ALTHOUGH THE L & S SERVICE STATION at the corner of Oak and Main Street was still pumping gas this week, traditional garage service ended with an auction sale Saturday. All of the stock and equipment were sold. The station was the second to close, or severely limit service, in Cass City in recent months. Clare's Sunoco Service, in the same block, closed earlier.

Little competition for open area school board posts

Monday's deadline for filing petitions to run for a board of education seat set the stage for only one race in 4 area school districts.

The election of school board trustees to 4-year terms, as well as millage questions, will be decided during the annual school election, slated for June 12. The only race slated in 4 area school systems is in the Owen-Gage district, where 3 persons, including both incumbents, filed petitions to run for 2 open seats on the school board.

The candidates are Mary Ann Abbe and Joseph War-ack, both incumbents, and newcomer Thomas J. Fritz. No millage question will be decided by voters, who last June approved a 2-year renewal of 15.5 mills.

In Cass City, school Supt. Ken Micklash said a miscommunication between school officials and the district's attorneys last month resulted in the school board approving an inaccurate millage renewal proposal.

The board approved asking for renewal of 19.9 mills for 3 years and 2 additional mills for one year. However, Micklash said, 16.9 mills of the proposed renewal are in effect for another year, meaning the district will ask for renewal of only 3 mills plus the 2 extra mills.

The board will now have to return to the issue to decide whether to place the questions on separate ballots, and for how many years, Micklash said.

Turning to school board seat petitions, the superintendent said only incumbents Ben Hobart and Allan Hartwick filed for the 2 expiring terms.

Similarly, Ubyly School Supt. David Landeryou reported that only incumbent Julia Heilig filed for the lone open school board seat in that district.

Also, Ubyly voters will be asked to approve an operating millage renewal of 20.35 mills for 5 years, Landeryou said.

No millage question will be presented in the Kingston School District, where only incumbents Louis Wenzlaff and David Kolacz have filed to run for 2 open school board seats, school Supt. Jerry H. Laycock reported.

Engineer says

Good news! New park track costs may be under estimates

Plans for construction of a new track in Cass City are on schedule, according to project organizers, who say the new facility won't be as costly as they first expected. "Really we're pretty optimistic. I get more optimistic all the time," Cass City High School Athletic Director Don Schelke said of the project's status.

"We had engineers in and they have it on the drawing board right now," Schelke remarked, adding he expects to receive final recommendations from the contracting firm any day.

"It's all staked out and everything. It looks like we're going to get at this even early this spring," he added.

Schelke said a full day March 31 with the contractors, Dougherty Contractors Inc., Southfield, revealed some good news.

"The (existing) English track is really exceptional; it's perfectly level," Schelke remarked. That means less work in converting the old 440-yard cinder track into a 400-meter track, he explained. "We thought we were going to have to take the curb out, and take the cinders out."

Now, only a portion of the curb along the north end of the track will have to be removed, and some drainage work will have to be completed on the west side, Schelke said.

Plans for the new facility call for construction of an all-weather 8-lane track with a special rubberized surface. The track, slated to be completed over a period of 2 to 3 years, will meet all specifications for state and regional high school track meets, organizers say.

Total cost of the new facility is estimated at $100,000, but Schelke said the actual dollar figure is expected to be considerably less with the donation of in-kind labor and equipment use. "Really, we're still guessing," he said of the total

Discipline questioned

O-G board backs teacher in dispute

A student's 2-day suspension last month sparked a lengthy discussion on discipline during a monthly Owen-Gage School Board meeting Monday night.

The discussion focused on the March 15 suspension of Chris Pavlichek, whose father, Dennis, addressed the board Monday.

According to Pavlichek, Chris was approached by high school teacher and Disciplinary Officer Manuel Thies during the noon hour March 15 because he was wearing a shirt with a beer advertisement on it (under a mesh shirt), and a hat, both of which are prohibited in school.

Pavlichek said Thies, according to Chris, tried to grab the hat and remarked, "That's a day off." Chris said "No," and Thies replied, "That's 2 days off," Pavlichek added.

"I have nothing (against) discipline, but I think that's kind of strict," the parent remarked.

"Something like this shouldn't happen, where a kid (loses) 2 days of school because of a hat. I think it's a little harassment, myself." Pavlichek, who noted that Chris had just entered the building and that there were other students there also wearing hats, added the school's student handbook is vague regarding rules on wearing hats.

Thies, however, said he levied the 2-day suspension because the student was belligerent.

Thies, who said a teacher notified him about Chris' shirt, told the board his first action was to find someone willing to take Chris home so he could change the shirt.

Thies said Chris began to argue with him, telling him he had worn the shirt many times before. At that point Chris was suspended for one day, he said, adding he tacked on another day after the student refused to give up his hat.

WARNED

Thies disputed Pavlichek's suggestion that he was picking on one student, saying he personally warned each class at the beginning of the year regarding wearing hats, coats and shirts (with alcohol or tobacco advertisements on them) in school.

He added that he's enforcing some areas of the student handbook that haven't been enforced in a long time.

Another problem area, he acknowledged, are shirts and hats—decorated with inappropriate language—worn by some students.

One person in the audience indicated that the school should crack down on those items, but allow kids to wear hats with acceptable logos. He remarked that from what he's heard, some of Thies' discipline tactics would "put the gestapo to shame."

That comment was met by a cool response by others in the audience, including Mary Ziehm of Owendale, who indicated it's parents' responsibility to make sure their children aren't wearing inappropriate clothing to school.

"I think it's about time these teachers should have some control" over the students, she said. "We've taken away any rights the teachers and even we, as parents, have."

Veteran business education teacher Peggy Randall also offered support to Thies. Since Thies began duties as disciplinary officer, Randall remarked, things have gotten "a heck of lot better" for teachers, who previously didn't have solid backing in the area of discipline. "The tempo, the learning is much better because of his discipline," she commented. "We have to give Mr. Thies the right to use his good judgement."

The board agreed. "Up to a point, we have to back our disciplinarian," board President Joseph Warack said, adding he doesn't see what the board can do outside of making the hat and coat regulation more explicit in the student handbook.

Trustee William Kretzschmer remarked, "When we hired Mr. Thies, we told him we wanted some changes made—we were tired of the circus. We also told him we're going to back him, and we better do it."

Deny tenure to teacher of O-G band

The Owen-Gage Board of Education Monday approved new contracts for 3 administrators and 2 of 3 teachers up for tenure in front of an audience of more than 30 persons.

Based on school Supt. Harley Kirby's recommendations, the board offered contracts for the 1989-90 school year to elementary school Principal William Britt, high school Principal Ronald D'Aoust and high school Disciplinary Officer Manuel Thies.

Kirby, board President Joseph Warack and Treasurer Jack Brinkman lauded D'Aoust and Thies for their first year of work together as dual principals in the high school.

In a related matter, the board approved a motion to establish a committee that will be charged with making recommendations on salary and other details in the administrators' new contracts.

Turning to action on 3 teachers up for tenure, the board, following little discussion, approved D'Aoust's recommendations.

Board members voted unanimously to grant tenure to secondary English teacher Joanne Hopper, while secondary special education teacher Sharon Krzyzaniak was approved for tenure on a vote of 6-1. Board member Ronald Good cast the lone dissenting vote.

The board voted not to offer a contract for 1989-90 to elementary and secondary band teacher James Shippee.

After spending the better part of 2 weeks as a couch potato, I'm convinced there is nothing common, that is, ordinary or usual, about a head cold.

I've also concluded that indolence has its limits. The prospect of lying around doing nothing may seem appealing when you're stressed out with too many deadlines and not enough time, but after a week or so, it gets pretty tedious.

Part of the problem, of course, is that if you aren't well enough to work, you don't feel like doing anything else either. After a couple of days, I discovered that by lying on one end of the couch for about half an hour, then hauling body, blanket and pillow to the other end, it was possible to keep one side of the sinus area clear most of the time, making breathing a little easier.

Thus, surrounded by vaporizer, cough drops, juice, lots of Kleenex and the TV remote control, I hacked, wheezed and sniffled the hours away.

At first I attempted some worthwhile activities. Reading made my head ache. After goofing up a needlework project and having to rip it out twice, I decided that, too, required a head less congested.

So, in desperation, I turned to daytime television, that vast wasteland foreign to all but a few intelligent life forms.

Do you know what's available on daytime TV? Not much.

Even the daytime commercials seem more insulting to the intellect than the prime time versions. If you weren't sick to begin with, the singing, dancing toilets would do it.

Fortunately, I wasn't so desperate as to watch the soap operas or those National Enquirers of the air waves, the talk shows. That left game shows and old westerns.

Actually the old westerns

Meg's Peg

The uncommon cold
by Melva E. Guinther

aren't bad fare when you're sick. If you fall asleep, you can usually figure out what you missed. The plot doesn't vary that much.

The joys of oil painting and of water colors were refreshing. It's probably my utter lack of artistic ability that makes those shows fascinating.

And I enjoyed several episodes of "Little House on the Prairie." Maybe they're simplistic, but there's a certain appeal to those wholesome stories with the old-fashioned morals. Michael Landon did a great job of dealing with a host of social issues through the "Little House" series.

About the only positive thing about this uncommonly severe cold is that you can be reasonably sure that it won't last indefinitely.

Being sick even for a short time helps one to empathize a little better with those who have serious illnesses with little prospect for improvement.

And it makes you determine anew to appreciate the good health you so often take for granted.

Traveling to Hawaii doesn't have to be all that expensive. It doesn't if you have kids in the right jobs and living in the right locations. The Ken Mahargs took off recently for Hawaii and they probably will be making the trip for only a little more than it would cost most of us to spend a few days in northern Michigan.

This is how it's done. First have a child earn a free round trip ticket to the islands with a frequent flyer bonus and then have it turned over to you. Next have another of the kids live in Hawaii and be prepared to be your host while vacationing and presto! You have a deluxe vacation at a bargain basement price.

Traffic in stores is everything when it comes to impulse buying. Recently the Caro Lions Club installed a couple of gum machines in the Chronicle lobby. We told them at the time that we would probably be a very poor location. We were right. I don't believe that those machines have taken in $1 in the month or so they have been here.

The Lions also installed machines right next door at Schneberger's. The store has lots of traffic, especially in its video department. Co-owner Bud Schneberger reports that the machines in his store, installed at the same time, are two-thirds empty.

Our intentions are to attend the fourth annual day for outstate journalists sponsored by Coleman A. Young, Detroit mayor. That doesn't mean that we go. Our intentions have been the same each of the 3 previous years and we have yet to make the trip.

The carrot in front of this Haire is a free day at the Detroit Tiger ball park or, for the first time this year, an opportunity to see a musical at the new Fox Theatre.

Either choice ranks as a major attraction to me. There is no choice, but to listen to the speaker at the special luncheon planned for the day.

Little damage, no injuries reported in 3 fire alarms

Elkland Township fire fighters responded to 3 alarms over the weekend, including a grass fire at the assistant fire chief's residence.

Firemen responded to a call Friday at 8:54 p.m. at the Larry Wilding residence, 6485 Severance Rd., Decker.

There, volunteers discovered an electrical short in a crawl space underneath the house, Fire Chief Dick Root said. There was no damage, he added.

Fire fighters responded to the home of Asst. Fire Chief Jack Hartwick early Saturday afternoon after a grass fire broke out. The blaze, which apparently originated from a trash barrel, caused no damage, Root said.

Damage was reported to a 1980 Ford Fairmont Sunday afternoon, when the vehicle caught fire at the Donald Buehrly residence, 7183 Reed Rd.

"They were working on the vehicle (and) it caught fire in a garage," Root said, adding the vehicle was pushed out of the garage and the fire extinguished.

Women's fellowship schedules work day

The Women's Missionary Fellowship met at First Baptist Church April 3, with 22 in attendance.

Hostesses were Rosella Kretschmer and Lucille Ostrander.

A work day was slated for April 18 for repair of old hymn books to be given to needy areas. Also, it was noted that lap robes for Provincial House are to be completed and turned in.

The guest speaker was Darlene Hull of Capac, who will soon return to her work as a missionary in Iquitas, Peru. She played the piano, sang and showed films focusing on Peru, where she has served for 18 years. Her work has included teaching in a Bible Institute as well as in the music department.

The Haire Net

Editor's note: Between the time this column was written and published the huge bail was reduced from $1 million to $50,000. The bail adjustment does appear to substantiate the uneven treatment of persons brought into court that the column addresses.

The polls show that the average citizen hasn't much faith in the way our courts or lawyers operate and decisions such as those made by the judge in the hearing for the Exxon Valdez super-tanker captain, Joseph Hazelwood, may be the reason why.

Hazelwood was the captain of the tanker that spilled more than 10 million gallons of oil into Prince William Sound. I mention that in case you have been in outer space or in a coma for the last couple of weeks.

Hazelwood, 42, turned himself in to police in Hauppauge, N. Y. He had been out on bond, previously set at $50,000 in Valdez, on charges of operating the ship while under the influence of alcohol, reckless endangerment and negligent discharge of oil. According to news reports he would be liable to a maximum of 2 years in prison as these are misdemeanors, not felonies.

The judge called Hazelwood the "architect of an American tragedy" and set bail at $1 million, in effect mandating that he be jailed.

This could be the first time in history that a suspect, and I emphasize the word, suspect, of a misdemeanor was hit with a request for $1 million bail. A bail more than even the prosecution was asking.

The rationale for posting bail is to assure that the defendant appears for trial and is not jailed before found guilty. The bigger the risk of the accused the higher the bond.

Since the captain turned himself in voluntarily, it's hard to believe that he would run away even if the bond had been zilch. With his "architect" statement and the size of the bond it appears that the judge is convicting the captain before the trial.

Get it straight, now, this is not about how serious this incident is. As an avowed conservationist, I'm aghast at the damage that has been done to those pristine Alaskan waters. There's endorsement here for stringent control of all pollution, regardless of the type. I support the new harsh control of trash disposal even though it hits me (and you) in the pocketbook. I'd rather pay $1.25 or more for a gallon of gas than risk further damage to our land and air.

But I'm also for the civil liberties that we have in this country. I want anyone charged with any crime to be innocent until proven guilty. I'd like to have more uniformity in sentencing for like offenses. That's utopia and we won't reach it.

But certainly we can come closer to it than in the case cited here. What the judge did was certainly lawful, but was it right? I don't think so.

"If It Fitz..."

2-sink bathroom

By Jim Fitzgerald

There were two sinks in our bathroom in Naples, Fla. I don't mean a double sink with one swerving faucet, like in a kitchen. I mean a complete sink and vanity table against one west wall, and their duplicates against another wall. The bathtub was the size of a swimming pool, with a built-in seat, and there was enough floor space for a senior prom.

"We can have a menage a group in here," I told my wife, trying to remember how to leer. The mirrored walls reflected more of a grimace, as though I'd stepped in something.

I realize such a rube reaction is uncool. I should act like I'm ho-hum accustomed to living ostentatiously. My family is embarrassed when I exclaim loudly at the luxury of indoor plumbing. At my age, I should be sophisticated enough to repress my excitement at the sound of a refrigerator making ice cubes that don't have to be pried out of a frozen-over tray.

BUT HOLY MACKEREL, MABEL! The only other time my bedroom was attached to a bathroom with more than one sink, there were 15 sinks, and I was sleeping in an Army barracks.

And a few thick-carpeted footsteps away from this two-sink Florida bathroom was another bathroom almost as grand. Most of my life, I and many relatives lived in a home where the second bathroom was a block away, in a gas station.

VELVET SLIPPER HIDES THE DIRT

For all of March, on Vanderbilt Beach in northwest Naples, we rented a three-bedroom condo in a security-gated subdivision where the posted speed limit is 14 m.p.h. Not 15 or 10 — 14. That's precise class. I expected to see a sign saying "No Flitting on the Grass."

Because it's a short walk from the ocean, this complex is called Beachwalk Circle, and the monthly tab is nearly $3,000. If it were directly on the beach, it would be $5,000. The only way I can afford such housing is to share the costs with a daughter and son-in-law who put up with my un- youth presence because I'm willing to distract their two little daughters by allowing them to play their favorite game, called "Hey, Let's Bug Grandpa." It consists of jumping on my baby whenever it's supine, in bed, in a lounge chair or in a pool.

All was not golden at Beachwalk Circle. Soon after exclaiming over the two sinks, I discovered four lamps with burned-out light bulbs, or no bulbs at all, and no replacements available. My wife said the kitchen was woefully short on pots and dishware. And the power company phoned to say if we didn't quickly pay our overdue bill, the electricity would be turned off.

Talk about putting a velvet slipper on a dirty foot. My vacations are always devoted to physical exercise. While lying flat on my back, with both arms slightly extended, alternately using my right and left hands, hour after hour, I turn pages. Under these strenuous circumstances, I'd gladly trade several second sinks for one decent reading lamp.

PAST HAUNTED NEW TENANTS

It turned out the previous tenants had broken their lease and departed under questionable circumstances that should have been monitored by the rental agent but weren't. Our mistake was in not demanding an inventory list and making sure all needed supplies and equipment were available before handing over our money (almost $3,000, and there wasn't even a coffee maker!).

Anyway, all problems were solved eventually, thanks to my wife's sharply documented complaints to the landlord. Personally, I refused to gripe out loud about anything for fear a lightning bolt from Heaven would strike me dead for being an ungrateful lout who should be ashamed of forgetting the days when I ran cross-legged to the Gulf station.

Which reminds me: Our condo was within sight of Naples' ultra-plush Ritz-Carlton Hotel, a spired edifice built a few years ago to look like it was built 300 years ago. Three-year-old Tricia, currently into reading Sunday school books, pointed at the Ritz-Carlton and said: "That's where Jesus lives — with the little children."

For 30 days, I had it as good as Jesus.

Diabetes education classes offered at hospital

In order to focus attention on the importance of diabetes education, the Michigan Organization of Diabetes Educators and Gov. James Blanchard have designated April 9 through April 15 as Diabetes Educators Week.

The diabetes educators at Hills and Dales General Hospital, Cass City, are observing this week by promoting their next series of classes, slated to begin April 17 in the hospital's basement meeting room.

The dietitian, nurse, exercise therapist and pharmacist urge all diabetics who have never attended a comprehensive education program to consider enrolling in the next Diabetes Update series - only 5 Monday evenings - offered only 3 times per year.

Some 49% of the 350,000 diabetics in Michigan have not been educated in proper self-care methods and many others need to update skills, including self blood glucose monitoring, urine testing for ketones, and consistent exercise. Education in self-care management improves the quality of life and minimizes complications.

All citizens are urged to join in the fight to conquer this serious disease. The best strategy is learning as much as one can learn about diabetes and its care.

Additional information and registration are available by calling the hospital at 872-2121.

O-G boosters pour $134,000 into school system in 11 years

by Tom Montgomery
News Editor

Although they might not realize it, Owen-Gage students would have a hard time pointing to a portion of their education that hasn't been touched in some way by their school's band boosters.

Whether in a classroom, office, gymnasium or football stadium, the efforts of the group's work and dedication can be seen.

When the Owen-Gage Band Boosters organized 11 1/2 years ago, the goal was to raise money for band uniforms. After obtaining a license, the small organization began operating bingo on Saturday nights and before long, the $13,000 uniform purchase was made.

Despite accomplishing that goal, and going on to buy equipment for the school's music department, the boosters didn't stop there.

In fact, the group of caring parents, grandparents and other district residents has become a driving force in the school system over the years, pouring more than $130,000 into the district and enhancing the quality of education students receive.

"Anytime we are in dire need of something, the grammar school teachers as well as the junior and senior high teachers can" approach the boosters, high school principal and counselor Ron D'Aoust remarked. "They cover us when we're in a bind."

He noted that the boosters have made it possible for students and staff members to enjoy some of the "luxuries"—computer systems and software, electric typewriters, new sports equipment and uniforms, field trips, teacher conferences, etc.—taken for granted by wealthier districts.

BENEVOLENT GROUP

"I see them as a benevolent group. I see them as a desperately needed financial auxiliary," he continued. "When I say they're a benevolent society, it sounds like something from the 1930s, but it's true.

"They're a caring and giving group. What else can you say?"

That is and always has been the band boosters' goal, according to Janet Muntz, treasurer of the group since it organized in October 1977.

"We support every segment of the school, high school and elementary both," she said. "We never did change our name, but we definitely are an all-school booster."

The boosters' list of contributions to the district is long and impressive, representing expenditures of $134,000 as of January.

Among the major purchases are:

—A riser and shell for the band room, $5,000.

—14 computers for the elementary school, $13,000.

—A video camera for the high school, $2,500.

—2 copy machines for the elementary school, $5,100.

in many other ways.

Aside from equipment, the boosters in 1987 began offering scholarships. Four $500 grants were given the first year, 7 $400 scholarships were awarded last year, and nearly everyone who has applied this year will receive some assistance.

FIELD TRIPS

Field trips for the elementary school children—eliminated via school budget cuts—have been reinstated with donations by the band boosters, which also helps send kids to music and athletic camps as well as paying for some sports tournament entrance fees.

"When we first started out, nobody had any idea it would last this long, I don't think," Muntz remarked.

"I guess as far as the future goes, we'll do the same as we've done—help where we're needed."

Band boosters President Ruth Grassmann agreed, adding much of the credit goes to a few people who have committed themselves to a lot of work.

"They are people who are very supportive, care about the school and are very interested in the quality of education that can be given to the students," she said.

"If it's going to help the kids, if it's going to give them a better education, we are definitely interested and support it," she continued.

School Supt. Harley Kirby said the boosters' dedication has made a huge difference in the district, which has struggled financially in recent years.

"We really appreciate them. They cover sports, they cover band and they cover academics. They've just been supportive of anything we've needed."

Hard time

In France, where tasty oysters are as coveted as fine wines, the oyster has fallen on hard times. The delicate, flat oysters—Europeans have enjoyed for centuries are in decline. The culprit is a pesky water-borne parasite that destroys the oysters' immune system. But International Wildlife magazine reports the parasite doesn't just harm oysters. The poor harvests of recent years have put thousands of French watermen out of work.

CASS CITY SCHOOL NEWS

Sometimes in today's busy society with all the extracurricular events that go on, it becomes possible for the basic function of school to get away from many of us. School is still primarily a setting to educate students. At Cass City High School we can be proud of the results of our efforts.

The National Honor Society is one reflection of our success. Not only does the National Honor Society take into account academic success but it also uses citizenship and service as criteria for admission. We have 37 Junior and Senior members in this honorary group.

Each marking period we also have about 25% of our high school students make the honor roll. To do so, a student must have received all grades B and above and maintain average or above citizenship grades.

If education is truly important then we should consider the attempt at further education. Roughly 75% of Cass City High School seniors go on to some form of advanced education after graduation. It may be technical school, a two year college, or a four year university. I believe that this speaks well of our students. They realize the importance of education, but equally important, feel they have the background to be successful with college.

ACT test is one of the standards for college admission. This year we have had 74 of our students take this test. Their average score was 18.7 which is about the State of Michigan average. From the results of the ACT scores we had 35 students who were state scholarship qualifiers.

The quality education that our students receive at Cass City High School does not come easy. It takes the full support and cooperation of the community, teachers, administrators, students, and parents. We have been fortunate to have these key elements fit together so that we can provide a quality education for our students. Having been recognized as an outstanding high school three years ago, we continue to strive for quality education for all of our students.

Caro team earns awards

Caro High School students Carrie Lubaczewski, Stacey Thorp and Shannon Malloy were honored at a Central Michigan University awards luncheon March 23 for their performance in a stock market game.

The 3 students and their teacher, Tom Dillabough, were presented a trophy by Dina Foster, interim director of CMU's center for Economic Education. Lori Loeffler also was a student member of the Caro team but did not attend the luncheon.

The fall 1988 Stock Market Game was sponsored by the Michigan Economic Education Council, Roney and Co., and the Detroit Free Press. Each team was given an imaginary $100,000 to invest. The team with the most "cash" after 10 weeks of trading was declared the winner.

The Caro team finished in second place in the CMU region, which consists of all of lower Michigan outside the greater Detroit area.

Farm, family program set

The Agriculture in Transition program of the Sanilac County Co-operative Extension Service and Community Mental Health of Sanilac County are offering a seminar, "Family and Farm - Working it Out," to families free of charge.

The program will be held in the Sanilac County conference room at 37 Austin St., Sandusky, April 17 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. There is no admission charge or pre-registration required.

The speaker will be Kate Powell, a counselor for the Center for Personal Growth. Powell is also a clinical supervisor for St. Clair Community Mental Health and the Western Area Human Services of Yalc/Capac Area.

4-Hers learn of government

Six Sanilac County 4-H members and one adult 4-H leader recently spent 3 days in Lansing learning about government and government issues as part of the 4-H Capitol Experience.

They are Dennis King Jr. of Decker (Lucky Stars 4-H Club), Neil Best of Snover (Lucky Stars 4-H Club), Jeanne Hoolsema of Melvin (Peck Patriots 4-H Club), Roxanne Turner of Marlette (Germania Silver Stars 4-H club), Michelle Snow of Marlette (Germania Silver Stars 4-H Club), and Peggy Steinmann of Marlette (Germania Silver Stars 4-H Club).

The area youth were among more than 100 4-H'ers from across the state who visited their state legislators' offices and government agencies, studied the process that bills go through to become laws, and learned about the wide variety of government-related careers that are available to them.

Snow served as a member of the State Advisory Committee in planning the 1989 4-H Capitol Experience. Marilyn King of Decker, 4-H administrative leader for the Lucky Stars 4-H club, served as chaperone for the Sanilac County delegation.

When each youth applied for 4-H Capitol Experience, they chose subjects that they would like to explore, from environmental topics to social and political policies.

Each Capitol Experience participant is encouraged to become involved in local governmental activities at home before and after attending the Lansing program.

While they were in Lansing, the 4-H'ers and their chaperones stayed at the Lansing YWCA, near the Capitol, where they set up mock committee sessions, worked on leadership exercises and enjoyed the Y's recreational facilities.

The 4-H Capitol Experience is sponsored by the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, the MSU Department of Resource Development and Michigan 4-H Youth Programs.

Minor damage reported in car-deer collisions

Area law enforcement agencies reported no injuries and only minor damage in 5 area vehicle accidents, including 4 car-deer collisions, over the past week.

Kimberly A. Wildman, 6877 Herron Dr., Cass City, was westbound on East Cass City Road east of Schwegler Road at about 7:30 p.m. Friday when a deer ran into her vehicle, according to Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies.

Also Friday troopers at the state police post in Caro reported that a deer collided with a vehicle driven by Wesley B. Boyd, 3443 Washington St., Kingston. Boyd was westbound on M-46 west of Cat Lake Road when the 6:30 a.m. accident occurred.

Troopers also reported a one-vehicle crash early Sunday morning on M-81 east of Crane Road.

Reports state Christine A. Rutkoski, 4043 E. Cass City Rd., Cass City, was westbound at about 12:05 a.m. when her vehicle hit a patch of ice, causing her to lose control. The vehicle then left the roadway and rolled onto its side in a ditch.

Your neighbor says Sports emphasis good in schools

There has been discussion in the media in recent weeks about overemphasis on sports at the expense of other facets of education. Your neighbor, Russ Hillaker, doesn't buy that.

In fact, he says, he would like to have more, not less, emphasis than there is today in most schools. That's the right kind of emphasis, he adds. The kind that made it a badge of honor to be a member of a team and persons who made the team were looked up to. We are losing that, he feels, and it's evident in spectators that come to local high school games. We don't get that many students out anymore and, regretfully, school spirit today is not what it used to be.

Hillaker also would advocate a "hard line" policy against drug abusers. These people are old enough to know what they are doing, he says, and they know the rules. If they break these rules just once that should be enough to ban them from the sport.

The recently completed NCAA basketball tournament that concluded with the "Final 4" in Seattle was good for the sport. Things like this should be encouraged, he concluded.

Hillaker is employed at Croft-Clara Lumber and is a native of the Cass City area. He and his wife, Elaine, have 5 children, 2 boys and 3 girls.

Top Kingston High School students named

Kingston High School officials recently named their top graduating seniors for the Class of 1989.

Smith plans to attend college to study political science and then hopes to enter law school.

Salutatorian honors go to Anna Elizabeth Peter, daughter of G. James and Mariann Peter of Kingston.

Peter has a 3.7 GPA, has been active in track, the National Honor Society, Student Council, Honors Band and the county academic games program.

She plans on attending Michigan State University and would like to work for the National Aeronautics Space Administration.

Anna Elizabeth Peter

Additional honor graduates are:

Fourman hopes to study sports medicine in college.

Donate own blood for surgery

The Red Cross now offers a service in which persons planning to have surgery can donate their own blood ahead of time for the procedure.

According to Jane Mitchell, in-service director at Hills and Dales General Hospital, area residents interested in the service can contact the Red Cross to learn where participating area blood banks are located.

Persons can donate up to 5 units (one unit every 7 days) of blood for themselves from 39 to 3 days before surgery, Mitchell said, adding the patient's doctor will determine how much is needed, and then fill out the proper forms and contact the Red Cross.

Persons who wish to take advantage of the service must meet certain weight and health standards, Mitchell said.

Additional information is available by contacting Mitchell or Val Weeks, blood bank coordinators at Hills and Dales, or call the Red Cross at (313) 232-1401.

Fete 50 Cass City honor graduates

Excellence, commitment, outstanding achievements were words used to acknowledge the contributions of honor students in Cass City High School's Class of 1989 during a program/reception held April 6.

The Cass City Education Association and the Tri-County Bargaining Association sponsored the event, which recognized 50 graduating seniors holding grade point averages of 3.0 or better.

The program opened with a welcome from CCEA President Nancy Weippert, who congratulated both the students and their parents for commitment to academics.

math teacher Linda McNeil introduced Valedictorian Janet Koch, who spoke to her classmates on the importance of their academic achievements and the need to be role-models for younger students.

Marlene Erla, who had been Caren Britt's kindergarten teacher, introduced Britt as the salutatorian of the class of 1989. Her speech emphasized goals and the freedom and responsibility her fellow students now had to set their own goals.

Refreshments, prepared by Katie Jackson's high school home economics students, were served to students, parents, teachers, and guests following the program.

A CAST OF 22 OWEN-Gage High School students, including (from left) Dennis Czap, Theresa Schwartz, Paul Damm, Lynn Cummings, Jill Susalla, Tanya Muntz and Bethany Rayl, will present the hillbilly comedy, "Headin' for a Weddin'," Thursday and Friday evenings.

Owen-Gage play Introducing Jan slated this week

Feudin', fightin', singing, weddings and a jug band are all part of Owen-Gage High School's annual spring play, "Headin' for a Weddin'."

The hillbilly comedy, featuring a cast of 22 students, will be presented Thursday and Friday beginning at 7 p.m. in the Gagetown Elementary gym.

The play focuses on Homer Hollowbone (played by Dennis Czap), a hillbilly from Cricket Creek Hollow who pretends to be something he isn't after falling in love with Rhode Island debutante Melissa Dugan, played by Andrea Mandich. "It's a play that was done in this school, maybe 15 years ago," Director Sandra Parks, a kindergarten teacher in the district, remarked.

"This is a little bit different from what we've done in the past," she continued, adding that because of an older copyright, the students have had a little more freedom in performing the comedy. "We've added some characters and we've added a (surprise) wedding scene," she said.

"I really enjoy it. We have some very talented actors," Parks added.

The Mother and Daughter banquet will be May 13.

Mrs. Betty Kira gave a talk on when and how South Africa began and how it is today.

The next meeting will be at the church May 1 with a potluck supper.

O-G teacher denied contract in 1989-90

D'Aoust noted that several teachers were in attendance Monday night for the purpose of supporting the board's clarification last month of accusations made by long-time district resident and Owen-Gage substitute teacher Jim Wissner.

Wissner, during the board's March 13 regular meeting, voiced several charges against the district, saying students aren't being offered a good quality education. He indicated little is being done regarding teachers who, he said, put forth little effort in the classroom.

The board and Kirby disagreed, saying the district is continually working to insure a good quality education for students and increase standards in the classroom.

Wissner also accused the district of favoritism in hiring, which Kirby denied, and accused Brinkman of making inappropriate comments against a coach during a regional volleyball tournament. Brinkman denied the charge.

ALSO MONDAY

Also Monday, the board:

- Conducted a 70-minute executive session to discuss teacher contract negotiations.

- Approved a recommendation from Owen-Gage Preschool Director Diane Warack to continue operating the preschool, now in its fifth year, as part of the school district. Warack said she would present other proposals related to the program during a future board session.

- Approved Paul Damm as the high school's "student of the month" for March.

- Approved an annual National Honor Society spring trip, slated for April 17 and 18 in Midland.

- Approved a resolution that states Kirby will be held harmless in his role as the school district's asbestos removal designee, provided he performs duties associated with that role appropriately.

- Heard from Ruth Grassmann, who requested that the board consider changing its requirement of 2 years of physical education for graduation. The requirement has caused scheduling problems for some students, she remarked.

- Approved a motion to sell via bids 2 storage buildings, formerly a cafeteria and band room, at the high school.

- Adopted a state law prohibiting the use of corporal punishment. The mandate will be placed in the school's student handbook.

- Received letters from state Sen. Dan L. DeGrow (R-Port Huron), who is requesting suggestions on funding priorities for the coming year's state aid budget, and from Mr. and Mrs. Blenford Campbell, who lauded Owen-Gage sports teams and athletes for good seasons.

- Learned that both the elementary and high school libraries are having book sales this week.

- Noted that May 18 has been declared Great Lakes Education Day in Michigan, and that the State Board of Education has declared May 9 as Michigan Teachers Day.

Former O-G supt. took job at age of 20

The Owen-Gage Board of Education Monday learned of the death of a former Owen-Gage School superintendent who took the job at the age of 20 and became the youngest top administrator of a 12-grade school district in the state.

According to a news clipping sent to the board by Muriel La Fave of Owendale, Edwin L. Taylor, 82, recently died at Butterworth Hospital in Grand Rapids after suffering a stroke.

Taylor was a former superintendent in Grandville as well as Owendale, serving in the top school post from 1950 to 1968.

At the age of 19, he served as principal at Owendale High School, where he also coached baseball and taught 7 subjects in grades 8 through 12.

He became superintendent the next year.

39 attend super science event

CASS CITY PUPILS James Matthews and Melisa Baranek and instructor Rob Wright (a former Cass City student now attending SVSU) are among 39 students who took part in a recent "Super Science Saturday" event.

BAYNE ROLAND and Kim Taylor, both Kingston students, dissect a frog during the "Super Science Saturday" under the guidance of instructor and Caro resident Marta Peterson.

The Tuscola Gifted and Talented Consortium sponsored a "Super Science Saturday" March 18 for sixth grade students in Tuscola County.

A total of 39 students attended 4 classes: astronomy, dinosaurs, dissection and electric motors. Students were allowed to attend 2 classes of their choice.

Super Science Saturday gives students a chance to explore these areas with hands-on experience in a relaxed and fun atmosphere. Some activities include actual dissection of laboratory specimens by students, construction of electric motors from kits, assembling a large model of a dinosaur, and observing solar activity through a telescope.

Lady Bulldogs favored to repeat in NCTL softball

Owen-Gage is the defending co-champion of the North Central Thumb D League but Coach Judy Campbell will not be satisfied with a similar record this spring. What the Bulldogs will be aiming for is winning it all.

And why not? Back from last year's team are all but 2 of the players that helped Owen-Gage post a 16-2 record last year. The Bulldogs bowed in the districts, but it took the eventual state champions, Bay City All Saints, to beat them.

The 2 girls that will not be back will be tough shoes to fill. Susie Salcido, an all-league and all-region performer, and Dawn Holland, who did not come out for the team this season, will be missed.

Other than that, Campbell can field a veteran squad with some outstanding performers. Andrea Mandich was an all-league, all-region performer in the outfield. Tanya Haldane won second team all-league honors at catcher. Vicki Ricker and Patti Ondrajka received honorable mention.

Angie Bolzman is back to anchor the pitching staff.

The remainder of the squad should be stronger with a year's experience and a co-championship season behind it.

Owen-Gage fans should be able to find out just how powerful the team is this season at the opening game April 19. The Bulldogs meet last year's state champs, Bay City All Saints, in the first game.

O-G track teams set for opener at Kingston

The Owen-Gage Bulldogs finished fourth in the North Central Thumb D League meet last year and Coach Arnie Besonen will have to be a miracle worker if the Bulldogs improve on that record in 1989.

There are a few bright spots as the team prepares for the new season, but a lack of depth may be a problem.

The Bulldogs will be strongest in the sprints and the relays. Last year the relay team qualified for the state finals. The squad will be paced by Marc Reinhardt, who is a top high jumper and long jumper in addition to anchoring both the 440 and 880 relay squads. Andre' Damm is a sprinter who is expected to win points in his specialty. He also will be a member of the relay teams.

Graham Besonen is another returning member of the relay team and is expected to help in the long jump. Mike Kady should be improved this year with the experience gained during his freshman year. He will be counted on in the distance events.

Much of the team's chances for improvement may rest with junior Chad Stirrett. He is recovering from a broken leg and says, "Hopefully I will be able to compete and I'm going to give it my best try." When healthy, Stirrett is the team's best long jumper and runs the high and low hurdles.

In the upcoming league race, defending champion Deckerville is seen as the team to beat. Kingston should mount a strong challenge. Owen-Gage should improve on its 8th place finish in the league last year.

Billy new coach

Veteran baseball squad fielded at Owen-Gage

The Owen-Gage baseball team should be improved this season as new Coach Harvey Billy will have a veteran team to lead when the North Central Thumb D League season starts.

Whether the club will have improved enough to mount a serious challenge remains to be seen. Last year the club finished 5-11 in the league and 5-12 overall. Gone from that team is 4-year letterman and short-stop Chris Abbe. The remainder of the squad returns.

Much of the success of the team may rest on the shoulders of Kevin Koch, who will be starting his 3rd year on the mound for the Bulldogs. He's been a letter winner since his freshman days.

Billy says that he won't know just how his charges will line up when the season starts because he hasn't had a chance to get to really see the players in action due to the weather and spring break at the school.

One player sure to play a center role on the team this spring is Marc Reinhardt, who is a fine defensive player and has a strong arm. He also will be doing some of the pitching again this year.

GIRLS' TRACK
Owen-Gage girls finished fourth in the league last year and should be competitive this year. The biggest loss for the Bulldogs is Susie Salcido, who was a top discus thrower and a proven point producer.

The Bulldogs will bank on Dawn Dorsch in the long jump and Andrea Mandich in the dashes.

Coach Arnie Besonen's task will be to build a team around the proven performers if the Bulldogs are to move up in the standings this year.

The first test for the track teams will be April 18 when 5 teams will compete at Kingston.

Second row: Mickey Parks, Jason Torres, Chad Stirrett, Mike Kady, Coach Besonen.

Frankenmuth too powerful for Cass City thinclads

Powerful Frankenmuth dominated a triangular track meet with Cass City and Valley Lutheran Wednesday. In the boys' competition Frankenmuth scored 134 points, Cass City finished second with 45 points, and Valley Lutheran scored 6 points.

In the girls' meet the results were: Frankenmuth, 134; Cass City, 48, and Valley Lutheran, 3 points.

Among the boys, Cass City showed strength in the field events, winning 3 of the 5 events and finishing second in another. Brent Morell was a double winner, taking the shot put and the discus, while Bob Leffler won the pole vault. Tim Englehart finished second in the high jump. Steve Tuckey won the 800-meter run, and Frankenmuth won every other event.

The Hawks had 2 double winners in the girls' meet, but only one other first place finish in the rest of the events, which Frankenmuth won. Pacing the Hawks were Jandi Hillaker, with wins in the 200 and 400-meter dashes, and Kerri Santos, with wins in the high and low hurdles. Cass City's other first place was earned by Crystal Leffler in the 3200-meter run.

By Bill Myers

A while ago we announced a prize for the first person to write and tell us a word in the English language that had the letters UFA in that sequence somewhere in the word.

First to reply was the sage of San Francisco, Dr. Fred Bold, with the word TUFU, which we challenged, because it wasn't the one we had in mind, and we thought he had made it up in a devious attempt to win the prize. Dr. Bold then sent us a page from his dictionary:

TUFA (toofa) n. Geol. A porous rock formed as a deposit from springs or streams.

So we packed off his valuable prize to him.

The word we had had in mind was MANUFACTURE, but we had to allow the entry of TUFA, stupid word that it is. Sounds more like the latest oat bran cereal.

Just above the word TUFA in the dictionary page was TUCKAHOE. This is the edible sclerotium of a subterranean fungus.

Class dismissed. Permanently.

This is the week for bits and pieces of information.

At an investment seminar we learned that (with some exceptions, of course) if the surviving spouse of the decedent is not a citizen of the United States, the marital deduction is disallowed.

This was part of a Federal law passed Nov. 10, 1988, and summarized on page 455 under Estate Tax 26-2056 of the Federal Register.

Better get your spouse naturalized.

Zero coupon bonds: You can overpay on the cost basis if you sell before they mature.

Example: You buy a 10-year zero, maturing 1999. Your cost is $400, say. The yield is 10% to maturity, when the bond will be worth $1,000.

So suppose you sell the bond in 1992 - 3 years after purchase.

Your cost basis is not what you paid for it, but the compounded accreted value for the time you held it. In this example, 3 years.

If the yield was 10% on the $400 you paid for it, then the first year accreted value would be $400 + 10%, for a total of $440. The next year, though, the accreted value is $440 + 10% or $484, or a total of $484. The third year, 10% more or $484.40, making $532.40 for your cost basis after 3 years. If you had used just straight interest of $40 a year you might have assumed cost basis had become 3 x $40 or $120, for a total of $520.

Doesn't sound like much for just one bond. If you had 100 of them, though, it would be a $1240 higher cost basis and therefore $1240 less capital gains tax. $1240 x 27% tax = $334 you've saved by struggling through my figures.

Made it worthwhile to buy the paper, didn't it?

Why, oh why, did congress in its infinite wisdom ever set the scale of the Catastrophic Health Tax increase at $22.50 per $150 of tax liability.

Because it would make the bite look smaller, perhaps? Because few people would translate that into a 15% jump in tax?

While the lawmakers were being so sly they also cunningly put the tax in effect Jan. 1, 1989, but said it wasn't necessary to figure this in estimated tax for 1989. If you don't allow for it, then you will have the whole smear hit you with your April 15, 1990 return.

Some have already figured that $22.50 extra for every $150 you pay is 15%.

The rate lasts only a year. Then it goes to $37.50 per $150 - and that's 25%. If the Congressmen are getting howls now at 15% let them wait a year until the populace understands it will be 25% in 1990. Let the AARP do some more back-peddalling furiously and claim this all was never their idea.

After 1990 it will go up 1% a year - 26%, 27%, 28%. Lord knows when it will stop. Just this year a couple 65 or older (and thus eligible) will pay up to $1600 extra tax. By 1993 the lid will go up to $2,100.

Golden years. Indeed they are - for the U.S. Treasury.

How to dress meet slated

"Dress For Success: - - a workshop for the woman who is limited by time and money yet wants to dress well - - is set for April 27 from 7 to 10 p.m. in the County Conference Room in Sandusky.

This 3-hour workshop includes a computerized figure analysis and information on planning and coordinating a wardrobe, purchasing it wisely and caring for it properly. Color, make up and hairstyle will also be addressed in this class.

A registration fee is required to cover the cost of participants' work books and computer printouts. Pre-registration is required.

Big sister says volunteering "doesn't take that much time"

Ask Elaine Osentoski about her work with the Tuscola County Big Brothers/Big Sisters Program and chances are good she'll say caring, not time, is the most important factor in being a volunteer.

It was a year ago this month that the Ugly area resident became a big sister to 10-year-old Bonnie Warford, a fourth grader at Campbell Elementary School.

A lot has happened since then, including the birth of a baby girl to Osentoski and her husband, Tony.

Despite the added responsibilities of a baby in addition to her work as a secretary, however, Osentoski says she intends to continue spending time each week with her little sister.

"I don't intend on letting it slide," she remarked last week at her home. "It really doesn't take that much time."

Each match is carefully screened and supervised from the beginning, Sherman explained, adding that a family's needs and the children's interests and personalities are taken into consideration to make the best possible match.

Once a match is made, goals are set and regular contacts are maintained between the parent, child, volunteer and agency staff.

The need for big brothers and big sisters has risen in recent years as the number of children in single-parent homes continues to climb.

Unfortunately, the supply of volunteers hasn't kept up with demand, according to Sherman, who said there are currently 27 children matched with adults, compared to nearly 30 children on a waiting list and another 28 in the screening process.

Area residents interested in volunteering or finding out more about the program can contact Sherman at 673-6996.

At least a year with a little brother or little sister, caring, sharing experiences and listening to the child's concerns.

"I think that if I thought I had to entertain her, it would turn into a chore."

"If I don't get to see her, I call her at least once a week," Osentoski continued, adding communication is a mainstay of her relationship with Bonnie.

"When we do talk, she always tells me what's going on in school," she said. "Bonnie is such an outgoing person. I like listening to her tell her stories, (and) I would like to think that if she had a problem, she would come to me."

Osentoski recalled, adding Bonnie thought she was going to lose her third big sister. "I said, 'You know, I think I might need some help with that baby. Do you think you can help?'"

Osentoski's dedication of a little time and a lot of caring seems to have accomplished the goal set by the Big Brothers/Big Sisters organization.

"I find most of them (children) just have a need for someone," Ruby Sherman, Big Brothers/Big Sisters case manager, remarked. "We're promoting friendship, not entertainment relationships."

Sherman added that her goal is to offer children from primarily single-parent homes the same thing kids in 2-parent homes have, including a belief that relationships don't have to break up.

According to Bonnie, life would be pretty boring without big sisters.

"It's fun and you enjoy it a lot," she said. "They put more confidence in yourself; like, I'll say 'I can't do that', and they'll say, 'Yes you can'."

Big Brothers/Sisters observe volunteer week

Tuscola County Big Brothers/Big Sisters is among the area organizations observing National Volunteer Appreciation Week, April 9-15.

Thanks to volunteers, hundreds of children have been served by the local agency since its start in 1972, when a group of concerned men realized the need for a Big Brothers group in the county, according to Ruby Sherman, Big Brothers/Big Sisters case manager.

First called Tuscola County Big Brothers, Inc., the agency opened its doors in January 1973, and the first boy was matched in March of the same year.

Early in 1974, the agency Board of Directors saw a need for service to girls from single-parent homes, and Big Sisters was introduced.

A nonprofit social service corporation, the local Big Brothers/Big Sisters agency strives to establish one-on-one friendships between adult volunteers and children from primarily single-parent homes.

Each of the volunteers makes a commitment to spend 3 to 6 hours a week for at least a year with a little brother or little sister, caring, sharing experiences and listening to the child's concerns.

"I enjoy it. What I get out of it is satisfaction that I'm able to expose her to things she might not otherwise be exposed to, and I let her know that she's capable of anything she wants to do."

Aside from encouragement, Osentoski said she also tries to provide Bonnie with understanding and reassurance that she can depend on her big sister.

"When I first told Bonnie I was going to have a baby, my her face went white," Osen-
