ELKLAND TOWNSHIP FIREMEN, standing in a field just northeast of the intersection of Koepfgen and Muntzroads, attempt to pry open the hood of a vehicle driven by Nadara Walther, Cass City, who was killed Saturday when she drove into the path of a pickup truck about 3 miles northwest of Cass City. Walther is the county's fourth traffic fatality of 1989.

Wissner charges Owen- Gage school board with favoritism

An Owen-Gage district trict," he continued. resident Monday night the school board, charging that the district offers a poor quality education and isn't weeding out ineffective teachers.

He also accused school officials of practicing favoritism in hiring.

"I'm really not impressed," Jim Wissner told the board. "I don't think it's a good education they're (students) receiving."

Wissner, who indicated several teachers do little more than they have to, asked if the administration does anything about parental complaints involving teachers.

He also asked if the teacher evaluation process consists of more than a one-time evaluation.

"You can clean up your act for one day," he remarked. "I've subbed enough classes (here) to know what's going on. I can name the teachers who give 55 minutes" worth of instruction in a class. "I can name the teachers who give 35 minutes, and I can name the teachers who give 5 minutes."

"I think some of these teachers, there's just no room for them in the dis-

Wissner asked why a significant number of students aren't eligible to participate in sports.

"You're making it sound like we don't do squat here, and I think you're totally wrong," school Supt. Harley Kirby responded. "We have increased our standards in the classroom."

Board members agreed, saying the reason some students aren't eligible is they're not meeting the requirements. It's felt more in a smaller school district because there are fewer kids. going out for sports.

REFLECTION

High school Principal Ronald D'Aoust noted that poor grades are often more of a reflection on a specific group of kids than on the teachers.

Wissner, however, maintained that many of the district's teachers put forth little effort in the classroom, and that school officials do little in response to parental complaints about specific instructors.

But board members disputed that claim.

"I think all the members of the board have received said. "When they call us up and have a gripe, we check it

Warack asked D'Aoust, who said he observes various classes on a daily basis, if he agrees with Wissner's statements. D'Aoust and discipline officer Manuel Thies stated they don't Neither does Trustee Mary Ann Abbe, who commented that she visits' the high school often. "There's not a kid in the hallway, and there isn't a teacher who isn't working," she said. "I think we're dealing with the people we have," Kirby remarked. "I think Mr. D'Aoust is on top of those things. He has been working with individuals, and some have turned around."

Board member Ronald Good stated Wissner's remarks are premature because the board isn't expected to act on tenure recommendations until next month. Three teachers are up for tenure.

Wissner said Kirby gave him the impression that he would be hired. Kirby, however, said that he asked for, but never received, Wissner's credentials. Wissner said Kirby never asked for a copy of his cre-

Cass Cityan dies in 2-vehicle crash

A Cass City woman was killed and 2 other persons injured early Saturday evening in a broadside collision about 3 miles northwest of Cass City.

Nadara A. Walther, 51, 5737 Muntz Rd., was dead at the scene of the 5:35 p.m. crash, which occurred at the intersection of Koepfgen and Muntz roads in Elkland Township, Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies said.

Investigators said Walther, who was eastbound on Muntz Road, failed to yield at the signed intersection and pulled into the path of a northbound pickup truck driven by Kevin R. Nicholas, 26, 6811 Bay City-Forestville Rd., Cass City.

Both vehicles landed in a field at the northeast corner of the intersection. Walther, Nicholas, who told deputies he never saw Walther's car, and a passenger in his vehicle, Paul Salowitz, 32, 208 W. Congress Rd., Caro, were transported to Hills and Dales General Hospital by Cass City-Mercy Ambulance personnel.

Both men were admitted for observation and then released Sunday, a hospital spokeswoman said.

None of those involved in the crash was wearing a seat belt, according to deputies, who were assisted by Cass City Police and the Elkland Township Fire Department.

At Deford

Job comes naturally to new postmaster

When Fairgrove resident Dolores Shannon has a family get together, you can bet part of the dinner conversation evolves around the United States postal system. That's because working in the post office comes naturally for many members of the family.

Dolores, who was officially sworn in as postmaster at Deford Friday, has been in the postal system for over 25 years.' She started her career at Fairgrove before moving to Lake George, where she assumed postmaster duties for the last 3.5 years. Shannon also has 2 sisters, Joyce Perry and Esther Collon, who have been associated with the post office for a combined total of approximately 35 years.

Furthermore, Shannon has a son-in-law, Richard Metcals, who has been postmaster at Gladwin for the past 18 months. Richard has been with the postal system for over 12 years.

Dolores' sister Joyce is a 20-year veteran of the postal system and is currently postmaster at Flushing. Esther is a clerk at Unionville and has been employed with the government mail carrier system for 15 years. Esther and Dolores worked together in Fairgrove.

While the postal veteran makes do easily in the post office building that was converted from an old grocery store, she looks forward to the day, hopefully this spring, when she will move down the street to the spanking new postal building now nearing completion.

Until that time, she says, she'll continue to give Deford area patrons the best possible service she can.

That should be pretty good when you consider the many years that she has been involved in getting the mail out on time, every time.

DIRECTOR OF FIELD OPERATION Charles Morris of Saginaw, swears in Deford's newest Postmaster, Dolores Shannon. Doug Shannon, Dolores' husband, also took part in Friday's ritual.

It used to be that the hot spot for deer watching was in a field in back of Cole Carbide, east of Cass City. There are probably lots of them still there, but if you want to REALLY see them, the place to go is the corn stubble field owned by Dr. H. T. Donahue, about 1 3/4 miles east of town on M-81. Hopper furthermore invites all educators and parents to join in the promotion by encouraging the love of reading in their own sons or daughters.

'They are the ones who will enjoy the lifelong benefits from early exposure to the world of words," said Hopper.

If you use the phone only when you have a good, legitimate reason, you have to be an old fogie. It's as sure a sign of the generation gap as kids in jeans and tennis

That all came back to me one weekend when the younger daughter came to spend a couple of nights. Now there's no objection to calling home to see if everything's okay, although it's stretching it to call more than once for no reason other than to kick around a few topics that could well wait until she returned.

While home, the daughter received a call L-O-N-G D-I-S-T-A-N-C-E and before it was completed I was walking the floor and it wasn't even my nickel.

This call from Birmingham lasted well over an hour, no exaggeration, over an H-O-U-R, and seemed to cover all the activities of the pair since the first of the year and the plans for each for the remaining 10 months of 1989. None important. The word, banal, was invented for these phone conversa-

But there is justice in this world after all. The same evening as the phone marathon, the friend called again and B. J. wasn't in.

It doesn't take a long distance call to get me going about using the phone. Just idle chatter to a neighbor across town is enough to get me wondering what in the devil can they be talking about for so long, so earnestly?

It's all a matter of training, I guess. Way back when, our phone system wasn't all that swift, all that good. If you tied up a 10party line just chattering away, chances were good, no, make that sure, that another on the line would interrupt and ask you to please hang up. That's if they were polite. If not, substitute your favorite 4-letter word for polite.

There was another practical reason for stating your business and getting off the line, avoiding all personal comment as if it were going to be printed in the next issue of the paper. That's because listening in was a common practice and if you wanted something confidential, the last place, the very last place, you would talk about it was over the phone.

Equally as important as all these reasons for the ingrained habit of getting on the phone, stating your business and hanging up was economic. In the late 1930's until the outbreak of World War II, the great depression was either being experienced or remembered by all.

Nearly anyone would have been happy to find a penny in the street and overjoyed to find a nickel or a quarter.

Believe me, no one was going to waste it in the coin slot of a telephone.

Thrilling hunt

By Jim Fitzgerald

Publisher and Chairman Dave Lawrence sat at the same table as Nancy Ferriss of Detroit. Conversation revealed that Ferriss is a fan of this column. Lawrence immediately began treating her with extra kindness, as one would treat any rare species in danger of extinc-

Ferriss said she was sorry she hadn't bought my book that was published about three years ago and quickly sold out, not because it was popular, but because only six copies were printed. Lawrence phoned the next day — a Sunday — and suggested I should recognize Ferriss' unique position by finding her a book, because he promised her I would. I said OK, not be-

Sanilac Clinics for immunizations

The Sanilac County Health Department reminds parents of children who will enter school this fall that immunizations are available without cost at county clinics.

The State of Michigan requires that each child entering school have a minimum of 4 diphtheria, pertusis, and tetanus (DPT) injections, a minimum of 3 oral polio (TOPV) inoculations, and a single measles, mumps, and rubella (MMR) injection.

If your child needs immunizations, the clinics held

Old Village Hall, 6436 Morris St., Marlette, 2nd Thursday of the month, 9-12 noon.

If you have questions regarding your child's immunizations, call 648-4098 Monday through Friday 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon and 1:00 through 4:30 p.m., or your doctor.

At a banquet, Free Press cause Lawrence is my boss, but because I enjoy the thrill of the hunt.

> A thrilling hunt revealed there is only one copy of the book in our home, and my wife insisted we keep it, even if Dave Lawrence did phone on Sunday, because there's a picture of our granddaughter Emily on the back cover. According to my wife, it's against public and church law to part with any photo of any young relative, even triplicate snapshots of a child so out of focus he or she can't be distinguished from surrounding potted plants and adults. If a fire ever traps us in our 26-floor apartment, we can escape by dropping photo albums out the window and climbing down the pile.

I was faced with the prospect of telling the publisher and chairman of the company that published my book that the thrilling hunt was hopeless, and Nancy Ferriss would surely think he was a powerless phony.

A VERY SPECIAL ENCLOSURE

But then it was learned that co-worker Bill Diem has had a copy of my book sitting proudly on his desk for almost three years, ever since the day he lost his paperweight. In return for my agreeing to sit on his paper, he gave me the book, which was like new, probably because it was never opened.

The book was mailed to Ferriss, whom I'd never heard of before, and her reply was not only prompt, it was marvelous. Enclosed with her thank-you note was an 8-by-10 photo of 15 people taken about 1949. One of them was me, looking exactly as I look today. How could that be, 40 years It wasn't me, it was my father, about 13 years before his death. The resemblance is scary, like looking in a mirror. I've shown that photo to several people who never knew my dad, and all of them immediately identified him as me. My late mother is also in the picture. She was beautiful, and absolutely no one identified her as being any relation to me.

It turns out that Nancy Ferriss' parents were friends of my parents, and they're also in the photo. The group had gathered at the home of Margaret Elliott in Port Huron to celebrate the 90th birthday of Aaron Rose. Most of the 15 faces look familiar, but, beside my parents, I can attach names to only three - Rose, Elliott and Alice Harrington.

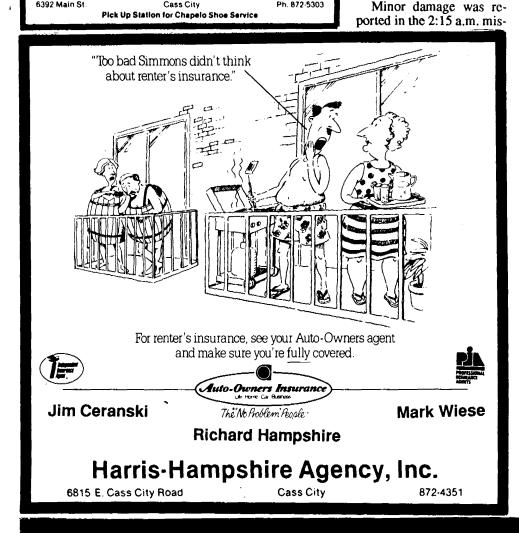

TRACING FAMILIAR

Aaron Rose operated Springer & Rose men's clothiers in downtown Port Huron for many years. His un-walled office was at the top of a steep flight of stairs that I climbed every Saturday for three years to collect for delivering the Port Huron Times Herald to his home. He would always look down at me, ask "Is that you. Fitz" and hand me two dimes.

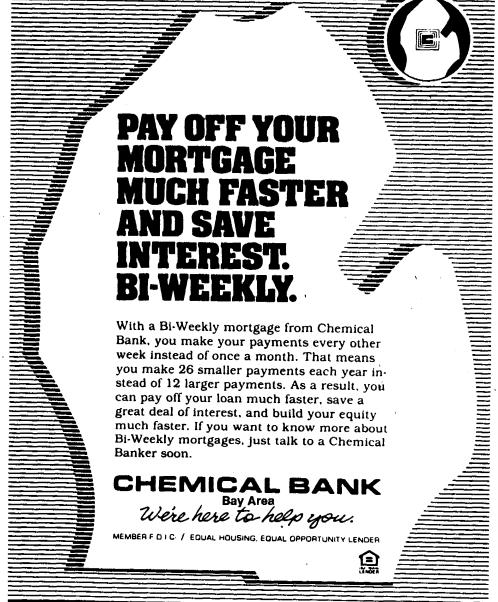

Alice Harrington was a neighbor who sang operastyle, and one evening, as she was leaving home for a concert, she stepped on a bicycle tire someone had thrown on her front porch. It flipped up and ruined her gown. It was Terrible Jean, my much older sister, who'd thrown the tire. Fifty years later, I still enjoy telling on Margaret Elliott was the aunt of one of my best boyhood buddies, Whitey Elliott, who grew up to marry Nancy Ferriss' sister, Marilyn. My wife-to-be and I used to double-date with Whitey and his soon-to-be bride, back in the good old days when there was no culde-sac-caused shortage of hyphens.

It's hard to explain why I was so delighted by the arrival of that 40-year-old picture of my father. It undoubtedly has much to do with immortality. It was nice to see how much of my father lives in me, just as it's nice that my son looks like me. There is much to be said for having children, and I just said some of it. Thank you, Nancy Ferriss.

New books at the library

THAT NEAR AND DISTANT PLACE by Patricia Wright (fiction). This is a sequel to "I Am England" by Wright. This book continues the chronicle of life in Furnace Green, Sussex, from the seventeenth century to the present. Again narrator John Smith, old and nearly blind, dictates to a tape recorder his memories and the old stories Granny Paley told him. Four chapters - one from each century - highlight moving and believable characters whose lives are set against larger historical forces, including Cromwell's challenge to the monarchy, the struggle to establish law and order in the village, Luddite-like insurrections, and the battle of Dunkirk.

A SEASON IN HELL by Jack Higgins (fiction). Sarah Talbott is a mother who will risk her own life to know the true cause of her son's death. Sean Egan is a former SAS agent who is intelligent, thoughtful, and willing to kill. Together Sarah and Sean embark on a cross-continental odyssey of revenge that becomes for them a season in hell. The story moves from the streets of London to a startling finale on the FIREBIRD by James Carroll (fiction). During the height of the Cold War in the 1950s, Malone, a young, idealistic FBI agent with a knack for picking locks, is chosen to steal a topsecret code book from the Russian embassy when atomic secrets are passed to the Russians. His enthusiasm and patriotism are soon dampened, however, as he moves deeper into the world of espionage and high-level politics, and as he falls in love with a beautiful Russian woman who may be his betrayer.

Agricultural Leadership Program and it was a fabulous 3-week tour in Yugoslavia, Italy and Spain, but Dave Milligan, Cass City, said on returning that he would have liked it to be a little less tour and little more agricultural.

Milligan, Elkland Township Supervisor and wellknown member of the farm community, was one of 33 selected for the program under the sponsorship of various organizations interested in farming and Michigan State University. Others from the area were Julia Mae Heilig, Ubly; Margo Donahue, Unionville, and Michael Findlay, Caro.

One of the things that Milligan would like to see is more advance preparation to foster more one on one exchanges with persons in the areas visited.

With the language barrier it's hard to find a way to discuss problems and solutions in the limited time available, Milligan believes.

Still Milligan came away with definite opinions about the agricultural communities in the countries visited.

YUGOSLAVIA

When it comes to farming, Yugoslavia is 25 years behind the times, Milligan believes, as he showed a slide picturing corn shocks to illustrate. Shocking corn, of course, has long since been abandoned in this country.

It is a country of contrasts. The Cass City farmer has a picture of a trailer loaded with a couple of bags of fertilizer being hauled with a Mercedes Benz automobile.

installed in North Branch But luxury cars are few and Emmett will bring better and far between. Cars that are available are small as are tomers served by the two most farms except for giant exchanges, Davison District co-operatives run by the Manager Kevin Hammer state, Milligan observed.

He also observed that Yugoslavia has much pollumit conversations as digital tion trouble. Vienna, Auspulses, will provide for more tria, is clean, but the air is polluted and travelling in tomer calls and offer a wider Yugoslavia the farther into the country you get the worse the pollution and the clude such custom calling dirt becomes.

don't seem to care. They just seem to take everything day by day without a worry. Milligan says. The apparent tranquility hasn't lengthened the life span as residents of the country have a much shorter life expectancy than persons here.

ITALY-SPAIN

Things were different in Italy and Spain on the agricultural front. We can't teach them a whole lot, Milligan feels. Their farm practices are modern and

TRIP HIGHLIGHTS

The group spent perhaps two-thirds of the time in cities. Since the tour was arranged by a travel agency, I guess that was to be expected, Milligan explained.

Like most guests he was

The Alps were crossed on a rare sunny day and Milligan still marvels at the panoramic view the trip that day afforded.

One advantage of the tour was that crossing the border was far easier than expected. The bags were never opened or inspected. The worst that happened was a selected few were asked questions about what was in their bags.

participants still paid $3,000, spread over 2 years, to take the trip.

The group chosen was selected after a careful weeding out process that included filling out the application and submitting to 2 interviews to secure members that would continue to assume a leadership role in the various communities.

Although there are obvious differences in the cultures, in one way the group was never far from home.

Coke and McDonald's were everywhere.

THIRTY-THREE PERSONS from this group were selected for the Leadership Development Program tour that was held in February. Among them are 4 from the Cass City area.

Bowl-a-thon scheduled

The Tuscola County Big Brothers/Big Sisters fifth annual "Bowl For Kid's Sake Bowling Challenge" has been scheduled for 1 to 7 p.m. March 18 at the Brentwood in Caro.

The fund raiser challenges local citizens to bowl and collect pledges for the benefit of the local Big Brothers/ Big Sisters program, which serves children from primarily single-parent families by providing a one-to-one friendship with an adult volunteer.

The organization needs to raise more than $15,000 to continue its efforts to recruit volunteers and to provide professional staff to screen, match and monitor program participants.

Details and entry forms are available at the Big Brothers/Big Sisters office, 129 E. Burnside St., Caro, or call 673-6996.

Cass City trio honored by Thumb B coaches

Randall voted MVP by teammates

Cass City and Lakers dominated the Thumb B Association all conference team selected by coaches in the league. Both schools placed 2 on the first team.

Honored from Cass City were Paul Tuckey and Mike 'Randall while league champion Lakers contributed Kendall Wertz and Mark Kretzschmer, all are seniors. Rounding out the 6 selections for the varsity are Derrick Davis, Vassar, and Dale Sharp, Caro.

The only other player to be recognized from Cass City was Jeff Krol who received an honorable mention.

Tuckey and Randall posted impressive statistics during the season. Randall had 202 rebounds for an average of 9.2 per game and his 391 points worked out to 17.8 per game. In addition he was the team leader in steals with 40 and was an 83 percent shooter from the

Allen named to co-chair RepublicanTask Force

State Rep. Dick Allen (R-Caro) has been named to cochair the new House Republican Task Force on Accountability in State Government, House Republican Leader Paul Hillegonds announced last week.

The task force, co-chaired by State Rep. Judith Miller (R-Birmingham), will study and recommend ways to provide more quality fiscal responsibility within various departments of state government, and to make them more accountable to both the public and the Legislature.

"In the past, various state agencies have acted in an autonomous manner, even violating state statutes,' Allen said. "For example, thorized levels regularly since 1981, by over $890 million. Also, the auditor general confirms that all departments have consistently refused to implement recommended internal quality assurance procedures, the use of which could have gained Michigan several million dollars a year.

"Providing a means to assure accountability in state government is an enormous undertaking, and the task force will be receptive to workable ideas, suggestions and recommendations from many sources," Allen said. "We need input, and we plan to take our task force statewide looking for it."

Pair receive jail sentence for breaking and entering

Pleas and sentencings related to breaking and entering charges dominated a full Tuscola County Circuit Court docket Friday.

Richard L. Kaczor, 18, 1137 E. Huron Line Rd., Ubly, and Shawn D. Ellesin, 18, Whitmore Lake, were each sentenced for convictions of breaking and entering an Indianfields Township country club, located at 1201 Gun Club Rd., Caro.

Kaczor, who pleaded guilty to the charge Jan. 20, was sentenced to 5 years probation and one year in the county jail, with credit for time already served, according to court records, which state he also was ordered to participate in a substance abuse program. Restitution is to be determined.

Ellesin, who pleaded guilty to the charge Feb. 24, was sentenced to 3 years probation and one year in the county jail, with credit for time served. He was ordered to pay $1,000 in court costs and fines plus attorneys fees, and enter a residential treatment program. Restitution also is to be determined in his case.

Earl W. Brookes, 19, of Sterling Heights, was sentenced for a plea of guilty Jan. 27 to breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling.

He received a one-year county jail term, with credit for 54 days served, and was ordered to pay restitution.

Court records state he broke into an auto body shop at 7200 W. Marlette Rd., Marlette, Sept. 23.

Diane M. Trisch, 33, of Akron, was sentenced to 2 years probation for a Feb. 3 conviction of felonious assault.

She also was ordered to pay fines and costs totalling $800 plus restitution of $1,050. A 90-day jail term was deferred without a date, according to court records, which state she assaulted someone with an automobile June 22 in Akron Township. Also sentenced Friday was Allen N. Zimmerman, 25, of Gagetown, who was ordered to enroll in a residential treatment program and serve one year in the county jail for a Feb. 24 conviction of probation violation.

Zimmerman, who was sentenced to 48 months of probation after his conviction Sept. 16 of receiving and concealing stolen property over $100, violated probation by being convicted Feb. 17 of breaking and entering.

It has been agreed by all parties, Dr. Jerry H. Laycock, Kingston superintendent said, that the students will continue to be taught on the camp grounds as they are this year.

Laycock said that the Kingston district will receive normal state aid for the students, but explained that there is no way of knowing if the extra payment would defray the extra costs. He said that 3 teachers are now employed at the camp. The 3 are either qualified special

Meanwhile the continuing campaign to oust the camp continues. Russell Mayer, 6660 Centerline Road, Kingston, one of the leaders of a group determined to see the camp out of Koylton Township, accuses Pioneer Work and Learn Center with bad faith in dealing with the public.

"When they started the camp they said that the schooling of the residents would be under the auspices of the Department of Social Services," Mayer charges. He points to a brochure issued by the camp saying that Social Services would. handle the education.

Haines said that there never was any intention of having that department handle students' education. The first year it was agreed to because of the controversy that establishing the camp caused, he said. The state law is clear, he added. Allen Health Care slates anniversary celebration Thursday

Allen Health Care and Allen Home Care will celebrate its fifth anniversary with an open house Thursday, Mar. 16, at company headquarters at the corner of M-81 and Koepfgen Road, a mile west of Cass City.

The company started on Main Street in Cass City with 10 employees to provide nursing service on a private pay basis.

Since that beginning there has been steady growth. Today there are 18 offices in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio with over 2,000 employees and over 150 employees in Cass City, company officials said.

The company is under the direction of owner Rod Hildebrant, who has a long career in the health care field. He earned an associate degree in business. He also has a bachelor's degree and a master's degree in health care administration from Central Michigan Univer-

The full range of health care provided includes the following therapies: IV, occupational, physical, and speech. Teaching and health care is also offered. They are covered by insurances, according to the company spokesman.

In addition, Allen Health Care offers these same services and has nursing and nurses aide services up to 24 hours a day.

The company appointed Dr. H. T. Donahue a medical director of Allen Health Care in 1985.

management practices

the production of high quality sugar beets, it is extremely important that we look at all economic production practices possible. With this in mind, I contacted several sugar beet fieldmen and sugar beet growers and summarized what appears to be best management practices for the coming year," states Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Director.

1. Fall plowing is a very successful practice, however, fall chisel where little or no residue has also worked.

2. Soil test and spread a large percentage of the phosphorus and most all potash in fall before plowing if needed.

3. Work heavy soil in fall or (Jan.-Feb.) to level where soil does not move with the wind.

4. Drill a light seeding of oats on the light or sandy smears within a field.

5. When partially leveled in the fall - only work the soil 1-2 inches deep in the spring with one field cultivator or plain old drag operation. Working more than 2 inches creates lumps and loosens soil too much.

6. We need better press wheels on the planters and depth bands are very impor-

7. The old 71 and 75 John Deere, old White and old Oliver planters seem to do a better job. Seed does not fall as far and better press 8. Plant seed 3/4 inch deep with early planted beets and 1 inch deep with later planted beets. Never plant over 1 1/4 inches deep.

9. Average spacing of all Michigan Sugar contracts in 1988 was 72 beets per 100 foot of row at harvest. Tons of sugar beets and recoverable raw sugar per acre peak at 120-130 beets per 100 foot of row. We are only getting 50 to 60 percent emergence.

10. We should strive for 150-160 beets in spring and 130-140 beets at harvest.

11. Recommend 4.5 to 5 inch spacing for 28-30 inch rows and approximately 6 inches for 20-22 inch rows. Use the 4.5 spacing if you had under 100 beets per 100 foot of row at harvest with the wider rows. Equipment on some planters can change spacing while operating and this works terrific on different types of soil.

12. If you need very little or no phosphorus and potash according to the soil test, consider planting without a starter fertilizer and take off or raise the fertilizer discs. This might improve the stand since you are not disturbing the soil under the

13. Slow down with your planting speed.

14. Test your soil for nitrates to know the nitrogen recommendations (approximately 60-90 lbs. per acre). Plow down one-third and apply two-thirds at second cultivation after looking at 15. Consider narrowing your row widths. 16. Be timely.

"In summary, I would like to propose 4 things to try in 1989," concludes Bortel: 1. Work your soil shallower - not over 2 inches deep this

2. Space beet seed at 4.5-5 inches.

3. Consider moving fertilizer disc 3 inches or more away from the seed if you have a high soil test until you believe you can eliminate the starter.

HALTING MANDATED BENEFITS

Stopping legislation that calls for businesses to provide mandated government benefits and pushing for unemployment insurance and product liability reform head the list of legislative priorities for the Michigan Chamber of Commerce for 1989-90, Rich Studley, vice-president for government relations, said.

Studley also said that his organization has not yet taken a position on the latest school finance reform plan that passed by the House and may not take one until it goes before the voters, which would result with passage by the Senate. "If it stays on such a fast track, that's a possibility," he said.

Nonetheless, mandated benefits are the biggest worry for the organization's members, Studley said. He said the issue was rated the No. 1 priority "by a mile" over any other in a December survey the chamber conducted.

"We're in a no-compromise position on mandated benefits. We haven't talked to a single business person who thinks any government mandated benefits are a good idea," Studley said.

He added that because the business community is "very united" behind this issue and Governor Blanchard has taken a similar approach, the chamber is "optimistic" that it can mental distress. Sleep difficulties can also appear to-depression.

Insomnia Sufferers Display Altered Moods

The most recent major nationwide survey of sleep produced compelling findings about the relationship between sleep and mood.

Almost half the serious insomniacs surveyed and one-third of those with less serious insomnia were classified as having high degrees of mental stress. Most of the serious insomniacs with psychic distress displayed high levels of anxiety, and more than half had elevated scores on both anxiety and depression tests. High scores on both tests indicate that psychological symptoms were severe.

Serious insomniacs also were much more likely to report clusters of psychiatric symptoms that concur with diagnosis of a serious disorder. In particular, 21 percent of those with serious insomnia reported a pattern of symptoms that parallels major depression - - a prevalence more than 3 times higher than the percentage found among those with less marked insomnia.

Altogether, one-third of those with serious insomnia were characterized by syndromes resembling either major depression or generalized anxiety.

In addition, many patients with persistent insomnia suffer from other psychiatric conditions, such as obsessive-compulsive disorder, phobias or abuse of alcohol. Is Sleep "Bad" for People With Depression?

Depression and sleep are intimately linked. Unipolar affective disorder - - a form of depression - - commonly includes symptoms of repeated awakenings and early morning wakefulness. Its sufferers also have less of the deepest phases of sleep (stages 3 and 4) than do people without depression and they dream earlier after falling asleep.

One night of total or partial depressed patients, these patients did not get better. In fact, 40 percent experienced more anxiety and panic attacks on the day following sleep deprivation. These findings provide more evidence that panic and major depressive disorders have discernible biological underpinnings.

Circadian Rhythms, Mood and Sleep

For more than 30 years, clinical investigators have speculated that some or all of the symptoms of the depressive disorders, including manic-depressive illness, may be associated with abnormalities in the timing or phase control of the circadian system, the body's biological clock. For example, many of the characteristic abnormalities of sleep in depression - early morning awakening, short total sleep time and early appearance of dreaming - - are consistent with a "phase advance" of the circadian clock. That is, when a depressed patient goes to sleep at midnight, the body's internal regulating mechanisms look like those of a normal person at 6 a.m. In addition, there is some evidence that certain circadian rhythms, such as body temperature, have shallower peaks and valleys in patients with depression.

A class of medicine called benzodiazepines commonly prescribed for both sleep and anxiety disorders may affect the central circadian pacemaker. This pacemaker - located in the area of the brain called the suprachiasmatic nucleus - - is the body's master clock. Recent research indicates that cells containing a brain chemical called gamma-aminobutyric acid (GABA) are present within this area. Benzodiazepines produce a calmsonal reports of broken ing effect by enhancing the sleep, patients with the high-action of GABA.

sleds which men of Madeira guided down the greased rocks of the mountain roads there. I took this hair-raising ride down the cobblestone trail, with natives running alongside and keeping the sled from going off the road and over the cliffs. Sacks filled with grease dangled just under the runners to keep them slippery, although the cobblestones were already pretty greasy from the traffic.

I would like to ride a camel in a race. They do this in Egyptand it looks like a hellraising sport.

Grain signup deadlines approaching

County ASCS Executive Director Jimmy LaVoie advises farmers that March 31 is the final date to file for loss on the 1988 disaster, He also stated that April 14 is the final date to sign up for the 1989 Wheat & Feedgrain Program.

With only a few weeks remaining for both signup deadlines, farmers are urged to contact the ASCS office as soon as possible and make an appointment to have both programs explained to them. ASCS programs are available to producers without regard to sex, race, color, religion, or national origin.

Livestock Club plans dinner

The Cass City Livestock Club held its monthly meeting March 2 at the Intermediate School.

Plans for a spaghetti supper March 16 were discussed. Tickets were distributed to all members.

Also discussed were Spring Achievement, the 4-H roller skating party and other future events.

Members were asked if there is an interest in photography. A local photographer is willing to help.

The next meeting is April 6 aged to attend. New members are welcome.

Leaders in many project areas are needed.

• St. Patrick's day is more widely and enthusiastically celebrated here in the United States, especially in New York City, home of the magnificent St. Patrick's Cathedral, than in Dublin, Ireland.

• The Cathedral is the seat of the Archdiocese of New York and the first major neo-gothic-style Cathedral in the United States.

• Ireland's favorite spirit, Irish Mist Liqueur traces its heritage back 1200 years. A secret blend of four Irish Spirits aged in wood, heather honey and herbs, it is thought to be the "heather wine" that minstrels sang of centuries ago. St. Patrick lived c. 389 to 461 A.D.

• Many Americans say they're "bringing the best of Ireland" to their St. Patrick's Day celebrations when they toast with the traditional afterdinner liqueur, Irish Mist.

• The first St. Patrick's Day celebration in the United States was held in Boston in 1737. Today, over a hundred cities hold parades. New York City's parade is the largest.
