Zimba Farms, Deford, has been named the 1988 conservation "Cooperator of the Year" by Tuscola Soil Conservation District officials.

The area farm operation was named recipient of the annual award, established in 1976, based on several farm methods endorsed by the Soil Conservation District, according to county district Administrator Mary Lou Earl.

Among the measures was the planting of more than 75 acres of no-till corn in hay residue, corn in soybean residue, and soybeans in corn residue, she said.

Brothers Jesse, 30, Ed, 26, and Matt Zimba, 21, who operate the dairy farm and cash crop operation under a partnership arrangement, also completed installation of a lagoon-type animal waste system last year. They plan to spread the manure via irrigation next spring.

According to Jesse, Zimba Farms was established in 1946 by his parents, William and Rita Zimba. Jesse and his father went into a part-

"It saves on soil and fuel," he remarked, adding that while last year's no-till corn was successful, this year's crop was the worst hit by record drought conditions.

The lagoon, which has capacity of 1 million gallons, eliminates concerns regarding manure run-off as well as daily hauling of animal wastes, he continued.

Jesse noted that conservation measures had been underway at the farm long before he and his brothers took over.

"Dad (has) always planted Christmas trees on sides of hills" and other areas too steep to farm, he said, adding his father began the anti-soil erosion practice 35 years ago.

The Zimba brothers, whose farm has received the Dairy Herd Improvement Association award for high milk production for the past 3 years, will be recognized at the county Soil Conservation District's 45th annual meeting, slated for 7 p.m. Jan. 19 at Caro High School.

Kingston driver injured in crash

A Kingston motorist sought his own treatment for injuries sustained in a 2-vehicle crash Jan. 3 in Kingston Township.

Troopers from the state police post in Caro said Lawrence H. Ulin, 3300 Phillips Rd., was southbound on Phillips Road at 1:30 p.m. when he failed to yield at the intersection with Sanilac Road and was struck by a westbound vehicle.

The driver of that vehicle, Chris D. Thornton, 21, of Deckerville, and a passenger in Ulin's vehicle, Ira E. Kincaid, 75, of Kingston, were not hurt. Troopers arrested Ulin on suspicion of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, and cited him for failing to yield.

Both vehicles sustained moderate to extensive damage, reports indicate.

Also last week, troopers reported minor damage in a 2-vehicle mishap on M-24 north of Riley Road in Indianfields Township.

Reports state Kathryn M. McCullough, 2274 Mertzt Rd., Caro, was southbound on M-24 last Wednesday when she was back-ended by another southbound vehicle, driven by Shane D. Jones, 7205 E. Bevans Rd., Deford.

McCullough had stopped for a turning vehicle in front of her when the 1 p.m. collision occurred, according to troopers, who cited Jones for violation of the basic speed law.

Also reported was a car-deer accident. Kingston resident Eva M. Periso told troopers she was eastbound on Shabbona Road east of Duprey Road at 6:30 p.m. Saturday when she hit the animal.

Her vehicle sustained slight damage, reports state.

Owen-Gage board sets new rules for use of school gym

The Owen-Gage Board of Education Monday approved a new set of rules for the district's winter community recreation program after spending most of its 2-hour monthly meeting debating an ad hoc committee's recommendations.

Despite the action, more discussion and revisions may be forthcoming.

The biggest snag in the new guidelines, drafted by a committee composed of 2 board members and 2 residents, turned out to be a rule regarding who may participate in the recreation program.

The board eventually voted 5-1 in favor of a set of rules that restricts use of school gyms in the program to persons who either live in the school district or are employed by the district.

But approval came only after the board defeated a motion, on a vote of 4-2, to allow school district employees, residents and past graduates and their spouses to take part in the program. Trustees Ronald Good and

Mary Ann Abbe cast "yes" ballots in the first vote, while Trustees Walt Swiastyn, Patrick Goslin, Jack Brinkman and William Kretzschmer voted "no."

Brinkman also cast the lone dissenting ballot in the second vote.

He indicated that the rule on who may use school gyms conflicts with current policy in that the district is already allowing a traveling basketball league to use school facilities.

Other trustees, however, said the league use isn't the same because the league is paying a fee and there generally isn't the same amount of liability risk involved.

While most board members agreed that a lack of supervision of young children has been the program's biggest problem, many remarked that the facilities should be restricted only to those living in the district.

Some trustees cited instances in which persons living outside the district have used and even "taken over" Owen-Gage gyms on recreation nights.

NO DEBT

"If you don't live in this district, we don't owe you a thing," Kretzschmer said, adding he believes district residents represent less of a threat in terms of liability.

Other questions, including whether to pay a custodian specifically for the purpose of overseeing the program, also drew fire.

The new guidelines state that a custodian is to be in the gym at all times, but school Supt. Harley Kirby argued

New diploma, new career earned by Heronemus, grandmother of 6

by Tom Montgomery News Editor

If determination could be bottled and sold, Jacqueline Heronemus would probably make a fortune.

Unfortunately, that's not the case. But in a way, the Decker area woman's courage and willingness to take risks and work hard have made her very rich.

Heronemus' "treasure" is represented by a diploma she recently earned at the Bad Axe Center of St. Clair County Community College, where she and 21 other students spent the past year in an intensive practical nursing program.

Although graduation is an accomplishment by itself, it represents a new way of life for Heronemus, who decided last year to make a change for the better after 14 years as a factory worker. Actually, the decision to enter the nursing program was long in coming for the mother of 4 grown children and grandmother of 6, who hired in at General Cable Co., Cass City, in July 1974.

"I just got kind of discouraged getting laid off all the time," she remarked. "It took 2 years to get my year pin."

"I never did like the factory (work), but as long as I had my kids at home, I had to do it," she continued.

In May 1987, Heronemus was laid off for what turned out to be several months. "This time, when my unemployment ran out, I decided to do something about my education," she recalled.

"We thought about it a lot. We both made a commitment at the beginning of the year," Heronemus continued, adding she and her husband of 27 years, Gerald, agreed she would go back to school to become a licensed practical nurse.

Heronemus said she chose nursing because of her year-long experience in 1973 as a ward clerk at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Despite having passed a college entrance exam, the area resident quickly realized higher education wasn't going to be a bed of roses.

SET TO QUIT

"After the first semester, I was all set to quit. In fact, I went back to Cable 3 days," she recalled.

"It was such a work load and I wasn't used to it. I had forgotten how to study. I wondered if I was really going to do it; if I really wanted the responsibility."

Although sheer determination and many late night and weekend studying sessions were key to Heronemus' successful completion of the nursing program, family support may have made the difference between finishing and quitting.

"I called my parents and I was very discouraged and wanted to quit. Between the 2 of them, they talked me into staying in," she said, adding her husband, who took on more responsibility at home, and her college instructors also convinced her to keep trying. "My kids were all good; behind me 100 percent."

Heronemus' husband agreed.

"I tried to help her (and) encourage her. I knew she was going to have some bad times, but she hung in there," he said. "She's done real well and I'm quite proud of her for sticking with it."

REALLY GROWN

"I feel as if I've really grown a lot in the (past) year," Heronemus observed.

"I have a lot of responsibility. It's kind of scary, but I look around, and I'm not dumb, if they can do it, I can do it."

"I look at it this way. All you can do is fail, and that's not going to kill you. It's (education) only going to benefit me."

That's a philosophy Heronemus lived by long before deciding to go to college.

In 1980, 20 years after she had dropped out of Akron-Fairgrove High School, she

An anonymous reader sent me an article from the Wilmington, Del., Sunday News Journal written by Editor Harry F. Thernal. He comments on typos, misuse of words and assorted blunders that are the bane of newspaper people.

One of the worst boo-boos cited appeared in The Mainichi Daily News, an English language paper in Japan. An editorial headlined "A Nation Plunged into Grief" told prematurely of the death of Emperor Hirohito. He was gravely ill, but not dead.

Another goof was reported in the New York Times when it ran several paragraphs recently about the death "Wednesday" of Serge Jaroff, founder of the Don Cossack Chorus. In this instance, Jaroff had died...Saturday, Oct. 5, 1985.

Lapses of this nature happen primarily when the paper has such copy prepared in advance and stored. Little danger of that here. We have trouble just grinding out copy for the current week.

Nevertheless, errors do crop up one way or another. Here are a few of our typos that got cut off at the pass.

"(The Great American Smokeout) will lure 1/5 of the nation's smokers to give up their addition for one day." Multiplication and division will go on as usual. "(The robber) jumped into a silver colored fan." A fitting end for a thief.

"He's (baseball player) more fun to watch in the doughnut than on the field." Dunking in a doughnut?

"The high school students present scared music." Some of their music can be pretty scary, but scared??

Another article lauded outstanding young men who had "extinguished themselves in many fields." Apparently, they're not content with setting the world on fire.

Basil and Ginny Taylor clipped an ad from a Lapeer newspaper that offered a "Part Male Beagle Pup" for sale. Knowing which part could be crucial to a potential buyer.

Here are a few confused, or confusing, sentences that columnist James Kilpatrick reported recently.

"Flanagan has been sentenced to die twice for the murders of chef James Lewandowski and retired pianist Albert Duggins." That has to be cruel and unusual punishment.

Speaking of dying twice, another story claims that "One aspirin tablet and a single dose of a clot-dissolving drug can dramatically cut the risk of a second fatal heart attack."

An ad for a garage sale sponsored by the fire department in Panama City, Fla., stated that "All proceeds will go to help burn and cripple children from our area." That's downright sadistic.

The New York Times offered this warning about flu shots: "People who are allergic to eggs and children under 13 should not be given the flu vaccine." A lowly comma, well placed, is a wonderful thing.

"If It Fitz..."

Tricia's practical gift

By Jim Fitzgerald

When I woke up Christmas morning, I was startled to see an inert human body on the floor near my bed. It was slumped in a strange position, with head and feet on the ground and rear end sticking up to my eye level as I screwed my head into the pillow and tried to remember where I was.

Oh, yes. I was in the basement of the home of my youngest daughter and her family. Because they know I'm used to it, my children have no compunction against making me sleep in the basement when I visit overnight. They've heard the stories about how my mother used to feed me through the laundry chute.

That was during my college and first-newspaper-job years, roughly from 1947 until my marriage in 1955, when I didn't actually live with my parents but I visited them often to borrow my father's car. He was sick of hearing me stumble upstairs to a bedroom after the lousy @%&* bars closed, and he didn't like me sleeping on a couch on the ground floor because then my limp body was the first thing he saw on his way to breakfast, which was a miserable @%$* way to start the day.

MY LITTLE SUBTERRANEAN HOME

So a rickety cot was placed in the basement beside the furnace and behind a clothesline from which damp sheets usually flapped. Make yourself at home, Son, and don't bite the meter reader. Terrible Jean, my much older sister, often pointed me out to her friends as they crouched to peek in a basement window. She told them I was staying there only until a bed could be found for me in a maximum security institution.

It must be admitted that my daughter's basement is an improvement over my father's. There's linoleum on the floor and several semisleepable cots, couches and rollaway beds are bunched together at one end of a long room. It looks like an army barracks that was tilted. The comfort level is so acceptable that my wife also sleeps there, even though she is more than welcome in our granddaughters' bedrooms upstairs.

It is difficult for the little girls to understand the romantic reason for Grandma insisting I can't sleep with-outer. The romantic reason is that if I'm not with Grandma when she wakes up in the morning, she won't have anyone to accuse of snoring like a hog all night.

Anyway, what I momentarily forgot Christmas morning was that on Christmas Eve the two granddaughters, Emily and Tricia, had refused to part with Grandma. So they also slept in the basement. Emily and Grandma awakened around 7 o'clock and, without disturbing Tricia and me, hurried upstairs to see if Santa had been a good old boy.

LIMP TRICIA IS LEFT ON FLOOR

A problem soon arose when adults decided no more gifts could be opened without the presence of Tricia. So Emily, 7, returned to the basement for Tricia, almost 3, but she refused to wake up. Emily tried to carry Tricia from her couch to the gifts, but quickly gave it up as an impossible job and went back upstairs.

And that's why, when I woke up on Christmas, the first thing I saw was Tricia, sleeping on the floor, with one cheek against the linoleum and two cheeks in the air. I did what any wise grandfather would do — I picked her up and hugged her and nuzzled that great warm spot on her neck, just below the ear.

Later I received some marvelously practical gifts — fudge, chocolate cigars, a chocolate orange, mittens, vodka and a handsome walnut yo-yo in its own soft cloth sack, just like valuable jewelry. The yo-yo was from my 14-year-old grandson, John, who was never more impressed with his grandfather than at a picnic last summer when he first learned that I can walk the dog and rock the baby in the cradle.

But Tricia, while still sleeping, gave me the most practical gift of all, something I could really use. I'm sure my father would agree it was a splendid way to start the day, even in the basement.

In energy conservation

70 area farmers take part

Some 70 area farmers have participated in the Michigan Energy Conservation Program since it started in Tuscola County last February, Tuscola Soil Conservation District officials recently announced.

The farmers were assisted by 2 energy technicians, Dave Pape and Steve Bohn, in planting 2,500 acres of no-till crops with the Soil Conservation District and farmer owned equipment.

Also, soil testing was performed on more than 2,000 acres, and Integrated Pest Management was used on 2,500 acres of no-till crops to help reduce the use of pesticides.

The conservation program is funded by grant money refunded from oil overcharges, according to officials, who noted the focus of the program is to assist farmers with saving energy.

Dry Bean Day slated Friday

Dry Bean Day for Tuscola County agriculturists will be held Friday morning at the Brentwood Restaurant meeting room starting with breakfast at 7:45 a.m.

The program has been planned by the Tuscola Dry Bean Committee focusing on herbicide carry over in 1989, the trade off of narrow rows in a Tuscola County cash crop rotation, dry bean market update and what to expect with dry beans in 1989.

The breakfast will be sponsored by a major chemical company. The program is expected to adjourn by 11:30 a.m.

Forbush honored for work

Former Cass City area resident and teacher Violet J. Forbush has been named the Inter-Service Club Council of Dearborn's "Service Club Member of the Year." A member of Zonta since 1967, she has been active in the American Cancer Society-Dearborn chapter, Cherry Hill Presbyterian Church, Dearborn Chamber of Commerce, Dearborn Economic Development Commission, League of Women Voters, Private Industry Council, YWCA of Western Wayne County (since 1951), Henry Ford Medical Center-Fairlane Board of Trustees and American Association of University Women (since 1954).

Also a long-time 4-H supporter along with her husband, Keith, she represented the Zonta Club for 10 years at the Inter-Service Club Council and served as that group's president in 1974.

Forbush, a 1929 Cass City High School graduate, taught school at Shabbona and Tanner School for 4 years.

She and her husband recently moved to Frederic, located between Grayling and Gaylord.

JOAN FIGURA (LEFT), president of the Dearborn Zonta Club, presents the Inter-Service Club Council of Dearborn's "Service Club Member of the Year" award to Violet Forbush.

It may be a case of the grass is always greener on the other side of the fence. It may be, but I don't believe it. While other communities have desirable factories, medical practitioners and other services fall into their laps, in Cass City it's a continuing effort to keep alive and viable.

It's been that way for over a quarter of a century and it doesn't appear to be going to change much during the remainder of the century.

Hills and Dales General Hospital came to Cass City with the help of Hill-Burton funds. But it didn't just happen. We were not the first choice. The Federal boys wanted to put the hospital in Caro. But Caro wasn't willing to come up with the money necessary to share in the Federal windfall, 50 percent of the cost of construction.

In a final meeting with representatives of the 2 communities, Caro was told that if they didn't come up with the money the hospital would go to Cass City. Only then did the money and the hospital come to the community.

It's the same with doctors. While Bad Axe is crowded with doctors, Cass City needed a clinic with a year's free rent to bring needed physicians to serve the community.

And county seats Caro, Bad Axe, and Sandusky receive governmental agency after agency, and tax dollar after tax dollar pours into the community.

Just recently Cass City and Caro were in a fight for Great Lakes Junior College. It was really no battle. Caro won without working up a sweat and Cass City was used to pry a good deal for the company. Now we are engaged in another negotiation for a concern that undoubtedly would be advantageous to the community as a whole and to all of us with a financial stake in the village.

Jordan College, now located in the Rescue area, is willing to come to Cass City, but needs plenty of financial help before it does. It's the same old story. It first located in Bad Axe and later moved because of costs to its present location. Its finances today make it impossible to secure financing from banks. So if interested Cass Cityans want the college here they will have to come up with some money just as they have for the hospital and for industry.

Is it worth it? Who knows? Certainly without our hospital we would be hurting in one of the basic services vital to any community. On the other hand building a clinic wasn't as successful as we would like to have had it. But who can say what medical and dental service we would have now if the buildings were not available.

So it has been good and not so good, but one community venture that has been spectacular for everyone involved should not be forgotten.

In case you didn't know, Walbro Corporation came to Cass City because no one in Fenton cared enough to build the fledgling company a building or buy stock in it to keep it afloat.

It was done to help the community and the guys who did it were repaid beyond their wildest dreams.

Sometimes good guys don't finish last.

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

It's not surprising to me that logging was listed in a story in one of the daily papers as the most dangerous profession among all blue collar jobs.

Three Cass City lumbermen that I know have suffered injuries ranging from broken limbs to accidents that require hospitalization. The latest, of course, is Bill Woodward, who is now recuperating.

Among the safest are advertising persons, reporters and editors. Who said that this job had nothing to recommend it?

Just when we were getting over the changes in our schedule caused by the holidays, we find out that the post office will be closed Monday. Bet a cookie you can't guess the reason. It's Martin Luther King Day.

It's one day at a time, but let me proudly announce that my New Year's diet is still going full speed ahead. Okay, so I did go to Frankenmuth for a chicken dinner Saturday.

But I resolutely passed up the all-you-can eat dinner for the plate dinner. Besides, chicken isn't fattening anyway, is it?

John Meininger of rural Gagetown is an avid Cass City sports fan, but at the Caro-Cass City basketball game Friday he was pulling for a Caro 3-point basket and got it.

The basket didn't mean anything in the game, but that last second shot won the 50-50 pool for Meininger. I don't know if the win got him even for the many times he's played over the years, but it places him in a better position than most of us, including me. Emphatically including me. Big winner, of course, is the school sports program.

New books at the library

THE LAST HERO by Peter Forbath (fiction). In 1885, the British Empire suffers a catastrophic defeat when hordes of fanatical Arab dervishes overrun the ancient city of Khar-toum and behead the legendary General Charles Gordon. Though it initially appears as if all of the Sudan is irrecoverably lost, a gallant message of hope and a forlorn plea for assistance arrive from Equatoria, a remote Sudanese province governed by the enigmatic Emim Pasha. Seizing the opportunity to avenge a humiliating setback and to establish a trading monopoly in the heart of the African continent, a savvy group of British entrepreneurs commission the celebrated explorer Henry Morton Stanley to undertake a private relief expedition. Despite tremendous adversity, Stanley relentlessly drives his motley crew through the horrors of the heretofore impenetrable Ituri forest, achieving his primary objective at enormous cost.

BAG BALM & DUCT TAPE; Tales of a Vermont Doctor - by Beach Conger, M.D. (nonfiction). Conger, an M.D. from Harvard, has practiced in Vermont for the past 10 years. In his mid-forties, he has kept his eyes and ears open, and this memoir of the doctor's life shows that he knows enough to realize that arrogance is the sine qua non of his profession and that "seriousness" is the most dangerous professional disease. Nurses, says Conger, are good at preventing doctors from making fools of themselves and at getting patients to cooperate. Even patients (some of whom use bag balm and duct tape to treat chain-saw wounds in their legs) can often teach doctors quite a bit, even if they (the patients) are being unappreciative. He also makes devastating comments on medical education, malpractice, drug sales personnel, and sexism.

THE RISE OF THE EXPERT COMPANY: HOW VISIONARY COMPANIES ARE USING COMPUTERS TO MAKE HUGE PROFITS by Edward Feigenbaum (nonfiction). As familiar as computers have become, the average person's concept of artificial intelligence is little more than science fiction. Feigenbaum, a Stanford University computer science professor, is regarded as the "father of expert systems." He and his coauthors, Nii and McCorduck, describe 20 current applications of expert systems in the manufacturing, service, and public sectors. They range from credit checking to interpreting aerospace engineering drawings. The individual accounts detail the battles that had to be waged in order for often revolutionary new systems or methods to gain acceptance.

Literacy volunteers hold meet

The January meeting of the Cass City Literacy Volunteers was held last Wednesday at the Rawson Memorial Library. Present were Evelyn MacRae, Ann Craig, Gloria Hartwick, Jane Hitler, Elaine Makas-Howard and Ellen Toner.

The Christmas party given by the tutors for their students was very well attended and the group decided to have another party with the students, possibly in the spring.

It was noted that grant monies will be spent for much needed supplies, including more Challenger workbooks, paper, pens, markers and flashcards. Some extra teaching manuals will also be purchased. Tutors may submit a "shopping list" to Evelyn MacRae.

Makas-Howard reported on the progress of the grant that she is helping write for the group to secure tutor training for the Cass City area. After some discussion it was felt that there are not enough tutors to take the training at the present time. Those 3 to 5 people interested may possibly take their training with a Huron County group next month in Pigeon.

An advanced training to acquaint tutors with the Challenger Workbook Series will be held in Cass City March 14 and April 11. Candace Williams will conduct the training.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 1 at the library. Marilyn Peters will speak on some new developments in reading.

Bailey is outstanding student

The grandson of a Cass City couple has been selected as a new member of Outstanding High School Students of America and will be included in the organization's prestigious 1988-89 directory.

He is Jeffrey L. Bailey, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Hartsell, Cass City.

As a new inductee, Bailey, a senior at North Branch High School, will be listed among the top high school students across the country. He also is a candidate for several scholarships, including 10 $2,000 scholarships available to Outstanding High School Students of America only.

Worth, Green reelected to board posts

Tuscola County Board Chairman William Worth (D-Millington) and Vice-Chairman Michael Green (R-Mayville) were unanimously re-elected to their respective posts during the board's annual reorganizational meeting last week.

Worth, who in 1987 was the first Democrat elected to chair the board, will serve his third year in that capacity. Green will serve his fourth year as vice-chairman.

There were some changes in the election of committees.

Commissioner Kim D. Gaspie (D-Cass City) was elected chairman of the Personnel Committee. He replaces John Goodchild, who retired. Also, Commissioner Robert Russell (D-Vassar) was named chairman of the Building and Grounds Committee, replacing Chris Taylor, who left the board following his election as supervisor of Indianfields Township.

Russell and Commissioner Arnold Krumnauer (R-Vassar) will serve on the Personnel Committee, and Commissioners Norma Bates (R-Caro) and Terry Houthoofd (R-Akron) will serve on the Buildings and Grounds Committee.

The Finance Committee will again be chaired by Green, with Houthoofd and Krumnauer also elected to serve on that committee. Green also will serve on the Executive Committee, to be chaired by Worth.

Appointments made during the Jan. 3 session are Russell and Gaspie to the Human Development Commission Board, Green and Worth to the Thumb Consortium Board, Worth to the Social Services Board, Bates to the HDC Substance Abuse Advisory Board, Russell and Green to the Region VII Area Agency on Aging Board and Russell to the Senior Advisory Council.

Dr. Dennis Smallwood, medical director for the Tuscola County Health Department, was named county medical examiner. He will serve a 4-year term.

County board meetings will continue to be held on the second Tuesday of each month starting at 9 a.m., and the fourth Tuesday of each month beginning at 1 p.m.

YOUR EYES

Dr. G.W. McNiven

FITTING CONTACT LENSES

There are several steps in the proper fitting of contact lenses. Each one is important. Step one requires a complete eye examination to identify vision problems and make certain your eyes are healthy. Step two is the fitting session in which the correct lenses are selected for you. Today lenses come in a wide variety of materials, curvatures, shapes, sizes, thicknesses and colors. Each eye is fit independently, since both may not be identical in shape or function. In a training session, you are taught how to insert and handle your lenses, and how to clean and disinfect them. You may be permitted to wear your lenses for a specified period of time. Follow-up examinations will be scheduled to make sure that your eyes are adapting to the lenses and that there are no eye health problems. Adjustments may be made. Generally wearing time is progressively increased. Some people are able to wear their lenses all day after two or three visits; others take longer. The ultimate goal remains long-term wearing, comfort and good vision.

Laurie among delegates

Over 130 Michigan farmers, including Michigan Farm Bureau President Jack Laurie of Cass City, will attend the 70th annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation in San Antonio, Texas, this week.

Laurie, as well as Michigan's other voting delegates, will be seeking some amendments to the proposed AFBF policy resolutions that will be acted on by the delegate body.

They will call for extension of the 1985 farm bill to the 1991 crop year so that national farm legislation will not be debated during an election year.

They will also seek the addition of language to the school lunch resolution. The proposed policy simply calls for a balanced diet menu; the Michigan farmers want to spell out real foods like meat, milk and salad bars.

Traxler named chairman of HUD committee

Rep. Bob Traxler (D-Bay City) became chairman of the HUD-Independent Agencies Subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee as the U.S. House of Representatives completed organizational activity for the 101st Congress.

The HUD-Independent Agencies Subcommittee is one of 13 subcommittees of the House Appropriations Committee which handles the annual budgets for the departments and agencies under its jurisdiction. Traxler's subcommittee oversees the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Consumer Product Safety Commission, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Federal Emergency Management Agency, NASA, the National Science Foundation and the Veterans Administration. Last year, these budgets totaled nearly $60 billion.

Some of the local funding which has come out of this subcommittee includes money for the Saginaw VA Hospital, the EPA Dredging Disposals Facility, NSF research grants for the University of Michigan Supercomputer Network and the Michigan State University Science and Technology Center.

"I see this chairmanship as another method to accomplish good things for the people of the Eighth Congressional District and the great state of Michigan," Traxler said. "I am mindful of our nation's budget difficulties. At the same time, I recognize that we have many diverse needs and my challenge as chairman will be to address the most important of these needs within the constraints of budget limitations."

As subcommittee chairman, Traxler will oversee the formulation of subcommittee budget recommendations, presenting those recommendations to the full committee and managing related appropriations bills on the House floor. He will also chair the House conferees in discussions with the Senate and negotiations with the administration.

Friday: Hawks vs. Broncos

Race tightens, Hawks top Caro

If form is followed, Cass City's next Thumb B Association game Friday at North Branch will be a nip and tuck affair. Regardless of whom the Hawks play these days, the game is not decided until the last few minutes of play. The Hawks notched their third win in 4 tries last Friday by defeating the Caro Tigers, 80-70.

Not close, you say? Wrong. With 5 minutes and 8 seconds left, Cass City was in front by a narrow 4 points, 57-53. A control ball offense led to fouls by the Tigers and the Hawks were simply great from the charity stripe, sinking 16 of 19 tries, including 11 of 12 in the final quarter.

Paul Tuckey started it with 4 for 4 in crunch time. Jeff Dillon added 2 more and Brent Beecher another pair. Mike Randall made it a 3-point play with a bucket and a foul and Cass City had the game safely tucked away with a 78-65 lead with less than a minute left.

Coach Ron Nurnberger said that it was an important win for Cass City against a talented team. However, we need to tighten our defense. Depth is important, Nurnberger said, and he is looking to Pat Murphy, Josh Constas and Jason Robertson to provide it.

One area of defense that needs attention is the match up zone that Caro solved in the early going for easy baskets. Solving the zone helped the Tigers get off to an early lead, 8-6, with Dick Gardner and Dale Sharp sharing the scoring. The Hawks kept on the heels of the visitors as Randall scored the first 3 Hawk baskets on shots from the low post.

Cass City went in front to stay late in the first quarter as Jeff Krol and Tuckey hit 3-pointers from the perimeter. Tuckey added another 3-pointer and a pair of 2-pointers before the period ended to help Cass City to a 9-16 first quarter lead.

Cass City added to its lead in the second period and appeared to have the game under control at the half, with a 39-27 lead.

But the Tigers were far from finished. Paced by Dick Gardner with 4 buckets, Caro chipped away at the Hawk lead. It was 55-46 at the end of 3 quarters and then reduced to the 4 points already described.

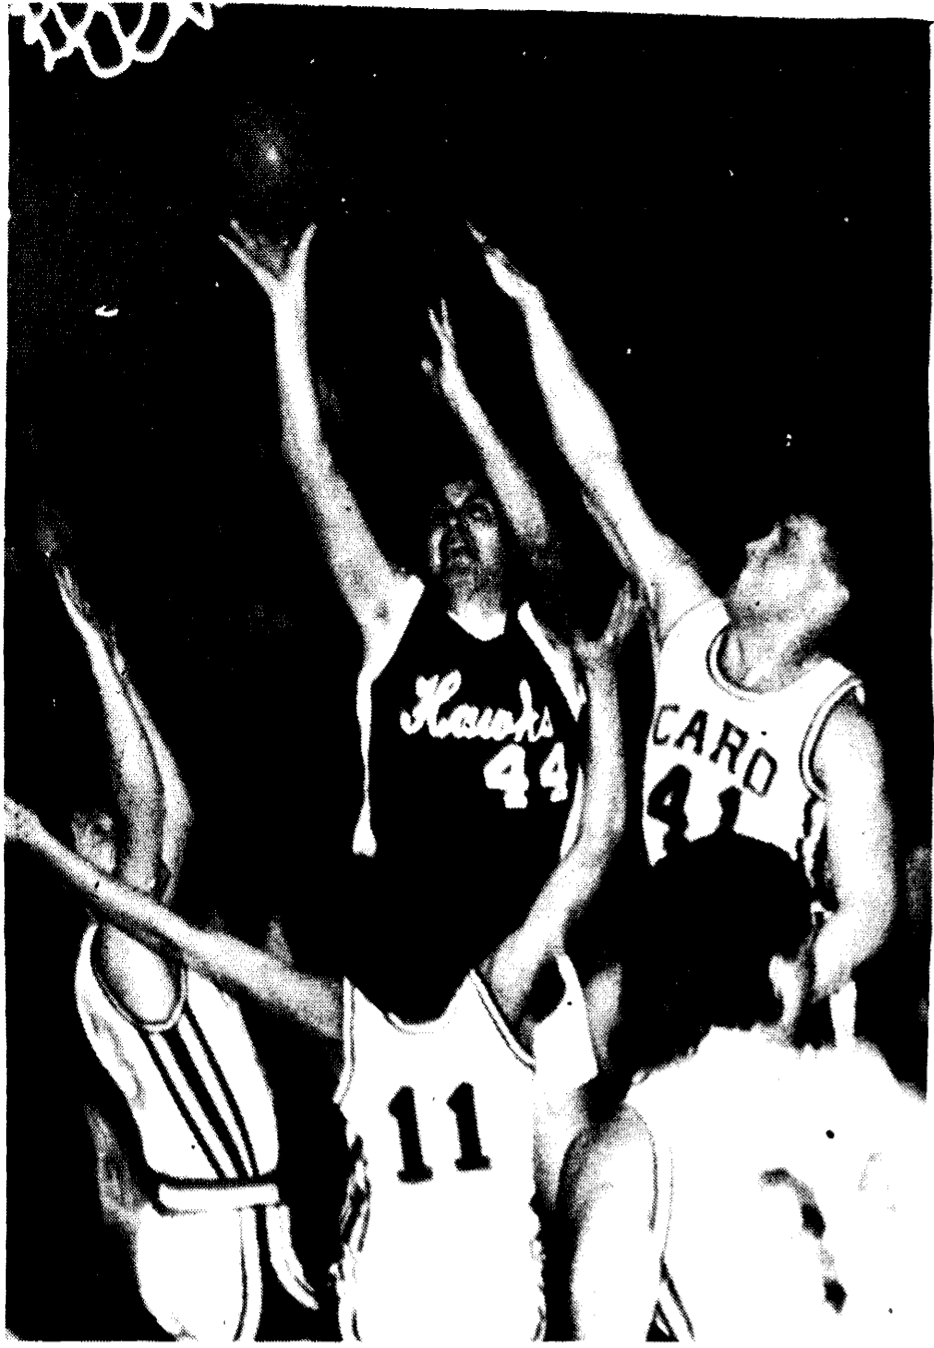

Tuckey led all scorers with 29 points and garnered 19 rebounds. Randall picked off 11 boards and scored 19 points. Leading Caro were Gardner, with 21 points, and Brian Galsterer, with 15.

JV GAME
The Cass City junior varsity was unable to rebound with the taller Tiger JV team and dropped a 47-41 decision.

UP IN TRAFFIC for 2 of his 29 points is Paul Tuckey. Defending for Caro is Tim Baker, 41. Brian Galsterer, 11, and Kevin Roller, 31, are other Tigers identifiable.

Deckerville powers past O-G, 87-34

If there can be a big game for a basketball team which stands winless after 7 games, it's this Friday for the Owen-Gage Bulldogs.

Coach Dean Roller's cagers will be traveling to Caseville to battle with one of the other North Central Thumb League's teams looking for their first win of the season.

The contest, oddly, will take on a special meaning. "Caseville hasn't won since 1986. I think the last game they almost won was against us," said Roller.

"They will be real fired up." The Bulldogs will be trying to keep egg off their face by not being the team that ends Caseville's losing streak that Roller believes is around 44 games. To do that, the Bulldogs will have to do a better job defending the Eagles' inside scoring threat, Colby Cottick, than they did Friday against a taller Deckerville team that clobbered the visiting Bulldogs 87-34.

Deckerville determined the game's outcome in the first quarter when they raced out to a 29-8 lead by quarter's end. They increased their lead to 46-18 by the intermission.

"We were simply no match for them," said Roller. "They just played alley-oop until someone scored."

Deckerville held the Bulldogs to just 16 points in the second half to run away with the contest. Leading scorer for Deckerville was senior Brian Davis, who netted 17 points. Mark Oswald, a 6'6" senior, also finished in double figures, with 13.

Deckerville's All-State prospect Richard Barker collected 9 points, which included 2 impressive dunk shots, to go along with 16 rebounds.

Leading the Bulldogs were seniors Marc Reinhardt and Nick Pavlichek, who each posted 8 points on the night.

HEALTH TIPS

Panic disorder can control lives

For almost 20 years, Kathy Foster was tied to an umbilical cord.

For Mrs. Foster (not her real name), it was impossible to walk out of the house alone or drive by herself to the supermarket 3 blocks away without feeling terrified.

"I wasn't comfortable in my own skin," she explains. "I felt safer in my house and safer still with Steve," her husband.

At various times, she was convinced she suffered from a brain tumor or was having a heart attack. She spent 2 years in counseling, during which time her therapist pronounced her "distastefully normal."

She tried a variety of medications, from tranquilizers to antidepressants to heart medications. All worked either too little or too late.

Mrs. Foster suffers from panic disorder with agoraphobia (literally fear of the marketplace, but commonly considered fear of being in an open, crowded or public place). The National Institute of Mental Health estimates that at least 1 to 2 percent of American adults will suffer from panic disorder at some time in their lives. For Mrs. Foster, panic attacks slowly shrank her world. In time, she actually became afraid of the fear engendered by the panic attacks.

Her panic symptoms are straight out of clinical textbooks. Most panic sufferers experience a sudden rush of severe symptoms that subside in a few minutes. Hallmarks of panic include shortness of breath, dizziness, trembling, choking, nausea, chest pain and fear of dying or of going crazy. Those symptoms were all experienced by Mrs. Foster, as well as a "frightening" inability to think clearly. Many times -- as is also typical of panic sufferers -- attacks came from out of nowhere, "with no logic behind them," Mrs. Foster said.

For years, she went from one doctor to another seeking out a variety of treatments -- none of which were effective at alleviating the attacks -- or the unremitting anxiety that filled her every waking moment. "I was afraid I'd drop my baby, so I would diaper her on the floor," she said. Just walking in the neighborhood was a problem. "I did it, but it was not O.K.," Mrs. Foster said. "It was like walking on an open wound."

Driving alone was the worst experience for her, however. Though she had a driver's license, Mrs. Foster often told acquaintances that she did not drive. Her children were excluded from neighborhood car pools as teen-agers because their mother couldn't help out.

Daughter Janice, now a third-year law student, said that her parents tried to shield her and her brother from Mrs. Foster's disability. "I never knew it half the time," she said. "Of course, I didn't know any better because I grew up with it. I thought it was normal."

Brother Frank said that their parents' weekly visits to a therapist -- Mr. Foster had to drive his wife -- was kept from them. "I wasn't told until much later. I just knew that Monday was their night out. We didn't question it."

Mrs. Foster's disability affected her children's freedom, Frank said. "We'd go on bikes or wait until Dad got home. There was no other way around."

Mrs. Foster said she shielded her children from her illness so as not to inflict her pain on them. Once aware of her problem, the children were very supportive, helping her through many crises.

Finally, after 20 years of searching for an answer, seeing doctor after doctor, it was the media that finally gave Mrs. Foster's problem a name -- agoraphobia. "I was listening to Barbara Walters interview someone -- and she started to describe my symptoms," Mrs. Foster said.

Mr. Foster said finding out that his wife's problem had a name and was not uncommon helped alleviate the family's frustration. However, just knowing the name of the disorder didn't cure Kathy Foster. She spent several more years going through one ineffectual treatment after another. "I flunked desensitization," she said. "I flunked behavior therapy and cognitive therapy."

Another television program on the subject finally led her to Dr. Jack Gorman and the Anxiety Disorders Clinic at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center in New York City. "After he took my history, I asked him if he could help me," she now recalls. "He said he could cure me. I started to cry."

Dr. Gorman said Mrs. Foster's case is fairly typical of the panic sufferers he sees at the clinic. "However, she did go a long time without getting effective treatment."

Most researchers believe that panic disorder has a biological basis; evidence shows that only those people prone to panic can have an attack artificially induced.

Though government statistics estimate that most anxiety disorder sufferers are untreated, Dr. Gorman believes that most panic sufferers eventually find treatment, primarily because their symptoms are so severe.

"The usual thing with these patients is that they see a neurologist after an internist after a gynecologist and so on," he said. Because panic's physical symptoms are so violent, most patients believe they have heart problems.

For Mrs. Foster, treatment consisted of a minor tranquilizer called alprazolam (Xanax, Upjohn) and "minimal psychotherapy, which consisted mostly of encouragement." Dr. Gorman noted. Treatment options for panic disorder vary. "It's a very individualized, tailored plan. We try to find the right combination of therapeutic benefits versus side effects."

No drug is formally approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to treat panic disorder, Dr. Gorman noted, but a variety of medicines have proven useful. "In fact, I have a friend of Mrs. Foster's in treatment and I'm using an entirely different medication," he said. "They don't understand why they're not on the same medication, but the subtle differences in their conditions require differing treatment plans."

Treatment for panic disorder normally lasts 6 months to a year, Dr. Gorman said. After that time, patients taking medicines to control attacks slowly taper their dose: Most eventually eliminate their medication completely.

Because Mrs. Foster's disorder lasted for so many years without effective treatment, both she and Dr. Gorman agree she should remain in therapy beyond the normal timetable to ensure continued freedom from panic attacks.

Mrs. Foster said as long as her panic symptoms remain quiescent, she doesn't mind staying in a treatment program. "You can't imagine the thrill of being at the beach and to be able to go to the ladies' room by myself," she said. "I now take tremendous pleasure in small things like that."

Inmate sentenced Friday for escape

A Camp Tuscola inmate was sentenced Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court to 1 year to 5 years imprisonment for his conviction on a charge of prison escape.

The sentence, for Richard V. Cummings, 50, is to run consecutive with sentencing already imposed on the defendant.

Cummings, who pleaded not guilty to the charge Dec. 2, was charged with escaping from Camp Tuscola Oct. 28, court records state.

Also sentenced was Robert Lijewski, 29, of Vassar, who was ordered to serve 180 days in the county jail, with work release, for a Nov. 10 conviction of larceny in a building.

Lijewski also was ordered to serve 3 years probation and pay restitution plus $400 in court costs and fines.

Records state he took a Toyota Blower Super Charger from a pole barn at 6776 Sheridan Rd., Vassar, in August 1987.

In other proceedings Friday, Caro resident Norman P. Colby, 43, was arraigned on charges of unlawfully driving away a motor vehicle, malicious destruction of police property, possession of stolen property under $100, fleeing and eluding a police officer and reckless driving.

Colby, whose pleas of guilty to all but the first charge were taken under advisement by the court, was ordered to undergo a psychological evaluation. Bond is set at $50,000, and a pre-trial was held Friday on the first count.

Records state all the charges are related to an alleged chase with Michigan State Police Nov. 30 in Caro and the townships of Almer and Gilford.

Eddie F. Bowman, 20, of Pontiac, entered a plea of guilty to Criminal Sexual Conduct, fourth degree.

Sentencing is to be set. Bond was continued at $10,000.

Court records state Bowman engaged in sexual contact with another person, using force or coercion, June 4 in Dayton Township.

Sentencing is to be set. Bond was continued at $5,000.

Engelhardt is charged with the illegal use of a check, valued at $40 and drawn on First National Bank of Bad Axe, court records state.

Thomas J. Parrent, 33, of Reese, entered a plea of guilty to failure to present a drivers license on demand. Sentencing is to be set. Bond was continued at $1,500.

The charge stems from an incident Aug. 1 in Reese, records state.

Also Friday, Robert W. Jordan, 36, of Kinde, entered a guilty plea to probation violation. Sentencing is to be set.

Court records state Jordan violated his probation by consuming or possessing alcoholic beverages Sept. 30 and Nov. 27. He was convicted of drunk driving, third offense, July 8, 1986.

2 area drivers hit deer

Two area motorists hit deer in separate mishaps Friday on Deckerville Road west of Kingston Road.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies said Larry E. Thick, 4940 Gilford Rd., Deford, was westbound on Deckerville Road at about 5:45 p.m. when his vehicle struck a deer.

About 45 minutes later, Verna J. Luana, 655 Englehart Rd., Cass City, hit a deer in the same area while driving east on Deckerville Road.

Only minor damage was reported in both accidents, reports state.

Bond motion denied by appeals court

The Michigan Court of Appeals recently denied a motion for bond filed by Bradley Thomas Hatch, who pleaded guilty to burglary and on Dec. 17, 1987, was sentenced by Circuit Court Judge Patrick R. Joslyn to 6 to 15 years in prison.

William Bond represented the people at trial and Kim Glaspie represented Hatch. On appeal, Bond represented the people and Arthur Fitzgerald represented Hatch.

Your neighbor says Winter's snow is unsurpassed

As with most things, the winter weather can be viewed from 2 different perspectives.

And although a warm weather fan at heart, your neighbor, JoAnn Learman of Caro, took time this week to pinpoint some of the season's better attributes.

According to the 23-year-old, who is employed at Cass City's Walbro Corp. as an after market sales clerk, winter's snow is unsurpassed.

"I like lots of snow," commented the Unionville native. It makes it nice to go on walks and I enjoy cross country skiing.

When JoAnn gets the opportunity to hit the ski trails, her favorite partner is her husband of 2 years, Bill.

Bill also is an employee of Walbro. The 29-year-old, originally from Harbor Beach, is a senior project engineer and has been with the corporation for over 5 years.

On the unfavorable side of the coin, JoAnn doesn't like to drive on slippery roads, especially since she commutes about 15 miles to work every day.

"I've had to slow down a few times this year on my way to work," says JoAnn.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Dear Bill:
Here's an article from FORBES magazine (Nov. 14) telling how you can buy government bonds direct from the Federal Reserve. It says you can save money by doing so.

I always thought you got these things through a bank or broker. Is it really cheaper dealing with the government? You're always looking for bargains. Have you missed this one?

E.W.
Delray Beach, Fla.

Dear E.W.:
I'm as hungry to find ways to save money as you are. Maybe more.

The article told how you could traipse down to the nearest branch of the Federal Reserve—in your case, Miami. Get there on a Monday with either cash or a certified check in your hand and order a government bond, at no commission. So far, so good.

Now the "Yes, but..." come to play:

If you want to buy a 3-months or 6 months Treasury bill (another name for a short-term government bond) you can go to the Fed. on any Monday. Since that is the only week-day, there'll be a line for you to wait in.

I doubt if you could make the round-trip from Delray and transact your business in less than half a day. You work 5 days a week so your time is worth something. I'd guess (having known you) that a half day is worth at least $100 to you, and probably more. Toss in 120 miles on your car for another $25.

Now, suppose you want to buy something else than a 3-month or 6-month Treasury bill. If you want to buy one maturing in a year, you must go only on the 4th Thursday of each month.

Now the plot thickens. You want to buy a 2-year bond, you must go between the 20th and 27th.

If you want to buy a 3-year bond or a 10-year bond (they call governments between 1 year and 10 "notes;" Lord knows why), you must journey to the Fed. between the 5th and the 10th, February, May, August or November.

There are other quarterly dates for the 4-, 5- and 7-year bonds.

So you can't bunch any purchases if you want some of one maturity, some of another. Separate trip for each, except if you want a 3-year and a 10-year, for example.

O.K. So you think your boss won't mind you being off the job a half day to go to Miami. There's another "Yes, but..."

Say you get some of these bonds directly from the Federal Reserve. Suppose you want to sell them. There's a lot of red tape and delay involved.

To me that's a big objection. I like to feel I can sell anything in my list right now, and know exactly when the proceeds will hit the account. (For governments, the next day.)

Your bank will get you bonds at the Fed's auctions, and they will be set up in an account for you in book-entry form. (Since 1986, all new government bonds are in book-entry form. You don't get any piece of parchment as in days of yore.) Interest will be credited to your bank account every 6 months.

The bank charge per transaction runs around $50. It does save you half a day off from work, plus a 120-mile car trip.

Another advantage is that if the interest doesn't show up as scheduled, you have the bank to run it down for you. That could be a real plus.

Look at a third choice of ways to buy a government bond:

Mail the money directly to the Federal Reserve. It would have to be by a certified or cashier's check, which will cost you $4 or $5 at banks.

Since most banks don't offer such a service on Saturday, you'd have to do it on Friday, and maybe it would get to the Fed. on Monday, although they allow 3 days leeway. Anyhow, you'd lose at least 3 days' interest while the check was in transit. Three days' interest on a $50,000 item at say 8% is $32.87.

1. Your costs of buying by mail:
Interest.....$32.87
Cashier check. 4.00
$36.87

2. Buy through the bank:
Bank commission...$50

3. Drive to Miami and buy in person:
Time off from work...$100
Mileage..... 25
$125

My own choice would be still another. Buy through a stockbroker:

4. Broker commission...$35
The bonds will be credited to your account. Interest can be immediately swept into your money market fund with the broker. They can be sold with no red tape or delay. Spare funds in your broker account can be used in full when you buy. There is no interest lost for funds in transit.

My own experience is that dealing with a broker is easier than with a bank, and certainly simpler than with Uncle Sam direct.

Your government bonds in your broker account are also available at once if you want to borrow against them, and it can be done with a phone call. Try borrowing by phone with a bank and let me know how you make out.

Novesta board reviews ordinance

The final draft of a revised Planning and Zoning Ordinance in Novesta Township is expected to be ready for a public hearing in March, the Township Board learned Monday night.

Township Clerk Nursie L. Kloc said Harold Kundinger, who is updating the ordinance, presented a rough draft of the revised document during Monday's monthly meeting.

Another meeting on the ordinance is expected to be held Feb. 21, she said.

In other business, the board decided to invite a representative of Mid North 1 Cable Systems Inc., Algonac, to a future board meeting to discuss its proposal to provide cable television service in the township. Kloc said the company approached the township via a letter.

The board has already approved a cable franchise agreement with Cable Properties Inc., North Branch.

Also Monday, the board approved payment of a final 1988 Road Commission bill totalling $9,200; okayed a motion establishing a flat fee of $25 for rental of the Township Hall; re-appointed Joan Little to the Planning and Zoning Commission, and appointed Francis DeLong to replace Keith Little on the Board of Review. Little has served on the board since 1961.

Board to seek insurance bids

Elkland Township officials Monday night decided to seek bids for township insurance.

GLJC pupils recognized

Five area residents are among those named to the President's List at Great Lakes Junior College for the fall 1988 term.

In order to be named to the list, a student must achieve a perfect 4.0 grade point average.

Area students on the list are Jeanine Comment and Richard Sugden, both of Cass City, Gageton resident Marie Hudson, Marcia Mozdzen of Deford and Mark Eschtruth of Kingston.

Little damage reported in accident

Cass City Police reported no injuries and only minor damage in a 2-vehicle accident Thursday at the intersection of Cass City Road and Comment Drive.

Reports state a westbound vehicle driven Scott F. Hutchinson, 5787 Elmwood Rd., Cass City, struck an eastbound vehicle while attempting to make a left turn onto Comment Drive at about 8:25 a.m.

The vision of the other driver, Vincent C. Sattleberg, 2777 Dickerson Rd., Unionville, was obstructed by frost on his vehicle's windshield, police said.

registered for classes through the Cass City Adult Education program. After a year of working third shift 6 nights a week and attending classes 4 nights a week, Heronemus received her high school diploma.

"I graduated in between 2 of my kids," she joked, adding she graduated after her oldest child, Kimberly, now 28, and before her next oldest, Matthew, 25. The Heronemus' other children are Sheila, 23, and Michael, 16.

Although she's accomplished more than she may have thought possible years ago, Heronemus indicated she's not finished yet.

Asked if she plans to become a registered nurse, she replied, "I think so. I want to allow myself at least a year to see just how good I am—if I can handle it."

Having learned the secret to her success, Heronemus indicated chances are good she will go on to accomplish future goals. She added, "Once you find out you can do it..."

O-G board approves revised gym-use rules

that the rule places the burden on the school instead of parents who bring young children.

"I don't feel that's what the program was meant to do. If somebody's going to have a kid in there—they have them and stay with them," he remarked, adding the program was initially meant to offer a place for adults and their children to spend time together.

Kirby, who sparked the debate in November when he suggested that the board discontinue use of school facilities in general by the public, added, "I don't want that to be his (custodian's) responsibility. 'Am I supposed to run around and police people who won't police themselves?'"

LAW SUIT

The superintendent urged the board to end the community recreation program because of the liability question. He cited an incident in 1987 in which a young child was injured and, subsequently, a law suit filed against the district.

He pointed out that in the past, custodians have been paid to work in the Owendale building, including opening the gym, on community recreation nights.

Goslin suggested that persons who take part in the program pay for the custodian's time.

But Kretzschmer disagreed, saying, "If you're going to charge...you might as well throw this away."

Board President Joseph Warack asked if the district could appropriate a certain amount of money for that purpose.

The board agreed to set a flat pay rate of $7 per hour for persons hired to oversee activities on recreation nights. The work is to be first offered to the district's current custodians.

Although the board approved the guidelines as presented by the committee, trustees indicated the document may undergo some revisions.

"You try to do it without hard feelings, but regardless, there's going to be," Good summarized.

"There's nothing saying we can't change (the rules) in another month," Warack said.

In other business Monday, the board:

- Approved senior Jodie Fritz as the "Student of the Month" for December.
- Passed a motion commending the girls' varsity basketball team, which clinched the North Central Thumb League and district championships.
- Learned that the district's school buses all passed a recent inspection, which turned up only a few minor problems, according to Kirby.

WINTER COMMUNITY RECREATION RULES

The Owen-Gage Board of Education approved the following set of rules for the district's winter community recreation program:

1. The program is to run from 6 to 9 p.m. on Sundays at Owendale and Gageton gyms (starting with first Sunday after the new year and continuing until Easter).
2. Participants in the sixth grade or under must be accompanied by a parent.
3. Participants must live in the school district or be employed by the district.
4. No organized basketball from 6 to 7 p.m. (court open to younger players).
5. Cross court only from 7 to 9 p.m. (to allow more people a chance to play).
6. No food or drinks in gym, and no one is allowed to leave the gym area.
7. Scheduled events take priority.
8. A custodian is to be in the gym at all times.
9. Rules will be posted in both gyms.
10. Participants are to sign release forms.
11. Participants are to sign in.
12. Whoever is in charge of the gym is responsible for the sign-in book.
13. Night use (other than Sunday) is to be determined by the school board.
14. Equipment is to be furnished by the participants.
15. Use of the balcony or stage is prohibited without permission.

45th soil conservation district meeting slated

The Tuscola Soil Conservation District will hold its 45th annual meeting Jan. 19 in the Caro High School Cafeteria.

The dinner meeting will begin at 7 p.m. and the public is invited to attend.

A slide presentation on "Scenes from Idaho" will be given by District Conservationist James Graham. Graham filled the position of district conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service in the Caro Field Office after former conservationist Phil Dakin accepted the state forester position in East Lansing.

He began with the Soil Conservation Service in 1983 in Burley, in Southern Idaho. He moved to Craigmont, Idaho, in 1984 and remained there until the transfer to Caro. Graham and his wife, Shirley, are presently living in Kingston. They have a daughter, Hailey, age 3, and a new son, Austin.

Gerald Hicks of Deford and Albert Ruggles of Kingston are completing 3-year terms as district directors. The nominating committee has nominated Hicks and Elmwood Township resident Gerald Loeffler to run in Area I and Richard Seidler and Robert Steele to run in Area II.

One director will be elected in each area for a 3-year term. John Gyomory will be the election chairman.

Energy technicians Steve Bohn and David Pape will give a presentation on "What's Happening in the Tuscola Soil Conservation District." There will also be a presentation of awards.

Tickets are available at the Tuscola SCD office, 852 S. Hooper St., Caro, or from the following directors: Tom Hess, Vassar; Henry Gruber, Reese; Willard Petzold, Millington; Albert Ruggles, Kingston, and Gerald Hicks, Deford.

Time is money, the adage goes. Especially when your savings are working for you in an IRA.
Over the years, an IRA's tax-deferred, compounding interest turns your contributions into a surprisingly large fund. For example, at six percent interest, $2,000 saved each year will grow to $77,985 in twenty years—you have deposited $40,000 and earned $37,985 in interest!
Your IRA contributions plus time equal a fortune for you.
