Burke settles case for $50,000

Tuscola County Department of Natural Resources official Timothy Burke, 43, of Caro accepted $50,000 for injuries received in a shooting Oct. 20, 1984, in an out-of-court settlement Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

The judgement was received from Steve Simon, Millington, one of the 2 men involved in the shooting. The other was Dale Matzke, Millington.

The shooting occurred when Burke was patrolling on Hunt Road in Juniata Township and noticed lights shining off the road and went to investigate for possible poachers.

A high-powered rifle ricocheted off the hood of his car, smashed the windshield and struck Burke in the face.

CELEBRATING AT HER 101st birthday party is Elizabeth Weighill.

"Young" at 101

Weighill feted on birthday

How do you live to be 101 and still look like 75 and act like 65? Well, the answer for Elizabeth Weighill is that, "I never thought that I was old."

Weighill who now lives in the Cass City Apartments was feted at a birthday party Wednesday and was sitting next to her daughter serving cake and truthfully the birthday lady looked as young as her daughter or the other 18 senior citizens at the party.

Weighill says that heredity isn't the reason for her years, although she has a 94-year-old sister, the only living member of the family that included 3 brothers and 3 sisters.

Probably as remarkable as her appearance is her alertness. She showed none of the mental failures sometimes accompanying age. She does use a walker when she gets the mail every morning.

Hospital stays have been few and far between for the centenarian. She was in the hospital for the birth of her children and at 84 had a gall bladder removed. Later a cataract operation was required. That's all, but she confides that a cataract operation on the other eye may be necessary.

It wasn't because she had a pampered life that she lived to her present age. Born in England, she moved to

I never thought of myself as old.
Elizabeth Weighill

Winnipeg, Canada, when a year old and lived there until she married George Duncan and moved to Detroit.

In Winnipeg water was carried for 2 blocks, heated on top of the range and used to scrub clothes by hand. Weighill still recalls the disagreeable job of cleaning soot-covered lamps that she filled with kerosene.

Winters were so cold that frost collected on nails sticking through her bedroom wall.

Her husband died after 20 years together and she was left with 3 children to support and raise. This was in the depression years of the 1930's.

A son died 11 years ago and 2 daughters are living. Evelyn Warmbier lives with her and Irene Shanahan. Members of the family live in Cass City. They include a grandson, Jerry Warmbier and a granddaughter, Carmen Damm.

Financial crunch

5 generations on farm may end for Tuckeys

James A. Tuckey would love to see his partner and son, Jim, continue a tradition of family farming in the Cass City area that has lasted 5 generations.

Likewise, he would love for Jim's son, Jamie, 15, to take the 316-acre dairy operation into a sixth generation.

Drought, wet falls and increasingly tough economic times, however, have prompted Tuckey to encourage Jim to pursue a career with the post office in town.

Now ready to retire, the father, and his son, are talking about getting out of the business.

"My hope is that Jamie would take over, but I wouldn't blame him" if he didn't, Tuckey said. "At this point, the way that agriculture is, he's not even interested in it."

"It used to be where you could go into a bank, sign your name and get $5,000 or whatever you needed. Everybody knew everybody," he continued.

"Since the 70s, we've been taking money out of savings to keep the thing going, and we're not the only ones."

Climbing expenses in conjunction with poor weather have hurt the operation in recent years, Jim agreed.

"For milk, back in 1975-76, we were probably getting $10 to $11 per hundredweight, and a nice John Deere tractor would cost you $16,000 to $17,000," he remarked, adding that now, the milk price is $12.50 per hundredweight and the same tractor costs $45,000 to $50,000.

NIP AND TUCK

"Usually by this time of year, we've got (so much) feed in the barn, you can't keep the 'coons out. Last year by this time we had everything bought" for spring planting, Jim said. "This year it's going to be nip and tuck."

He noted that 3 consecutive years of poor navy bean harvests, and 2 droughts, have cut feed supplies. Last summer's drought forced them to sell 11 cows in order to maintain the herd on available feed.

"Financially, this year, I think, really put us back a year and a half. It's really frustrating," Jim said.

He remarked there are days when he feels that farming is a great way to earn a living. He added, however, that his job as a rural route carrier with the post office, which he began 4 years ago, is less of a burden.

"On the farm, you've got to worry about making a budget, you've got to worry about seed supply, you've got to worry about the weather; you name it."

Although Jim and his father are seriously thinking about getting out of the dairy business, their farm operation, established by Jim's great-great grandfather, Charles Tuckey in 1880, has seen many good years.

HEALTHY

Despite a bout with financial problems in the late 70s and early 80s, the farm today is among the healthier local operations.

That didn't happen by accident, and Jim indicated he, along with his father and brothers, Scott and Phillip, have enjoyed helping to meet the challenge of improving the farm operation, which has been a member of the Michigan Milk Producers Association for some 40 years.

Back in the early 70s, when Jim joined the farm, the operation consisted of 20 percent cash crops and 80 percent dairy.

"We kept going more to the cash crop because it wasn't as labor intensive," he said, adding that by 1981, 74 percent of the operation was cash crops.

As the dollar return on cash crops began to lessen, the Tuckeys increased their dairy herd from 14 head to 60 head. With the use of artificial insemination, they increased production and cut their calf mortality rate from 30 percent to nearly zero.

Over the past 8 years, they've gone from shipping 800 pounds of milk every other day to 3,800 pounds

Up, up go costs for garbage removal

Area residents are a step closer to seeing another hike in trash hauling rates following approval last week of a temporary injunction in Sanilac County Circuit Court banning out-of-county trash from Tri-City Landfill.

Ray Hayes, controller for Gateway Sanitation Services, Almont, which handles waste hauling for Cass City, Caro and several other Thumb communities, indicated Thursday that local pick-up rates will be affected soon by the action.

He declined to be specific, saying he will have a better idea late this week regarding what's going to happen with rates.

Up until the ban went into effect last Wednesday, Cass City and other area residents' refuse was taken to Tri-City. Even with a recent increase of 75 cents per yard, Tri-City offered the lowest rates in this part of the state, according to Hayes.

He said a ban at the Sanilac County site means having to haul refuse from the area to landfills further south. Among the options are sites in Genesee, Macomb and Oakland counties, where rates range from $5.50 to $7 per yard.

Although Gateway would continue to provide the best service possible, higher landfill costs plus the expense of added distance and man hours would have to be passed on to customers, Hayes said.

Last week's action follows a ruling—made in the same court 3 weeks earlier—in support of the trash ban based on Sanilac County's long-range solid waste plan, which doesn't provide for the transfer of waste from other counties into Sanilac County.

In response to the ban, Tri-City officials last week announced a sharp increase in rates, from $3.50 per yard to $15 per yard.

The increase, which also went into effect last Wednesday, came after an unsuccessful motion by the landfill company's attorneys to prevent Sanilac County refuse from being hauled to landfills outside the county.

Sanilac County Administrator John Dean said a pre-trial hearing on the county's lawsuit to permanently ban out-of-county trash is expected to be held within the next 2 weeks. A full trial is expected to begin in July.

The county filed suit against the landfill in September because of concern over the rate at which the site is filling up, according to Dean, who noted that Tri-City officials are currently in the process of trying to obtain a 15-acre expansion permit from the DNR. A public hearing on that matter is set for March 15.

Commissioners from Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac, Lapeer and St. Clair counties, meanwhile, are scheduled to meet a second time to talk about possible development of a regional landfill to meet the Thumb's solid waste needs.

Representatives of the 5 counties, who first met to discuss the issue Feb. 21, are slated to meet again Monday.

Money donated

Thumb drug unit in action soon

A long-awaited full-time regional drug enforcement unit is expected to begin operations in the Thumb this summer.

And through commitments of cash, equipment and other resources, local and state law enforcement officials say the new effort will help meet a need that local police agencies alone haven't been able to tackle due to limited budgets and time.

"We're really excited about it because the unit is definitely going now," Tuscola County Sheriff Tom Kern remarked last week.

He added that local dollar commitments received so far have been a big boost in getting the effort, called the Thumb Narcotics Unit, underway.

"We're up to $30,000 now" in local donations, Kern said, adding various dollar amounts have been promised to-date by the county, most of Tuscola's villages and the City of Vassar, a third of the townships and the Central Michigan Chiefs of Police.

In addition, Kern pointed out, the Michigan State Police have received a verbal commitment for federal drug enforcement grant monies. "We're looking at about $75,000 that they could bring into the unit," he continued.

"Once we have some hopefully good raids, we can't retain cash and other assets obtained through illegal drug activities. These can't run a unit, but they can help keep it in the black," he said.

Kern explained that the unit, which will be headed by the state police, will investigate drug activities in Tuscola, Lapeer and Sanilac counties. Huron County officials, he noted, haven't yet committed to the regional effort.

CONTRIBUTE

The sheriff explained that the participating counties have each agreed to contribute an officer to the unit, while the state police will contribute supervisory and other personnel.

Although the concept of a regional drug enforcement team has been rejected in recent years by former sheriffs in Tuscola and Huron counties, Kern said he favors an effort combining local and state police personnel and resources.

"I have no problem with that because they (state police) have more resources to draw on," he remarked.

Currently, he added, local drug enforcement efforts are few and far in between. Occasionally hiring persons to make drug buys, he said, isn't likely going to put a dent in Thumb drug trafficking.

"We do it on a piece meal basis," he said. "Instead of getting the street corner dealers, now we can get some of the big dealers."

Helpful hints

by Melva E. Guinther

It's time to pass along the latest collection of household hints. Some of them are from "501 Household Tricks", a handy little booklet put out by Globe Communications Corp. The tricks haven't necessarily been tested, so we make no guarantees.

Sprinkle scorched and burned pans with baking soda, add a small amount of water and boil. The burned portion should lift easily from the pan.

Dusty drapes can be cleaned by running them through the no-heat cycle of the dryer for 15 minutes, with a damp towel to collect the dust. Remove drapes as soon as the dryer stops, to avoid wrinkling. Repeat every 3 months.

Club soda makes a good household cleanser, being more acidic than plain water, and containing salt. Suggested uses are for color-fast fabrics, rugs and upholstery, car seats, chrome and plastic, to get pet stains out of carpets and to keep spills from setting. It will also give house plants a quick pickup.

To clean a bathtub without bending, fasten an old bath towel around a broom. Sprinkle detergent into the tub, run hot water in and wish the broom back and forth.

Use the same broom with towel to remove ceiling cobwebs. (Keep your mouth shut.)

To separate bacon slices more easily, roll the package of bacon back and forth a few times. It's easier than trying to separate pieces with a fork.

Bread that has dried out can be freshened by wrapping it in a damp towel and refrigerating for a day. Or you can sprinkle the bread with water, wrap it in foil, and heat it in the oven.

Lemons yield more juice if you dunk them in hot water for 15 minutes before squeezing them.

An easy way to slice mushrooms is with the egg slicer.

Here's one for cat lovers. Eliminate fur balls by putting a dab of Vaseline on the top of Kitty's nose. When he licks it off the hair ball will be passed.

To keep plants from drying out when you're going to be away, water them thoroughly and slip a plastic bag over them, tying it around the middle of the pot.

If you plug the opening in a flower pot with a 4-hole button large enough to fit the opening, it will ensure slow drainage without loss of soil. Clean, melted snow is good for plants because of its mineral content.

You can make expensive mouthwash go farther by putting it in an atomizer.

This one's for fellow cold feet sufferers. Make inexpensive innersoles for your shoes out of styrofoam trays from meat containers or bakery items. Just cut them to the shape of your foot and slip them in your shoes. They'll help retain body heat and keep your tootsies warm.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire
(And anyone else he can get to help.)

When mother nature acted up last week and covered the town with ice, Jay Smith, Cass City, had the answer. Smith, who is somewhere in retirement age, clumped briskly down the street without a thought about slipping.

The reason? He took an old pair of golf shoes, removed the spikes and attached them to regular shoes for super traction.

Regular readers of this trivia will recall last week that Al Pratt lost his wallet and had it returned by an honest stranger. How about this? While on a shuttle bus in Colorado he left his camera on the seat.

He reported it to the ski authorities at Breckenridge and after he arrived home received a call that it had been found, turned in and would be shipped to him at his home in Lake Orion.

That's the good news. The bad news is that while on the trip he parked his car in the driveway of a home in one of the better subdivisions in Yuppie Plymouth. While away someone smashed the window of the car and hauled away everything that was not nailed down.

I'd rather they had stolen the car, said Al.

A Thumb native and former Cass City football coach will be one of 25 inducted into the Michigan High School Hall of Fame Saturday, April 8, at Crisler Arena at the University of Michigan. Oarie Lemanski coached the Hawks from 1962 to 1964 before accepting a position as assistant coach at a Saginaw high school.

Later he took the reins at Bay City Central. In addition to his football coaching career he was the basketball coach at Vassar and many observers credit him for turning the cage program around at the school.

He is a native of Bad Axe and attended the University of Michigan, later transferring to Central Michigan University where he was a Little All-American.

Althaver named officer

Cass City business executive and Village Council President L.E. Althaver is among several persons who were elected officers during a recent annual recognition dinner of the Lake Huron Area Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Althaver, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Walbro Corp., was elected the officer in charge of manpower during the evening, which honored civic leaders and youths involved in the scouting movement throughout 19 northeastern Michigan counties.

Another chapter in the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth as seen from the enlightened perspective and advantageous view at the corner of Main and Oak Streets.

As remarked here a couple of weeks ago the only question was how much would the increase in refuse disposal be? The answer then and the answer now is that nobody really knows.

But it looks like it will be more than expected. The way it looks now is that it might jump higher than an Olympian working on a trampoline. It's like buying gas during a fuel shortage you take what you get and pay what you must.

Another easy prediction is that the committee that has been working on a countywide solution will get moving after spending the first 5 years outlining the problem.

When the citizens start feeling the jab of the sharp-edged sword of higher prices the fur begins to fly.

Cass City is the envy of residents of many small towns in the Thumb for its spirit of cooperation and community pride. It is being exhibited again by the quick (if not easy) way business and professional men obligated themselves for $150,000 for Jordan College and enough donations to start building a $100,000-plus track.

Think about it for a moment. That's a lot of money to come up with when the direct benefit to the vast majority of the donors is Z-I-L-C-H.

Indirectly it's another story. Where would we be without the park and Hills and General Hospital? You could mention Walbro Corporation, although it turned out that investors had plenty to gain by buying that stock. But at the time, most Cass Cityans came up with the money in a desperate attempt to help the village (and their businesses) by providing a few jobs when there weren't any.

It's amazing to me that that kind of dollars can be raised in that short of time for that type of project. It speaks well for the continued success of the community.

Of course there are a couple of reasons besides that special spirit for the success. The first is that Cass City for its size has been and is a good business town. Lots of folks here are making a good living. You can't donate, pledge or back a note if you have no money.

The second is that we are still a very small town and smaller communities are closer knit than those that are large and often have more prosperous residents.

Having said that and knowing what Cass City has been capable of in the past, I confess. I didn't think it would float. Especially the college. Second confession. I feel that Jordan College has a rough row to hoe. I hope that I'm as wrong about that as I was when I told the late M. B. Auten, Cass City State Bank President, that there was no way that Cass City could come up with the half million dollars (it would be equal to more than a million dollars today) to build Hills and Dales General Hospital.

*****

Idle thought. It just doesn't pay to be the favorite when Cass City and Deckerville meet in district competition. Last year a fine Deckerville squad (rated better than this year's squad) fell to Cass City 64-62. This year Cass City was given the edge and was eliminated by the Eagles.

"If It Fitz..."

Twice as bad?

By Jim Fitzgerald

The often-heard complaint about the popular TV show "thirtysomething" is that the characters whine too much. What have they got to whine about? Don't they realize things could be twice as bad?

This week's episode of "thirtysomething" concerned my day with 3-year-old Tricia. It began in a Rochester shopping mall where my wife and I joined Tricia and her mother. The plan was that mother and grandmother, with several friends, would dine in a fancy restaurant and then see the matinee at Meadowbrook Theatre. Tricia and I would dine at McDonald's, ride the merry-go-round at a K mart, and see widdo woowoo on the VCR in Tricia's home.

As we waited for the rest of the theater party to gather, it was remarked that I wasn't the only grandparent designated for baby-sitting duty that day. A friend of a friend of my wife was bringing her 2-year-old son, and his grandmother would also meet them at the mall. Just like me, she would generously take over on child care while the parent went off to have a good time.

I thought it was nice that I would meet another baby-sitting grandparent, someone with whom I had so much in common. Perhaps we two old folks could compare notes on how hard it is to keep up with the youngsters. Maybe she would sit and knit, and I would read my newspaper, while the two little kids ran around the mall and trampled innocent strangers. Maybe she knew a McDonald's with a discount for senior citizens.

SHOCKED BY GRANDMA

The little boy and his mother arrived first, and I made some lame jokes about how grandparents can come in handy as long as they remain spry enough to leave their retirement homes for more than a couple of hours at a time. Naturally, I noticed the pretty, nicely built young woman in tight jeans join our party, but paid her no special notice until she was introduced as the little boy's grandmother.

Grandmother! I was soon breathless from holding my stomach. I wanted to tell her I also had a 20-year-old grandchild, except I didn't want to see the look of no surprise on her unwrinkled face. So I simply shuffled off to lunch, leaning on Tricia. At McDonald's, Tricia said she had to go potty. She wouldn't go inside the men's room, and I wouldn't go inside the women's rest room. No problem, Tricia said, she could go by herself. I stood outside the door and waited, and waited, and waited. Several kind young mothers — grandmothers? asked if there were anything they could do to help, but I assured them my senility hadn't yet reached the stage where I couldn't deal with a 3-year-old child; I stuck my head inside the women's rest room and asked if anything were wrong. From an unseen spot, Tricia yelled "No!" We had this same conversation five times.

THE SEARCH FOR WOOWOO

Finally, Tricia emerged to say her pee went the wrong way, and she should change her pants before we went to K mart because she didn't want to get the merry-go-round horse wet. All I had to do was zip up her jacket against the cold and head for her home. But, no matter how hard I concentrated on the job, I couldn't get the lousy zipper prong (or whatever you call the damn thing) into its miserable slot.

A young mother — grandmother? — at the next table said I was taking the wrong approach to the job — from the front. She said if I stood behind Tricia and reached around her, the zipping would be easy. All I could think of was funeral home workers who have to lie down to comb their hair. But I did as instructed, and the zipping was easy. I should have known that.

At home, after we changed everything except her socks, Tricia said she wanted to see "widdo woowoo." Even after she said it a dozen times, I had no idea what she was talking about. After tearing the room apart, I finally came up with the correct video. Tricia wanted to see "Little Lulu." I should have known that, too.

Tricia later told her mother she had a good time with me, but "Grandpa is dumb." I wouldn't put it that way. I'd simply say the reason for whining about being thirtysomething is you forget what you used to know when you were thirtysomething.

CASS CITY SCHOOL NEWS

DEVELOPMENTAL KINDERGARTEN ACTIVITIES INTEGRATING MATH AND SCIENCE

The time is drawing near when parents begin to take a serious look at school entrance for their pre-schoolers. Many questions are being asked about Developmental Kindergarten. We know that children do not mature at the same rate, just as they do not all walk and talk at the same time. In the past, school personnel and parents were left with only two options, in spite of the great range of maturity levels in kindergarten-age children. One option was to send children to school, knowing that many would need to repeat Kindergarten because of the maturity lag. The other option was to keep the child home for a year.

In 1983, the Cass City Board of Education sought to deal with this problem by providing a Developmental Kindergarten program. The program is designed for children who have not yet matured enough to meet the demands of kindergarten. This lack of maturity may be in one or more of the following areas: social-emotional maturity, coordination, or cognitive development. The Developmental Kindergarten program is designed to allow the student to be successful while performing tasks at his/her level. The success gained in this room gives students a wholesome attitude towards learning and enhances their self-esteem in preparation for Kindergarten the following year. Parents who have had children in the Development Kindergarten have found it to be a very rewarding experience for them.

All children enrolled at Kindergarten Parent's Night (Round-Up) and throughout the summer, are given a screening test to determine the placement for them to meet with success at school. After test results are evaluated, those students with the six to twelve-month developmental lag are offered the opportunity to be a part of the Developmental Kindergarten program. The fact that a child is chronologically young does not automatically ensure placement in the program.

As you plan for school entrance for your son or daughter, please watch the Chronicle for specific dates for Kindergarten Parent's Night (Kindergarten Round-Up) in April. We look forward to meeting you at that time.

New books at the library

MUTATION by Robin Cook (fiction). Dr. Victor Frank, a bio-physicist, is driven by his wife Marsha's infertility to create a monster: a son whose genetic structure has been designed to pre-ordain brilliance. Keeping the experiment a secret from his wife, he implants similar embryos in 2 other women as well. A decade later, his work goes awry; the other children die mysteriously, and Marsha realizes that something isn't quite normal - he has no emotions.

SMOKE AND MIRRORS by Barbara Michaels (fiction). Young, uncertain Erin Hartsock moves to Washington, D.C., after her father's death, and takes a job on the campaign staff of Rosemary White Marshall, an old friend of her parents who is running for the Senate from Virginia. Both exhilarated and intimidated by the non-stop pace of campaign life, Erin is similarly drawn to and put off by the enforced intimacy of Rosemary's inner circle. A series of accidents centering around fires besieges the campaign, and Erin discovers to her horror that she is suspected of harboring a family secret that may destroy Rosemary's chances. Although she and Nick, another member of Rosemary's staff, clear her name, the threat to Rosemary remains and the 2 young people face mortal danger when they uncover an old plot - its victims ready to wreak vengeance, its perpetrators ready to kill again.

RIVALRY by Janet Dailey (fiction). Flame Morgan, the blue-blooded, red-headed v-p of a San Francisco ad agency, is instantly attracted to Chance Stuart, a wealthy, powerful land developer. Equally smitten, Chance lavishes diamonds, orchids and hot kisses on her, all the while withholding a destructive secret that comes to light only after their whirlwind courtship and marriage. For years, Chance has hungered for Morgan's Walk, an Oklahoma estate that Flame inherits. Bad blood between the Stuart and Morgan clans goes back to the days of the Oklahoma land rush. Believing that Chance only married her to get at Morgan's Walk, Flame picks up the baton with alacrity, moving ruthlessly to block her husband.

Battle of Books now underway at library

The ninth annual Battle of the Books began Feb. 27 at Rawson Memorial Library, Cass City. With such names as the "Michigan Wolvereaders," "Book Busters" and "Rainbow Readers," there are 24 teams entered in the third and fourth grade division and 11 teams in the fifth and sixth grade division.

Following first-round competition last week, teams advancing to the second round will compete today (Wednesday) and Thursday with the battles set to begin at 3:30 p.m. each day. The third round will be March 13 at 3:30 p.m., and the final battle will be March 17 at 7:30 p.m.

All battles are held in the meeting room at Rawson Memorial Library.

Members of the 4 teams that make it to the finals will each receive ribbons, and everyone participating receives a certificate. All teams which do not advance to the finals will participate in a special "Honors Round" slated for March 18. They will compete for honors positions and all of the Battle of the Books participants will be treated to a magic show by D.J. Svacha.

The competition, sponsored by Rawson Memorial Library and the Cass City Intermediate, Campbell, Deford and Evergreen School libraries, is designed to encourage children to read books that are both entertaining and well written, regardless of the age of the books; to give recognition to children who enjoy reading, and to help participants learn to win and lose gracefully and to be proud of their individual and team efforts.

Area township boards of review will meet Monday and Tuesday with area residents who want to discuss their property tax assessments.

Persons who believe their assessment is too high can do something about it by first contacting their local assessor.

When an assessment error is clearly pointed out, most assessors are willing to adjust an appraisal without requiring a formal appeal process. If the matter can't be resolved that way, however, the next step is to file an appeal with a local board of review.

Because a successful appeal must be based on the validity of the tax assessment in question, persons making an appeal must be able to show that the assessor's judgement of the property's value was in error.

The factors which are considered in an appraisal are the age, size, quality and type of construction of the house, the number of rooms, the size of the lot, the neighborhood in which the house is located and the usual selling price for properties with similar characteristics.

Michigan Consumers

Council officials suggest that persons planning to make an appeal should start by checking their assessment records with the local assessor's office.

Assessors occasionally make mistakes recording structural features of a house, so persons should make sure that recorded dimensions of the house and lot are accurate. It's also important that portions of the structure, such as unfinished attics and basements, aren't misrepresented in the property description. Defects that might reduce a house's value also should be noted.

The assessment process determines the true cash value of property for the purpose of calculating property taxes.

An individual tax bill is computed by multiplying the state equalized valuation (SEV) times the local tax rate. The SEV is equal to 50 percent of a property's true cash value.

The tax rate is often referred to as the millage because it's expressed in mills. A one-mill tax is equal to $1 for every $1,000 of SEV to which it applies. If a property is assessed and equalized at $10,000 and the tax rate is 30 mills, for example, the tax would be $300, or $30 for every $1,000 of property value.

Persons who remain dissatisfied after attending their local board of review can file an appeal with the Michigan Tax Tribunal, P.O. Box 30232, Lansing, MI 48909; telephone (517) 373-8850.

Appeals to the Tax Tribunal, which are considered only if the applicant has first made an appeal to a local board of review, must be received no later than June 30.

Additional information is available by contacting the Michigan Consumers Council at (517) 373-0947.

Arraign 5 in circuit court

Five criminal arraignments were heard in Tuscola County Circuit Court in Caro Friday before Judge Patrick R. Joslyn.

Steven Michael Pomeroy, 2034 Keilitz Road, pleaded not guilty of parole violation when an analysis of his urine allegedly indicated that he had been smoking marijuana. Pomeroy had been found guilty in 1986 of uttering and publishing and one of the terms of his parole was to submit to regular testing for the use of drugs.

Bond was set at $5,000 and a hearing is scheduled

Mar. 10.

Robert Douglas Fick, 26, of 6245 Frenchline Road, Marlette, pleaded guilty to the possession of marijuana and possession of less than 25 grams of cocaine. He was arrested Nov. 17, 1988. Sentence will be passed April 14.

Casper Gonzales Rosas Jr., 6870 Irish Road, Millington, pleaded nolo contendere to attempted criminal sexual conduct with an 11-year-old girl. Judge Joslyn will decide the case on the evidence and sentencing will be April 28 at 9 a.m.

Robert Roy Sherman, 109 South 32nd Street, Billings, Montana, pleaded guilty of breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling on Murphy Lake Road. A second charge of stealing clothing from the building was dismissed.

Earl Johnson, 4909 Western Road, Flint, pleaded innocent of receiving stolen property, a 1986 Buick, and of driving with an open container in the car. The case will be heard April 7.

Crocodile tears

If you don't want a crocodile to spot you, you're better off in the water than on land, but be sure to keep still. International Wildlife magazine reports that crocodiles enjoy good vision on land but underwater everything is a blur. Yet in experiments, crocs were able to catch fish in total darkness. It's thought the animals can locate their prey by sensing movement in the water.

Leach earns heroism medal

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Leach of Cass City have received word that their son, Staff Sgt. Martin J. Leach has been awarded the Army's Soldier Medal of Heroism. The citation carries the signature of the Secretary of the Army, John Marsh.

S.SGT. Martin Leach

The award stemmed from an incident May 22, 1988, at Fort Kabbe, Panama, where Leach had been stationed for 3 years with an airborne-infantry battalion.

Leach heard an explosion and ran to an exploded car, taking charge of removing a pregnant woman and child, with disregard for his own safety.

Leach, 29, has been in the Army since February 1981. He has had duty at Grenada, being involved in the U.S. troop invasion of that Caribbean island. Also, he has been involved in drug raiding missions in Bolivia.

Leach is presently stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., where he is a drill sergeant. His awards include the combat infantry, expert infantryman and master paratrooper badges and 4 commendation medals.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Leach and children visited at the Roger Leach home during the holidays en route to their present home in Seale, Ala.

Bulldogs show improvement in season ending loss to Vikings

The Owen-Gage Bulldog basketball team hung up their sneakers for the year Wednesday when they were defeated by Akron-Fairgrove 74-65 at home in district play.

The Vikings simply packed too much inside fire power in 6'3" Troy Putman and 6'4" Tim Wehrman who recorded 25 and 24 points respectively.

To Coach Dean Roller's credit his squad played an excellent, albeit brief, tournament for a team that puts a 5-21 mark into the record books.

The Bulldogs were able to rebound from a 14-9 1st quarter detriment and take their first lead, 17-16, when Brian Abbe rebounded and sank his own missed shot.

The Vikings roared back to take what appeared to be an 8 point advantage into the intermission, but sophomore sharpshooter Mike Kady trimmed the Viking's lead to 3 points when he canned consecutive 3-point shots. His last rainbow, from 25 feet away, ended the half at 26-29.

Roller's cagers dug themselves a hole they couldn't climb out of when the Vikings opened the 3rd stanza with 8 unanswered points. But they never quit.

Trailing 43-32 after 2 Putman free throws, Kady struck again with back-to-back shots from beyond the 3-point arc to keep his team close.

Viking sophomore Pete Volk answered Kady's long distance connection with a pretty 3 point play of his own that helped stake the visitors to a 43-50 lead at the end of 3 quarters.

The Bulldogs were able to reach within 6 points of the winners, 50-56, when senior forward Marc Reinhardt drove the full length of the floor and converted a running left handed flip shot with 5 minutes remaining.

Good free throw shooting by the Vikings down the stretch, especially Putman and Wehrman, saw that the 'Dogs would get no closer.

Nick Pavlichek was high among the losers with 15 points. Abbe pitched in a baker's dozen, while Kady and Brad Susalla finished with 12 tallies each.

O-G spikers easily add district title

The Owen-Gage Bulldogs added a district tournament title to their list of achievements over the weekend and are now busy gearing for Saturday's Class D volleyball regional at Bay City All Saints.

The 23-9 Bulldogs had little trouble with the field at Carsonville, where they trounced the host in the opening match 15-0 and 15-1, then overwhelmed Akron-Fairgrove (15-3, 15-1) before walloping North Huron in the finals 15-7 and 15-5.

If the North Central Thumb League champs, who haven't lost to a Class D school this year, continue their team play, there's no telling how far their tournament trail may go.

But the road from here on out won't be an easy one.

"There will be quite a few state rated teams in Saturday's competition," said Campbell.

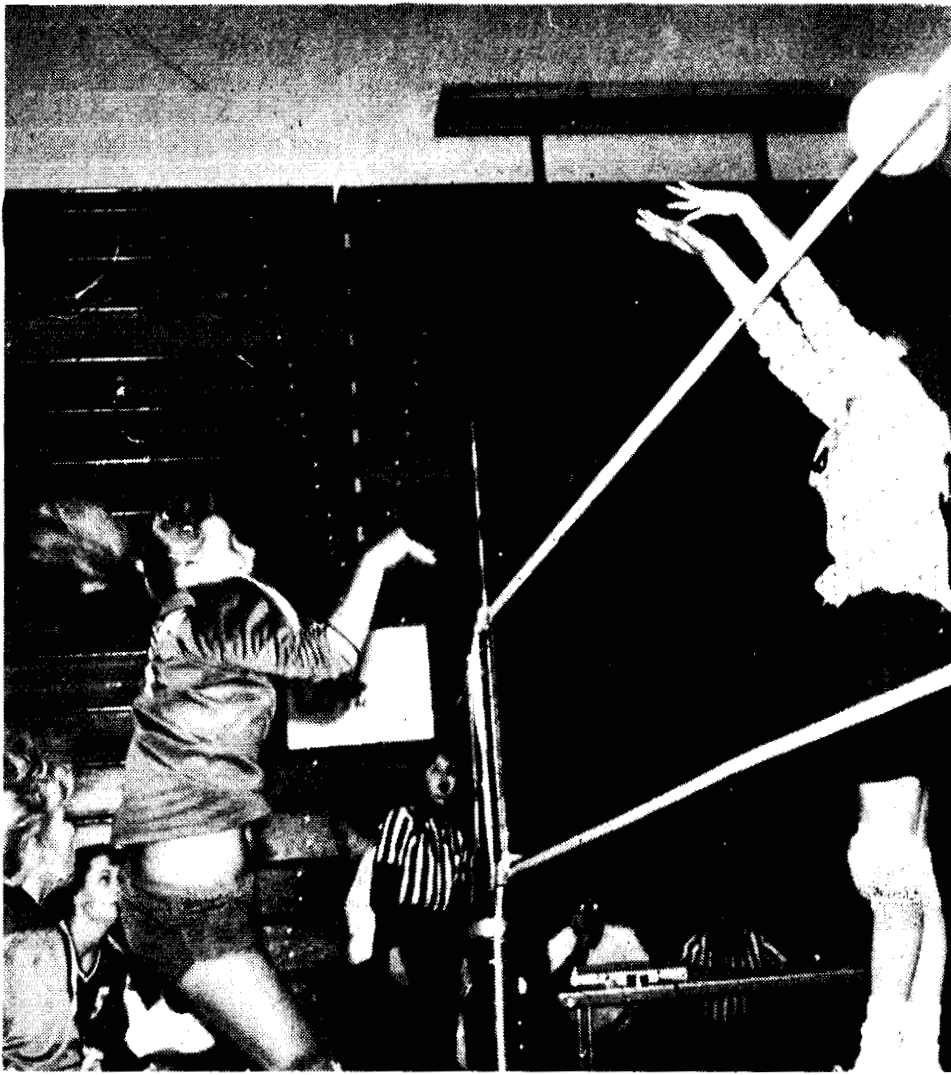

Senior Andrea Mandich led the lady Bulldogs at CPS with 22 kills in 48 attacks. Mandich received plenty of help from classmate Angie Bolzman, who recorded 15 kills in 25 attempts.

Another senior, Dawn Holland, scored 24 service points, while sophomore Vicki Ricker chipped in with 19 points from the service line.

Leading the Bulldogs in assists was Lori Radabaugh, who had 27 among 52 sets.

BULLDOG BRIAN ABBE rises above Akron-Fairgrove's Tim Wehrman (42) and John Miller for 2 of his 13 points.

ATTEMPTING TO BLOCK Marlette's Teresa Schlegemann's shot is Red Hawk Darlene Monroe.

Schulz powers Laker spikers past Hawks

The Cass City girls' volleyball team ended their 1989 season Saturday when they were defeated by eventual district champs Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port on the Lakers' home court.

Coach Beth Howard's spikers earned the right to meet the Thumb B champs, after eliminating Marlette in their opening round.

Against Marlette, it was sophomore Jandi Hillaker that kept the Hawks going with quality serves. Hillaker recorded 12 service points, while leading the Hawks to a 15-9 win.

In the second game, senior Cindy Powell came through with 7 service points to help Cass City record a 15-8 triumph. Senior Darlene Monroe was on her game at the net as she responded with 6 kills against the Raiders.

Against the Lakers, the Hawks played the hosts even in the first game before finally bowing 10-15. Laker's Connie Schulz proved too much for Cass City in the 2nd game, as she nearly single-handedly downed the Hawks 2-15. Schulz recorded a season high 8 aces off the Hawks.

Letter to the editor

Huntsville resident mad over road care

Letter to editor, I think it's about time the people who live in Huntsville Mobile Home Park were given a little more consideration.

When the hill on Doerr Road gets icy, they won't salt it. They say it's not in the city so it's up to the county. Well, I saw the city salt Doerr Road and go into the UPS road and do that and then leave us stranded. Saturday the hill was so icy that some people couldn't get up to go to work. People coming down couldn't get stopped to get into the gate.

They want us to shop in town but maybe we should wait until the sun melts the ice and then go elsewhere to shop.

AAUW busy in Cass City

The American Association of University Women has set aside March 5-11 as National AAUW week. "Say Yes to the Next Generation" is this year's theme.

"The Cass City branch has taken that theme to heart for almost 25 years. Children are what count most to them. They have always felt that the most vital projects were those involving children," Cass City AAUW branch President Barbara Kosal said.

"The Reading is Fundamental (RIF) program is a good example," she added. "It gives AAUW members an opportunity to share their love of books with children. Books are distributed 3 times a year to second grade children. The distribution has been conducted in many interesting ways. Clifford, the Big Red Dog, was on hand at the fall book party to see that each child received his very own book."

AAUW has also been responsible for bringing the Detroit Youth Theatre to Cass City children for a number of years. Performances of The Ishangi Family Dancers and The Underground Railroad have been presented in the past. A Carnival of Animals will be presented in April.

The Living Science Foundation of Novi was also arranged for, and partially funded by AAUW. Being able to learn about animals on a first hand basis was a big hit with area students, Kosal remarked.

Budding young artists have an opportunity to display their talents each year at the AAUW Paint-In. The Paint-In is held during the annual Fourth of July Festival. The AAUW Halloween Carnival is also a very popular event each year.

Kosal pointed out that AAUW has reinstated Art Expo this year. This involves taking works of art into the classrooms, where children can view, discuss and ask questions about the paintings.

AAUW is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, sponsors a girl scout troop, and supports Art Train.

AROUND THE FARM Drought's lingering effect

By Bill Bortel

Last summer's drought continues to have a lingering effect on many farming decisions and costs in 1989. Cash rental rates for Michigan cropland fall into that category.

The rates will vary quite a bit from area to area this year.

"They'll be affected by current local competition for land and how well or how poorly farmers fared in localized areas last year as a result of the drought. Crop budgets and the outlook for net income in 1989 also figure in the picture.

With returns projected to be up a little on grain farms this year due to stronger commodity prices, we would generally expect the cash rental rates to be up a bit as well.

The financial aftershock from the drought is likely to temper that type of price reaction in some cases, especially in areas hardest hit by the drought.

We don't foresee an increase in rental rates in areas that were seriously hurt by the dry weather. In fact, they may come down a little bit in those spots.

MSU periodically conducts surveys that show average cash rental rates for the 9 crop reporting districts in the state.

The responses found that approximately 70% of corn, wheat, and soybean land was rented on a cash basis.

As an alternative to straight cash rent, you may want to put those crop budget figures to work again and explore the possibility of a crop-share arrangement. In some cases, a crop-share agreement may prove more beneficial.

According to J.H. Atkinson, an agricultural economics professor at Purdue University, the issue of risk is an important consideration for deciding on either a cash rent or a crop-share agreement. He warns that neither party should enter an arrangement with more risk than they are able to carry.

If a tenant is in a strong financial position, then a cash lease might be most profitable. But for a farmer in a weak financial situation, a crop-share lease might prove best.

But regardless of the direction they take, the important thing is that tenants and landlords negotiate agreements that profit both parties.

Icy roads cause 2 accidents

Two minor property damage accidents were reported to the Cass City Police Department during the week.

The mishaps were caused by icy road conditions.

Connie Louis Clayton, 17, 7705 Van Dyke, skidded into a parked car Monday, Feb. 27, at 7:18 a.m. at the stop light on Main Street.

Michael Frederick Kim, 35, 4657 Oak Street, skidded into a parked car on Seed Street, west of Ale street. The accident occurred Saturday at 9:05 a.m.

In the only other case reported, Doreen Williams reported that her pick-up was vandalized while parked at Charmont Lanes sometime between 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 25.

A hood insignia was taken and the windshield of the car slightly cracked in 2 places.

Ben Johnson, the English dramatist, was buried standing up, in Westminster Abbey in London.

Hawks lose to Deckerville in final 20 seconds, 65-60

It's all over for the Cass City Red Hawk basketball team. The Hawks were eliminated from tournament play Wednesday night by the Deckerville Eagles in a game that wasn't decided until the final 20 seconds. The score was 65-60.

It was really closer than that as the Hawks led by a point, 58-57, with a little over a minute left and had possession of the ball. Coach Ron Nurnberger had his charges in a spread offense and Paul Tuckey's shot from the left corner bounced off the rim and Deckerville took the rebound.

Stephen Kelke then connected on a 3-point play to push the Eagles in front. Mike Randall connected on 2 free throws to knot the score again.

6-6 Mark Oswald made a key rebound for a basket with 15 seconds left to put Deckerville in front to stay. A moment later Dan Brown made one of 2 free shots to put the lead at 3 points with about 9 seconds on the clock. The Hawks were unable to get the ball in from out of bounds and Brown was fouled again after the Eagles took possession. This time he made both charity tosses and when the first one dropped, Cass City's last chance to pull out the win evaporated.

It was a seesaw game all the way. It appeared as if Cass City might pull it out in the last quarter. The team was in the midst of a rally that enabled it to come charging back from a 10-point deficit early in the period. When the Eagles' best rebounder, Richard Barker, fouled out and the Hawks spurred to the lead, things looked bright for Cass City.

But Deckerville refused to fold and with some steady play from the guards, was able to turn the tide.

The 2 teams played on about even terms for the first quarter and a half, when Cass City jumped off to its largest lead of the night with 3:39 left in the half. In the spurt the Hawks outscored the Eagles, 11-4, to go ahead, 24-17.

The Eagles stiffened behind Kelke, who drove the lane for 2 buckets and set up another and in the next 2 1/2 minutes Deckerville erased the lead and was ahead when Jeff Dillon was fouled as the horn sounded to end the half.

Standing by himself with all players off the floor, Dillon calmly hit both free shots and Cass City was in front, 28-27, at the intermission.

Deckerville came out blazing in the third quarter and quickly ran off 10 unanswered points to go in front 37-28. After a time out, Cass City chipped away at that lead and was within 2 points, 42-40, with 50 seconds left in the quarter.

Deckerville went on another mini-run and was in front by 10 points, the large est lead of the night for either team, with 2 minutes gone in the fourth quarter.

Cass City's drive to the lead started when Mike Randall made a great block of an Eagle shot and found Dillon all alone down court.

They'll really enjoy themselves and come away with a valuable message."

"This is a great opportunity to bring together students who care, and who can make a difference in changing attitudes about drug use," Harrison said. "I applaud the organizers and sponsors of this very worthwhile event."

Peculiar plant

To many Americans, the gourd is an organic oddity. But for millions of people around the world, it's a multi-purpose tool. International Wildlife magazine reports that gourds aren't much of a meal but their skin is easily dried. The result is an amazingly useful shell. People have shaped them into spoons, jugs and bowls. Gourds are also used by musicians to make rattles, drums and a symphony of other instruments.

Cass City Intermediate School officials recently named their "motivated" students for the month of February.

Slippery roads plague pair of Deford drivers

It might have been better if drivers had never left their Deford homes Saturday morning.

According to reports from the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, 2 drivers from Deford in separate accidents an hour apart lost control on slippery Deckerville Road and suffered damage to their vehicles.

Tena Marie Lapratt, 21, sought her own treatment for minor injuries after the car she was driving slid into the ditch near Engelhart Road. That accident occurred at 7:30 a.m.

An hour later, at 8:30 a.m., Julie Anne Frederick, 29, lost control, travelling west on Deckerville Road, near Plain Road, and went into the ditch after hitting a "do not pass" sign. There was no injury.

Other accidents investigated by sheriff's deputies included:

Valarie Colette Smith, 33, of Gageton lost control of her car and hit a utility pole Wednesday. The accident occurred at 10:20 a.m. on M-81, west of Edwin Road.

The car was damaged, with minor injury to the driver.

Thursday another driver's vehicle hit a utility pole. Karen Ann Peyerk, 20, 5410 Bay City-Forestville Road, Cass City, was the driver when she lost control of her car on M-81, near Colwood Road. She escaped serious injury.

Tamara Kay Talaski, 30, 5621 Wilsie Road, Cass City, was unable to stop at the intersection of Wilsie Road and Koepfgen Road, east of Cass City, because of a slippery road. She lost control and hit a road sign. She sought her own treatment for injuries.

Michigan State Police at Bad Axe reported that 2 area youths suffered minor injuries in an accident on M-53, 5 1/2 miles south of Bad Axe.

Steven M. Panich, 16, of Deford lost control of the car he was driving when he encountered ice and snow on the road, spun around and flipped the car on its top.

Neither Panich nor a passenger in the car, Michael Van Allen, Cass City, were wearing seat belts.

The youths sought their own treatment for minor cuts and bruises.

HEALTH TIPS Battling lactose intolerance

For the almost 30 million Americans who experience some degree of lactose intolerance, new research findings are spelling good taste and nutrition news.

Contrary to popular opinion, lactose intolerance is not an "all or nothing" phenomenon. Current studies indicate that this condition — a difficulty in digesting "lactose," the major sugar present in milk — can be controlled through easily achieved steps to manage the diet.

Approximately 20 percent of Americans reportedly have an inability to digest lactose. For some of these people, this inability can cause symptoms, including stomach cramps, bloating, discomfort and diarrhea after eating or drinking dairy foods. But recent studies at leading universities support the premise that many, if not most, of these individuals can learn to include dairy products in their diets without experiencing discomfort.

The findings hold special significance for certain ethnic groups, including Blacks, Asians and Hispanics, who experience a high incidence of the condition. Avoidance of dairy foods can jeopardize eating a balanced diet and, in turn, general health. Dairy foods contribute about three-fourths of the calcium present in the food supply. Dairy foods also are common sources for other essential nutrients, such as protein, riboflavin and magnesium.

By definition, lactose intolerance occurs because an individual does not produce a sufficient amount of the intestinal enzyme "lactase" to break down or "digest" the lactose that is consumed, resulting in the occurrence of intestinal discomfort.

Techniques to combat symptoms of lactose intolerance that are being identified through current research include consuming dairy products in smaller portions together with meals, and by eating select dairy foods that either contain or can be modified to contain low levels of lactose, or promote the digestion of lactose. For example, dairy foods that contain "active" cultures, such as yogurt, appear to be better tolerated by lactose intolerant individuals.

"Some fermented products like yogurt actually digest lactose through the active cultures they contain, and so these are more easily handled," says Dennis A. Savaiano, Ph.D., a leading researcher in the field and an associate professor at the University of Minnesota. "Also, eating dairy foods with meals slows down digestion, a positive factor for those who suffer discomfort."

Savaiano urges those who believe they are lactose intolerant to be tested by a physician. Modern testing procedures are simple for an individual to undergo and they are more accurate than those used in the past, when an excessive amount of lactose was administered in a test situation.

"Some people — especially those in affected ethnic groups — may be eliminating dairy products simply because they've heard so much about the problem. In fact, it isn't surprising to find in our research some individuals who do not test clinically positive, but who firmly believe that they are experiencing symptoms of lactose intolerance," Savaiano reports.

Several practical approaches are available to lactose intolerant persons to regularly include dairy foods in their diets. According to Savaiano, one of the easiest ways is to consume small quantities of dairy foods as part of a meal or snack, rather than alone.

"For most, symptoms just don't occur if the individual drinks a reasonable amount of milk — 4 to 8 ounces — with a meal," he says.

Savaiano and a panel of his peers, including researchers from Tufts University, Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baylor College of Medicine and Massachusetts Institute of Technology have compiled a variety of recommendations for lactose intolerant persons. They include this advice:

* Eat dairy foods in small, frequent servings, comparatively speaking.

* Pick dairy foods that are slowly digested and therefore better tolerated. Whole or chocolate milk may be better tolerated than reduced fat milk. Aged or ripened cheeses contain very little lactose. Ice cream and ice milk also are good choices.

* Choose yogurt and frozen yogurt with active cultures (i.e., yogurt that has not been pasteurized after being made, but contains pasteurized milk as an ingredient).

* Look for lactose-reduced products, available in many parts of the country. These include milk, ice cream, cottage cheese and American process cheese food slices.

* Eat and drink dairy foods along with other foods, not in isolation.

* Try gradually increasing the amount of lactose-containing foods in the diet over time. Tolerance can and often does improve.

* Relax and don't anticipate problems. Stress never helps!

Additional tips are provided in National Dairy Council's (NDC) brochure, "Getting Along With Milk: For People With Lactose Intolerance," available from NDC and its affiliated Dairy Council units nationwide.

Avoid buying grapefruit with a soft and tender peel that breaks easily with finger pressure.

Your neighbor says Scared about upcoming flight

How safe are our airways? That question is a growing controversy.

With the recent tragedy involving United's flight 811, the unfolding of the Eastern Airlines strike, frequent delays, lost baggage, over-bookings, government deregulation and numerous close mishaps, some are starting to doubt the security of the wild blue yonder.

Your neighbor, Kim Wing, is among that group. But it won't keep the friendly teenager from using the airways.

"I am scared to death," says the 19-year-old about an upcoming flight. The Cass City resident is flying to Colorado March 19 to pursue a new career opportunity.

Kim, who has flown many times in the past, is furthermore hoping the current mechanic's union strike will not affect her travel plans.

"I hope that they have all that business taken care of by the time I leave," says the single employee of Cass City's Clothes Closet.

Also making a squabble in the air transportation industry, is a debate on the installation of costly high-tech anti-collision devices on any airplane with more than 30 passengers. The Cass City High School graduate had a strong opinion about that issue.

"Definitely (should be installed). I am for anything that makes flying safer."

YOUR EYES

Dr. Ronald R. Watson

NO TWO PEOPLE SEE ALIKE

Your eyes generally function differently from anyone else's. If they function within "a normal range," that's fine. When they are outside this range, however, seeing may be unclear or uncomfortable. Professional help is indicated.

The most common eye malfunction is myopia or nearsightedness. But the degree of nearsightedness varies amongst individuals. Some of us see clearly at a distance of ten feet; others at two or three feet. The norm is twenty feet.

Hyperopia or farsightedness usually causes difficulty in seeing near objects clearly, but individual variations from the norm are extensive. In some people, large amounts of farsightedness may affect distance vision, too.

Astigmatism, in which the cornea is abnormally shaped, causes objects to appear blurry at any distance and is a prime cause of eye strain.

Many people whose eyes function outside the normal range may even require a different correction in each eye, so their eyes can work as a team to see all distances clearly and comfortably.

New Thumb drug unit to operate soon

 establishment of cooperative drug enforcement units throughout the state, according to Roger Bittell, assistant division commander of the Criminal Investigation Division of the Michigan State Police in Livonia.

Bittell, who has played a major role in organizing the units, said the concept has been around since 1971. "We have these all over the state. At last count, I believe there were 15," he said. "What we envision this unit to do is field the complaints of drug activities that are currently coming to the local police departments," Bittell explained. "We'll utilize undercover drug buys, search warrants and other methods that we've worked up through the experience of working with cooperative units in other parts of the state."

Bittell said he expects that the Thumb unit will experience similar success to another unit, about the same in size, which was set up in Monroe County in 1986. "Last year, OMNI (Office of Monroe Narcotics Investigation) arrested 113 people for violation of drug laws, and seized over $2 million in drugs," he remarked.

SUPPORT

He noted, however, that it takes continued support at both the local and state levels to maintain a cooperative drug enforcement unit.

"Our commitment to this unit is money, resources and personnel. . . that have experience in the drug enforcement area," he said, adding that resources to be provided by the state police include vehicles and drug money.

"We would ask that the local (government) units sustain their commitments to the unit and place that as a high priority in their budgets. The Michigan State Police. . . will support the unit as long as the local commitment is there."

The local support won't subside if veteran Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson, and other big supporters of the regional drug enforcement concept, have their way.

"I personally think there's a need," Wilson, who has been active in soliciting donations for the Thumb unit, remarked.

GOOD JOB

"The county has tried to make some busts, and they have," Wilson said. "I think (Tuscola Sheriff's Department Detective) Larry Walker has done a good job with what he's had to work with. But you've got to have full-time people."

"The state police have trained personnel—they've got the background for it. They can bring people in from anywhere and everywhere. And if you get into something big, they have the funds."

Wilson added, "I really don't know how bad the drug situation is, and I don't think anyone really knows, (but) there are drugs sold every day in Cass City; maybe not what we're talking about in Detroit, Saginaw or Flint, but it's there."

Kern agreed. "I think it's going to surprise some people, once the unit starts, as to some of the stuff that's coming into this area," he said.

"One benefit we have around here is everybody knows everybody. I think we have a good line of communication with our citizens, and I think that will enhance our unit."

Money crunch may force Tuckeys off family farm

 every other day. Today, their herd totals about 110 cows, about 45 of which are being milked.

RECOGNIZED

The Dairy Herd Improvement Association has recognized the Tuckeys' work, naming the farm operation the Most Improved Owner-Sampler Herd in each of the past 2 years.

It's a success story the Tuckey family is proud of, but the shadow cast on the farm by a poor economic outlook for agriculture remains.

"We've been fighting bad falls for, I don't know how long," Jim said. "This last year has been a year to look back at my situation."

He said he believes he isn't alone in examining job prospects outside of farming. "We're losing so many intelligent, bright people for the future; I mean, where is agriculture going to be?"

He pointed to Dave Schuette, his assistant herdsman, and remarked, "He'd love to go into farming, but he's looking into diesel mechanics."

"I think it's the money people can make off the farm," the elder Tuckey commented. "The grass is greener all over the place." Jim added, "There's not a lot of public support, and it's partly because of the governmental support programs for agriculture. Some of it, I can see where they're coming from," he said.

"It's just frustrating because of the outlook on farming right now."

Tempers flare in driving dispute

An argument between 2 angry drivers has ended in complaints that will be decided by the Tuscola County Prosecutor's office probably sometime this week, despite the fact that there was no accident, no blows struck and no damages, except possibly to the psyche of the persons involved.

It all happened Friday morning on Gun Club Road.

William Campbell of Caro, travelling east in his 1988 Lincoln, came up behind and attempted to pass a small car. At that time, Campbell reported to the police later, the car speeded up 3 different times so he was unable to pass.

Later the vehicle attempted a left turn onto Ryan Road, at which time the angry Campbell cut off the car, forcing it to stop.

He got out of his car and attempted to go back to the car which was occupied by 4 women.

The driver of the car, later identified as Judy Sue Osborn, Caro, then put her car into reverse and backed into the intersection and, according to Campbell, narrowly missed another car. She then put the car in forward gear and drove past, narrowly missing him. When the car passed, one of the women "gave him the finger" and used profane language.

Campbell went to the sheriff's office to make the report and at the same time Osborn also appeared to make a statement. The pair was separated for the statements.

Osborn said that Campbell was tailgating her vehicle as she was driving 20 to 25 miles per hour because of slippery road conditions. She said that she backed the car because she was frightened by the approaching Campbell.

The statements were turned over to the prosecutor, who said that a decision on whether to prosecute will probably be decided this week.

Tim Burke settles for $50,000

 In an earlier case, a default judgement was granted Burke for $729,078.54 from Matzke. The amount includes interest.

Burke was not available for comment on the case at press time and it is not known how much, if any, of the amounts awarded has been paid.

Ballots made of broken pottery were used by the citizens of Ancient Athens to get rid of unpopular politicians. Whenever 6000 or more were cast, the official was sent into exile for 10 years.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Another get-rich-quick scheme was offered me over the phone last week.

Gas drilling. You put up $9500 for a share in a gas well in a "proven area," and within weeks the gas is promised to come whistling out the pipe and dollars will fill your pockets.

You will get, not positively, but "very likely" $650 a month.

"For how long," I asked. "Average life of a well is 8 to 12 years."

How an average can be from 8 to 12 puzzled me. But let's not nitpick the semantics. Call it 10. If that turns out to be the case, then you will get $650x12x10 years, or $78,000 over the course of 10 years. All for putting up $9500 now. Net of $68,500.

On paper, a good deal. In the gas field, it might be something else.

It was generous of this nice young man to let me, a complete stranger, in on such a good deal. I thanked him for his thoughtfulness and hung up.

In Delray Beach the city commission has a direct and positive approach to solving local problems of crime and filth and bad neighborhoods. It buys up the cess pools and crummy areas.

A bar on our infamous East Atlantic Avenue kept the cops busy answering calls. Fights, knifings, drugs. You name it. So the city just bought the place for a fat sum and closed it up. Presto! Problem is gone.

A porno book store became a gathering place for whores. So the city is dickering to buy out the book store and tear it down. Another section, currently respectable, is not far from a deteriorating neighborhood. So the city is talking of buying a buffer zone, to keep better class homes safe from encroachment.

All these moves are effective for the time being, you must admit. They're also quite expensive. But expense doesn't bother many city governments.

During the once-a-decade cleaning of my files, I ran across tax tables for 1979. Maybe a couple excerpts will cheer you, when compared to 1989 rates:

JOINT RETURN

Income 1979 tax	1988 tax
$30,000	$6200
$4500	$72,000
26,200	16,300

Figures are slightly rounded.

*****

Also in the cleaning, there was a 1984 ad for zero coupon treasuries. Yield was 11.20%. That's over 2% better, or 200 basis points, than today's yields.

*****

In a letter to the editor of the Wall Street Journal a professor emeritus of economics at Michigan State said $1 million today is the equivalent of $50,000 in 1929. Economists are no better with figures of the past than they are with those of the future.

The facts: Consumer Price Index in 1929 had a factor of 18, based on 100 as the CPI in 1982. Today's figure: 121, which is 6.7x that of 1929—and not 20x as the professor would have it.
