Shriner mini-clinic finds 2 area children to help

by Matt Bach
Staff Writer

With a gleam in her eye and hope in her face, Cass City resident Jamie Caister, 12, waited patiently to see if the soft-hearted Shriners with the maroon and gold fezzes could help her.

Jamie was one of approximately 6 people who visited the Shrine mini-clinic Tuesday at Hills and Dales General Hospital. This was the first time the mini-clinic has ever been in Tuscola County. "It was a good turnout for the first one," according to Hills and Dales president Ken Jensen. "This was good for the whole upper Thumb area. There seems to be a kind of hesitation for families to travel great distances."

The mini-clinics give people the opportunity to learn whether the Shriners' Crippled or Burned Children's program can help children through age 18, without traveling hundreds of miles, Jensen remarked.

"The mini-clinic is a constant search to find kids who need help," commented Shriner clown David "Raggs" Florida. "It's determined here today. Yes, this is something we can improve on."

Of the 6 people who went to the clinic, Jensen happily reported that 2 of them were referred to the crippled hospital in Chicago. "The fact that we helped 2 kids, or even if we helped just one kid, it would have been worth it."

In addition, Jensen exclaimed that the Shriners have helped several dozen children in the Thumb throughout the years.

Florida, a retired Flint police officer, added to Jensen's statistics. "I've seen a list since the hospital (in Chicago) opened which stated 250,000 patients were treated with no cost whatsoever."

HELPING PEOPLE
These types of numbers push Florida on to volunteer his time and energy for the Shriners, working at various mini-clinics and circuses throughout Michigan in an attempt to help people like Jamie, who received tests for scoliosis.

"As a Shriner, you're just one tiny piece of sand on a beach," Florida remarked. He added that there are Shrine research facilities in Chicago and other parts of the United States, which have created several breakthroughs in medicine dealing with various children's problems.

If the Shriners feel they can help a child, they will take him or her and their family to a Shrine hospital for treatment. All of the transportation, housing and treatment is paid for by the Shrine organization. "It doesn't cost the family one penny," remarked Florida, adding all the money comes from donations. "Charity is the giving of little by many to help the few."

Shriners are committed to helping people with cerebral palsy, congenital hip, spina bifida, club foot, osteogenesis imperfecta, burns, general orthopedics, scoliosis, neurological problems, limb deficiencies, spinal cord injury, hair lip - cleft palate and major scars from burns.

DEVELOPMENT
Florida enthusiastically recounted some of the development done by Shrine research. "A lot of the orthopedic work was developed by Shriners. Shriners started growing skin and we saved 2 kids who had 98 percent of their bodies burned. Both of the children were saved by (the skin growing) process."

In addition to the research, the Shrine "burn clinics bring in doctors from all over the world and teach them techniques," commented Florida, adding, "A lot of the doctors train with us and then go on to do their own research."

Some of the Shrine doctors were once helped by the Shriners when they were children. "One of the doctors was a burn victim as a child and was helped by Shriners. He then grew up wanting to become a Shrine doctor."

He added that, "Knowing you're a part of all that makes it worth it. If you can help just one person, it makes it worth it." Florida remarked that he has helped and become friends with a lot of children in his 13 years as a Shriner.

"I met this one girl who had brain surgery when she was about 7 or 8. This summer I went to her high school graduation and now she is going to go to college to become an interpreter. It's very rewarding and fulfilling to know you're a part of that. Every man likes to give something back to life and being a Shriner is a way to do it."

Three injured Car rolls over on park hill

Three Huron County residents sustained minor injuries Saturday when the vehicle they were riding in attempted to climb the Cass City Village Park Hill.

Cass City police reported the vehicle, driven by Mark R. Sweeney, 24, Uby, left Ale Street toward the east, drove up the park hill and rolled over at about 2:10 a.m.

Sweeney and a passenger in his vehicle, Lisa M. Madej, 18, of Bad Axe, were transported by Cass City-Mercy Ambulance personnel to Hills and Dales General Hospital, where they were treated and later released. Another passenger, Norman J. Peters, 24, of Bad Axe, sought his own treatment at the hospital. He also was treated and released.

O-G superintendent

Kirby granted pay boost

The Owen-Gage Board of Education Monday adopted an amended 1988-89 budget and a preliminary 1989-90 spending plan, and approved a salary increase of 3.3 percent over 2 years for school Supt. Harley Kirby.

The board adopted an amended budget totalling

$1.410 million for the 1988-89 fiscal year, which ends Friday.

The preliminary 1989-90 spending plan, meanwhile, was set at $1.561 million, up by about $151,000, or 9.7 percent, from the previous year. Kirby said the tentative increase is due primarily to planned expenditures for asbestos removal at the high school. Some $40,000 has been earmarked for the work. The estimate is somewhat higher than expected, he remarked, adding final costs haven't yet been determined.

New firms want business

Village backs off new waste removal plan

Increasing competition among waste haulers in the area prompted Cass City Village officials Monday to shelve a proposal to begin handling trash removal billing for local businesses.

The Village Council's Public Services Committee earlier this month recommended taking over billing from Gateway Sanitation Services Inc., Almont, for businesses in order to provide for a reduction in waste costs.

Under the proposal, businesses currently contracting with Gateway would, like village residents, receive trash disposal charges on their water bills.

However, Trustee Nat Tuttle told the council Monday that following meetings between the Public Services and Rules Committees, it was decided to drop the idea "because there is now apparently considerable competition" in the village in terms of the number of haulers offering service.

Tuttle indicated that while the earlier proposal would have netted business and industry a savings of close to $1 per yard, growing competition for local business is expected to translate into even better prices.

"We felt that we would be saddling the commercial areas" and significantly increasing the work load for the village's office staff by going ahead with the earlier proposal, he added.

Village Manager Lou S. LaPonsie said there currently are 3 companies interested in serving the area. They are Gateway, Cove Sanitation Service, Uby, and Pollard Disposal Inc., Montrose.

Pollard has its own licensed landfill, according to LaPonsie, who noted Cove's landfill, which is currently closed, is expected to be reopened by early January. Gateway has no landfill of its own, he said.

WASTE BIDS

In a related matter, the council voted in favor of accepting bids for the village's 1990 waste hauling contract, and briefly discussed recycling options currently being explored by the village.

Village President L.E. Althaver suggested that the bids be accompanied by a request of any possible recycling capability each bidding company might have.

Other related items discussed were the possibility of a village sponsored composting program, and a survey of residents regarding their willingness or lack of it to participate in recycling.

Council members, who took no action on either idea, acknowledged the cost of recycling at this time will make it difficult at best to develop a large scale program locally.

In other business during the 50-minute monthly session, Trustee Matt Prieskorn outlined plans for development of an exercise trail that will be located along the old Grand Trunk Railroad right-of-way.

GRADING

Grading of the trail and some minor brush clean-up is planned for the path, which stretches about 1 1/2 miles from the Cass River to the northwest corner of the village limits, Prieskorn explained.

He added that Tom Herron plans to construct a bridge over a creek that crosses the trail west of the Northwood subdivision.

Trustee Dorothy Stahlbaum noted that some benches and other minor improvements also will be included along the trail, which will be open to foot traffic only. The project is expected to get underway next week.

Also Monday, the council voted to change their next regular meeting date from July 31 to July 24, and approved spending $15,000 to purchase a used 1976 Detroit Edison bucket truck from Marv Winter of Cass City.

Althaver said the need for the equipment has increased over the years, while opportunities to borrow similar equipment have decreased because of the liability risk involved.

VILLAGE'S TOP TEN TAX PAYERS

Joyce A. La Roche, village treasurer, this week announced the top 10 taxpayers in the village. The top 10, with taxes to be paid, are:

Pageant for youngsters kicks off Festival

A new July 4 event, titled "Cass City's Little Miss Pageant," may be a start for all little girls who wish they could be Miss America some day.

The pageant, which has a $1 admission fee, will be Thursday (June 29) in the high school cafeteria at 7 p.m.

The contest consists of 3 divisions: Tiny Miss, Little Miss and Junior Miss. The first category is for 3 and 4-year-old girls. The next section consists of kindergartners through second graders, and the last division is for 3rd, 4th and 5th graders.

Winners of each division, first place and 2 runners-up, will receive a trophy and have the opportunity to ride in the Cass City parade July 4.

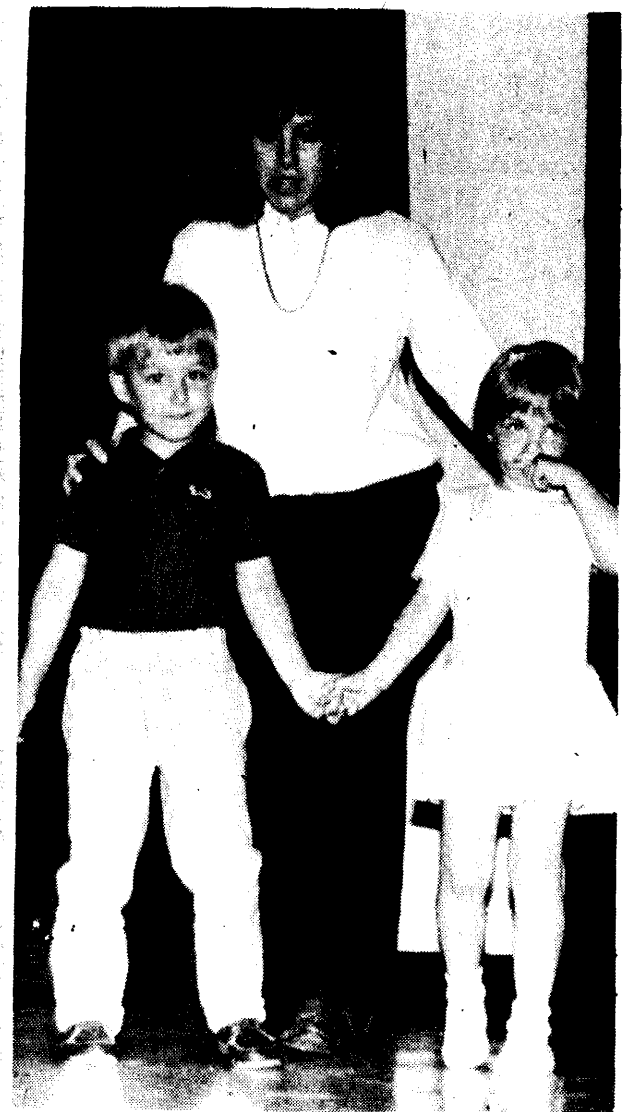

Approximately 20 girls will participate, wearing their best Sunday dresses. To enter, contestants paid a $10 registration fee. All proceeds, minus expenses, will go to the 4th of July Committee and the fireworks fund.

In addition, each girl will be ushered down the aisle by a boy in her age group. The ushers will be DJ Malone, Tyler Bader and Bryce VanVliet.

The event was inspired by Linda Herron and is coordinated by Deanna Loomis, Kim Landrih and Celeste Bader. Herron explained that the contest "would be a good way to raise money for the committee."

Herron pointed out that her

Hand-beaded lace trimmed the bodice and semi-cathedral train. Large window appliques in the train were draped with pearl ropes and topped with bows.

Her specially designed bridal picture hat was covered with white satin and matching schiffli lace. Pearls were scattered through the attached fingertip veil.

It's been a while since I shared chuckles over the typos that (hopefully) only the proofreader sees.

Anyone who has been associated with a children's Christmas program can relate to this tale, told by a friend.

At the last minute, those in charge decided that they needed a printed program. My friend hastily typed the program and passed it on to the minister, who mimeographed it with equal haste. No one proofread it.

As the audience settled into their seats that evening, a titter was heard here and there, spreading across the auditorium.

There in stark, irrevocable black and white, the program announced, "Skit by the 3rd and 4th graders, only skit was spelled with an 'h'."

A news story about an adult high school graduate quoted her thus: "The only thing I didn't like was the tarantellas in the biology room." How times have changed! We didn't have tarantellas, or even polkas, when I took biology.

In a Memorial Day account, "Each flag represented a diseased local veteran." I suppose it's okay to honor veterans who are sick, but it should have said "deceased."

From sports stories: "Dillon was a savory hitter and boosted a .463 batting average." "The team's long winless season finally came to a haunt." A winless season might return to haunt you.

From the agricultural community: "Other crops in the ground are barely, alfalfa and oats." "Ruffly 20,000 acres may be over-saturated." Can something over-saturated be ruffly?

After an election, we learned that David Kolacz and Louis Wenzlaff "were both reflected." They must be real stars.

Sometimes a sentence just has to be rewritten. Here are a few that qualify: "He received a message to get to the capital on a short wave radio." "The $1.2 million complex is planning to be built in Caro." "They are turning the certificates into an ASCS office." Would that qualify as a house of cards?

A sky diver was quoted as saying, "You don't know where you'll land, in the rice patties or the jungle." Even a thick pattie wouldn't make a very soft landing.

A report about a big mushroom came out, "This is the year for giant morals," and went on to tell of the fertile field where one local man found most of his morals.

And the more of this column, if there is one, is that it pays to keep a dictionary handy, to double check any words you aren't absolutely certain of, and to proofread everything at least once.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jarvis of Apache Junction, AZ., visited his sister, Mrs. Ann Klinkman, from Saturday until Tuesday. Other weekend guests were Ann's sister, Mrs. Beatrice Sternberg of Bad Axe, and Mrs. Viola Jarvis of Pigeon. Great Lakes plans for Bad Axe school

Great Lakes Junior College officials project the growth of the new Bad Axe campus will bear a striking resemblance to its nearest campus neighbor in Caro. The new Huron County campus, scheduled to open for fall term Sept. 18 at the Sacred Heart Parish Center, 315 Whitlam Street, is expected to draw students throughout the Huron County and surrounding areas.

"We see the potential for rapid growth as we did when we began offering courses in Caro," says Jim Lewis, vice-president of Marketing and Campus Development. "The Caro campus went from 42 students in 1985, to 361 students in a permanent campus facility in 1988," he states.

The Pilot House in Marysville overlooks the St. Clair River and is now one that is on the list when in the Port Huron area. It has a pleasant porch that allows dining in the open air, if desired.

The food is good and reasonably priced. Fish and steak are predominant items. You won't find special out-of-the-ordinary dishes, but the broiled pickerel was tasty and the chicken stir fry also very acceptable.

The 2 meals with tip were $25.00.

Blue Cross-Blue Shield is out with a form letter concerning insurance. Among the various suggestions was a report on a toll-free hot line that senior citizens can use to find out about transportation, legal services, help with home maintenance and repair, shopping assistance and other items.

No mention was made of the steadily increasing rates that Blue Cross is constantly seeking or why subscribers will be forced to pay for this service when what is really needed is insurance rates that aren't climbing through the roof.

You can compare the July 4 Festival to a hilly road. Plenty of ups and downs. There was wild enthusiasm in the first years, followed by a period when it was uncertain if the Festival was to be continued.

Now we appear to be on a more level track. We all know what to expect and how to proceed. There's still plenty of work connected with it, but the consensus seems to be that it's worth it as long as the people keep coming. They have, and in sufficient numbers to pay the expenses incurred in presenting a good show for the community and its visitors.

Lightning ignites shed fire

A utility shed east of Cass City was destroyed by fire Thursday evening after the structure was hit by lightning.

Elkland Township fire fighters responded to the call, at 4821 Robinson Rd., after a neighbor reported the blaze at about 8:50 p.m.

The shed was "a total loss", according to Chief Dick Root, who estimated the value of the structure at $800 to $1,000. Root said he's uncertain as to what may have been stored in the building, which was owned by Steve Balgogh of Flat Rock.

Also over the past week, firemen responded to a tractor fire reported at 9:07 p.m. Sunday at the Jack Gallagher residence, 5284 Koepfgen Rd.

Root said the blaze, which was all but out when fire fighters arrived, was caused by an apparent short circuit.

Jake Lounsbury is "Scout of the Year"

Cub Scout Pack #3594 celebrated another successful school year of scouting June 10, when members and their families gathered at the Cass City Lions Pavilion for a cookout and afternoon of games and awards.

Baseball, bocci ball and

"Super-Sloppy-Double-Dare" were the major recreation events.

Forty Cubs were presented with a bowling belt loop for participating in the May bowling tournament.

Tiger cubs Jalal Khoury, Aaron Wiles and BJ Salas were graduated into the pack. Members of Den #6 and Webelos Arrows were presented a prize for earning the most 100% attendance awards. Den #1 members also received a prize for earning the Honor Den flag several times.

A highlight of the afternoon was the presentation of the "Cub Scout of the Year" award. The award, established in memory of charter Gavel Club member Ivan MacRae was presented to Jake Lounsbury, son of Tom and Ginny Lounsbury, for outstanding advancement and participation in the scouting program.

Lounsbury and fellow Webelos scout Jon Fruendt were graduated into Boy Scout Troop #594. On behalf of the troop, Scoutmaster Ken Spencer welcomed the 2 newest scouts.

The Haire Net

Nothing earth shaking on the agenda this week so let's talk a little about columns, column writers and memory.

Every so often a reader will come up to me and say, my, that was a good column you wrote last week and do you think it will do any good? And, yes, Virginia, before you ask, I get plenty of the other kind, too. Those columns are easier to remember.

It's funny, but all of my columns that draw a reader's approval are ones which take a point of view he supports.

Usually my reaction to the plaudits of the reader takes one of 2 avenues, depending on how well I know the speaker. If they are strangers, I smile and say, thank you, or some other equally innocuous remark. If I told the truth, which I do to persons I know well, and ask, "What was it about?", readers might have their worst private suspicions confirmed.

When I'm told what a particular column is about I can (usually) recall the details. Otherwise it's better than an even bet I won't know what I wrote that pleased the reader.

It's not senility. Usually any column of mine is written a week or 2 before it is read. This one is being written Tuesday afternoon, June 20. Publishers of small weeklies such as the Chronicle can't devote too much time to writing a column and still do the myriad things required to get the paper out on time and still have time for the real important things, like playing golf.

As a general rule, a column requires about an hour and a half, including the time it takes to think about a subject and research the details when necessary. A column like this needs no research and takes perhaps an hour.

Writing a second column each week also adds to my memory lapses. Then, too, there is nothing deader than last week's paper, and the attention is what's coming next week, not what was written in the paper already on the street.

Columns run perhaps 500 words, a small percentage of the 2,500 or more I probably average weekly.

It doesn't bug me much that I can't recall all the details about every column or when it was written. No senility there. What does bug me is the inability to recall names. Guys and gals I should be able to call by name pass me on the street and by the time the name pops out in my mind (if it does), it's way too late to do any good.

There are some experts that say memory is merely a matter of concentration and training. But the harder I try, the worse it gets.

It's a little like writing. The best, easiest to read columns are ones that nearly write themselves. The words and sentences flow like water in a fast moving stream. Nothing to it.

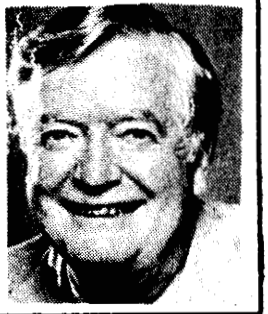

The other end of the scale are columns like this when each and every sentence comes hard and the results aren't what you would like them to be.

Columns like this are sure to be forgotten by me and, hopefully, by you.

"If It Fitz..."

I don't care

By Jim Fitzgerald

I don't care. I don't care who won the Kentucky Derby or the rest of the Triple Crown. I don't care who won the Thunder in the Sun hydroplane races. I don't care who won the Indianapolis 500. I don't care who won the Detroit Grand Prix.

Most of all, I don't care that nobody won the Hearn-Leonard fight.

A few of my friends care that I don't care. They think there must be something wrong with me. They point out that several of these widely acclaimed events are closely connected to my hometown. In fact, I can watch 2 of them simply by looking out the windows of my high-rise home, but I don't bother.

So I'm not only accused of being a sports wimp, I'm also accused of having no civic pride, of failing to appreciate what's good for my city. I'm asked to explain my lousy attitude. OK.

I've never liked horse racing because I'm not persuaded that the horses like it. Would you like some guy sitting on your back, hitting you with a whip and kicking you in the ribs?

Besides, the only thing dumber than watching horses run around in a circle is watching cars do the same thing, or boats. That stuff about the thrill of watching the thoroughbreds participate in the sport of kings is mostly baloney. The thrill comes from trying to win money instead of lose it. If people couldn't bet on the horses, racetrack crowds could gather in phone booths.

A FORMULA FOR BOREDOM

As for car and boat racing, the audience attraction is perplexing. Is it fun to watch speed? Sit on a freeway overpass. Chevrolets on I-75 go faster than the formula whatevers in the downtown Grand Prix. And most of the motorboats finish becalmed and must be towed to shore. For spectators, the only thing more exciting is a sailboat race where the winner finishes 15 hours ahead of the runner-up.

Many fans say they enjoy the noise of the racing cars and motorboats. That is the same as enjoying major surgery with no anesthetic.

It is tempting to speculate that most car and motorboat race fans show up in hopes of seeing bloody crashes, perhaps deaths. But that wouldn't be fair. Most of them don't even watch the race. They come for the fun, sun, beer and to make new friends.

I can understand the race drivers. They get a real rush from the competition and earn great satisfaction — plus much money — from winning. And, although I don't understand them, I have no quarrel with people who enjoy watching car and boat races. To each his own. I enjoy watching golf tournaments, and most people would rather watch haircuts.

As for boxing, any fool can understand why guys like Tommy Hearn and Sugar Ray Leonard do it. The millions of dollars are worth the risk of brain damage or even death. But how do you explain the spectators who furnish the dollars — the few who pay $1,000 for a ringside seat and the thousands who pay $30 to watch on television?

A PENCHANT FOR PAIN

Sure, a few high-rollers show up in Las Vegas mostly to preen. But the majority of fight fans aren't looking for sun, fun or new friends. They want to see 2 guys hurt each other.

Professional prize-fighting isn't really a sport, it's a sleazy racket based on barbarity. What else can you call a game where the sole objective is to make money by knocking your opponent unconscious while the crowd roars for gore? If that's fun, the Christians were poor sports to run from the lions.

It's a crime to raise children to believe it's marvelous — and profitable — to be able to slug a man silly, and it's cool to pay to watch the blood splatter.

So now you know why I don't care about those widely acclaimed events: Horse racing offends me, car and boat racing bore me, and professional boxing dismays me.

No one won the Hearn-Leonard fight, but we all lost. That's what I care about.

So shoot me. It'll probably draw a crowd.

Car-deer mishaps

Two minor damage car-deer accidents were reported Friday to Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies.

Ronald E. Pietrzak, Clifford, reported hitting a deer at about 5:23 a.m. while driving north on Kingston Road, north of Denhoff Road, in Koylton Township.

In nearby Kingston Township, Pamela M. Yaroch of Utica was driving south on Phillips Road south of Stevens Road at about 10:15 p.m. when a deer leaped into her path. Damage to the vehicle was moderate, reports state.

Exchange student recalls year in the Philippines

When Charlene Mellendorf was picked by the Rotary Club to go to the Philippines, she decided to be as unbiased and open-minded as she possibly could. "I tried not to have any expectations. I didn't want to have good or bad ones and then have them turn out to be wrong." Originally wanted to go to Sweden, but (the Rotary Club, Cubao's District 378) weren't sending anyone there at the time and they told me no one was going to the Philippines yet, so I said, "OK. That should be fun." This attitude kept Mellendorf wide eyed from when she left for Metro Manila June 27, 1988, until she returned June 3.

"When I left, people said I was going to be living in huts and listening to reggae music all day," she remarked, laughing. But Mellendorf quickly realized that the Philippine people were not what her friends thought. "I got to learn about and understand the people there. They listen to top 40 music and live in regular houses. I had classmates who listened to Def Leopard."

In addition, Mellendorf's open attitude didn't get her too worried about the fact that Manila is one of the 20 largest cities in the world, with a population of around 6 million people.

"I was used to the small town and I used to be scared of the big cities. There you see a lot of beggars. That part got to me at first and then you get used to it." Even though she got used to seeing the poor people, she said it is not something she would like to remember. "I'd like to forget about seeing the poverty."

FRIENDLY PEOPLE

She explained that as soon as she met some people, her feelings changed. "It caught me how the people were so very friendly. The families I stayed with all tried to make me like one of their kids, and basically that's how I was treated."

"They wanted me to gain weight and gain more weight. They didn't want everyone over here to think I wasn't being taken care of."

Throughout her stay, Mellendorf resided with 3 families who lived in different parts of the city. But when she first arrived in June school began, so she didn't have much time to spend with her host family. "On my first day of school, everyone was introducing me to everyone else."

School, which was called Roosevelt Memorial High School, had its good and bad points for Mellendorf. "Some of it was hard, like physics, and some of it wasn't. English was easy."

GRADUATION

One thing different for Mellendorf was the size of her class. "My graduating class had 444 students." But she explained that her class was divided up and the students in each division, which had 63 men and women, all stayed in one classroom. "Inside my class we got to be very close. Unlike over here, people are scared to be close or something."

Because the Philippine students start school at much younger ages than Americans, Mellendorf was the same age as the seniors. So she was allowed to graduate with them and go through the baccalaureate and commencement procedures.

Another unique experience for her was being the first exchange student, along with a girl from New York, to attend Roosevelt High. "It was fun for them and fun for us." But she pointed out that some of the students weren't so happy. A student, who later became one of her best friends, had hated the 2 girls before ever meeting them, just because they were Americans. Fortunately for Mellendorf, the student overcame his biased attitude about Americans.

One thing that made life easier for Mellendorf was the fact that the Philippine people primarily speak American, but they also speak their dialect, called Tagalog. "I got to know their language and I can now speak it fluently."

ADAPTATIONS

In addition to the language, there were several other things Mellendorf had to get used to, such as the food. "They had rice with every meal in some houses." She explained that in one day she would have a breakfast, then lunch, followed by a siesta or nap. Then they would eat a dessert dish called a Merendia, which was served before and after dinner.

Also she had to adapt to the fact that each family she stayed with had a maid. "The maid in my last family that took care of us children was younger than I was."

She pointed out that it is not unusual for families with a moderate income to have maids and cooks. "Jobs over there are hard to find. People are always on the lookout for a maid or taxi driver."

Another thing Mellendorf adjusted to was the meat markets in the city. "The markets are open. The meat isn't wrapped and you have a side of cow just sitting there. And the chickens are out, already skinned." The political instability in the Philippines was yet another difference Mellendorf saw.

"There are American bases there and a lot of the people don't like that. Also there's people who are trying to take over the government and make it communist. Then there are people who want to be a part of the United States. It seems the Philippine people are always worried about other people because they're always being ruled by some other country."

However, there was one element about the Philippines that Mellendorf had no problem getting used to — the weather. "When I first got there it rained every day for an hour or 2." But that was during the rainy season and soon after temperatures ranged between 80 and 90 degrees. "The coldest it ever got was 70 degrees in November."

Graham on honor roll

More than 600 Delta College students, including Joseph M. Graham, Cass City, were named to the honor roll for the winter semester.

To be eligible, students must maintain 12 credits and have a 3.5 or higher grade point average.

CHARLENE MELLENDORF, 17, holds a model of a Jeepney, which is one of the modes of transportation in the Philippines, where she lived as an exchange student for a year.

Park is poor site for Jordan College

Dear John,
Whether Jordan College is needed in our community is not the issue. We're concerned about the proposed building site, on Main Street just south of the post office.

We feel if the college is built in that location it will fail regardless of whether the school is successful or not.

If it succeeds and in the future expansion is needed there appears to be inadequate room for future construction and necessary parking. Contrary to that, if government funds dry up and the college fails financially the community is left with a vacant building in the middle of town. We feel the esthetic value of that area is priceless. The skating in the winter, the live Nativity at Christmas, the flags on Veterans' Day or simply the people enjoying the day sitting on a park bench is too much to give up.

The community may benefit from Jordan College, but we feel a better site could be chosen. One with room for future needs, including parking and traffic control.

To rid our community of a beautiful downtown park area that is part of Cass City's heritage, for a venture that may or may not be successful is simply not worth it.

We would like to see the leaders of the project look into selecting an alternate site.

Respectfully,
Paul & Suzanne Chappel

Army promotes Cass City man

Your neighbor says

People understand what the 4th of July means

The 4th of July is less than a week away. Some people have been preparing for Cass City's festival for several weeks now. People of all ages try to do their share, whether it be building floats or scheduling jets to fly over the parade.

During this festive time, many Cass Cityans say the townspeople join together and form special bonds. This general feeling seems to be good for the village.

In addition to being good for Cass City residents, over the years the festival has drawn in people from throughout the Thumb area and given them pleasure too. Your neighbor, computer salesman Tom Guza, said he is one of those people who have come to Cass City for the festival and had a good time.

"I have come down here for the fireworks in the past years and they were very enjoyable. Also the festival itself is very nice," remarked Guza, who is single and lives in Port Austin but works at Ray Armstead and Company in Cass City.

He added that his favorite part of the 4th of July festival is the fireworks, although there are other aspects he likes almost as much. "I prefer the fireworks. They're prettier. To me, once you've seen one parade, you've seen them all." But, basically, "I just like the activity and people as much as anything."

Many people are concerned about whether those attending the festival realize what the 4th of July is really all about. Guza explained that he has heard about these concerns, but doesn't think it's a problem. "Most of them (understand what the 4th of July) means. I think there are only a few out there just for the festive mood."

7 youths take part in basketball camp

Cass City area residents Bradley Gray, Chris Herringshaw, Jeffrey Hockey, Mark Irrer, Steven Tuckey, Stephen Wallace and Kent Winter recently attended Grand Valley State's Basketball Shooting and Offensive Skills camp.

The camp focused on shooting skills for young athletes in grades 7-12. The camp also focused on offensive skills such as dribbling, passing, cutting and screening.

The camp was held from June 18-20 and was hosted by Tom Villemure, head basketball coach, at Grand Valley State.

Songbirds

Something to sing about: Amid the bad news about declining numbers of songbirds in North America, ornithologists are finding a bright spot. According to National Wildlife magazine, more than 20 varieties of songbirds seem to be expanding their ranges in this country. Cardinals, house finches and American robins are among the birds whose home territory is growing. Researchers attribute the dramatic increase in the number of Americans who put out bird feeders during the winter months.

After Charles Lindbergh made history with the first solo flight across the Atlantic, he came home by ship.

Police using electronic tracking system to locate stolen vehicles

Blanchard recently announced initial use of an electronic tracking system allowing police to discover stolen cars before they can be stripped or sold.

The system, by the LoJack Corporation of Braintree, Mass., employs the use of in-car computers to help officers track vehicles equipped with hidden transmitters. The tracking equipment will be donated by LoJack and transmitters are sold and installed by automobile dealers.

Blanchard said the state has made dramatic advances in reducing auto theft over the past several years, citing State Police statistics indicating a 14 percent reduction since 1985 while the national average has increased by 25 percent.

For state's boaters '89 harbor guide offered

Great Lakes boaters can cruise into 2 new Michigan State Waterways Commission-sponsored facilities this season but will pay higher overnight fees at all such harbors, AAA Michigan reports.

Recreational boaters will find the additional dockage at Detroit's St. Aubin Park with 60 wells, and at Fayette, which doubled its dock length to about 300 feet.

The 24-hour rate at the sponsored marinas has been increased 31 to 66 percent depending on boat size. Fees were raised to levels more in line with private operators, according to the commission.

New fees range from a flat rate of $10.50 for craft less than 21 feet long to 90 cents per foot for vessels 60 feet and longer. Charges for holding tank pumpouts increased from $3.25 to $4.

While overnight fees at 68 harbors listed in AAA Michigan's 1989 "Michigan Harbor Guide" conform to a basic rate schedule, some changes may vary, such as for Mackinac Island.

Most of the listed harbors offer water and electric hookups, restrooms, showers and fuel to transient boaters. Restaurants and grocery stores are within a 15-minute walk of most docks while other sites offer alternatives.

For example, Harbor Beach provides a shuttle to its downtown business district while a Fayette grocer visits the docks to take and

Medicine Storage Tips

- Proper storage of prescription and nonprescription medicines helps ensure their freshness and potency when medicines are taken. Here are six tips for storing and discarding medicines:
- Do not store medicines in the bathroom. The moisture in bathrooms may speed the deterioration of many medicines.
- Clean out all medicine storage areas at least once each year. Throw away medicines that are no longer being used.
- Discard medicines that are outdated and discolored. If the medicine does not have an expiration date, throw it away after two years. Do not keep medicines that are not labeled.
- Flush discarded medicines down the toilet. Do not leave medicines in the trash or other areas that are accessible to children and pets.
- Do not purchase excessive quantities of medicine. Some medicines lose potency when stored for long periods of time.
- Do not store medicines in automobile glove compartments. High temperatures during the summer months can reduce the potency of most medicines.

Out-of-shape athletes risk injury

Many people spring into summer too vigorously, and instead of getting into shape to safely participate in their favorite summer-time sports and activities, they injure themselves, according to The National Exercise For Life Institute.

"With summer here, people are starting to jog, play tennis, swim, hike, play softball and tee off at the golf course. And, hundreds of these weekend athletes will find themselves with sore shoulders, aching backs, hurting knees, sprains and bruises," said Diane DeMarco, executive director of the Twin Cities-based institute.

"People are coming out of hibernation and are eager to be active," said orthopedic surgeon James Priest, M.D., of Orthopaedic Consultants, P.A. "This time of year we see more shoulder impingement syndrome (which is a sprain of the rotator cuff), elbow injuries and stress fractures, which cause leg pain. These types of injuries can result from softball, baseball, tennis, golf and jogging," Dr. Priest continued.

"Some people don't believe in moderation, and feel they have to do as much as possible to get the best results," said Dr. Richard Birrer, a professor specializing in exercise and activity at the State University of New York at Brooklyn.

"To avoid injury, we would advise people to start exercising during the latter part of the winter, so they're more ready to go outside and participate. Don't rush into it. Start out slowly and gradually build endurance, strength and flexibility," explained Dr. Priest.

"Take time to prepare for your favorite summer sports by strengthening the parts of your body that will be used during your particular activity," said DeMarco.

SOME GOOD CHOICES

Experts agree that the best all-around aerobic exercise is cross-country skiing, which uses all of the major muscle groups, including those in the legs, arms, back, shoulders and abdomen. It also gives a thorough cardiovascular workout and is an effective way to lose and control weight.

Many people are getting the benefits of cross-country skiing year-round with a cross-country ski exercise machine. Because it's a total body exerciser, it's an excellent way to get in shape for those summer sports. Swimming is also good for the muscles and skeletal structure, because the buoyancy of the water helps reduce excessive pressure on the joints and bones.

Walking is also highly recommended by experts as a means of getting in shape for outdoor activities. However, plan to spend some extra time if you want to reap the same benefits as the exercises mentioned above. You should aim for walking 3 miles in 45 minutes, 4 to 5 times per week.

The best guide for avoiding exercise injuries is still basic common sense. "Before jumping into an exercise program, check with a physical therapist to be sure you're in good enough condition for the sport or activity you've planned," Dr. Priest advised.

The purpose of The National Exercise For Life Institute is to collect and disseminate information about the many benefits of regular aerobic exercise, in order to convince more Americans to start and maintain a program of regular aerobic exercise.

For more information on the benefits of regular aerobic exercise, call The National Exercise For Life Institute, 612/448-3094 or write Box 1, Chaska, MN 55318.

Safe shipping of risky material focus of 6 bills

A 6-bill package dealing with shipping safety of petroleum and hazardous materials on the Great Lakes — with a strong emphasis on measures to prevent accidents — has been introduced in the House of Representatives.

The legislation addresses many of the concerns expressed in a report to Governor James J. Blanchard by the Department of Natural Resources which outlined a 28-point program to make the state better prepared for spills.

Blanchard appointed Arlyn Brower, commander of the State Police Emergency Management Division, to head a task force to coordinate spill prevention and develop cleanup plans.

The next step in implementing the report is to appoint the task force to implement the recommendations, the "vast majority" of which can be done without legislation, aides said.

The report recommended:

- fees (the amount not yet set) on facilities using hazardous materials to pay for adequate response activities;
- permanent revolving fund to clean up spills and pay for cleanup equipment;
- an environmental response team to handle Great Lakes spills;
- a command post with a toll-free phone number to coordinate cleanups;
- inspection of ships, barges and storage tanks and warning devices on vessels and refineries to detect leaks;
- stockpiling equipment to contain spills and clean them up;
- tracking of hazardous material shipped on or around the lakes;
- coordination of state efforts with Canada, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and U.S. Coast Guard.

The report had suggested Michigan and other lakes states should coordinate cleanup plans, rather than the U.S. Coast Guard, which had responsibility in the Exxon spill in Prince William Sound in Alaska.

Rep. Tom Alley (D-West Branch), whose House Conservation Committee held a hearing on protection from spills after the Alaska incident, said he was disappointed the DNR "did not have the courtesy" to advise him the report was coming. Alley said much of the report "is no news to us."

"We are pleased the governor is willing to support the type of language we will do," Alley said. He said the DNR report may be more comprehensive than the legislative package, which he said may be expanded to include items the report addresses. "The whole idea is prevention (and) emergency preparedness," Alley said.

The legislative package will deal with things such as "safe zones" where shipping of such materials would be prohibited without special clearance, standards for loading and unloading, enhanced training of haulers, and increased monitoring of shipments.

Of the DNR report, J.D. Snyder, the governor's environmental health advisor, said, "What we looked at is the need to assure that local units are moving forward to meet emergency planning responsibilities."

While the DNR did not address the question of banning transport of the hazardous materials on the lakes, in part because of limitations related to international law, it did call for a hazardous assessment on what is transported on the lakes, what is manufactured, what is stored and what the cleanup procedures are, especially regarding training to deal with problems critical in the lakes, such as fast moving currents which could quickly distribute a spill and ice complications should a winter accident occur with a harbor facility. And, Snyder said, it underscores the need to continue to ban winter shipping entirely.

Snyder said a critical recommendation is to urge federal and provincial Canadian governments to require ships to be piloted by Great Lakes pilots.

"Carrying forward with the recommendations will accomplish very significant progress in insuring a more adequate emergency response system to any oil or hazardous spill in Great Lakes waters," Snyder said.

Robert Waldron of Associated Petroleum Industries, welcomed the thrust of the report, saying, "We want to make sure we're prepared. We have no quarrel with this at all."

Robert Newberry, executive director of the West Michigan Environmental Action Council, said his group will be eager to review the report's detail on how soundly it would protect the Lakes ecosystem. "Then we'll have a clear idea where the loopholes are and if there are holes in the safety net," he said.

three-fourths (73 percent) of the school millage issues on the ballot were approved. Some 310 of a total of 423 millage issues were approved by voters.

Some 95 percent, or 186 of 196 renewal questions were approved. Additional millage requests did not fare so well with 95 (or 53 percent) of the 179 issues passing. Of the 48 combined millage issues, 29 (or 60 percent) passed.

Ninety-nine school districts included a Headlee override issue on the ballot, with 46 districts passing the measure that allows a district to levy the full voter authorized millage even through property assessments have risen. There were also 26 bond issues on the ballot, with 14 (or 54 percent) passing.

Three intermediate school districts — Alpena-Montmorency-Alcona, Copper County and Jackson — had special education millage increases on the ballot, with all 3 being approved.

The millage elections left 17 school districts on the financially critical list — defined as a district that does not have sufficient funds to provide a full year of school. Critical districts include Big Bay de Noc, Mackinac Island, Posten, Glen Lake, Kaleva-Norman-Dickson, North Huron, Chippewa Hills, Reese, Mayville, Montabella, Carson City Crystal, Almont, Byron, Pinckney, Gobles, Quincy and Coldwater.

The election parallels the June, 1988, election, when Michigan voters also approved 73 percent of the total number of millage issues on the ballot.

It will be posted in all 84 freeway rest areas in Michigan. About 7,500 work zone accidents occurred across the state last year, resulting in more than 2,500 injuries and a number of deaths.

Caro motorist hits tree Friday morning

A 17-year-old Caro motorist sought his own treatment for minor injuries early Friday morning after the vehicle he was driving left Dodge Road, north of Severance Road, and struck a tree.

Troopers from the state police post in Caro reported

David D. Taylor, 1491 Gun Club Rd., was northbound at about 2 a.m. when the crash occurred.

Damage to the vehicle was minor, according to reports, which state troopers cited Taylor for driving too fast.

Officially welcomed Sunday

Methodist Church now under Daws' direction

The congregation at Salem United Methodist Church in Cass City officially welcomed their new pastor and his wife, the Rev. Donald and ZoeAnn Daws, Sunday.

The new pastor and his wife have only been in the area since moving June 14 from Imlay City, where Daws has served as pastor for the past 9 years.

The couple are still in the process of getting settled, Daws remarked, adding their first order of business is getting to know their new church family and community.

"It's always difficult to move. It can be like starting all over again," the pastor commented. "Probably the hardest thing is remembering names."

Daws, who said he hopes to be effective in the area, has been a pastor for 24 years. He entered the ministry in 1965, when he completed his "license to preach studies" and was appointed to serve churches in Glennie and Curran, located north of Hale.

Before that, the 1953 West Branch High School graduate and U.S. Army veteran (he served 19 months in Korea) was employed at an auto body repair shop and at an aluminum storm door factory.

While serving the Glennie-

Curran churches, Daws was also appointed to the Oscoda Indian Mission from 1966 to 1968. He earned a bachelor's degree in liberal arts through Central Michigan University, graduating in 1971.

He left the Glennie-Curran area the same year to enroll at The Methodist Theological School in Ohio, where he earned a master of divinity degree in 1975. He and his wife then returned to Michigan to serve as pastor of the LaSalle United Methodist Church until 1980.

Aside from his role as pastor, Daws in recent years has participated in brief mission construction projects in Oklahoma, Alaska and Haiti.

He and ZoeAnn also enjoy a number of other interests in their spare time.

Antiques, particularly repairing and restoring old clocks and cars, are one favorite for Daws. Among his favorite projects has been a 1929 Fargo he rebuilt over a 2 1/2-year period.

Having earned his private pilots license 2 1/2 years ago, he also enjoys renting a plane and flying when he has the opportunity.

ZoeAnn, who noted she isn't flying with her husband yet, said she enjoys creative writing, knitting, crocheting and gardening.

The couple have 2 daughters, Lynn, who trains horses and teaches riding in Fredericktown, Ohio, where she resides with her husband and 3 children, and Suzanne, a medical doctor intern at Detroit Receiving Hospital, who resides in Dearborn with her husband, also an intern.

Food distribution set for July 27

The Human Development Commission will be having a surplus commodity distribution at the following sites July 27 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. or until the supply is exhausted:

Cass City Village Park, Cass City; Caro High School parking lot, Caro; Sebewaing Village Park, Sebewaing (9 a.m. to 11 a.m.), and the Ivan Middleton Hall, fairgrounds, Vassar.

Registration for commodity cards for the distribution cannot be made after June 28. Also, participants are asked to note the different distribution time in Sebewaing and the change in the Caro site.

Due to the volume of commodities, persons are asked to take cardboard boxes to the distribution sites.

Individuals must report to their distribution site, in person, and present their Surplus Commodity Registration cards. Those unable physically to go to their site may have someone pick up their commodities, provided the card is presented.

The commodity cards are available via appointment at the county HDC offices.

The commodities have been made available to the HDC, the local community action agency serving Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac and Lapeer counties, by the federal government and are intended for personal consumption by eligible low income families.

THE REV. DONALD and ZoeAnn Daws were officially welcomed Sunday at Salem United Methodist Church, where Daws was recently appointed the new pastor.

Godinez is Ferris State graduate

Roger Godinez, a 1986 graduate of Owen Gage High School, recently obtained an Associate of Arts degree from Ferris State University.

Godinez, 20, took courses in pre-teaching at Ferris and now hopes to attend Central Michigan University so he can finish his teaching degree in elementary education.

Currently, Godinez has a summer job and is living with his mother, Evelyn, who is employed at General Cable, in Owendale.

Stine accepts new challenge at WHNN

96FM WHNN Radio in Saginaw announces the appointment of Scott Stine, son of Elizabeth Stine, Cass City, to the position of program director.

Stine, a native of Cass City, has been employed by WHNN since 1985 and had previously worked at WION Radio in Ionia, Mich., and WAXC in St. Marys, Ohio.

"I grew up listening to WHNN and now to have the chance to program the station is truly exciting for me and a great challenge," Stine was quoted as saying.

He's a 1981 graduate of Cass City High School.

"The Tuscola County Bean Queen Committee is seeking candidates and would like to expand the number of participants from the last few years," Bortel continued. A SPECIAL COMPUTER screen installed in Spartan Food Co. trucks gets a close look by state police Trooper Ron Schneider of the Caro post, one of 19 Thumb police officers who met Friday for workshops on how the computers can provide detailed information on Spartan trucks involved in accidents.

Computer workshop

Thumb police introduced to truck computers that offer crash data

A recent fatal traffic accident in Tuscola County involving a Spartan Foods Co. semitractor prompted company officials to meet last week with Thumb law enforcement officers.

Two representatives of the Grand Rapids-based company met with 19 police officers Friday to explain how computers installed in 100 Spartan trucks can provide important information in the event of a crash.

The workshops, the first of their kind in the Thumb, were conducted at the County Road Commission office in Caro and sponsored by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

Brian Hoom, dispatch supervisor for Spartan Foods, said the Cadec computers record engine performance, stops, deliveries, delays, cargo weight and a host of other information, which both eliminates drivers' paper logs and allows company officials to evaluate and improve operation efficiency.

That same information also can be valuable to police, he pointed out, adding that in the event of a crash, the computer will record truck operations, second by second, in the final minute before impact.

The accident mode is activated in 2 ways. Hoom said the computer will automatically record a crash if the vehicle decelerates by at least 6 miles per hour per second. Also, a crash will be recalled if a police officer on the scene pushes the "accident" button on the computer screen.

Aside from speed, Hoom continued, police will be able to determine how quickly the truck involved came to a stop, how long the driver had been on duty, where his previous stops were made and other related information.

Frank Leach, corporate safety officer for Spartan Foods, said company officials instructed local police to push that button after the recent fatal accident, which claimed the life of a young Cass City man.

Tuscola Sheriff's Deputy Jim Jashinske, one of the officers on the scene of the crash, indicated the computer information was helpful in determining what happened just prior to and at impact.

New books at the library

MAZE by Larry Collins (fiction). The story begins with the KGB's murder of a New York psychic with a flair for locating the coordinates of Soviet submarines. She had been helpful in CIA mind experiments, but the Russians are onto something even better, a device that uses electromagnetic waves to trigger responses in the brains of unsuspecting people at a distance. The KGB intends to use this magneto-encephalogram to zap the U.S. president during a crisis. First, Arab terrorists controlled by Moscow blow up a U.S. Army-run high school in Germany, killing many teenagers. Then the zapping of the president begins, and our enraged, mentally uninged Chief Executive gives the order to nuke Iran in retaliation. A subplot involving rebellious Moslem nationalists within the USSR provides an unusual perspective on internal pressures facing Kremlin and KGB bureaucrats.

CREATURE by John Saul (fiction). Silverdale, Colo., a company-town variation on Spielberg suburbia. There, conglomerate TarrenTech provides the high school teams with every advantage, including a high-tech sports clinic. Dr. Martin Ames beefs up the brawny, aggressive teenagers, and it's to him that newcomer Sharon Tanner goes for answers when her gentle son Mark turns into a belligerent jock overnight.

RED PHOENIX by Larry Bond (fiction). Red Phoenix begins in Korea, where a second Korean War is brewing. Leftist North Koreans led by the young and ruthless Kim Jong-II and armed with a wealth of state-of-the-art Soviet military goodies, first incite riots and then instigate civil war with the democratic South. Politicians in Washington see the breakdown in Korea as an opportunity for economic exploitation, while their counterparts in Moscow view the strength of the North Koreans with a combination of pride and alarm.

Democrats to honor Sen. Levin

U.S. Senator Carl Levin wants a chance to talk to Tuscola County people on a one-to-one basis, according to Margie Bell, Tuscola County Democratic Committee chairperson.

Levin, who was first elected to the Senate in 1978, will attend a lunch in his honor July 7 at the Brentwood Lounge, 178 Park Drive, Caro.

Sponsored by the Tuscola County Democratic Committee, Bell said the informal setting will give Levin a chance to talk to Tuscola County residents.

"It's not going to be a lot of speeches," Bell said. "The Senator wants to hear from the people."

In order to keep the setting totally informal, lunch will be served buffet style and will be available from noon until 2 p.m. This will allow people to come and go as their schedules demand.

Bell said Levin has a strong record as a fighter for Michigan and a spotless reputation for personal integrity. "Senator Levin has shown a strong continuing interest in our county," Bell said. "He came to Cass City last year, and we're glad to welcome him back."

Tickets will be available at the door or in advance from members of the Tuscola County Democratic Committee. Additional information is available by calling Bell at 673-3578.

Biting irony

The crocodile is one of nature's high powered predators. The reptile's cavernous mouth and powerful jaws leave little to chance. But despite being well endowed with teeth, crocodiles can't chew. International Wildlife magazine reports their long, sharp teeth serve mainly as survival weapons and clamps. A crocodile can eat only what it can swallow whole.

mined.

Also built into the new budget, as well as the 1988-89 spending plan, is an estimated $8,000 to $10,000 related to salary increases included in a recently ratified teachers' contract, Kirby said.

In addition, he pointed out, previous budget cuts affecting teacher and instructional materials, as well as field trips, have been reinstated.

Turning to the superintendent's contract, the board approved increases of 1.65 percent in each of the 1988-89 and 1989-90 school years following a freeze in 1987-88.

The action brings Kirby's base salary to $45,650 this year, and will increase his pay to $46,403 in 1989-90.

Also during the special session, the board announced a tentative school calendar for the 1989-90 school year.

The new year will start Aug. 28 for teachers and Aug. 29 for students, according to Kirby, who said there will be no school Sept. 1 and Sept. 4.

suspicion of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

Reports state Arthur J. Bulla, 2090 Riley Rd., was observed turning south from Main Street onto Seeger Street at about 11:55 p.m. June 19 when he failed to signal, squealed his tires and then accelerated rapidly. Police clocked the vehicle at 55 miles per hour in a 35 m.p.h. zone.

Also reported was a minor 2-vehicle mishap June 20 near the intersection of Main and Oak streets.

According to reports, an eastbound vehicle driven by Steven H. DeLong, 3183 N. Englehart Rd., Cass City, backed into another eastbound vehicle, driven by Richard L. Cross Jr., 5678 Robinson Rd., Cass City.

Cross' vehicle sustained minor damage in the 1 p.m. accident.

Pageant new Festival event granddaughter participated in a contest of this sort in Atlanta a few months ago. After viewing a videotape of her granddaughter's show, Herron thought it would be neat to have a similar contest in Cass City.

Although this is the first year of the "Little Miss Pageant," Herron said it is not the first time Cass City has had a beauty pageant. "There was a pageant held for older girls. But they were bashful about coming forward and they dropped it. We hope people won't be bashful for this one."

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

If up until now on this nice summer's day you have felt at peace with the world, and with Great White Father in Washington, then turn the page or go watch the telly. These examples of income tax rules could ruin your disposition.

For instance, business gifts. Current rules are that you must not give a customer or business friend anything worth over $25, in one year.

Now $25 is pretty modest in 1989 dollars. Go back to the 40's and it's the same as $5 was then. Then, or now, it's hardly enough to concern the bureaucrats. As a taxpayer, it may be worthwhile deducting, even though the net benefit to you is saving 28% tax on $25 is only $7. Or at least I thought it worthwhile, until I read what the record-keeping involves.

This is from the American Research Institute. In its publication, "Travel and Entertainment Expense," it says:

1. Taxpayer's cost.
2. When the gift was made.
3. The reason for making the gift or the nature of the business benefit derived (or expected) as a result of making the gift.
4. Data on person getting the gift - name, title or information to establish his business relationship to you as the donor.
5. Description of the gift.

Maybe all these records you can maintain to save yourself $7. Or maybe you'll just say, "The devil with it," and run through an undocumented deduction and hope it sticks. Or maybe it would be simpler to just not send fruit cakes to your customers. How, under Rule No. 5, do you describe a fruit cake, anyhow? Do you need the recipe?

In the same publication it came up with a blood-boiling rule on certain deductions for a car you own used in business. Assume this car is used 100% for business. Of course, items like repairs and fuel and storage and depreciation are allowable. Then the IRS throws a curve ball at you on insurance.

According to Research Institute, insurance is only partly deductible. Why in the name of heaven this is so, I cannot say. But here's the formula:

You use the car 40 hours a week in your business. That is about 24% of the 168 hours in the week. The IRS reasons that they're not going to allow an expense the hours the car is insured that it isn't operating. IRS says you'd have to insure it anyhow.

So the insurance is $1,000 a year, out of your pocket. You are allowed to deduct only 40/168ths of that, or $238.10.

A silly ruling like that invites the taxpayer to get even with the government some other way. He'll bury that full insurance cost somehow.

Another cute little rule comes up on "Trips outside the U.S. solely for business."

You can go to conventions if they're in the "North American area," a term that contradicts geography when it allows possible deductions if you go to Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Pacific Trust territories (Samoa, for example), Canada and Bermuda and Mexico and a few other exceptions.

Then you have to prove the meeting or convention has a reasonable purpose, and the residences of the sponsors have some connection with the locale. A cruise ship convention is not kosher UNLESS it's on a ship with U.S. registry, and stops only at ports in the US or its possessions.

A fellow might suspect the U.S. maritime unions wrote that one.

Bill Myers is a retired editor and investment counselor.

Michigan reduces road deaths as summer holiday travel gains

A quarter-century of "Bring 'Em Back Alive!" safety advice from AAA Michigan's Holiday News Service has helped the state reduce traffic deaths 43 percent over the Memorial, Independence and Labor Day holidays. At the same time, motor vehicle miles driven during those holiday periods mounted more than 70 percent.

Smashed window reported

A door glass window was found smashed over the weekend at the Shetler Plumbing and Heating building, 6528 Main St., Cass City.

Police reports state Roger Hurlley, 6430 Main St., reported the incident occurred sometime between midnight and 12:30 a.m. Sunday. Damage is estimated at $200.

Food, food and more food. That is what the concession stands will be offering on Tuesday. There will be something to treat everybody's taste buds so hopefully no one will go home hungry.

At least that is the wish of several area clubs, including the Gavel Club, Rotary Club, Lions and Lioness Clubs, which contribute to the festival by having concession stands set up in the park, commented event coordinator Lora Kartel.

All the profits raised by the clubs, except for 25% which goes to the committee, will go towards the track reconstruction.

The first meal will be the pork roast, which begins Sunday at noon and lasts until 3 p.m. in the Lions Club Pavilion near the municipal park. The event, which is hosted by the 4th of July Committee, will cost $5.50 for adults and $3.00 for children under 10. Children under 4 are free.

Event coordinator Craig Guernsey said the pork is provided by Red Osenloft of Cass City. In addition to the pork, coleslaw, baked beans and rolls will be served.

The next meal will begin bright and early Tuesday at 6 a.m., when the Rotary Club will serve its annual pancake breakfast. Event co-coordinators Lora Kart and J.R. Boldizar explained that the event will be similar to last year's, which was a big success.

"Last year we ran out of mostly everything," commented Kart, adding the breakfast will stop at 10 a.m. After the pancakes, Rotarians will sell hot dogs, Kiel-basa, sloppy joes, nachos, popcorn, cotton candy, snow cones and assorted kinds of pies throughout the day or until supplies run out.

If that isn't enough food, the Gavel Club will be turning a breakfast stand next to the tennis courts. Event coordinator Fred Leeson explained that "we will start right after the parade and we're usually sold out by 4 or 5 o'clock."

Also the Lions and Lioness Clubs will sell barbecued chicken in their pavilion from noon until 3 p.m., according to event coordinator

Ralph Retherford. But the food won't stop there. After the chicken, the 2 clubs will switch the menu and begin selling braiswurst until the fireworks start at dusk.

Sky diving Burk to land Tuesday

Former Cass Cityan

This year's July 4th festival will have a unique event that is bound to excite practically everyone present—a parachute jump.

The stunt will be attempted by Cass City High School graduate Alvin Burk. The event is scheduled to occur Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. before the parade on Main Street. Then at 3 p.m. Burk, 41, will jump again onto the football field.

To some people sky diving may seem crazy or stupid but to Burk it's a way to feel free and have a good time. "It's fun. It's the age old dream of a man wanting to fly and this is about as close as you can get to flying. There's no machine around you and you're as close to being like a bird as possible."

Burk explained that he has wanted to jump from airplanes for as long as he can remember. But he didn't know how to fulfill his dream. Then in 1965 he read a book about Green Berets by Robert Moore and it gave him the idea to join the armed services.

After high school graduation in 1966, he enlisted in the army and then went to jump school in 1967. "I was impressed by the amount of training you received and I look as much of it as I could."

He then served in Vietnam for 3 years as a paratrooper. While in the military he received a combat infantry badge, Vietnam parachute wings, 2 Vietnamese gallantry crosses and 2 air medals for flying in battles. Altogether Burk said he made 30 jumps during his tour.

Since then, Burk pointed out, he has taken 120 additional jumps as a civilian. However, the military jumps are the ones he remembers the most.

"In the service there was always the possibility of being shot on the way down. Jumping over in Vietnam are the most memorable jumps. Especially the night jumps when you don't know where you'll land, whether it'll be in the rice paddies or in the jungle."

In addition, he would like to jump during the festival in upcoming years. "I'll do it were static jumps, which is what the parachute automatically opens when the paratrooper leaves the plane. "It was like a job in the army," Burk added the added that the 4th of July static jumps aren't nearly as much fun as sky diving, which involves some time between when the jumper leaves the plane and when he or she opens the parachute.

After his tour of duty was over in November 1969, Burk went to California, look some classes and became an airplane mechanic. Since that time he has worked as a mechanic in California, Florida and Minnesota for Northwest and Eastern Airlines.

Currently, he is working for Northwest and has been transferred, upon his request, from California to Detroit. "I got tired of the expense and all the people in California," he remarked, adding now he'll be closer to his parents, Fin and Juanita Burk, who reside near Cass City.

Last year's tot-run had close to 80 participants, which nearly tripled the number of children the previous year.

This year, event co-coordinators Barbara Karr and Kathy Kroyewicki anticipate a similar turnout from winners in other activities, such as a bubble gum blowing contest, bean bag race and a potato sack race will receive ribbons and candy.

One difference in the event this year deals with the difficulty level of the games. "We're going to try to make the games a little easier this year. Last year they were too hard for the 3 and 4-year-olds," remarked Karr.

Tot run set for 3 age groups

Burk commented that he wanted to jump during the festival so he could contribute to the activities. He said that the 4th of July static jumps aren't nearly as much fun as sky diving, which involves some time between when the jumper leaves the plane and when he or she opens the parachute.

Doerr dancers to perform 2 shows

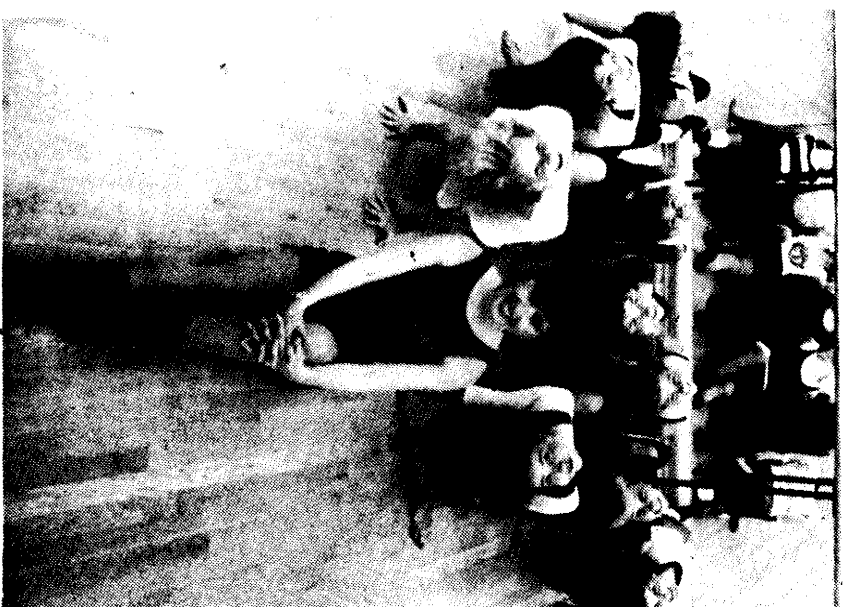

Some of the entertainment on Tuesday will come from the Sally Doerr Dancers.

The troupe will have 2 shows. The first show will be in the morning on Main Street, where 12 men and women from the studio will dance on a flaked during the parade.

Later Tuesday evening the group will perform at 7 p.m. on the basketball court. At this show approximately 30 dancers ranging in age from 4 to 50, representing Doerr's studio classes, will dance.

The group also danced in the Bavarian Festival parade in Frankenmuth June 10.

"We're going to perform 2 songs," remarked Sally Doerr, adding they will dance with a chorus line/Rockettes style to Michael Jackson's hit, "Shake Your Body to the Ground" and Barry Manilow's tune, "Jump, Shout, Boogie."

Paint-in is a chance for kids to create

The children's paint-in will be back as a festivity event for the 11th year in a row. Although the number of participants has stayed fairly consistent through the years, event coordinator Ginny Lounsbury said the children really like this event.

"They get to create something they can take home," Lounsbury commented, adding that, "seeing the children smile about what they've done," makes her happy.

Approximately 5 easels each having 2 painting canvases will be set up for children under 12 near the swimming pool from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

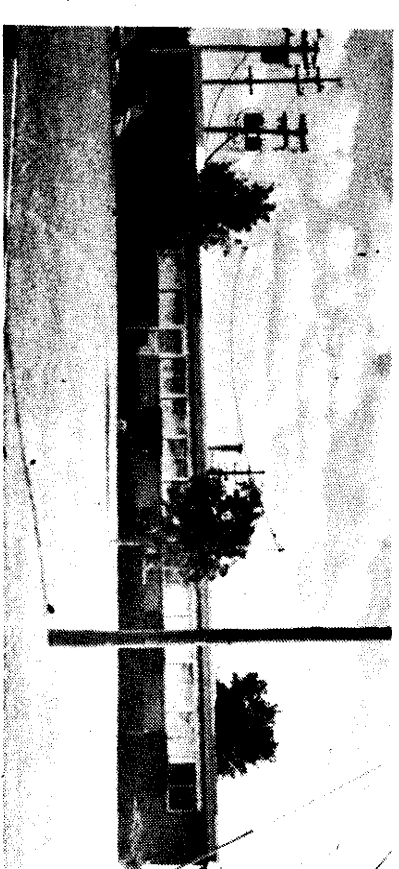

"We usually let anybody that comes paint," remarked Lounsbury, adding the event is sponsored by the American Association of University Women.

According to Lounsbury, this is her 3rd year to be involved with the event. Over the years she has no-

Festival events to include antique cars

For those people who enjoy seeing old-fashioned automobiles, the Cass City 4th of July Festival is probably the place to be.

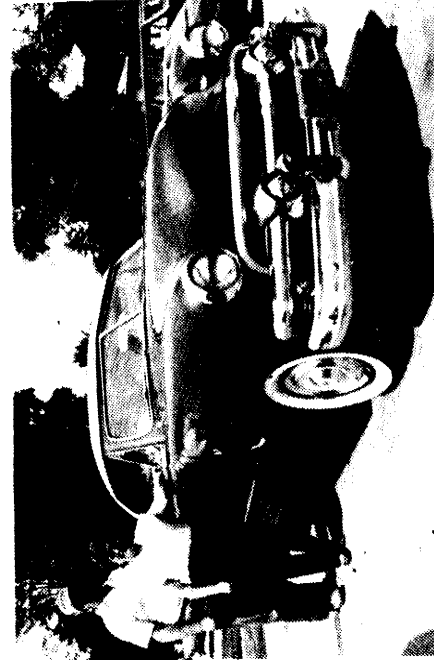

This year 2 events will give people the opportunity to see approximately 60 to 75 antique cars. "There will be everything from a Model A to late model Corvettes," according to Jim Perry, member of the Thumb Area Antique Auto Club, which is hosting the event.

The first event is the 2nd annual "Cruise Night." It will take place Saturday from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. next to the Church of Christ on East Main Street.

This activity offers something for the whole family. The theme of the event is the 1950s, although there will be cars there from before the '50s. "We usually have a hula-hoop contest for the kids and other games. There will be the collection of cars for people to look at," Perry said.

He added popcorn made from Clayton Turner's antique steam driven popcorn machine will be available. There will also be prizes donated from local auto related merchants. "We will have some drawings," Perry commented, adding, "last year some of the prizes were car polish, oil and other related items."

When the games end at 9 p.m., the antique cars will cruise around town for everyone to see. "All of them

Fun and games set at pool throughout day

Try to think back and remember the 4th of July Festival last year. If someone can do this, one word may come to mind — hot!

Because of the extreme heat, many people sought relief during activities and the open swim at the Helen Stevens Memorial Pool. If the heat will come to plague the day this year, the community pool will be there once again to save the day.

"We've had a pretty successful turnout in the past years," remarked pool director Alicia Bliss. Pool activities, which are all free of admission, will begin at 12:30 p.m. and should end at 2:45 p.m. There will be 4 age divisions, 6-9, 10-12, 13-15 and 16 and above, in each event.

Some of the competitions include free style swim race; kick board race; under water race; 2 person relay race, using T-shirts; balloon race, in which contestants need to swim keeping a balloon in their teeth, and a pincapple (or cannonball) contest. Winners in each of these events will receive certificates for their accomplishments.

Dancing for all Tuesday in park

A festival just wouldn't seem right without dancing. Since the beginning of time, people of all ages have danced in some form or another. With this in mind, the 4th of July Committee is keeping up with history and has arranged for 2 dances to occur Tuesday.

The first event is a square dance from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Tuesday in the park. There is a $4 admission fee for those who dance, but spectators can watch for no charge, according to event coordinator Fin Burk, Cass City resident.

"We usually have about 20 to 25 couples who dance,"

In addition, there will be a special golf ball contest in which people dive for colored golf balls, each worth varied sums of money.

Lifeguards will be on duty all afternoon to ensure the safety of everyone at the pool.

After the games are over and the awards are given to the winners, the pool will be open for a free swim until 5 p.m., which is when the pool will close for the evening.

Behind the scenes

Village workers ready for festival

Cass City Village Police and village maintenance people are prepared to do all the behind the scenes work that needs to be done for the annual festival.

Police Chief Gene Wilson and village manager Lou S. LaPonsie said over the years the town has developed a system in which they have been able to minimize problems and do all the little things that need to be done during the independence celebration.

Traffic was one problem which caused considerable distress during the first 2 years of the festival and even though it has now been reduced considerably it still is something the police have to deal with.

"Traffic is always a problem it just takes so long to move so many people," commented Wilson, adding they now have the control of the parade blockades down to a science.

"For the parade we have barricades in the downtown area (which were) made up a few years ago with signs showing people how to go around town if they want to."

He added traffic is the worst after the parade when people are going to the park and then later in the evening patrolling becomes a little more difficult during the fireworks.

"There's a big rush right after the parade and we have to watch crowd control for the fireworks. We just want to make sure no one gets too close and gets hurt."

Also Wilson pointed out, "The city has an ordinance which states no alcohol is allowed in the park no matter what your age is and that's strictly enforced."

To patrol the village Wilson said he usually gets some outside help. "The Sheriff's Posse covers the teen dance and fireworks in the park and other officers work in the street."

In addition Wilson explained that he will put extra officers of his own on duty. "Most of the weekend we will have 2 officers on nights and 2 officers on days."

LaPonsie commented that he too gets extra help for the festivity. "We put on extra help along with the police department. On any one shift there will be approximately 4 police officers and about 5 to 6 public works people out there."

Village workers, "do any of the odd jobs prior to and during the festival." One "odd job" that needed to be done last year was insect control.

However, this year LaPonsie explained that the insects don't seem to be too bad. But he added the village will spray if it's necessary. "It depends if it needs it or not. We have enough people working out there to tell about that."

Some other things the village workers do include sweeping the street, something which is done throughout the year, helping set up the concession booths and roping off areas for the different events.

"We work with the organizations in setting up everything, like helping them with power and setting up the arts and crafts people in the maintenance barn. We also maintain the baseball diamonds and get the volleyball (courts) ready. A lot of that is just routine and I don't even think about it any more."

But LaPonsie added the people of Cass City make it easy for the village. "Throughout the community people have a real pride."

Parade to delight everyone

A parade can give someone a sense of honor as they watch the Veterans of Foreign Wars carry the United States Flag, or it can make people laugh as they see a bunch of silly clowns give candy to children.

For the past 11 years, the 4th of July Festival parade has been entertaining people in manners such as these as the largest parade Cass City has ever seen.

With highlights such as the 1st Marine Band and, more recently, the Michigan National Guard jets, the parade has brought in crowds totalling some 15,000 people. This year, under the direction of Gary Jones, the parade is expected to be equally successful.

Anywhere from 60 to 90 units will stroll down Main Street in various forms. Although there will not be a bed race competition before the parade, other attractions just as exciting, if not more so, are scheduled to occur.

One of the first events scheduled to transpire before the parade will be when Alvin Burk, Cass City native, parachutes onto the intersection of Main Street and Oak Street Tuesday at 10:30. In addition Jones has scheduled 2 professional motorcyclists, from the Michigan Ontario Trial Riders Association, to amaze and thrill the audience before the parade.

Gary Jones Parade Coordinator

"They are style riders and they do stunts on motorcycles," Jones remarked, adding the 2 riders are the number one and 2 stunt cyclists in Michigan. Some people may remember trial riders who did their stuff in the 1983, 1984 and 1987 parades.

Then after the 2 pre-parade events, the National Guard will roar over the village at 11 a.m. to start the parade for the 4th consecutive year. Jones explained that he was touched when the jets went over Cass City for the first time. "I guess the most memorable time during the festival was the first time we had the National Guard fly over. No one could think that I could get them."

The Cass City's VFW post 3644 will carry the U.S. and Michigan flags leading the 90-minute procession, which will begin at Brooker Street, down Main Street. Following behind the VFW will be several floats being sponsored by Provincial House, which has won awards for its float almost every year for the past 11 years. First Baptist Church of Cass City, the Rotary Club and the Lions Club.

Also there will be 2 organizations which will have antique automobiles rolling through Cass City. One group, the Detroit Corvair Club, will have approximately 20 cars entered and the other organization will be the Thumb Area Antique Auto Club.

The latter group has had cars ranging in style from a Model T to early Corvettes in the parade for the last several years.

In addition, other organizations such as Big Brothers and Sisters, the various Scout troops and the Tuscola County Sheriff's Posse will march in the parade. Jones has asked that any small children who participate in the parade should be picked up at the basketball court (old pool building) by their parents after the parade.

New entries to the parade will be the winners of Cass City's Little Miss Pageant and the Tuscola County king and queen.

One element which has been lacking in the parade in the past is attempting to make a comeback. It's the Cass City marching band. Currently the band, directed by George Bushong, has only 10 members. But those people who are interested in marching but have not yet notified Bushong can still do so. There will be a marching band registration and rehearsal Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the high school band room. Anyone who has marched in a band before can be in the band. (See story for more details)

HUMOR IS just one element in a parade that makes it fun.

Volunteers needed for band

Bushong trying to form band for parade

A parade just doesn't seem complete without having a marching band. But for the last few years, Cass City School band director George Bushong is attempting to form the Cass City Marching Band. "At the moment I have 10 responses. I'm sending letters to high school students to see if they would like to march." Bushong remarked last week. He added the band is strictly on a volunteer basis and is open to anybody who has marched in a band before.

Bushong said the number of volunteers he has now is not nearly enough people for a marching band. "I really won't know if there will be a band until our 1st organizational meeting," he commented, adding the meeting will be Thursday (June 29) at 7:30 p.m. in the high school band room. Then there will be another rehearsal at the same time and place on Monday. These will be the only 2 practices before the parade on Tuesday.

He explained that he doesn't expect a top notch professional band, but he doesn't want something to be embarrassed about either. "I don't want to put a band on the street, call it the Cass City Marching Band and have everybody laugh at it." Ever since the beginning years of the festival, the 4th when it comes down to rehearsal and marching."

He added that to have a band, a bunch of people can't just get together and march. "It takes time. You have to pass out music and uniforms if you're going to use uniforms."

If the band marches, it will play 3 songs, "Strike Up the Band", "You're a Grand Old Flag" and "This is My Country." If the band doesn't march, Bushong explained he'll probably give up trying.

"If this doesn't work, I'll probably quit trying and stop banging my head against the wall for it."

3,000 to 4,000 people expected

$3,000 fireworks show to conclude celebration

Practically everyone likes to see fireworks light up the sky. Once again, Cass City will have its own glittering show at dusk Tuesday.

Event coordinator Alan Sward explained that the show, put on by Advanced Pyrotechnics, will last about 1 1/2 hours. The display will blast off from the eastern part of the park by the swimming pool.

Sward, July 4th committee member, pointed out that the exhibition costs approximately $3,000, which is $350 more than last year. "It's the largest expense for the 4th of July committee. Most of our revenues from other things go to deferring this event."

Even though a lot of money is involved, Sward said the number of people who come out to watch the show makes it worth it. "I would probbly say 3,000 to 4,000 people watch. A lot of it depends on when other cities' (fireworks) will be shot."

Some years there has been speculation whether Cass City will have fireworks or not. But this year may mark a stable period for the display. Sward explained that Pyrotechnics is now going to focus on doing shows for the smaller cities instead of the larger cities. "Apparently the smaller cities have insurance costs that are disproportionate."

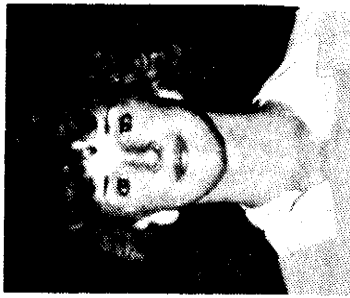

As a result, this may mean that Pyrotechnics will be around to do the fireworks for a few years. To help raise money for the fireworks, the committee has had canisters set up in various businesses for people who would like to donate money.

All profits will go directly to the committee to be used for the firework's fund. Event coordinator Craig Guernsey pointed out that this year meals will cost $5.50 for adults, $3 for children under 10 and there will be no charge for children under 4 years of age.

The dinner will be Sunday from noon to 3 p.m. in the Lions Club pavilion. In addition to the pork, the menu includes coleslaw, baked beans and rolls. The pork is provided and cooked by Red Osenoski, of Cass City. "He prepares the food for me and I have to provide the people to do the work," remarked Guernsey, adding that he has gathered a group of people to help him.

Last year approximately 400 people were served at the meal. Guernsey explained that he is involved in the event just to do his share for the festival. "They asked for me to volunteer. I'm just trying to do my thing to help the committee."

Softball plenty during 11th annual Festival

The people of Cass City and the surrounding area will have several opportunities to show their athletic abilities during the 4th of July Festival.

Sport competitions such as mud volleyball, basketball and horseshoes will take place Tuesday. In addition, there will be 3 baseball and softball tournaments occurring this weekend.

The first softball competition will begin Saturday morning in the park. This contest will be among some 12 teams from Flint, Bay City and other areas in the Thumb.

Event coordinator Ed Stoutenburg, of Cass City, explained that this is the 5th year this contest has been in the festival. "It's a lot of good, clean fun," Stoutenburg remarked.

This year R & H Garage, Kingston, is hoping to remain champs after winning last year's event. To enter the tournament each team had to pay a $130 registration fee. Trophies will go to the winning team after the finals, which will be played at noon Tuesday.

Also on Tuesday will be 2 all-star games, both of which begin at 5 p.m. in the park. One of the all-star games, from a church league, is making its debut in the festival.

Randy Severance
Coach

Three to four of the best players on 8 local church softball teams, which includes Shabbona Methodist, Colwood United Brethren, Evangelical Free, Deford Community, Lamotte Missionary, Cass City Catholic, Novesta Church of Christ and Cass City Missionary, will compete just for the fun of it.

"We've probably had an all-star game since the church league began in 1955," remarked event coordinator Randy Severance.

He added that the church league is different from most softball leagues. "No profanity is allowed or you're immediately ejected. There is a prayer before each game. No article of clothing can have an advertisement for a bar or tavern or anything related to that. Also there is no alcohol, smoking or chewing tobacco allowed."

Another tournament is for people a bit younger than those involved in the 2 softball competitions. It is the Little League all-star game. Four of the best players, ranging from 10 to 12-years-old, from each of the 6 Little League teams will play in a doubleheader.

Event coordinator Dan Ulfig said this special doubleheader is played every year and it seems to be a big crowd pleaser. "We always have an extra bleacher set up and it's usually full every year."

New Jaycee event

Tennis anyone?

Over the years, the Jaycees have sponsored many different events such as the demolition derby and, more recently, the mud bog. One year the organization was the sole sponsor for the fireworks, the most expensive part of the festival.

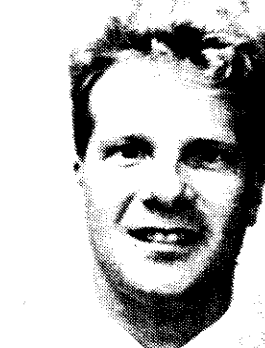

This year the Jaycees will change gears and switch from sponsoring rugged terrain events to a more moderate sporting event — tennis.

That's right. The Jaycees will once again begin a new event in the festival and start the first tennis tournament during the July 4th celebration.

The tournament will begin Tuesday at noon. All people interested may sign up at the park or call event coordinator Clarke Haire at the Chronicle.

"We've got great facilities, so we should use them," Haire pointed out.

"People are guaranteed to play at least 2 games," he remarked, adding although the tournament will be single elimination, there will be a bracket for those singles and a doubles tournament. Men's and women's divisions may be divided, depending on the number of people who enter. A registration fee of $10 is required. This fee qualifies all participants to play in both tournaments.

Because the event is in its first year, Haire expects it to be kind of small, but he anticipates it to grow. "Hopefully it might grow into something like the 3 on 3 basketball tournament."

THE FIREMEN'S Water Battle, always a popular event, will return and sponsors anticipate as many teams as last year.

Luck big factor in water battles

An event during the 4th of July Festival gives an opposing meaning to the cliché, "fight fire with fire." In this activity by firemen, the purpose is to fight water with water.

That's right. The firemen's water ball fight is back for the 3rd consecutive year. Event coordinator Dick Root anticipates the contest to be about the same size as last year. "Hopefully we're going to have as many teams as we did last year," he remarked, adding there were 8 men's teams and 2 women's teams. First, second and third places will receive trophies, and there is a fee to enter the contest. The contestants are all firemen or firemen's wives. Teams from Mayville, Kingston, Rochester, Uby and Cass City are expected to return to compete this year. Some of the teams go from town to town so they can spray it out.

"The idea of it is to push the ball in the zone of the opposing team in a certain amount of time," Root explained. He added that even though the firemen who compete are skilled at aiming the hose 1 p.m.

Root said the competition is usually good and he expects a large crowd to watch the fights. The contest is scheduled to begin after the parade and it will end around 1 p.m.

Arts and Crafts retains appeal

The arts and crafts show along with the flea market have always been a major attraction at the 4th of July festival. This year, new event coordinator Pat McCullough expects it to be no different.

The 2 displays will begin at 9 a.m. Tuesday and end around 6 p.m. Mostly handmade items will be on display during the arts fair, inside the municipal building, while the flea market will show all kinds of items ranging from toys to clothing.

In addition McCullough expects a few antique dealers selling goods at the flea market, which will be outside the municipal building. Dealers will come from Flint, Saginaw, Bay City and other areas throughout the Thumb. McCullough remarked, adding, "Most of them come back year after year. Some of them have been here since this was started about 9 years ago." About 30 spaces will be

Festival's history and future bright after one decade of success

This is the 11th year Cass City has had a festival on July 4. The idea to have a 4th of July celebration was first suggested by Tom Proctor at a Chamber of Commerce meeting in November 1978.

The chamber liked Proctor's suggestion and decided to have Cass City's 4th of July Festival in 1979. The festival became an instant success in its first year under the direction of Tom Herron.

Since that time the festival has stayed fairly consistent as far as attendance goes, with estimates ranging from 10,000 to 15,000 people each year, even though many of the activities in the festival have changed.

The following is a list of some of the events that have come and gone over the years and what the event involved.

- Industrial factory display. It was a display of the products from local industries, such as Walbro, General Cable and Arma Incorporated, and their importance to the community. It was part of the festival in 1979 only.
- Tour of the village on buses. This event also lasted for the first year only. There were tours of Cass City on the hour for 6 hours during the day-long celebration in 1979.
- Tug of war competition. This was very popular from 1979 until after 1984, but eventually lost its initial spunk and was replaced by the mud volleyball tournament.
- Tractor versus pony pull-off. Although this event came and went in 1979, but was substituted by a tractor pull in later years.
- Hot air balloon ride. Unfortunately, strong winds literally forced this activity to never get off the ground in 1979.
- Fish pond for children. Kids were able to look at various types of fish in the pond during the 1979 festival and then again in 1984.
- Cass City King and Queen contest. This was another contest which began in 1979 and quickly fizzled after 1980 due to lack of participation. In 1980 there was only one couple who entered the contest. The contest was replaced by a women's beauty pageant.
- Cass City Marathon or sometimes called the Pace-setters Marathon. In 1979 the 5 and 10 kilometer race drew 113 participants but the numbers soon dropped after the first year. The race eventually merged with the tot run and then was eliminated altogether after 1983.

- Talent show. This contest was first sponsored by the Cass City High School teachers in 1979 and then again in 1980, when it stopped.
- Belly flop contest at the pool. Daredevils of all ages first dove belly-out in 1979.
- The activity was stopped in 1981 after the winner hurt himself.
- Tractor pulling contest. This event, which actually had some antique steam tractors in its first year, came in with a roar in 1980 and stayed popular until its extinction, due to the great amount of work that went into it, after 1986.
- Children's dog show. Kids of all ages got to show off man's best friend from 1980 to after 1988. The contest started out as an awareness program to show kids how animals can be if they are properly trained. It then evolved into a regular event.
- Wood chop, chain saw and saw throwing contest. This was a very popular contest from 1982 until 1985, when it was cut from the festival because of the danger involved.

- Display and contest with draft horses. Various types of horses such as Clydesdales, Percherons and Belgians were shown by the Thumb Draft Horse Association in 1982, but the flight in 1983 and 1984, but event was never started again for unknown reasons.
- These same horses also competed in a horse pull during the display.
- Hills and Dales General Hospital free health care display. This demonstration involved a presentation in the hospital about its facilities, a show about nutrition and a puppet show for children. The event lasted from 1982 until after 1984.
- The 1st Marine Band accidentally scheduled the day after the regular activities were held in 1982. So to compensate, the committee had the festival last 2 days instead of one. This event also inspired a choir, the Tom Thumb Singers, to participate that same year.
- Demolition derby. This was a very popular contest from 1982 until 1985, when

This event, which only occurred in 1984, had people look at photos of babies 3 and under and vote to see which was the cutest.

- ATV race. This race was considerably easier to manage compared to the tractor pull or demolition derby but it lived a short term and ended after its first year - 1985.
- Free throw shoot. This contest, titled Thro-Up Bowl Tournament, existed only in 1986 but may have been an inspiration to the now popular 3 on 3 basketball tournament.
- RV pull. This one event is dubbed as replacing the tractor pull, demolition derby and ATV races. But after 1986 it too was replaced by the mud bog.
- Civil War reenactment. This display was shown by the Saginaw Historical Society in 1986.
- ATV mud bog. This event replaced the RV pull in 1987 and was very popular. It ended after 1988 because of insurance reasons.

— Motorcyle stunt show. Representatives from the Michigan Ontario Trials Association did Evel Knievel type stunts during the parade in 1983, 1984 and 1987.

- Gospel vocalists. For 3 years in a row, starting in 1983, Cass City had religious vocalists sing during the festival. The singers included Merrill Womach, Doug Oldham and Hazel Slaughter.

Open barn

Stoeckle to show unusual pets again

Carol Stoeckle will once again open her farm of unusual animals for the public on July 4 from 1-5 p.m. Last year was the first year in which Stoeckle had people come visit her farm, called the "Northstar Ranch," 2 1/2 miles north of M-81 at 5776 Schwegler Rd. She remarked that last year's successful turnout is one reason she is doing it again this year. "We thought there could have been 500 people here," within the 4-hour span in which the ranch was open. This year Stoeckle has had several additions to her exotic animal collection. "We have some more Jacob sheep," she remarked, adding she had 2 last year. The sheep are unique from other sheep in the fact that they are spotted and have 3 to 4 horns. Also a new addition to the farm are the black guinea hogs or miniature pigs. "We have 2 that are bred and we think the one will be having babies."

Another new attraction at the farm is a baby miniature horse, an animal Stoeckle is very happy with. She commented that the main attraction last year was the llama. "People don't get to see them too often I guess."

Stoeckle started the open barn simply because she knew that people would like to see the animals. "I had all the different animals and I know people are interested in seeing them."

Her collection of unusual animals began with the purchase of a miniature horse about 4 years ago. Since that time Stoeckle has bred and bought several more animals through acquaintances who have similar interests.

The joy of having and preserving the rare animals is all Stoeckle said she needs to keep on doing it. Some of her animals, such as the Jacob sheep and guinea hogs, were nearly extinct and are still very rare. In addition to the animals already mentioned, she has pigmy goats, Barbados sheep, peacocks, miniature donkeys and some Belted Galloway cattle. The farm was open to the public on July 3 last year, but because of confusion with people thinking it was on July 4, Stoeckle will open the ranch on the 4th this year and not the 3rd.

CAROL STOECKLE caresses the miniature horse which began her collection of unusual animals 4 years ago.

THIS PEACOCK is one of several exotic animals on Stoeckle's farm.

3 on 3 expected to be big success

The second annual 3 on 3 basketball tournament will be going full stride as part of the 4th of July festivities. Last year the tournament, sponsored by the Cass City Rotary Club, made its debut and did well even after Rotarians had a late start organizing it, remarked event coordinator, Matt Prieskorn. "It was a last second thing," he commented.

This year Prieskorn has planned in advance and expects twice as many people to participate. "There should be a good turnout," he said. Last year 25 teams played and this year Prieskorn anticipates some 50 teams to participate in the 3 divisions — men's open, women's open and high school.

One change in the tournament from last year is the registration fee of $15 to $20 for each team. Also, Prieskorn is expecting more women's teams to play this year. "There were 2 women's teams. There will definitely be more this year."

The women and high school divisions will play double elimination, while the men's open class will probably play single elimination because of the amount of time available on the courts, Prieskorn explained, adding the tournament will start at 1 p.m. and will end around 7 p.m. on Tuesday. The winners of each class will receive T-shirts.

The rules are the same as last year. A complete list will be made available at the courts. "You call your own fouls, and there will be a monitor at each game," he pointed out.

The registration deadline is noon Tuesday but Prieskorn has asked people to register as soon as possible.

ACTION WAS brisk in the 3-man tournament in 1988, its first year.

Volleyball tourney ensures good times

Mother always said, "You enough time. After each game the Elkland Township Fire Department will graciously hose down the teams."

As always, the teams can sign up before the tournament begins. There is a registration fee of $10 for the women's and men's divisions, and participants have to be at least 18 years old. The registration fee for juniors and girls, which includes anyone still in high school, is $5.

Nurnberger explained that most of the games are exciting. "The final game always goes down to the last 1 or 2 points." He pointed out that his favorite part of the games is, "probably the diving and slapping in the mud."

The games are narrated by Wayne Dillon via microphone. Every year Dillon said he has to watch his back to avoid being thrown in the mud. But since the beginning of the tournament, he has only been tossed in once. "I like the mud volleyball. I got thrown one year and that water is cold."

Dillon added he went in the mud 3 years ago and ever since that time he has been able to talk the assailants out of doing it again.

It's pitching time

Horseshoe contest to be more equal

Horseshoe pitching is a competition based purely on skill and lots of practice...well, there might be a little bit of luck involved. Nevertheless, some people are just better pitchers than others. With this in mind, event coordinator Phil Robinson has taken measures to make things more equal this year.

He will have the players pitch in a qualifying round in which he will figure handicaps for them. Then Robinson will match the players accordingly.

The qualifying round will be Saturday at 9 a.m. at the Cass City Gun Club. Robinson anticipates a larger number of participants from previous years because of the handicap rule. "Hopefully it will be bigger. Last year there were 17 or 18 people. This year I would like at least 20 people with 4 groups of 5."

Also on Saturday, Robinson would like to hold an elimination tournament with 4 to 6 finalists. These finalists will participate in a pitch-off July 4 at 1 p.m. in the park. There will be a $7 entry fee to enter the contest.

In addition, Robinson has scheduled a special silver dollar pitch for participants during the qualifying rounds Saturday. For the special event, which will cost $1 for each pitch, Robinson will place a silver dollar on the stake. Contestants will then attempt to throw a horseshoe around the stake without knocking the silver dollar off. The person who does this will win the silver dollar and the money entered for the event. Anyone interested can call Robinson at 872-4104.

Plans are complete

New events to spark '89 Festival

This year's 4th of July festival is bound to put a few smiles on faces and basically "get that old blood flowing."

Because this is the 11th time Cass City has had a festival, the 4th of July Committee has been fairly relaxed about the entire thing and didn't have its first meeting until February.

"Everyone knows what to do because they've all done it for so many years," remarked committee member Geraldine Prieskorn. She added it just wasn't necessary for the committee to start planning any earlier. Other committee members are Lora Hartel, who's coordinator of the concessions, parade coordinator Gary Jones and fire-works coordinator Alan Sward.

Even though the committee had a late start, it would be incorrect to think the festival will be boring or uneventful. On the contrary, this year's festival has several big additions such as a parachute jump, a carnival at Hardee's and a beauty pageant for little girls, all of which are expected to be sure crowd pleasers.

These new events, if popular, may be around for years to come. Other new activities include a tennis tournament, motorcycle stuntmen, which have appeared in previous years, and a special church all-star softball game.

Committee members said they always try to have new events in the festival every year. This is to help ensure that there will be something for everybody.

The committee's "goal is to have something for all ages. Also the bed races, which

More lip-sync

contestants expected

The 4th of July festivities had to go out of town to recruit contestants. "It was so hard to get contestants last year. Barbie and I had judged a lip-sync contest in Sebawang the week before and we had to ask some of them to come."

Sally Doerr, along with her sister-in-law, Barbie Doerr, coordinators for this year's program, started the contest last year and this year they would like it to be bigger. "We didn't have a tremendous turnout last year as far as contestants go, but we did have a lot of people who came out and watched," Sally remarked, adding, "We

People who are interested in participating should contact Barbie or Sally Doerr as soon as possible. ... retail stores.

"Everyone knows what to do because they've all done it for so many years."

Geraldine Prieskorn

were popular as a pre-parade event since 1983, have seemed to run their course and have been eliminated from the celebration. Wayne Dillon, one of the bed race coordinators over the years, said he is sad to see the contest go. "I wish the bed races would have kept going. They always went real good."

Another event that seems to have gone its course is the dog show, which first began in 1980. Prieskorn explained that the people who usually coordinate the event simply couldn't get any help with it this year.

Also, last year the Cass City Players tried to perform a play in the park. But the troupe was unsuccessful. Event coordinator Michelle Zdrojewski explained that the firemen's water ball fight, the mud volleyball tournament and the pig roast, will be back. However, some of last year's successful events will not be returning. One of these events is the mud bog competition, which first appeared in the 1987 festival.

The mud bog was originally sponsored by the Jaycees. But higher insurance rates forced the organization into trying something else. As a substitute, the Jaycees will coordinate the first 4th of July tennis tournament.

This year, new committee member Pat McCullough is coordinating the arts and crafts show. McCullough explained that she will keep the show like it has been and expects it to be equally successful.

Other big money makers for the festival are the teen dance, pig roast and concession booths. The majority of the money goes to the fire-works fund, which is the most expensive festival event, remarked Jones.

Prieskorn explained that festival T-shirts, which are $6 this year, have always been successful. Cass City High School student Jennifer Hoard, 15, made the design for the shirts. This year the committee will also sell festival hats for $5 during the festival and in local retail stores.

coordinate something else. "I'd like to work on a different activity."

Also Prieskorn added that people will usually help out with the festival after they are asked. "If you ask some people, it's amazing how many of them will do it. You just have to ask them."

But Weaver explained, even when the manpower is available, it's still tough to get new ideas. "You always want to come up with something different and that's like pulling teeth. Also so many things cost so much."

Despite all of the hard work and expenses involved, former and current committee members alike said the festival is worth it. Weaver explained the festival seems to put a new light on the community.

"The people who work together definitely benefit from the festival because it's always fun to work elbow to elbow. The festival promotes fellowship. It's neat to see your town all cleaned up and it puts the community in its best possible dress."

ALWAYS THE HIGH-LIGHT of the Festival is the parade that starts at 11:00 a.m. and wends its way down Main Street to the park. It annually draws up to 15,000 persons and is expected to do so again this year. The story is on page 17.

REMEMBER WHEN the horse pulling contest was a highlight of the Festival? It is now long gone with many other attractions of the past. The highlight events of all 10 past Festivals are recalled in a story on page 5.

THE EVER so popular 3 on 3 basketball tournament is expected to return with more participants. What the coordinator has done to make the contest bigger is explained on page 21.

ANNUALLY THE FIREWORKS display is the single most costly event that is held at the Festival. The Chamber of Commerce stretches its budget to include the event because it always proves to be the one that most visitors really want to see. This year's event is described on page 7.

ALVIN BURK will be returning to his old hometown in style! He'll parachute onto the intersection of Oak and Main Streets Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. The story is on page 11.
