O-G pupils seek return to open school campus

A contingent of Owen-Gage High School students Monday convinced the Owen-Gage Board of Education to allow "open campus" privileges for students in grades 9 through 12.

About 20 students attended the board's monthly meeting to voice opposition to a "closed campus" policy enforced this year by school officials.

Manuel Thies, who serves as both a teacher and discipline officer, told the board he has enforced the policy based on what's written in the student handbook.

The existing handbook, he noted, states that only students who live within walking distance of the school can leave campus, and then only to go home for lunch.

But the students in attendance said sophomores, juniors and seniors have been allowed to leave the campus in the past, and asked why the privilege was taken away.

"We had parents coming to board meetings saying (some) kids were racing their cars uptown," Trustee Mary Ann Abbe remarked, adding that other reported off-campus activities have included fighting and tobacco use. "The time (these) kids are doing this, we are responsible."

The students told the board that past graduates were responsible for the racing, and that they don't think it's fair to penalize all students for the behavior of a few.

Resident Darlene Dorsch agreed. "These kids are not babies anymore. They're getting more mature every year and should have some of the privileges that along with that," she said.

Other residents, however, pointed out that the school remains liable for students whether they're on or off campus.

Counselor Ronald D'Aoust, who shares the duties of principal with Thies, also addressed the board, saying the students asked him how to go about asking for a change in policy. D'Aoust, who suggested that the students attend a board meeting, noted that a majority of teachers are not opposed to an open campus.

The board approved an open campus, but students' cars are to remain parked at the school. The board also reserved the right to rescind the motion at any time.

"If you see anything that isn't right, it's over," Abbe told Thies.

CONFUSION

In other business during the regular meeting, which lasted more than 4 hours, the board fielded questions from coaches, teachers and D'Aoust regarding confusion over the district's new eligibility policy for extracurricular activity participation.

D'Aoust indicated the confusion has surrounded whether all students who are ineligible to participate in sports and other such activities can still practice.

The new eligibility policy states that students must maintain a 2.0 (C) average (at least 12 points) and have no failing grades in order to play. Students who have 10 or 11 points, for example, are to be placed on probation, meaning they can practice but not play until they achieve 12 points again.

Athletic Director Dean Roller indicated coaches have been unsure about allowing players with fewer points to practice, but board members indicated that all ineligible students, provided they passed at least 4 classes in the previous semester, will be allowed to practice. State law requires students who pass fewer than 4 classes to remain ineligible for practice and play during the next semester.

"My concern was the fact that I didn't want to see anyone hurt," Trustee Ronald Good remarked, adding he believes students should practice if they intend to become eligible again to play. "When you don't practice, you get hurt right away," he added.

Bargaining back in GTE Strike

GTE North Inc. officials and union bargainers resumed negotiations Monday afternoon in Grand Rapids for the first time since 2,200 telephone operators, repair workers and office employees struck.

The workers, including about 250 employees in the Davison District, which includes Tuscola and Huron counties, are in the fifth week of their strike.

Although both sides agreed to meet after a federal mediator called for Monday's session, neither expressed optimism regarding a quick settlement.

Officials representing Local 1106 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said Monday they're willing to negotiate, but company officials say they won't budge from their final offer, which was rejected by union members in August.

"If the company agrees to bargain, we'll sit there as long as it takes," Keith Flewelling, assistant business manager and press secretary of the union local, remarked Monday. "We're not too optimistic, but it's a step in the right direction."

Flewelling noted the strike is based on 2 primary areas of dispute. One is concessions involving wage and benefit cuts, including higher deductibles and out-of-pocket maximum payments for hospitalization benefits, elimination of meals on overtime and extension of new employees' probationary period from 4 to 6 months.

The other area, he said, is the company's refusal to look at items the union wants addressed, such as hospitalization for retirees.

"This company is profitable. There's no reason why they need the concessions," Flewelling added.

Lowell Kinney, director of public affairs for GTE

North Inc., acknowledged the company's stand has not changed, but said he remains cautiously optimistic.

"Our position remains that the package we have on the table is a very good package, and is reasonable. I think the fact that they are meeting for the first time since the strike began is an extremely good sign," he said.

In the meantime, some 500 management employees in Michigan have filled in at company offices around the state. GTE managers from other states in the company's 10-state region also have been called in to help out.

Union members, meanwhile, have countered by setting up picket lines in

Construction starts at Hardee's in Cass City

A ground breaking ceremony for the planned Hardee's Restaurant in Cass City will be held Thursday beginning at 2 p.m. at the construction site, located at the northeast corner of Main and Nestle streets.

The ceremony will "officially" kick off the project, although contractors arrived at the site last week.

Tim Schmitt, a senior construction manager for Hardee's, said all necessary permits have been obtained. Officials closed on the property last Wednesday. "We don't foresee any problems," he added.

"I'm hoping for a 52-day construction" period, he remarked, adding that period would include everything from demolition of an existing car wash and house at the site to welcoming the first customers. Schmitt noted he expects actual building construction to begin early next week.

It's strangely quiet inside Charlie's Market these days.

Aside from the humming of a lone freezer, Wilmot's only food store is void of the sounds one would expect to hear.

There's no talk of the day's events at the deli counter; the familiar ring of the door bell is silent, and there are no children jingling their change while trying to decide between a candy bar and ice cream.

These days are bittersweet for Charlie and Kathleen Weitschat, who after owning and operating the store for the past 16 years, closed the doors recently for the last time.

"We both made very good friends in this store, and we've enjoyed the people," Kathleen remarked last week. "Our kids all worked in here. They grew up here."

Charlie's Market has been a way of life for the Weitschats since they bought the business, then Chet's Grocery, in 1972.

The store, which has served the tiny community of Wilmot for more than 60 years, provided a good living for the couple and a convenient place to shop for town residents. Other business opportunities and a slow but sure change in shopping habits, however, led to the decision to offer the store for sale or rent.

"My husband found the store for sale and this is what we wanted to do," Kathleen recalled of the couple's decision to move to the area from Lake Orion in 1972. "We both quit our jobs at General Motors to do this. Our parents thought we were crazy."

Weitschat noted Wilmot was more of a thriving community in those days. In fact, Charlie's Market was one of 2 grocery stores when the couple opened for business.

UNBELIEVABLE

"We used to do so much business, it was unbelievable," she remarked. "We used to close the store from 3 to 6 on Sundays so we could eat dinner together. When we'd get back, the cars would be lined up."

"I see the business changing a lot," Kathleen said, adding mobility has hurt small town businesses.

"It's nothing for people to get in a car and go to Meijer's once a week. That's their shopping trip," she continued. "But they're hurting themselves. When these (small town stores) close, they'll have to go somewhere else. It's the domino effect." Other factors also led to the closing of Charlie's.

End of Era after more than 65 years

In 1983, Charlie went into an oil well maintenance business with his brother-in-law in California. Business trips to the west coast, in addition to home construction work in the area, has kept him busy, Kathleen said, adding, "I cannot do this by myself, it's too much."

Despite the closing, the store holds many special memories for the family. Kathleen noted that she and

Charlie raised their children in an apartment above the store until 1976, when they decided to build a home in the area.

The couple have 4 children—Mike, 23, a student at Central Michigan University; Lisa, 19, a student at Ferris State University; Chuck, 17, a senior at Kingston High School, and Sarah, 12, who also attends school in the Kingston district.

The couple's relative freedom to spend time with their children was among the advantages of owning and operating the store, Kathleen recalled.

"I was always able to be home, she said. "Charlie, too. He could go to every ball game they were ever in."

CUSTOMERS

Another advantage was getting to know customers, particularly long-time regulars such as Mary Adamzyk and Dorothy Ozorowitz, both of whom have shopped at the Wilmot store for more than 30 years.

"I missed it the day they closed the doors," Adamzyk remarked, adding she preferred shopping at Charlie's rather than traveling to KATHLEEN WEITSCHAT (above) hopes someone will take an interest in operating a grocery store in Wilmot, where she and husband Charlie have owned and operated Charlie's Market since 1972. Labor Day was the last day of business for Charlie's, the town's only grocery store.

Cass City's Fred Millis

Area man "whittles" 30-foot totem pole

by Tom Montgomery
News Editor

If Fred Millis' experience this summer is anything more than coincidence, area farmers might do well to invest in totem poles the next time drought strikes.

Millis, a recently retired insurance broker, put the finishing touches earlier this summer on a custom totem pole he's been "whittling" for the past 18 months or so. With the help of some friends, he mounted the 30-foot carved maple pole near his Cass City area residence over the July 4 weekend. "Ever since we put it up it's been raining and thundering and lightning," Millis remarked with a grin. The design of the pole, actually a combination totem pole and mortuary pole, is based partly on poles erected by the Bella Coola tribe, from the Bella Coola River in British Columbia, according to Millis. He noted the design includes a thunderbird (in the mythology of certain North American Indians, an enormous bird that produces thunder, lightning and rain) and a raven. At the lower end of the pole is a figure resembling a person, which is typical of mortuary poles constructed for the dead. "In 1948 I went to Alaska to work for a summer between semesters" of college, Millis said. "I went back 6 years ago on a cruise. That's where I got the idea of a totem pole."

"About 4 years ago, I pulled out a huge maple, let it dry out, and took the bark off," he continued. "I started with a chain saw about 1 1/2 years ago and then started to paint." A neighbor, art design student Angie Churchill, painted the pair of wings mounted on the pole, he added.

He honored the business associates and friends who helped him with his cabin home by naming them all to a tribe called "Chimaera," a name he took from a Robert Louis Stevenson poem. "Chimaera" is inscribed on the Ponderosa gate that stands at the entrance to his land.

BYGONE ERA

A short drive from the entrance along a narrow dirt road seemingly transports a visitor from civilization to a bygone era.

A pair of crossed snow shoes are mounted above the mantel of the fireplace in the living room of his cabin. Among the room's decorations are a huge metal pot used to store firewood, a rattlesnake headband, mounted raccoon and ruffed grouse, and hand carved duck decoys. Mounted wood ducks and a 7-foot Alaskan timber wolf skin, purchased from Indians some years ago, are mounted on a wall. A pair of elk hoof lamps have been placed on end tables.

In another room are the mounted heads of a moose and caribou, as well as a variety of pelts, all reminders of past hunting excursions in British Columbia, Montana, Wyoming and other areas Millis enjoyed years ago with a cousin. An avid fisherman, he said he still hunts for deer, but "I'm kind of out of the hunting business."

"We've always got something going," Millis said of his daily routine since retiring in January at the age of 60. His agency in Oakland County has since been taken over by one of his sons, John, 31, who visits regularly. Millis' other son, David, 26, works as a bartender in Hollywood, Calif.

Although there are certain necessary chores to be done—Millis said he can go through some 20 cords of wood in the winter, and he has 15 acres of lawn to mow in the summer—Millis indicated many of his projects, like the totem pole, are unhurried.

"There's always something to do, but never pressing," he added.

A VISIT TO MILLIS' HOME, a cabin surrounded by woods, is like stepping back into time. With the exception of modern conveniences, the cabin reminds one of an era made famous by frontiersmen.

Although a huge totem pole might look out of place in the yards of most area homes, it fits right in at Millis' residence, a rustic cabin nestled in a wooded area off Crawford Road, about 2 miles southeast of Cass City.

The pole stands on a small hill north of the cabin between 2 of Millis' 3 ponds, stocked with northern pike, bass and bluegill. When the water's high enough, a small waterfall comes to life between the 2 ponds.

"I've been up here for about 25 years. Everything you see here I built myself," Millis remarked, adding he bought the 180-parcel, only a small percentage of which has been developed, in 1963.

"That's the way it started out. It was just going to be a hunting cabin," he explained. Millis' cabin went up in 1964, and he has 2 other cabins in the woods, as well as a horse stable and some pole build-

A 24-FOOT HIGH totem/mortuary pole towers over area resident Fred Millis at his rural Cass City area home. Millis spent about 18 months "whittling" the maple with a chain saw.

Sex charge nets plea

A 32-year-old Cass City man pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court to Criminal Sexual Conduct, second degree.

The plea, entered by Ronald A. Pomeroy, 4563 Spence Rd., whose jury trial was scheduled to begin Monday, was taken under advisement. Sentencing is to be scheduled. Bond was continued at $350,000.

Pomeroy was initially charged with first degree Criminal Sexual Conduct, according to court records, which state he was charged with engaging in sexual penetration with another person, causing personal injury to the victim and using force or coercion to accomplish the act.

Records state the incident occurred March 10 in Akron Township.

Three persons were sentenced and 2 others entered pleas in proceedings Friday.

A Mayville pair was sentenced on charges of conspiracy to commit receiving and concealing stolen property.

Tina L. Craig, 21, and William J. Craig, 26, both of 234 W. O'Brien Rd., were convicted Aug. 12 on the charges, which stem from an incident April 2 involving a 4-wheel off-road recreation vehicle.

Tina Craig was sentenced to one year probation and 180 days in the county jail, which was suspended with community service work. William Craig was ordered to serve one year probation, pay fines and costs totalling $200, and serve 90 days in the county jail, which was deferred until 1989. Participation in the work site program was granted.

Michael Myers, 22, 2940 Cass St., Unionville, was sentenced on a delayed sentence to 2 years probation.

He also was ordered pay costs, fines and restitution as previously ordered.

Myers was convicted April 21, 1987, of attempted breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling, court records state.

A plea of guilty to breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny, entered by Randall J. DuRussell, 34, 225 Ellis St., Caro, was accepted by the court.

Sentencing is to be set. Bond was continued at $5,000.

The plea stems from the May 1 break-in of the D & C Department Store, 215 N. State St., in Caro. The offense carries a maximum sentence of 10 years imprisonment.

Robert S. Mossop, 19, 231 Jefferson St., Sandusky, also pleaded guilty to breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny.

Sentencing is to be scheduled, and bond continued at $20,000.

Mossop's plea stems from the March 26 break-in of a pole barn at 7181 Walter Rd., Cass City.

MTA offers annual update

The Michigan Townships Association will offer a legislative update and educational program to township officials from Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola Counties Sept. 28 as part of the annual MTA Fall District Meetings.

More than 100 township officials are expected to attend the all-day event, set to be held at the Colony House in Cass City.

Beginning at 9 a.m., MTA Executive Director John M. LaRose and Deputy Executive Director Larry Merrill will review current legislation that could greatly affect township government, including school finance reform, voter registration, regional assessing and the environment.

MTA Education Officer Kathy Gilliland will begin the second half of the morning with a review of the 1988 election's state ballot proposals. Concluding the morning session will be Dr. John Watkins, humanities professor from Ferris State University, who will "Unscramble the Scrambled Egg" for the meeting's participants. His presentation will focus on why people have difficulty communicating with each other and offer methods to improve communication among township board members and between the board and its constituents.

After lunch, participants will be able to choose from 6 concurrent workshops. Sue McRill from the Michigan Bureau of Elections' Local Elections Division will conduct a workshop on common problems in elections administration. Al Blankenship, MTA accounting consultant, will teach participants how to handle tax collection problems. Michigan Association of Municipal Cemeteries' member Clayton Turner from Cass City will offer methods on how to keep more accurate cemetery records, including how to reconstruct lost and destroyed records and understanding legal obligations in cemetery management.

Joe Heffernan, a CPA from the accounting firm Plante and Moran, will discuss investment strategies for townships in his "Choosing Among Investments" workshop. "Your Township Board in Action," a session on decision making and carrying out successful projects, will be led by Joel Welty, a consultant from Sylviron Associates. Also, the Michigan State Assessors Board will conduct an assessors renewal certification course.

The cost of the program, which includes lunch and materials, is $38 at the door. Registration begins at 8 a.m.

The MTA, based in Lansing Charter Township, provides lobbying and educational services to more than 99 percent of the state's 1,242 townships and 6,500 elected officials. District meetings are conducted annually across the state with fall meetings offered in the southern half of Michigan.

Talks resume in GTE strike

GTE North officials reported Friday that since the strike began Aug. 17, about 123 instances of vandalism to GTE equipment have been reported in the state, compared to the 24 cases of vandalism normally reported annually.

The company is offering a $15,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of vandals, who have disrupted service in several communities, none of them in the Cass City area. The damage has included curtailing central dispatch service in some communities.

Bulldogs win grid thriller over Webberville, remain undefeated

The last time Owen-Gage won their first 2 games of the season was back in 1983...

Those victories gave head mentor Arnie Besonen his 100th career win...

This time around, Besonen is more concerned with next week's opponent, Kinde...

The game was every bit as close as the final score indicated.

We scored early before they woke up, said Besonen.

But not before putting 25 points on the scoreboard.

Quarterback Chad Stirrett scored the game's opening marker...

Reinhardt then set up the Bulldogs' next score with a 64-yard sprint...

Reinhardt's efforts overshadowed a fine performance by Webberville's Kirt Lions...

The Bulldogs showed the making of a good team when, on their next possession...

But Webberville wasn't done yet. With 40 seconds remaining, Lions pulled the Spartans within a point...

Again Lions' number was called but he was stood up by Owen-Gage's Warren Volz and stopped short.

You can bet Coach Besonen relishes this season's opening compared to 1983's.

Owen-Gage cagers open NCTL with win over Port Hope, 52-39

Owen-Gage opened their North Central Thumb League schedule last Thursday with a convincing 52-39 win over Port Hope.

The Bulldogs fell behind early against Port Hope as Angie Bolzman supplied all but 2 of the Bulldogs' points in the opening quarter...

The Bulldogs started heating up in the second stanza, including a 6-9 showing from the charity strip, and took a 5 point lead into the intermission.

The Warriors battled back during the second half and knotted the score at 33 early in the fourth quarter...

"We're still not shooting well but show signs of get-

"Poor overall game," said Roller. "Poor shooting and poor ball handling."

Again the Bulldogs got off to a slow start. Their only offense in the game's opening 8 minutes was supplied by 3 baskets by veteran Dawn Dorsch.

The Bearcats on the other hand showed a well rounded offense and had 6 different girls contribute to a 22-14 half time advantage.

The Bulldogs were able to slice into the visitors lead early in the second half and at one point trailed only 30-23.

But the Bearcats tightened their defense and outscored the Bulldogs 17-4 to coast to an easy win.

Ugly had 2 girls in double figures. Jenny Badger and Becky Mazure each had 11 points.

ON TARGET! — Senior Red Hawk quarterback Paul Tuckey (9) lofts an 8-yard pass to senior teammate Jeff Dillon (42) for Cass City's first score of Friday's contest against Vassar, following a fumble recovery by Brent Meiningner. The Vulcans proved too strong in the end, handing the Hawks a 26-14 loss.

Hawks prep for Lakers after tough Vassar loss

It was a tough loss to take Friday. Coach Don Markel's Cass City Red Hawks bounced back to go in front after spotting the visiting Vassar Vulcans a 2-touchdown lead, only to lose in the last quarter after a poor punt placed the team in a hole from which it couldn't recover. The score was 26-14.

Now the problem facing Markel and the Hawks is to put the frustrating loss behind them and prepare for defending champion Lakers on the Lakers' home field.

Although one of the favorites to cop the title again, scouting reports indicate that the Lakers aren't as awesome as they have been in the past.

The Vulcans drew first blood when they mixed passes and runs in a 90-yard march down the field to score from the one-yard line.

Vassar went ahead 13-0 at 7:14 in the second quarter, a 46-yard drive with a one-yard plunge to score.

The Hawks used a break to get into the scoring column late in the first half. Brent Meiningner recovered a Vassar fumble on the Vulcan 21. Cass City moved to the Vulcan 8, from where Paul Tuckey passed to his favorite receiver, Jeff Dillon, for the score. The same combo clicked for the extra points and at the half Cass City was back in the game, 13-8.

After a scoreless third quarter, Cass City went ahead for the first time in the game. Brent Beecher intercepted a pass and returned it 26 yards to set up the go-ahead score. It was Tuckey to Dillon again. This time the payoff marker covered 32 yards and Cass City led, 14-13, with 9:33 left.

Late in the final period came the play that decided the game.

Deep in its own territory, Cass City was forced to punt. The punt netted only about 10 yards. The Vulcans made the most of the opportunity and moved in to score. A 3-yard pass put the winning marker on the scoreboard. The kick for point was good.

The Vulcans added another marker in the dying seconds of the game as the Hawks gambled to get back into the game. The winners pounded the ball over from the one with 33 seconds left.

Before the season started, Markel said that the Hawks would have to rely on a passing game this year, and that was the case against the Vulcans. Cass City's ground game was limited to 55 yards on 26 carries while Vassar ran for 219 yards on 42 carries.

Markel awarded decals for outstanding play to Scott Dillon, offensive lineman; Dennis Dadacki, offensive back; John Wright, defensive lineman, and Jason Robertson, defensive back. Dillon was credited with 16 tackles, 2 unassisted, and Robertson, 10 tackles, 3 unassisted.

MIKE LEFLER and Mike Diegel (right) captured first place honors in the 26th annual Cass City Men's Golf League tournament held Sunday at Vassar Golf and Country Club. The two shot a best ball partners score of 62.

Hawks breathe rare air of first place

For at least a week, the Cass City Red Hawks shared the lead in the Thumb B Association basketball wars. Okay, so it means little since only a single conference game has been played. But how long has it been since the Hawks were in front for even a day in basketball in the fall?

This happy turn of events came when Cass City decisively defeated the visiting Vassar Vulcans Thursday, 44-29.

Our defense was the story of the game, Coach Marty Daniel said, pointing to a statistic that showed the Vulcans got just 6 of their points inside the paint.

Daniel was also pleased with the way his charges were able to get the ball inside to Darlene Monroe. It was our greatest area of improvement, he said.

Although the Hawks led all the way, it was not until the third quarter that they tucked away the game in the win column. Cass City was in front at the end of the opening period, 8-6, as Cindy Powell hit a pair of jumpers from the outside to break open the Vulcan zone.

Darlene Monroe took over the scoring chores in the second period, netting 5 of the team's 7 points. At the half, Cass City was in front, 15-10. Monroe and the Hawks registered their best quarter of the season after the intermission. She burned the nets for 7 points to lead the team to a 17-10 bulge and a comfortable 32-20 lead going into the final 8 minutes.

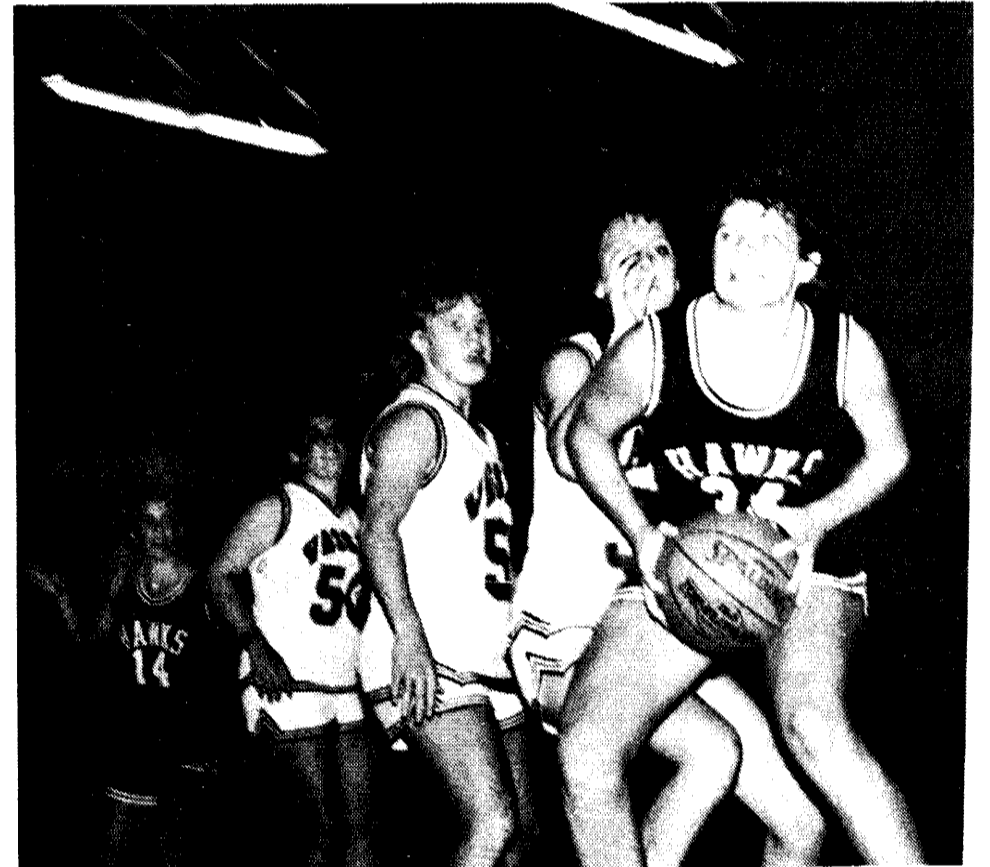

Although Monroe was the dominant force in the game, she had plenty of help from her teammates. Sue Papp scored 8 points and gave Daniel's charges a second strong inside scoring punch. When Monroe was in foul trouble, Andrea Isard helped control the defensive boards.

Monroe finished with 22 points and 16 rebounds. Papp and Powell netted 8 points each. Bergdolt led Vassar's balanced scoring with 7 points.

The Hawks were to have played USA Tuesday night and then head back into conference competition at Lakers Thursday.

The Vassar JV edged the Hawk JV in the preliminary, 46-43.

DARLENE MONROE powered the Hawks past Thumb B foe, Vassar, with strong offensive rebounding and a 22-point performance.

Golf league ends with tournament at Vassar

The Cass City Golf League officially came to an end Sunday evening with the completion of the 26th annual outing held this year at the Vassar Golf and Country Club.

Lefler won with a handicap total of 62. Runners-up were Dan Derfny and Brad Goslin with 63. Jim Fox had the low handicap round with a score of 71.7, followed by Mike Murphy with 72.

with 80, followed by Bill Kritzman with 81. Kritzman and Lovejoy recently played for the club championship at Rolling Hills Golf Course. Lovejoy won while equalling a course record for 9 holes with a 31.

D'Aoust agreed, adding he believes allowing students to practice also provides incentive for them to improve their academic performance so they can again participate in a sport or other activity.

CLOSED SESSIONS

The board spent more than 2 hours in executive session, about half of which involved discussion of on-going contract negotiations. The remaining time was spent discussing a "personal" situation involving preschool program director Diane Warack. The only action taken following the sessions was a change in date for the next contract negotiating session, which was changed from Thursday to Monday at 8 p.m. in the Owendale library.

Also Monday, the board: —Learned that a suspect has been apprehended by Huron County Sheriff's deputies in connection with a recent break-in at the school. Items taken, including radios and calculators, also were recovered, school Supt. Harley Kirby reported.

—Heard a complaint from maintenance employee Ron Susalla, who indicated he's unhappy about a new policy which limits his over-time hours. Kirby stated that Susalla will continue to put in the same number of hours, but that they have been re-scheduled to reduce over-time.

—Learned that enrollment in 1988-89 is expected to total 180 in the elementary school and 167 in the high school. The figures represent little change compared to last year's numbers.

—Heard that the Michigan Educational Assessment Program exam will be given to all fourth, seventh and tenth graders Oct. 4, 5 and 6. D'Aoust told the board that this is the last year the existing MEAP program, which is being revised, will be administered.

—Learned that the Huron County Sheriff's Department will present its "Safetyville" program at Gagetown Elementary School Sept. 22.

Kingston or another nearby village.

"Some things might be a little higher, but I also found good bargains. They had good meats, I was very satisfied with their meats," Adamzyk said. "They had gas there and the whole works, and they were open later" than other area businesses.

"It's a shame it had to close, it really is a shame." Kathleen pointed out she hopes someone will be interested in taking over the store, which she feels is needed in the community. Not only was Charlie's a close place to pick up groceries, it also served as a coffee shop of sorts, providing a place to visit and hear the latest local goings on.

"There are enough people here" to support a business, she said, adding, "You have to want to work hard. We missed a lot of dinners together, (but) we enjoyed it." "Our last day of business was Labor Day. I thought that was fitting," she remarked. "I said that we had labored enough."

"It sure got quiet here. The big trucks don't drive up anymore," she observed wistfully. "Hopefully someone will want to continue the business, she repeated. "I'd love that to happen."

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

During the summer doldrums, the inherent streak of laziness in newspapermen is bound to surface. Even in the noble ranks of the Wall Street Journal staff.

Warmed-over stories that the editor in other seasons would throw in the trash find their way onto the printed page. It saves effort in digging up something fresh. A perennial story that is always lying around is about college graduates making more money than high school graduates.

LATEST DATA SHOW COLLEGE DEGREE INCREASES EARNINGS

trumpets the headline, page 1, Section 2, Aug. 17, 1988, of the Journal. The source: Economics Department of the University of Michigan. The figures: College grads made 40% more than high school grads in 1986. Men and women were about the same in the data.

The conclusion: Go to college and you'll make more money.

Baloney. Somebody at the U of M spent thousands of dollars in time and desk space in combing the census figures to get this story. And he probably used it as his thesis for a master's degree.

A couple obvious flaws come to mind:

1. College grads are 4 to 8 years older than high school grads. They should make more money.

2. A high school graduate can't get into the 2 highest paid professions (next to TV anchor men), doctors and lawyers, unless they do go to school.

The big hole in the rationale:

People with more ability, more intelligence, more money, more ambition, with better family backgrounds go to college; more go than those short-changed with these attributes. The favored segment of society takes these traits with them to the campus. The college doesn't create these people of superior genes, and of fatter bank balances.

It would be strange indeed if such people didn't go into the world, and do better after leaving college. Schools of higher learning may be given a little credit—but not much.

I feel strongly that if identical twins split after high school graduation, and Bob went to college and Ben went to work and studied on his own, that 10 years later, they'd have about the same income.

My own evidence is from personal acquaintances, over a lifetime. I don't have the best examples—identical twins—but of members of the same family. This is still pretty good, though. Two of the most prosperous newspapermen in Michigan became millionaires in small towns 10 years after high school, and with no college. I've known women whose career was homemaking, and whose spare time was spent reading books, whose schooling stopped at grade 12. They outshone women at their clubs who had college degrees.

They didn't get that way by watching the telly, and reading movie magazines. They read good books, and they went to lectures, and learned from people who were smart.

Colleges are hungry for students now. The better schools have more applicants than they can admit, but by and large, enrollments have dropped. In selling themselves, colleges trot out many inducements—and the likelihood of making more money if you're a college graduate is a good argument.

But the logic is faulty. The youngsters bound to earn more are the ones who go to college. They don't earn more after graduation be-

Skills for Success

School is open. The initial anticipation in students, for the opening of school, has passed, but hopefully our students will retain their interest and motivation for learning. On many occasions parents ask the question, "What can I do to help my child succeed?" As a means of providing some assistance with this very important question, the following suggestions are being provided.

- 1. Teach your children to be responsible. Give them certain chores or tasks for which they are completely responsible. Teach them to do the task by breaking it into smaller parts or steps. Model the correct way to do these steps, emphasizing the sequence they are to follow. Practice and monitor progress before making them totally responsible for the task.
- 2. Help your children understand the importance of completing a task whether it be work or pleasure. Children need to understand that when they start a project, they are making a commitment to complete it.
- 3. Provide opportunities for your students to learn organizational skills. Take time to teach your children how to organize games, toys, or clothes. Let them suggest ways to arrange or put their belongings in order. Children can also be involved in unpacking, sorting, and organizing groceries. Once these skills are taught and practiced, hold them responsible for keeping their belongings organized.
- 4. Help your children develop a sense of timing. Young children need reasonable time limits, set in order, to complete tasks. They need to learn to be efficient and responsible for completing a task within a time limit. Eventually children should learn how to schedule their own activities whether they be chores, school work, relaxing, or being with friends. By learning to budget their time, children can learn to balance work and pleasure.
- 5. Develop your child's conversational skills. Have one-to-one conversations with your child. Encourage him/her to express ideas, thoughts, and feelings. Share your thoughts and feelings with your child. Ask questions about the school day. Ask your child to explain a process skill, or concept learned in school. Above all, listen to your child, be attentive and respond appropriately to what your child is saying.
- 6. Listen to your children. Don't fake listening, but look at your child while he/she is talking. Show you are listening by having eye contact, nodding and using facial expressions. Be interested in what they have to say.
- 7. Help your children learn problem-solving skills. Encourage them to analyze situations carefully and look at the alternatives. Give your children opportunities to look at choices, make decisions, and stick to their decisions.

The above skills and attitudes are important ingredients for successful progress in school. You can help your children become better learners by practicing these skills at home and encouraging them to apply these skills in school. Hopefully, this will help you help your children make school and learning a rewarding experience.

New type pneumonia threatens elderly

Acute pneumonia, caused by a newly discovered microorganism, may be a significant cause of severe illness and death in the elderly.

Claudia M. Davis, M.D., of the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences in Little Rock, Ark., said that a newly discovered strain of Chlamydia, called the TWAR strain, has been detected in a high percentage of pneumonia patients. She discussed her finding at the recent annual meeting of the American Lung Association.

"I expect that TWAR pneumonia will turn out to be more prevalent than currently expected," Dr. Davis said. "Until recently, diagnostic tests weren't available to detect its presence as a definite cause of disease in infected patients."

Chlamydia is a bacteria-like microorganism with unique properties. One species, Chlamydia trachomatis, has been identified as the cause of a variety of sexually transmitted diseases and eye infections. A second species, Chlamydia psittaci, is found in several types of birds, including turkeys and parrots, and can produce a lung infection in people exposed to infected birds. Until now, however, this new strain of Chlamydia has not been recognized as a major health concern.

TWAR is a previously unknown strain of C. psittaci that can be transmitted person-to-person. It causes a type of pneumonia that is distinguishable clinically from disease caused by better known microorganisms.

Dr. Davis and her associates found that of 197 patients at the McClellan Veterans Administration Medical Center in Little Rock with a diagnosis of pneumonia, a known causative microorganism for the disease was found for only 94 patients. Immunological tests were performed on blood samples taken from 72 of these 94 patients and 9 turned out to be positive for TWAR. The pattern of antibodies in the blood suggested that the pneumonia was associated with TWAR. Six of the 9 TWAR-positive patients were over 70 years old and of these, 3 were over 80. Two patients died of the disease.

"Although the number of deaths in our study group was not high, we nonetheless are concerned that TWAR pneumonia can be an important cause of death in very old patients," Dr. Davis said.

Some of the patients improved without therapy, while others required antibiotic treatment. Penicillin, which cures many common types of pneumonia, does not kill Chlamydia, Dr. Davis warned. Erythromycin and tetracycline are, however, effective.

TWAR pneumonia, although detected in elderly patients in this study, can nonetheless be found in younger people. In fact, Dr. Davis notes, it can show up in all age groups with the exception of very young children.

"I think it is important for all physicians, especially those who care for the elderly, to become aware of TWAR and its potential for causing lung disease," Dr. Davis said. "Tests for TWAR antibodies should be considered whenever a causative agent for pneumonia is not found."

Dr. Davis presented her results at the Infections in the Non-HIV Infected Patient/Scientific Assembly on Microbiology, Tuberculosis and Pulmonary Infections. Her co-workers were A.L. Barron, G.D. Campbell, G. McCracken and J.H. Bates.

AROUND THE FARM
Plan for '89 profit
By Bill Bortel

Most Michigan farmers are facing a difficult year financially, but planning now to reduce next year's input expenses could make farming more profitable.

For most crops, farmers should have their soil tested every 3 to 4 years to ensure that they aren't applying more fertilizer than necessary. Soil test results from across Tuscola County show that, over the years, many farmers have applied more phosphorus than crops have used. Farmers can draw on this buildup of phosphorus and reduce their fertilizer costs.

This year farmers who had a total or partial crop failure from the drought can take advantage of any nitrogen that was applied.

Farmers with medium and fine textured soils can expect that about 50 percent of the nitrogen applied this year will be available for next year's crop if a total crop failure occurred. Farmers can also utilize a portion of the nitrogen applied this year if a partial crop failure occurred.

To determine the amount of nitrogen available for the next crop, subtract from the total nitrogen applied one pound for each bushel of corn harvested and divide by 2. As an example, if 200 pounds of nitrogen were applied and only 50 bushels of corn harvested, 75 pounds of nitrogen would be available for the next crop.

Growers should also take into consideration any alfalfa or other legume crops that will be plowed down at the end of this cropping season. An alfalfa stand can provide as much as 100 pounds of nitrogen for future crops, while clovers can provide 40 to 60 pounds. The optimum nitrogen credit from soybeans is 40 pounds.

Animal manure is another source of nutrients that farmers need to take credit for. One ton of dairy, beef or hog manure per acre can provide 4 to 6 pounds of nitrogen. To determine the total nutrients in manure produced on their farm, growers need to have the manure analyzed. Like a soil test, a manure analysis provides a list of nutrients available for the growing crop.

The cost of manure analysis through Michigan State University is $25.00. A soil test is $6.00. Contact your local Cooperative Extension Service office in Caro for information on how to take a soil or manure sample at (517) 673-5999, ext. 228.

The Cass City Retired Persons group met Thursday, Sept. 8, at Good Shepherd Lutheran Fellowship Hall with 10 members attending.
Following a potluck dinner at noon, Jane Mitchell gave a talk and played a tape on distress.
Due to the extreme heat in August the group didn't meet. The next meeting will be Oct. 13.

Lowé honored by social workers

Former Cass City resident Anna M. Lowé of Uby is among 6 persons who were recently named recipients of a Meritorious Award by the Michigan Council of Social Services Workers.

Also named among the 6 is Bad Axe resident David Hollenbeck, a Children's Protective Services worker at the Tuscola County DSS office in Caro.

Mark Wiese at school

Mark Wiese of the Harris-Hampshire Agency, Inc., Cass City, is attending a life insurance education and training school Sept. 13-15 at the home office of Auto-Owners Insurance in Lansing.

Subjects covered in the program will include personal and business life insurance, health insurance, and a full line of annuities offered by the company.

The award is presented annually to those who have shown involvement in the council and service to their clients through the years.

"The award is based on the opinions of those with whom they work most closely and is therefore among the highest honors (they) could receive," Kristie Backus, who presented the awards, remarked.

Lowé has been involved in the state council of social services workers since 1981, and for the past 3 years has chaired the Meritorious Awards Committee. Lowé, who has more than 19 years in as a state employee, began her career at the Caro Regional Center Oct. 31, 1968. She then worked as an assistant payment worker beginning in July 1985. Lowé worked briefly with the Genesee County DSS before transferring to the Huron County DSS, Bad Axe, in February 1976.

She and her husband, Dean, have 3 grown children; a daughter, Suzanne Lowé of Uby, and twin sons, Daniel Lowé of Phoenix, Ariz., and Donald Lowé of Gulfport, Miss.

C. Patrick Babcock, director of the Michigan DSS, and Gov. James J. Blanchard wrote letters of commendations for each DSS employee who received an award this year.

Letters to the editor

"Work and learn" camp is misnamed

Letter to the Editor, Residents of Tuscola County please be aware of the misnamed "work and learn" camp to be built in the Thumb area. It has the backing of Governor James Blanchard and your elected state officials.

This so-called work and learn camp is to rehabilitate juveniles convicted of robbery and assault, predominately from drug-infested Wayne County. In essence, a vacation in the Thumb in an unsecured prison, and free to roam into anybody's home or back yard.

Supposedly the work part would be a part time job in cities of Caro, Marlette or Kingston and throwing out of work your own children who currently hold jobs here.

Citizen opposition has killed camp plans in Ann Arbor, Holly, Lexington, and in the Salvation Army Camp in Addison Township. We have had to use the Freedom of Information Act to pry loose the hidden deals and illegal use of tax money as documented by the audit by the State of Michigan Auditor General.

All this information is available to those who wish to stop the "crooks and robber" camp from ruining your own back yard in Michigan's peaceful Thumb area.

Herrington urges Allen to debate

Dear Rep. Allen:

Thank you for your letter and discussion of debate theory. Although you did not agree to debate, I am glad you will discuss the possibility of doing so.

Given the number of conditions you set forth to even consider a debate, I thought for a moment we were becoming engaged in a presidential-type debate on debates.

I have publicly stated my specific views on issues to many people at numerous gatherings and events. Had you attended you, too, would know where I stand. I refuse to do your campaign homework and therefore, cannot comply with your condition that I provide you with detailed written statements on issues, unless you provide the same to me.

I welcome the opportunity for a debate to further define our positions and give voters a basis for an informed choice.

Sincerely yours,

David Herrington
Candidate for State Representative
77th District

Couple sour over dealership service

Letter to the Editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to share a few tips with some other Chronicle readers who are contemplating buying a new or used car from a dealership, and hopefully saving them from ending up in a bad situation like we did.

Find a salesman who will honestly tell you they will gladly service what they sell. The dealership (not from Cass City) we bought our 1987 Chev. Nova from could care less if they ever see us again.

Prices are negotiable. If the dealer won't work with you, find another who will.

Look closely at your warranty. Ask exactly what it does and doesn't cover.

We own a car that is one year old and has a defective paint job. After calling several customer assistance numbers, and speaking with several G.M. representatives, our problem has not been resolved, which is the only thing we want.

They have directly informed us they have no intentions of helping us with this problem. The information they are going on is that from the dealership where we bought the car. The paint man there saying the reason was that a protective seal was not put on the wax at the factory. Their mistake, our loss. Buying a car is easy. Finding a manufacturer and dealership who care about their customers' satisfaction after the sale, is the hard part.

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs.
Frank Kielyka

Despite Michigan's drought

Color spectacular on schedule

Despite the summer's long drought and unprecedented heat, Michigan forests will likely unfold their annual panorama of spectacular colors on schedule, AAA Michigan reports.

"The relatively mild weather in recent weeks should encourage many people to plan a fall color tour," said Brian Potter, AAA Michigan touring manager. "Color buffs will begin trekking into the Upper Peninsula a week before the first day of autumn, Sept. 22, this year."

Generally, peak periods to admire autumn's artistry are mid-September to early October across the Upper Peninsula from Copper Harbor to Mackinac Island; late September to mid-October in the northern third of the Lower Peninsula, above a line between Ludington and Standish; and early to mid-October for the central section of the Lower Peninsula, north of a line from Muskegon to Port Huron.

Nature's paintbrush usually spreads through the southern third of the Lower Peninsula from Lake Michigan towards metropolitan Detroit during the later half of October.

Michigan is endowed with almost 19 million acres of forest and 65 species of trees, more than any other state. Thousands of miles of scenic roadsides and lake shores make superb sight-seeing.

According to Melvin Koelling, Michigan State University forestry professor, the brilliance of fall colors depends partly on September weather.

Tree leaves contain chlorophyll, a substance which makes them green when combined with sunlight. Many varieties of leaves also have pigments called carotene and xanthophyll, which create yellow and orange hues after the chlorophyll begins to break down.

Brilliant reds result from high concentrations of sugar. "A warm, dry summer often produces more sugar in the leaves, hence better colors," Koelling said.

"What we want to see now are sunny days averaging about 80 degrees and nights in the 50's, with rain once a week or so. But a severe early frost or a spate of dark, rainy days in September could upset the chemical process and cause a late, lackluster display."

Attempt 3 abductions in area

Parents in the Bevens Road area and Vassar are being urged to warn their children about accepting rides with strangers following 3 attempted abductions in those areas.

Troopers at the state police post in Caro Monday said information on the reported abduction attempts is limited at this time, but that the cases, reported over the past 2 weeks, involved young girls between the ages of 10 and 13 years.

The 2 suspect vehicles are smaller models, one red and the other white, troopers said.

Meeting set

A registration day for all area Girl Scouts, former or new, will be held Thursday beginning at 7 p.m. at the Cass City High School cafeteria.

Bills reports larceny

Cass City Police recently investigated a larceny complaint filed by an area businessman.

Thomas Bills, owner of Thomas Roofing Co., told police that someone stole a battery from a company truck parked at 6351 Sixth St., sometime between Sept. 1 and Sept. 6.

The battery is valued at $60, reports state.

There are 2.5 million rivets in the Eiffel Tower.

Your neighbor says "Last Temptation" is just a movie

Area residents will have to take a journey to see one of the most controversial films in recent years, "The Last Temptation of Christ," as the film will not be shown at either the Cass or Strand theatres.

And although people say it is not tactful to talk about one's religion or politics, that's what your neighbor, Mark Forbush, parleyed to us last week.

"Definitely, no doubt about that," Mark answered quickly when asked if he's going to see the religious film.

When approached with the question if all the squabble about the film is warranted, Mark replied, "It's just a movie."

Mark went a step further to express what he feels will be interesting about the film. "It will show all sides of the story. Besides, if you don't want to watch (the movie), don't go."

Forbush, who lives in Vassar, was in Cass City on business and is 22 years old.
