SECTION ONE, PAGES 1-12 PLUS SUPPLEMENT

FRIDAY'S RAIN turned a section of Pine Street into a wet and wild drag strip for 10-year-old Jeff Piaskowski. Although Cass City received over an inch of rain, the showers were widely scattered. As little as 2 miles away residents reported virtually no rain at all.

County again for extra operating millage

Area residents face crucial millage questions in Tuesday's Primary Election that will determine the quality of law enforcement and senior citizen services in Tuscola County.

Residents also will be asked to approve special millage for road improvements.

SENIOR MILLAGE

Voters are being asked to approve .2 of a mill for 4 years to maintain senior services in the county.

The proposed tax is equal to 20 cents for every $1,000 of assessed valuation. If approved, the millage would raise about $112,000 in the first year, and would cost the average county homeowner (with an SEV of $20,000) $4 more per year in taxes.

According to Mary Ann Vandemark, executive director of the Human Development Commission, which provides senior services to the upper Thumb counties, failure by voters to approve the millage will be much more costly than voting

"yes."

Speaking Friday during a press conference sponsored by Citizens for Better Government, Vandemark said a failed senior millage will mean a reduction in current services by as much as 40 percent.

"The failure of the millage would result in drastic cuts," she remarked, adding, "If we cannot provide these services, then those individuals will have to be placed into a facility where these services are provided."

Senior services have already been reduced this year. Meal sites in Millington and Fairgrove have been closed and kitchen staffs at the Mayville and Vassar kitchens reduced.

Vandemark noted that county residents for several years approved special millage for seniors. But when HDC took over as the service provider in October 1986 (previously the provider was the Thumb Area Commission on Aging), voters failed to renew the millage. That tax was last collected in the winter of 1986-87, and HDC has been trying to run the program on the remaining funds--$75,000 the first year and $55,000 in the current year.

The services offered by HDC are home delivered meals, help with household chores, transportation, senior home repair, senior center staffing, case coordination and support, personal care, home health care and respite care.

In the first 9 months of its current fiscal year (as of June 30), the HDC in Tuscola County alone has provided 45,144 home delivered meals and 19,555 congregate meals.

ROAD PATROL

Approval by voters Tuesday of .9 of a mill for 4 years for the sheriff's road patrol and dispatch would reinstate 14 road patrol officers laid off May 13 as a result of voters' rejection last April of a special millage request of 1.5 mills for 4 years.

Among the services affected have been emergency services, traffic safety, accident reconstruction, criminal investigation and crime prevention, arson investigation, marine safety.

For the average homeowner, approval of the millage, which is expected to raise some $505,000, would mean an additional $18 per year in taxes.

Tuscola County Controller Michael Hoagland noted that all funds from the millage, if approved, would be placed in a separate fund to be used exclusively for the road patrol and dispatch.

According to Curtis Chambers, a laid-off sheriff's deputy and member of the Arbel Township Police Department, failure to pass the millage will mean higher insurance rates and higher local millages. It also would mean that the road patrol will be lost for at least 1 1/2 years due to time constraints in collecting revenue if voters approve the millage at a later date.

Curtis, who also spoke during Friday's press conference, emphasized the value of the combined efforts of the sheriff's department and state police post in Caro.

The number of annual road fatalities over the past 15 years has gone from the 40s and 50s to the teens because of both agencies working together, he said, adding, "How long before those stats begin to increase?"

Chambers noted that in 1987, the sheriff's department made 627 original arrests and the state police post made 171 arrests. In 1988, as of May 13, Please turn to page 8.

Profits up, plans begin for '89 July 4 Festival

The Fourth of July Committee held its post-celebration critique July 19 at the Charmont.

The 7 members assessed this year's festival activities and began the search for an enjoyable and profitable line-up to grace the park next year.

Bills and fees are still being collected, but committee members stated that they believe profits this year will outweigh the $743.72 ade last year.

Though profits from Bingo and the mud bog are lower than last year, 2 big money makers have fared better this year.

So far, pig roast net profits have been tallied at $504. Last year Ronnie Bell, the alternative to the roast, netted $40 and the Irish Gaels, the year before, $320. Also, the arts and crafts booths, expected to be the festival's biggest money maker, brought in profits of $1285.50, $150.75 more than last year.

Sandy Kozan, arts and crafts coordinator, commented that the crowds at the booths this year were "m. The senior committee member remarked that a one-day event would probably work better next year, especially with the Fourth falling on a Tuesday.

Kozan also announced her plans to leave the post after 6 years coordinating the event, paving the way for a new addition to the committee.

he committee itself plans to recruit someone to the spot soon and continue fine tuning the events they tentatively expect to offer next year, adding and deleting a few.

Margo Donahue, pig roast coordinator, explained that an appropriate time for a pig roast is not available at the festival next year because of the mid-week holiday. The committee discussed some sort of "party" alternative to replace the pig roast. The possibility of offering the night-time entertainment in late winter is also under consideration.

The point of an early event under the organization of the Independence Day Committee is to provide early advertisement and collect early funds.

Other events expected to change include the horse-shoe contest. Committee member Alan Sward noted that the great participation the contest drew this year will need to be spread out over a few days more than just the Fourth next year.

Also, he expressed the thought that the contest might be highlighted if an entry fee were charged and "bigger prizes" offered.

Like this year, the committee plans to accommodate as many interested participants as possible. The committee expressed that it would like to see the return of most events to next year's festival, as the 1988 festival ran successfully, enduring the scorching temperatures.

Besides the heat, members revealed that they hope next year's event arrives without the presence of private vendors near park grounds. The concession wagon parked across the street from the park this year, near the waterball fight, was an unwelcome first at the 10th annual festival.

A committee member stated at the meeting that the vendor refused to donate money to the Fourth of July committee when approached and notified about the customary 25 percent profit donation provided by all vendors on park grounds. The individual reminded the committee member that his wagon stood on private property, the committee member said.

Week-long Tuscola fair opens Sunday

Day one of the 107th annual Tuscola County Fair is slated to kick off at 1 p.m. Sunday with the 4-H dog show.

Also scheduled for Sunday is the 4-H talent show set for 7 p.m.

Throughout the 7 days of shows and exhibitions, the expected crowd of 40,000 will experience "an old-fashion country fair," according to Walt Jackson, fair president.

Included in the old-style fair line up are 2 newcomers. Crystal Rhythm, a group of singers from Oakland University, is slated to perform at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Also appearing for the first time at the fair are the Huron County Jubilee Singers. Their show is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Other than those 2 new additions, old favorites like the animal and arts and crafts exhibits will be set on the fair grounds during much of the week-long activities.

Jackson explained that the fair depends a lot on the exhibits. This year some 800 4-H exhibits will be displayed, along with some 400 open exhibits, which always attract a crowd.

But the biggest crowd pleaser, Jackson noted, is bound to be the demolition derby, now running into its 25th year at the fair. The derby is slated for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, when all senior citizens can expect to enter the gates and grandstands free until 6 p.m.

Another reduced rate day is slated for Tuesday. On that day, kids day, reduced rates will be featured on the midway for all youngsters. Rides provided by Crown Amusement will include "kiddy land," and 15 major rides. Games and shows are also expected. Other events set for the fair include the 8:45 Bean Queen Pageant Wednesday night.

Four days of harness racing will run Monday night and then throughout the afternoon beginning at 2 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday. Youth pedal pulling and tractor pulling will be featured Friday, and motorcycle racing is expected to highlight Saturday's events at 7:30 p.m.

For the fair-going shoppers, other than arts and crafts, the merchants' building will be set up with sales on everything imaginable, according to Jackson. Some 80 merchants from all over are anticipated to be selling everything from appliances to knickknacks.

A $2 fee will be collected at the gate to the 50-acre grounds. A $.50 fee will be charged for parking.

Also, season tickets may be purchased at $5 admission and $2 parking.

Judge's decision fails to settle camp dispute

By Tom Montgomery
News Editor

Plans to open a "work and learn" camp in Koylton Township apparently will proceed, but township officials say the issue is far from settled.

Attorneys representing Koylton Township and Pioneer Work and Learn Center Inc. both say they're pleased with the outcome of a 3-hour discussion with Tuscola County Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn last Wednesday.

Both also agreed Judge Joslyn probably hasn't heard the last of the case.

Last week's hearing was the second in a suit filed May 20 by Pioneer officials, who have contracted with the state Department of Social Services to run the camp, and the owners of Kingston Hills Camp against Koylton Township zoning officials. The suit was filed in an effort to prevent the township from interfering with renovation of the facility.

Sandusky attorney Anthony J. Sykora, who is representing the township, said Judge Joslyn last week did not address whether the proposed work and learn camp violates township zoning, but rather agreed with the township that the case must first go through normal township zoning channels before being taken to court.

"This court's order, as a result of (Wednesday's) jousting, neither allows nor disallows Pioneer Work and Learn" Center's proposal, Sykora remarked, adding, "What the court has said is the zoning board or zoning administrator (has) the right to continue (an) investigation" of the matter.

"If the zoning board feels there is a zoning violation, they are to present it to the township board of zoning appeals," Sykora explained that the appeals board is a 3-member panel which keeps a transcript of proceedings and gives a written opinion containing its reasons for a given decision.

BACK TO COURT

If the zoning and appeals boards were to find a violation at the camp, those findings would be presented, Sykora said. If Pioneer officials ignored a violation, the case would again be taken to Judge Joslyn, who would be asked to review the township decision.

Sykora said Pioneer officials "jumped over the township's administrative process" for zoning matters by obtaining an injunction that prevented the township from conducting its investigation via a visit to the camp site, and by suing the township before going through normal township channels.

He said last week's proceedings allow the case to now proceed in a more orderly fashion.

Russell Mayor, a member of the township's zoning board, agreed.

"I'm very pleased that the judge has sent it back as they (Pioneer officials) should have done in the first place," he remarked, adding, "It is our intent to . . . continue to pursue the issue."

Mayor contends the owners of Kingston Hills Camp Please turn to page 12.

DESPITE A LESS than warm welcome, Pioneer Work and Learn Center officials say their plans to open a "work and learn" camp in Koylton Township will proceed.

Dumb things I've done

by Melva E. Guinther

Everybody does something really dumb from time to time, don't they? I figure when you find yourself in that position, you can either laugh or cry. I've been laughing a lot lately. Not one to laugh alone, I might as well pass along my latest batch of boners.

One morning after cleaning the bath tub, I wanted to remember to clean the sink as well. So I put the can of Lysol Tub and Tile Cleaner next to the sink as a reminder. Meanwhile, I curled my hair. When I sprayed it, I noticed white particles in the air and figured I'd forgotten to shake the can. So I shook it up and sprayed again. You guessed it. Same size and color can, wrong spray. Without a doubt, it was the cleanest, most antiseptic hair in town.

On another occasion, I grabbed a tube of cover stick without looking and proceeded to apply it to my lips. It wasn't at all moist and the shade was not becoming.

Vacuum cleaners are not kind to me. The belt on the Sears vacuum cleaner broke, while I was cleaning the house in anticipation of weekend guests. Not knowing when the next trip to the city would be, I felt inspired to order a replacement belt via catalog. It arrived about 9 days later (after we'd gone to the city and bought a new one). The belt cost $1.79. The shipping charge was $2.73.

The next episode took place in church. Not being quite reconciled to wearing glasses full-time, although it's imminent, I simply slip the glasses out of my purse when the type becomes too small. One Sunday, when the song leader announced the hymn, I automatically reached into the case in the outside pocket of my purse and slipped the glasses on. Only after the hymn was over did I realize I'd been wearing sunglasses. They're not prescription Friends, neighbors and relatives are encouraged to attend the open house, which will be held at the couple's Mayville home, 5822 Fulton St. The couple requests no gifts.

Sarah was born and raised. Sarah is a retired elementary school teacher. Paul, a Cass City area native, is a retired carpenter. Also over the years, he owned and drove school buses in the Kingston area, drove a milk route and owned and operated hardware stores in Marlette and Mayville, a gas station in Kingston and a grocery store in Holly.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

Ken and Andrea Hofmeister of Gageton have launched a petition drive to urge the Michigan Department of Transportation to resurface M-81 from I-75 to M-53. They hope to obtain 4,000 to 5,000 signatures in the Cass City, Gageton and Caro areas.

Will it do any good? It's a definite long shot, but it can't hurt.

The odds on seeing a wild turkey while driving down the highway are about as great as a 65-degree day at Christmas, which we experienced here not too long ago.

The odds on seeing 2 within a week while driving have to be out of this world. It happened to me. Last week driving north, one was spotted on old M-76 near Alger. Last Saturday on Kingston Road, about 100 yards north of Mushroom Road, a proud hen turkey marched serenely across the road and was followed by a flock of chicks.

Speaking of wildlife, there's no longer any novelty in seeing a deer around here. There are so many that they are a hazard to motorists and an economic concern to farmers. Having said that, I confess that I still get a charge out of seeing them bound gracefully across the fields.

In the last presidential year primary only 16.7 percent of the voters were at the polls in Tuscola County. Sanilac and Huron did better with 44 and 40 percent, respectively.

Tuscola County is sure to do better this year and a 30 to 35 percent voter turnout will not be surprising.

It's a sad commentary when 40 percent or better is considered outstanding and only 35 percent or less is forecast in Tuscola County in a year when local races and millage questions abound.

So as trite as it has become to remind us all that voting is a duty and a privilege, it certainly needs repeating.

ASSISTANCE PAYMENT worker Terry Kinney sees 8-10 people a week in her cubical at the new Department of Social Services building. Many of the 10 percent of county residents who come through the department's doors comment on the colors, she remarked, adding that the "soothing" blues and grays are a comfortable change from the old orange office.

DSS hosts open house

The Tuscola County Department of Social Services held an open house Friday, 6 months after the agency moved to its new office at 1365 Cleaver Rd., Caro.

The department moved into the building in February from its previous home at 1900 W. Caro Rd. The new building took 6 months to build after its ground breaking in August of 1987.

The larger building has already shown signs of improving services, according to agency director Onalee A. Detwiler. "The building has improved morale and services provided to our clients," Detwiler noted, adding "The atmosphere is more relaxed." Accommodations for providing services to the average 97 people a day who come through the department's doors are more comfortable now, remarked Mary Beth Silvernail, one of 59 employees and 19 assistance payment workers, who's been with the county's department some 3 years. "Lighting and ventilation are better here; it's nice and bright."

The department sent out 332 invitations to individuals, including dignitaries from Lansing, Social Service board members and various agency members. Welcomed members of the general public also dropped by to have a look.

Some 225 persons dropped in for the afternoon of meeting those who run the department, as well as taking tours of the facility.

The Haire Net

The trouble was that the trouble reported in the Wednesday issue of the Detroit News was not all that unusual. A 24-year-old was raped in her own bed by a cretin who cut a hole in a screen and accosted her at 3 a.m. An 84-year-old woman was shot and killed in her home and robbed of $400 despite having bars on the windows and the door.

The blood boils when you read it. Any retribution seems justified. You'd like to see them get what's coming to them and what's coming to them at the very least is a shot between the eyes.

You know almost as soon as you feel it, that the answer doesn't come from simplistic measures. It's worse if you can remember like I can how it used to be.

Today no one in their right mind would let a couple of young girls walk down Woodward Avenue alone, unescorted. About 25 years ago the family went to Detroit on a mini-vacation when the daughters were young teens and they walked alone (in the afternoon) to the theatre to catch a musical group there.

It was a time when Detroit was like downtown Bay City is today. You used a little care at night, but really there was no big worry. There were plenty of fun things to do and lots of folks around to do it.

It's no secret that the virus that is affecting the city is spreading to the suburbs and has reached out to the rural area. Make no mistake about it, Cass City and the Thumb have a drug problem.

The irony is that none of what you've read here is news. It's also not news that, despite the vows by politicians everywhere, we haven't made a dent in the problem.

If drugs are one of the primary causes of the morass of crime that is sucking us under, it seems to me that we may at last be headed for improvement.

Given the incidents described earlier here, how much improvement can there be?, you rightfully ask. Well, there's a quantum jump in the right direction in the way drugs are perceived. Go back 5 years or so when cocaine was regarded as NECESSARY at all those swinging high society parties. Pot was almost as prevalent on college campuses as cigarettes and regarded as no more harmful by many. The drug problem for professional athletes was not even acknowledged.

Contrast that with today when the anti-drug message is pounded out to us time after time, day after day. Society today no longer looks tolerantly at the use of drugs.

It's the first big step. Certainly, enough space in our jails to put the pushers behind bars to stay is essential. Better incomes, better housing, and better schools for the poor are needed.

None of this does anything to calm the outrage that comes with the reports of murder and rape that are all too common today.

But we have made a very small start and that's better than nothing, although it doesn't seem so when we read the news of the day.

"If It Fitz..."

I almost cried

By Jim Fitzgerald

While I watched on TV, the Tigers came from behind in the ninth inning to beat Seattle. Naturally, I yelled for joy and slapped my newspaper with great enthusiasm.

"I wish you could get that excited about my cleaning our home," my wife said.

She really said that. What am I supposed to do, applaud her vacuuming? Three cheers for window wiping? The dear woman is getting a little strange in her advancing years.

She is particularly upset by the newspaper slapping. I swat it whenever something unusually good or bad happens to the Tigers. Sometimes I swat it across the room, and pages get torn.

"Why do you hit that flimsy newspaper?" she asked one evening. "Anyone can hit a newspaper and ruin it. Why don't you hit the phone book?"

Good Lord. I swat the newspaper because it's in my lap. The great thing about watching baseball on TV is it barely interrupts my reading. The only time I look up from the paper is when the play-by-play announcer stops talking about the Tiger trivia question or a free backyard barbecue grill if your name is drawn and a home run is hit. If I don't look up in time, there's always the replay, during which the color commentator speaks in beige.

It's not enough to be married to a woman who expects me to cheer her housekeeping, she also wants me to read the phone book during ball games.

NOTHING THRILLS LIKE BASEBALL

My wife says the point isn't that she seeks plaudits for dusting, or finds it difficult to read newspapers torn in the agony of defeat. The point, she says, is that I don't get excited about anything except the Tigers' won-lost record, and it would be nice if I were a more well-rounded person, with more varied interests.

So I treated her to the greatest demonstration of well-rounded love within my economic means and emotional boundaries: I took her out to dinner and a show on a TV-game night. When we returned home late, I had no idea how the Tigers had done that night. I was prepared to go to bed and leave it to the morning newspaper to tell me the glorious or rotten news. Greater love hath no man -- it's similar to waiting a week after the drawing to check if you won the $10 million lottery.

But on the table just inside our front door was an urgent note from our youngest child. It said: "Dad: Tigers won 8-1, Robinson winner, HR's by Knight, Herndon, Lemon, Salazar and Heath."

Talk about emotional, I almost cried. My little boy was carrying on a family tradition. When I was a child, before the invention of night games, when my dad came home from work, I always told him how the Tigers had done that afternoon. I was 10 or 12 years old at the time. My son is 30. I know how to bring up a kid so he never forgets what's important.

GETTING CLOSE DOESN'T COUNT

That, unfortunately, brings us to last Saturday when my son and I took dates to the Detroit-Oakland game, which is unusual. Ordinarily, the women stay home to clap hands for each other's performance in the laundry room. You will be crushed to learn how terribly much this unlikely inclusion of women cost me in emotional suffering.

I've been attending Tigers' games for 55 years, always yearning to catch a ball hit into the stands. But the closest I ever came was 2 years ago when my grandson, with the help of his dad, got a foul ball right after I left my seat to go buy beer. Until Saturday.

My wife was sitting next to our son and I was on her left. Oakland's Don Baylor attempted a bunt that somehow hit the ground behind him and bounced directly at my wife. My son caught it. "I've waited all my life for this day," he explained. The young punk.

I told my wife if she'd stayed home to rehearse her carpet sweeping act, I would have been in her seat, and would have surely caught that ball. I was furious.

"If you'd brought a phone book, you could slap it," she said.

Onward and upward, and DeJesus help me.

THE CASS CITY Little League All Stars are: (standing) Coach Dan Ulfig, Billy Graham, Paul Ulfig, Tavis Osentoski, Mark Kubacki, Alan Proowski, Jason Morgan, and Coach Ken Schott. (First row): John Phillips, Rich Kubacki, Ben Schott, Jason Walther and Corey Ulfig.

Little League All Stars shine bright

If good major league baseball teams are developed in their farm clubs, and if that principle can be applied on a small scale, Cass City High School's baseball team should be something to revel about in the near future considering the recent success of a traveling Little League team.

The traveling squad is made up of the best 12 year-olds and under from the Cass City league and is under the direction of coaches Dan Ulfig and Ken Schott.

So far the young sluggers have competed in 2 weekend tournaments, capturing a first place finish at Reese and bringing home a runner-up trophy from Bridgeport. The future Hawk hopefuls are slated to compete in 2 more tournaments this summer, traveling to Bad Axe July 30 and Harbor Beach August 6.

In the Reese tournament the Cass City all stars breezed to a first place finish behind the pitching of Billy Graham, Paul Ulfig and Ben Schott. The Cass City pitchers allowed only 6 runs for the tournament besting Reese twice, Frankenmuth and finally Richmond in the championship game. Mayville, Sebawaing and Unionville also participated in the tournament.

Cass City also showed plenty of firepower behind the plate as they scored 42 runs over the 3 day event which was held July 8-10.

Leading the offense was Schott who recorded a lofty .667 average. He had plenty of help from Mark Kubacki, Billy Graham, Alan Proowski who all slugged over .530 for the tournament.

At Bridgeport, Cass City had to fight its way from the loser bracket to the championship game where they fell 8-7 to the Flames of Saginaw. Coach Ulfig was pleased with his team's efforts, especially since they had to play 5 games in the final day to finish runner-up.

At Bridgeport 6 players recorded averages of over .500. Graham, who picked up 16 hits, led the squad with a .667 average. Following Graham was Corey Ulfig who, slugging out 4 doubles, batted .571.

The other players who batted over .500 were Schott, Proowski, Tavis Osentoski, and John Phillips.

Girls' softball tourney slated

The Huron and Tuscola Child Abuse/Neglect Prevention Council (CA/N) will be sponsoring a girls' fast pitch softball tournament in Cass City's recreation park this weekend beginning Friday night at 6:30, with championship games slated for 3:00 Sunday.

All proceeds from the tournament will be used to "strike out child abuse" in both Sanilac and Tuscola counties.

The first-time event will be divided into 2 categories with a special attraction slated for 1:00 Sunday. The 2 divisions will consist of girls 15 and under and 18 and under. Sunday's 1:00 p.m. contest will pit local public figures against the TV-5 All Stars.

In addition, tournament director Jim Turner said a concession stand, 50-50 raffles and specially designed T-shirts will be on sale throughout the tournament in an effort to make this a fun and successful event.

Following the meal, toast-mistress Barb Scharich welcomed the classmates for an informal get-together. She had each share their life happenings over the past 5 years. Jim Ricker followed with entertainment, and Shirley Howard led the closing prayer for the sharing of fellowship with classmates and their spouses.

Committee members appointed for the 40th reunion were Bonnie Gaeth, Barb Scharich, Charles Edler, Jim Ricker, Earl Roe, Richard Retzler and Shirley Howard. This year's committee was composed of Richard Retzler, Jim Ricker, Eleanor Truemner, Earl Roe and Bonnie Gaeth.

In Tuscola townships

Races for supervisor, treasurer, trustee and clerk set Tuesday

The 1,972 voters of Elkland Township have the opportunity next week to decide which 2 Republicans they want to sit as trustees on their township board.

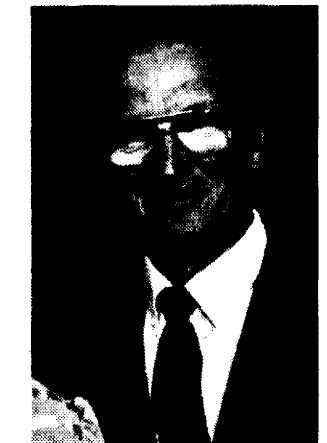

The 3 men running for a trustee seat are, Roy Tuckey, Allen Merchant and Dan Erla.

Merchant, a 20 year veteran of the board, is a life-long farmer. He said that his experiences in the rural areas bring a balance to the board. His election will ensure the maintenance of a "wide base" on the board, he said.

Erla, running for the first time for trustee, said he's running because he feels dissatisfied with the dedication exercised by the present board. Erla said he plans to lend commitment to the job if elected trustee. He also said that he believes his 17 years as township assessor, working with the supervisor and others in the government, qualifies him for the job.

The election in Novesta Township will decide which of 2 Democrats will face Danny Allen, Deford Republican, in the general election for supervisor in November.

The 12-year supervisor, William O'Dell, Republican, decided not to run for election this year, stating "12 years is long enough." O'Dell said he is "very proud of the accomplishments made by the township," in particular the new drainage system, new post office set for construction and the road program. O'Dell said that he doesn't endorse one particular candidate for supervisor. He did say that "it's time for a new man, and it doesn't matter from what party, all 3 are good men."

The 2 to be found on Tuesday's ballot, and decided on by the township's 704 voters, are Maynard Stine and Edward Lebioda, both life-long Novesta residents.

Stine is a farmer, with no political experience but an intense interest in the township.

Lebioda, also a farmer, claims 10 years on the Novesta board of review and a "good stake in Novesta." Lebioda owns a farm and gravel pit.

In the Elmwood Township races, Harriet M. Downing and Richard J. Patnaude are up against one another for the Democratic position of township treasurer.

The township's 700 voters may choose one of the 2 to face Republican Jeannine Hobart in the November election.

Downing of Gagetown, currently works as deputy county treasurer for Tuscola County. Downing has held that job for some 6 months. Before that she spent 12 1/2 years in the treasurer's office as a clerk.

Downing said that if elected she will leave the county job and offer a full-time commitment to the township treasurer's responsibilities.

Patnaude farms a 192 acre farm in Gagetown and has done so since 1945. He says his experience for the treasurer's post comes from the 20 years he has worked as a tax consultant for business and private individuals.

Patnaude also points out his active membership in St. Agatha Catholic Church.

Ellington Township's some 690 voters will face 2 points on their primary ballots.

The departure of clerk, Republican Clayton Turner has left that position open. Also, a 3 mill increase for roadwork will be decided Tuesday.

Republicans Fred Bardwell Jr. and Coiene Cooklin will vie for the clerk position also eyed by Democrat Virginia Papp. Turner commented that all 3 newcomers would make good clerks and he does not endorse one candidate.

Bardwell is a financial systems analyst for the Saginaw division of General Motors. He has worked for GM some 22 years.

From 1972-78, Bardwell served as township supervisor. He said his interest in good township government and knowledge and familiarity with township and state laws concerning townships qualify him for the position of clerk.

His opponent Cooklin is a full-time farmer. She worked some 15 years as a secretary before leaving her job to raise a family.

Coiene Cooklin

Cooklin said she feels her qualifications have come from her involvement with various organizations. Currently, Cooklin is the secretary-treasurer of the Yorkshire Breeders Association. For 29 years she has served on different 4-H boards, and remains an active leader. Cooklin said that if elected she plans to devote as much quality time as the job calls for to the office of clerk.

MILLAGE

The millage proposal calls for 3 mills for 10 years. Each year an expected $30,000 is expected to be raised.

If the millage passes, the money is to be used for a 10 year road plan drawn by the township council. The detailed plan gives first priority to blacktopping parts of Akron, Jacob and Orr roads. It also plans for re-topping Cedar Run Rd. and Shabbona Rd. in the near future.

Another project included in the road plan calls for participation by Tuscola County to rebuild parts of Hurds Corner Road. A new drainage system would be included for the road set to be widened in its reconstruction. The new Hurds Corner Rd. would resemble the Federally constructed portion of the road between M-81 and Bay-City Forestville Rds.

A detailed description of the scheduled road plan is available to anyone interested through Clayton Turner, Elmwood Township Clerk. Turner can be reached at 872-2290.

Tuckey named chairperson

Cass City resident Robert L. Tuckey, CPA has been elected chairperson of the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants (MACPA) Eastern Chapter, serving the eastern counties of Michigan, including Bay City, Saginaw, Midland and Flint.

A partner with the Caro firm of Anderson Tuckey Bernhardt & Co., Tuckey has been a member of the MACPA since 1973. He is currently a member of the association's Nominations Committee and has served on several other committees. Tuckey is also a member of the American Institute of CPAs and the Hospital Financial Manager Association.

Sheridan voters to decide millages

Two millage renewal questions face voters Tuesday in Huron County's Sheridan Township.

Township officials are asking for approval for renewal of 2 mills for 2 years for roads, and renewal of one mill for 2 years for fire and ambulance protection.

Township Supervisor Robert Becking said one mill, which is equal to one dollar for every $1,000 of assessed valuation, is expected to raise about $12,000 in the township.

"We've got quite a few bad roads, but we're plugging away at it," he remarked, adding that the road millage would be used for on-going maintenance and new construction projects.

Becking noted that nearly half of 22 miles of roads that have needed work in the township over the past 10 years have received attention. He added, however, "Two mills doesn't even build a mile."

Turning to the fire/ambulance millage, Becking said the township contracts with Bingham Township for fire service, and with Bingham Township and Central Huron Ambulance Service for ambulance service.

Township voters have approved both millage requests in recent years, Becking said.

The yellow evening primrose opens only at dusk, and so swiftly that it can sometimes be heard.

Jackson marks 19th year at Tuscola Fair

by Jill L. Schmidt
Staff Writer

Cash crop and dairy farmer Walt Jackson of Caro has grown up attending Tuscola County fairs.

As a boy he'd view the exhibits the years he was too young to participate. He says that once he was old enough, he'd show cattle through 4-H, and after 4-H he moved up to the open exhibits, still to show his dairy cattle.

Now, after 12 years as the superintendent of cattle and entering his 19th year as elected president of the fair, Jackson continues to show cattle from his farm.

But as the "boss" at the fairgrounds Jackson holds many other responsibilities year-round that he must attend to.

Generally, Jackson must assure the attendance of spectators and participants at the 7 day fair.

A major priority is the soliciting and scheduling of acts at the fair.

Jackson and the rest of the fair board of directors must keep fair expenses within their $190,000 budget. Recently the best profit they've made from a fair has been $3,000, so the board must be thrifty in booking new acts. Jackson remarked that the fair has not always been so lucky.

Jackson said he looks for feasible ideas at other county fairs. He also explained that in putting together a profitable show he doesn't want to take away the old-fashioned air the annual event has kept for 106 years.

This year 2 new singing groups have been added to the list of events at the fair. These new acts fit right in with the rest of the fair atmosphere, according to Jackson.

"Big name stars," are what Jackson feels take away from the old-fashioned nature of the fair. Jackson noted that years ago the fair attempted to bring in "big names." As it turned out stars including Gene Autry and Hank Williams Jr. didn't increase attendance totals greatly.

Jackson remarked that he didn't feel a big name would help fair attendance these days either. He added, "these days big celebrity names cost $40,000. We can't afford it, and we want to keep to an old-fashioned type of fair."

4-H EXHIBITS

What Jackson especially likes about the old-fashioned type of fair are the exhibits, as might have been guessed.

Important to him are the 4-H exhibits, and the people involved with 4-H.

"We depend a lot on the exhibits," he said, continuing, "work on the fair takes a lot of help from 4-H leaders, the voluntary people." He said that some 150 4-H people are expected to help out with work during the fair, as well as before and after.

A former 4-H'er himself, Jackson feels that it is an important and fun organization to be involved in. All of his children, 3 sons and one daughter, grew up involved with 4-H, he remarked. Jackson's son Neil, continues his involvement with fair exhibits today. Neil is the superintendent of cattle at the annual fair.

Other responsibilities Jackson faces in his position are the duties of advertising and communications.

He covers the entire county with advertisements

TUSCOLA COUNTY FAIR President/Manager Walt Jackson looks over the almost vacant 50-acre fairgrounds which, from July 31-Aug. 6, will be visited by some 40,000 spectators.

and attends conventions on the county fairs.

Lately the yearly state convention in January has been held in Grand Rapids. Jackson and a few representatives from the board make the trip faithfully to pick up helpful information and share experiences with representatives from all county fairs.

Also in the winter, an annual convention in Clare is held for about half of the county fairs in Michigan. That convention is put on by the Northern Fair and Racing Association, which Jackson is a member of. In years past Jackson has been honored with the position of president of the Clare convention.

MINOR CHANGES

None of Jackson's communications have led him to make or call for great changes in the fair he manages, however.

For as long as he has retained his job at the fair he stated the major changes there have been new buildings. New grandstands and barns are the only differences he recalls on the 50 acre plot of fairgrounds in the last 30 years.

Just recently a fence was constructed around the harness race track, for safety, and other than that and cleaning up the vandalism the grounds are victims of every year, Jackson revealed no other change in the fair from last year to now.

The amount of workers, exhibits and spectators doesn't change much from year to year either, but a lot of work always needs to be completed. To get the jobs done, the way everything is gone about remains about the same, Jackson said.

"It gets hectic," Jackson commented, "but I kinda like it."

No contest plea entered in fatal crash case

An Ohio woman pleaded no contest last Wednesday in Tuscola County District Court to a charge of attempted negligent homicide in connection with a fatal 2-vehicle crash July 17 in Vassar Township.

In the fatal crash, Vassar resident Kathy L. Wilson, 25, died after her north-bound car was struck by a west-bound vehicle near the intersection of Vassar and Ormes roads. Police reports indicated Balluck failed to stop at the signed intersection.

Motorist arrested

Cass City Police arrested a 27-year-old Deford man early Sunday morning for suspicion of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, second offense.

Street east of Oak Street. Also Sunday, a vehicle driven by Brian S. Yenglin of Clio struck a parked car in a village parking lot located north of Church Street.

Police arrested Christopher P. Zemke, 5878 Bruce St., at about 1:05 a.m. after observing his eastbound vehicle strike a curb on Pine Reports state Yenglin's vehicle backed into a vehicle registered to Dale and Sherry Wright, 6397 Seventh St., Cass City. Damage in the 6:20 p.m. mishap was slight.

Sanilac County commissioner

2 Republicans race for District 5

Tuesday's primary in Sanilac County will decide which Republican vying for commissioner of District 5 (Greenleaf, Evergreen and Lamotte townships) will face Democrat Joanne Dawson of Forestville in the November election.

Eugene Foote

Next week's contest pits incumbent Eugene Foote, Ubyly, against Deckerville Mayor Bradley Apsey for the Republican spot on the November ballot.

Foote, who farms with his 2 sons, raising beef cattle and cash crops, is a 1945 Sandusky High School graduate. He studied assessing in the Sandusky school district to gain qualifications for the position of Argyle township supervisor.

Foote stood as supervisor for 6 years, leaving to serve on the Social Services Board for some 10 years.

He served as District 5 commissioner for 2 years, then received an appointment to the road commission where he remained over 4 years. For the past 2 1/2 years Foote has been on the board of commissioners.

He says his "interest in the welfare of senior citizens and the general public," has pushed him to seek reelection.

On the board Foote serves as chairman of the Finance Committee, which is currently deliberating on the issue of how to find funds to build a new county jail; one brought up to state standards.

Millage elections to fund the new jail construction have been fought for by the board of commissioners and failed at the polls. Foote stated that he is currently working on a proposition that would bring in money for the jail without raising the millage. The new plan includes taking prisoners into the township from out of town.

Other responsibilities Foote claims are chairman of the Parks and Recreation Committee, membership on the Board of Human Development and vice-chairman of the Solid Waste Committee. Most recently, action in the solid waste committee has been in the rewriting of the county solid waste rules.

Foote claims responsibility for much of the research going into the solid waste decision. He stated that something must be done to keep out of county waste beyond county limits, and said he plans to tackle the issue of the county's absence of a dump.

The other main decision Foote said he plans to deal with in the future, if reelected, is "cutting back the budget." He added that "government will have to be cut back."

Foote's opponent, Apsey, agrees that the budget must be dealt with. Apsey called balancing the county budget his number one priority if elected.

Apsey is the 2nd term Deckerville village president and member of the local hospital board.

In addition to his responsibilities in government he has recently entered his 10th year as owner of the Apsey Funeral Home in Deckerville.

Apsey is a 1970 Deckerville High School graduate and a 1977 Wayne State University graduate. He acquired a degree in mortuary science at the university. Between his high school and university years, Apsey served nearly 2 years with the army in Thailand.

Apsey stated that because "the age group is getting older on the board of commissioners it's time for some new blood on the board."

And, other than working to balance the county budget, Apsey said that if elected he would look into the jail issue. Apsey has not decided whether building a new jail is entirely the right decision, but he says the issue must be looked into. Apsey stated that an overhaul of the courthouse also must be acted on in the near future.

State police reports

Mayville man, 26, killed in accident

A 26-year-old Mayville man was killed late Friday night when his motorcycle struck a car broadside on M-46 near Cat Lake Road.

David N. McElhinney, 6019 Trend St., was westbound on M-46 on a motorcycle at about 10:40 p.m. when he hit an eastbound vehicle driven by Lynn A. Flickinger, 17, of Fostoria, according to troopers at the state police post in Caro.

Flickinger, who was attempting to turn north onto Cat Lake Road when the accident occurred, didn't see McElhinney's motorcycle, according to reports, which state McElhinney was riding without his headlight on. Reports also indicate McElhinney had been drinking prior to the crash.

Flickinger, 8886 Fostoria Rd., was treated for minor injuries and later released Saturday from Caro Community Hospital.

Both vehicles were destroyed in the accident, which remains under investigation.

Also reported to the Caro post over the past week was a minor injury mishap July 20 in Wells Township involving 2 Caro youngsters and a child's off-road recreation vehicle.

Reports state Andrew J. Bilicki, 4, 2595 S. Plain Rd., was giving his one-year-old brother a ride on a child's Suzuki Quadrigger when the one-year-old grabbed the throttle, causing the vehicle to drive into a fence.

The one-year-old, Adam Bilicki, sustained minor injuries in the accident, which occurred near the youngsters' home at about 5:30 p.m.

Minor damage was sustained by 2 vehicles in a mishap the same day in Indianfields Township.

A vehicle driven by Debbie J. Jochim, 5795 Bruce St., Deford, was stopped in the northbound lane of M-24 near Wells Road when it was struck in the rear by another northbound vehicle, driven by Darren W. Hatfield, 6394 Lanway Rd., Kingston.

Troopers, who stated Jochim was preparing to make a turn when the 10:45 p.m. accident occurred, cited Hatfield for violation of the basic speed law.

A Caro motorist escaped injury Saturday when the vehicle she was driving struck an abandoned building in Ellington Township.

Reports state Kelli J. Graham, 214 Quinn St., was southwestbound on M-81 near Dutcher Road when another vehicle, driven by Paul Skinner, 2940 Hurds Corner Rd., Caro, pulled onto her path. Graham's vehicle struck the building after swerving to miss Skinner's vehicle.

Skinner was cited for failure to yield.

Loss of veteran employees opens up races for 3 county offices

The loss of veteran Tuscola County officials in the positions of clerk, treasurer and register of deeds has generated much interest in the primary races for those posts.

Combined with races for sheriff, prosecutor and commission seats, voter attendance Tuesday is expected to be "good," according to county Clerk Elsie M. Hicks, who decided not to seek re-election after 27 years of service in the clerk's office, including 18 years as clerk.

"There's enough local interest that we should have a good turnout," she remarked last week, adding, "Hopefully we'll get 35 percent."

Hicks noted that voter attendance is particularly crucial in the primary race for her office, which is being sought by 5 Republicans, with the winner facing Democrat Alexandria Maylow, Mayville, in November.

Seeking the Republican nomination for clerk are:

--Janet R. Allen. A life-long county resident who currently is branch manager of State Savings Bank of Caro, Allen is a Caro resident and the mother of 2 grown sons. She has 6 years experience on the Akron-Fairgrove Board of Education.

--Erma Brown. Brown has served the county for 10 years, 5 as deputy clerk, and is being endorsed by Hicks. A long-time Mayville resident, Brown and her husband, Harry, have 4 children and 4 grandchildren.

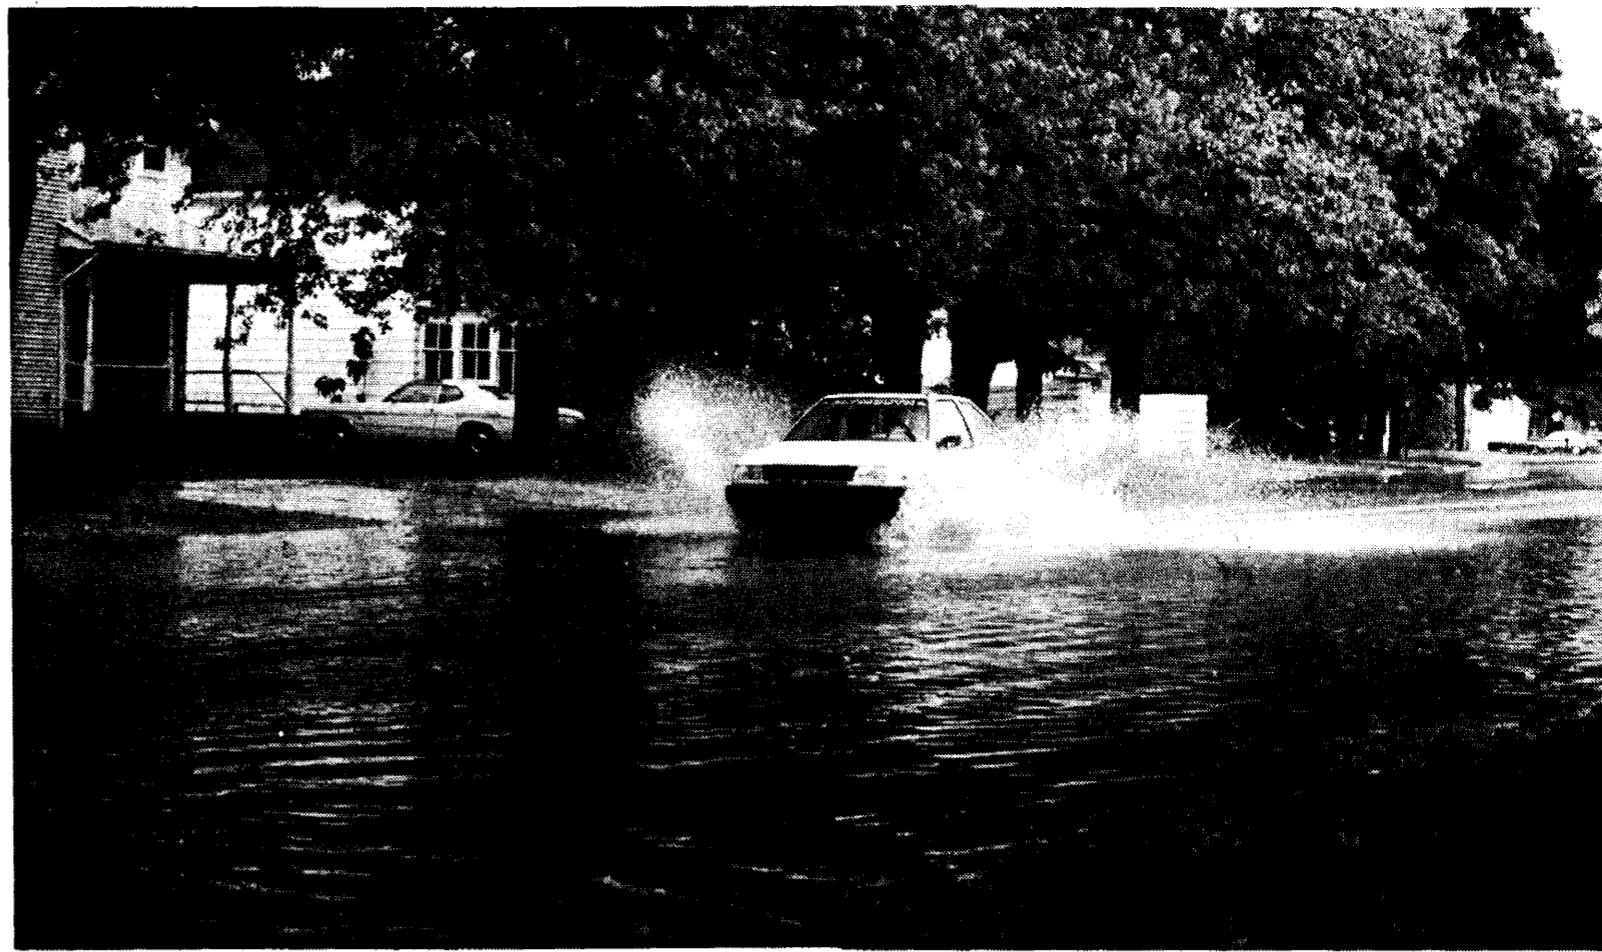

--Donna LaFave. A resident of Elmwood Township who has lived in the county for 35 years, she has been a Tuscola County Circuit Court employee for the past 15 years, including 8 years as assistant Friend of the Court, and currently serves on the Tuscola County Republican Executive Committee. LaFave and her husband, Paul, a farmer, have 5 children.

--Patricia Sauber. Sauber has served as an executive secretary in the Friend of the Court office for the past year. Also a court recorder for all referee hearings, she previously worked as a court administrator in circuit court for 2 years. A long-time Caro resident, she is the mother of 3 children.

--Marilyn J. Griffis. Griffis currently is probate court register. She has 14 years experience in that position and 4 years experience as a court recorder. A Mayville resident, she and her husband have 5 children and 6 grandchildren.

DROUGHT CONDITIONS EASED dramatically along Pine Street in Cass City Friday, when a downpour turned one block, from Brooker Street to West Street, into a small lake. The water, which reached some car bumpers at one point, quickly drained away.

Something for everyone at Sanilac fair

The Sanilac County Fair starts its traditional week's run Sunday and authorities say there is something for everyone.

The fair places its usual emphasis on exhibits and there will be judging each day of the fair starting Sunday and concluding Saturday, with approximately a thousand 4-H and open class exhibitors displaying an estimated 3,700 projects.

The community tent will provide various free entertainment throughout the week.

Among the highlights this year will be the racing pigs. The pigs will stage 7 events per day with 3 races per event. The pigs will race daily Tuesday through Saturday.

Another popular event is the tractor and pickup pull which starts at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and includes stock and farm pickups and modified tractors. The traditional talent contest is scheduled at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Friday the featured event will be the crowning of the Sanilac County Bean Queen at 7 p.m., followed by the tractor and pickup pull at 7:30 p.m.

Saturday a demolition derby will be held starting at 7 p.m.

Fair admission is $4 and allows patrons to enter and leave the grounds for the entire day the ticket is purchased.

Tuscola voters to decide 3 millage requests

Continued from page one: deputies had made 146 arrests compared to 70 arrests by troopers. As of Friday, the state police arrests totaled 108, he said, adding that more officers are needed on duty.

"Don't take this as anti-state police. We are not anti-state police. We are pro-law enforcement," the 9 1/2-year department veteran remarked.

ROAD MILLAGE

Voters will also decide a request of 2 mills for 4 years for county primary roads and major streets.

The millage would raise more than $1.1 million in the first year, and would cost the average homeowner an additional $40 per year in taxes.

County Highway Engineer Robert Wellington said millage funds would be spread countywide, with an estimated $832,000 going for county roads each year and the remainder going to the villages and City of Vassar.

Cass City, for example, would receive about $55,700. Gagetown would get $4,900 and Kingston, $6,000.

According to county Road Commission Chairman Grover Laurie, a 5-year primary road program for improvements countywide has been proposed. The millage, if approved, would be combined with Motor Vehicle Funds, state and federal monies to complete 119 miles of slurry seal, 212 miles of resurfacing and 18 miles of recycling. Total cost of the program is estimated at $7.39 million.

Laurie explained that Motor Vehicle Highway Funds received from the state (gas tax and license fees) are inadequate to maintain and improve the county's road systems "to the degree we all desire." He added that to obtain federal and some state funds for improvements, it's necessary that local funds be available for matching.

For some time now, the Road Commission has been transferring primary road funds (more than $700,000 over the past 3 years) to the local township road system to keep up with the increased demand for better maintenance. "This has decreased the amount of primary road resurfacing to less than a mile each year," he said.

The aardvark, the ant-eating animal from Africa, got its name from Dutch settlers in the 1600's. Translated, the name means earth pig.

July 4 committee plans for '89 event

To alleviate the problem of private vendors, the committee plans to notify the individual before the next festival about the donation, hoping that the vendor will comply or abandon the idea of vending near the park.

The committee explained its concern because the 25 percent donations are counted on to run the festival. Private vendors only take away from those funds.

Other than that, no major problems were reported by committee members concerning the 3-day festival. For next year, however, members stressed that a greater effort should be put forth to promote and advertise the festival, along with greater fund raising.

Committee member Geraldine Prieskorn also noted that in the event of above sufficient profits, the committee may look into planting trees in the park near the basketball courts, as many events are slated for that area and no shade is provided now. The committee would also like to purchase portable grandstands for parade watchers and even spectators, but the cost of these stands is too steep for the committee to handle as of yet.

Other comments committee members made dealt with how to make next year's festival better than the last and attract as many people as possible to the village. Members plan to keep their eyes open for new ideas until they meet again in the winter to set up a stronger schedule of events for the 11th annual festival.

Papst house saved from destruction

Skaggs restores Civil War home

No one else could find the time or money, but a Deford woman did. She became a hero to many Lexington citizens, rescuing a historic house and attempting to restore the pre-Civil War dwelling to its original state. The house became particularly famous among the many homes in Lexington's historic district, partly because of its age, beauty and notable residents. Further interest was spurred from the fate the house was threatened with last year. Brand new lake-side condominiums rose in Lexington, and after their construction a plan for new garages was drawn. Planners set the location of the parking structures for the site graced for over 120 years by the old "Papst house." The old home of the wealthy Union captain who surveyed much of the lands in the Thumb area, and who notably named Bad Axe, stood in high regard among area residents. Asi'e from damage done by vandals and looters, the stained glass entry, banister and bay window, held together by handmade square nails, remain as authentic as the day they were installed and are prided among members of the community. Nothing could be done to save the house that almost everyone wanted to spare unless it was moved, a project that the town, nearby companies and private individuals could not afford to fund.

The fate of the Papst house looked dim as the shadow of the wrecking-ball leveling an historic neighbor danced on its bricks. But a 32-year antique collector and registered nurse stepped in to stop the wrecking. Madeline Skaggs, 7211 Deckerville Rd., said she realized that "everybody wanted it saved, but they couldn't get anybody to do it." So with overwhelming support from the community's citizens and government, Skaggs offered her restoration experience, time and money to the cause of the Papst house.

VETERAN RESTORER

The experience she brought with her came from the work she had done single-handedly on her home in Deford and also the remarkable change she brought about in another Civil War house in Lexington over a 10 year period. After the restoration on the first Lexington house, the Wolfel house, on the corner of Main and Lester, Skaggs formed a partnership with a real estate agent she met and consequently sold the house to her.

Jamie McCombs and Skaggs received a "doing business as" (DBA) license last January, with hopes that Historic House Preservation would soon become incorporated. Together the 2 plan to restore old homes and eventually sell them. In their consideration of the many old homes in the area, the 2 partners decided to save the house scheduled to be knocked down and move it to a profitable site chosen by McCombs.

The costly job of moving the brick house turned out to be a bigger job than the 2 partners ever dreamed. Skaggs noted that to move the house 3 blocks this past April, the 150 ton home had to be stripped of its some 30,000 bricks, a 3 week chore for a team of 5 men. The bay window had to be removed and street signs bent out of the way to allow the giant home a path down the street.

An expensive part of the move were the payments to cable, telephone and electric companies who had to attend to their overhead wires while the 2 story structure crept through streets toward its resting place on Lester and Washington. Skaggs commented that the most expensive route requiring some $6000 to utility companies was avoided.

Even with the additional costs of moving and the unexpected costs Skaggs has discovered through closer inspection of the house, she noted that the finished product would end up in a better condition than if a duplicate was constructed. She also remarked that such a duplicate would most likely cost around $400,000 to build, much more than restoration costs.

WASTEFUL DESTRUCTION

"You can save these old houses," Skaggs said, "and you should, for 2 reasons. One, it's wasteful to tear them down, and 2, you end up with a beautiful home."

Skaggs remarked that by replacing the old utilities with new ones and restoring the old features, like the Michigan chestnut wood-work and the cherry and oak floors, an old home offers "the best of both worlds."

Unlike the work she accomplished on the Wolfel house, Skaggs said a considerable amount more is needed on the Papst house which is considerably bigger than the Wolfel house.

While she worked almost every day for 6 weeks in preparation for the move, Skaggs said she travels to Lexington about 2 times a week now to work on the restoration she has semi-planned out.

"The hardest part is deciding what to work on first," she said, adding that the first thing any house needs is roof work. From there Skaggs prefers to work from the back out, basically, so she doesn't have to walk through a finished room to a room being worked on.

The way she goes about "working on a room" also follows a plan. Skaggs' goal in restoration is to return homes to their original appearance. In doing so Skaggs said she must remove any additions the house took on over the years and replace things that have been taken away. The search for what needs to be done is a difficult one, she commented.

INFORMATIVE CLUES

As Skaggs scrutinized the interior of the Papst house she noted the clues she found that led her to believe that some wall had been removed, or some window changed to a door.

Clues like mismatched molding, estimated age of wood, type of wood or absence or presence of gouges in the walls or floor hint as to what a certain room originally looked like and even what it was used for.

Skaggs said that only one relative of the Papst family has been discovered, and she has obtained some helpful information about the house from enthusiastic townspeople.

"Because there are no plans," Skaggs explained, "you have to rely on old pictures and documents or what you hear. You usually have no idea of what a house looked like if it's over 100 years old."

Still Skaggs has found information through the locals and clues from the house that have given her a reasonably good idea what the house looked like when it was built.

She hasn't estimated how much of her time and money will go into the house, but she predicts that she will turn this "grand old house, back to what it used to be."

Interested buyers have already made themselves known to Skaggs, who said she might leave the house undecorated and let the new owners take care of what she considers the fun part. "What's important to me is to sell the house to someone who would keep it up," she said of the Papst house and the Wolfel house that McCombs now utilizes as her real estate office.

The old Papst house still needs a lot of work though, "an overwhelming amount," Skaggs stated. Some of the heavier work has to be hired out, but Skaggs intends to work at much of the restoration herself. She remarked that "you don't need an architect if there is anything left."

Much of the work on the home has been added because of the 3 block move, but Skaggs stresses that "just because a house is in a bad location doesn't mean it can't be saved."

She emphasized that "when you finish a job like this you end up with a better house than a new job."

THE WOLFEL HOUSE as it appeared before Skaggs spent 10 years laboring over the structure.

AFTER THE HOUSE was restored to authentic construction, Skaggs added a little modern flavor with plantings uncommon to homes of the 19th century.

A NEARLY 120-year-old banister still stands in the old Papst house, which is undergoing restoration by Madeline Skaggs. The Civil War home's stairway became one of Skaggs' favorite features after she discovered the house.

Huron, Sanilac voters to decide millage questions

Voters in both Huron and Sanilac counties Tuesday will decide important millage requests for senior citizen services, while Sanilac voters also will decide a request for library funding.

In Huron County, voters are being asked to approve a request of .2 of a mill for 4 years. If approved, the tax would raise about $129,000 in the first year based on current state equalized valuation figures.

According to Huron County Commissioner Bruce W. Kuhl, senior service funding previously came from the county's General Fund and revenue sharing, but elimination of Federal Revenue Sharing and tightening county finances have forced county officials to place the issue before voters.

He emphasized that the millage will fund all senior service programs, not just meal programs.

Mary Ann Vandemark, executive director of the Human Development Commission, which provides senior services in Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties, said the senior millage must be approved, or some other local funding made available in each of the counties if service levels are to continue.

Aside from a host of services provided to seniors, the HDC has provided 31,649 home delivered meals and 25,877 congregate meals in Huron County during the first 9 months of the current fiscal year. In Sanilac County, 59,603 home delivered meals and 25,802 congregate meals have been served during the same period, Vandemark said.

SANILAC COUNTY

Sanilac County voters are being asked to renew a request of .2 of a mill for 4 years for senior services, and a renewal of .2 of a mill for 4 years for libraries.

County Clerk Delene Schultheiss said .2 of a mill currently will raise about $94,000.

She said voters first approved the senior millage in 1980, making the upcoming request, if approved, the second renewal.

The library millage, which is used towards operations and material purchases at all libraries which serve Sanilac County residents, was first approved in 1984, Schultheiss said.

AN AREA GROUP from Huron County, "The Jubilee Singers," will be a highlight of the Tuscola County Fair Wednesday, Aug. 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the grandstand. The program is "Praise the Lord and America." The group is under the direction of Dian M. Holdship of Ubyly.

10 Republicans seeking 4 Sanilac County offices

The some 24,500 voters in Sanilac County decide Tuesday which 10 Republicans they want to fill 4 county positions.

The position of treasurer left vacant by 12-year veteran Ken Rhead pits Carol Dale, Marlette, against Ed Jarosz, Lexington.

Dale points out that her experience derives from the 8 years she has worked in the County Commissioners' office. She is also the candidate endorsed by Rhead.

Jarosz is a member of the Sanilac County Board of Commissioners and has served as chairman for 2 years. He also claims 4 years on the County Finance Committee.

In the race for the register of deeds post, Esther Lee, Sandusky, Emmett E. Morrell, Sandusky, and Jerome Essenmacher Sr., Port Sanilac, have all filed for election.

Lee was most recently appointed to the position of register of deeds, April 9. Before that she served 26 and one-half years as deputy register of deeds.

Morrell, 5th-year Sandusky mayor, has served on Sandusky's council for some 12 years. He works as director of the Department of Veteran Affairs. He is a former Navy Chief Petty Officer and states that his long life of managerial jobs has qualified him for the position he seeks.

Essenmacher has spent his last 12 years as Sanilac Township's clerk. He also claims 14 years of real estate work and membership in 4-H.

In another race, of the 3 men running for drain commissioner, one will face a Democratic opponent in November.

Harold Donaghy is a drain inspector in Sanilac County. He is fighting to win Tuesday's election against opponents James Bowerman, Carsonville politician, and Howard Osterhout, Sandusky.

The winner of the primary will face Walt Terschule, Democrat, Nov. 8.

In the race for road commissioner, incumbent Carl Reisner fights to keep his seat from Robert Warren, Brown City councilman, in this first election year for the county position.

Reisner, Marion Township farmer, has been a member of the road commission board for nearly 2 years. Currently he is the chairman of the board.

Warren, former 2-term chairman of the Sanilac County Board of Commissioners, currently chairs the Sanilac Board of Health, Home Health Care and Sanilac Transportation Corp. He is also the mayor pro-tem of Brown City.

Kuhl faces challenge from Millerwise in District 1

Veteran Huron County Commissioner Bruce W. Kuhl faces a challenge in Tuesday's Primary Election from Gerald Millerwise for the District 1 post, which represents Brookfield, Fairhaven, Sebawaing and McKinley townships.

Both candidates are Republicans and Sebawaing residents.

Kuhl, 53, is seeking his sixth, 2-year term as a commissioner.

"I enjoy the job; it's challenging. My best qualifications would be the experience I've gained over the past 10 years," Kuhl remarked. "Experience in this business means a lot."

A cash crop farmer, Kuhl pointed to his involvement in the Association of Counties organizations as important experience. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Michigan association, and one of 2 Michigan county board members on the National Association of Counties.

"I have a lot of input for the constituents in my area and the people in Huron County," he said.

Kuhl said he feels his work in writing grants for recreational projects in the county is among his greatest accomplishments in office. He added, "I've received almost $1 million in grants. I've brought that money back into the county."

Kuhl and his wife, Marian, have 4 grown children. Kuhl's opponent recently retired from Sebawaing Tool and Engineering Co., where he was employed for the past 39 years.

Millerwise, 63, said concern for and interest in local government, and the urging of a number of persons prompted him to challenge

Kuhl. "There seems to be a very bad split on the commission in Bad Axe and I would like to do some mending if I could," he remarked, adding, "There seems to be less and less cooperation" on the board.

Gerald Millerwise

"We're quite a ways from the county seat. To receive our fair share you've got to have cooperation," Millerwise continued.

Although he has no experience as a commissioner, Millerwise says his involvement in local government and other areas qualifies him to serve on the county board.

He has served as a trustee for 11 years on the Sebawaing Village Council, and has served as an elder and president of the Immanuel Lutheran Church, Sebawaing.

"I've always been interested in local government. This is just the next step beyond the level of village government," he commented. "I'm at the point where I have the time" to give the office my full attention.

Millerwise and his wife, Kathryn, have 4 grown children.

Explorers attend conference

Eleven members of the Tuscola County Explorers Post 2560 attended the National Law Enforcement Explorers conference held at Boston University July 11-16.

Post 2560 was sponsored by the Tuscola County Sheriff Department.

The explorers attended seminars dealing with topics such as street survival, self defense techniques, police officer burnout, criminal psychological profiling, organized crime, VIP protection, and crime prevention. A seminar was also held on explorer leadership development.

Competitions were held in pistol shooting, crime scene search, victim-witness interviews, bomb scene search, and traffic stops.

Explorer posts from all over the United States and the Virgin Islands attended the conference and received instruction from local Boston police officers, state agencies such as the Maryland Highway Patrol, and Federal agencies such as the DEA and the FBI. Special guest speakers included the director of the FBI, William Sessions, and John Lawn, director of the Drug Enforcement Agency.

Explorers also held "Boston Tea Party II." An anti-drug rally was held at Government Center in Boston and over 4,000 explorers marched through the streets to Boston Harbor, where packages representing drugs were thrown into the water. Local and national media covered this event.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

So, convention week starts in Atlanta, and NBC on the TODAY show puts forth its No. 1 pundit, Bryant Gumbel.

One of the Democratic big-wigs foretells that the convention, then torn apart over Jesse Jackson, would, by closing night, heal its differences, close ranks and unite and go forward to save America.

Bryant puts on his Intense Look, producing deep wrinkles in his forehead. His eyes close, and he intones, "Thank God!"

Television journalism in its finest hour.

Next we are treated to Attacking the Issues. Five minutes is allotted to solve the drug problem.

Some professor from Princeton is interviewed. Asks Bryant, "Would you say that the drug problem that has risen in the past 8 years has been because of the lack of vision and courage and the lack of organization of President Reagan?"

Follows then a cutback to Dukakis promising to marshal the people of America and that he will supply courage and vision and organization, and presto! no drugs.

With that, I rinsed the bad taste out of my mouth with Cepacol, and called up ol' John Robson to go sailing and get out of range of television.

In 5 1/2 years, gold has gone from $400 to $450.

In that period you could have bought a zero-coupon government bond at around 9% and your $400 would have become $648.

Your commission on buying the government bond would have been a fourth that of buying gold. The investment would have been earning and compounding every day for the 5 1/2 years. You would have had no storage problem, and as little risk as there is in the investment world.

Instead of a return of 9% on the government bond, your appreciation on the gold bar would have been 2.16% compounded.

Investment Swindles: How They Work and How to Avoid Them.

That was the title of a pamphlet put out by the National Futures Association of Chicago.

The 20-page treatise featured 16 questions you can use to turn off an investment swindler.

For example:

1. Where did you get my name?

2. What risks are involved in the proposed investment?

3. Would you mind explaining your proposal to my attorney or banker?

4. What regulatory supervision is your firm subject to?

5. If disputes arise, how can they be settled?

You as the pigeon are also advised to call the police, the Better Business Bureau and the Securities Commission and the Financial Editor to check out the caller.

Now somebody in the public relation department got a week's pay for giving birth to that material, and the printer got $1 per copy for the product, and I've wasted 20 minutes reading the junk.

How much simpler and cheaper to cover the subject with a couple lines of type:

When a stranger calls you with a hot deal, hang up.

Evergreen Twp. post sought by area men

A race for township clerk, and one millage question will be decided in 2 area Sanilac County townships in Tuesday's Primary Election.

EVERGREEN

The retirement of long-time Clerk Otis Dorland opened up a race for that position in Evergreen Township. Republicans Arthur Severance and Fred Matthews are vying for the post.

his wife, Janet. The couple have 5 grown children.

Matthews, 55, also has experience as a school board member. The Decker resident and cash crop farmer is beginning his fifth year as a trustee on the Cass City Board of Education. He also has served for 9 years as financial secretary at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, where he and his family are members.

"I like being on the school board and being involved in things," Matthews remarked, adding, "I've followed the annual township meetings for years and years. It's an interesting challenge."

Matthews and his wife, Joan, have 3 children.

Dorland recently said he decided to retire after some 19 years in township government, including 18 years as clerk, when he heard someone else had been asked to run for the position.

"I decided it was time," Dorland commented, adding, "If a younger person wanted to do it, that was fine. I've been making decisions a long time."

Prior to his appointment as deputy clerk in 1969, Dorland served for 5 years as secretary of the Evergreen Township Unit School, now Evergreen Elementary School.

GREENLEAF

Greenleaf Township voters Tuesday will decide a millage renewal request of one mill for 4 years for road construction.

Township Supervisor Gerald Bock said the millage, which has been approved by voters and levied for "several years," is expected to raise $8,900 in the first year based on current state equalized valuation figures.

The money will be used in conjunction with an on-going road improvement program in the township, he said.

Youth camp plans to proceed, but issue not settled yet have violated township zoning since 1976. The camp, he said, was "grandfathered" into the township's original zoning ordinance as a non-conforming use in 1972 as a boy and girl summer camp.

He said the camp has since been used as a "rehabilitation" facility for troubled youths, and now a similar use on a year-round basis is being proposed.

Mayor said township and county officials recently visited the camp site, but declined to discuss specifics pending completion of the township's investigation.

CAMP TO OPEN

Pioneer officials, who paint a slightly different picture of last week's court proceedings, meanwhile, say Michigan's first "work and learn" camp should be ready to open by early September.

"We are extremely pleased with what happened," Samuel E. McCargo, who is representing Pioneer Work and Learn Center Inc., commented.

McCargo said it was township officials who acted prematurely by issuing 3 notices of zoning violation "without a determination of the facts."

"It was obviously a completely emotional response," McCargo said, adding that the zoning violation citations, which were lifted last week, were a major obstacle in Pioneer officials' application for a child's camp license.

All other permits have been obtained, and the state licensing is expected to be approved by mid-August, McCargo continued, adding that a staff will then be processed. "The children should be coming in by the first of September," he said.

McCargo said the court stipulated that Camp Kingston Hills, located 1 1/2 miles south of Kingston, is not to be used for anything other than camping programs. He said the work and learn camp is within the boundaries of that stipulation.

lacy" spread by township officials, McCargo stated.

"If they (youths) say to the court or Pioneer Work and Learn Center that they do not want to be there, they will leave" and the court will find another placement for them. "There is no lock and key."

The attorney said that although "work and learn" participants would be in the program for 6 months, that doesn't mean they will be at the camp site for 6 months. "It is expected that any child there will be off that site and possibly out of the state for at least 30 days," he said, adding activities such as canoeing, rafting and mountain climbing, which are an integral part of the program, would be conducted in other areas and states.

Still, McCargo acknowledged, opponents will probably continue their fight to prevent the camp from opening.

"Our people don't want a fight," he said, (but) I think the likelihood that the struggle is not over is a reality.

Comments by Mayor and Sykora seem to agree.

"If they proceed, they proceed at their peril," Sykora remarked.

DIFFERENCE?

McCargo asked if opponents' attitudes would be different if the youths coming to the camp were from more affluent areas of Detroit, for example. "Does it become something other than a camping program because the persons enjoying the program are from a highly affluent group?"

"This is not a detention facility. That is another fallacy" spread by township officials, McCargo stated.

The Cass City Retired Persons met July 14 at the village park for their annual picnic with 10 members present.

Sanilac voters to select from among 5 candidates

Tuscola County voters will decide Tuesday which of 2 Republicans and 2 Democrats will battle in November for the office of sheriff.

Incumbent Sheriff Paul P. Berry is being challenged by businessman and former Caro Police officer William "Bill" Montague for the Republican nomination, while veteran Tuscola Sheriff's

Paul P. Berry

Tom T. Kern

William Montague

Department officer Sgt. Tom T. Kern and longtime Akron-Fairgrove Schools bus driver Nettie Prokopanko will battle for the Democratic nomination.

Berry, 55, is finishing his eighth year as sheriff. The 33-year department veteran is a member of several law enforcement organizations, including the Michigan and National Sheriff's associations. He also is a member and past president of the Fraternal Order of Police.

"With my experience and the condition the county's in financially, I'd like another 4 years to continue programs and bring the county out of the financial straits it's in," Berry remarked, adding his experience includes valuable knowledge on obtaining federal and state grants.

Berry emphasized the importance of the special road patrol millage to be decided by voters Tuesday.

"That's going to make a big determination of what happens. We haven't seen a great impact (from the loss of the road patrol) because we haven't had a major disaster," the sheriff pointed out.

"The main thing is to get the patrol cars back on the road." If the millage is approved, Berry said a priority would be to get secondary road patrol funds flowing back into the county. Lost local funding resulted in the cancellation of secondary patrol money, which is used to patrol secondary roads.

"I think there's an advantage in continuing (this) administration," Berry continued. "We've been knowledgeable of what's going on and trying to correct" problems.

Berry, a lifelong county resident, resides with his wife, Ruth, in Almer Township. The couple have 3 grown sons.

Berry's Republican opponent says he believes he could improve on many areas of the department if elected.

"I think with my business experience and my law enforcement experience together, I can do a pretty good job for the people of Tuscola County," Montague, 51, remarked.

"I think I can straighten out the morale problems in the jail. I think that's a big problem," the Vassar resident said.

He agreed reinstatement of the road patrol is crucial, but added, "We're just going to have to learn to live in the budget." Montague said he would look into cutting areas such as the license bureau if voters reject Tuesday's millage.

Other goals cited by the candidate are improving response time if the road patrol is reinstated, and support of a drug task force. He added, "I'm willing to work with all departments."

Montague, who served with the Caro Police Department for 7 years, is now a district court officer as well as owner of several businesses in the county. He and his wife, Shirley, have 7 grown children.

Kern, 44, is a 17-year vet of the sheriff's department, including 13 years as a command officer.

He holds an associate degree in police administration from Delta College and bachelor of arts degree from Saginaw Valley State University. A charter member of the Fraternal Order of Police in Tuscola County, Kern supervises the county's breathalyzer program and heads the department's LEIN (Law Enforcement Information Network) computer operation.

"I have the administrative (and) education background that would lead me to be a better manager of a $1 million-plus budget, and I have a sincere desire to make some changes that would make us more responsive to the citizens' needs," Kern said.

Keeping closer contact with the community is one change the candidate said he would initiate. "I feel the accountability has not been there over the past few years," he added.

Kern said failure of the road patrol millage would result in some strong reorganization of the department if he were elected to the post. He noted, however, that he hopes residents approve the measure.

"The lull (in crime) we've had this summer is just a temporary lull," he said. "Without the road patrol, the department is a heck of a lot easier to run, but our citizens are really missing" the boat if they let the road patrol go.

Drug trafficking enforcement is another important issue for Kern. "I have a desire to work with all the other departments—the local departments and the state police—because I know they have a lot more resources to work with," he said.

Kern and his wife, June, reside in Reese. They have 3 children.

Prokopanko, 45, a lifelong county resident and the first woman to seek the sheriff's post, could not be reached for comment.

2 Republicans seek office in Huron

Two Republicans will battle in Tuesday's Primary Election for the right to run for the post of Huron County Sheriff in November.

The race opened up in late May when veteran Sheriff Richard V. Stokan announced he would not seek a fifth term.

Seeking the Republican nomination for his post Tuesday are Undersheriff Robert F. Finkbeiner of Sebawaing and former Emergency Services Director Mike Gage. The winner will face Democrat John Stuckney, Port Hope, in the General Election.

Finkbeiner, 48, is a veteran member of the sheriff's department. Over the past 16 years he has worked his way up from road officer to undersheriff, a post he's held for the past 1 1/2 years. He also served as a police officer and later chief of the Sebawaing Police Department.

"The reason I sought this job is this has been my professional career. It's what I've done for most of my career," Finkbeiner remarked. "I feel as though I've dedicated my working life to serving the people."

"Experience is the reason I'm qualified," he continued. "I know I can improve service to the people. I've worked on the smaller village police department. I know what cooperation between the sheriff's department and local departments is all about."

Finkbeiner cited a drug task force as one of his priorities. If the county couldn't create its own force, he said he would support a multi-county effort.

Maintaining existing safety education programs, and fighting sexual misconduct against children are other priorities, the candidate pointed out.

If elected, Finkbeiner said

The biggest election decision for Sanilac County voters lies in the race between the 3 Republicans and 2 Democrats seeking the office of county sheriff.

Republican incumbent John G. Osborn strives to serve his 2nd term as sheriff. Before his 4-year term, Osborn served the county as a deputy sheriff for 10 years.

"I'm looking forward to another 4 years," Osborn said, pointing out what he feels are the 4 major accomplishments he has carried out since 1984.

Osborn said that in the last 4 years, officer overtime has been cut and the sheriff's marine division improved and increased from 6 to 20 men. Also, Osborn remarked that he rewrote a standard form clarifying the chain of command. He also claims encouraging and increasing the on-going education program for officers in the department 100 percent.

Osborn is a Croswell-Lexington High School graduate and a St. Clair County Community College associate's degree holder in law enforcement.

Republican opponent Virgil Strickler, Sandusky police chief, has held his position for 12 years. He began his career with the Sandusky police force in 1971.

A member of civic organizations and the Sandusky Optimist Club, Strickler states that a vote for him "means a renewed commitment to professionalism in the sheriff's department. He also emphasizes that his administration, if elected, will work with all local police agencies and citizens' groups.

Another Republican, Douglas Brock, Marlette, promises "to return the sheriff's department back to a professional system."

"There's a more efficient way the jail and department can be run," Brock said. Brock points to the county Drug Task Force. "The way it's been run is a waste," he said, adding that if elected he would work to change the task force back to "the way it was meant to be."

"The task force should be a fund for police to use as buy money and lead to busts."

Monies gained, Brock said, should be put back into the fund and excess used to educate children about drugs. "They don't need another agency and that's what they did."

Brock, a Yale High School graduate, studied at St. Clair County Community College and McComb Community College. He worked as a police officer in Port Austin and as police chief in Caseville. Currently, he owns and runs a plastic factory in Marlette.

On the Democratic side, William Lakatos, professor of criminal justice at St. Clair County Community College, remarked that "I feel that members of the county are ready to elect their first professionally trained sheriff."

Lakatos, a newly declared Democrat, stated that he "believes a sheriff should be highly experienced and educated." He claims 24 years of experience in police work.

A professor of criminal justice for 15 years, Lakatos began his education at Deckerville High School. He received an associate's degree in criminal justice from St. Clair County Community College and a bachelor's degree in police administration from Wayne State University. In 1974, Lakatos obtained a master's in education and community development from Wayne State.

He became a police officer in 1964 in Detroit and he served for 6 years as a deputy sheriff in Sanilac County.

If elected, Lakatos said he would recommend a "re-definition of the entire drug unit. Every board member should be taken off," he noted.

Lakatos stated that the present board should exist strictly as advisors and the actual board should consist of representatives from the community, including farmers, businessmen, the clergy, and teenagers.

Another issue Lakatos said should be tackled is rape in the county. He approximated about 52 rapes are committed in the county a year. Lakatos said that under his authority he would hire a female officer to talk to victims about rapes involving family members and be "pro-active instead of reactive."

Also vying for Democratic sheriff, Frederick Graff, Sandusky construction worker and business owner, feels his experience with business administration qualifies him for the job.

"The job of sheriff is more of a business administration job than a sheriff's job," he remarked. "I've worked 10 years in business and it's time for me to move forward."

Graff said he would like to see more unity among the sheriff's department. He also noted that if elected, he would work to involve the sheriff's department with other local and state agencies toward wiping out drugs in Sanilac County.

He also stated that the issue of building a new jail should be "looked into," and that bids from local companies should be considered top priority.

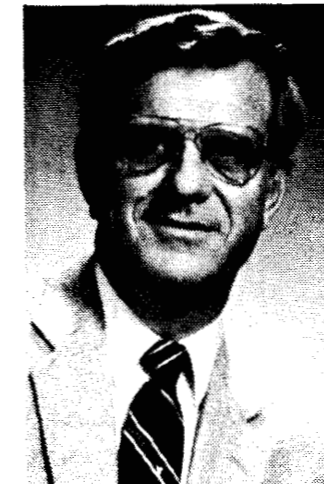

Graff is a Deckerville High School graduate and a card carrying member of the Teamsters Union, United Auto Workers, and United Tunnel Workers Union. He studied business and administration for some 6 months at St. Clair County Community College.

Your neighbor says

Summer's fun best time of year

Though the "hot dry summer" has caused a lot of discomforts throughout Cass City and the country, Your Neighbor Jeanne Anderson remembers the cold winter and is thankful for the "fun" things summer has to offer.

"Because it's easier to get around, and I go out more in the summer," Anderson finds the 2nd season to be her favorite of the 4.

Anderson, Phillips Rd., Deford, said that this late into July she and her 2 children have already taken advantage of some of the summer's seasonal activities.

During the school year her 13-year-old daughter and 6-year-old son spend many of their days in school. Now the Anderson children have the time to join mom in a trip to the beach. Anderson, 28, said the family has made a few trips to Sleeper State Park beach, Caseville, this year. Another purely summertime event Anderson takes advantage of when she can is traveling to the Owendale and Ubyly race tracks.

Because of last year's hot summer, Anderson noted that she thought better of starting a garden this year. "And it's a good thing too," she added.

But regardless of the heat and the dryness, Anderson pointed out that the summer is an all-around better season for enjoyment.

She remarked, "I love canoeing. She classified the sport as one of her favorite things to do in the hot months. "I'd like to go by the end of August, she said, adding, "I've planned to but I don't know if it'll work out."

Anyway, if the canoeing falls through, there's always a party to be found come summer-time-- many more than in the winter. "I party a lot more in the summer," she said.

For all of the activities made available or made easier by summer, Anderson reiterated, "Summer's my favorite season."

HEALTH TIPS

Understanding anxiety and depression disorders

When physicians see a patient with symptoms of both anxiety and depression, they must ask themselves a question as old as humankind: Which came first?

When talking about the chicken and its eggs, determining which came first doesn't make much difference. But in treating coexisting anxiety and depression, major clinical decisions could hinge on answering the question correctly.

More than 100 million people worldwide currently suffer from depression, and anxiety disorders may be even more prevalent. But doctors, especially primary care physicians, often have a difficult time distinguishing between the two.

However, treatments for the 2 diseases vary, particularly in the elderly. Mistreatment can have serious consequences.

Anxiety: More Than Just "on Edge"

Anxiety and depression are the most common psychiatric words and have probably helped fuel misunderstanding about how devastating these disorders can be.

For instance, simply being nervous before a test or presentation is not clinical anxiety. Instead, sufferers from one of the most common forms of anxiety, generalized anxiety disorder, must exhibit several symptoms at once before a clinical diagnosis is made.

Generalized anxiety disorder is characterized by unrealistic or excessive worry about 2 or more life circumstances -- for example, worry about possible harm to one's child (who is in no danger) and personal finances (needlessly) -- for 6 months or longer.

Physical symptoms can include trembling, restlessness, shortness of breath, heart palpitations, sweating or cold hands, dizziness, dry mouth, nausea, hot flashes or chills, and frequent urination. Sufferers also experience difficulty concentrating, trouble falling or staying asleep and irritability.

Other forms of anxiety are panic disorders (with and without agoraphobia), obsessive-compulsive disorder, post-traumatic stress disorder and the phobias.

Not Just the "Blues"

Similarly, sufferers of depression are not just "feeling down." Clinical depression, as described in the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (Third Edition -- Revised), can encompass feelings of hopelessness so powerful that its sufferers gain little or no pleasure from any activity. Depression is also marked by despondent mood most of the day, nearly every day for at least 2 weeks, indicated by either subjective accounts or observation by others.

Depression can also include such symptoms as significant weight loss or gain; almost daily insomnia or its opposite, hypersomnia; fatigue; diminished ability to think or concentrate; indecisiveness; feelings of worthlessness, and recurrent thoughts of death, including notions of committing suicide or actual suicide attempts.

In order for a doctor to diagnose a major depressive episode, the patient must exhibit depressed mood accompanied by at least 5 other symptoms within the same 2-week period.

Doctors will rule out a psychiatric diagnosis of depression in cases where an organic cause can be found, or if the depressed mood is a normal reaction to the death of a loved one or other devastating experience.

Mixed and Masked Depression

In many cases, anxiety and depression coexist, making a correct diagnosis difficult. Almost every patient with clinically recognizable depression will show some form of anxiety; however, not all anxious patients are depressed.

Physicians must determine which disorder is primary and which is secondary. Incorrect diagnosis is likely to prolong the patient's suffering and increase the risk of incapacitation and even suicide because of the persistence of the ineffectually treated illness.

To further complicate the diagnostic process, individuals with anxiety and depression will have many physical symptoms, which often mask the fact that their illness is primarily psychological. This so-called masked depression is most commonly encountered by nonpsychiatric physicians.

In a study of 500 depressed patients, most had originally sought out nonpsychiatric physicians for treatment of physical symptoms -- some so severe that they required hospitalization.

Before depression was finally diagnosed, the patients saw more than 1,500 nonpsychiatric physicians and underwent some 4,000 diagnostic tests, including repeated electrocardiograms, chest X-rays and gastrointestinal exams.

In elderly patients, masked depression may be misdiagnosed as senile dementia. Often, the only way for a doctor to be sure of the diagnosis is to see if the elderly patient responds to antidepressant therapy.

Many depressed people are also unlikely to admit their depression. Instead, 3 out of 4 will complain of being anxious and irritable, leading doctors to misdiagnose anxiety as the primary disorder.

Anxiety is no easier for the physician to discern. In another study, 95 patients being seen for the first time by a primary care physician were first screened for mental illness. While about half had test scores showing minimal to severe anxiety, only about 9 percent were subsequently diagnosed and treated for anxiety by the nonpsychiatric physician.

To further complicate matters, psychiatrists disagree over whether depression and anxiety, and particularly mixed depression-anxiety, are distinct illnesses.

There are 3 schools of thought. One group believes that anxiety and depression are part of the same disorder. Another holds that anxiety and depression are distinct from each other, and the third believes mixed anxiety and depression is of itself a third illness, different from either anxiety alone or primary depression.

Because the most effective treatments depend on specific diagnoses, particularly in the elderly. When correct diagnosis is teamed with proper treatment -- including psychotherapy, behavioral therapy and prescription medicines -- recovery is possible.

A variety of effective anti-anxiety and antidepressive medications are currently available. For patients with primary depression, antidepressants are usually the first step in the treatment process. In cases of primary anxiety, a class of drugs called anxiolytics are used, frequently in conjunction with psychotherapy and sometimes with behavioral therapy. For coexisting symptoms, patients may receive an anxiolytic which specifically treats anxiety mixed with depression.

Yet, while sufferers of these disorders are being helped now more than ever, further studies are needed. Researchers continue to look for the underlying causes of anxiety and depression, including possible biological markers, in the hope that someday the devastating effects of these mental disorders can be minimized even further.

Nancy Moriarty named new FOC

Snover resident and former acting Friend of the Court Nancy Moriarty was appointed to the permanent position last week to complete the term of Edwin H. Comber, who resigned in January.

Moriarty was named to the position "after an excellent performance as acting Friend of the Court," Circuit Court Judge Patrick R. Joslyn said last week.

"I'm very pleased. I was hoping, but it was still a surprise," Moriarty said of the appointment last week. She added that her goals include increasing collections and increasing revenue to the county.

Nancy Moriarty

Moriarty was named acting Friend of the Court Feb. 8. She joined the Tuscola County office as a Deputy Friend of the Court in September 1987 after serving 11 years as office manager and mediator for the Sanilac County Friend of the Court. She and her husband, Darwin, a cash crop farmer, have 5 children, Susan, 17, Linda, 19, Evans, 21, Alan, 23, and Denise, 24.

Elkland Township firemen respond to 2 grass fires

Elkland Township firemen, who responded to 2 grass/brush fires Thursday, are reminding area residents that a ban on all outside burning remains in effect locally.

Fire fighters responded to a grass fire north of Cass City, near Phillan Road about 1/4 mile south of Bay City-Forestville Road, at about 3 p.m.

According to fireman Danny Gee, 2 to 3 acres were scorched. Elkland firemen, who were assisted by the Elmwood-Gagetown Fire Department and the Department of Natural Resources, spent about 2 hours at the scene.

Fire fighters were again called out when a small brush fire ignited near the corner of Seventh and Ul-can streets between 7 and 8 p.m. The cause of both blazes is unknown.

"It's still illegal to do any kind of burning whatsoever. You can't even smoke outside," Gee remarked, adding that no burning permits are being issued at this time. Violation of the burning ban is a misdemeanor, punishable by a $100 fine and/or 90 days in jail.

Puterbaughs host Ireland farmer

A Sanilac County family has been hosting a guest from Ireland who is in Michigan to study American farming practices.

Larry and Denise Puterbaugh of Snover are hosting Donald Kelleher of Cork, Ireland, July 6-27.

Kelleher will be taking ideas he gains from the Puterbaughs' dairy and cash farm back to his own farm.

"This program is a wonderful opportunity for both participants to learn about each other's farming methods and cultures," says Hal Hudson, Sanilac County 4-H youth agent.

Before arriving in Snover, Kelleher and 8 other young Irish farmers spent several days in Washington, D.C., learning about American agriculture and 2 days at Michigan State University in an orientation to Michigan agriculture.

Kelleher is a member of Macra na Feirme, a national organization dedicated to training young people for leadership in agriculture and rural development.

His trip is being sponsored by the National 4-H Council and the U.S. Information Agency.

Reed challenges Bond for prosecutor's post

Incumbent Tuscola County Prosecutor William D. Bond and Caro attorney James R. Reed will battle in Tuesday's Republican Primary for an office which has been run by 8 different attorneys over the past 20 years.

The winner is expected to run unopposed in the General Election for a 4-year term.

The candidates share a few things in common--both reside in Caro, both are married and have 3 sons, both are Michigan State University graduates and both agree on a basic definition of the prosecutor's role. However, the opponents are sharply divided on how the office of prosecutor is and should be operating, and the best man for the job.

"The role is to be able to take the information we are given and turn it into a successful criminal conviction," Bond, 33, remarked. "I'm the best qualified because I'm the only candidate running who has experience as a prosecutor."

"We've had 8 different attorneys who have run the prosecutor's office since 1968. It's about time to stop that trend."

Bond was appointed prosecutor in April 1986 and then was elected to the post after running unopposed in the 1986 General Election. He previously was an assistant prosecutor in Monroe County for 5 years, and in Antrim County for one year. He earned a bachelor of science degree from MSU in 1976 and his law degree from the University of Toledo in May 1979.

Citing experience in the district, probate, circuit and appellate courts, Bond said he has conducted extensive research and gained considerable knowledge on a variety of cases. His research has included writing opinions in 2 cases that made it to the state Supreme Court.

Reed, 41, says a lack of experience as prosecutor doesn't hinder his qualifications for the job.

"One of the best ways to learn how to do a job is to watch the other guy do it," he remarked. "I've been defending people for 10 years. I've seen a lot of cases prosecuted."

Reed, who earned a bachelor's degree in general business administration from MSU in 1968 and a law degree from the Detroit College of Law in December 1976, was admitted to the State Bar in May 1977.

He says he believes there are several problems in the current administration of the prosecutor's office which should be changed.

"Many of the police officers seem to be upset. At the same time many of the defense attorneys are upset. It's an indication there's something wrong if the detractors are from all sides," Reed said.

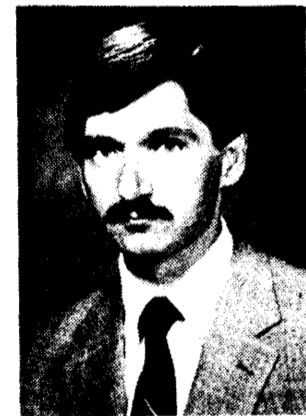

"Right now, as I understand it, all the decision making is being done by Bill. Some of the people in the office seem to have little discretion or authority," he continued, adding, "I'm saying there isn't any reason the prosecutor's office can't be run the same as a private practice. They all were admitted to the same Bar."

Reed also indicated he believes there is a lack of communication between the prosecutor's office and police, commissioners and others.

Bond dismissed Reed's charges, saying he has worked to improve the efficiency of his office and cooperation with law enforcement personnel.

Accessibility also has been emphasized, Bond said, adding phone calls from and visits by police officers, residents and the media are not ignored.

Bond said he has the final say on pleas involving cir-

Roughage

Hard to swallow: A sea lion's diet gives new meaning to the term roughage. The creatures regularly gobble up rocks from the ocean floor. The stomach of one sea lion reportedly contained more than 100 stones...some as big as golf balls. According to International Wildlife magazine, the big sea creatures go without eating for several months during the breeding season. The stones may fill their stomachs to relieve hunger pains.

Census field listing slated

Preliminary field activities on the 1990 Census will begin in August in Michigan. Fifty-seven counties and partial counties in the state will be involved in this preliminary field listing operation.

According to Dwight P. Dean, regional director of the Detroit office of the Census Bureau, this preliminary field listing is the first step in preparing a comprehensive list of mailing addresses in Michigan. Approximately 733 residents in the state will be hired to complete this address listing project.

The task involves listing the addresses of housing units in selected areas outside of larger cities. Each housing unit is listed on a master listing sheet and spotted on a corresponding map.

The goal of these listing operations is to obtain a complete list of addresses in the state. A census questionnaire will then be received by each of these addresses in March of 1990.

The Census Bureau's immediate task is to hire persons to conduct field listings. Census workers must pass a 30-minute test, have a car in good working order, be a U.S. citizen, and be 18 years old and over (or 16 and over with a high school diploma). All interested candidates should contact the county office of the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

New books at the library

CHILDREN OF THE ARBAT by Anatoli Rybakov (fiction). The story is set during the early 1930s, when times were bad in the Soviet Union and about to get worse in terms of deprivation of civil and even human rights. It centers on a group of people living near each other in a Moscow neighborhood, with particular focus on Sasha Pankratov, an involved Communist who nonetheless undergoes false arrest, secret-police interrogation, and exile to Siberia. Sasha's experiences are paradigmatic of the terrors Stalin practiced on his own people. Stalin is, in fact, one of the major characters in the novel.

ISOBELLE by Mary Lide (fiction). Isabelle, an orphaned English woman, is left for dead by the rest of her party following a shipwreck off the coast of North America. A band of Arabs scoops her up as a treasure to be bartered, and indeed, the plucky blond fetches a neat sum from the Berber tribe that buys her for their leader. During a grueling march across desert sands she is befriended by a lame camel boy and a mincing French doctor, good-hearted but dangerously tactless. The sensible and forthright Isabelle is forced by an irritating authorial device to act as though she's unaware that the handsome soldier she confides in is actually the ruthless sheik she fears.

SHAKEDOWN by Gerald Petievich (fiction). Federal Agent John Novak's prime witness against Vegas mobster Tony Parisi is car-bombed into tiny pieces. The only other witness is an ex-con and ex-cop, Eddie Sands, who is now working for Parisi, consorting with a beautiful confidence woman, and pulling phony police shakedowns. Ironically, one of Sands' victims takes out a contract on him and hires Parisi to organize the hit. Time is clearly running out for Novak to get Sands' testimony.
