance of surviving. You won't find any mighty oaks grown from little acorns there.

All of this is background for what occurred last week. From seeds shed by the maples in the yard, a maple started to grow among the shrubs next to the house. I pulled it out by the roots. It's possibly a foot long but with leaves as big as the tree from which it sprang.

Just before I started to toss it in the trash I thought about that barren spot and went over and "planted" it there.

If ever a tree deserved to die, this is the one. Planted in the midst of a drought after being yanked out by its roots, I figured that by now it would be turning yellow and drooping.

It most probably will, given a little more time, but right now it looks hale and hardy.

I still don't believe that it could survive, but if it does, believe me, I'll be sure to let you know.

Leader dog trainee Hopes high for "foster" puppy

A 4-H project taken on by Deford area youth Jennifer Romstad has turned her parents and siblings into a foster family of sorts.

The Romstads' responsibility, to raise a dog for one year, may not seem very tough. After all, many area families care for pets. The Romstads themselves already have 4 dogs, a cat, some goldfish and a parakeet.

What's unique about "Dusty," the family's yellow lab "foster puppy," however, is the animal's future. It's hoped that Dusty will one day serve as eyes for a blind person.

The Romstads are one of 3 families in Tuscola County who raise leader dog puppies. The families make up the newly formed 4-H leader dog puppy club, "4 Sight," which has invited interested persons to attend an informational meeting set for 7:30 p.m. July 12 at the county Cooperative Extension Service office, 362 Green St., Caro.

program," Ronna Romstad, Jennifer's mother, remarked recently.

According to Romstad, interested families receive prospective leader dogs from the Leader Dog School in Rochester, which evaluates and trains dogs that are accepted as leader dog trainees.

German shepherds, Labrador retrievers and golden retrievers, or cross breeds of those dogs, are preferred as leader dogs.

Romstad, whose family picked up Dusty at the age of 8 weeks in early December, noted that raising a leader dog puppy for the first year is different in some ways than caring for a pet.

PUPPY LOVE

"You're supposed to love the dog and get it familiarized" with a variety of settings, including traffic, crowds, the inside of stores and other buildings, and downtown areas, she said. "You can't hit them or play rough with them. They always have to be on a leash," Romstad explained that the reason for not striking a leader dog is the animal might become hand shy.

"This dog has to be completely friendly," she continued. "It's a big responsibility."

Although foster families aren't responsible for training prospective leader dogs, they are asked to teach basic commands such as "sit," "stay," "come" and "down." Even the best care doesn't guarantee a leader dog puppy will be accepted into advanced leader dog training, Romstad noted, adding only 30 percent of the trainees are accepted.

Animals which don't pass are given away, either to the foster family or to someone on a waiting list, Romstad said.

She explained that when it's time to return Dusty to Rochester, leader dog officials will evaluate the animal. If Dusty passes the evaluation, the dog will undergo a period of quarantine and then 150 days of training, which includes the dog and a potential owner working together as a team.

Although the advanced training costs some $7,500 per dog, the training and dogs are free to blind persons.

GOAL

Keeping in mind that goal is important for families who agree to raise a leader dog puppy, Romstad remarked. She said the program advocates becoming attached to the animal, which must be dealt with when it's time to return the dog.

"It's really going to be hard taking her down there (Rochester). You have to keep thinking it's for someone else," she said.

Fairgrove resident Leigh Ann Laethem, whose family is now taking care of its second leader dog puppy, agrees.

"You start (preparing) before you even get the puppy. You say to yourself, 'You're raising it for someone else. If this dog makes it, it will be the eyes for someone,'" Laethem commented.

She and Romstad agreed the program is a good family project.

"We have a love for dogs," Laethem said, adding that with 3 children, "Sometimes there's not enough puppy to go around. It's something we can do all together as a family."

Romstad added, "It's something we could do. You feel like you're contributing something for some that really needs it."

Editors note: Persons interested in learning more about the local program can contact Laethem at 693-6776, or Vassar resident Pat Alexander at 823-8184. Additional information also is available by contacting the Leader Dog School in Rochester at (313) 651-9011.

DEFORD YOUTH Jennifer Romstad (left) and her mother, Ronna, say their family has enjoyed raising "Dusty," a yellow lab they hope will make it as a leader dog.

Urge caution in sweet clover use

Farmers should be extremely cautious about feeding sweet clover as greenchop, baled hay or silage, according to Eric Frahm, Tuscola County Extension agricultural agent.

If sweet clover becomes moldy, it could produce dicumarol, a blood thinner that could cause fatal hemorrhages in dairy cattle, Frahm said, adding dicumarol is often the active ingredient in rat poison.

"I know that farmers are extremely pressed for forages because of this drought, but I would not use sweet clover unless nothing else was available," Herb Bucholtz, Michigan State University Extension dairy nutritionist, remarked.

Sweet clover contains a series of chemical compounds that are precursors to dicumarol. Molds are usually found in hay that was baled wet or in spoiling greenchop or silage. Sweet clover that becomes moldy is a potentially dangerous feed.

"Cattle eating moldy sweet clover may develop hematomas (tumors or swellings containing blood) on their extremities," Frahm explained.

Bucholtz said that a farmer who sees or suspects this condition, should call a veterinarian immediately.

If farmers have no choice but to feed sweet clover, they should feed it with extreme caution.

The forage should be checked at every feeding for possible mold and spoilage. If there is the slightest indication of mold, the feeding should stop immediately.

If hay or silage made from sweet clover is suspect, farmers should feed the material to a couple of young, non-lactating, less valuable animals. If the dicumarol is present, the hematomas will begin showing up in just a few days.

No residues of hay or silage made from sweet clover should be allowed to remain in the feed bunk because they can mold there. Bunks should be cleared daily.

Any hay made from sweet clover that does become moldy should be discarded. Sweet clover that is harvested when the material is damp is likely to mold and produce dicumarol, which will remain potent long into the winter.

Burning violation causes grass fire

A trash fire spread out of a pit and across a 1/2-acre plot of green grass the morning of June 21.

The fire was called in to the Elkland Township Fire Department at 9:44 a.m. and 9 men were dispatched to the Tom Brinkman residence at 5384 DeLong Rd., Deford, according to fire chief, Dick Root.

Firemen extinguished the fire and remained at the site for about 45 minutes, Root said.

Brinkman received a citation for open burning, Root noted, adding that all open burning has been banned for some time by the Department of Natural Resources.

The DNR allows domestic burning and approved campsite fires only, Root said.

Register of deeds post to be filled

The Tuscola County Election Commission met recently to determine the procedure for appointing a new register of deeds, to fill out the vacancy created by the untimely passing of Ann Sattelberg.

The commission determined that it would accept written resumes from each of the candidates who have filed to run in the upcoming Primary and General elections. Each of the candidates has been asked to submit a written resume no later than July 1 at 4:30 p.m.

It was felt that those individuals who had actually filed to run for the vacancy were the individuals most interested, and therefore they should be the only candidates considered to fill the vacancy.

Following receipt of the candidates' written applications, the election commission will review the written resumes in preparation for oral interviews, which will be conducted July 8, between 1:30 and 2:30 p.m. The interviews will be open to the general public, and they will be conducted in the Tuscola County Probate Courtroom.

It is the intention of the Election Commission to have a final decision on the appointment shortly after the oral interviews are concluded. The commission will meet at that time for the purposes of deliberation and appointment.

The prosecuting attorney for Tuscola County, William D. Bond, who is serving as chairman of the commission, expects to announce the commission's decision no later than 3:30 p.m. on that date.

Jordan College officials air accreditation news

Jordan College officials recently announced the Commission on Institutions of Higher Education of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools has formally approved Jordan College's application for affiliation in candidacy status with its accrediting agency.

The recognition has been extended at the bachelor's degree granting level and covers all of the institution's programs offered at 7 campuses, including the Bad Axe campus, which is expected to be moved to Cass City.

In making the announcement from Jordan's Central Administrative Offices in Cedar Springs, President Lexie Coxon noted that this honor represents years of hard work and a substantial investment of time, talent and financial resources on the part of Jordan College's Board of Trustees, faculty, staff and administrators. "We couldn't be more pleased with the progress which has been made - and now publicly recognized - at Jordan," he said.

Candidacy is a pre-accreditation status and a necessary first step toward full accreditation. The college had to satisfy all of the general institutional requirements and evaluate criteria of the association in order to be granted affiliation.

North Central requires an applicant to be evaluated at 3 levels concerning its formal educational activities and resources, governance and administrative structures, students support services, financial stability and physical plant.

Coxon praised those responsible for Jordan's candidacy status, but reminded all that the accreditation process is indeed "a process."

"We must be vigilant about pursuing educational excellence and not be tempted to focus on accreditation per se," he remarked. "We must focus instead on being an institution which is faithfully pursuing its mission. As we have seen already, the North Central connection is the natural result of our labors, not the goal."

The advantages of the new affiliation with North Central to students and the college generally are several. First, the institution's admissions office expects that student interest in the college will grow considerably now that it has North Central's seal of approval. The growth potential of the college is enormous, according to Charles Conboy, vice-president for institutional advancement.

Second, Jordan will now have a standing with its sister colleges throughout Michigan which will make it easier for its students to transfer their credits as they pursue additional education at other colleges and universities.

Third, the affiliation with North Central will provide Jordan College with access to various financial resources which were previously closed to the institution.

Finally, officials say there is the advantage which accompanies North Central recognition by way of the intangible benefit of an enhanced reputation in the communities served by the college.

Executive Vice-president and Self-Study Coordinator Greg Doublestein pointed out that the commission's decision affirms the recommendation of both a 6-member team of higher education professionals and a Review Committee of 10 North Central evaluators that Jordan College has met all of the association's general institutional requirements and evaluate criteria.

The self-study process culminating in the recent announcement began in 1986 and included the establishment of steering committees at each campus to produce self-study reports which aided North Central evaluators in assessing institutional strengths and weaknesses. Jordan College's next scheduled evaluation will take place in the spring of 1990.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Gamefish could be 'spoofed' up stream - angler

To the Editor:
As a Cass River fisherman I wish to express my opinion.

The desirable gamefish can be spoofed up stream to more shallow water, while the more sluggish bottom feeders are being treated. They could be fenced up-stream a day or two.

Could you draw this to the attention of Dan Nelson, fish biologist?

Roy T. Anthes

Cropsey to speak at area church

State Sen. Alan Cropsey will be a guest speaker at First Baptist Church in Cass City Sunday morning. He will address the Sunday School at 9:45 and will be speaking in the 11 a.m. service as well.

Sen. Cropsey has been active in Michigan politics on the state level for a number of years and has been in the forefront of many conservative causes, especially in the area of Christian schools and their efforts to remain free of state control.

The church has invited many city, county, state and federal representatives to the Sunday morning services to hear the senator. The church will give special recognition to each civil servant in attendance. Pastor John R. Wood cordially invites the public to come hear Sen. Cropsey.

New books at the library

FOR THE RECORD: FROM WALL STREET TO WASHINGTON by Donald Regan (nonfiction). Donald Regan, former secretary of the treasury and presidential chief of staff, is adhering to the adage, don't get mad, get even. This book has been grabbing headlines over the disclosure that Nancy Reagan uses an astrologer to plan the president's schedule. But, its most damning revelation is Regan's portrayal of Reagan himself, who emerges here as a genial goof. Regan, who says that in 4 years as head of the treasury he never had a private meeting with the president, paints the Great Communicator as even greater delegator - a man who frees himself completely from making decisions, leaving them all to subordinates. Not surprisingly, Regan also takes the opportunity to put himself in the best possible light, as an honest, loyal soul just trying to fend off the attacks of sycophants, first ladies, and stargazers.

THE JANUS MAN by Colin Forbes (fiction). Master spy Tweed and the cold-blooded former journalist Newman are working in tandem on a case that involves one of Tweed's men, a European section chief, who is revealed to be a traitor and the cause of another agent's death in East Germany. Tweed and Newman discover a macabre twist to the hunt for the double agent when the traitor's trail runs parallel to a gruesome series of rape/murders. In addition, Lysenko, Tweed's Eastern counterpart and longtime nemesis, is planning a major heroin deal that will deposit the drug shipment in Britain.

HEALTH TIPS

Precautions urged when exercising during summer months

The balmy days of summer encourage us to start on an exercise program, or to stay on a program already started. But when the weather turns hot and humid, even athletes at the peak of condition should take precautions.

That's when heat stroke or heat exhaustion — a medical condition called hyperthermia — can strike, regardless of age or physical condition, warns Dr. Larry J. Sell, senior vice-president for Health Care Affairs at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan (BCBSM).

Here are tips Dr. Sell suggests you follow when exercising during heat spells:

- Exercise during the morning or evening hours.
- Wear a hat because as much as 30 percent of body heat is absorbed through the head. Cotton clothing is best because it absorbs water and helps cool the body. Loose clothing lets air flow through.
- Before exercising, drink at least a pint of water even if you're not thirsty. Drink more as you exercise. Cold water is easier to drink and helps bring temperature down.
- During hot weather, sweat glands secrete moisture that evaporates from the skin and cools it. Most people can maintain normal temperature in the face of very hot external temperatures.

- But sometimes the regulatory system of the body simply doesn't work and body temperature rises to 105 degrees, a true medical emergency exists, and immediate professional medical attention is required.

These are warning symptoms of hyperthermia to look for, according to Dr. Sell:

- Hot, dry, flushed skin, but no sweating.
- Agitation, confusion, seizures.
- Faintness, dizziness, lethargy or coma.
- Headache, nausea.
- Rapid Pulse and heart-beat.

- Slow deep breathing if the victim is still; rapid, shallow breathing if the victim is moving about.

If any of these symptoms appear, a doctor should be called immediately since not all victims will have all the symptoms.

Those who haven't been exercising regularly shouldn't start on hot, humid days, says Dr. Sell. Even those with a good training base should proceed slowly during a heat wave or when the weather suddenly goes from warm to hot.

Seniors, and those with chronic diseases, particularly heart ailments, or persons on drugs that reduce the ability to sweat, such as diuretics, should not exercise when it's very hot.

Pay attention to body signs during hot, humid weather, suggests Dr. Sell. When you experience discomfort, stop. Otherwise, regular exercise in the summer, done moderately, can contribute to physical and emotional good health.

YOUR EYES

Dr. G.W. McNiven

TLC FOR CONTACT LENSES

A successful contact lens wearer practices good eye hygiene and uses common sense when wearing lenses. The following check list can help you keep wearing your lenses comfortably — instead of their winding up in the top drawer.

- Remove your contact lenses before going to sleep unless they are specifically prescribed for extended wear.
- Cleanse and sterilize soft contact lenses daily. Use a weekly cleanser as well.
- Wear sunglasses on windy days to prevent dust particles from irritating your lenses and your eyes.
- Never wear torn contact lenses, no matter how small the tear.
- Avoid getting hair spray or other chemicals on your lenses.
- Remove your lenses when pain occurs or if eyes get red.
- If there is a change in your vision, get your eyes examined.

See your optometrist for routine follow-up examinations.

Your neighbor says Discrimination by many clubs unfair

Membership in an exclusive club means associating with certain people with some common philosophy, interest or characteristic.

Shared commonality most likely builds a camaraderie among club members partly for that one reason. Because of the bond shared in a particular club, others void of the "bonding agent" may choose not to join the club or may try and be denied entry.

Some feel that though not publicized, many clubs exclude prospective members on the grounds of race or sex. Many clubs hide their discrimination or deny publicly that it exists while many individuals express that such exclusion is unfair.

Your neighbor, Heather Shaft, a 14-year-old Cass City High School student, believes that clubs' discrimination on the basis of sex or race is "unfair."

"I don't see why they do it," Shaft said simply. "It's not fair."

Not a member of any sort of club at present, Shaft remarked that if she had her mind set on taking membership in an all male club that denied her admittance seemingly because of her sex, she would "say something about it." Shaft added that she wouldn't immediately dismiss the idea of joining a club that excluded men. "It depends on what the club would be," she commented, reiterating, "It's not really fair."

"Yes," she agreed, clubs academic in nature restrict the type of members they take, "but that's different."

The daughter of Roy and Margaret Shaft, 4553 Leach St., resides there with her brother, Roy, 18, and sister, Rochelle, 10.

Elderly Caro pair injured in mishap

An elderly Caro couple were injured Sunday morning when their vehicle crashed into a parked car in Ellington Township.

William H. Wells, 96, and Pearl H. Wells, 91, both of 2359 E. Elmwood Rd., were treated and released Sunday from Caro Community Hospital.

According to reports filed at the state police post in Caro, William Wells was driving east on Dutcher Road east of McGregor Road at about 9:35 a.m. when his vehicle struck the parked car.

The pair, whose vehicle sustained extensive damage, were transported to Caro Community by Caro Ambulance.

Also reported by troopers were 4 car-deer mishaps, 2 of which involved the same deer in Elmwood Township.

A vehicle driven by Marylou F. Campbell, 6301 Maple Rd., Vassar, was westbound on Cass City Road east of Dodge Road

Friday evening when her vehicle struck a deer. Reports state that the animal spun off Campbell's vehicle and was struck by another vehicle, driven by Sheila L. Lenz of Sebawaing.

Both vehicles sustained slight damage in the 11:15 p.m. accident.

Gerald R. Giddings, 1978 Gun Club Rd., Caro, was driving west on Bevens Road east of English Road in Kingston Township June 21 when his vehicle was hit by a deer.

Giddings, 25, and 2 passengers in his vehicle, Roy F.

Wright, 23, and Lawrence E. Giddings, 20, both of Caro, sought their own treatment for injuries sustained in the 8:30 a.m. mishap. Damage to the vehicle was slight, reports state.

Also in Kingston Township, Caro resident Delber E. Woodruff Jr., 2185 N. Luder Rd., escaped injury when his vehicle hit a deer and then struck a tree at about 10:05 p.m. June 22.

Reports state that Woodruff was eastbound on Rossman Road east of Cemetery Road when the accident occurred. Damage to the vehicle was extensive.

July 18 deadline set for bean queen candidates

An opportunity awaits for several young ladies to vie for the Tuscola County Bean Queen crown for 1988, according to Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension director.

"This is a fun opportunity and an excellent experience to participate in an interview. All contestants will receive a minimum of $40.00, and the winner will receive $90.00," he said. "The Tuscola County Bean Queen Committee is seeking candidates and would like to expand the number of participants from the last few years. This would be an excellent opportunity for communities or groups to select a candidate from your area and submit her name to the committee," Bortel continued.

Entry forms are available at the Cooperative Extension Service office in Caro, or at the County Farm Bureau office in Caro. The event will be held Aug. 3 in connection with the Tuscola County Fair.

The deadline for entering the contest is July 18, and the following Monday evening, July 25, contestants will be meeting with the judges for a dinner interview.

Rules for entering are as follows: 1) Must be unmarried and a farmer's daughter who has grown beans within the past 5 years; 2) Age limitations 17 to 25, inclusive (as of July 1, the year of the contest); 3) County Bean Queen of previous years, not eligible; 4) Dress must be formal; 5) An $8 check must accompany the entry blank by the sponsors to cover the cost of the contestant's corsage, which will be given to the girl the evening at the fair.

Tuscola County Bean Queen Committee members are: Mike and Mary Findlay of Caro, Jeff and Lorraine Harrington of Reese, Barry and Sally Hedley of Unionville and Brenda Ryan of Akron.

Michael Satchell drowned, police say

An investigation of the death early last week of a 45-year-old area dairy farmer revealed the man drowned, according to state police troopers at the Caro post.

The victim, Michael F. Satchell, 2647 E. Caro Rd., was found lying face down in shallow water near an irrigation inlet near his farm on the morning of June 20. Despite resuscitation ef-orts, he was pronounced dead at Caro Community Hospital shortly after noon the same day.

Police Monday said Satchell, who had left his farm June 20 to check an irrigation pump which had stopped working the night before, drowned apparently after passing out due to a blockage in his left carotid artery.

Yanks capture league title

The Yankees finished up a perfect season last week by recording their 10th victory and capturing the Cass City Little League crown.

The Tigers finished a distant second to the champion Yankees with a 7-3 record.

The Yankees had plenty of potent offense led by 11-year-old Jason Morgan, who compiled an impressive .806 batting average over the season.

Morgan had plenty of help from Paul Ulfig, who produced a gaudy .697 average for the champs. Ulfig and Morgan were also the strength of the Yankee pitching staff.

The Yankees also had 3 players who slugged better than .500 on the year. They were Norris Lounsbury, whom manager Dan Ulfig considered the team's most improved player, Corey Ulfig and Dave Bills.

The Tigers were led in hitting by Ben Schott, Scott Iwankovitsch and Alan White with averages of .771, .611 and .560, respectively.

ALL STAR GAME

Although the regular season is finished, Little League action will conclude Monday with an All-Star doubleheader beginning at 5 p.m. at the Little League diamond.

The contests will pit the All-Stars from the American League teams (Orioles, Tigers and Yankees) against the National League teams (Cubs, Giants and Pirates.)

Schott supplied the big blows with three fence-clearing shots.

The Tigers' pitching staff was led by Jim Hempton and Schott. Leon Butler also performed pitching duties and recorded an important extra inning victory early in the season.

Leadership was given to the Tigers by 5 12-year-old boys playing their final season in Little League: Schott, Butler, Matt Spencer, Alan Rutkowski and Marc Wallace.

THE PAUL SMARKS award for outstanding athletic and citizenship achievement was presented to Jeff Sontag, left, after a long delay due to consideration of a break in the rules after the presentation was made in May. The award was presented by Dave Miller, last year's winner.

Senior Citizen of Year nominees sought for 1988

The search continues for nominees for the 1988 Senior Citizen of the Year awards, sponsored by the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging and the Michigan State Fair.

Presented to 2 nominees, one in the area of leadership and one in the area of service, this award recognizes the invaluable time, effort and skill that Michigan's older adults give back to their communities, OSA Director Olivia P. Maynard said.

"Michigan citizens benefit in many ways from the volunteer work of older adults," Maynard says. "This award is our way of saying thanks and heightening peoples' awareness that there are many ways to give of yourself, to your community and to the fact that older adults are active and fully contributing members of society."

Only organizations are allowed to submit nominations for these awards. Those who believe they know a person who would be a good candidate for the award in either category should solicit the sponsorship of a community organization and submit a nomination form by July 29. Nominees must be 60 years of age or older by July 29 in order to qualify.

Nomination forms can be obtained by contacting your local Area Agency on Aging or by writing or calling the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging, P.O. Box 30026, Lansing, MI 48909, (517) 373-8230.

Annual Lamb and Fiber Affair scheduled July 9

The Third Annual Thumb Area Lamb and Fiber Affair will be held July 9 in the Activities Center of the Huron Community Fairgrounds in Bad Axe.

A full day of activities will begin with check-in for all livestock at 7:30 a.m. There will be an Angora goat show at 9 a.m., a wool sheep show at 10:30 a.m. and the jackpot show at 2 p.m. The judge for the sheep shows is Ken Fortel of Tecumseh.

There will be an Angora rabbit workshop at 10 a.m. This workshop will explain how to choose, raise and care for the Angora rabbit. Spinners interested in learning to spin Angora are asked to bring their wheels to the "spinning with Angora" demonstration at 2 p.m.

Robert Blount, a herding dog breeder and trainer who has extensive experience in teaching herding dog training both privately and with Michigan State University, will do a working dog demonstration with his Australian shepherd dogs at 12:30 p.m.

Wanda Eichler, knitting instructor from Pigeon will conduct 2 demonstrations — beginning knitting at 3 p.m. and lace knitting at 4 p.m. Take along yarn and needles to pick up a few tips.

Other demonstrations throughout the day include picking wool and mohair, felting wool, and goat and sheep shearing. "Hands-on" spinning and weaving will give visitors a chance to try these handicrafts.

Throughout the day there will be beautiful fibers and hand-spun fiber creations offered at sales booths. Many of the booths will feature craftspeople working at their spinning wheels and weaving looms. Other booths will offer items of interest to persons who raise sheep and other fiber-producing animals, as well as equipment and accessories for spinners and weavers. Country crafts will also nestle among the fiber crafts.

Mark Corron of Saginaw will turn the large meeting room into a beautiful "restaurant for a day" with his talent of arranging dozens of flowering plants to grace the room that will be filled with the aroma of the 1987 winning lamb cook-off recipe that will be featured on the day's menu. This year's winning recipe will be chosen from the entries at the lamb and goat cook-off at 5 p.m.

Prosecutor's seat sought by Reed

Caro attorney James R. Reed has announced he will seek the Republican nomination for the office of prosecuting attorney for Tuscola County.

Reed, a Thumb native, graduated from Sandusky High School in 1964 and received his bachelor of arts degree from Michigan State University in 1968. After graduation he joined the U.S. Army and served with the 101st Airborne Division in Viet Nam, where he received a number of personal and unit citations including the Army Commendation Medal and the Bronze Star.

Upon discharge from the Army he worked in the Trust Department of Manufacturer's National Bank of Detroit until he entered law school. Reed received a Juris Doctor from the Detroit College of Law in 1977 and has been practicing both criminal and civil law in Caro since 1977.

Reed resides with his wife, Diane, a Caro teacher, and 3 sons in Caro. They are members of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Caro.

Reed is an active member and past president of the Caro Lions Club. He was this year's White Cane chairman. He is a member and past president of the Tuscola County Bar Association. He is also a member of the Michigan Bar Association, the American Trial Lawyers Association, the Caro Knights of Columbus and the Tuscola County Computer System Planning Committee.

James R. Reed

As a person who has been both self-employed and employed in large organizations, he feels he is well qualified to deal with issues that face key members of county government, especially the prosecuting attorney's office. He is an experienced trial attorney, effective in working with courts, lawyers, police and the public.

Because of his experience, he says he will, as the county's highest law enforcement official, provide the leadership necessary to insure that the taxpayers receive the greatest possible return on tax revenues for the prosecution of crime and criminals. Reed believes that his candidacy gives the voters the opportunity to make a real change in one very important area of county government and that for the first time in many years the voters are offered a choice in selecting the attorney who will represent them in the prosecution of crime and criminals.

Most VA funding went to veterans

Most of the money expended by the Veterans Administration in Michigan went directly to veterans during fiscal year 1987, according to Detroit VA Regional Office Director Gordon W. Clowney.

"Of the $744 million distributed in Michigan last year, more than 53 percent, or $399 million, went directly to veterans as compensation for disabling injuries or diseases incurred while in the armed forces," Clowney said.

He added that the VA spent nearly $28 million for readjustment and vocational rehabilitation benefits, $54.2 million for insurance and indemnity payments, $4.5 million for facility construction and more than $258 million for medical services and administrative costs in Michigan.

"The Veterans Administration proudly serves those who served our country," Clowney said. "For more than half a century, the VA has been a deliverer of benefits, a pioneer in medicine, a financier in education, a guarantor of home loans and an advocate for Michigan veterans."

Veterans Administration expenditures in the Upper Thumb totaled more than $6 million in 1987. Tuscola County veterans received $2,525,224. Sanilac veterans received $1,917,134 and Huron veterans received $1,878,549.

Friday, July 8 - Marie Roch will sell an automobile and household goods at 6644 Seed St., Cass City, 3 blocks north and 1 1/2 east of the stoplight. Hillaker Auction Service.

Strikes twice

Lightning Strikes Twice: The idea that lightning never strikes twice is a myth. National Wildlife magazine says that not only does lightning strike some places more than once, but some areas like Castle Rock, Colo., and Cape Canaveral, Fla., are struck frequently. Upward moving air causes the frequent strikes near the Continental Divide, while converging sea breezes attract the lightning on the Florida coastline.

Area farmers now trying to cut losses

of the sugar beets help them to draw in the most amount of moisture possible. As for the early planted soybeans, the larger the plant, the better chance it has of withstanding the dry weather and hot temperatures.

"Soybeans are doing better than we expected," McCure stated.

The drought "is mostly hurting late planted soybeans and dry beans," Frahm pointed out. "The young plants can't take the heat like a little bit older plant."

Situations on different farms may vary, Frahm noted, adding that herbicide effectiveness is also very different from farm to farm. "The majority (of herbicides) need moisture to work," but some are taking even in this dry weather, Frahm said.

Frahm explained that predictions of where herbicides will be effective are very complicated because so many variables are involved. Things like particular crop grown, type of soil and past weed growth rate all affect herbicidal effectiveness.

On average, McCure stated that the successes and failures of herbicides on Upper Thumb farms is about the same and that most herbicides are not taking.

Merchant noted that he hasn't noticed a problem with herbicides on his Cass City farm but on a farm in Huron county he has.

"I don't know why they work in one field and not another," he said. "I sprayed about 4 weeks ago, and (the field) needs it again."

Because each farm is a little different from the next, Frahm pointed out that farmers should make individual management decisions on what action they should take regarding the drought and its effects.

Taking into consideration the situation on any particular farm, he said, "Instead of asking the question, how am I going to make money this year, it's time to ask the question, how am I going to minimize my losses."

A general guideline on loss minimization is currently being prepared for distribution by the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service. Some 65,000 copies of the tabloid, focusing on steps that Michigan farmers can take to minimize crop and livestock losses, are set to be distributed to Extension offices by the end of June.

Rainfall in May, June falls short

Area fields received less than one third the normal amount of rain expected in the Thumb last month, and the picture isn't improving much as June draws to a close.

A blast of cold air over the weekend eased the heat wave gripping the area as well as much of the nation, but the drought continues with only a glimmer of hope for relief.

The best weather forecasters could offer this week were milder temperatures through Wednesday and a chance of scattered showers. The dry heat which has gripped the area in recent weeks, however, was expected to return this weekend.

The heat—a high of 98 was recorded in Cass City Saturday—isn't foremost among area farmers' concerns; desperately needed moisture is.

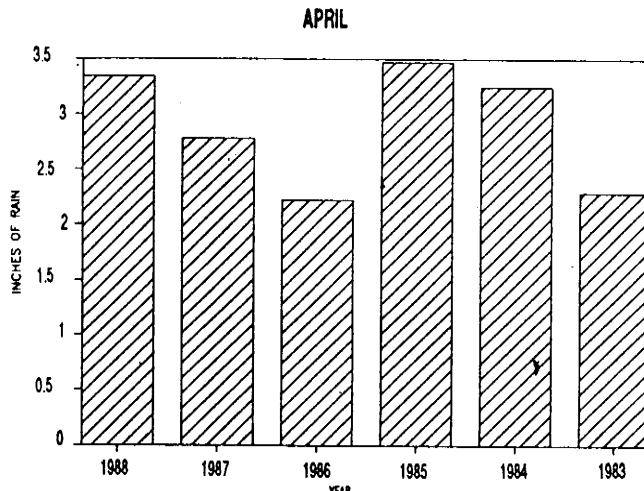

And although the area enjoyed ample rainfall in April, precipitation totals in May and June have fallen far short of expected amounts.

According to Michigan Sugar Company officials in Caro, the Thumb normally receives about 2.5 inches of rain in April, 3 inches in May, 2.5 to 3 inches in June, 3 inches in July and 2 inches in August.

Total rainfall recorded in April 1988 at the Cass City Wastewater Treatment Plant was 3.34 inches, but the total in May was only .71 of an inch, and rainfall in June (as of Tuesday) has totalled only 1.33 inches.

The combined total of precipitation recorded at the plant for the months of April, May and June, 1988, is 5.38 inches. In contrast, the area received 6.79 inches of rain over the same period last year, 9.58 inches in 1986, 7.55 inches in 1985, 12.35 inches in 1984, 10.23 inches in 1983, 10.60 inches in 1982 and 9.81 inches in 1981.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

The eminent Wall Street Journal finds important news (1/4 page on front of Section 2) in the fact that the city of Rockford, Ill., didn't panic after the stock crash of Oct. 19.

I know Rockford pretty well, after attending seminars of the Financial Analysts there for 15 years. It's a solid, no-nonsense city, typical of mid-America, with a marked Swedish background. Farms and factories support the town, and life is low-key. It's a long ways from New York, geographically and spiritually.

Somehow, I don't think the Rockfordians got swept up in all the financial gimmicks being peddled by the sharpies of Wall Street. They probably owned some Commonwealth Edison and one of the auto stocks, some CD's, some U.S. Savings bonds and maybe a mutual fund. Index options and single-premium life policies and real estate trusts and oil well partnerships, and precious metals futures — they wouldn't find much of a market in Rockford.

This part of America — the Midwest — mostly believes there is no such thing as a free lunch. When stocks were sky high last fall not many of these people figured the Dow averages would go on to 3,500 and 4,000 maybe. They saw prices at 21 x earnings, they saw yearly dividends at 2.7%, they saw stocks selling at 300% value, and were content to be with stodgy old CD's and Savings bonds.

If you lived in Rockford, Black Monday was a non-story.

New Yorkers are really pretty provincial, but they don't know it.

J. Peter Grace, head of the mighty corporation bearing his name, head of the noted Grace Commission that spent some $400 million of private funds to show the government how to economize made this statement in print:

"One dollar borrowed now will have cost $71 by the year 2000."

The run-up in cost was based on $1 compounded at 5% for 12 years. This simple country boy did his own figures and came up with $1.81, instead of $71 as the result of compounding $1 for 12 years.

This was printed in this column a while ago. Since then my note to the Grace Commission brought a courteous reply, with 25 pages of figures and data to back it up, to show that their figure of $71 was right.

May I politely repeat that they're crazy. I wish my 8th grade teacher of arithmetic, Veva Butts, could patiently explain how to do compound interest.

It occurs to me if the monumental report of the Grace Commission has many bobbles of this sort, it might be the reason that the effort didn't get anywhere in Washington.

Almost all closed-end funds sell at a discount after they've been on the market awhile. At least they have in the last couple of years.

In the Washington Post, James Leberer says it is poor logic with closed bond funds to wait because:

1. The shares may not go to a discount.

2. You lose income while waiting for the shares to move lower.

I can't agree. Already we know that most bond funds do go to a discount from original prices. The chances are on your side.

Why should waiting cost you money? I assume you have your funds in a money market while you are standing by. And why not look at a fund that came out a few months ago, and already has gone to a discount?

That worked out pretty well for me with the Nuveen Municipal Value fund, that came out at 10. I bought quite a bit last winter at 8 1/4.

I had learned my lesson getting some First Australia-Prince Fund on the original offering at 10. It did go premium for a while, and then dipped down to 6.75. Ouch!

Now it's near 9 and I have ordered some more, after reading their annual report. Australia is licking inflation, and their economy looks good. The yield is around 13% and the portfolio has mostly Australia bonds, with about 20% in New Zealand issues.

There is the extra risk of Australian dollars falling relative to U.S. dollars. If your blood pressure is above 150/90, go back to Florida tax-exempt state bonds. Florida Board of Education's yield close to 8%. Rated AA.

Cass City's 10th Annual

FOURTH OF JULY Festival

Inside:

PLANNING the Festival consumes time and energy from The Fourth of July committee. As one festival ends, preparations for the next year begin. Members discuss an outline of how the 1988 festival came about and how all festivals generally run on page 2.

THE CASS CITY Players, a new group in Cass City, is only one of the few new additions to the festival events lineup. New events are outlined throughout the issue and Players explain their ambitions on page 4.

THE RETURN OF the mud bog, one of the biggest crowd pleasers, according to festival committee members, is explained by the event coordinator on page 23.

ANTIQUÉ CARS will make 2 showings in Cass City over the weekend. Both events are being run through a local car club. In addition to the 2 shows, the car club plans to reveal a 6 year old surprise to crowds. Details of the events and the surprise are on page 7.

BED RACES return with tighter competition. What pre-parade crowds can expect and how event coordinators will handle the races is described on page 15.

A SPECIAL FLYOVER mission by a group of Michigan National Guard jets will again usher in Cass City's Fourth of July parade, which is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. Monday. Last year, beautiful weather and an enthusiastic crowd greeted the jets, which made 2 sweeps over the village.

Independence Day committee

Membership demands commitment

The Monday night fireworks display will cap off more than the 3-day holiday weekend. After the final spark snuffs, a decade of Cass City Fourth of July festivals will pass into history.

That may seem like an ending to many festival goers, who won't think of the Independence Day festival until about this time next year, but the celebration's finale marks a starting point for the Fourth of July committee.

Preparations for the 1989 festival will begin with the annual post-festival review by the planning committee, according to Geraldine Prieskorn, committee member.

At that first meeting the committee discusses the pros and cons of the preceding festival and what direction the committee should take toward the upcoming celebration, Prieskorn said, adding that after notes are compared, the committee members go their separate ways. For a few months committee members have the opportunity to work independently on planning the festival.

Soliciting and/or receiving parade entries, for example, takes place almost year-round. Parade coordinator Gary Jones said he contacts some possible parade participants in early fall.

Also, the planning committee is constantly looking for and open to new ideas, Prieskorn said. Many ideas are discovered at other festivals or elsewhere by committee members during the interim between meetings, which begin again in mid-January.

Committee member Alan Sward pointed out that discussions at the regular meetings focus on what was learned from the previous festival and how the new festival may be designed to "get as many people as possible to come (to Cass City)."

Shooting for that goal, the committee works to keep festival events safe, enjoyable and within the slim budget of funds that must be raised by the committee to keep the festival afloat.

This year the addition of carnival rides at the festival underwent serious discussion in the 6-member committee.

"We discussed low key rides, children's rides," Prieskorn said. "Liability insurance for that would be high," she stated, adding that the committee as a whole felt uneasy about bringing a carnival operation into town.

Sward remarked that he believed carnival rides would be beneficial to Cass City because rides would attract people to town. He pointed out that the major difficulty in hiring a carnival is finding a reliable and available one. "Carnival rides need to be reserved years in advance," Sward said.

Because of the obstacles Prieskorn and Sward noted, carnival rides will not be present at the festival this year. To keep the festival interesting, the committee found other events to add to its activity list.

Making their first showings at the festival are the Cass City Players, Cruise Night, 3 on 3 basketball and open barn. In addition to brand new events, the ox roast and the softball tournament, which made their last appearances in 1986, will return this year.

Once events are selected, Sward explained that scheduling them is rather flexible. "We put events where they can go, but things can be changed. We let people do their thing," he said, adding that the events themselves are overseen by their specific coordinators.

Events the 6-member committee is directly involved in coordinating include the parade, arts and crafts exhibits, ox roast and concession stands.

All events demand much more attention as the festival date approaches. Last minute adjustments and schedule confirmations make Prieskorn wonder if she'll remain on the committee next year. However, once the weekend arrives, Prieskorn said, "I have such a good time that I'm all gung-ho to do it again."

Players first show to air Monday in park

A 2-month-old group of area residents calling themselves the Cass City Players plans to give the community a small taste of their talents at the Fourth of July festival. Other than securing a place in the parade, the group, born May 2, will perform a one-act play at 6:45 p.m. Monday, in the park.

Two of the some 33 and growing members of the troupe will act out the parts in "Cheating Cheaters," a comedy by John Patrick.

Connie Clayton and Sally Brooks, 2 of the youngest members of the players ranging in ages from 16-60, will perform the roles of 2 mothers discussing their lives in a city apartment building.

The group's first performance will be free.

The Players plan to give their next performances August 19-20 in the play, "Never Too Late," by Summer Arthur Long.

The Players selected Long's play at their 2nd meeting held May 16, according to Players chairman Ken Hofmeister. Rehearsals for "Never Too Late" are slated to begin July 11 at the Cultural Center.

The troupe originated in the Community Education office where the idea of beginning a community theatre had been mentioned by different individuals, according to Michelle Zdrojewski, Community Ed secretary and Players treasurer.

Zdrojewski and David Lovejoy, Community Ed director, said they talked about the interest that appeared about 1-2 years ago and decided to advertise a community theatre interest meeting in the Community Ed spring enrichment brochure. Lovejoy chaired the first meeting that attracted 22 area residents and then turned the meeting over to the group, Lovejoy commented.

Since that time the number of people interested in joining the community theatre has risen, Zdrojewski noted, adding that the interest level is encouraging to the group and its goal of performing a musical.

Funding for the Players is also underway. Donations from some of the 178 persons Zdrojewski solicited by mail in early June have begun to come in, she said.

Anyone interested in making a donation should notify Zdrojewski at 4311 Seeger St., Cass City, MI 48726.

Anyone interested in becoming involved with the Cass City Players should contact Zdrojewski or Hofmeister.

2 outdoor shows Dancers set steps for Sunday, Monday in park

The Sally Doerr Dancers have slated 2 outdoor shows for the park this weekend, the first beginning at 3 p.m. Sunday and the 2nd starting at 7 p.m. Monday.

A variety of dancing groups, ages 13-30, will dance Sunday to tunes including "Singing In The Rain," "It's A Shame," by Pepsi and Shirley, "Bad" and "I Just Can't Stop Loving You," by Michael Jackson.

Featured on the Fourth will be performances by the California Raisins, dancing to "Heard It Through The Grape Vine."

After the raisins and an assortment of other numbers, the Sally Doerr chorus line will cap off the show stepping to "Big Love" and Debbie Gibson's "Shake Your Love." Music from the Broadway production All That Jazz, "Mount Sinai Parade," will play while the chorus line breaks into their familiar kick line routine.

The chorus line and raisins may also be viewed at the Monday morning parade. For the 6th year, the chorus line will dance on a flatbed as it motors down the parade route.

The 11 raisins will also move to their tunes as they march toward the park.

Featured on the Fourth will be performances by the California Raisins

AAUW paint-in

The American Association of University Women invites all children to stop by and grab a brush at its annual paint-in.

The paint-in is scheduled to run between 2-4 p.m. Monday near the swimming pool.

About 8 easels will be set up and paint, brushes, paper and makeshift paint smocks will be made available to all young artists.

Completed compositions will be hung on a line to dry where they may be viewed by spectators.

Free of charge, the paint-in has proven to be a big success in the past. Over 100 children ranging in age from 2-11 participated last year, according to Linda Derfny, AAUW member.

"Anybody that comes by can paint a picture," Derfny pointed out, adding "It's a lot of fun. The kids really enjoy it."

Dog show to undergo change

Returning for a 5th year at the Fourth of July festival, the annual dog show has undergone slight changes to upgrade interest.

As always, children 6-14 may participate in the annual contest with their dogs of at least 6 months of age 1:30 Monday, near the basketball court. Also all dogs must have all current vaccinations to be entered in the four competitions.

This year the 4 contests put on by the Thumb of Michigan Dog Fanciers Club will include: "Best Trick," "Best Costume," "Best Groomed" and the "Obstacle Course."

Categories such as "Biggest Ears," and "Best

Tail" seemed to bore spectators and participants in previous years, according to Amy Heiden, club member. To keep interest up those classes of competition were dropped.

"Kids like events that involve more teaching," Heiden pointed out.

For that reason, the main event of the show is the obstacle course.

The obstacle course entails a race against the clock for dog and handler. The 2 must pass through and around obstacles including spinning daisies, a balloon-decorated table and a plate of hot dogs. Also, contestants must pick up clothespins with tongs, and hang baby clothes with

Penalty seconds will be deducted for use of unnecessary force or dragging of the dog.

After the competitions are finished, Heiden and her Golden Retriever, Magic, will demonstrate beginning and advanced obedience lessons which the club offers on Monday nights in the park.

The show's purpose is to promote the better care of animals and for kids to have fun with their dogs, Heiden said.

Registration for the event will be held from the end of the parade to the beginning of the dog show near the basketball courts.

Heiden stresses that own-

Car club Model T to roll Monday

The result of some 6 laborious years members of a local car club spent fashioning an antique auto will be revealed Monday during and after the parade. After it completes its jaunt along the parade route, the Thumb Area Antique Auto Club "club car" will wheel its way, with some 70 other antique cars expected to accompany it, to the park, where it will sit on display for most of the afternoon.

The appearance of the club's vintage auto marks the 10th showing of antique cars during and after the decade-old annual parade. The "club car" is a Model T built from the base of a car left to the club in 1982 by deceased member David Baker of the Bad Axe area, club member Jim Perry explained.

In the process of restoring the antique automobile, the club had to seek out parts from various places. "We picked up parts here and there," Perry remarked, adding that the process of working on the car was slow but careful and enjoyable.

Cruise night new attraction

The parade of antique cars through town on the Fourth and the following display draw attention and quite a big crowd of spectators. So a new event geared more to antique car owners, but open to all, has been scheduled for this year's festival.

"Cruise night," slated for 6-9 Saturday will take place at the park and involve about 45 "special interest" cars, according to Jim Perry, member of the Thumb Area Antique Auto Club, sponsoring the event.

Fashioned after the classic 50's style cruise nights, this particular cruise night will not entail any planned procession. The cars will remain in the park for 3 hours amidst games to keep people

The mix of men in the club proved helpful to the endeavor. "What one man couldn't do, another could," Perry pointed out.

The club plans to continue work on the car up to and after the Fourth of July festival, Perry said. Finishing touches are still being made on the car for its showing at the parade and the "cruise night" scheduled for Saturday from 6-9, he remarked.

Other than the showings, the "club car," will also be honored by its appearance on the plaques that the club intends to present to each car owner that participates in the parade.

Among the many cars invited to join in the parade, autos from as far as Pinconning and Rochester are expected to attend. Invitations have also again been extended to members of the Touch of Class Club of Harbor Beach and the Corvair Club of the Metro area.

The number of vehicles in the parade depends upon the weather, but Perry said he anticipates a good, problem free show.

interested and involved in the event and theme.

The theme of the Saturday night event is "The 50's," but cars of different years will be present at the park, like the club's Model T.

Featured at the cruise night will be 1958 cars. Their 30th anniversary will be celebrated at the event, Perry remarked.

The show will also have a drawing complete with prizes and games for the kids in the 50's style. Youngsters may compete against each other in events including a hula hoop contest and a car polishing contest.

Many of the the cruise night participants will be driving their cars in the Fourth of July Parade.

2 dances set to swing over holiday weekend

Keeping with festival tradition, 2 dances have been slated for the weekend.

Saturday night from 10-12 p.m., disc jockey Dean Severance will spin the tunes at the annual Teen Dance held in the green municipal building. A $2 admission fee will be collected at the door.

Monday night, from 6-9 p.m., Fin Burk of Cass City and Harry Longhouse of Flint will call for all interested square dancers.

Co-sponsor of the event, Juanita Burk expects turnout to resemble that of last year. About 20 couples participated in last year's square dancing.

90-Unit main street highlight Festival p

These scenes will be repeated together with many new attractions Monday at 11 a.m.

About 90 units are expected to appear in the 10th annual Fourth of July parade beginning at 11 a.m. Monday, according to parade coordinator Gary Jones.

The parade down Main St. from Brooker St. is slated to begin moving toward the park just after the finish of the bed races and a fly-over by the Michigan National Guard. Throughout the expected 90-minute procession, bed race coordinators Wayne Dillon and Ron Numberger will be on hand with microphone to emcee the event.

The annual parade is scheduled to be led by Cass City police Chief Gene Wilson, immediately followed by Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3644 displaying the colors.

In addition to local groups and participants representing cities as far away as Detroit, one federal legislator and a swarm of Tuscola county incumbents and political hopefuls are slated to make their way down the streets of Cass City, Jones noted.

Senator Carl Levin and about 12 county politicians have solicited and secured positions in the election year parade.

Other than donkeys and elephants, the Main St. crowd can expect to see about 12 floats. Floats including entries by Provincial House, the Pigeon Chamber of Commerce and other local organizations will compete for the plaques awarded in memory of past civic leaders. T

Belle Schwaderer, Meredith B. Auten, Dr. Harry Crandell and Presidents awards will be presented to the creators of floats judged the best in specific categories by a panel of judges. Antique cars, festival queens, bands, but not as many as Jones would have liked to have commissioned, clowns and more will make the trip to the park Monday. Jones explained that most parade units appear free of charge. However, bands in particular are usually a costly group to march in a parade. Though local clubs sometimes sponsor bands as well as other parade entries, the main reason musical groups are not abundant at Cass City parades is cost. Last year the Fourth of July committee spent $525 dollars on the parade, much of which went toward compensating bands. This year a few musical groups have committed themselves to the parade and Jones hopes to hear from a few more before the Fourth arrives. Jones expects last minute confirmation calls from bands and other prospective parade entries who have appeared in past parades. Calls from newcomers would not be considered surprising either, Jones remarked, adding that some contacts may be made as late as the 3rd. This festival will round out Jones' 3rd year organizing the parade.

Mosquito population curbed

The village government has already implemented its plan for removing unwanted residents from the park area to make room for welcome visitors at the annual festival, according to village manager Lou S. LaPonsie.

Unwanted park pests, mosquitoes, have increased in number this year as opposed to last year in the park and the entire area.

Last year no measures were taken to curb mosquitoes' festival attendance because the village did not want to use the harsh means it had used in previous years.

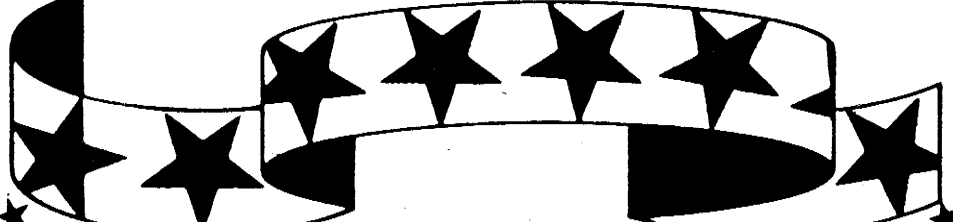

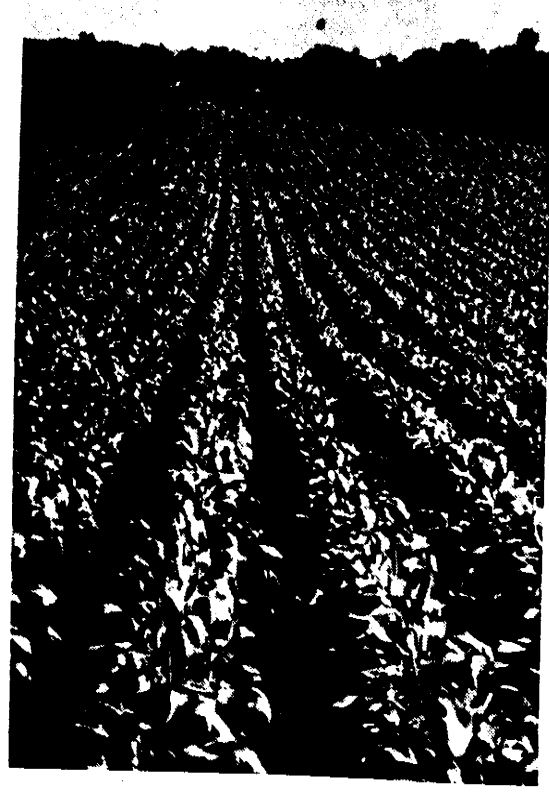

In the past, the Elkland Township Fire Department would apply a chemical spray to the park area with the intent of controlling the amount of blood bandits present at the festival.

The lumberman exhibit
Will be held near the park woods at 5 p.m. Monday. Participation is open to all.

While cautious about using strong chemical sprays, the village government wanted to do something to control the many mosquitoes in the park area this year.

About 2 weeks ago the village sprayed a blend of Ortho insect spray and water around the park. The one application should make the park a more pleasant place for those who visit it during the festival and well after it is over.

Park ox roast returning Sunday

This year's festival committee cooked up the idea of holding an afternoon ox roast at about the time they axed the idea of scheduling nighttime entertainment similar to the 3-man band, the Irish Gaels.

The ox roast is slated for Sunday, noon-3 p.m. in the Lions Club Pavilion near the municipal park.

The Gaels' last minute cancelation in 1987 and the fairly received performance by substitute, guitar player Ronnie Bell, weighed heavily on the minds of the planning committee this year, Alan Sward, festival committee member said.

"It was time for something new," Sward remarked.

The Irish Gaels pleased crowds for 2 consecutive years at the Charmont beginning in 1986 when they replaced the annual ox roast.

In years past the ox roast was held in the evening to kick off Fourth of July festivities. This year's afternoon roast is being scheduled for a change of pace, convenience and demand.

The roast seemed like a good idea to the committee

because the municipal park will be filled with people involved with the arts and crafts booths and the softball tournament, Margo Donahue, event coordinator, explained. Also, "people will be getting out of church about then," she continued.

"There's not going to be any other food in the park Sunday. It seemed like a good idea," she said. "Come down and enjoy."

Other than pork, the menu will include coleslaw, baked beans, and rolls. The meal will cost $5 for adults and $4 for children under 10.

Providing the pork, Red Osentoski of Cass City said he plans to arrive well before sun up in the park to begin preparations.

Lifeguards ready pool for games

Organized pool games for children 6 years old and up will be held at the park pool from 1-3 Monday followed by 2 hours of open swim. Both events are free of charge.

Lifeguards at the pool will be on duty to ensure safety during the games and the open swim.

Coordinating the water games, Matt Jones said children may compete in a free style race as well as races using various other swimming strokes. Lifeguards will also organize kick board races and a diving for golf balls game or something similar to it.

The first 4 winners in all water games will receive a ribbon, Jones said.

Event registration will open at the pool just prior to the races.

certain amount of money. The balls are dropped into the pool and children must fish them out to win the money the balls represent.

The first 4 winners in all water games will receive a ribbon, Jones said.

Event registration will open at the pool just prior to the races.

Stoeckle invites public to witness exotic pets

Exotic animals bred and kept by Carol Stoeckle will be shown during "open barn" at the Stoeckle farm 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

The Stoeckle farm lies about 2 1/2 miles north of M-81 at 5776 Schweigler Rd. Stoeckle welcomes visitors of all ages and asks that children be accompanied by a parent.

The farm holds one llama, 4 Pigmy goats, 2 Jacob sheep, 5 miniature horses and many Barbados sheep, peacocks, miniature donkeys and Belted Galloway cattle.

Those who attend the open barn may view the animals and witness some of them being directed by Stoeckle.

Stoeckle began her farm about 3 years ago when she purchased her first miniature horse. Her collection of exotic animals has built up through the years as she has become acquainted with people who share her interest.

Stoeckle said her only interest in keeping the animals is the joy of owning them, and helping to preserve them. She recently joined an organization aimed at protecting exotic animals.

About one year ago Stoeckle learned of the American Minor Breeds Conservancy, a membership organization which advocates the preservation of endangered and minor breeds of livestock. The organization's goal is to "insure against the loss of genes which may have commercial utility or cultural value in the future."

Stoeckle will be available to answer questions concerning her animals during the 4-hour show.

Yoyo, Stoeckle's 12-year old stallion, performs tricks for audiences.

Fireworks slated for park Monday night

The sparks will fly at 10:30 p.m. Monday night high above the park and visible from much of Cass City.

For the second year, Advanced Pyrotronics will send the fireworks off from a spot near the back of the park.

The only difference in this year's display compared to last year's is a $100 price hike. This year the Fourth of July Committee will pay $2,675 to light up the night for the some 30-minute show, according to Alan Sward, Fourth of July committee member.

While crowds have their eyes on the sky, patrolmen from the Cass City Police Department will have their eyes on the crowds.

The Cass City Police plan to strictly enforce the no alcohol in park law, according to police chief Gene Wilson. Anyone caught with open alcohol on park grounds will receive a ticket, Wilson said.

The police also plan to maintain additional forces in appearance throughout the festival. Starting Friday, officers' shifts will run around the clock. Also, officers from the Sheriff's Posse will patrol festival grounds and 2 men will be dispatched to the teen dance.

Wilson noted that no tickets were handed out on festival grounds last year.

No specific problems are expected to arise at the park Monday night, which may not be the busiest time for police during the festival. "We are busiest during and just after the parade," Wilson said, adding that "naturally more problems can crop up during nighttime hours."

Tight race competition to run for pre-parade crowd

Complete with photo finish, the 5th annual bed races are slated to roll at 10 a.m. Monday morning. "This should be pretty competitive," commented event coordinator Ron Nurnberger. Teams representing Hills and Dales Hospital and the Ben Franklin store have proven themselves strong in the event over the past 5 years, Nurnberger pointed out. The 2 local teams will vie for victory this year against other entries representing Cass City, Millington, Owendale and Sebawaing. All teams competing are required to assemble a bed that looks like a bed and mount it on wheels. Prior to the first race, the Main St. crowd will be asked to help judge the beds and teams for the best decorated trophy through applause and cheers. Decorated or not, bed race teams consist of 5 members. One team member, wearing a helmet and weighing at least 100 pounds, rides the wheeled bed while 4 teammates push. No limit on the number of entries has been set and entry forms will be accepted by Nurnberger and partner Wayne Dillon until race time. Nurnberger urges prospective teams to notify him as soon as possible, however. To enter, a $10 fee per team must be paid. Funds will be donated to the general festival fund after the cost of trophies is covered. Trophies other than for best decorated bed will be awarded to 1st and 2nd place teams in the men's and women's divisions. Races are set to begin from Oak St. and Leach St. "one right after the other so people on both sides of the finish line can see," Nurnberger explained. The finish line under the Seeger St. light will be closely eyed by Nurnberger, Dillon and Cass City resident Scott Miller with video camera. Last year's final race between men's division Sebawaing Co-op Elevator and Hills and Dales Hospital came down to a decision made by judges after viewing Miller's finish footage. Sebawaing appeared to have won the close race, but scrutiny of Miller's video proved otherwise. The replay showed that one member of Sebawaing's team removed a hand from the bed he was pushing at the finish, disqualifying the team. As a result Hills and Dales, finishing slightly behind Sebawaing, received last year's first place trophy.

To ensure legitimate credit is given to this year's winner, Miller will record the finishes once again.

HILLS AND DALES took 2 trophies in 1987.

Rotary club sponsors 3 on 3 basketball

Popular 3 on 3 basketball competition is expected to be a new highlight of the July 4 Festival celebration at the Cass City Recreational Park, according to Matt Prieskorn, chairman of the Cass City Rotary sponsored event.

There will be 3 classes of competition, an open class for men and women and one for persons 17 and under.

The competition starts at 1 p.m. and the 10-minute games will run continuously one after the other at the outdoor court at the park with a back-up indoor site at the high school available in case of rain.

We've tried to keep entry fees to the absolute minimum needed to cover expenses, says Prieskorn, with costs scaled down to $15 per team with registration by June 28 and $17 after that.

Prizes to the winners include championship T-shirts with the name of each winner inscribed on his or her T-shirt.

Weather plays roll in concession prosperity

ENTREPRENEURS DOT THE park and surrounding streets that hold some 10,000-15,000 persons during the Fourth of July Festival. This saleswoman has no trouble finding customers.

Sponsors agree that if clear weather prevails, then all should go well at the concession booths Monday.

Stands run by members of the Gavel Club, Lions Club, Jaycees and Rotary Club will set up at the east end of the park. Weather permitting, most stands are likely to sell out.

The Gavel Club, set up next to their dunk tank, plans to serve bratwursts shortly after the close of the parade. "Last year we were done by 3 p.m.," club member Dick Wallace said. "We had nice weather and we closed up and relaxed for the rest of the afternoon."

However, Wallace recalled the misfortune felt 2 years ago. "It was cold and rainy (2 years ago)," he said. "We didn't sell very much."

Lions Club member Curtis Strickland agrees that the rain kept people out of the park and sales away from the Lions' chicken stand 2 years ago.

This year the Lions will serve their barbecue chicken and late in the afternoon switch sales to bratwursts. The Lions will keep their stand open into the night to accommodate the fireworks crowds, Strickland said.

Also, accompanying their returning ATV mud bog, the Jaycees plan to open a stand near the mud pit, but far enough away to keep the hot dogs clean.

Beginning the morning once again for spectators and participants of the Independence Day festivities, the Rotary Club plans to sponsor its pancake breakfast.

The club's new location, at the east end of the park will welcome early risers from 7-10 a.m. Also, the lunchtime crowd may expect to purchase hot dogs from the Rotary's booth after the parade.

Regardless of the weather, booths will stand in the park for a reasonable amount of time. How long they will stand and how successfully they will finish the day depends on those who brave the foul weather or turn out to enjoy the fair.

When The Lights Go Out At The Park

When the last hot dog is eaten, the last event is over and Festival number ten is history, let's remember why we celebrate.

We need to be reminded that freedom still prevails and our individual freedom is the envy of people everywhere.

A free press zealously guards that freedom. We strive to uphold that tradition every week by publishing the most concise, accurate and unbiased news of Cass City and the area.

Tell us if we don't.

Cass City Chronicle

NOW REACHING NEARLY 4,000 FAMILIES WEEKLY

RIDERS ATTEMPT TO maneuver their vehicles through the "soupy" course for prizes.

ATV mud bog returns

Only one of about 40 all terrain vehicles completed the 75-foot journey across the pit of sloppy mud near the park little league diamonds last year.

Dug and dampened for the occasion, the ATV mud bog sponsored by the Jaycees will return to the festival, accommodating races slated to begin at 1:30 Monday.

Other than the vehicle that made its way on its "snowmobile like" wheels, ATVs in last year's contest averaged about 30 feet before being stopped by the pit of thin mud, according to Rod Sherman, event coordinator.

The popularity of the event propelled Sherman and fellow Jaycees to hold a mud bog race again this year. The Jaycees have been known to vary their festival events in the past.

Like last year, the races will be divided into classes according to age groups and engine sizes.

Adults 16 years of age and up may enter one of 3 classes of races based on engine sizes: 125-230 cubic centimeters, 230-350 cc and open class.

Youths 6-15 may enter their ATVs in the categories of 0-70 cc, 71-125 cc and 126-230 cc.

The $5 registration fee will be combined among race divisions and awarded back to whoever gets the farthest in the bog. Registration will take place after the parade right up to race time.

Also, after all of the ATV races are finished, the "run for the money" will take place. A pole at one end of the pit will have money attached to it. Runners beginning from the opposite end of the pit will splash their way toward the pole and whoever gets to the money first may take it home.

Sherman remarked that the entire event had "real good response last year" and that the Jaycees "think it will go off well again."

"The mud bog is a big crowd pleaser"

Firemen's water ball fight to mist Monday

The event went off with such a splash last year that the firemen's water ball fight will be held again this year at 1 p.m. Monday.

Elkland Township fire chief Richard Root, coordinator of the event, said he would "like to develop (the game) into something," possibly making the water ball fight "a main event."

The game is played by 2 teams. A ball is hung above the teams from a wire that runs horizontal between the teams. With their hoses, the teams attempt to push the ball along the wire toward the opposing team. The team that pushes the ball into the other team's territory wins a point.

Last year 8 men's and 2 women's teams competed in the games. Root said that he would like more women's teams to enter the water ball event.

"It's fun and it's interesting," Root said, adding that he expects good spectator turn out and hopes to sign up many teams.

Lip-sync contest inaugural show

Mouthing the words to their favorite 3 minute songs, various lip-syncers will compete for cash prizes 8:30 p.m. Saturday at the Cass City High School gymnasium.

The awards of 1st and 2nd prizes will be made after the completion of the final performance judged by Sally Doerr and Barb Doerr, event coordinators.

Spectators are asked to make a donation at the door. The money will help pay for prizes and any extra money collected will be given to the general festival fund.

Anything goes at annual mud volleyball tourney

Recreational volleyball rules (anything goes) will govern the mud volleyball games set for 3 p.m. Monday west of the Cass City park pavilion.

Four divisions will volley through the afternoon in hopes of finding victory in the double elimination tour-namment.

Divisions break down into adult men, adult women, both 18 and older, junior men and junior women, both under 18.

An entry fee of $10 per adult team and $5 per junior team will be combined and divided among the members of each division champion team.

Entries for the games will be accepted until game time. Interested teams of 6 or more players are asked to contact Ron Nurnberger or Wayne Dillon to register for the event.

The number of participants is expected to resemble that of last year, according to Nurnberger. A total of 19 teams and about 120 players dug into the mud last year.

Last year's victors in the adult men's and women's division were M&G Trucking, Bad Axe/Ubly area, and the "Tippers." The "f Packers" and the "H. Shots" took home prizes in the junior men's and women's division.

As in previous years, the mud will be provided via tractor and the Elkland Township Fire Department. The fire department, ready with water, will ensure 2 wet mud courts throughout the tournament.

Contest tuned, pitchers prepare

Current restructuring of park horseshoe pits has given the Fourth of July committee "hope (that) there will be more participation" than last year in the 2nd annual festival contest slated for the holiday weekend.

The pits are being rebuilt to regulation specifications, according to Alan Sward, committee member.

A 3rd pit is also under construction so the park may accommodate more players who wish to engage in regulation pitching.

The 2 pits carved into the ground during last year's competition did not meet specifications, Sward said.

Stakes did not stand uniformly and the pits lacked the required surrounding boxes in place in regulation horseshoes. Also, sand surrounded the stakes causing the 2 1/2 pound shoes to sink when tossed, rather than stick into a regulation clay surface, event coordinator David Ackerman pointed out.

The about 12 participants in the inaugural contest expressed concern about the less than plumb pits, Sward commented. The new pits should pass muster and be relished by horseshoe enthusiasts on Independence day and throughout the season.

Persons interested in competing in the contest are asked to contact Ackerman at 872-2023 by Friday so that a weekend schedule may be drawn and time slots assigned to participants. The contest will be played from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday and 1-4 p.m. Monday.

2nd track competition geared for youngsters

Children 2-10 are encouraged to partake in the annual children's track events slated for 4:30 Monday at the track.

According to Lily Cheng, event coordinator, the games are scheduled to divide children into 3 age groups. Youngsters ages 2-4, 5-7 and 8-10 will participate in similar races and relays and prizes will be awarded to all junior athletes.

No pre-registration is required for admittance into events. However, the number of games played will depend on the tally of young competitors.

Last year some 25 children took part in the games.
