

New events spark opening days of July 4 Festival

The 11th annual 4th of July Festival is a part of history. Some of the events which occurred before July 4 were considered successful and others were not.

Events such as the new "Little Miss Pageant", the lip sync contest and the Cruise Night did well. But the 2nd annual pork roast fell short of par.

"(The pig roast) went pretty poor," remarked event coordinator Craig Guernsey. Last year some 300 people came to the meal, but this year's attendance reached just over 100.

"Last year, it was on the day before the 4th. This year it was 2 days before," Guernsey explained, adding the day in-between may have made the difference. He added they didn't do anything different in advertising for the afternoon dinner.

Another thing that may have contributed to the lower attendance was the fact that only 5 softball teams played this year in the fields next to the roast, whereas 15 teams played last year.

Guernsey didn't know if the roast lost money or not, but he said next year they will have to do it differently. "The jury is still out on the final figures. I don't know if we'll have it next year. One thing is for sure, if we do, we'll have to plan it differently next year."

Although the pig roast didn't turn out as people had hoped, Cass City's Little Miss Pageant kicked off the Festival Thursday as a successful event. Approximately 200 people attended this debuting event. Each audience member paid a $1 admission fee and all contestants paid $10 to participate. "I think it was excellent," commented event coordinator Deanna Loomis. All proceeds for the pageant will go to the festival committee and the fireworks fund.

Although Loomis wanted some 60 contestants, she said she wasn't disappointed with only 28 participants. "I was still happy, with it being in its first year."

The pageant was divided into 3 divisions: Tiny Miss, Please turn to page 7.

WHITNEY Osentoski's rendition of "Don't Worry, Be Happy" won third place in Saturday's second annual Lip Sync Contest, held in conjunction with July 4 festivities.

Savings exhausted

Friends plan benefit for cancer stricken Creason

by Matt Bach
Staff Writer

Al Creason has lived in Cass City for most of his life. He has helped the town and the people whenever he could. Now he needs the community's help.

"I've never been sick until this hit me," Creason, 71, pointed out.

About 3 years ago Creason developed cancer in his kidneys. Since that time, the cancer has spread into his tail bone, shoulder and lungs.

Also, Creason's legs have swelled, due to radiology treatment, and he can no longer walk.

A few months ago, several people learned about Creason's difficulties and decided to combine their efforts and have a benefit raffle, auction, bake sale and dinner for him July 22 from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Evergreen Township School in Shabbona.

"He's in bad pain all the time and it would be worse if he didn't take the pills," his friend Joyce Barnes said, adding "Now the doctors are talking about chemotherapy."

"We went to 5 or 7 different doctors before they found out what was wrong," Barnes explained. "They sent him to Ann Arbor and they diagnosed it." At the same time, Creason's finances have been nearly exhausted. "Those hospital bills are as expensive as heck, I'll tell you. Every time you turn around, you have to pay another $100," Creason commented, adding, "We had a savings but, my gosh, we ate up all the savings already."

"They (Creason and Barnes) are in dire need," commented benefit co-organizer Marie Osentoski. "He hasn't worked since last November. The benefit has turned right into an entire community project. All the help we can get is appreciated."

Osentoski couldn't estimate how many people will come to the benefit, but she said there should be a big turnout. "Usually the whole community comes out to something like this."

Donations for the auction, which will start at 8 p.m., are being collected at the Osentoski Realty and Auctioneering Offices in Cass City and Caro, or at Best Place at Laing. Bake sale items need to be brought to the school. The dinner will cost $4 for adults, $2 for kids, and children under 6 are free.

Creason pointed out that his friends and family have made him happy. "It's very good. I sure am proud of them. When I was able, I used to help them out too. The people around here have been excellent."

He was born in Indiana and moved when he was 21 to Cass City, where he has lived ever since. Throughout his life, Creason has been self employed, working as a farmer on his family's 640-acre farm and later in factories as a diesel mechanic. "I used to work for the city in Marlette running machinery."

He pointed out that he has many memories of Cass City. "One time I was getting parts at the International Tractor Supply place in town and the fire whistle blew. I looked outside and saw people running with buckets of water. They didn't have a fire department then. That's when the theater in town burned down. It must have been in 1942."

"It was funny to watch them push that 4-wheeled trailer with buckets and hoses down the street."

Over the years Creason has raised 6 children. Currently, he has 24 grandchildren and some 14 great-grandchildren. "A lot of them will try to come to the benefit," he pointed out, adding, "We all

Demands payment in 2 days

Judge Joslyn ups fight with county commission

Tuscola County commissioners last week moved to "put the right people in the ring" in their heated battle with circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn and the county's friend of the court over who has control of equipment purchases.

In an effort to protect the county's accounts payable procedure, commissioners during their June 27 regular meeting voted to require the signature of the county board chairman, as well as the clerk and treasurer, before payment on any county check is made.

The measure was in response to an administrative order issued by Joslyn nearly 2 weeks ago.

That order, which came after commissioners refused to approve payment for a copy machine in the FOC office pending settlement of a dispute over who had the authority to purchase the equipment, demanded that the clerk or treasurer make payment on court bills within 2 working days.

Clerk Erna Brown, who was told she would go to jail if she didn't comply, filed a lawsuit against Joslyn early last week in Federal District Court in Bay City, according to Grand Rapids attorney Robert White, whose firm is representing both Brown and commissioners.

Brown's lawsuit alleges that Joslyn threatened the clerk with contempt, but that he would "forgive" her if she would issue a public apology, reimburse the county for attorney fees related to the federal suit and reveal the names of persons who advised her not to follow his order.

stick together."

Creason lives on Germania Road with Barnes, where he welcomes all visitors. "I enjoy company, especially the older people."

"He loves kids, but you know how kids are. They get wrestling around and that upsets him," Barnes remarked, adding she keeps a list of all his visitors. According to the list, Creason averages some 10 phone calls and 5 visitors a day.

When Creason is not on the phone or talking with guests, he can be found reading or watching television. I watch TV, but that gets old after a while," he said, adding, "Those soap operas don't make sense. At one time they're arguing and the next time they're in bed."

Creason explained that if his current condition keeps up, he will not be able to go to the benefit.

"He's going to try to go," Barnes commented. "But if he feels like he does today, he won't go. If he feels like he did 3 or 4 days ago he probably will."

Creason is optimistic. The biggest concern he has right now is walking again. "I hope in a couple of years from now I'm back on my feet if I'm not too old."

The judge, meanwhile, upped the stakes Friday by issuing a second and much broader administrative order demanding that payment of court bills be made within 2 working days, White said. Unlike the judge's initial order, he explained, Friday's order is directed to the clerk, treasurer, county board chairman and all county commissioners serving on the board's Finance Committee.

AUDIT, THEN PAY

White acknowledged the board's action last week represents an effort to maintain the accounts payable procedure - - auditing of bills by the Finance Committee followed by payment.

The measure also takes some pressure off Brown, who was only doing her job when she was drawn into the controversy, White said, adding, "Clearly, the board resolution Tuesday was designed to put the right people in the ring."

While Joslyn could have argued his original order was simply an administrative order to his court clerk, the judge now is "reaching out way beyond the county clerk," White said.

"In the county's view, he's clearly interfering with their (commissioners') right and their job to review all charges," he continued.

WHY DIFFERENT?

At other levels of government, the same procedure is followed - - the people have a right to audit bills that are paid for with funds from a public treasury, White pointed out. "Why should it be any different for Judge Joslyn?" he said. "It begs for common sense."

"He (Joslyn) evidently is of the view that because you adopt a budget, (all) the money exists at the time you adopt it. And then he believes once we adopt it, we are completely unable to do anything about it" with the exception of increasing his appropriation, White continued. "And, lastly and most important, by adopting the budget it becomes his money."

The attorney argued that although Joslyn may prove his case, currently there is no precedence to back up his payment demands.

"From our perspective, the judge's administrative order is not enforceable, and if he wants to test that proposition, he's going to have to go to court and have a judgement issued in his favor," White said. "It's not enough for him to say, 'you're wrong'."

Neither Joslyn nor his attorney, James Miller of Grand Rapids, could be reached for comment.

Although no one has been thrown in jail to date, White indicated it's likely commissioners will force Joslyn to make the next move. "At some point in time, presumably, the board chair will choose not to follow" Joslyn's order, he said.

And what's at stake goes far beyond a copy machine, the attorney said. He added, "You're talking about whether an orderly method of auditing and controlling expenditures is going to exist in Tuscola County."

Land of the free

by Melva E. Guinther

In last week's Chronicle, our reporter asked "Your Neighbor" if he thought people consider what the Fourth of July really means.

Maybe we do. But we need to be reminded from time to time.

It took courage, commitment and sacrifice on the part of our founding fathers to obtain freedom, and it's taken dedication and determination to preserve it. Those of us fortunate enough to be born in the USA reap the benefits without giving it much thought.

Most of us have never known anything but freedom. We've never lived through war. Our kids have never had to play in the midst of gunfire or the resultant ruins.

We've never covered as armed guards told us where we could or couldn't go or what we could or couldn't do.

We haven't had to watch helplessly as our homes and everything we owned were blown to nothingness by the whim of a grenade or bomb. Thank God we haven't.

People who don't enjoy the liberty we assume, and often abuse, can't comprehend it.

A European native wrote to Ann Landers expressing shock and dismay that Ann would print letters critical of the United States. The writer said, "Some of the letters you print are so critical of the system that one might question your loyalty."

If criticism were a test of loyalty, would anyone escape judgement?

Cartoonists and columnists regularly take potshots at the government. What would late night TV hosts do if lampooning the president and vice-president were a crime? And who among us hasn't griped about taxes and government programs? There's no doubt that America has problems, and it's good that we can complain about them openly and, hopefully, work at solving them.

Though corruption and inequities exist, people in oppressed countries would gladly exchange their problems for ours. Maybe we need to spend more time looking at what's right with America.

If we don't like the way the government operates or the way a public official performs, we can take steps to change it or have him removed from office. We can vote, or run for office ourselves.

Ours is still the land of opportunity. With diligence and hard work, a person can rise up out of poverty and ignorance and become whatever he sets his sights on.

Where else can disciples of over 150 religious beliefs pursue them without interference?

In spite of her shortcomings, the U.S. is still the greatest country in the world.

Describing the situation in China after being evacuated recently, an 11-year-old American boy told reporters, "I think I've been taking my freedom for granted." He spoke for most of us.

"If It Fitz..."

Isn't that astonishing?

By Jim Fitzgerald

"Look at that family. They all came back to their childhood home Sunday afternoon to clean up their mother's yard. Isn't that nice?"

My wife said that while we were driving about 40 m.p.h. on Rochester Road. She had maybe 10 seconds to look at the people raking and otherwise working the ground in the backyard of a small home.

"You never saw those people before in your life, and you never looked at that house before," I said. "How do you know they are cleaning up their mother's yard? They could be harvesting marijuana."

By this time we were 5 miles down the road. "There was a picnic table in the yard, with baskets on it, and grandchildren playing," she said. "If it isn't her family cleaning the yard, it's a group from her church."

Isn't that astonishing? My wife should work for Scotland Yard. She can pass a stranger in the street and immediately tell you his or her life story. She can do the same thing with dogs:

"Look at that poor dog. It's lost. It's cold and hungry. Poor thing. Someone should take it home."

SHE CAN TELL WITH PEOPLE, TOO

Lots of wives talk like that. I know, because I recently took a survey of 22 men, all married and all sitting on bar stools. Each man admitted his wife is a pushover for unloved strays of all breeds. In fact, 17 of the men said that's what caused their marriages. They had been strays once themselves.

Ten of the men still wore collars with buckles. Five of the men revealed broken leashes tucked into their shirts. And one man swore his name is Prince.

I always ask my wife: "How do you know that dog is lost? It is wearing a collar and a vest and appears well fed. It is trotting purposefully. How do you know it is not on its way to a happy home?"

"I can tell," she always says. "That dog is lost."

In the case of people strangers, the day of the week adds to her certainty:

"That man is not happy. I think his wife has left him and she won't let him visit the children. So he doesn't know what to do with himself on Sunday afternoons."

"Well, we certainly should take him home and give him a can of Alpo."

It's even worse with children:

"Look at that mother. She is yanking her little girl around by the arm. I know she hollers at her and I'll bet she beats the poor child every night. A woman like that should be locked up. I will take care of her little girl."

"You are not being fair to that woman," I say. "She may be a wonderful mother. I can remember when you used to drop-kick our son into bed every night. And you used to lock him in the bread box while you ran next door to match filibusters with Shirley and Carol. Anyone who didn't know you might have accused you of being a rotten mother."

"That was different. I love my children."

"How do you know that woman doesn't love hers?"

"I can tell by the look in her eyes and by the way she walks. Her husband has deserted her and she's taking it out on the poor daughter who loves her father, and she can't even see him on Sundays."

DEAR PEOPLE: SAY IT AIN'T SO

"Hey," I say, "maybe that's the guy we passed a few minutes ago. I'll run after him. You hold the woman here. We shall bring this family together again."

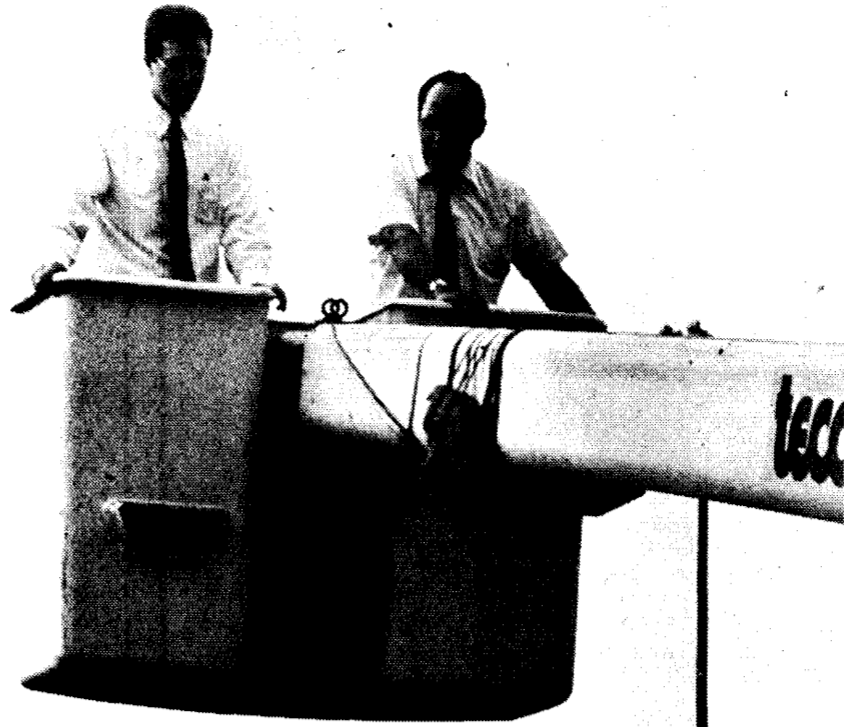

"Get that lost dog, too," she says. "I know it belongs to that poor little girl. I can tell by the way she keeps petting the air."

An air dog. Similar to an air guitar, no doubt.

Onward and Upward, and I have a request: It was around 2 p.m. Sunday, June 4, that my wife and I drove by that house on Rochester Road, near Petruzzello's Banquet Hall. If you were one of the people working in that backyard, please contact me.

Please tell me you and other family members didn't return to that location that Sunday afternoon to clean up your mother's yard. You don't have to say you were harvesting pot. Just say my wife was wrong. Please.

One of us needs help, and I think it's me.

The Haire Net

Court decisions have been much in the news in recent weeks. Let's talk about one. It's not one of the major cases that have appeared before the United States Supreme Court. It really has no major significance at all unless you happen to be a tax-paying Lincoln Park resident.

This case sets no major precedent such as reversing affirmative action or giving dissidents the right to burn the flag. Most folks have strong opinions about these issues, pro or con.

The case involved damages that were assessed against the city and its insurance carrier after a city policeman shot and killed a Detroit man. A settlement was reached and the family of the man killed was awarded $1.6 million. The settlement also provided that the city would pay interest and attorney's fees if a payment deadline was not reached. Payment was to have been made by Mission National Insurance Co. which is bankrupt.

In the confusion the city was 4 days late making the necessary payment. The defendants sued and were defeated in circuit court, but won in the Michigan Court of Appeals. The Michigan Supreme Court refused to hear the case.

You might feel that the city went through a lot of litigation for something as minor as a penalty for being 4 days late meeting its obligation. You might until you hear what the cost for the 4 days is. A cool $1.6 million. That's right, $1.6 million.

That adds up to an average of about $46 per taxpayer this year and $26 more next year.

Appeals Judge Joseph B. Sullivan who wrote the opinion for the 3-judge panel, said the decision was reached because a Michigan Supreme Court ruling said that such agreements were sacrosanct.

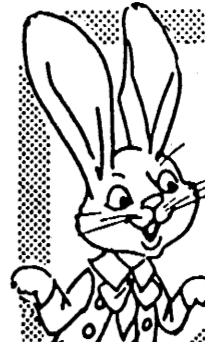

Join me if you feel that decisions like this are an affront to common sense. Now a penalty for late payment does make sense, it's the amount that is off the wall. If you have money coming it's reasonable to expect to be paid when due and to be compensated if you are not. Reasonable to expect, too, to be paid for any extra out-of-pocket expense incurred.

It's reasonable, too, for the creditor to call the city fathers and remind them that the money is due and there will be plenty of financial trouble if the money isn't paid. If that was done, it wasn't reported.

Most laymen would have a higher regard for our courts if common sense were as sacrosanct as they deem the contract to be.

The letter of the law should be influenced by the intent and the damages incurred.

That's justice. It should be even more sacrosanct than the fine print in a contract.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire
(And anyone else he can get to help.)

Inadvertently this trivia column sent the Roger Littles on a wild goose chase recently. In one of our capsule comments about places to eat we mentioned Wanigan's. The restaurant that specializes in deli-type food was carefully portrayed, together with the street name and how to get there. Just one little error. I forgot to name the city. The Littles ran all over Saginaw trying to find it.

But the restaurant is in Bay City.

One man's opinion. There never was, nor will their ever be any finer weather than that we enjoyed last Thursday and Friday. The temperature and the humidity were just right and the days were appreciated more than ordinarily because they followed days that were unpleasantly hot and humid or cold and damp.

Another tidbit from GTE's forecast for the year 2001: A minuscule transistor will increase computer chip processing speed 100 times. Too tiny to be seen with even the powerful light microscope, it will be able to switch on and off in a trillionth of a second.

Since you can't see it and who knows how long a trillionth of a second is, what other choice is there but to say, isn't that nice? and go on to something else that is really important. Like, who can I sell all those Cass City Rotary raffle tickets to?

I'm running a special on car tickets, swing tickets and circus tickets that I am obligated to sell. All are going for 2 for the price of one.

Suspect arson in car fire

Arson is suspected in a fire last Wednesday night that destroyed a car about 7 miles southwest of Cass City in the Deford State Game Area. Tuscola County Sheriff's Department Detective Larry Walker said the vehicle, a 1985 silver-colored Ford Escort, had been stolen the day before in Clinton Township near Mt. Clemens. Elkland Township fire fighters responded to the scene, 1/4 of a mile east of Phillips Road on Gilford Road, at about 9:15 p.m., according to Fire Chief Dick Root. He added the driver of the vehicle was not at the scene when firemen arrived. Anyone with information related to the blaze is asked to contact Walker at 673-8161.

In addition, all contestants received participation ribbons, so no one went home empty-handed.

Loomis added the success of this year's event ensures the event's return next year.

"I'll do it again if they let me."

The next event for the festival occurred Saturday in the south end of the park. It was the second annual Cruise Night. Fifty-three automobiles in mint condition were displayed from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. "It went off good," remarked event coordinator Jim Perry.

Perry added that the event was successful partly because of the wonderful weather, which always plays a role in a car display of this sort.

Another event that did as well as last year and slightly better was the lip sync contest. Six acts competed last year and 9 were in this year's contest.

Overall, there were 21 participants performing in front of approximately 130 people.

First place winners, who received $50, were Phil Leipprandt, 13, Chris Leipprandt, 6, Cody Leipprandt, 3, and Christa Miller, 5. The group performed to the song, "Gutarzan."

Larceny conviction nets jail term in circuit court

A 28-year-old Grand Rapids man was sentenced Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court to one year in the county jail, with credit for time served, for a conviction of larceny by conversion.

Timothy W. Wilson, whose sentence is to run concurrent with another sentence, pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) to the charge May 19.

Court records state he was charged with converting more than $100 in U.S. currency, belonging to Dawn M. Diebold, July 29, 1988, and Aug. 1, 1988, in Vassar Township.

Vassar resident Scott A. Bedell, 19, was sentenced to 3 years probation and ordered to pay $500 in court costs and fines plus attorney fees for a plea of guilty to delivering marijuana.

The offense occurred Nov. 2, 1988, in Vassar Township, according to records, which state Bedell also was ordered to attend a drug treatment program and serve 30 days in the county jail with work release.

In other proceedings Friday, Bonnie M. Beller, 48, of Akron, pleaded innocent during her arraignment on a charge of felonious assault.

A pre-trial is to be set for the defendant, whose bond was continued at $4,000.

Court records state Beller is charged with assaulting Casper Beller with a .22 caliber rifle May 22, 1987, in Fairgrove Township.

Richard E. Lawhead, 30, of Battle Creek, entered a plea of guilty to receiving and concealing stolen property July 24, 1988, in Kingston, and being an habitual offender.

Sentencing was slated for Aug. 18. Bond was continued at $100,000.

Richard J. Schank, 22, of Caro, pleaded innocent during his arraignment on a charge of probation violation. A hearing was set for July 10 at 8:30 a.m. His bond was set at $5,000.

Court records state Schank failed to report June 1 and thereafter.

Also Friday, a motion for an emergency bond was granted and set at $5,000 in a case against Roger W. Anderson of Deckerville. The motion prohibits the defendant from being alone in the presence of any female under the age of 16.

The bond was granted pending additional proceedings in the case against Anderson, who was convicted of first degree Criminal Sexual Conduct Nov. 3, 1987. He was then sentenced to a prison term of 3 to 15 years.

Court records state that in January, the Court of Appeals remanded the case for an evidentiary hearing, and in April, circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn ruled that the defendant was deprived of effective counsel.

Cass City police report 4 arrests

Police picked up Curtis E. Wynn, 27, of Gaggetown, from Gaggetown Police Saturday on a traffic warrant.

The warrant, out of 71B District Court, is for failing to appear or answer a complaint, and no proof of insurance, reports state.

Also, Darel J. Sweeney, 21, was arrested Friday on a warrant. He was one of 3 occupants in a vehicle that was stopped for speeding on Main Street near Doerr Road.

Reese man faces 2 charges in court

A Reese man was recently arraigned on 2 charges in Tuscola County District Court.

Charles J. Schultz, 20, faces charges of breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny, and manufacturing marijuana.

A preliminary examination for Schultz, whose bond was set at a total of $3,000 on the counts, was scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Friday.

According to court records, Schultz is charged with breaking into an apartment at 2201 S. Reese Rd., Reese, March 23. The drug related offense allegedly occurred March 24 in Denmark Township.

JAMES TURNER stands next to his wife, Alice, on their 101-year-old farm. Their farm was one of 40 Michigan farms, 3 in Tuscola County, to be certified as centennial farms.

Turner land receives centennial farm status

by Matt Bach Staff Writer
In 1887 Grover Cleveland was president, the American Federation of Labor was formed and James Turner's great-grandfather, Andrew, bought the family's farm. Over the years, James recalled, farming has been a good business for the Turner family. "We were the typical farm family. Farming has been good to us."

Recently this same farm was recognized by Michigan Secretary of State Richard Austin as being 101 years old, and it has been certified by the Michigan Historical Commission as a Centennial Farm.

Since the time Andrew bought the farm, which is off Elmwood Road west of M-81, it has been owned by James, his father Clare and his grandfather Dwight.

The farm was purchased by Andrew Nov. 1, 1887, from Daniel Dewey, according to the deed. James explained that he has no idea how much his great-grandfather paid for the land.

"Great-granddad only had it for a couple years. In fact, I don't think he ever lived on it," James remarked, adding Dwight was the first to actually work the land, which was primarily to feed their polled shorthorn cows. "Granddad's cows were his pride and joy. My dad was the same way. He liked his animals. "Back in those days all the farming was to feed the livestock. There wasn't much cash crop."

Andrew originally bought 80 acres. "My granddad and my dad expanded it after that. Granddad bought 100 acres in 1914. Sixty of those were for pasture. My dad then bought it from my granddad in 1921."

In 1899 Dwight built a new brick house in front of the existing house, which has since been torn down. That was on the farm when they purchased the property.

James' cousin, Clayton Turner, pointed out that his father, Aaron, was the brother of Clare. Both Clare and Aaron were born in the house which was torn down. "We always called it the old woodshed," Clayton said, laughing. He remarked that it was funny to think his father was born in a woodshed.

Although James couldn't recall any major mishaps or accidents on the farm, he said it wasn't easy. "They all worked hard on the land. A good share of the drainage tile in the field was dug by hand by granddad and dad."

James explained that he is his father's only child and he recalled working on the farm at a very early age. "It was just me and my dad working on 220 acres. Being an only child is not all it's cracked up to be. You don't have any brothers or sisters to play with and you have to take care of your parents when they're sick."

After Clare's death, James decided to sell off the cattle and rent out the land. "I quit farming in 1969 and went to work for an elevator." He recalled that it was no longer feasible for him to keep the farm. "With the economy and everything, this job came around and it looked better than farming."

But James never sold the land. He rents it. Currently, he lives with his wife, Alice, in a house his father built in 1947, which is up the hill from the old brick house.

Overall, James said, he has many fond memories of working on the farm with his father. "In 1936 I can remember when my dad got his first tractor. Before then they used horses. It was an old John Deere and he had a bag filled with straw set on a flat place on the transmission. I used to climb up there when he was plowing and fall asleep. You know how a kid is. You get him in a car and he goes to sleep."

He added that both his father and grandfather would be very happy knowing the farm received centennial recognition. "They'd be tickled to death."

Jordan College invited to 'race'

Jordan College, whose headquarters is in Cedar Springs, has been invited by General Motors to enter a solar-powered electric car in the July 1990 "Sunrayce" from Florida to Michigan. The car will use photovoltaic panels, space-age materials that convert sunlight directly into electricity, to power the vehicle. The college is building a new branch in Cass City.

The invitation was granted in response to a proposal prepared jointly by Jordan's Energy Institute campus in Comstock Park, and Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo. The 2 institutions will collaborate on design and construction of the racer.

The race will begin July 8, 1990 from General Motors' World of Motion pavilion in Florida and will end at the GM Technical Center in Warren, Mich. General Motors will send the top 3 winners of the July 1990 race to Australia to compete in the Sponsor World Solar Challenge race from Darwin, Australia, in the north to Adelaide, Australia, in the south. The American race will cover 1800 miles - all of the distance will be driven on power from the sun's rays only. The Australian race will be 1900 miles.

Students at the 2 schools will be heading up the teams involved in designing, building, and testing the race vehicle. Student, Russ Cole, is the JEI race car team leader who will direct the photovoltaic portion of the joint JEI/WMU race car project. Cole also video taped meetings, April 18 and 19, held by General Motors at the Detroit Metro Airport for all 32 solar race car teams.

Jordan College and Western Michigan University have divided the design and construction work. Jordan will handle the photovoltaic and battery portions, and Western Michigan will deal with the chassis, motor and drive train as well as the aerodynamic design of the body.

The team already received a commitment from Energy Conversion Devices in Troy, Mich., to supply the photovoltaic panels. ECD has also offered to supply batteries for the race car. "The ECD battery stores about twice as much energy as a typical rechargeable battery," said Dr. Conrad Heins, head of the Science and Technology Division of Jordan College.

HEALTH TIPS Help is available to curb sleeping difficulties

Worrying about poor sleep is enough to keep some people awake at night.

Now, a free brochure, entitled "Don't Take Poor Sleep Lying Down," is available to explain the causes of poor sleep. It also gives advice on how to talk to a doctor about sleeping difficulties.

In addition, the brochure spells out the dos and don'ts of proper sleep hygiene. Going to bed at the same time every night, avoiding naps and using the bedroom only for sleep are 3 key tips that can help people avoid nights of tossing and turning.

The brochure has been endorsed by the American Sleep Disorders Association, a group of sleep disorders centers and individual members united to improve the quality of care for patients with sleep disorders.

About 35 percent of adult Americans experience some sleeping difficulties at least once a year, and half of those people consider their sleeping problems serious.

Often, a person suffering from even a serious sleep-related disorder will be unaware of the cause of the problem. People who stop breathing hundreds of times a night or who rouse themselves by involuntary leg movements are not aware of their nocturnal behavior. But bed partners do notice. And bed partners also see the steady decline in waking-hour performance that accompanies severe sleep problems.

For this reason, bed partners are often crucial in helping doctors make a correct diagnosis. In fact, the most common referral source of a patient to a sleep disorders center is a spouse or loved one.

Most sleeping difficulties fall into the category of the insomnias -- the inability to get to sleep or to stay asleep. Doctors divide these into 3 categories: transient, short term and long term.

Transient and short-term insomnias are often caused by life stresses, such as travel across time zones or personal crises. A doctor should be consulted when the inability to sleep begins to hamper daytime performance. Long-term insomnia should always be evaluated by a physician.

Consumers who would like to receive this brochure can obtain it by sending a postcard with their name, and address on it to: Sleep Brochure, Sleep Science Center, P.O. Box B307, Coventry, CT 06238.

Name Fruendt to Arts and Science Institutes

Six Tuscola County high school juniors, including a Cass City resident, have been selected to attend the Michigan State Board of Education Summer Institutes for the Arts and Sciences.

Attending from the Tuscola Intermediate School District are Christopher Fruendt, Cass City; Tamara Gross and George Holmes, Caro; Melissa Pepera, Vassar, and Landi Lowell, Millington.

Fruendt, the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Allen Fruendt of Cass City, chose Olivet College as the site for his 2-week training in creative writing and global challenges for the 1990's.

The theme for the 2 weeks, June 25 through July 8, is "Critical Issues and Creative Expressions for the 90s and Beyond."

According to intermediate school officials, the purpose of the institutes, sponsored by the state board in conjunction with Michigan's universities and colleges, is to develop skills in the arts and sciences.

Students are selected by high schools on the basis of outstanding abilities which coincide with programs offered at each institute. The students are then interviewed by a selection committee at the intermediate school district level and their applications are forwarded to the Michigan Department of Education. Final selection is done at the state level.

Seat belt use at 50 percent

Michigan safety belt use continues to hover near the 50 percent mark since implementation of the safety belt use law July 1, 1985, according to state police officials.

Current usage is 46.7 percent for drivers and 45.6 percent for front seat occupants, a bold improvement over the pre-law usage rate of 18.3 percent.

The improvement of belt use since enactment of the law translates into significant cost savings to individuals and the state. Current estimates based on a 57-month analysis of hospital admissions and injury reduction indicate that the adult belt law prevented 43,493 injuries and allowed $548.1 million in cost savings between July 1985 and December 1986.

Darlene Monroe earns all-state softball honors

Cass City High School 1989 graduate Darlene Monroe received All State honorable mention distinctions 3 weeks ago.

Monroe received the honors for playing first base. She had a batting percentage of .426. She also led the high school team in runs batted in, home runs and triples. In addition, she made only 5 errors out of 23 games throughout the season, which gave her a fielding percentage of .959.

But the All State honorable mention honor is only part of her awards as a first baseman. She also received First Team All-District, First Team All-Region and Second Team All-Conference.

In addition, Monroe won the award for Cass City's most Outstanding Girl Athlete. This award goes to a senior each year. Monroe's softball coach, Dave Hoard, said she deserves the recognition she is receiving.

"She's probably one of the best girl athletes to come through Cass City High School. She's a very well rounded athlete. The other teammates looked toward her for leadership and she was a good leader and an all around nice person."

Hoard added that Monroe received a scholarship to Oakland University to play volleyball. "She excelled at whatever she did."

TRAVELING THIS SUMMER

There is nothing more frustrating than breaking or losing your glasses five miles or 5,000 miles from home. Unless you have an extra pair with you, it can destroy a vacation or certainly put a damper on a business trip. Even if you have packed a copy of your prescription, an optometrist in the wilds of Canada or the canyons of Wall Street may not be able to replace your glasses immediately.

That's one good reason to have an extra pair of glasses with you when you travel. It also makes good sense to have an extra pair in your office desk and in the glove compartment of your car.

Extra pairs should have your latest lens prescription and should fit you properly. You may wish to have them made as attractive as your primary pair, with tints or anti-scratch coating. Or, for economy's sake, your latest prescription can be put in simple, moderately priced frames.

In any case - to borrow a phrase - don't leave home without extra glasses.

Car-deer mishap reported

Minor damage was sustained in a car-deer mishap Thursday on Cemetery Road north of Wilcox Road, Cass City police reported.

Hilda Zajac, 6710 Legg Rd., Kingston, stated she was northbound at about 7:15 p.m. when her vehicle collided with the animal.

Deputies arrest 2 area motorists

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies arrested 2 area drivers over the weekend on suspicion of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

According to reports, Jack L. Kincaid, 35, 3300 Phillips Rd., Kingston, was arrested Friday night after losing control of his northbound vehicle on Kingston Road south of Centerline Road in Koylton Township.

Kincaid, whose vehicle veered into the southbound lane before going into a

Your neighbor says

People should obey flag burning law

By now most people have heard about the United States Supreme Court ruling making it legal to burn the U.S. flag in protest. The ruling was made after a man burned the flag and was arrested for it.

Since the ruling was decided 2 weeks ago many people have become extremely unhappy about the decision. For instance, in Bay City there was a large gathering of people who signed petitions protesting the judgement.

Your neighbor Jerry McPhillips, telephone company supervisor, pointed out that he doesn't like the ruling but he will still abide by it. "I've given it a lot of thought. The highest court in the land says it is not illegal. We have to support the highest court in the land."

"I don't agree with what this guy has done. But I'll defend his right to do it as long as the law of the land says it's legal."

McPhillips, who has worked in Cass City for 15 years but resides in Brown City, has been in the military reserves for the past 26 years. He remarked that military people like himself know the true meaning of the flag. "The original intent of flags were to lead armies into battle. It's a war memorial and the symbol of our country. You never get the true sense of the flag unless you're standing to attention in a uniform while the flag is being raised."

He added that the people who burn the flag do not realize the meaning of the flag. "I feel sorry for them. They don't have something in their mind, soul or spirit of any value. These same people would burn the Bible and go in a graveyard and tip over a gravestone."

Don Graf lauded by commissioners

Tuscola County commissioners lauded retiring long-time Equalization Director Don Graf during a regular meeting last week.

Graf retired Saturday after 17 years of service, including 12 years as equalization director.

A resolution approved by the board in Graf's honor states in part that the county official "... has exemplified the meaning of dedication through his years of service as both a county commissioner and the county equalization director. He has performed technical and complex work with great professionalism and outstanding competency."

In other business during the June 27 session, commissioners approved several personnel related motions.

The board concurred with the appointments of Cindy Woodruff as an account clerk and Dale Balzer as a general office clerk, both in district court; entered into a one-year agreement with Beckie Oberemiller to provide janitorial services at the DSS building, and authorized the clerk to fill a vacancy on the Screening Commission.

Also, the board: *Approved a motion stating that the planned dog licensing enforcement program has been put on hold due to delays and other aspects involved in the program.

*Approved 2 items presented by Cooperative Extension Director Bill Bortel related to funding of the home economist position in his office.

*Voted to offer a worksite wellness program, offered by the county Health Department, to courthouse and sheriff's department employees.

ditch, was driving while his license was suspended and had no proof of insurance, deputies reported.

Kincaid's vehicle sustained minor damage in the 6:35 p.m. accident.

Deputies also arrested Lorrie A. Hurley, 23, 6742 Pine St., Cass City, who was stopped on Bay City-Forestville Road near Hurds Corner Road in Elmwood Township Sunday.

Hurley was stopped because of excessive speed and for driving left of the road center line, reports state.

"We have great plans for you," is the motto for Equitable Life, a highly rated insurance company that has been around a long time. One of Equitable's "great plans" is a split annuity. It looks like one of these no-nonsense deals, with security and tax advantages to attract the investor. Here is what Equitable offers:

The 86% tax-free feature is because 86% of the total amount you get is the return of your own money. Say you put $34,256 in a money market fund and withdrew $8,226 each year. Most of it is your own money. Naturally you wouldn't be taxed on it. The tax liability on the $65,774 deferred annuity is

$100,000 single deposit
(may be as low as $20,000)

----- divided -----

$65,744	$34,256
5 year deferred annuity	5 year immediate annuity grows in 5 years to $100,000	annual income $8,226
for return of principal	86% tax free passed over. The IRS won't pass it over, though, when that $65,774 annuity is cashed out at $100,000. There's tax on it of 28% under present rates. So instead of $100,000, you get the after-28% deduction to net $90,408.

Over on the annual income side, where you start out with $34,256, and draw out $8,226 a year: That's a total of $41,130. The difference is taxable income. Apply 28% tax to the $6,874 difference and you have left $4,949. (Tax is $1,925). Time for a re-cap. Don't go away.

5-year after-tax return

On deferred annuity.....	$90,408
On immediate annuity.....	$39,205
($8,226 x 5 yrs. less $1925 tax)
Total after taxes.....	$129,613
Less original investment.....	$100,000
Net income.....	$29,613

Now for the simplified country-boy approach. Take the $100,000 and put it in a tax-free municipal bond, yielding 7.5%. Result:

Income per year (no tax).....	$7,500
For 5 years.....	$37,500
Original investment.....	$100,000
Still intact, so 5 yr. total is.....	$137,500
Net income.....	$37,500

Compare the 2 plans and you are $7,887 ahead. Mainly that's because you haven't paid a high commission to a life insurance salesman.

Nitpickers will point out that your "draw" of the $7,500 tax-free interest isn't as much as the after-tax "draw" of $7,841 of the insurance plan. But the grand total is what matters.

One way you get a 5-year total of $137,500. The life insurance route you get $129,613. Pay your money and take your choice.

Gov. Blanchard eyes changes in state product liability laws

Allowing employees to sue grossly negligent employers in cases involving product liability, as a way of discouraging dangerous practices, was among 13 recommendations made to Governor James J. Blanchard by a special counselor who was asked last year to review the state's product liability laws.

Aides expressed hope that many of the proposals can be taken up by the Legislature this fall.

Lawrence Mann, a law professor, said more than 50 percent of the dollars paid out in product liability relate to workplace accidents or injuries, and currently the employer is not liable. "There is no deterrent to unsafe conduct," he said. Mann said although concerns are being voiced by all businesses regarding the products liability question the problems are more crucial for smaller businesses. "I think you've got to look at this in a stratified manner. You can't look at product liability globally. You have to look at who is getting hit," he said.

Other recommendations made by Mr. Mann covered 3 areas: the present insurance system, substantive law and the court system. In the insurance area, Mann said the state's anti-trust exemptions should be repealed, requiring insurance companies to individually determine loss ratios and set policy rates.

While the Legislature is currently considering a package of bills which would deal with the anti-trust issue, Mann said he is uncertain whether the accusations that the industry is "gouging" the public are true.

"I think the dynamics inherent in the industry are at the root of the problem," he said. Mann also said a Liability Insurance Task Force, charged with evaluating current laws regarding cancellation and non-renewal, should be appointed, and a periodic closed claims study should be conducted for products liability and other major tort claims. Also, the current 10 day notice of cancellation should be extended to 45 days, he said.

In the area of substantive law, Mann suggested a standard jury instruction to "reasonably inform jurors of the consequences of the doctrine of joint and several liability" wherein a company with any degree of fault is potentially liable for the entire damage award.

Also under substantive law, Mann recommended the establishment of a reasonableness standard for damages for non-economic injury.

Recommendations in the court area included development of a reporting system for products liability filings, verdicts and settlements, which Mann said would enable judges throughout the state to use some sort of standard by which to make decisions.

He also suggested that major products liability cases and other complex personal injury cases be given specific trial dates, and that the current minimum of $10,000 used for circuit court cases be changed to $50,000.

Mann said the recommendations reflected limited information, because of 2,700 surveys sent to Michigan manufacturers, only 8 percent responded. "It doesn't lend itself to broad generalizations," he said.

The recommendations were reviewed by Blanchard and will most likely become his position on liability reform, said Commerce Director Doug Ross.

And those of the recommendations which will require statutory action will be considered this fall following a review with both the House and Senate leadership, he added.

NURSING HOMES SUE

Plagued by what they believe is inadequate state funding and concerned about the potential deterioration in their quality of care, Michigan nursing homes announced a lawsuit against the state over "inadequate" Medicaid payments.

But while an aide to Rep. David Hollister (D-Lansing), chair of the House Social Services Subcommittee, called it a "positive" step, the lawsuit is opposed by the Department of Social Services and a key Republican senator.

The lawsuit was filed against the DSS in U.S. District Court in Kalamazoo by the Health Care Association of Michigan (HCAM) and the Michigan Non-Profit Homes Association (MNPFA), the state's 2 largest nursing home associations, in an attempt to force the state to increase Medicaid payments for nursing home care.

The plaintiffs maintain that the state has violated federal law through the establishment of unlawfully low Medicaid payment rates to nursing homes, and are seeking a preliminary injunction against continued payment of current rates.

Charles E. Harmon, executive vice-president of HCAM, said that nearly 70 percent of nursing homes in the state are not receiving the proper costs for caring for Medicaid patients.

"By federal law the state is required to cover the fair costs of nursing homes through the Medicaid system," he said, adding that the state has under funded nursing homes by $13 million over the past 5 years and nursing homes received only a 0.25 percent increase in funding last year.

"We have no recourse but to sue," Harmon said. "It's a question of setting priorities. We cannot continue to function within a budget that will not address our basic costs. We ought to be given at least as good a shot as the prison system and the education system."

The lawsuit is based on a 1980 federal law that states Medicaid rates must be reasonable and adequate to meet the costs incurred by efficiently and economically operated facilities. In addition, the law prevents states from setting long-term care facility payment rates solely on the basis of budgetary constraints.

Kevin Seitz, director of the medical services administration for DSS, said he has not yet reviewed the filing, but said that DSS is not shortchanging nursing homes. "Generally speaking, we believe we are operating the program within the parameters of the law," he said.

Sen. Robert Geake (R-Northville), chair of the Senate Social Services Subcommittee, said he is "very sympathetic with the cause of the nursing home industry. I definitely feel Medicaid payments in the past have not been adequate."

But, Geake said he did not view the lawsuit as "a very constructive approach. I believe the Legislature will provide as much money as we have available. The court is not likely to order any more."

The lawsuit, part of the so-called "Boren lawsuits" which are named after the sponsor of the amendment to the Social Security Act, have been filed in a number of states and have met with varying degrees of success. The 2 organizations filing the suit, HCAM and MNPFA, represent 330 nursing homes throughout Michigan which provide nursing home care to some 37,000 patients.

Rectal Suppositories

Medicines intended for rectal application are available as suppositories, creams, and solutions. Suppositories are generally given for three reasons: (1) it is not possible or practical to give medicines by mouth, such as when the person is vomiting or is unconscious; (2) a rapid absorption and systemic response from the medicine is needed; or (3) the intended site of action is in the rectal area itself.

Medicines given rectally may act locally as in the case of hemorrhoids or suppositories used to evacuate the colon in cases of constipation. Other rectal suppository medicine ingredients are designed to be absorbed from the colon directly into the blood stream. Medicine ingredients are rapidly absorbed into the blood stream and carried to all parts of the body.

Before inserting rectal suppositories, make certain that they are firm to the touch. If the suppository is too soft, hold it (in the foil wrapper) under cool water for a few minutes to allow it to harden. Lie on your left side if you are right handed. Remove the foil wrapper and gently insert the suppository (the pointed end first) into the rectum. Wait a few minutes to make certain the suppository is properly inserted.
