DNR backs off proposed Cass River fish kill as residents protest

By Tom Montgomery
News Editor

A proposed Department of Natural Resources management plan for the Cass River will not include a recommendation for a total fish kill.

That's what DNR District 11 Fisheries Supervisor Bill Gruhn told 41 Cass River fisherman and other interested persons attending a 2-hour public meeting on the issue last Wednesday in Cass City.

A second public input meeting was to have been held Monday night in the Frankenmuth area.

"My opinion is that total treatment is not the solution to the Cass River," Gruhn remarked last week. "I think our solutions, especially in this area, are going to be habitat oriented."

Gruhn said his recommendation is based on 2 factors--the physical makeup of the Cass River system and public sentiment.

He explained that the entire river system, including all inlets to the system, would have to be poisoned out in order for a total fish kill to be effective.

"With all the ditches and all the channels, county drains and ponds involved," a total fish kill wouldn't be feasible, Gruhn explained, adding, "That doesn't mean we couldn't try it, but I suspect the results would be less than desirable. I think there are better ways to spend our money."

NO DISPUTE

"We're not disputing your facts," Cass City resident Kay Warner remarked during the meeting, adding residents agree there are a lot of non-game fish in the river. "We have kids who like to fish the suckers and carp. We also have areas where we get a lot of game fish. I'm saying we fish both segments of the water and we like it that way," Warner said.

Kingston resident Bob Walker indicated he resents the DNR trying to tell long-time area fishermen what kind of river they should have. "We grew up on the river. We spend a great deal of time on the water," he said. "It's not like Frankenmuth, but the fish are certainly there. My boys enjoy pulling suckers out of the river and going home and smoking them."

Curt Strickland, Cass City, pointed out extremely low water levels due to recent drought conditions and questioned the effectiveness of a fish kill followed by restocking. "I don't know what kind of fish you could plant in here that would survive," he said.

"I'm convinced it's (fish kill and restocking) not going to generate any more tourism or dollars."

Questions were also posed regarding how a fish kill would affect the bird populations supported by the river system, and how the chemical rotenone, used to poison fish, would affect insect and other river life.

One person, who noted he has spent several years surveying birds along the Cass River, said he recently sighted 7 species of birds of prey, including an osprey, along a one-mile stretch of the river.

Such birds depend on fish in the river, while others, including wood ducks, depend on the river's insects for food during their life cycle, he said, adding, "How can you knock out 20-pound carp without hurting the insect population?"

SUCCESSFUL

Despite Gruhn's decision not to recommend a fish kill, fisheries habitat biologist Don Nelson earlier in the meeting told residents he believes that method would be successful and that restocked fish would "survive and do well."

"You will suffer the fishery for those first few years, but you will have better fishing," he said, adding it would take about 4 years for planted fish to reach legal size.

Nelson presented an analysis of surveys of fish populations in the river conducted in 1985 and again this summer.

His report states that large game fish, such as smallmouth bass, northern pike and rock bass, as well as large numbers of young smallmouth and rock bass, are present in the river, particularly in the upper half of the mainstream.

The presence of these fish indicates significant natural reproduction is occurring. However, according to the report, large non-game species, such as carp and a variety of sucker species, dominate the river.

"On a weight basis these species comprise 84 percent of the total collection. Conversely, on a river-wide, pound-per-acre basis, sport fish comprise only 9 percent of the total fish population," the report states.

DEGRADED

Nelson said the water quality of the Cass River has been degraded over the years by a number of factors, including agricultural run-off, poor municipal waste water treatment, irrigation withdrawal and channel dredging and straightening.

Opposing such activities is one alternative to a fish kill, according to Nelson, who said other options are developing increased access so that the existing fish population is more available to the public, stocking hatchery reared game fish in all or portions of the river, seeking changes in regulations so that existing fish populations are either not harvested or more equitably shared among anglers, and improving and developing habitat and cover within the river.

Cass City resident David Dunn, a leading opponent to the fish kill proposal, suggested fishermen could improve fishing by regulating their catches.

"It's something we as sportsman have to look at--limiting our catch as opposed to catching our limit," he said, adding that

Fourth suspect

Zimmerman faces charges in robbery

A fourth suspect has been arrested in connection with the Feb. 28 armed robbery of a Cass City couple in their upstairs apartment.

Allen Zimmerman, 24, 7697 Huron Line Rd., Gagetown, was arrested near his home July 26 on suspicion of breaking and entering an occupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny, and armed robbery, Tuscola County Sheriff's Department Detective Larry Walker said.

Zimmerman, who was arraigned the same day on those charges, is being held in lieu of $50,000 bond. A preliminary examination has been scheduled for 8:30 a.m. Friday.

County Prosecutor William Bond said Zimmerman is charged with aiding and abetting in the robbery of Larry and Karen Wilding, 6359 Pine St., who were held at gun point by 2 men who broke into their upstairs apartment.

Police believe Detroit residents Lonnie Jordan, 20, and Fernando Vega, 21, broke into the Wilding home in search of drugs and money, while a third suspect, Anthony E. Nerkowski Jr., 23, of Dearborn, waited outside the apartment in a car. Zimmerman also is believed to have been waiting in the vehicle, although he was not with the other 3 suspects when state police troopers apprehended the trio after a brief car chase on M-24 near Caro.

Vega, Jordan, Nerkowski and Zimmerman all face charges of breaking and entering and armed robbery, while Vega and Jordan also were charged with possession of a firearm in the commission of a felony. Nerkowski also faces charges of breaking and entering and larceny in a building in connection with the Feb. 28 break-in of the Joseph D. Rocheleau residence in Gagetown.

One of the defendants, Vega, recently pleaded guilty to armed robbery in Tuscola County Circuit Court. He also entered a guilty plea in U.S. District Court, Bay City, to a charge of use of a firearm in a drug trafficking crime.

Cocaine possession

Owendale man faces charges

A 35-year-old Owendale man was arraigned in Tuscola County District Court Friday on a charge of possession of cocaine less than 25 grams.

Court records state Andrew F. Murawski, 3717 Notter Rd., is charged with possessing the substance July 5 in Cass City. He was arrested by Cass City Police Thursday.

A preliminary examination was scheduled for 8:30 a.m. Friday. Bond was set at $20,000.

If convicted, Murawski could face a maximum sentence of 4 years imprisonment and/or a $25,000 fine.

Also facing preliminary exams Friday are a father and son who were arrested following an alleged scuffle with a state police trooper July 23 in Fremont Township.

According to court records, Robert W. DeCoe, 44, 146 Brown Rd., Mayville, is charged with resisting and obstructing Trooper Oren Johnson while the officer was investigating an incident of illegal possession of fireworks. Robert W. DeCoe Jr., 24, of Mt. Morris, meanwhile, is charged with resisting and obstructing Johnson while the officer was transporting an individual arrested for illegal possession of fireworks, and damaging a patrol car window.

Bond for each man was set at $5,000. The elder DeCoe, if convicted, faces a maximum penalty of 2 years imprisonment or a $1,000 fine, while the younger DeCoe could face a penalty of up to 4 year imprisonment and/or a $2,000 fine if convicted.

Soap powder in packages was the result of one man's decision to package the shavings from soap manufacturers instead of remelting them. This was about 1845 and made an immediate hit with laundries and hotels.

A couple of months ago, our neighbor reported seeing a possum eating out of the cat's dish by our back door.

A few nights later, we came home and discovered the culprit strolling nonchalantly across the back yard. Those things are so ugly, only another possum could tolerate one.

Fearless Stan captured the animal and released it in an isolated spot in the country.

An interesting incident, since we live but a block from the center of town, but not really too noteworthy.

More recently, however, Stan caught a glimpse of a smaller version of the first possum scampering under the back porch.

We later discovered that the little rip had access to, and was taking full advantage of, all the comforts of home, including the cat's food and litter box, on the enclosed back porch. He may have slept in her quilted bed for all we know.

Well, we cut off his entrance and later caught him and awarded him a free trip to the country, too.

To make a long story short, we have thus far caught, transported and released 5 little possums and 2 adults, one at a time.

Either we're dealing with a tribe or those who've visited are recommending our 5-star lodging accommodations throughout possumdom.

Taking those little critters out of town, one by one, is becoming a bit tedious. Does anybody have a good recipe for possum stew? ++++++

"If It Fitz..."

The Great Emptier

By Jim Fitzgerald

I was so surprised and happy to see Tricia I kissed her before she could remove the pacifier from her mouth. A wise guy might call that safe sex. I don't know what Ann Landers would call it. I'll ask her.

Dear Ann Landers: Last Sunday, my wife and I took our time returning home from church. We stopped at a restaurant for breakfast, and went shopping. No hurry. There was no one waiting for us at home.

We live alone. Our plan was to spend the afternoon with the newspapers and TV baseball. We'd eat my wife's super special Sunday dinner -- grilled cheese sandwiches -- and sit the night away. Quiet and restful.

ENTER THE GREAT EMTIER

But, Ann, when I opened our apartment door, there in the hallway stood The Great Emptier, which is what we call our 2-year-old granddaughter, Tricia. That's because Tricia's only mission in life is to empty containers -- boxes, cans, bottles, purses, drawers, cupboards, tubes, baskets, whatever, it doesn't matter.

Tricia doesn't care what's inside the containers; she doesn't want to play with what's inside, or eat it, or wear it. She simply wants to dump it and then move on to the next container. Tricia can completely trash a 6-room, 2 1/2-bath apartment in only 10 minutes.

Tricia wasn't supposed to be in our home that Sunday. Neither was Emily, her 6-year-old sister, but there she was, too, ready to be hugged as soon as I was through with Tricia. It is handy to entertain the 2 of them together, because the best way to get Tricia to stop emptying the world is to do something calm with Emily, such as read her a book.

Tricia wants to do whatever Emily is doing, and have whatever Emily has. Tricia tries to accomplish this goal by gently insinuating herself into Emily's territory, attacking from all directions and screaming loud enough to awaken people in foreign countries. Emily responds in kind.

The result of this sweet sibling interaction resembles a skirmish between crazed warring neighborhood gangs. But that's not important. The important thing is that while skirmishing, The Great Emptier is not emptying.

What were these 2 doing in my home? They weren't invited or expected. They live 65 miles away. A quick investigation revealed that, at the last minute, their father, uncle and cousin decided to watch the Detroit Tigers play baseball a few blocks from my place, and they dropped the kids off on the way by, along with their mother and aunt.

BUT WE LIKE OUR GRANDCHILDREN

Which brings me to you, Ann Landers, and a coincidence. Later that same day in your column I read a list of "Bylaws for married children." One of the bylaws ordered the married children: "Don't drop in unexpectedly. If you can't telephone or haven't been invited, wait until you are."

Another bylaw: "Don't ask us (grandparents) to baby-sit. Stay at home with your kids like we did. Or hire a baby-sitter."

Geez, Ann, they sound more like "Bylaws for people you don't like." But you said they were a composite of opinions sent you by parents of married children from all over the world. Maybe that's what's wrong with the world.

It is a welcome surprise when my children and/or grandchildren drop in unexpectedly. I'd hate it if they thought they had to be invited. I enjoy baby-sitting.

For instance, I like taking grandchildren to the movies, which I do with great organization. Like the other afternoon when, laden down with popcorn and candy, we shuffled through the dark into a side row of the theater. As the 5 of us sat down, we discovered there were only 4 seats in the row.

It may be a hassle, but it's fun. Lord help me, I even enjoy watching The Great Emptier empty, and I don't mind picking up after her.

The question, Ann, is am I nuts, or am I right in feeling terribly sorry for your readers who sent in those bylaws? -- Wondering in Detroit

State police reports

Area residents involved in several minor mishaps

Troopers at the state police post in Caro reported several minor vehicle mishaps involving area residents over the past week.

A Kingston youth sought his own treatment for injuries sustained in a 2-vehicle crash on Rossman Road in Kingston Township July 26.

Reports indicate Steven L. Lipe, 15, 3275 River St., Kingston, was injured when the off-road recreational vehicle he was driving ran a stop sign at the Cemetery Road intersection and was struck by a westbound vehicle driven by Mary R. Gyomory, 2711 White Creek Rd., Kingston.

Lipe's vehicle sustained moderate damage in the 12:30 p.m. crash. Gyomory's vehicle sustained slight damage.

A northwest bound vehicle driven by Ruth J. Sharkey, Mayville, sustained moderate damage Saturday when it was struck in the rear by another vehicle, driven by Gagetown resident Adam W. Harp, 6959 Walsh Rd., on M-24 near Mertz Road in Fremont Township.

Troopers said Sharkey's vehicle had slowed behind another vehicle when the 11:40 a.m. crash occurred.

Harp was cited for violating the basic speed law.

Also Saturday, A Cass City area resident escaped injury when the vehicle he was driving in Fairgrove Township left the roadway, entered a ditch and rolled over.

Reports state Bob M. Woodward, 16, 6687 Severance Rd., was northbound on Sheridan Road south of Fairgrove Road at about 4:15 p.m. when his vehicle ran off the edge of the roadway.

Woodward, whose vehicle sustained light damage, was cited for improper lane use.

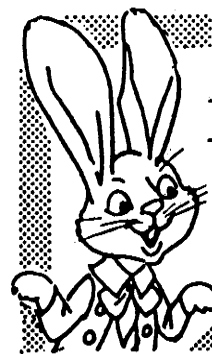

A 2-vehicle mishap on Vulcan Street north of Sixth Street in Cass City was reported July 26.

Reports state a vehicle driven by Joseph A. Gonzales, 2370 Tin Bill Rd., Caro, was backing out of a parking space onto Vulcan Street at 6:55 a.m. when it struck a northbound vehicle driven by Susan A. Wynn, 6407 Seventh St., Cass City.

Gonzales, whose vehicle sustained slight damage, was cited for failure to yield. Wynn's vehicle sustained light to moderate damage.

Gregory P. Darr, 6221 Cedar Drive, Cass City, reported he was involved in a car-deer accident on M-81 in Elkland Township Friday.

Darr stated he was westbound on M-81 east of Crawford Road at about 6:15 p.m. when a deer bolted into his path.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire
(And anyone else he can get to help.)

Another in the long list of stories about the Walbro success is due to be published in the Automotive News. It will be interesting to see if the author can come up with a new angle.

I became aware of the impending article when I received a call from the reporter doing the story seeking background information about Walbro and its effect on the community.

The interview was of more than usual interest because it concerned Walbro and because the reporter was Ed Fitzgerald, son of Jim Fitzgerald, who writes for the Free Press, is reprinted once a week in the Chronicle and is a long-time friend.

Why us? Received a note from the Idaho State Library asking how it can locate issues of the Chronicle August, 1918, through January, 1919. The library wants them on microfilm.

It's puzzling to me that a library in Boise, Idaho, would have our name and request copies 70 years old. What's even more puzzling is why they wanted it at all.

For the first time in over a year, a walk took us down the former railroad tracks on the way for a stroll around the gravel pits southwest of town. We should appreciate what we have. On the way we saw 2 deer, a rabbit and a turtle.

During the entire walk not one car was encountered from the time we left until we got back. It's a shame that suggestions for converting the rail right-of-way to a hiking-bicycle trail never came to anything. It is a delightful, easy walk.

True fish story. Rick Tuckey went fishing recently and came back with a tagged fish. He measured the fish and to help research along he mailed the tag to the conservation department.

He received a card back from the DNR stating that the fish when released was about 2 inches longer than it was when caught.

It doesn't seem right with the election on Tuesday not to stay up all night to bring you the results the next day. There was serious debate with the staff about coming out a day late (Wednesday) to bring you the election results while they were hot, but at the final moment it was decided to stay with our regular publication date.

This election is the first to occur since publication day was moved up a day. We've found plenty to be happy about with the Tuesday printing, but like anything else, there are drawbacks, and this is one of the bigger ones.

(Recorded at Cass City wastewater treatment plant.)

There's no jealousy, just a sense of awe when I use any of the modern gadgets, including the computer that this is written on, that are fast becoming commonplace in business and society.

How these things are constructed are so far from my level of ability that they are on another level that doesn't concern me. Most of us don't give more than a passing thought to the zillions owned or controlled by the Ford family, for example, but if the guy across the street makes twice as much as I do, that's on a level that can be understood and perhaps envied.

All of this is a rather long-winded way of getting into the topic for today. It came to the front as I watched Dwight Loeding figuring out what was wrong with a press and giving me a running commentary while he fixed it.

Either he was sure that I understood what he was trying to tell me, or from long experience has given up trying. There's a little bend here that has to be straightened to take the play out of the roller here, he said, to make it work right. Sure.

That's the same feeling I get when the staff blithely spells some cockamamie word (like cockamamie) without even looking it up. Nothing to it. Sure.

What I do in cases like this is to console myself by thinking that in other activities that come our way in a weekly I might have the edge in natural ability. Regular readers might disagree, but it's not boasting to know that the writing portion of the job always came easy for me.

Having said that let me hasten to add that when it comes to writing I truly appreciate some of the writers that have a spark of genius. Guys like Frank Deford, whose word portraits of sports figures in Sports Illustrated are a source of wonder. Or Jim Fitzgerald, who writes for the Detroit Free Press and is reprinted once a week in many weeklies including the Chronicle.

Or a dozen others who have the spark that moves them above other professionals in the field.

Wouldn't it be great if all of us could be the very best at something? In fantasy time often the speculation is about how it would feel to be at the top, the very best there is. Astonish friends and foes alike.

Most of us don't need to worry about that. What we can do is console ourselves by comparing with others at our level.

Just as sure as there is someone out there who is better in whatever you pride yourself on doing, there's someone who hasn't had your success or demonstrated ability equal to yours.

Concentrate on whoever that is and feel better about yourself.

50,000 expected for Huron Fair

Tamara L. Shorna

Tamara Shorna is MSU grad

Former Cass City resident Tamara L. (Tibbitts) Shorna graduated from Michigan State University this month with a master of arts degree in curriculum construction and an endorsement in middle school education. Shorna, a 1981 Cass City High School graduate, earned a bachelor of arts degree in secondary education at Anderson University in 1985. She currently teaches seventh grade math and reading, and serves as the music specialist at Hope Middle School, Holt. Shorna, who was Cass City's "Junior Citizen of the Year" in 1981, resides in Lansing with her husband, Michael, a computer draftsman. She is the daughter of former Cass City residents Lewis and Geraldine Tibbitts of Sebewaing.

The 120th annual Huron Community Fair is set to run Sunday, Aug. 7 through Saturday, Aug. 13.

"The grass is cut real nice and the grounds are ready for the fair," remarked Budd Decker, fair director.

Decker said he expects some 50,000 people to pass through the gates and enjoy the 52 acres of events throughout the 7-day fair.

Day one of the annual event begins at 2 p.m. when the Indian Trails Rodeo starts its show. Also Sunday night the midway opens at 6 p.m.

The midway is expected to run every day of the fair beginning at noon, except Tuesday, Kids' Day, when the midway will open at 11 a.m. at reduced rates until 5 p.m.

Other highlights of the fair include the animal shows. At 9 a.m. Monday the 4-H horse show gets underway. Tuesday the swine show begins at 8:30 a.m. followed by the open horse show at 9:30 a.m. The beef and veal show is set for 1:30 p.m. and the sheep show for 7:30 p.m. The goat show kicks off Wednesday at 9 a.m. followed by the rabbit and poultry show at 9:30 and the dairy show at 10 a.m.

Another attraction at the fair expected to run 4 days is harness racing. Beginning Tuesday the daily races are slated to begin at 1:30 p.m.

Making its first appearance at the fair this year, Wednesday at 8 p.m. a one 1/2-hour show of "power trucking" of the '80's Monster Truck Madness will commence. Adults will be charged $6 and children over 5, $2.50 to view the monster truck car crushing. Also new this year, following the crowning of the Huron County Bean Queen in front of the grandstand Thursday at 8:30 p.m., the first fair cheerleaders contest will be held.

The contest is open to all high school cheerleading squads and admission to the event is free.

Another addition to the line-up is the horse show put on by the Huron County Sheriff's Posse. The event is slated for 9 a.m. Saturday. Other events returning for yet another year are the horse pull, 7:30 Monday, pickup pull, 7 p.m. Tuesday and tractor pull, 7 p.m. Friday. Tuesday's and Friday's grandstand events will cost adults a fee of $4 and children $2. The demolition derby will return again this year, Saturday at 5 p.m. In case of rain, the derby will be delayed one day. Admission to the derby will be $5 adults and $2.50 children.

Constituents losing to PACs

Constituents who elect legislators to represent their interests in state government are losing out to political action committees (PAC's) which are influencing Michigan's elected officials at an ever increasing rate, a report released recently by Common Cause in Michigan says.

The report is a culmination of PAC studies done by Common Cause since the 1978 election through the 1986 election.

The negative trends cited by the report include: PAC money tends to make legislative races less competitive because PACs contribute much more money to incumbents; elected officials are more accessible to PACs contributors than the average citizen, and PACs have their greatest influence after a general election when they are affecting the legislative decision-making process.

"The effect of influence may not be seen in something as obvious as a vote," the report says.

"It may not be seen in a small change in a bill. It may be seen in an attempt to influence a colleague. It may be seen in a cancelled committee meeting. The effects may be subtle, but they are there."

The study shows state legislators received 53 percent of their 1986 contributions from PACs, and there is a growing trend of PACs giving money to caucuses.

"Caucus funding provides a mechanism by which special interests can channel funds to legislative races without giving directly to legislators," the report noted.

PACs contributed $4.1 million to legislative candidates in 1986.

The average House PAC contribution was 58.19 percent, with Democratic candidates getting 71 percent of their funds ($1.6 million) from PACs and Republicans getting 29 percent ($659,574), while the average in the Senate was 47.71 percent, with Republicans getting 62 percent from PACs ($1.1 million) and Democrats 38 percent ($682,028).

The report noted a Senate study showing total PAC contributions to legislators and political parties in the 1985-86 election cycle was $9.7 million, or 77 percent more than the prior election, with business PAC contributions up 78 percent and labor PACs up 71 percent.

The "big three" organized labor groups -- United Auto Workers, Michigan AFL-CIO and the Michigan Education Association -- contributed more than $1.3 million to 1986 campaigns. Among the 16 PACs giving over $100,000, health related PACs spent over $550,000, attorneys over $230,000 and Michigan Beer and Wine Wholesalers over $135,000.

Smith joins staff

A Deford area couple's grandson has joined the Washington staff of Congressman Bob Traxler (D-Bay City) as a legislative assistant.

Traxler recently announced that Tobin L. Smith of Caro has joined his staff.

Smith, the son of Gordon and Ann Smith of Caro and the grandson of Clarence and Phyllis Cox, Deford, and the late Kenneth Churchill, earned a bachelor of general studies degree in May at the University of Michigan. Smith's studies emphasized political science, communications and social psychology.

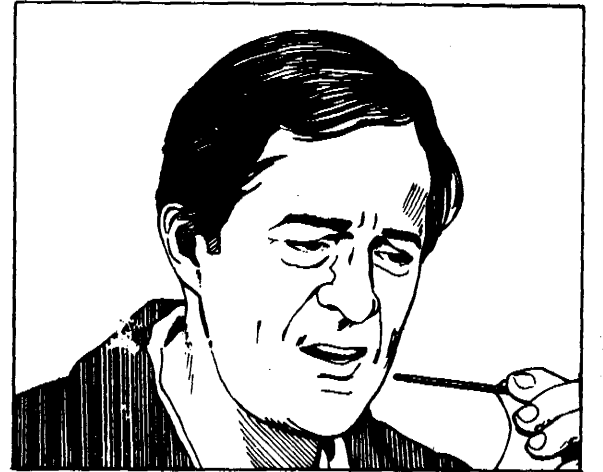

While pursuing his degree, Smith was a member of the Political Science Honorary Fraternity and the Honorary International Relations Society. He also served as editor-in-chief of the Michigan Journal of Political Science and was selected as a resident advisor during his junior and senior years.

Smith also worked as a research assistant for 3 years at the University of Michigan Hospital, where he did extensive research on the history of medicine. He also served as president of the Undergraduate Political Science Association for 2 years.

Novesta Township's finances are in "good" shape, according to an audit report reviewed by officials during a monthly township board meeting Monday night.

Township Clerk Nursie L. Kloc said the township's auditor, Ray Armstead Jr., Cass City, has indicated the township is in sound financial condition, according to state auditing procedures.

In other business during the hour-long session, board members noted that resurfacing of mile-long sections of Cemetery and Kelly roads has been completed, and met briefly with Caro attorney James R. Reed, a Republican candidate for the office of prosecutor in Tuscola County.

Also, Kloc indicated the board has received word that Cable Properties Inc., Columbiaville, is proceeding with plans to offer cable service to township residents.

Koepfgen Rd. work okayed

The Elkland Township Board approved resurfacing one mile of Koepfgen Road, from M-81 south, during a brief monthly meeting

Monday night.

Township Clerk Norma Wallace said the road work will cost the township $9,610.

Also Monday, the board decided to request bids for gravel to be used on township roads.

In Cass City

2 hurt in vehicle mishaps

Two persons were hurt in separate vehicle accidents in Cass City last week.

Cass City area resident Jeremy S. Brown, 17, 4150

Robinson Rd., sustained minor injuries Friday evening when the vehicle he was driving hit another vehicle on Main Street east of Leach Street.

A report filed at the Cass City Police Department states Brown was westbound at about 8:15 p.m. when his vehicle back-ended a stopped vehicle driven by Darlene L. Monroe, 3560 Phillips Rd., Cass City.

Brown, who sought his own treatment, was cited by police for failure to stop in an assured clear distance ahead.

Both vehicles sustained light damage.

A 54-year-old Bad Axe man was hurt July 26 in a 2-vehicle accident on Main Street east of Maple Street.

According to reports, Malcolm W. Brombrys was injured when his westbound vehicle was struck by a westbound 3-axle stake truck driven by Chad M. Sting, 14, of Unionville.

Brombrys was admitted and later released from Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Police said the collision occurred when Sting's vehicle attempted to move from the inside lane to the outside lane, which was occupied by Brombrys' vehicle.

Police, who ticketed Sting for improper lane use, said the youth has a restricted drivers license, but noted he violated the provisions of the license by having a passenger in the vehicle with him, and by driving outside a maximum 12-mile radius of his family's farming operation.

Sting's vehicle sustained light damage in the 11:20 a.m. accident. Brombrys' vehicle sustained moderate damage.

There's no documentary evidence that Louis XIV actually said "L'etat c'est moi" (The state, it is I). Tradition has it that Voltaire attributed it to Louis but actually made it up himself. Napoleon, however, did say it to the French Senate in 1814.

HEALTH TIPS

Interactions of food and drugs

The effects that foods and drugs have on each other can determine whether medications do their jobs and whether your body gets the nutrients it needs. It might not occur to you, for example, to avoid taking a tetracycline capsule with a glass of milk. Yet, the calcium in milk, cheese and yogurt impairs the body's absorption of tetracycline. On the other hand, taking some iron supplements with citrus fruits or juices that contain ascorbic acid (vitamin C) enhances absorption of the iron.

The extent of interaction between foods and drugs depends on the drug dosage and on the patient's age, size and medical condition. In general, the presence of food in the stomach and intestines can influence a drug's effectiveness by either speeding up or slowing down the time it takes the medicine to go through the gastrointestinal tract and be absorbed into the bloodstream. It is usually not wise, for example, to take drugs with soda pop or acidic fruit or vegetable juices. These beverages may result in excess acidity that can cause some drugs to dissolve quickly in the stomach, rather than in the intestines where they would be more readily absorbed.

Foods often contain natural and/or added chemicals that can react with drugs in ways that make them virtually useless or even dangerous. Licorice that is extracted from natural sources, for example, contains a substance that, when consumed regularly in excess amounts, may cause an elevation in blood pressure. Continued use of products containing natural licorice extract can aggravate high blood pressure or counteract the effect of medication for high blood pressure.

Perhaps the most hazardous food-drug interaction is the one between monoamine oxidase (MAO) inhibitors, which are drugs sometimes prescribed for depression, and such foods as aged cheese, Chianti wine and chicken livers. MAO inhibitors can react with a substance called tyramine in these foods and force the blood pressure to dangerously high levels, sometimes causing severe headaches, brain hemorrhage and, in extreme cases, death. (The list of foods with which MAO inhibitors may react is quite long; anyone taking these drugs should discuss the possibility of food-drug reactions with the prescribing physician.)

Just as some foods can affect the way drugs behave in the body, so can some drugs affect the way the body uses food. Drugs may hasten excretion of certain nutrients, hinder absorption of nutrients or interfere with the body's ability to convert nutrients into usable form. Anticonvulsant drugs that are used to control epilepsy can lead to deficiencies of vitamin D and folic acid, because they increase the turnover rate of these vitamins in the body. Mineral oil, an old-fashioned laxative still widely used by elderly people and in nursing homes, can hinder absorption of vitamin D, vitamin K and carotene, a substance the body converts to vitamin A.

There are a number of things that consumers can do to prevent food-drug interactions:

- Read the labels on over-the-counter remedies and the package inserts that come with prescription drugs;

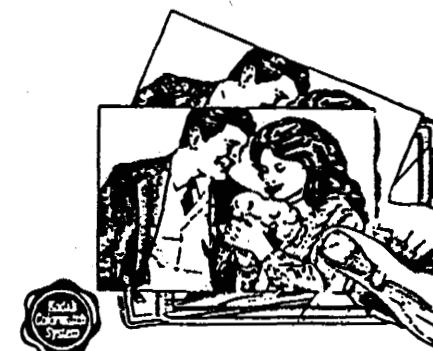

- Follow your doctor's advice on foods and beverages that should be avoided while you are taking medications;

- Don't be afraid to ask whether and how the drugs you take might interact with your favorite foods or beverages; be sure to tell your doctor about any symptoms that occur after you have eaten particular foods;

- Eat a nutritionally balanced diet from a wide variety of foods; if your overall nutritional status is good, use of a needed drug, even on a long-term basis, is less likely to cause depletion of vitamins and minerals.

For more information on foods and drugs that are likely to interact, write to "Food and Drug Interactions," Dept. 50, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Area coal mines topic at meet

The Watrousville-Caro Area Historical Society will meet at the museum in Watrousville Tuesday, Aug. 9, at 8 p.m.

The program will be on "Coal Mines of the Area." The public is invited and anyone who has pictures or newspaper clippings is urged to bring them to show. Refreshments will be served.

In ancient Japan, the ruler was believed too sacred to have his hair, beard or nails cut.

New books at the library

SPENCE + LILA by Bobbi Ann Mason (fiction). Over the years of a long, hardworking marriage, Spence and Lila Culpepper have farmed their land and raised 3 children who, even in the lean years "were always well-fed and wore good clothes." Now Lila is in the hospital in Puducah, facing first a mastectomy and then an operation on her carotid artery. She must come to terms with the possibility of her death, and Spence with the possibility of life without her. Both are bewildered by the medical jargon and the high-tech diagnostic machines. These are good people, the soul of America.

DEATH AT THE CUT by Douglas Kiker (mystery). Mac McFarland, a newcomer to Cape Cod, is happily settled in with his love, Kate. Mac's contemplating a plum assignment from the New York Times when he spots a car submerged in the bay and a girl buckled in the passenger seat. Identified later as Susan Jacobs, she's beyond rescue efforts, although Mac and his friend, police chief Noah Simmons, do their best. The case nags at reporter Mac, but he has to concentrate on the Times article as he goes to meet Republican presidential prospect Senator Adolphus Bridges, a guest with his wife and retinue at the swank summer home of Dody and Charles Monroe II. Wealthy Monroe is the blameless, popular senator's strong backer and so is Mac, until he sniffs the air, redolent with secret fears, and follows his reporter's nose to the national capital and other places where he checks on Susan's background. As a result, he's back home with questions for the political hopefuls, when gunmen kill a young suspect in the drowned girl's case and wound Kate, who's helping Noah counsel the boy.

MICHIGAN: OFF THE BEATEN PATH by Jim DuFresne (non-fiction). In this treasure trove of unusual travel ideas, DuFresne directs Michigan visitors to a gristmill-turned-dinner theater and to the American Museum of Magic, identifies a perfect sight for hang-gliding lessons, and points out the best spots for smelt dipping. Sources for complete maps are mentioned, and addresses and phone numbers for the unusual tourist spots are sometimes accompanied by directions. DuFresne finds such truly special places, whether they are historical sites, recreational areas, or simply out-of-the-way dining and lodging spots.

Club to fete top authors

The August meeting of the Thumb Area Writer's Club will feature an awards program to honor winners of the club's annual spring writing contest. It will be held Aug. 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the Sanilac County conference rooms, 37 Austin St., Sandusky. Three money prizes are to be awarded in each of 3 categories: fiction, non-fiction and poetry. Several honorable mention certificates will also be presented. This year's winners are from Caro, Lansing, Lexington, Port Hope and Port Huron. Their names and placements will be announced that evening.

The top award-winning story, article and poem will be read after the presentations. Refreshments will be served.

The contest entries were judged last month by Sherri Hoy, the head librarian at Indianfields Public Library; Mary Siebigteroth, a reporter/photographer with the Tuscola County Advertiser, and Jean Clark, a teacher in the English department at Caro High School.

The public is invited to attend this special awards night. The Sanilac County conference rooms building is located 2 blocks west and one-half block south of the M-46 and M-19 intersection in Sandusky.

Letter to the editor

Seek volunteers
for Red Cross

Dear Editor:

The Tuscola County Red Cross would like your readers to be aware that our group is available to the residents of Tuscola County.

The main purpose of the Red Cross is to provide services to individuals or families in emergency situations and to provide services to military families. We also have first aid and CPR instructors available to teach courses for individuals, groups or businesses.

There is a Red Cross blood program in nearly every community in Tuscola County as well as good participation in this program from several schools in our county.

We hope that as we rebuild our chapter we can develop many more programs but we need your help! We need volunteers! People who could be trained to help in case of disaster are especially needed as we work to develop a new disaster plan.

We would like to thank the people who have made contributions to help support us over this past year. Your donations are very important to us as we work to help others.

If you would like to join our group, could help in any way or would like more information about the Tuscola County Red Cross, call 843-6629.

Sincerely,

Pat Fox
Chairman
Tuscola County Red Cross

If stacked on top of one another, checks written annually in the U.S. would form a stack 3,156 miles high, equal to 17,326 Mt. Everests. Source PSEA.

Diabetes

Many people may be pleased to know about the progress being made against diabetes, a leading cause of death in the U.S. killing 300,000 people each year.

***

There are two types of diabetes: non-insulin dependent and insulin dependent. The first type can usually be controlled with diet and exercise.

***

Those with the second type need regular doses of insulin. A new kind of insulin, called Humulin, has been developed. It's a natural human insulin created through recombinant DNA.

Summertime
"survival"
kit aired

Though vacation time brings a lot of free time for the youngsters, there's a lot you can do to ensure that it's also worry-free, itch-free, and burn-free. One of the first things is to check your medicine cabinet to see if it's been stocked with a basic summertime survival kit. Here's what you should find:

- Major complaints of youngsters in summer are poison ivy and heat rash.
- Salt pills to help your body cope with excess perspiration and help prevent dehydration.
  - An all purpose creme, such as Lanacane, which gives instant relief from itches caused by insect bites or sunburn. It can be used by the whole family and works so fast you can feel it.
  - A bee sting kit for emergencies.
  - Sunscreen and a sunburn relief product such as Lanacane spray.
  - Sterile bandages, slips and tape.
  - An antibiotic creme which aids in healing and protects irritated skin.
- Add to this a good first aid book and a bit of common sense and your summertime survival skills may put you and your family on the trail towards a safe and happy summer.

COLORFUL BEDS OF FLOWERS like these will soon adorn Michigan's 79 freeway rest areas and welcome centers. The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is planting 124,000 pansies, begonias, petunias, marigolds and other annual flowers as part of its continuing highway beautification efforts.

3.4 million cases crowding courts

Nearly 3.4 million cases were filed in the state's trial courts during 1987, according to the annual report released by the State Court Administrative Office.

State Court Administrator V. Robert Payant reported that the circuit courts showed the greatest success rate with 10,000 fewer cases pending at the end of 1987 as compared to 1986.

Cases pending over 2 years in the circuit court system showed a decline of 8.8 percent.

Payant added the circuit courts, in their friend of the court operations, reported collections of $629 million in child and spousal support, an increase of $31 million over 1986.

The report further noted that probate courts saw increased filings in both probate and juvenile cases.

Since 1983, filings have increased annually with 53,984 new supervised decedent estate cases, of which 19.9 percent were conservatorships and the rest involved trusts adopted.

The vervain plant was believed by the ancient Romans to cure disease and reconcile enemies.

Commissioners okay agreement over labor dispute

Tuscola County commissioners gave their approval last week to a letter of agreement designed to resolve a dispute at the sheriff's department over vacation days.

The agreement is a "letter of understanding" between commissioners and Sheriff Paul Berry, and sheriff's department employees belonging to units one and two of the Fraternal Order of Police, State Lodge of Michigan Labor Council.

County Controller Michael Hoagland said the sheriff has been faced with a dilemma in terms of maintaining adequate staffing levels at the jail while at the same time providing vacation time for employees as provided in their contract.

The letter of understanding provides for payment, on the last pay period of 1988, for unused vacation days over and above employees' maximum allowable carry over of vacation days. The sheriff would have sole discretion to grant or deny applications for vacation leave during the term of the letter, which is slated to terminate Dec. 31.

The letter, which hadn't received approval from the union as of late last week, also calls for withdrawal of a class action grievance filed June 15 by members of Unit One of the FOP local.

In other business during the July 26 regular session, the board approved formation of a county committee which will provide local input to the Department of Natural Resources' Saginaw Bay Economic Development Project.

Tuscola County Economic Development Corp. Director James McLoskey said the project, funded by a grant, emphasizes economic development of the Saginaw Bay area. He said input on desirable development and ways to increase tourism is being sought from representatives of Tuscola, Huron, Saginaw, Bay, Arenac and possibly Midland counties.

The newly-formed local committee, called the Tuscola County EDC/Saginaw Bay Advisory Committee, will be chaired by McLoskey, with Commissioner Terry Houthoofd serving as the county board's representative.

Also last week, commissioners approved a resolution presented by Drain Commissioner Stanley C. Henry. The resolution calls for borrowing $112,218.14 at an interest rate of 6.83 percent per annum for work on Kaven Drain, located in Columbia and Akron townships. The loan is to be repaid over the next 3 years from a special assessment tax collection.

The board also approved a resolution designating county Emergency Services Director Dan Sargent as coordinator of federal surplus property received by the county, and authorized use of up to $1,000 for bathroom fixtures at Vanderbilt Park in Wisner Township.

Hoagland said participants of the prisoner work release program are working on several improvements to the park area, including brush removal and painting.

Outline drought assistance program

State Department of Agriculture Director Paul Kindinger said recently the state's agriculture industry has suffered some $6 million in damage due to this year's drought, and since long-range weather forecasts do not look promising for rain, the state should prepare for an agriculture disaster.

Currently, Michigan's drought situation is being monitored, but as yet, has not met federal disaster aid requirements.

However, federal officials meeting with Governor James Blanchard, Kindinger and farm representatives said because 30 states have been affected by the weather, they would have more clout in getting federal aid, once Michigan qualifies.

Michigan Farm Bureau President Jack Laurie presented a plan designed to ease the impact of the drought, including support for legislation that will extend the low interest loans for those already in the state's agriculture loan program.

Also suggested by Laurie was helping livestock producers locate new sources of roughage, such as beet pulp and potato by-products.

On the federal level, Laurie suggested excusing wheat and feedgrain producers from repayment of advance deficiency payments, including any drought legislation, the consideration of the special factors involved with losses of perennial crops such as apples, cherries, plums and asparagus, and making sure minor production losses in one enterprise do not disqualify a producer from being eligible for help in another area that experienced a major loss.

The Difference

"I feel so comfortable here. To grow and change - it had to be Jordan."

Rebecca Piontes

Rebecca enrolled at Jordan when she had to relocate, with her two children. As a busy parent struggling to reach career goals, she appreciates being part of a group of students who identify with her needs. As a legal secretarial student, she is the recipient of two scholarships which are awarded annually by two professional organizations. "Before coming to Jordan College, I would have never considered applying for the scholarships, even if I had maintained straight A's, because I did not have enough self-confidence. Not only did Jordan College give me the information to apply for these scholarships, they made it possible for me to be a winner."

The Difference In Your Future

Your neighbor says

I didn't plan to vote for any candidates

Yesterday's primary election narrowed down the candidates for the November election which will probably attract the most voters to the polls since the last presidential election year.

One voter who doesn't plan on trekking to the polls in November and avoided them yesterday is Your Neighbor, Greg Trischler.

Locally, he admits that he hasn't followed the area races and doesn't believe he is qualified to make a decision in them.

In general, Trischler said he doesn't believe voting is necessary for everyone though people may choose to vote. "People who do (vote) think they somehow make a contribution to the chain of things, but by voting for one man that doesn't make a difference."

"People should be aware," Trischler commented, adding that he believes politicians are all pretty much the same, and that electing one over another doesn't bring about much of a change.

"It's disillusioning to see the final 2 (in the presidential race). It makes me apathetic as to who wins," he said. "Reading addresses of previous presidents, the depth of thought seemed a lot more. It seems like politicians just say what people want to hear and lie now." Trischler remarked that he spent some time in Massachusetts in the past and kept himself informed on Gov. Dukakis' policies. "Hearing Dukakis' policies turned me off," he noted.

"I couldn't cite who would make a good president, but with all the people who are capable of running, it's disillusioning to see who is running." For that reason Trischler plans to stay away from the voting booth in November.

Trischler is a carpenter. The 30-year-old resides in a home off Hurds Corner Rd., Cass City.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Just when I'm enjoying the summer at Crystal Lake and doing nothing at full speed, along comes a letter from an old friend with a devilish question. A question that has many answers.

In this case, many answers is no answer, but we'll muddle ahead and extract some thoughts. The letter:

Dear Bill:
I have $100,000 in a deferred compensation fund. It's all in the Franklin AGE fund. I'm still practicing law and as you know, I'm 75.

My income puts me in a 43% bracket (Federal and State). If I take out the money, I pay 43% at once. Meanwhile this AGE fund, which has all high-yield bonds, brings in 13%. I can roll it over into other Franklin funds without paying any tax at the time. Later, of course, when I withdraw it, I have to pay the tax.

So what do I do?

JEROME

Dear Jerome:
Good question. I will be interested to read what my answer is.

Checking with Franklin Fund to see if the 13% is a misprint, I find that the AGE fund is strictly junk bonds. Some 80% of the assets are in bonds below investment grade, and ineligible for banks and insurance companies to buy.

They are a new and popular type of investment, dreamed up by the boys in Los Angeles and New York. Of the 6 categories of bonds not in default, the AGE fund bonds rank mostly in the lowest 2.

Assuming you do quit working some day, investments will be your only source of income. To consider anything but good quality is inviting nights of uneasy sleep.

In retirement you have enough problems without introducing insomnia.

O.K. So you are persuaded to get out of the junk yard. Two choices:

1. You liquidate the $100,000 and pay your 43% tax. You have left $57,000. Put it into tax-exempt bonds at 8.2%. Compound the interest for 5 years, and you have $85,000.

2. Roll over the AGE fund into one of their bond funds of decent bonds at 10% yield and in 5 years compounding you will have $161,000. But then you must pay the tax, and say it is still 43% total. That leaves you net of $92,000.

So on the tax-free bond route you have $85,000 in 1993. Take the corporate bond path of decent bonds and you have $92,000 in 5 years.

Before the choice looks too simple, guess what your bracket will be in 1993 after 4 years of Dukakis and a Democratic Congress. Another factor, will you still be working and earning money, or will you be loafing?

I suggest still another choice:
Don't wait 5 years to dip into your fund. Chip away at your capital now.

There is an immutable law: If you have a tax liability hanging over your head -- capital gains or deferred income -- you can't spend it until you do pay the tax.

I will guarantee you that in 5 years you won't feel like spending it as much as you might now. When emphysema and gout and arthritis and prostate problems and sinus invade that wretched body of yours, they will seep away your energy and desires.

Yes, I said it: Invade your capital now. Spend more than you take in.

Ask God and all your Presbyterian ancestors to forgive you for falling from Grace.

Play it right, and on D-Day when the undertaker arrives, there will not be a dime left. The mortician will get only the $250 from Social Security. The American Legion will provide a flag to cover that cheap coffin. It won't make much difference. After your survivors read the will they probably won't attend the services. I'll be there, though, to honor the memory of the first fellow who ever did what I told him.

Cass City Schools crew hard at work as school year nears

School days are in sight and custodial and youth corps crews are working hard to ready Cass City school buildings for day one.

Painting walls, waxing floors, removing asbestos from maintenance rooms, plus many miscellaneous jobs began just after school ended in June. Because of the workload, the labor could last up to the first day of school or continue after students arrive for class, custodians commented.

Cass City High School Principal Russell Biefer said he expects work on his school to be completed by school's start.

The painting schedule at Cass City High has marked 8 rooms, all halls and all bathrooms for painting. And, as both the intermediate and elementary schools do, custodians there plan to refinish all floors.

While the high school has no specific big project to complete, the work to be done is enough to keep the 4 full-time workers and one part-time worker assigned to complete it busy for a few more weeks.

"I've been scrubbing all the floors. I've got a lot of painting to do; I don't know how many gallons of paint I'm going to go through," remarked Clayton Sawdon, a custodian at the high school. "There are cupboards to build, too. We changed a fan motor on the roof--a lot of work."

"It's coming along real well," Biefer noted. "They're doing a real good job. The school will be in tiptop shape when we start."

INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL

Work on the intermediate school, however, may not be fully completed by the time students and teachers meet for their first sessions.

Building supervisor, Jim Fox remarked that the crux of building work will be finished around Sept. 1, but some "smaller" jobs may still remain in the 3 story building to be completed early in the school year.

The big project being tackled by Fox's team of 2 custodians and 2 youth corps workers is the refurbishing of a room that once served as a chemistry laboratory in the days the building served as a high school.

"Next year we'll refinish the floor," Fox remarked explaining what will be accomplished this year. The ceiling has been painted, chemistry lab tables were torn out and hooded exhaust fans mounted in the walls will be transformed into shelves. Also the walls and floor have yet to be finished for September.

Other than renovating that room, a computer room was moved from the 3rd floor to the first recently. During the transition, the first floor room required rewiring to accommodate the some 24 computers.

Also, a drop ceiling was put in a bathroom and roof repair on the latest addition (1964) to the building is expected to be completed this summer.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

Summer touches on Campbell Elementary have also been keeping the 2 staff custodians and one youth corps worker busy these past months.

Staff custodian Tim Jewett said he anticipates the projects at Campbell will conclude near the beginning of the school year.

"A lot of scrubbing around the asbestos removal," Jewett remarked, is being focused on now. Also, paint is being applied to the interior and exterior of the building, and the bathroom floors are being refaced.

The workers are not as loaded with work as they were last year when ceilings were taken out and roof work focused on, Jewett noted, but there is still much to accomplish.

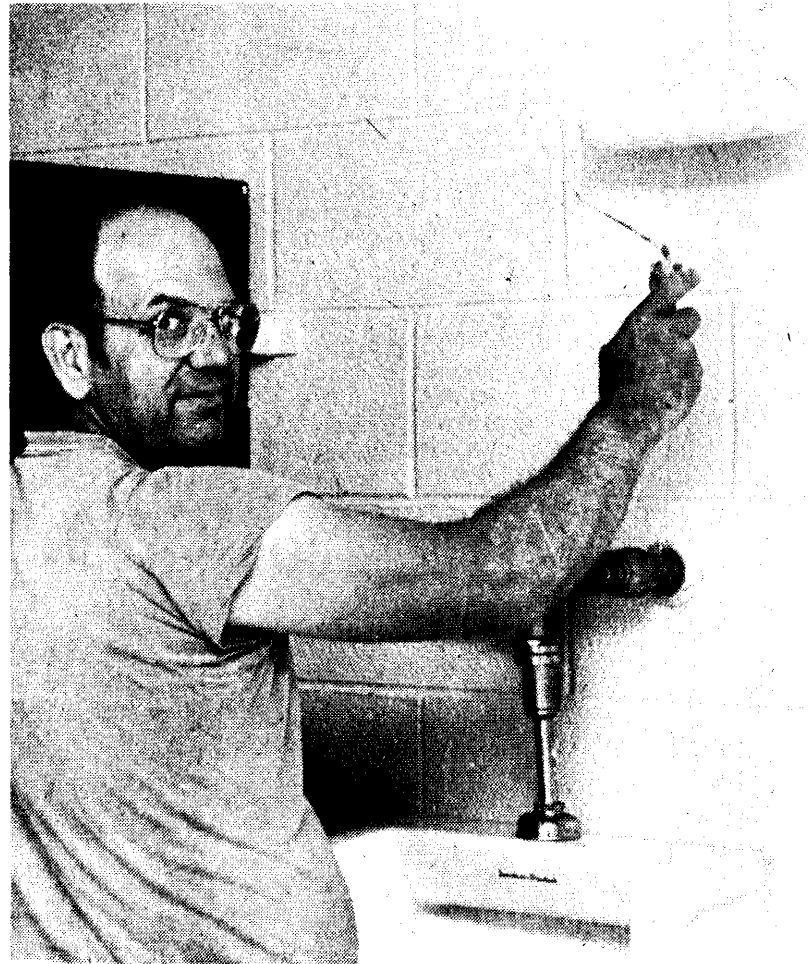

Workers at all 3 Cass City schools still have nearly a month to complete their projects in virtually uninhabited buildings. Students have only that long left to enjoy their summer before leaving for the freshly primed classrooms that await their arrival.

Donate blood at Tuscola Fair

The Red Cross "bloodmobile" will be at the Tuscola County Fairgrounds Thursday and Friday from 1 to 7 p.m.

Persons are asked to stop at the portable blood drawing site, which will be located near the grandstand and picnic area, and take time to donate blood. All blood types are urgently needed, Red Cross officials said.

Free T-shirts, compliments of the Tuscola County Red Cross, will be given to first time donors and those who reach the one-gallon mark.

ALL BATHROOMS, HALLWAYS and 8 rooms are slated for painting at Cass City High School. Clayton Sawdon began the task last week in the midst of many other projects scheduled in preparation for the 1988-89 school year.

Dog days hard on animals

The dog days of summer can be as hard on your pet as they are on you. Don't ever leave your dog in a car, even with the windows partially open. Temperatures can rise rapidly causing dehydration and even death of a pet. If you leave your dog in a room, be sure there is adequate ventilation.

Watch out for hot spots--red, raw patches on your dog's skin. The spots are itchy and the more the dog scratches the spot, the itchier it gets. You may want to try Sulfadene medication on the hot spots. This US Government approved medicine is available at pet stores, supermarkets, discount or department store pet counters. It goes to work instantly to promote healing and relieve the cause of the itching. Check with your vet for an accurate diagnosis and treatment plan for your pet.
