2,000-mile trip

Snowmobile safari set to swell cancer coffers

Eighteen Thumb residents—4 from the Cass City area—will leave Saturday on a 10-day, 2,000-mile snowmobile adventure that will take them throughout the Upper Peninsula.

The trip, "Pattullo's 2,000 mile snowmobile safari", is expected to become an annual event to benefit the American Cancer Society.

The group hopes to raise more than $5,000 this year for research, public education and patient service programs of the society, according to the event's organizers, George and Betty Pattullo of Cass City and Sons Sports Inc., of Caro.

"All of the riders agreed that cancer is a disease that has touched us all in some way," Betty Pattullo, who survived a bout with cancer 6 1/2 years ago, remarked.

That's the case for participant Gerald Polk of Cass City.

Polk, who noted his dad had cancer, said he's looking forward to the adventure.

"I've been on shorter (trips), but never anything of this magnitude," he added.

"I've known George for a number of years. I was given the same opportunity to go with him last year and I didn't," Polk, who is employed as supervisor of Parole and Probation Services with the Department of Corrections, continued. This year, he added, "He made me an offer I couldn't refuse."

"It'll be something I can tell my grandchildren if I live through the trip."

Cass City resident Francis Withey, a United Parcel Service driver, and his wife Mary, a beautician, said they're also looking forward to the trip.

"I don't know what he's going to do after this," Francis said of George, who has organized similar, though shorter trips in the past. Like the other participants, the Witheys are experienced riders who do their fair share of snowmobiling each year, but they acknowledge the upcoming adventure is their biggest challenge yet.

"We're starting out with big runs," Francis pointed out, noting the group plans to travel from St. Ignace to Munising the first day. The riders will head for Iron Mountain the next day, and then to Wakefield, he said, adding the group will then head for the Houghton Hancock area before travelling to the eastern end of the peninsula and back to St. Ignace.

"If your trails are good, if they're groomed out real nice, you can average, I would say, 40 miles an hour," he continued, adding bad weather and machine breakdowns are the biggest concerns.

According to the Pattullos, the riders, who are raising money through donations and pledges, will be accompanied by a support vehicle driven by Pat Rabideau of Cass City.

Overnight stops are planned in Munising, Iron Mountain, Wakefield, Houghton, Marquette, Grand Marais and Kinross.

Aside from those already mentioned, invitations to join the adventure have been accepted by Randy Damm of Pigeon, Michael and Susan Putnam of Caro, Robert and Virginia Papp of Caro, Robert White of Caro, Eugene and Joanne Putnam of Marlette, Patrick and Dena Goheen of Decker-ville, Roy Goheen of Carsonville and James Bryce of Sandusky.

Anyone interested in making a contribution can contact one of the riders or call the American Cancer Society at (313) 664-2202.

Ratification needed

Union - school OK new 3-year pact

Cass City teachers, union officials and school board members are expected to vote over the next 2 weeks on a new 3-year labor contract, reached last week during an intense 8-hour bargaining marathon.

News of the agreement came early Thursday morning after negotiators concluded talks at 4 a.m.

It was the 17th meeting between the 2 sides, who began bargaining last May.

The session was scheduled the day before by mutual agreement of negotiators for the school and the Tri-County Bargaining Association, which represents the district's 71 teachers.

Spokesmen for both the school and teachers union, which have remained deadlocked on a host of monetary and language issues, said no contract details will be released until the ratification process has been completed.

School Supt. Micklash expressed relief over the tentative settlement.

"We're happy. We can get on with the business of educating and not worry about this for a couple of years, anyway," he said.

Only a few days prior to last week's breakthrough, the threat of a strike loomed in the district.

An unproductive 90-minute negotiating session Feb. 3 prompted teachers to announce they were working on a day-to-day basis, and the Michigan Education Association and local members of the association had already authorized union bargainers to call a strike.

Micklash, meanwhile, acknowledged the 2 sides were still some $600,000 apart on a new pact for teachers, whose previous 2-year contract expired in August.

On the issue of salary, for example, the union reportedly requested a combined increase of 30 percent over 3 years, while the school offered a combined increase of 13 percent.

Other issues that had remained unsettled, according to Micklash, were a union request of an increase in longevity of 5 to 15 percent, depending on the number of years of service; full reimbursement of unused sick days; shortened teacher and student days; smaller class size; better insurance, and additional sick/bereavement/personal days.

O-G seeks more social workers

A proposal that would make social workers available to general education students as well as those in special education in Huron County received the support of the Owen-Gage Board of Education Monday night.

School Supt. Harley Kirby said the proposal was discussed last week at a meeting of Huron County school superintendents, who have voiced a need for the service.

Under the proposal, the Huron Intermediate School District would hire 3 full-time social workers whose time would be split 4/5 for special education and 1/5 for general education.

The ISD would be responsible for special education time costs, while the general education time would be split among the participating local school districts. The general education cost is estimated at $4 per student per year, which translates into about $1,200 annually for the Owen-Gage district.

Kirby said the proposal would better help local schools to deal with a host of problems that arise among non-special education students.

Examples, he said, are family deaths, suicides, delinquency, drug and alcohol abuse, child abuse, pregnancy, low motivation and communication skills.

He noted that schools now occasionally utilize the services of social workers to help general education students, but that those professionals are only supposed to work with special education pupils.

Further, he added, school counselors are "spread pretty thin" and don't have time to fully address the social-emotional needs of all students.

CONTRACT TALK

In other business during the 2-hour, 45-minute monthly meeting, the board met for nearly 2 hours in executive session to discuss teacher contract negotiations.

Kirby said bargainers, who last met in November, plan to resume talks Thursday at 7 p.m.

"We have been negotiating and we've been working things out," the superintendent said of the progress of negotiations. He indicated that talks were postponed for a short time in hopes that the state Legislature would approve a state financing reform package.

Without a change in school financing, Kirby said, the district's situation remains the same—levying the maximum operating mileage allowed and seeing few new dollars coming in.

He said salary and insurance are the primary issues standing in the way of a settlement with the district's 22 teachers, who have been without a contract since August 1987, when a 4-year pact expired.

Also Monday, the board: —Heard a brief report from elementary Principal William Britt, who said the flu and other sicknesses have kept more than the typical number of students out of class recently. Some 20 percent of the district's 175 K-6 students were absent. Please turn to page 5.

Frustration helped Houghton to become a better teacher

by Tom Montgomery
News Editor

Frustration over kids who don't work up to their potential has taught Elaine Houghton how to be a better teacher.

Better still, Houghton's solution to that frustration is helping the fourth graders in her classroom at Kingston Elementary School to become better students.

"It's frustrating when you know they can do the job, or you know they can do better," she remarked.

Houghton's answer? Motivation. And throughout her 15 years of teaching, she's adapted and invented many ways to encourage students to do a little better.

During her interview, Houghton pointed to a bulletin board decorated with several students' papers and the words, "Good Work", and recalled a student who had to put a lot of extra effort into his work to get a paper placed on the board.

"He felt good enough about it to tell everyone in the class," she said. "Everybody has the same opportunity in here," Houghton continued, adding she also offers students the chance to re-do papers for a better grade. "Sometimes it means marking a lot of papers, but if they put the effort in, it's only right."

"I think that helps motivate some kids to get on the honor roll," she said.

Last year Houghton began another project designed to encourage her students to reach their potential.

For one week each month, she gives students a certain number of points for each letter grade they receive. An A grade is worth 4 points and a B, 3 points, for example. At the end of the week, Houghton holds an auction, and the students use the points they've accumulated to bid on small items such as books, posters and pencils.

MOTIVATION

Although motivation is a key tool in Houghton's teaching method, it's only part of her approach to education.

Communication, teaching by example, and encouraging parental support also are emphasized by the mother of one.

"There has to be a lot of give and take. You have to know your students," Houghton said.

"I think you need a sense of humor; you have to be able to laugh at your mistakes. It's important that kids know you're human too," she continued. "You pat them on the back when they need that, or pep them up when they're low. I think you have to mother them a little, too."

"I think you need to be there for them. If they've got a problem at home or something, you want to know what's going on... because that certainly affects their class work."

Houghton pointed out that her role as a teacher often goes far beyond that of guiding academic learning. She cited as an example one student calling another student stupid, a pet peeve of hers.

Nobody's Stupid

"Nobody's stupid," she said. "Maybe somebody shines in one area more than others..."

"You kind of want to instill in them a sense of respect for other people's feelings," she commented. "You have to set a good example in all areas. You just treat them like you would want to be treated."

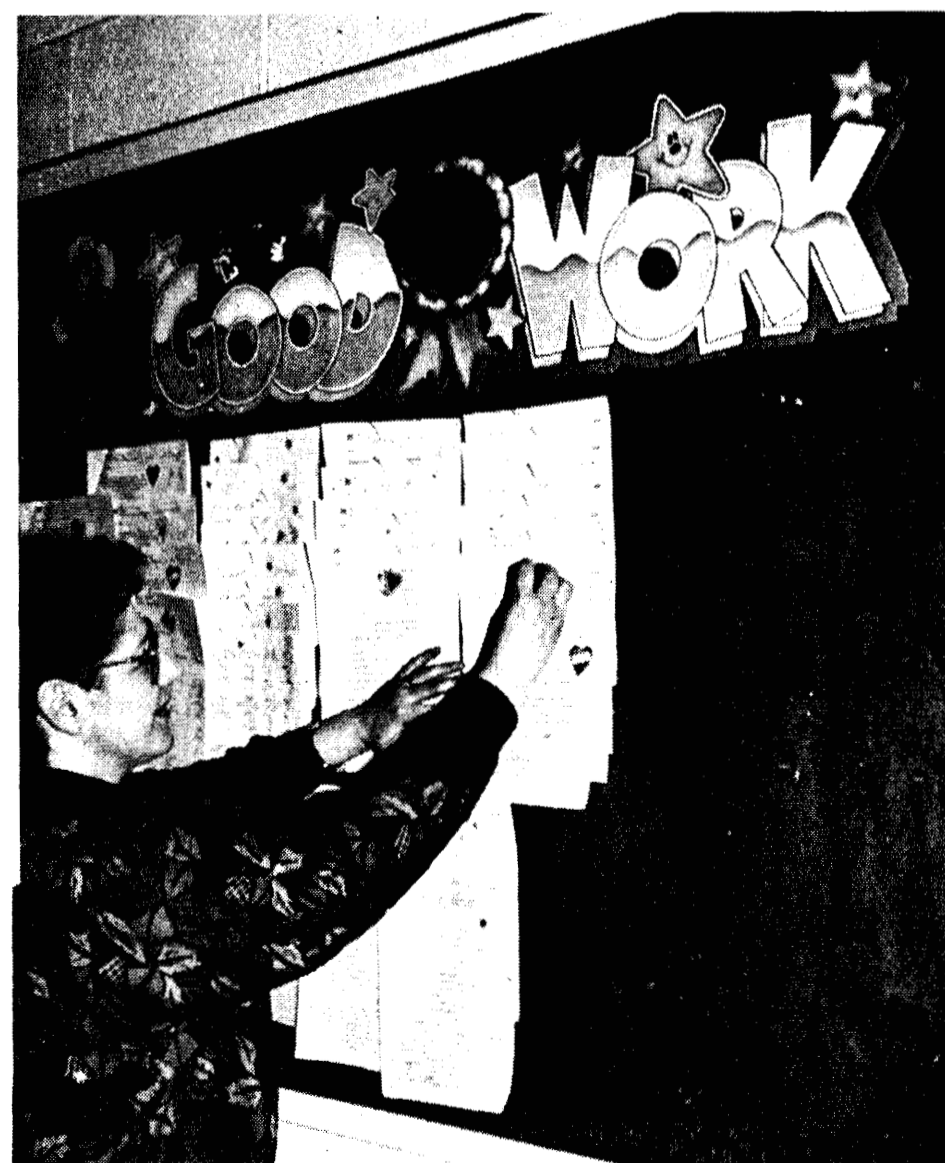

As far as academics go, I'm a hard marker," Houghton said. "I think the kids know it's their responsibility to do their work to get their grades."

"I'm not a real stickler for kids raising their hands for every little thing," she added. "On the other hand, the kids in my classroom know what they can get away with and what they can't get away with. That works for me."

Parental participation and support also is important to Houghton, who, at the beginning of the school year, sends letters to the parents of her students to let them know what she expects. Houghton also regularly sends progress reports home and encourages parents.

Cass City cagers struggling as tournament time nears

Time is growing short if the Cass City Red Hawks are going to round into shape to be a threat in the tournaments slated next month. The Hawks have just 3 games left in the regular season, Friday at Marlette and Tuesday at Mayville.

Friday, Feb. 24, in the last game of the year, Vassar plays at Cass City.

Although the Hawks handled North Branch 83-76 Friday, Cass City played more like a team starting the season rather than ending it. The defense was spotty, the defensive rebounding poor and the shot selection not up to the standards that make a championship team.

The Hawks did face a team that was better than its record indicates because Joel Ross, all Thumb B Association second team last year, was back for just his second game of the season. He suffered a broken wrist in November.

The Hawks used some outside shooting to jump into a first period lead after the 2 teams played even for the first 4 minutes. The score was tied and in the next 4 minutes Cass City posted a 21-6 advantage to lead 28-17 starting the second quarter. The rally was paced by Jeff Krol with 2 3-point shots and Paul Tuckey, who also ripped in a pair of 3-pointers to go with a couple of other buckets and 2 free throws.

The 3-pointers started missing in the second period and the Broncos started to whittle away at the margin.

Jeff Edwards, with 8 points, and Ross, with 6 free throws, paced the visitors. At the half the score was 44-39.

It was obvious that the North Branch coaching staff had been scouting Cass City, because the Broncos used the same defense that has been effective against the Hawks all year in the rally, the full-court press.

With the help of numerous turnovers, North Branch closed the gap and, with a minute left in the third quarter, went ahead for the first time since the opening minutes of the game, 59-58. Cass City quickly got back the lead 67-60 with 6:23 left and North Branch was never able to challenge again as the Hawks converted 14 of 20 free throws, with Jeff Dillon leading the way with 6 out of 7.

Cass City was kept in the game in the third period by some good passing that got the ball to Mike Randall in the low post. Randall responded with 12 points in the quarter on his way to 24 points for the night. Tuckey netted 18 and Dillon, 17. Jeremy Miner led the Broncos with 18 and Ross added 14.

In the junior varsity contest the Hawks led all the way and won, 41-31.

Disappointed at team districts

Wrestlers super at regionals Saturday

The Cass City wrestling team had a bitter-sweet week. Wednesday, the Hawk wrestling team competed in the Class C team district in Cass City. Cass City defeated Bad Axe in the opening round 47-27, but was defeated by Sandusky in the championship round 33-28. (Cass City had defeated Sandusky earlier in the year 39-28). "As a team performance, the Sandusky match was one of our worst performances of the year. We did not wrestle at the same caliber as we had the rest of the season," Coach Don Markel said. With the loss, Cass City ended its dual meet season with a record of 15-4.

Saturday, 5 wrestlers who had qualified in the individual districts competed in the individual regional held at New Lothrop. Four of the 5 finished among the top 4 in their weight class and as a result qualified for the state finals to be held in Battle Creek Friday and Saturday.

Qualifying for state competition are: Bob Leffler (125 lbs.). Bob finished 2nd in the regionals. On the way to the finals he defeated Eric Corcoran of Lake Fenton 9-7. Corcoran was ranked among the top 5 in his weight class by all classes, A, B, C and in the state. Leffler dropped a 4-2 decision to Andy Huduck of New Lothrop in the finals. Entering state competition Leffler's record is 36-4-1.

Also qualifying was Bill Kappen (140 lbs.). He placed 4th. Kappen reinjured his arm during competition and literally wrestled his way to the consolation finish one handed. He defeated Troy Mata of Sandusky 15-2 and Derek Radjenovich of Harper Woods Lutheran East 4-1 to qualify for the state finals. Once qualifying, he defaulted in the consolation match. He will undergo treatment for the injury at Walbro's and should be OK for next week. Going into the finals, Bill's record is 33-4.

A third wrestler who will see action this weekend is Randy Johnson (152 lbs.). Randy upset Mike Knieper of New Lothrop 2-1 to get into the regional finals where he dropped a 9-0 decision to Jamie Lambrecht of Harper Woods Lutheran East. In wrestling his way to the 2nd place finish, Randy extended his record to 33-12-1.

Ted Peasley is the 4th Cass City wrestler to qualify for state competition by placing 4th at the regionals. Peasley overcame a severe ankle sprain suffered in practice the day before. He upped his season's record to 33-10-1 with the 4th-place finish.

Caro drops lethargic Red Hawks

THUD! That noise you heard Tuesday at Caro High School was the Cass City Red Hawk basketball fortunes hitting rock bottom following a disappointing loss to the Tigers, 49-45. It moved Caro into a tie for third place in the Thumb B Association.

Coach Ron Nurnberger called it an embarrassing game where the team played virtually no defense and was lethargic all night. It may have been a let down following the key loss to the Lakers in the previous game.

In any case, the Hawks can now forget about vying for the conference title and concentrate on getting ready for the district tourney in March.

The Tigers staged what proved to be the winning rally late in the first quarter and early in the second when they bounced ahead, 24-11, a lead that proved too great to overcome although it appeared in the third period that the team might be able to do so.

Trailing 24-15 at the intermission Cass City closed the gap to within a single basket going into the final 8 minutes. The rally was paced by Jason Robertson who collected 7 points and Paul Tuckey who netted 6.

The same duo kept the Hawks in the game until the end as Robertson pitched in 3 baskets and Tuckey a bucket and 4 free throws to go with a 3-pointer by Jeff Krol. Caro countered with balanced scoring including a 3-pointer by Kevin Roller.

It wasn't a vintage shooting night for Cass City to say the least. The Hawks were just 2 of 14 from 3-point range while Caro was 6 of 11. In 2-point field goals Cass City was 14 of 35 for 40 percent, Caro 17 of 44 for 39 percent.

It was a phenomenal night all around from the free throw line. Cass City, led by Tuckey with 10 for 10, was a perfect 11 of 11 and Caro was 9 of 10, an average that any team anywhere, pro or amateur, would be happy to have.

A key statistic was the rebounding where the Tigers gathered 34 to just 25 for the Hawks.

Robertson's 13 points was a career best for him. Tuckey netted 16 while Dick Gardner led all scorers with 18 points.

Cass City spikers lose pivotal game against Broncos

Cass City Red Hawk spikers lost the pivotal game in a 5-game match with North Branch Thursday in Cass City. The Broncos won the first game, 15-10, the second, 16-14, and the fifth, 15-5. Cass City won the second game, 15-11, and the fourth, 15-12.

The Hawks suffered on attack in the first game. The spiking was off and Cass City recorded kills in just 32 percent of its opportunities. Passing the ball was also subpar. Jandi Hillaker, Sue Papp and Darlene Monroe each had 2 kills and Cindy Powell 6 assists.

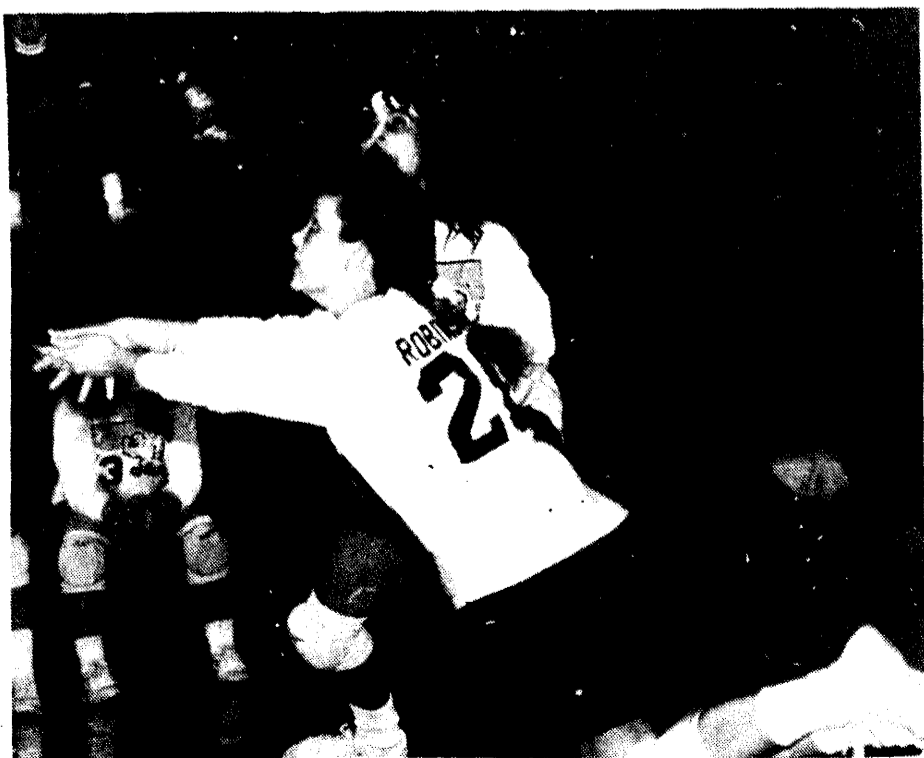

Cass City changed that in the second game as the Broncos had trouble with sets and the Hawks posted a 2 to one advantage in kills.

The visitors used some fine serves to take the third game, 16-14. North Branch scored 9 of 15 points off the serve. Cass City converted just 5 of 19 spikes into points.

Cass City used the serve to even the match at 2 games each in the 4th game. Cass City hit 89 percent of its serves and the Broncos had trouble returning them. The Hawks had 8 kills in 18 attempts.

Bad passing led to the 15-5 decision in the deciding game, the most one-side game in the match. Cass City had had passes that made good serves useless.

DOWN ON BOTH KNEES is Cass City's Vicki Robinson, who makes a diving save in Thursday's game with North Branch. Robinson's efforts couldn't save the Hawks, who lost the Thumb B match in 5 games.

Helen Roth given life membership

Helen Roth of Gagetown received a life membership when Echo Chapter OES met Wednesday, Feb. 8. Fourteen officers answered roll call. A card party is scheduled Feb. 25 at the Masonic Temple at 7:30 with prizes and refreshments. Virginia Hartwick and her committee served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Deckerville home Thursday

Bulldog spikers remain unblemished in NCTL

The Owen-Gage spikers chalked up 2 more North Central Thumb League victories last week, conquering both North Huron and Carsonville-Port Sanilac in straight games.

Coach Judy Campbell's volleyball team now stands at a perfect 5-0 in league play with 3 NCTL contests yet to play. Their toughest challenge remaining will come this Thursday when they entertain Deckerville.

Owen-Gage had little trouble at CPS Thursday where they recorded winning scores of 15-4, 15-9 and 15-7.

The 'Dogs were led by sophomore Vicki Ricker from behind the service line where she recorded 14 points, including 8 aces. Also recording points on her serve was Patti Ondrajka, who followed Ricker with 12 tallies, 5 of which were aces.

Seniors Andrea Mandich and Angie Bolzman led the Bulldogs at the net as they combined for 36 attacks and 13 kills. Mandich had 27 of those attacks and a game high 7 kills. Lori Radabaugh, another of Campbell's talented sophomores, chipped in on the winning effort with 2 saves.

NORTH HURON North Huron proved little challenge to the 'Dogs

Monday as they invaded the Blue Stars' floor and came away with wins of 15-9, 15-10 and 15-4.

Bulldog Dawn Holland played what Coach Campbell called an outstanding all around game.

Holland registered 13 points and also had 14 attacks to go along with 7 kill spikes.

Andrea Goslin also played well for the winners. Goslin had 30 sets and 9 assists. Leading the Bulldogs at the net, as unusual, was Mandich, who had 17 kill spikes.

5-week nutrition course announced

Meals that are exciting and delicious, but low in calories, fat and cholesterol - that's what a cooking course called "The Culinary Hearts Kitchen" is all about.

Developed by the American Heart Association, the course is now being offered in Bad Axe by the Cooperative Extension Service and Huron Memorial Hospital.

The classes will be held on Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m. at Huron Memorial Hospital

Schedule to get easier

Owen-Gage cagers tumble to both conference leaders

The Owen-Gage Bulldog basketball team has weathered the storm. After last week's losses to North Central Thumb League leaders Kingston and Deckerville, the 3-13 'Dogs, can conceivably see a silver lining.

In the Bulldogs' final 4 contests, 3 are with teams they have already beaten. The 4th is against North Huron in the regular season finale, which is a squad the Bulldogs are capable of defeating.

But if Owen-Gage is to gain any momentum heading into the district tournament, which will be hosted in Owendale, they will have to do it on the road.

They can start with North Branch Wesleyan on Tuesday and continue on Friday when they travel to Carsonville-Port Sanilac.

Deckerville showed Coach Dean Roller Friday why they are considered the NCTL favorites as they jumped all over the Bulldogs in the opening quarter and coasted to a 73-41 victory.

The visitors opened a 20-point lead in the first 8 minutes and increased their 24-4 advantage to 45-17 at the intermission.

Eagle mentor Warren Warczinsky elected to bench his starters for most of the 2nd half, and the Bulldogs played the Eagles nearly even, being outscored by only 4 points.

Deckerville, despite recording 71 points, had only 2 players in double figures. Senior Brian Davis recorded game scoring honors with a dozen markers. He was followed by Rob Zeien's 11 tallies. The Eagles entered all 13 of their players into the record books.

The Bulldogs were led by junior Brian Abbe, who registered 11 tallies, including 3 baskets from beyond the 3-point ring.

Kingston Game

Earlier in the week on Tuesday, the Kingston Cardinals kept pace with Deckerville by downing the visiting Bulldogs 71-38.

Coach Roller slowed down the tempo against the Cardinals and it proved effective, as the 'Dogs trailed the talented rich Cardinals only 12-8 after one period.

"We missed a few shots or we could have had the lead," said Roller.

The Cardinals put the game away in the 2nd and 3rd quarters where they outscored the 'Dogs 47-24.

Kingston's Jim Green saw that his team had the game tucked away by the half as he poured in 15 of his game high 19 points, while leading his team to a 37-18 half-time lead.

Sharp shooter Ron Moore also got into the act in the 2nd stanza, as he nailed 2 3-points shots, which helped the hosts outscore the visitors by 15 in the quarter.

Moore added another 3-point shot in the 3rd quarter and the Cardinals added 8 points to their lead to end any comeback chance for the visitors.

Moore ended the night with a baker's dozen and he and Green were the only Cardinal players to finish in double figures.

The Bulldogs, who dressed only 6 players, were led by Brian Abbe's 11 points. Mike Kady also finished in double figures as he netted 10.

Anxiety plays role in host of illnesses

Physicians have long been trained to diagnose and treat physical illnesses using the latest medications and the most modern technology.

opportunities to ask questions and discuss the feelings, particularly the fears, that commonly accompany physical illness.

When a patient has cardiac symptoms, one simple question must be asked: Does this person have some form of heart disease, or is he or she showing symptoms of anxiety?

diazepines were substituted for warranted narcotic analgesics. One study used the benzodiazepine alprazolam in conjunction with painkilling medications to treat cancer patients whose malignancies caused refractory pain syndrome.

Letters to the editor

Cathy Cooper

Teacher is extra special

Dear Editor, A few weeks ago you had articles on teachers in the Cass City School District. I thought that it was nice that some of the teachers got recognized for all their good doings.

some type of an award. Well, all good things must come to an end they say. Chris came home from school today in tears.

badly about this but we do wish her all the best. One good thing is that she is still in our Cass City School District as a Reading/Coordinator.

year, and our foreign friends pay us their debts and start supporting themselves without our foreign aid.

Anxiety's Major Role in Illness

The role of anxiety has been described in a host of illnesses. Among the more prominent are cardiovascular conditions, peptic ulcer, hypertension (high blood pressure), disorders of the endocrine system — for example, the thyroid or the reproductive organs — various disorders of the respiratory system — asthma and obstructive lung disease are commonly cited — as well as anemia and certain other imbalances in the blood's delicate chemistry.

In cases where severe anxiety or depression is prompted by physical illness, the physician may suggest the intervention of a psychiatrist. There is, in fact, a subspecialty called consultation liaison psychiatry that focuses on providing patients in medical settings with psychiatric care and follow-up services.

Patients with heart disease, particularly those admitted to a coronary care unit (CCU), are in special need of early recognition and treatment of anxiety and stress to help prevent the complications of heart attacks, the most extreme of which is sudden death.

With any medication, there are risks as well as benefits, and the benzodiazepines are no exception. The major concerns involve problems of abuse — nonmedical use — and physical dependence — marked by development of withdrawal symptoms

Anxiety and Pain

Anxiety has also been found to be related to the perception of pain. In other words, patients' pain thresholds — the lowest level at which they perceive a stimulus as painful — and their ability to withstand pain are related to the level of anxiety they are experiencing.

Trinity Women hold meet

Twenty-two ladies attended a luncheon meeting at Trinity Methodist Church Feb. 6. The meal was prepared by Group 2 with Marilyn Alexander and Val Weeks, chairpersons.

One study suggests that benzodiazepines may be effective in reducing the need for postoperative painkillers. By reducing anxiety, benzodiazepines may allow patients to better withstand pain.

The business meeting was opened by Vice-president Virginia Hartwick and Helen Baker gave the program on Christian Personhood-Prayer and Self-Denial.

The next meeting will be March 6 at 6:30.
