CASS CITY, MICHIGAN - WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1988

A 78-YEAR-OLD DETROIT area man became Sanilac County's 19th traffic fatality last week when he stepped in front of this van on M-53 just north of Pringle Road in Evergreen Township.

Hunter killed in crash

A hunting trip tragically ended last Wednesday for a father and son from the Detroit area when the father was struck by a van and killed on M-53 in Sanilac County's Evergreen Township.

Sanilac County Sheriff's deputies said Walter S. Perdos, Detroit, was walking near the middle of M-53 just north of Pringle Road at about 5:45 p.m. when a northbound van, driven by Hector Rodriguez, Bad Axe, struck him.

Reports state 2 southbound vehicles narrowly missed Perdos before he walked onto the path of the Rodriguez vehicle.

According to Deputy Dennis Prowse, both Perdos and his son, who were staying at the nearby Wildwood Farms Motel, had been in the woods hunting prior to the accident. He said Perdos became cold, so his son walked him out to the pair's car, put him into the vehicle and went back into the woods to get their equipment. "We don't know why he got out of the car," Prowse said.

Cass City Police and Cass City-Mercy Ambulance personnel assisted deputies at the scene.

Perdos is Sanilac County's 19th traffic-related fatality in 1988. The last year Sanilac County had as many as in 1978.

Christmas Storytime lights go on in Monday ceremony

This year's Christmas Storytime display lighting ceremony is scheduled for Monday at 7 p.m., when the work of several months under the direction of Lloyd Vyse and Carl Schell will be officially opened for viewing.

A simple ceremony is planned, according to Jane Hittler, Chamber of Commerce member who is coordinating the event. The Bell Choir, under the direction of Marilyn Peters, will perform.

Hot chocolate will be served by the Teen Club of St. Pancratius Church. Cookies have been furnished by many volunteers in the community. Because rain ruined the lighting ceremony last year, this year's program will be in one of the utility buildings at Cass City Recreational Park, Hittler said.

The program will be brief and is free. All area residents are invited.

After season's first snow

Drivers lose control on slick roads

The area's first significant snowfall contributed to a number of vehicle accidents last week.

An 18-year-old Owendale woman was injured Thursday when she lost control of her vehicle in Columbia Township, Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputies said Melissa K. Weisenbach, 8624 Canboro Rd., was eastbound on Bay City-Forestville Road west of Remington Road at about 12:30 p.m. when her vehicle left the slush covered roadway and rolled into a ditch.

Weisenbach, whose vehicle sustained moderate damage, was treated for minor injuries and released from Scheurer Hospital, Pigeon.

Later the same day, area resident Evelyn E.

Warmbier, 78, 4224 Woodland Ave., was injured when she lost control of her car and collided with another vehicle in Elmwood Township.

Reports state Warmbier was eastbound on Elmwood Road east of Jacob Road when her vehicle slid sideways across the slick roadway and struck a westbound vehicle driven by Kenneth J. Martin Jr., 4045 Jacob Rd., Caro.

Warmbier, who was cited for driving left of the center line, was treated for minor injuries at Hills and Dale General Hospital, Cass City, and then released.

Both vehicles sustained moderate damage in the 5:35 p.m. crash.

Franklin R. Gould, 1247 S. Plain Rd., Deford, was driving west on Bevans Road east of Froede Road in Wells Township Thursday when his vehicle went out of control, left the south side of the road and rolled over once. His vehicle sustained moderate damage in the 7:25 p.m. mishap.

Also Thursday, icy road conditions contributed to a minor one-vehicle accident at the intersection of Snover Road and Phillips Road in

Czekais' fire loss set at $30,000

A Cass City family lost nearly all of their belongings in a fire that caused some $30,000 in damage Friday evening.

Elkland Township fire fighters spent about 2 hours at the Wally Czekai residence, 4544 Brooker St., following the 8:19 p.m. alarm.

Fire Chief Dick Root, who noted that the family wasn't at home when the blaze broke out, said the fire was confined primarily to a porch area and the kitchen. Smoke damage took a heavy toll on the house, he said.

"The damage was probably $25,000 to $30,000. At this time it's unknown what caused it," Root continued.

The Czekais currently are staying at the Charmont Motel, according to their son, Kevin, 18. He noted the home was insured, but that it will be some time before the structure can be occupied again.

A FRIDAY EVENING fire caused an estimated $30,000 in damage at the Wally Czekai residence, 4544 Brooker St., Cass City. The cause of the blaze was undetermined as of Monday.

Superintendents agree

Schools need more than tax bill offer

Four area school superintendents' views on Gov. James J. Blanchard's school tax shift plan range from cautious optimism to frustration, but all agree that school financing is in need of nothing less than true reform.

The House-passed version of Blanchard's ballot proposition, which calls for a raise in the sales tax of one cent and a reduction in school property taxes by 25 percent for homeowners and 10 percent for businesses, was expected to go to the Senate Tuesday, 2 days before the Legislature is slated to adjourn for Christmas.

Under Blanchard's plan, the sales tax hike would be used to offset reduced revenue from millages, which would be capped at 28 mills, although an additional 2 mills could be approved by voters beginning in 1991.

The state estimates the program would generate more than $100 million for education each year.

A lack of specifics, particularly on how the state would allocate those funds, makes it difficult to evaluate the proposal, Kingston School Supt. Jerry H. Laycock said.

Laycock termed Blanchard's plan "inadequate", adding, "It's really going to have to spell out more than a tax shift and it's going to have to have some guarantees. There aren't many details that I've seen on Gov. Blanchard's plan; that's one of the problems." Laycock said he would like to see the proposal include a minimum per-pupil allocation for schools, or earmark a certain percentage of the state's budget for education, for example.

"It doesn't do any good to raise a penny in one place and drop it somewhere else. I don't think the public is any longer gullible enough to buy another program that raises taxes without guarantees," he remarked.

He added that the state's practice of increasingly putting more financial responsibility on the backs of local taxpayers by reducing its contribution to education "has got to stop."

"Schools shouldn't have to be out every year asking for money to open their school buildings," he said.

Owen-Gage School Supt. Harley Kirby concurred.

"If they (state) don't earmark some money for education, everybody's going to have to go for the extra 2 mills," he said.

WON'T HURT

The superintendent noted that regardless of what is approved in education finance reform, it probably won't hurt districts like Owen-Gage, which began receiving state per-pupil aid this year for the first time. "Whatever they do is going to help us; we're now levying (a maximum) 40 mills."

The question, Kirby pointed out, is to what extent Blanchard's proposal is going to help disadvantaged school districts.

"I don't know if a penny's going to do it. It's probably too little," he remarked. "They've got to do more than lip service because that doesn't help anybody."

Uby School Supt. David Landeryou questioned whether the state can make any significant impact without guaranteeing consistent, additional funding for education.

"If they just make a tax shift, I don't see how it can benefit the Uby Schools at all," he said.

Cass City School Supt.

Ken Micklash indicated he's cautiously optimistic regarding lawmakers' efforts towards school finance reform.

"I think all the proposals they're talking about are going to help us to some extent because we're at the lower end of the spectrum on per-pupil spending," he said.

Micklash stated he would like to see any additional education funding allocated via the state aid formula.

"We've gotten less and less state aid because the formula hasn't kept up with inflation. If they (state) funded the present state aid formula to the level it should be, it would help resolve a lot of our problems," he said.

Cass River fish kill thwarted

As expected, a fish kill is not among the proposals in a report recently completed by DNR District 11 officials outlining suggestions to improve fishing in the Cass River.

However, the DNR's prescription for management of the river system won't likely be filled in the near future, officials indicated.

The report, written following a second survey of the river and 2 public informational meetings held over the summer, hasn't yet been approved in Lansing. But District 11 Fisheries Supervisor Bill Gruhn said he expects no disagreement from his superiors.

Gruhn stated in a quarterly newsletter that the second river survey, conducted in June, revealed no apparent change in the Cass' fish community since a 1985 survey, which showed that 90 percent of the river's fish population (by weight) consists of non-game fish such as carp, suckers, redhorse and various minnows.

Despite that conclusion, sportsmen who attended public information meetings July 27 in Cass City and Aug. 1 in Frankenmuth voiced "absolutely no support" for a total fish kill and restocking of the river.

Gruhn continued, "In view of this non-support, several alternatives were discussed and it was agreed the following plan would be followed."

—Work with U.S. Soil Conservation and Stabilization Service plus riparians to control erosion and siltation. This would include green belting along agricultural fields, and stream bank stabilization.

—Work with local units of government, sportman's groups and other interested groups on instream habitat enhancement. These groups would be encouraged to utilize the Michigan Youth Conservation Program and the Inland Fisheries Cooperative Grants program to accomplish these projects.

—Fisheries Division would also carry out habitat enhancement projects as manpower and funds allow.

—Finally, stocking of predators, such as muskellunge, walleye and northern pike, will be utilized where there are reasonable expectations of success.

The goal of the plan is 2-fold; to increase game or sports fish species with commensurate reductions in non-game species. But implementation is easier said than done, according to Gruhn and Don Nelson, a District 11 Fisheries biologist.

One temporary road block is a shift in DNR districts, which went into effect Nov. 1 but won't be completely settled for another 2 or 3 years, Nelson said.

Under the redistricting, District 11, which previously covered Genesee, Lapeer, Shiawassee, Sanilac, Saginaw, Huron, Tuscola and the north half of St. Clair counties, will now cover Lapeer, Genesee, Shiawassee, Gratiot, Ingham, Clinton, Eaton and Livingston counties. Saginaw, Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties will be managed by the District 8 Office at Clare. Plans call for the eventual relocation of this office to Bay City. Please turn to page 16.

Music,
music,
music???

by Melva E. Guinther

They just don't write songs like they used to.

We recently invested in a set of tapes called the "Greatest Songs Ever Written." It features songs like "Little Things Mean A Lot," "Moments To Remember" and "Far Away Places." Songs with tunes, tunes that you can remember, hum, sing along or harmonize with.

Where are the singable songs today? The songs with meaning, like "Serenade of the Bells," "My Happiness," "I'll Be Seeing You," "Side By Side"? Even "Hang Down Your Head, Tom Dooley" was fun to sing, whether you liked the lyrics or not.

And don't you miss the old Mitch Miller sing-alongs? Everybody can sing "Down By The Old Mill Stream," "I've Been Working on The Railroad" and "When You Were A Tulip."

Modern music, by contrast, can only be screamed, and convulsed to.

The other day a young man drove by and I thought he was having a seizure. Really. His face expressed anguish and his body was contorted. I expected that car to plow into the side of the Chronicle building. Only when he stopped at the corner did I realize he was merely "enjoying" the music on his car radio.

You shouldn't have to endure such pain in the name of music.

There's this to be said for youth. They aren't selfish. They are determined to share their music with the world. On the beach, at the park, or passing by on the street, they crank that blaster up full volume so nobody can miss (escape) it.

In order to know whereof I speak, I watched the "top 20 hits" on MTV, the music channel. (The things I endure in the name of research!) Only 2 of the numbers had merit, in my opinion, "Groovy Kind of Love" by Phil Collins and "Kissing A Fool" by George Michael. Part of their appeal was that they neither assaulted the ears nor offended the morals.

Most of the songs were LOUD, repetitious and vul-

Six attended the quarterly meeting of Michigan Association of Regular Baptist churches in the Baptist Church at Ortonville. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. George Fisher Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ewald, Mrs. Rosella Kretschmer and Pastor John Wood.

Two new members, Michelle Biddinger and Patricia Greenwood, were welcomed during the Cass City Business and Professional Women's Nov. 28 meeting, held at the Charmont.

Guest speaker Eleanor Mendola joined the club's 15 members in attendance. Mendola, the district 11 director for Michigan's Business and Professional Women's group, gave a talk on the workings of the organization. A question and answer period followed.

The local club's next meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Dec. 12 at the home of Cathy Kropewnicki.

The club is open to all working women. Additional information is available by calling 872-4087 or 872-4247.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale A. Weidman

Maryke Ann Venema and Dale Alan Weidman were united in marriage Oct. 15 at Colwood United Brethren Church, Caro. Pastor David Burkett officiated at the 2 p.m. double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Hessel and Ruth Venema of Deford. The groom is the son of Orville and Marge Weidman of Caro.

Music selections included "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Us," "Love in Any Language," "Love Will be Our Home," and "Trumpet Voluntary in D." Musicians were Judy Titus, organist/pianist; Heather Kurtz, trumpet; and Keith Burk, soloist.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a sheer gown featuring a Queen Anne neckline on a beaded silk Venice lace yoke with a fitted Chantilly lace bodice. It also featured leg-o-mutton mock sleeves with a sheer top and Chantilly lace lower sleeve with silk Venice cuffs. The basque waist of Venice lace featured scattering appliques on a full skirt extending into a lace trimmed chapel-length train. Her hat featured a triple row pearl edged brim with satin headband, accented with silk Venice lace and pearl filaments.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and pink and white mini carnations.

Matron of honor was Brenda Venema, sister-in-law of the bride. Bridesmaids were Denise Weidman, sister of the groom, and Cindy Gardner, friend of the bride. They wore teal tea-length gowns.

Best man was Neil Weidman, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Stanley Venema and Martin Venema, brothers of the bride. Ushers were Stuart Venema and Robert Venema, brothers of the bride. The groomsmen and ushers wore French-grey shadow weave tuxedos.

Flower girls were Amy Venema and Erin Venema, nieces of the bride.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall where the couple greeted guests from the Netherlands, Ontario, Canada, Tennessee, Indiana and Michigan.

Following a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls, the Eastern states and Florida, the couple resides in Cass City.

"If It Fitz..."

Jam killer

By Jim Fitzgerald

Oh, Lord. While solving the world's most pressing problems, as is my custom, I recently expressed approval of homemade strawberry jam enclosed in jars with paraffin (wax) lids. I was immediately accused of encouraging the poisoning of people.

"Jams should never be sealed with paraffin," I was told by Free Press reporter Neal Rubin. "Jellies, yes, because they are smooth at the top, but jams are lumpy, which means air can get trapped between the peaches and the paraffin, and cretinous little growths can set up housekeeping there and kill your entire family and the families of your readers."

Rubin gleaned this gelatinous information while writing an article about canning contests at the Michigan State Fair. He made me feel like a jam killer, which is worse than a cereal killer. I'd rather attack a box of Rice Krispies than a jar of strawberry preserves, because of the danger of broken glass.

Ironically, it was never my intent to praise paraffin lids; I was praising the jar. On the contrary, I wrote bad things about the lids, such as: Paraffin can be insidious and, if not inscrutable, certainly unscrewable. Because it is below the top of the jar, a paraffin lid can't be removed simply by gripping it firmly and turning counter-clockwise. It also cannot be pried loose. Although the invader's intention is to pick the disk of paraffin up and out of the jar, this can be accomplished only by pushing one side of it down and into the jar. This causes the paraffin to crumble and/or flake into the jam, giving it an unpleasant taste.

ANSWER HAS STRINGS ATTACHED

Several readers responded that I wouldn't have trouble removing paraffin lids if I pulled the right strings. Doris Cohen of Southfield wrote: "Place a string that overlaps jar that is filled with jam, then cover it with paraffin. When ready to use jam (after paraffin is hardened), lift string and out comes the paraffin."

The instructions from Wynne McCubrey of Birmingham were a little different: "Pour hot wax (one-eighth inch approx.) over jam. Lay a short string across wax and let it cool. Then pour another one-eighth inch layer of hot wax on top to seal together." To help me understand, McCubrey enclosed a paraffin lid with the two ends of the trapped string sticking out of opposite sides, as handy as a handle.

I now keep that stringed paraffin lid on my desk as a constant reminder that I know something about canning that my wife doesn't know. It never occurred to her that string could be used to keep flakes of wax out of jam and jelly. Which only proves again that a man can't be too careful when choosing a wife.

But none of the paraffin-using readers seemed to realize they were risking death by poison — if doom-spreader Rubin knew what he was spreading about. I checked with Lois Thieleke, a home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service and an experienced judge of canning contests. She conceded paraffin lids cause weeping, but not in mourning.

EVEN JELLY SOMETIMES WEEPS

Thieleke doesn't recommend paraffin lids for jam or jelly because home canners usually don't make the lids stick tight enough to the jar. "The lid floats, air is trapped inside in hills and valleys, which causes the lid to pop and the jam or jelly to weep."

Just as I suspected. In this context, weeping is the same as leaking all over the outside of jars and down onto shelves. Messy. Most home canners use two-piece metal lids that prohibit weeping, or even frowning. In fact, if paraffin-lidded jams and jellies are entered in State Fair contests, they're not even judged, Thieleke said.

But what about poison? Are air pockets caused by paraffin lids really the breeding ground of cretinous little growths that could wipe out entire families? No.

There can be mold growths but they're just yucky, not toxic, Thieleke said. Reporter Rubin probably exaggerated, something a columnist would never do.

Onward and Upward. Extremely popped paraffin causes sobbing.

The Haire Net

One of the biggest myths generally accepted as gospel is that when you are self-employed you are your own boss. That's true if being your own boss means not having to report to an immediate superior at a certain time each day.

But if it means freedom of choice, the self-employed strike out. The freedom of choice ends for most when they decide to work for themselves.

As owner of a very small business, I tend to believe that when the business is small, the freedom of choice is even less than when it is large.

That's probably not true. The other day I was at Walbro Corporation at 7 a.m. The general offices were dark and unused. But I noticed that Lambert Althaver, Robert Walpole and Forest Walpole, all company executives, were already there to start the day's work.

Persons working for others are quick to point out that if the boss comes in early, it's not that he had to be there. You're not fired if you decide that today's the day that you will take off. No one can say no.

That's true. It's also true for the guy working by the hour or the week. If he or she doesn't give a darn about the consequences, there's nothing in the law that says he has to go to work on any given day.

What it comes down to is that how much or how little freedom of choice we have is not so much what we do, but our priorities. I met a guy a while ago who took his wife, his kids in a small mobile home and spent over a year cruising around the country. He didn't have any fortune or sure-thing waiting for him when he left. He made walking around money doing odd jobs to keep going.

When I met him he had started his own business again and was prospering. That's being your own boss, but could you do it? I couldn't. If you could, then you are your own boss even if you punch a time clock every day.

I suspect more are like me than like the guy who took the year off. Even when things are going well, there's worry about what may happen down the road. That's what ties me to my job and makes the business my boss. A very demanding one, too.

In a way I envy the person who goes with the flow, has no fear of the day after tomorrow.

I don't know many self-employed persons like that. I know of none that are of my generation.

I'm not saying that this is good or bad, just the way it is. My business will be a demanding boss until the day I hang 'em up for good.

Postal officials urge

Mail now for Christmas

Area Postal Service officials are urging area residents to mail as soon as possible if they want cards and packages to reach their destinations by Christmas.

"All overseas mail is already at deadline and past deadline," Cass City Postmaster Bill Zinnecker said Friday. At this point, overseas mail will have to be sent at first class rates in order to make it by the holiday, he said, adding, even then, for some areas, that's really pushing it.

For mail destined for states outside of Michigan, area residents should mail by Dec. 15, while in-state mail should be sent by Dec. 19, Zinnecker suggested.

Unfortunately, he remarked, with the holiday on a weekend, people tend to think they have more time than they actually do. And procrastination results in paying premium rates and the possibility that the mail simply won't arrive by Christmas.

"We're really slow now

(and) we should be busy. The last 2 weeks are going to be a zoo," he continued. "The business mail will slow down in December, but the average person just waits too long, really."

Walbro Corporation is featured in the current (Dec. 12) issue of Forbes magazine. The story tells about the takeover attempt by UIS that cost Walbro $4.9 million. The story is accompanied by a full color photo of Lambert Althaver, Walbro's chairman, president and chief executive officer. Forbes can be read at the Rawson Memorial Library.

It's that time again. Volunteers are needed to help erect the Christmas Story display at Cass City Recreational Park Saturday morning. Organizers want to have the job completed at noon. It's not necessary to be a member of the Chamber of Commerce to help out, Chamber President Tom Herron said.

The jackpot for the last of the 3 drawings sponsored by Cass City merchants is building up. Among the 5 lucky winners in the first drawing Saturday, only one was present. That means that 4 received $50 instead of $100 and the $200 not given away will be added to the final drawing slated Dec. 17.

Why is it that I have a hard time thinking that cigarettes and gum cost as much as they do? I know better, but subconsciously I still feel the weeds are 25 cents and gum a nickel a pack, the price I paid when I used both.

We learned it from the people we serve. We learned it by working with them everyday.

In a business as competitive as banking, the secret to success is simple Hard work.

DEER/VEHICLE CRASHES ACCELERATE IN AUTUMN

MICHIGAN DEER/VEHICLE CRASHES ANNUALLY

BEWARE OF DEER - Of almost 40,000 deer/vehicle accidents in 1987, more than half occurred between October and December, deer mating season. The number of crashes jumped 81 percent from 1983 to 1987, with repairs averaging $1,200 per vehicle statewide. AAA Michigan urges motorists to:

- Be extra alert during autumn.
- Ease to a slow pace if you see a deer and blink headlights or sound your horn. Don't panic or try to dodge a moving deer; it may run toward you in a dash.
- Watch at night for shining eyes.
- Assume more deer may be near if one appears.
- Report all accidents to local police or the DNR and your insurance company. You may obtain a permit to keep the deer.
- Educate other drivers to take extra precautions in autumn and always wear your seatbelt.

Deer plague area drivers

Deer continued to plague area motorists over the past week, causing a host of vehicle accidents.

A vehicle driven by Cass City resident Dale L. Vollmar, 6295 Pringle Rd., sustained extensive damage early Saturday morning when it struck several small trees after swerving to miss a deer.

Vollmar told Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies that he was driving west on Deckerville Road east of Cameron Road in Almer Township at about 3 a.m. when the deer leaped into his path, causing him to run off the south side of the road. Tiena J. Britton, 3833 Plain Rd., Kingston, reported moderate damage to her vehicle Nov. 30 after hitting a deer on Kingston Road south of Mushroom Road in Kingston Township. The mishap occurred at about 5:40 p.m.

Deputies also handled minor damage reports from Francis C. Hall Jr. of Caro, who struck a deer Nov. 30 while driving east on Cass City Road west of Koepfgen Road; Glenda A. Wilson of Gagetown, whose vehicle collided with a deer Nov. 30 on Bay City-Forestville Road west of Richie Road in Elkland Township; Caro resident Delbert E. Woodruff Jr., who hit a deer Nov. 29 while driving west on Bevans Road east of Froede Road in Wells Township, and Catherine Lenda of Cass City, who struck a deer Nov. 29 on Kingston Road south of Lanaway Road in Koylton Township.

Kingston Camp zoning meet delayed by motion

A motion recently filed by Pioneer Work and Learn Center attorneys to postpone a Koylton Township Zoning Board of Appeals meeting set for Dec. 14 was granted Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

The meeting had been scheduled for the purpose of hearing arguments from Pioneer and Koylton Township zoning officials, who charge that Pioneer's use of Kingston Camp as a juvenile rehabilitation facility violates township zoning laws.

But attorney Samuel E. McCargo, who is representing Pioneer, charged that the hearing was set before camp attorneys had completed discovery.

He also requested in his motion that the hearing be slated during business hours because of potential witnesses' fear for their safety due to a "tremendously hostile and racially discriminatory atmosphere" in the township.

According to township Zoning Board member

Russell Mayer, the hearing will be held sometime in March.

"What happened Friday was that both sides agreed (discovery will be completed) no later than the first of March, and the meeting will be on either the fourth or the eleventh."

Mayer noted both sides agreed to hold the hearing on a Saturday and, if necessary, carry the proceedings over to a Sunday.

"This should be the final" date, he continued, adding that the appeals board will make a decision based on both parties' arguments. Circuit court, however, maintains final jurisdiction in the matter, he said.

STATE POLICE

Cass City resident Dale Buehly told troopers at the state police post in Caro that he struck a deer Saturday evening while driving west on Deckerville Road east of Plain Road in Ellington Township. Slight damage was reported in the 6:30 p.m. mishap.

CASS CITY POLICE

Cass City Police handled 2 minor car-deer accidents Saturday.

Reports state Steven A. Osentoski was driving west on East Cass City Road east of Schwieger Road at about 6 p.m. when his vehicle collided with a deer.

About an hour later, David P. Light of North Branch hit a deer while driving south on Cemetery Road north of Severance Road.

Cable franchise okayed in Novesta

Some Deford area residents will be able to purchase cable television following the Novesta Township Board's approval of a franchise agreement with Cable Properties Inc., North Branch, Monday night.

Township Clerk Nursie Kloc explained that the contract, which was reviewed by the township's attorney, will allow the company to run cable through Deford from Kingston. In exchange, the township will receive 3 percent of the gross revenue generated from fees paid within the township.

The township would receive payment after the first 12 months of operation, Kloc reported.

In other business during the monthly meeting, long-time Supervisor William O'Dell swore in all township officers with the exception of new Supervisor Maynard Stine, who was unable to attend the meeting. Stine was sworn into office last month.

Also Monday, a reception was held following the meeting in honor of O'Dell's 12 years as supervisor.

If the board decides in favor of the township and Pioneer accepts that decision, that will be the end, Mayer remarked. He added, however, "knowing this case, that's not where it's going to end."

Snow security

Snow security: A frosty blanket of snow is more than ground covering. Insulation is one of snow's most valuable gifts. National Wildlife magazine reports that pheasants, quail and rabbits retain more body heat when bedded down in deep snow. Snowflakes trap dead air to form one of nature's more efficient insulators.

In district court

3 Caro area residents arraigned

A 20-year-old Caro man was arraigned over the weekend in Tuscola County District Court on a charge of 3 nonsufficient fund checks within 10 days.

A preliminary examination for John T. Booth, 137

First St., was scheduled for 9 a.m. Dec. 14. Bond was set at $2,000.

The charge stems from 3 checks, in the amounts of $12.20, $49.30 and $16.30, drawn on Mayville State Bank between May 18 and May 21, 1987, court records state.

Also arraigned over the past week was Mary J. Putnam, 29, 1617 E. Caro Rd., Caro, who faces a no account check charge.

Putnam's preliminary exam also is slated for 9 a.m. Dec. 14. Bond was set at $2,000.

The charge stems from a $150 check, drawn on American Home Bank in Indianfields Township, dated Sept. 9 and allegedly signed by Putnam as "Mary J. Popp".

Another Caro resident, Deborah R. Kapa, 1582 Gilford Rd., was arraigned on charges of welfare fraud over $500 and welfare fraud—failure to inform—$500 or more.

A preliminary exam has been scheduled for 8 a.m. Thursday. Bond is set at $2,000.

Kapa, 35, allegedly obtained assistance—in the form of Aid to Dependent Children and food stamps—to which she was not entitled April 6, and neglected to submit income-related information regarding the same March 16.

Robbery suspect sought

Troopers from the state police post in Caro are still looking for a suspect in connection with the early Friday morning robbery of the M-46 Party Store, located about 5 miles south of Caro.

The suspect, a white male wearing a nylon over his face, entered the store at about 2:45 a.m., according to reports. He then walked to a back room, confronted the store clerk and ordered her to give him money.

The suspect indicated he had a gun, but the clerk didn't see a weapon, troopers said.

The man, described as being 5 feet, 10 inches tall and weighing 160 to 180 pounds, then fled on foot with $1,350. A dog unit from the post tracked the suspect across M-24 to a car pool area, where police believe he fled in a vehicle.

Big horn battles

Big horn battles: Throughout their lifetime, male big horn sheep perform ritualistic head-butting battles. Natural Wildlife magazine reports that during these battles the 2 charging gladiators often reach a combined speed of 45 miles per hour.

Often, the horns meet with a resounding crack that can be heard more than a mile away. Luckily for these ram warriors, evolution has given them a double-layered skull and thick facial hide that can withstand tremendous blows.

Meeting celebrities is part of the job for Root, Ballard

There's little doubt many area music enthusiasts would love to trade places with Cass City graduates John Ballard and Joy Root, at least for a little while.

After all, how many contemporary music buffs would mind rubbing elbows with recording stars like Mick Fleetwood, Nicolette Larson, Meatloaf, Juice Newton, Otis Redding III, Ted Nugent, Jeff Carlisi of 38 Special, sax man Alto Reed of the Bob Seger Silver Bullet Band, or Motley Crue's Tommy Lee and Vince Neil?

Or how about meeting actors such as Lee's wife, Heather Locklear, Lorenzo Lamas, or Lee Curreri of the television show, "Fame"?

Ballard, 31, and Root, 22, both of Cass City, have gotten to know these and other music stars and actors through their work with Visual Services Inc., a Bloomfield Hills marketing firm.

The couple explained that their work involves helping to organize and run several anti-drinking and driving related promotions sponsored by Dodge and Goodyear. The work consists primarily of 3 programs, but all of them are interrelated, Ballard said.

Perhaps the most visible and exciting program of the 3 this year, according to Root, was working on the Dodge International Star Challenge, a series of celebrity road races aimed at creating awareness of the dangers of mixing drinking and/or drugs with driving.

With a theme of "Think... don't drive with drugs or drink!", the series pitted recording artists against each other in identically prepared 1988 Dodge Daytona Shelby Z sports cars.

HOSTESS

Root served as hostess to the recording stars during their week-long stays at the various race sites. The work was exciting, albeit tiring, she admitted.

"I just baby-sat for them 24 hours a day," she remarked, adding her duties included everything from wake-up calls to making sure the celebrity racers got to the right places at the right times. "We took them wherever they wanted to go."

Root said her duties allowed her to spend a great deal of time with the celebrities. "You get so close to them. You get to know their families, you get to know everything about them," she added.

Ballard, whose work kept him at the tracks much of the time, pointed out that the celebrity event, one of several Dodge-sponsored races occurring during the same time period, is far from all fun and games.

"These are professional race tracks," he said, adding the cars used by the amateur racers were modified to reach high speeds. All the participants were required to undergo training by officials from the well-known Skip Barber Racing School, he said.

TENSE

"They're (racers) scared and it's tense. There's an element of danger as well as excitement."

Despite many of their on-stage images, Root noted that the music stars and actors she has become friends with during the race weeks aren't snobbish, nor are they heavy drinkers or partiers. They often just enjoy talking about a new song or plans for their next video.

"You think of them (rock stars) as being wild, but they're super sweet. It's like they have 2 personalities, one on-stage and one off."

Ballard agreed. "We're promoting saving lives. They're donating their time, and for them, time is money."

And, the friendships haven't ended with the races.

Root said she sometimes gets free concert tickets and backstage passes. She recently received a visitor, rhythm and blues artist Otis Redding III, who wanted to get away from the city for awhile.

Redding, whose father recorded the popular tune, "Dock of the Bay," spent a week soaking up the local culture as well as visiting other areas of the Thumb with Root and Ballard as his guides.

KEPT BUSY

Aside from the celebrity challenge races, the area couple have been kept busy with 2 other promotional events.

"We do a national collegiate driving (event) where we go into college campus parking lots and set up racing courses," Ballard said. He added the activity accents the fun of driving with a competition for college students, who drive a Daytona through a pylon-marked course with the emphasis on how quick and accurately they can drive.

Another program, called "Think Fast," involves a special car developed by Dodge.

Ballard explained that volunteer drivers enter their weight in an on-board computer and then the number and type of drinks they usually consume in a given period of time. The computer, he said, automatically adjusts the car's operation to reflect the effects of the alcohol on the driver's coordination and reflexes.

"It's a really neat car because it gives you the impression of driving and being drunk," he adding, "The program just started. We did a tour this summer, at shopping malls primarily."

Although their work may seem like the stuff dreams are made of, Ballard and Root pointed out some of the realities connected to the glamour.

"We're on the road" a great deal, the couple said. Ballard, who noted this is the first month they've been home in 9 months, remarked that events such as the celebrity races require a lot of time in preparation and clean-up.

"We can go weeks without a day off, it all depends," Root said.

Ballard nodded. "I'll bet I've driven a quarter million miles over the past 4 years. I've at least driven through every state in the country except Alaska and Hawaii."

He added, "It's just a job and it happens to be fun and unique. It's nothing special."

MOTLEY CRUE'S Tommy Lee (left) hams it up with Cass City resident Joy Root during one of Dodge's International Star Challenge races, held earlier this year.

Energy funds available

Human Development Commission officials, together with the American Home Bank, recently announced that money is still available for Michigan Energy Bank Home Rehabilitation through the Michigan State Housing Development Authority.

How does the Energy Bank work? The MEB provides money based on percentages described later to reduce the amount of money a homeowner borrows to make energy conservation improvements. The MEB funds are not considered outright grants, but are reductions to the principal of the loan.

The low-interest loans through MSHDA have an interest rate of 1 percent to 9 percent based on a family adjusted gross income (adjusted meaning $750 deducted from yearly income for each family member). The minimum amount borrowed is $500 with a maximum loan of $15,000.

Homeowners whose adjusted gross income is under $20,000 per year, and whose taxes and insurance are up to date might qualify for this low interest housing loan and MEB money.

Additional information is available by calling the Human Development Commission at (517) 673-4121.

Milk consumption rising, according to Farm Bureau

Milk consumption has stabilized and is even on the rise and that's good news for dairy producers, according to Michigan Farm Bureau commodity specialist Kevin Kirk.

"The average American drinks about 28 gallons of milk a year. That's more than the 250 12-ounce beers or the 550 6-ounce cups of coffee they consume in a year, but soft drinks are still way in the lead in the battle for the beverage market, with 46 gallons per person," Kirk said.

Kirk said it was concerns about health that turned consumers off to milk in the late 1960s and 1970s and now it's a "health kick" that's turning them back on.

"When Americans became concerned about lowering the amount of fat in their diets, they cut down on their milk consumption. Now, they're concerned about adequate calcium in their diets and are recognizing the nutritional value of milk. I credit that turnaround in public attitude to the dairy farmers of America for aggressively promoting their products," Kirk said.

As health-conscious as Americans have become, they have not turned away from their favorite beverage

HEALTH TIPS

Hypothermia alert

As temperatures dip down around the freezing mark, Consumers Power Company has issued an alert about hypothermia, or low body temperature.

Temperatures do not have to be extremely low for hypothermia to be a threat, says Kirk W. Shoultz, Tri-City District Manager. Most hypothermia victims suffer the problem at temperatures between 30 and 50 degrees, he says.

Older adults are more susceptible because they have difficulty conserving body heat. However, infants and individuals weakened by injuries or diseases may also be at risk, Shoultz notes.

For most people, mild exposure to cold will not cause hypothermia because their bodies' defenses are equal to the task. The average normal body temperature is 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. A body temperature below 95 degrees is considered hypothermic.

The condition requires medical attention because it can endanger the victim, even to the point of being fatal.

Shoultz suggested some signs that could indicate hypothermia:

- *Cool or cold skin, particularly on the stomach, lower back, arms, legs, hands and feet. The skin may be very pale, but also may have large, irregular blue or pink spots with a puffy or swollen face.
- *Unusual muscle stiffness, particularly in the neck, arms and legs, sometimes accompanied by a fine trembling on one side of the body or in a limb.
- *Slowed breathing and heart rate, perhaps to the point of being difficult to detect.
- *Mental confusion or disorientation.
- *Decreased physical energy and activity.
- *Irritable, hostile or aggressive behavior.

If no professional medical help is readily available, Shoultz recommends the following:

- *Insulate the person's head and neck; use blankets, quilts, clothing or whatever is available as covering. Don't try to have the person remove or put on additional clothing.
- *Do not try to rewarm the person; techniques such as a hot bath or shower can cause sudden shock and heart failure. Rewarming is a complicated process and should be done only by trained medical personnel.
- *Do not try to administer food or liquids and be very gentle.

Shoultz says that dressing properly and getting good nutrition are vital to avoiding hypothermia. He urges having hot, nourishing meals and warm beverages and wearing loose layered clothing, a hat and neck scarf. Taking such precautions will minimize the risks of hypothermia, he says.

Writers to meet in Sandusky

Local writers are invited to attend the final 1988 meeting of the Thumb Area Writer's Club Dec. 13 in Sandusky. It will be held in the Sanilac County conference rooms, 37 Austin St., at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting will begin with the wrap-up of old business and the appointment of a nominating committee for the election of officers in January.

The popular "show & tell" segment is again offered to writers who have had books, articles, stories or poems published. Book authors will be allowed to sell their books during the informal discussion period.

Persons interested in receiving more information on TAWC and its activities can send for a copy of the club's monthly newsletter, "Thumbprints." Send a self-addressed, stamped, business size envelope and 50¢ to: TAWC, 215 Ellington St., Caro, MI 48723.

Your neighbor says

Snowmobiling is enjoyable pastime

With the changing seasons and temperatures, it won't be long before winter's white blanket covers the ground. And that will provide a whole new avenue of adventure for cold weather fans.

Ice fishermen will begin setting up their shanties, ski buffs will dig out their boards to make sure they're ready when they get the opportunity to hit the slopes.

Children are, no doubt, the luckiest of all, as their entertainment will come in simple things like building snow sculptures or perhaps sledding with the family or just being in mother nature's cover with a friend.

Your neighbor, Janet Kubacki of Cass City, says one of her favorite winter pastimes is snowmobiling on her property. And although the vibrant youth enjoys the winter, she told us when asked, if she could go anywhere on a winter vacation she'd flee to a warmer climate.

"I'd like to go to Singapore," responded the 10th grader at Cass City High school.

Why?

"Because I've always liked what I've read about it," responded Janet, all smiles.

Janet is the daughter of Anthony and Mary Ann Kubacki.

At annual meeting

Laurie urges spending freeze

The number one priority of President-Elect George Bush should be an across-the-board freeze on federal spending, Michigan Farm Bureau President Jack Laurie told an audience of about 700 farmers in Grand Rapids last Wednesday.

The Tuscola County farmer delivered his second annual address to members attending the 69th annual meeting of the state's largest farm organization.

Laurie told the farmers that voters, especially when organized into special interest groups, demand services from government, services that need to be financed with taxes.

"In recent years, there has been an overwhelming demand for services and increased spending, a demand that outstripped the supply of tax dollars. As a result, the federal budget deficit marched on to the tune of hundreds of billions of dollars each year," he said.

"Our current political and budget system is rigged to perpetuate the smooth functioning of the spending machine. Few politicians have ever been thrown out of office for bringing too much federal money back to their districts. These congressmen don't have much incentive to show a little backbone and stand up to the pleadings of special interest groups."

"The agricultural industry has to share some of the blame. Farmers are a special interest group who have lobbied successfully to fund programs that are important

5 residents on Ferris honor list

Five area residents are among nearly 1,200 Ferris State University students recently named to the school's honors list for the fall quarter.

The local students are Craig T. Langmaid, Patrick A. Peters and Daniel B. Ware, all of Cass City; Christal Danielski of Ubly; and Snover resident Dawn M. Bradley.

To be eligible for the honors list, students must have compiled a minimum 3.50 grade point average in at least 12 quarter hours of graded work.

Of the 1,177 named to the list, 163, including Peters, earned 4.0 grade point averages, or all A grades.

In ancient Russia, it was believed that a skein of red wool wound about the arms and legs would ward off fevers.

to them. But Farm Bureau is different than other special interest groups in that our policy in the 1980s has consistently supported less reliance on the federal treasury.

"Although the drought assistance package temporarily increased agriculture spending for 1989, farm program expenditures still represent only about 1 percent of the total federal budget and, unlike any other federal spending authority, these costs can, and sometimes have, declined from one year to the next."

"We strongly supported the 1985 Food Security Act, the law that is moving agriculture in the direction of less dependence on government funding and more reliance on the opportunities of free markets. So, I think Farm Bureau has some extra credibility when we say, 'hold it, enough is enough, we've got to do something about the runaway spending machine.' We say it's time to freeze spending for everyone, equally. It's time to take a look at the system and figure out a way to fix it. It's time to say no to more taxes."

Laurie said the federal budget could be balanced within 3 years, without a tax increase, if spending is restrained.

"That's why I believe the number one priority of the new president should be an across-the-board 2-year freeze on federal spending, combined with a congressional debate on the fundamentals of national spending priorities," he said.

"Congress should agree on a total spending limit for each of at least 5 years, honor that limit with steadfast commitment, and then decide how it will allocate the total. Only then will Congress place the true national interest ahead of special interests -- including its own."

Laurie urged the farmers to evaluate the record of government responses to natural disasters and decide what type of system they want available that will insure them the opportunity for long term prosperity.

"Weather conditions come and go. Unfortunately, the impact of policy responses to the weather often linger on long after droughts have replaced floods in newspaper headlines," he said.

The drought assistance package of 1988 was on balance, Laurie said, a good faith effort to get relief quickly to farmers who had been hardest hit.

"In the process of doing that, however, there were some policy changes that have some far-reaching implications for agriculture. For example, by adopting a 3-month increase in the dairy support price, the drought legislation undermined the concepts of the '85 farm bill and extended relief to an entire industry without recognition of individual needs or losses. The rationale used was because feed prices had increased, the support price for dairy should be increased.

"In a sense, this approach treats dairy like a public utility that has had an increase in costs, and then applies to the appropriate state agency for a rate increase to offset the higher cost. The problem I see is that this totally removes the supply and demand forces of the marketplace from the price setting process. If this increase in the support price does indeed set a precedent for future dairy policy, then dairy producers may have to deal with the other implications of being treated like a public utility -- namely, restrictions on who can enter and exit the business, how the business can be managed, and how much profit can be made," he said.

Laurie said that one of the alternatives for agriculture when a disaster occurs is to develop a private crop and income insurance program, either by rebuilding the current Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, or by throwing out the system and starting fresh.

"Just as you don't insure your house just so you can make a profit on it when it burns down, we have to be careful that crop or disaster insurance is not designed to guarantee a profit. We need house insurance because few of us have the financial ability to rebuild our homes without help. Likewise, crop insurance should help us overcome a disaster, not insure that a deviation in yield will reap a certain number of dollars. That kind of system is in essence a crutch that says the market is not going to be the major force impacting the farm economy. I think that's a road we want to avoid," he said.

Bulldog tourney trail ends in regional opener loss to Ashley

The dream ride is over for the Owen-Gage girls' basketball team, but don't shed a tear for Coach Dean Roller's big hearted cagers. The Bulldogs ended their season Thursday at Akron-Fairgrove with a 56-38 loss to Ashley in class D regional play.

The fact that the Bulldogs won the North Central Thumb League and district championship is quite a journey in itself, but the circumstances, over half of this squad suffered through part of a school record 44 straight losses when they were freshmen, makes their 4-year excursion a magical one.

They did whatever I'd asked of them over the years, echoed Roller.

Ashley, who has been to the semi-finals in 2 of the last 3 years, came out and jumped in front of the Bulldogs 10-0 before sophomore Vicki Ricker registered the Bulldogs' first basket with 3:48 left in the opening quarter.

The Bulldogs trailed 16-6 entering the second stanza, but slowly climbed back into the contest as Ashley started collecting fouls which put the Bulldogs in a bonus situation early in the 2nd quarter.

Twice the Bulldogs narrowed the guard originated Ashley squad's lead to 4 points, 17-13 and 23-18, with possession of the round ball. The margin could have been less considering the Bulldogs opened the 2nd period by missing their first 2 one and one situations at the foul line.

The Bulldog defense stymied Ashley's offense in the 3rd period except for the effort of Chaunda Shaw, who recorded 7 of her team's 10 points, including a slightly 3-point play when the Bulldogs closed to within 3 points of her team, which only told part of the 5'5" senior guard's performance.

Shaw finished with a game high 18 points, including a 10-11 showing at the charity stripe, numerous assists, and handling the Bulldog press as she skillfully used a behind-the-back dribble to change direction and pass would-be defenders.

The game took on a new meaning when Bulldog Dawn Dorsch collected her 4th foul late in the 3rd period. Dorsch had been keeping the Bulldogs close with timely rebounds throughout the contest. The score was 31-27 at the 1:24 mark of the 3rd period when the foul occurred.

Without Dorsch's presence, Ashley spurred to a 42-30 lead midway through the final period. A 10-2 spurt by Ashley from there put the game away.

Two Bulldogs finished in double figures. Angie Bolzman and Ricker each tallied 11 points. Shaw was the only player to finish in double figures for the winners.

Port Hope home Friday

O-G buried by taller Cougars

The Owen-Gage boys' basketball team opened its season Saturday at St. Hyacinth gym in Bay City, where the Bay City All Saints dumped the North Central Thumb League Bulldogs 98-43.

It was a game the Bulldogs played in typical opening game fashion, poor shooting, sloppy passes, with multiple turnovers. For the Cougars the one-sided victory puts their 2-game point total at 181, as they defeated Arenac 83-59 the night before.

The Bulldogs will have to put their opening game behind them and prepare for Friday's home opener against Port Hope.

"I am not sure if not letting them (All Saints) into our league had anything to do with the score, but they left their starters in almost the entire game," commented head coach Dean Roller.

It was clear from the outset that the Cougars would handle the Bulldogs with ease as they raced to a 25-12 lead at the end of the first stanza.

The Cougars had one thing that hurt the Bulldogs more than anything else. It was Jim Huiskens, who stands 6'4" and tips the scales at 225.

Huiskens scored 28 points in a fine shooting display as he dropped 11 of 15 shots from the floor. Huiskens also had a team high 17 rebounds.

Height, or the lack of it, is a problem that will plague Roller all season.

The Bulldogs showed their best suit in the second quarter as both Brad Susalla and Jay Susalla netted 3-point field goals that narrowed the Cougars' 47-28 lead at the break.

The Cougars' defense tightened up after the half and held the Bulldogs to only 14 points. Meanwhile their offense continued to roll, scoring 52 points behind Huiskens and forward Ken Gawlak, who scored 23 points on the night.

Adding to the Bulldogs' rebounding problems was their shooting eye. The Bulldogs shot a measly 35% on the night from the floor, while the Cougars converted on 51% of their shots from the field. The Bulldogs also had trouble from the foul line, where they made only 9 of 17 shots.

The Bulldogs had only 2 players in double digits as Marc Reinhardt posted 12 tallies and Nick Pavlichek followed with 11.

Hawks look like champs in opening win over Ubly

The Cass City Red Hawks will find out Friday if the team is as good as it looked in the opening game Saturday against the Ubly Bearcats or if the one-sided win over the Bearcats, 79-40, was just one of those nights when everything went right. Friday the Hawks travel to Imlay City to meet the Spartans, one of the teams figured to challenge for the title in the Thumb B Association. If the Hawks could burn the nets like they did in the opener, it probably would be a long night for Imlay City. But it's not likely to happen. Jeff Krol hit 5 of 7 3-point tries and Jeff Dillon added another. The team converted 60 percent of its tries from the field and 72 percent from the free throw line. Meanwhile, Ubly, which had played a grueling game the night before to defeat Bad Axe, couldn't buy a basket. The Bearcats shot just 35 percent from the field, 36 percent from the free throw line and missed all 5 3-point attempts.

Krol was especially effective in a scoring burst in the second quarter when the Hawks racked up 11 unanswered points to race to an insurmountable 30-19 lead with 4:09 left to play. He had 2 3-pointers in the rally. Coach Ron Nurnberger said that he was pleased with the performance of Constatas, Pat Murphy and Kevin Hartwick off the bench. Constatas, playing his first game for the varsity, scored 12 points, all in the last half, and handled the ball well after overcoming first game jitters.

After running up the lead, Nurnberger substituted freely the rest of the way and every player on the 12-man roster broke into the scoring column. Although Cass City was in command all the way, the final score was more lopsided than it might have been if both coaches had not turned to their benches. The Hawk bench, which Nurnberger feels is one of the team's strengths this year, was superior to the Bearcat bench. Cass City outscored Ubly 27-10 in the final quarter with the reserves on the floor. Krol led Cass City with 20 points. Randall had 13 points and Tuckey, 10. Ubly was led by Chris O'Mara and John Goniewiecka, with 12 points each.

Graduation losses will hurt Cass City spikers

Coach Beth Howard is returning to coach the volleyball team again after an absence of several years. That's the good news. The bad news is that the Cass City Red Hawks will need an all-out effort to improve on last year's 12-3 record, fourth in the Thumb B Association.

Six players from last year's varsity have graduated. Teri Wilson, Teri Summers, Brenda Severance, Colleen McIntosh, Jennifer Palmer and Lisa Nicholas are gone and all saw lots of action and earned letters.

Despite the mass player graduation, there are 4 letter winners back to key the team. Start with Darlene Monroe, who will be earning her 3rd letter this season. She is an excellent spiker and blocker. Sue Papp is an excellent all-around player. Cindy Powell and Tina Ballard can be spotted by Howard to play wherever the need is greatest.

After that Howard will need to sort out the rest of the team. Beth Powell and Jandi Hillaker are good athletes, as shown by their play on the basketball court. Also vying for playing time will be Pat Bouck, Wendy Weaver, Vicki Robinson, Carol Kubacki and Bobbi Fischer.

Rash of mishaps triggered by snow

Koylton Township.

Deputies said Robert B. Cilk, 6166 Centerline Rd., Kingston, was eastbound on Snover Road at about 5:45 p.m. when his vehicle slid through the intersection and struck a double arrow sign.

Also last week, minor damage was reported in a 2-vehicle mishap Nov. 30 in Novesta Township.

Reports state Merle E. Cox Jr., 6989 E. Elmwood Rd., Cass City, was southbound on Cemetery Road south of DeLong Road when his vehicle struck another southbound vehicle, driven by Michelle L. Hendrick, 3655 Colwood Rd., Caro. Cox, who was cited for driving left of center, had just passed a car behind Hendrick's vehicle when the 6:50 p.m. crash occurred, deputies said.

STATE POLICE

Troopers from the state police post in Caro cited a Gagetown woman for driving too fast Thursday after her vehicle slid off Cedar Run Road near the Milligan Road intersection and rolled over in a ditch.

THE AREA'S FIRST SNOWFALL this season triggered a number of accidents last week, including this one-vehicle rollover at the intersection of Cedar Run and Milligan roads in Elmwood Township.

Blanchard says

Quality measures need action

Governor James J. Blanchard declared the Legislature should act on several school improvement reforms before it recesses this year, independent of possible action on a property tax/sales tax shift proposal.

Although some school quality issues would be addressed under other proposals that would be replaced by Blanchard's plan to cut school property taxes by 25 percent for residential taxpayers while increasing the sales tax by 1 cent, he said the quality measures should not be held hostage.

By adopting quality improvement measures, he said, the public will be more likely to approve a ballot proposal to raise the sales tax.

"I don't think there's any excuse for delay. Most of those can be done without new money. Money is important, and property tax relief is important, and equity is most important. But quality should not be the stepchild in this package," he said.

The improvements include school improvement plans by all districts; a core curriculum to be developed by the State Board of Education; 3-year plans for professional development to be implemented in the state; standards for accreditation to be developed by the department; dropout prevention and achievement incentive programs to be implemented by the state, and annual education reports to be prepared and distributed by local school boards.

Rep. Lynn Jondahl (D-East Lansing), the leading school finance reform negotiator on the House side, said the governor's comments should not come as a surprise to anyone, and that letting the quality issues stand alone had been agreed to by the SJR "K" conference committee, for the most part.

"It had been the administration's position that this needed to be created in such a way that it would not be jeopardized by the defeat of the ballot proposal," Jondahl said.

And Senate Republican spokesperson Debra Townsend, though agreeing the quality programs should not be "held hostage," said there will not be funding for them if there is not some connection with the finance portion. "Any quality measure worth its salt is bound to cost some dollars," she said.

While Blanchard acknowledged the harsh criticism his plan received from some, particularly by those working on a 2 cent sales tax increase plan, he said most of the response he has gotten has been favorable.

"I am trying to move this ball along. I don't blame anyone for being frustrated. If somebody has a better plan to move this ball, let them get going. I as governor...need to grab the bull by the horns and say maybe we're not going to get 23," Blanchard said, referring to the Legislature's inability to get the 2/3 majority vote needed to put a proposal before the voters.

The governor projected his plan will give schools an additional $1.2 billion over 5 years -- from growth in sales taxes and income tax credit savings due to reduced property taxes -- which he said could be used to fund quality improvements as well as reduce inequities between districts.

He described as inappropriate a vote by the Senate Finance Committee to additionally earmark 12 percent of the general fund ($300 million a year or over $1.5 billion over 5 years) for education.

"As a matter of policy, I don't favor it (earmarking within any budget). You're arguing over percentages and budget, not how you should spend it," he said, adding that it would make for a logjam within the individual departmental budget discussions.

But Sen. Norm Shinkle (R-Lambertville), chair of the committee, said the earmarking idea "is a good, sensible plan," considering that the 1970-71 budget, the state's portion for education was 29 percent and the current budget's portion is less than 8 percent.

CONSERVATION CLUBS

The Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) announced a renewed legislative effort in January for enactment of legislation to better enable the state to recover cleanup costs, provide administrative remedies and penalties for violations of pollution discharge permits and establish a new, more stringent fee structure for pollution dischargers seeking state permits.

MUCC Executive Director Thomas L. Washington said voter approval of bonding for environmental cleanup (Proposal C) says voters are willing to devote significant amounts of tax money for environmental cleanup projects, but those responsible need to pay their full share of pollution cleanup costs.

"There's no way that state taxpayers should have to shoulder the financial burden for these cleanup efforts," he said.

Mark Van Putten, director of the National Wildlife Federation's Great Lakes Natural Resource Center in Ann Arbor, said without more stringent enforcement of existing laws, backed up by stronger administrative fines and penalties, Proposal C cleanup funds won't go very far.

He added approval of the proposal by a 3-1 margin was a clear signal from Michigan voters that the time has come to crack down on all forms of environmental pollution and those responsible for causing it.

A report filed at the Cass City Police Department states the damage, estimated at $50, was done sometime Saturday evening or Sunday morning.

Travelers

World travelers: The arctic tern is the bird's champion long-distance traveler. It summers in the frigid polar regions around the Arctic Ocean. But according to International Wildlife magazine, when the cold winds blow, the tern heads south to the seas around Antarctica. The length of this world wide, round trip--some 20 thousand miles.

Elkland trustees

approve $1 raise

Pasanski CMU

council member

The Elkland Township Board approved a slate of Elkland fire officers for 1989 and gave the firemen a $1 raise during a monthly meeting Monday night.

Township Clerk Norma Wallace reported that the 1989 officers are Jack Cartwright, assistant chief; Don Root, captain; Don Finkbeiner, lieutenant; Ron Pawloski, treasurer, and Jane Hurley, secretary.

She said the raise approved for volunteer firemen will bring their pay up to $5 per hour.

In other business during the regular session, the board endorsed a letter from Gateway Sanitation Services requesting support for the concept of recycling, and all board members, including new Trustee Dan Erla, took their oaths of office.

Cass City resident Ken Pasanski is a member of the hall council for Beddow and Thorpe residence halls at Central Michigan University. Pasanski is the son of Mel and Lee Pasanski.

Beddow-Thorpe Hall Council is an organization designed to provide entertainment and socialization between the 2 halls. Members are students living in the halls.

Representatives also make known concerns of students to the proper organizations so that action can be taken to resolve the concerns.

Pasanski attended Cass City High School and is a sophomore studying marketing at CMU.

CASS CITY SCHOOL NEWS

Superintendent's Letter to the Community

It has been approximately one year since I assumed the Cass City Public School's Superintendency. The positive feelings I had for our school system a year ago, have been strengthened and reinforced over the past several months in my new position. Our school system has an outstanding group of dedicated and loyal employees. All employee groups including teachers, teacher aides, maintenance, clerical, food service, transportation and administrative staffs are filled with people who serve our community in a productive and positive manner. We do recognize that no person, or place of employment, is perfect, and that the Cass City Schools too, have areas we need to strive for improvement in.

Our school district is also extremely fortunate to have a concerned and dedicated Board of Education. This group of individuals, volunteer their time and energy to serve our community, in what is at sometimes, a very difficult task. The Board members all are to be commended for their continuing efforts to maintain and improve educational programs for our community.

One of the primary areas of change over the past year, has centered upon the transition of the administrative and office staff of our schools. Changes included the Superintendent of Schools, three Principals (High School, Intermediate and Campbell), the Community Education Director, the Bookkeeper and Secretaries in the Superintendent's office and Deford Elementary School. A transition of this magnitude could create massive operational and organizational problems for any school district, but because of the consistent and unified efforts of the Board of Education, the transition has occurred with remarkably few problems.

Other areas which have recently been addressed have been:

a. The establishment of a procedure for the Board, at regular meetings to recognize students, staff or community members for their accomplishments or involvement with the schools.

b. High School and Adult High School graduation requirements have been modified. The present requirements correlate very closely to recommendations of the Citizens Advisory Committee's study of a couple of years ago.

c. Friable asbestos has been removed from classrooms, boiler rooms, and mechanical rooms of the district's buildings to insure our schools are safe from potential health hazards.

d. A student hearing testing plan was approved to help identify potential hearing disorders of our students.

e. Day to day working relationships with our neighboring school districts have improved for the betterment of all communities involved.

Many other operational procedures have been modified to both improve efficiency and effectiveness of our overall educational system.

To conclude, it is necessary to thank the community of Cass City for continuing to support our schools. As I have said in the past, and will continue to say, Cass City is a healthy-vibrant community to live in because of its business sector, local government, religious values, health care systems, industry and schools. But the essential element which makes all of these areas effective and productive are the people of this community.

Superintendent of Schools

New blood

clot drug

available

Here's good news about a major new product of biotechnology for the treatment of heart attacks.

At least 80 percent of the 1.5 million heart attacks suffered by Americans each year occur when blood clots form in coronary arteries, blocking blood flow to the heart. Clot-dissolving agents can help prevent permanent heart muscle damage by rapidly dissolving these blood clots. Through biotechnology, Genentech, Inc. has developed a new clot-dissolving agent—Activase® (Alteplase, recombinant), a tissue plasminogen activator (t-PA).

This product is a form of the body's own t-PA, which is normally produced in amounts too small to rapidly dissolve clots in coronary arteries. It is manufactured by taking DNA segments that code for and produce t-PA from one cell, and putting them into the DNA of other cells, called host cells. These host cells can then produce t-PA in large quantities. When administered in therapeutic quantities, t-PA reacts with the body's own mechanism to dissolve the clots that cause heart attacks.

It is most effective when administered early in the course of a heart attack. (Because it dissolves clots, Activase® can cause bleeding that is usually minor and easily controlled. There is also a small risk of serious internal bleeding, such as intracranial hemorrhage. This occurs in 0.4 percent of patients. Therefore certain patients, particularly those at high risk of hemorrhage, stroke or high blood pressure, should not receive this type of therapy.)

Cass City robbery defendant

Vega sentenced 6 to 20 years

The second of 4 suspects charged in the Feb. 28 armed robbery of a Cass City couple last winter was sentenced to prison Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court. Fernando Vega, 21, of Detroit, was ordered to serve a term of 6 years to 20 years, with credit for time already served, for his plea of guilty to armed robbery.

Vega, who entered the plea in July, also has been convicted on a related charge—use of a firearm in the commission of a drug trafficking crime—in U.S. District Court.

Jeffrey A. Lukkari, 26, Mass City, was sentenced to 180 days in the county jail for a plea of guilty to resisting and obstructing a police officer, impaired driving and driving while his license was suspended.

The court, which ordered that Lukkari be placed on probation during his sentence, agreed to participation in the work site program, but denied a motion related to the defendant's $4,000 bond.

Court records state the charges stem from an incident March 5 in Caro involving Caro Police Officer David W. Lich.

Also sentenced was Diane J. Sommer, 35, of Saginaw, who was convicted Oct. 7 on a charge of retail fraud, first degree.

Sommer received a one-year delayed sentence and was ordered to pay costs of $300 plus attorney fees, according to court records, which state she took property valued at $123 from a store in Reese June 10.

Russell A. Rhodes, 20, entered a plea of guilty to larceny in a building Oct. 13 in Arbela Township.

Sentencing is to be set. Bond was continued at $5,000.

Rhodes took $80, a jacket and a t-shirt from a house at 10389 Bray Rd., records state.

Mayville resident Rebecca S. Fackler, 19, entered a plea of guilty to unlawfully driving away a motor vehicle. The charge stems from an incident Aug. 29 in Fremont Township.

Sentencing is to be set. Bond was continued at $5,000.

Sherry J. Spycher, 51, of Burton, entered a guilty plea to conspiracy to assist in the Oct. 28 prison escape of Richard Cummings.

Sentencing is to be set. Court records state that Cummings entered a plea of no contest to the escape charge.

Also Friday, the court dismissed its case against Sebe-waig resident Keith D. Jubar, 19, following a one-year delayed sentence.

Jubar was convicted of malicious destruction of property Oct. 23, 1987.

Our 36th year serving Tuscola, Sanilac and Huron Counties

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Dear Bill:
Please read the enclosed market letter of Weiss Research of Palm Beach. He tells of the impending Panic of the 90's, and has no kind words for your darlings, municipal bonds. What say you?

GB
Boca Raton, Fla.

Dear Friend:
The Weiss family has been running scared for a long time, and advises readers to keep money in Treasury Bills, none of which are more than a year to maturity. Weiss has also advised buying and selling commodity and currency options, so he seems to wear 2 hats. Now he has life insurance companies going broke, banks failing and the government unable to pay off FDIC insurance, and cities defaulting on their municipal bonds.

He doesn't quote much historical basis for cities going belly-up. Sure, there were some overbuilt Florida developments in the late 20's, where their dreams exceeded their income. But in the last half century there were very few A-rated-or-better towns or counties -- and no states at all -- that didn't pay off their bonds.

The bondholders made out a darned sight better than people who owned stock, or real estate, or businesses or farms, in those dark days of the early 30's.

Weiss says even insured bonds will not pay off, because the insurance companies will go broke. Well, then, your life insurance policy won't be good either. Same companies write both kinds.

If the U.S. government can't pay off insured deposits in banks that go broke, how can they pay off the Treasury Bills that Weiss is touting?

Cities and counties and states have really been in pretty good shape. They aren't able to print money like Uncle Sam. They have to live within their income, or their credit disappears. They can't sell bonds if they don't run a fairly decent shop. A general obligation bond is in effect a mortgage on every piece of real estate in the district. A state finance authority screens out the places which don't deserve to issue bonds. If the state didn't sort them out, the market would.

Weiss says you have only 2 choices in buying a municipal bond:

1. General obligations.
2. Project bonds for hospitals or housing, for example. Revenue bonds, in other words.

We've talked about general obligations. The field of revenue bonds is too big to make generalities about.

A bond issued by a town for sewer and water improvements is secured by revenues of 2 vital services. Most such bonds are rated highly. If you don't pay your water bill you'll be shut off. After a day or 2 your tongue swells and you have quite an incentive to pay up.

Electric utility taxes finance a lot of bonds in Florida. The tax is on your light bill, and is part of the total you owe. Florida Power and Light collects the tax for the city or county, pays it ahead of all other bills. If you don't pay FP & L, you'll sit in the dark, and you're at an age where that isn't so much fun any more.

So what's wrong with bonds financed by this tax? Maybe someone will find a substitute for electricity. That could be a problem.

Or the tax-exempt bonds of municipally owned utilities themselves. Example: Intermountain Power Agency of Utah. Rated AA by both services. Coal-fired. Los Angeles is the main customer. Their new plants come in on time and under budget. I sleep soundly with a hatful of Intermountain I own.

Certainly there's junk in the municipal bond market. And some categories are not as good as they used to be, such as hospitals. So peddle off the weak sisters. I have never liked industrial development revenues, because they are really owed by a corporation, and not the issuer (usually a city), which might fool you. I don't buy bonds rated lower than A, except once in a while, when I think a lower rating is undeserved.

Weiss paints a pathetic picture in the 90's of "thousands of senior citizens refusing to accept the reality that their bond coupons on defaulted municipals were no longer of value. Out of desperation they continued to perform their quarterly coupon-clipping ritual..."

Somehow that doesn't show much background on the subject. Bonds pay semi-annually, not quarterly, brother Weiss. Even a simple country boy from Lapeer, Michigan, knows that.

Bill Myers is a retired editor and investment counselor.

Owendale couple collides in one of 4 area auto mishaps

Cass City Police reported 4 vehicle accidents over the past week, including a crash involving an Owendale couple whose vehicles collided Friday on Ale Street north of Rose Street. Police said vehicles driven by Louann Miller and William E. Miller III, both of 7323 Main St., Owendale, were southbound on Ale Street at about 9:30 p.m. when Louann's vehicle swerved, hitting her husband's vehicle.

Louann stated she swerved in an attempt to miss a deer, according to reports, which state she was going slowly and her husband was passing her on the left side when the accident occurred. The vehicles sustained light to moderate damage.

Also Friday, Jack H. Reeves, 4316 Doerr Rd., Cass City, was attempting to turn south onto Doerr Road from Main Street at 12:15 p.m. when his vehicle was struck by an eastbound vehicle driven by Jeffrey P. Healy, 7949 Daus Rd., Cass City. Both vehicles were extensively damaged.

Reeves told police that he thought Healy also was going to turn onto Doerr Road. Later the same day, police cited Kareem S. Khoury, 6370 Third St., Cass City, for failing to yield following a 2-vehicle collision at the intersection of Oak and Seed streets.

Reports state Khoury's eastbound vehicle clipped a northbound vehicle driven by Michelle L. Anscorn of Frankenmuth, causing minor damage to both vehicles. Witnesses stated that Khoury was traveling at 40 to 50 miles per hour when the 3:15 p.m. crash occurred.

Shelley M. Wright, 2286 Cemetery Rd., Deford, told police she was driving north on Cemetery Road north of DeLong Road Thursday when she lost control of her vehicle, which left the roadway and slid into a ditch. Damage in the morning mishap was moderate, reports state.

Also Thursday, slight damage was reported in a 1 p.m. accident on Main Street west of Leach Street.

Police reported that a westbound vehicle driven by Edmund Frederick, 3450 Lamton Rd., Decker, pulled right from his left lane position and struck another westbound vehicle, driven by Michael D. Stec, 4767 Cedar Run Rd., Cass City.

Fish kill not part of DNR's plans for Cass River

"It's going to take (the District 8 director) a year to get squared away," Gruhn remarked, adding it will take at least that long for the district's fisheries personnel to become familiar with and begin work on projects in their new counties.

Other problems involved in implementing the Cass River management plan lie in some of the specific measures suggested in the plan.

"As far as working with agricultural erosion and so forth, we're going to have to sit down with ASCS" officials, Gruhn said. He explained that farmers would have to be willing to cooperate on projects such as green belting along agricultural fields in order for that part of the plan to be a success.

Another area, in-stream habitat enhancement, was cited by Nelson as being difficult to implement.

"I don't think we're going to see much of that happening. My concern has always been, we don't know that much about habitat enhancement in large, southern Michigan warm water rivers," he explained, adding research in that area currently is underway.

Nelson indicated that huge fluctuations in the river's water level also make it difficult to implement projects that would result in long-term improvement.

Letter to the editor

Vandals take sparkle out of Christmas

Dear Editor,

What a pity there are those in Cass City who would ruin Christmas for others.

Many people spend money on extra lights and decorations to brighten up the outside of their homes, contributing to the Christmas spirit of our whole town. People come from all over the area to drive around town and look at all the beautiful, glowing Christmas displays. We are once again building up Cass City's "Christmas Town" reputation.

I was happy to participate in this Christmas celebration by putting lights out around my home, only to discover some of them stolen.

What big thrill can there possibly be for anyone to steal light bulbs out of a bush? Hey, thief - are you real cool now, real brave? Your friends really look up to you now, do they? Or did you actually think they were worth big money on the black market?

I'm sorry to tell you, whoever you are, that what you did wasn't brave or cool at all. All you really did was take a little of the sparkle out of someone's Christmas.

I hope no one takes the sparkle out of yours.

Marsha Grady,
Cass City resident
