Tuscola Fair off to flying start

When the Tuscola County Fair of 1989 began on Sunday, all events were free of charge. So the fair committee members will never know for sure how many people attended.

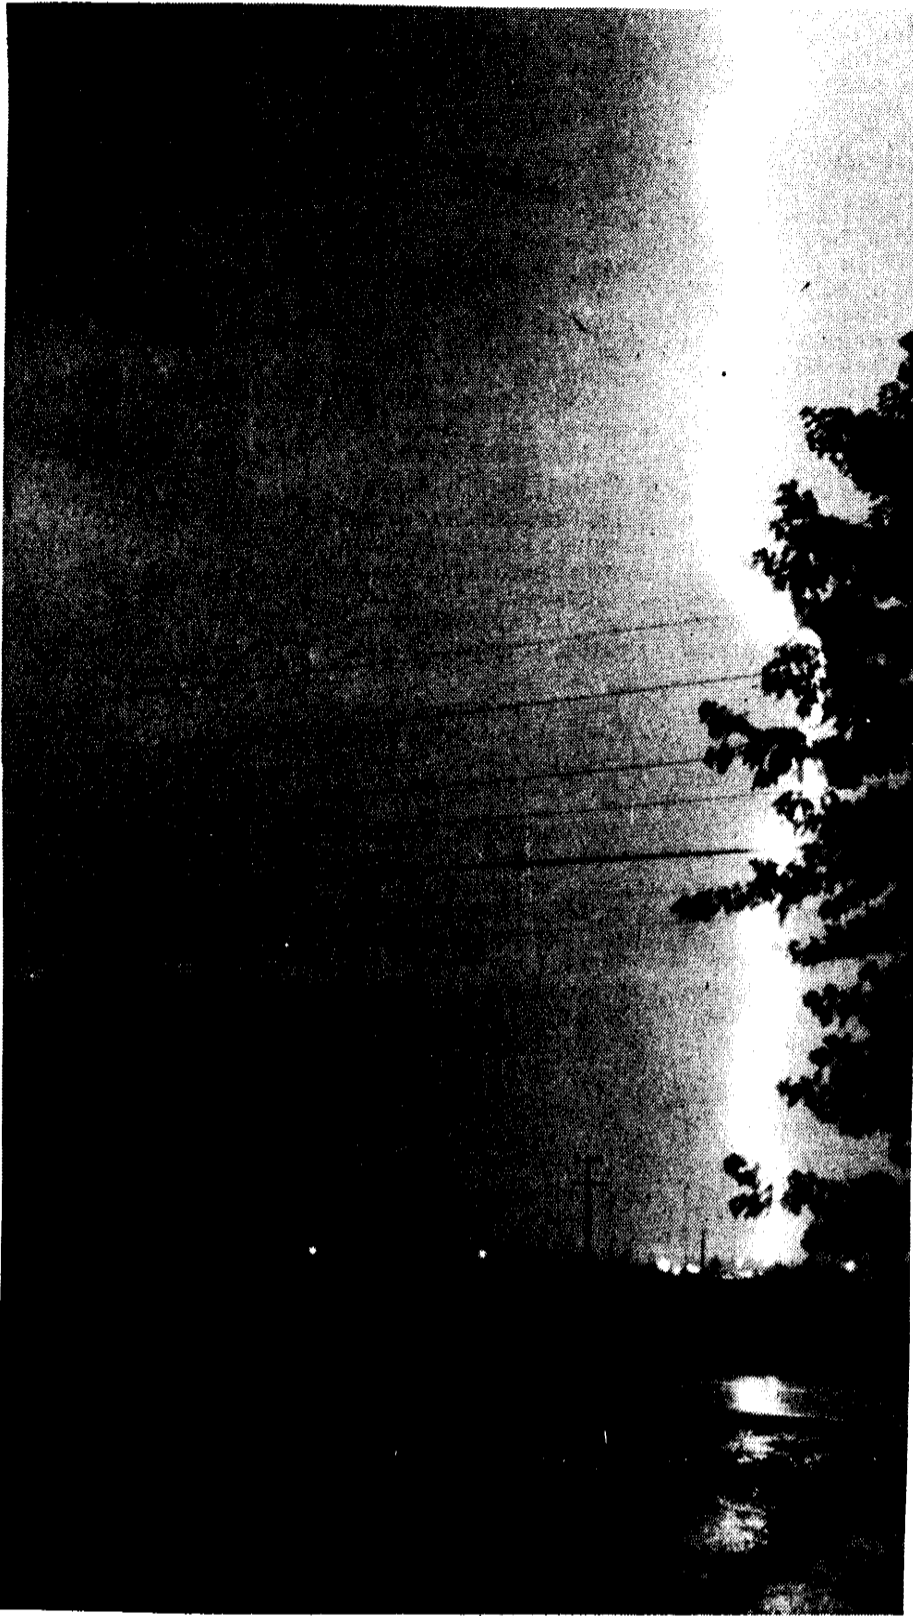

But fair president Walter Jackson remarked that Sunday's attendance was very large despite some mishaps. "It was the most people I've ever seen on a Sunday," Jackson reported, adding, "I think we're getting off to a pretty good start."

Jackson explained that the nice weather may have contributed to the success on Sunday. However, the truck pull ran into some difficulties when the pulling machine broke.

The mechanical failure caused an hour delay for all events at the grandstand while fair workers had to send to Fairgrove to get another pulling machine. After the problem was cured everything went smoothly.

The 4-H talent show followed the pickup pull and it was won by Jennifer Petrin, who did a dance routine. In second place was Amy Byers, who also danced, and third place went to Bobbie Jo Sapien, who sang.

After the talent show, 4-H and FFA Division General Superintendent John Wurm announced the 1989 and 1990 4-H King and Queen as Bob Battel, from Cass City, and Shawna Phillips, from Silverwood.

CRACK! — LAST week's electrical storm brought not only welcome rains and cool temperatures, but also an explosive light show. This photo was taken just south of the intersection of M-81 and Koepfgen Road, looking towards Cass City.

Area folk tell pet ways to beat the heat

by Matt Bach
Staff Writer

"We're havin' a heat wave, a tropical heat wave?" Well not really.

But last week there were several humid days in a row with temperatures in the upper 80s, so it may have seemed like a heat wave.

"It's a fact that with the humidity, it seems warmer than it actually is," commented Rick Mohr, superintendent of the Waste Water Treatment Plant.

But the cooler weather over the weekend calmed things down a bit.

Nevertheless, several area residents are doing all they can to stay cool. "My son, Chris, is going to Africa," remarked Cass City resident Margie Crutchfield, adding, "It's winter there, so it's going to be a little cooler."

Crutchfield pointed out that her parents, Lyle and Jean Clarke, are in Africa and Chris, 9, is going to visit them in August.

The Crutchfields, who include Margie and her husband Mark, their son Chris and daughter Jennifer, 5, do a variety of things in an attempt to cool off. "We go swimming in our pond," Margie explained. "We usually go in the pond once a week or so. It depends if the kids get their way or not."

This week their family is going on a 2-week trip in the Upper Peninsula. "I'm hoping it's cooler up there."

In addition to all this, the Crutchfields sometimes seek refuge in the Rawson Memorial Library. "Our air conditioner is broken in our car so one day we went to the library to cool off."

Margie added that she sometimes hoses her kids down in their yard and in the beginning of the summer she had Chris and Jennifer take swimming lessons at the Helen Stevens Memorial Pool.

Audrey Schering, 15, commented that she, too, goes swimming at the pool as much as possible. "We go swimming and we just got back from camping at Sleeper State Park."

The pool is also a place to get away from it all for Michelle Hanby and her 2-year-old son, Caleb. "He took lessons here at the end of June," Michelle remarked, while wading in the shallow end of the Cass City pool. "We come here a lot of times on Sundays when it's hot."

Hanby added that they have a basement in their home and Caleb often plays down there where it's cooler. "He's got a lot of his toys down there," she noted. Michelle pointed out that they sometimes go bike riding but she didn't know if they cool down while riding or not.

KEEPING BUSY

Although Cass City resident Clara Bond doesn't go to the pool, she explained that she has a sure-fire way to beat the heat. "The harder you can work, the less you mind the heat."

Bond added that she keeps busy enough so she doesn't think about the warmth. "I quilt at the Cultural Center," she remarked, adding, "I live on a farm and there's always lawn work, a lot of outside work."

In addition, Bond said she does a lot of sewing and goes square dancing as much as possible.

On the other hand, Eva and Glenn Tousley of Deford said they stay cool by relaxing and taking it easy. "We try not to do too much," remarked Eva. "We try to eat light and I avoid (cooking) as much as possible," she commented, adding they eat a lot of fruit and sandwiches.

But Eva explained she does some yard work when she can tolerate the weather. "We do yard work in the morning or early evenings," when it's cooler. "When it's so hot and humid, there's not much reason in going out."

Shirley and William Shaw pointed out that they, too, do their yard work early in the morning or later in the evening. "We have a lot of shade and that helps a lot."

STAYING COOL

Shirley added that they have a system for staying cool. "We usually shut up everything in the house in the morning. We have a fan running at night and it cools off the downstairs."

Tom Wallace, 21, noted that they do this type of system at his house too. "My folks keep the house shut up and keep the fans on all day. Then we lay in front of the

2 mills needed

Full school program in hands of voters

The Cass City School District will try again to secure 2 additional mills for operation for one year at a special election Tuesday, Aug. 8. The polls are at Cass City High School.

In the first election the additional millage was defeated by 26 votes. There was very little advance publicity about the first election and despite the tax issue less than 25 percent of the registered voters were interested enough to go to the polls.

Although school officials and the school board were ready to discuss the issues with any person or group, there has been little campaigning this time around either.

One major difference is that the board has outlined the cuts that will be enacted if the voters turn down the millage a second time.

Nine areas of cuts were outlined and approved by the school board. The major items include the cut of 2 teachers that will enlarge some classes to 35 students and the elimination of backtracking on school buses requiring a few students to walk up to a half mile.

Other cuts are the elimination of elementary sports, all intermediate sports except track and basketball and all freshman football and basketball. There will be cuts in maintenance and an estimated $75,000 deficit which will be taken from reserves previously established.

Judging by the costs of operation of all area schools Cass City school officials can present a strong case for the need of the money. The school raises 28.9 mills for operation now which is the lowest rate in the county and among the lowest in Michigan. If the 2 additional mills are passed and other schools' millage requests granted it will remain the lowest. Cass City also spends less per pupil than any other district.

The school district has a history of reluctant support. Requests for extra millage have failed in several instances and at one time caused an abortive try for the recall of school board members.

Except for a brief period in 1982 there never has been a cash crisis great enough to cause an acute interruption of school services.

Koylton vote to decide if "camp" fight continues

A "decent" turnout is expected for a special election in Koylton Township Tuesday that may decide the fate of funding for the township Zoning Board's legal fight to close Pioneer Work and Learn Camp.

The township's 800 registered voters will be asked to approve a request of 2 additional mills for 3 years.

The millage, which would raise about $25,000 per year, would be earmarked for general operational expenses. But township officials say the extra revenue is being requested to offset legal fees in the township's battle to close the controversial juvenile detention facility, located south of Kingston.

Officials also say rejection of the measure will probably mean the end of funding for the legal fight.

"If we don't get any money, we'll have to quit," township Clerk Winford Groner said.

"We've spent about $30,000 on zoning in the past year and a half. We started out with $50,000 (in fund equity), and now we're down to nothing," he added.

"It's not real serious yet, but I don't intend to let it get that way."

Zoning Board Chairman Russell Mayer indicated he believes the township board has jumped the gun in calling for a millage election.

"There are too many unanswered questions, there are too many loose ends," he remarked.

Attorneys representing the camp and the zoning board presented their closing arguments June 15 after more than 3 months of hearings in front of the township Zoning Board of Appeals, which has been asked to decide whether the use of Kingston Hills Camp as a "work and learn" facility represents an illegal non-conforming use.

A decision by the appeals board isn't expected until late next month or early September.

"The major part of the battle is over," Mayer pointed out. "Once we can get the Zoning Board of Appeals squared away—get their answer..."

Mayer said he believes the township has the money to continue remaining legal proceedings against the camp, but that the township board is unwilling to juggle the budget.

"Something's wrong," he said. "I want to see the bills. I don't feel comfortable when they say, 'well, we don't have any money.'"

$100,000 projects

Village okays foot trail and water slide following hearing

Cass City Village officials will go ahead with grant applications for a water slide and improvements to a foot trail following a lightly attended special public meeting Thursday.

Aside from village officials, only 3 persons attended the 50-minute session, required as part of the application process.

As was the case during the council's regular meeting early last week, the $60,000 grant being sought for the water slide raised some eyebrows Thursday night. Similarly, an increase in the grant amount to be sought for the foot trail, from $25,000 to $40,000, also was met with hesitation.

Resident Jeanne de Sainte Marie commented she was shocked at the water slide price tag.

"I have no objection to the idea of a water slide. I just wonder if there aren't better ways to spend the money," she told the council.

de Sainte Marie suggested the money might better be used to provide what the village lacks—a facility geared towards use by high school-aged youths, particularly during the winter. She asked whether a water slide wouldn't be more for younger kids, those in junior high school and younger.

Trustee Dorothy Stahlbaum, a member of the committee that proposed purchase of the slide, remarked she has talked to a lot of young people who expressed enthusiasm for a slide at the pool.

"I don't look at it as entertainment for 3 or 4-year-olds," she said. "I look at it as teenage-type entertainment."

Two members of the pool staff, Mike Jones and Alicia Bliss, expressed agreement. "My staff is real enthusiastic about it," Bliss said.

GOOD IDEA

"Nothing in our park draws more young people than the pool," Stahlbaum continued. "The idea of the slide is to give younger people another activity in the park, and I think it's a good idea."

Following discussion of other possible recreation projects, Trustee Mike Weaver remarked he doesn't believe there is a way for the council to provide teens with a facility or activity that will truly satisfy them.

Village President L.E. Althaver agreed, noting the community in past years has tried to establish various teen community centers. "We have not been able to find a way to meet the needs of teenagers," he added.

Turning to the proposed footpath improvements Althaver noted that after the council's meeting last week, a rough estimate was sought for construction of an overlook over the Cass River, located at the south end of the 1 1/2-mile trail.

The estimate was much higher than expected he said, adding based on the estimate along with other proposed improvements—signs, barriers, rest areas, 2 small bridges, brush clearing and other work—the grant request would have to be increased to $40,000 to complete the entire project at one time.

WORTH THE COST? However, Althaver announced. Please turn to page 14.

Ron Nurnberger, above with student Melissa Hitsman, says he's seeing more and more kids who have never gotten behind the wheel of car.

Fewer kids getting behind wheel before driver's education

When Ron Nurnberger began teaching driver's education in the Cass City School district, most of the students he saw at the beginning of each session were eager, well behaved and had already had some driving experience.

Even if they hadn't driven a lot, they were familiar with a car; many had driven on a back road or driveway at one time or another with a parent.

Now, 15 years later, students are still eager and well behaved, but fewer and fewer are arriving to class with even a basic knowledge of cars and how they work.

Teaching driver's education is "one of the purest teaching situations — it's a great teaching situation — because it's (license) something they want so bad," Nurnberger remarked.

However, he added, "We have more and more kids who haven't gotten behind the wheel or turned the key. We might see as many as 25 or 30 percent who haven't driven a car; they've never even started a car."

More restrictive auto insurance rules may be the biggest reason why fewer parents are taking their teens out for occasional "driving" lessons.

Regardless, less experienced students are making the job of teaching driver's education an even greater challenge, according to Nurnberger.

Although the state used to require that each student receive 6 hours of driving time, the law was changed 4 years ago to 2 to 6 hours, based on the judgement of the instructor, in addition to 30 hours of classroom work.

"It's a little harder for teachers than it was 10 years ago. We're spending more and more time going over basic information," he explained.

Dave Hoard, who has teamed up with Nurnberger over the past decade to build Cass City's driver's ed program, agreed.

A LOT TOUGHER
"It makes it a lot tougher," he said. "It seems like more and more kids are coming in where they seem like they don't have any experience, except the farm kids. They don't know how a car handles."

Because of budget constraints, few Cass City students get a full 6 hours of driving time, but Nurnberger and Hoard have devised a system in which each student receives the most experience possible in the time they have on the road.

The system consists of a lot of road time in Caro and on expressways in the Bay City-Saginaw area after some practice in a school parking lot and in Cass City.

"We consistently average 4 to 4 1/2 hours (of driving) per student. We determine after the first time how much time they need to be safety conscious and understand how the car works," Nurnberger explained, adding each student also learns a great deal by watching their classmates drive.

"We really try to get everybody to the expressway after the first time," he continued. "We could stay in the Thumb and it would be much easier and safer, (but) in the short amount of time, it's the biggest shock experience."

SHOCK EXPERIENCE
"Shock experiences" aren't limited to the students, according to the area driving instructors.

Nurnberger pointed out the boredom involved in riding the same routes every day can get to him, "but just after a couple days of that, something happens that gets your heart rate up."

"You never know what's going to happen or when, but it happens — when you've got to hit the brake or grab the wheel," he remarked.

"And the majority of things are not the student's fault, and that's the truth."

Numberberger, who has also taught driver's ed to emotionally impaired students, noted nearly all student drivers are tense and reluctant at times, particularly when entering an expressway or encountering an aggressive semi driver.

"We've been cut off the road. We've had to lock 'em up and screech down the road," he continued, adding, "A lot of people run stop signs."

A LITTLE TENSE
"It has its moments where things get a little tense," Hoard agreed. "It doesn't do any good to get excited in the car — you try to remain as calm as you can, but if the situation calls for it, we're not afraid to use the brake that we have or grab the wheel," he said.

Despite many close calls, the local program's worst accident in years has been a minor fender bender.

Nurnberger said he feels comfortable that students in Cass City leave the classroom with the basic knowledge and abilities they need to get started.

Aside from the time on the road, he remarked, "We've stayed pretty tight" on the state's requirement of 30 hours in the classroom.

"You miss class, you're out," he said, adding that of 100 to 140 students who attend driver's ed each year, 7 to 12 might fail, and 5 to 10 of those fail because of problems in the classroom.

Still, he and Hoard pointed out, just because students pass driver's education doesn't mean they're ready for a driver's license right away. "I think a big misconception that some parents have is that driver's education is here to teach them how to be a good driver," Hoard said. "The program isn't set up to make them experienced, it's here to give them the basics of driving and the rules of the road," he added. "From there it's up to the parents to teach them the rest."

Snover youths participate

Two area youths attended a 4-H program, entitled Citizenship-Washington Focus, that was designed to encourage 4-H'ers to become in-involved in community projects. Teresa Berden and Neil Best, both of Snover, were among some 4,000 young people from around the country who examined their rights and responsibilities as citizens this summer at the National 4-H Center, Chevy Chase, Md.

The program, which runs each week from June 4 to August 12, helps young people, ages 15 to 19, better understand how the government functions at all levels and learn how to effectively use local government processes to address issues.

Berden and Best went to the center from July 15 to July 22 with 48 other 4-H'ers from Michigan. The students took educational trips to federal agencies and other organizations in Washington D.C., such as the Kennedy Center for Performing Arts, Mount Vernon, the Washington Cathedral and the Vietnam Veterans Memorial.

The CWF is one of the largest of the national citizenship education programs. It is planned and conducted by the Cooperative Extension system of the state land-grant universities and the Extension Service. The program is arranged and supported by the National 4-H Council.

Class of '59 holds reunion July 22

A videotape of Ruth Esau's 1946-47 afternoon kindergarten class in Cass City was among the highlights of the 30th reunion of Cass City High School's Class of 1959, held July 22 at Rolling Hills Golf Course, Cass City.

The home movie, transferred to videotape, was taken by the late Dr. Starrman, whose daughter, Suzanne Mulligan, was a member of the class.

Also presented during the reunion, attended by 65 persons, was a brief program by Linda Herron, Cass City, who was president of the Class of '59.

Shabbona-area resident Janet Severance said about 34 class members were in attendance. There were 108 members in the original class.

The Cass City area was well represented, but there also were a number of class members who traveled from Indiana, Illinois and other areas to attend, she said.

Also present were 3 teachers, Cass City resident Bob Stickle, who attended with his wife, Barb, and Jim and Ruth Seals of Ashley.

VALERIE HUDSON (RIGHT) and her mother, Patricia Mills, both of Cass City, are taking advantage of the new microfilm/microfiche equipment at Rawson Memorial Library to research their family's history.

With new equipment

Library to offer more back issues

The capability to offer more back issues of several periodicals and the Cass City Chronicle has been greatly enhanced at Rawson Memorial Library thanks to a recent grant.

Head Librarian Barbara Hutchinson announced the library received a Federal Library Services Construction Act discretionary award of $5,000.

The grants are competitive and are offered to all Michigan libraries. In the category of Small/Rural Library Development, 28 libraries, including Rawson Memorial Library, received grants of up to $5,000, Hutchinson said, adding the total money awarded statewide for all categories was $560,000.

Rawson Memorial Library officials used the money to purchase a microfilm reader and a microfiche/microfilm reader/printer.

Hutchinson remarked the purchase is part of a plan to offer better service to patrons by converting back issues of periodicals and the Chronicle to microfiche and microfilm.

Currently, back issues of the newspaper from 1971 to the current year are available on microfilm at the library.

"Previously, the library kept back issues of periodicals for 5 years," Hutchinson said. "The new policy will be to purchase 15 of the news and weekly periodicals most used for reference on microfiche, resulting eventually in back files much longer than 5 years."

"Conversion to microfiche and microfilm saves a great deal of space at the library. Microfiche for 15 magazine subscriptions for one year fits into a box that takes less space than issues for one magazine for one year," she continued.

Hutchinson noted magazine articles can be located on the reader and printed out. The new equipment can also be used to read census records, newspapers and other materials, which are helpful for research and genealogy, available on microfilm and microfiche by special order.

Information about interloaning material, as well as how to use the new equipment, is available at the library, 6495 Pine St.

Letters to the editor

Sanilac commissioners air purpose of millage request

Dear Editor,
Certain questions have been raised as to why the Sanilac County Board of Commissioners has asked the voters of Sanilac County to approve, Aug. 15, the levy of an additional 9/10ths of a mill property tax for General Fund operations.

County General Fund revenue is made up of a 5-mill property tax allocation, grants, service fees, fines, contract revenues, reimbursements, etc.

The 5 mills of property tax revenue portion represents only 45 percent of the total amount of our $5.3 million budget. This amount has declined from 57 percent in just 4 years. This decline amounts to a loss of approximately $350,000 in operating revenue. Also during this period, $670,000 of annual Federal Revenue Sharing funds were eliminated by Congress, which was used in supporting county services.

to continue to provide these services at the present level, the increased millage is necessary.

Signed,

Les Kraft, Chairman

Reader says she's not mistaken

Dear Editor and Dear Mr. Haire:

Your note concerning my letter printed in the Cass City Chronicle, July 26, 1989, states that I am "mistaken about the previous votes." My letter concerned ONLY ONE VOTE, the one requested by petitions, not VOTES as you state. I am not mistaken about the vote requested by petitions, or what appeared on the ballots. The information in my letter is correct.

I do not remember the year, but you list it as 1982. If this is the correct year, then the vote taken as a result of the petitions would be the third vote you mention.

Thank you,

Lucille V. Lounsbury

EDITOR'S NOTE: No petitions were ever presented to the Cass City School Board in 1982, at least officially.

The sequence of the voting was:

April 30 - an additional 5.5 mills for operation defeated 1,218 to 914.

June 14 - 2 mills for curriculum defeated 961 to 747. 3 mills for transportation defeated 1000 to 714. One-half mill for extracurricular activities defeated 1034 to 664.

Sept. 30 - 4 mills for operation passed 1224 to 1147.

One shed leveled, another damaged in weekend blaze

An extension cord is suspected in a fire Sunday afternoon that destroyed one shed and damaged another at a Decker area residence.

Elkland Township Fire Chief Dick Root said Monday that a 20 by 30-foot storage shed at the Randy Smith residence, 5197 Decker Rd., was leveled and the side of a larger storage barn nearby damaged in the blaze.

Root, who estimated damage at $17,500, said the suspect extension cord was used to supply power to appliances located in the shed.

Fire fighters, who spent about 2 hours at the scene, were called at 3:15 p.m. after passersby notified Smith that his shed was on fire. Assisting in the effort was the Elmwood-Gagetown Fire Department, which provided a tanker truck.

Also over the past week, Elkland firemen responded to a grass fire at about 12:50 p.m. last Wednesday at the Robert Sawdon residence, 140 Cemetery Rd.

Root said Sawdon was burning trash when some got out of the barrel and ignited a fire, but the blaze was out before fire fighters arrived on the scene.

Insurance firms merge in Cass City

One of Cass City's long-time businesses has become a part of the Harris-Hampshire Agency following the announcement of a merger by Doerr Insurance Agency.

The Doerr Agency was owned and operated by Ed Doerr, who is a native of Cass City and operated the agency in the community for over 30 years.

Doerr said that he will now be located at the Harris-Hampshire Agency, where he will offer clients the services of companies he represented as well as those represented by Harris-Hampshire. I feel that with the merger, my clients will be better served, Doerr said.

In addition to his long career in business in Cass City, Doerr taught school at Cass City High School.

Effective Sleep-Aid Medicines

Earlier this year, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), through a panel studying nonprescription sleep-aids, determined that three sleep-aid product ingredients are safe and effective for general use. These ingredients are doxylamine succinate, diphenhydramine hydrochloride and diphenhydramine citrate.

The panel concluded that products containing pyralamine maleate, potassium bromide, and scopolamine hydrobromide are not effective as sleep-aids.

The FDA also approved labeling requirements for these products including:

- Do not give to children under 12.
- Avoid alcoholic beverages while taking this product.
- Do not take this product if you have asthma, glaucoma, chronic pulmonary disease, shortness of breath, difficulty in breathing, or difficulty in urination due to enlargement of the prostate gland, unless directed by a doctor.
- If sleeplessness persists continuously for more than two weeks, consult your doctor. Insomnia may be a symptom of serious underlying medical illness.

"THE CALL'S ON ME"

Huron Community Fair scheduled for Aug. 6-12

The 121st annual Huron Community Fair will get underway Sunday at the fairgrounds in Bad Axe.

This year's fair will offer something for all ages, according to officials, who have scheduled a host of 4-H and FFA activities as well as special events throughout the week.

Among the featured daily activities will be 4 days of harness racing, Tuesday through Friday, and rides set up by Crown Amusements Inc.

Special events scheduled for day one of the fair include a rodeo at 2 p.m. and a heavy weight horse pull at 7:30 p.m.

Monday will offer a swine show at 8:30 a.m., followed at 9 a.m. by a 4-H horse show. Also, the FFA Exhibit building will open at 11 a.m. and remain open throughout each remaining day of the fair. A pony pull, set for 5 p.m., and a light weight horse pull, starting at 7:30 p.m., will round out the day.

A feeder steer and showmanship event at 10 a.m. will kick off events Tuesday. A feeder steer and steer show will begin at 1:30 p.m. Also slated are a sheep show and a pickup and tractor pull, both at 7 p.m.

Wednesday's schedule begins at 9 a.m. with a goat show, followed by a rabbit and poultry show at 9:30 a.m. and a dairy show at 10 a.m. A combine demolition derby will be featured at 7 p.m.

A 4-H and FFA livestock sale will be held Thursday at 1 p.m. Other highlights will be the 4-H Talent and Style Show and the 4-H King and Queen crowning at 7 p.m., and a pro wrestling exhibition at 8 p.m. in the grandstands.

Wrapping up the week's activities will be the 2, 4 and 6 horse draft horse hitch class events, and a tractor pull, both Friday starting at 7 p.m., and an auto demolition derby Saturday beginning at 6 p.m.

Additional information about fair activities is available by calling the fair office at (517) 269-7542.

A newly hatched alligator is just eight inches long. It will grow about a foot a year until it reaches the average adult length of six to eight feet.

37 members attend Class of 1969 reunites

By Lynn Haire

Thirty-seven members of Cass City High School's Class of '69 attended the 20-year class reunion at Gagetown's Sherwood on the Hill Country Club Saturday, July 22.

The class gave a big cheer when Katie Jackson, senior class sponsor and senior trip chaperone, stopped by. With her came her husband Tom and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stickle.

After dinner, the class gathered outside for the reunion picture and an informal class meeting, run by quintessentially flamboyant Terry Brinkman. Yearbook in hand, Terry began a roll call. "Henry Ashmore? Dale Auvil, Barb Ballard . . . ?" Those present gave a brief synopsis of their past 20 years ("Married, 2 kids, work as a lawyer in Southfield, Michigan.") and tried to account for those who were absent. "Anyone know where Gary Chambers is?" Silence. "His dad is looking for him, too." "Tim Rabideau?" "He thought the reunion was on the 29th . . . He'll be here next week."

The class thanked Gary

Residents try to beat heat, humidity

Wallace also said that he, like the Crutchfields, had his daughter, Ashley, 4, take swimming lessons at the pool. He added that he enjoyed that. "You got to get in there with them."

But Wallace doesn't get to sit in front of a fan all day. He works for Youth Corps at

Campbell Elementary, where there is just one fan and no air conditioning. "We just wear cut-offs and try to have fun."

Overall, most of the people interviewed said this summer was hot but not as hot as last year. Statistics from the treatment plant state the average high temperature for June 1988 was 82 degrees, while the average low was 51 degrees. In contrast, June's 1989 high average temperature was slightly lower than the previous year at 74 degrees but the average low was a bit higher, being 54 degrees.

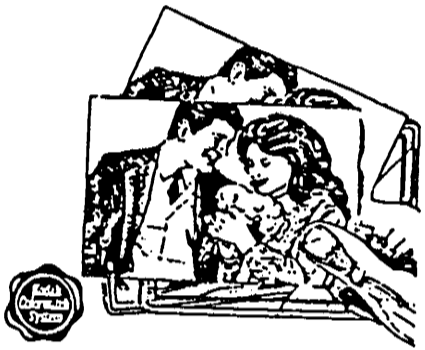

In addition, the average high temperature for July 1988 was 88 degrees and the average low was 60 degrees. The average high up until July 30, 1989, was a little lower than July 1988 at 81 degrees and once again the average low was higher with 59 degrees.

However, although the temperatures are lower so far, there has been a larger amount of rain, especially in June. Along with rain generally comes a higher humidity and thus the weather seems warmer than it is.

Minor damage in mishap
Minor damage was reported early last week in a vehicle accident on Schwegler Road north of Hurley Road in Elkland Township.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies reported that Richard T. Donahue, 405 E. Cass City Rd., Unionville, was using a tow bar to pull a pickup truck behind a semi-tractor and trailer at about 4 p.m. July 24 when the tow bar broke loose. The truck entered a small ditch and came to rest in a corn field.

Obituaries

Gerald Harp

Gerald E. Harp, 69, of Flint and Cass City died Friday at McLaren General Hospital. Harp was born May 27, 1920, in Macomb County, the son of Floyd and Viola Harp. He married Virginia

Schneeberger June 14, 1952, in Cass City. A member of the Flushing Free Methodist Church, he had been employed at A.C. Spark Plug for 34 years, retiring in 1975.

Surviving are his wife, Virginia Harp of Flushing; 2 sons, Steven and wife Debbie Harp of Flushing and Ronald Harp of Cass City; one daughter, Laura and husband Larry Swafford of Kent City; 3 grandchildren; one sister, Maude Bickell of St. Charles, Mo., and one niece, Shirley Davis of Missouri.

Funeral services were held Monday at the Flushing Free Methodist Church with the Rev. Charles Husted and the Rev. Clifford Jordan officiating. Burial was in Flushing Cemetery.

Rev. Frank Smith

The Rev. Frank B. Smith, former pastor of the First Baptist Church in Cass City, died July 18 in his Port Lambton, Ontario, home at the age of 86.

He was born in Detroit in 1903 and moved to several different cities as a minister but made his last residence in Port Lambton.

Smith, with his father, owned and operated the Smith Print Shop on Detroit's east side until 1940, when he sold the shop and went into the ministry full time.

He studied at Moody Bible Institute in Chicago and was ordained under the Northern Baptist Convention, a licensing authority for Baptist ministers. He also was a charter member of the Conservative Baptist Association.

Smith had served as pastor of the First Baptist Churches of Cass City and Wallaceburg, Ontario; the Birkett Memorial Baptist Church, Detroit; the Coronado Baptist Church, Detroit, and Bethel Baptist Church, Farmington.

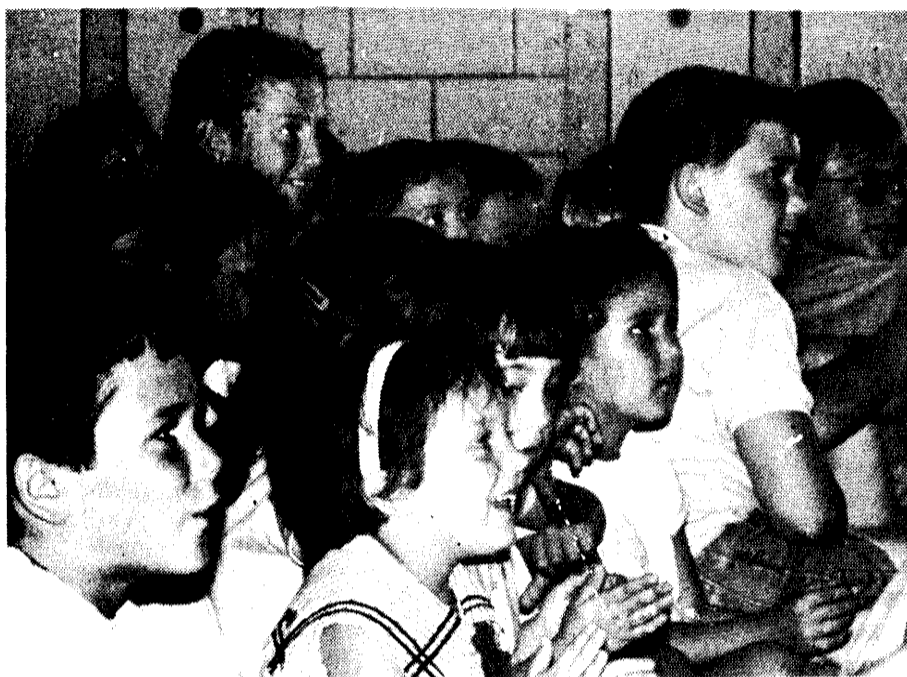

He retired as a full-time minister in 1968, but later served as interim pastor of Grace Baptist Church, Detroit, Faith Baptist Church, Royal Oak, and the Walker-ville Baptist Church in Ontario.

In 1971, he became associate pastor in charge of visitation at the Calvary Baptist Church of Canton, a position he held until his final retirement in 1984 at the age of 81.

Smith is survived by his wife of 62 years, Miriam; 2 daughters, Irene Comstock and JoAnne Schultz; a son, Richard; 8 grandchildren, and 2 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held July 21 at the Calvary Baptist Church, Canton. Burial was in McDonald Cemetery, Port Lambton, Ontario.

NEARLY 130 AREA YOUTHS attended a magic show Thursday at Campbell Elementary School. The show, featuring magician Gary Flegal, was a reward for children who completed Rawson Memorial Library's "Reach for the Stars" summer reading program.

Farmer protests effective

Following strong protests from the farm community, the U.S. Department of Transportation has abandoned its efforts to reclassify anhydrous ammonia as a poisonous gas.

The department this week announced it will continue to classify the commonly used nitrogen fertilizer as a non-flammable compressed gas.

Al Almy, director of public affairs for the Michigan Farm Bureau, said the proposed reclassification drew nearly 1,500 responses from farmers concerned that the poisonous gas classification would drive up the cost and affect the availability of the nitrogen fertilizer.

"The poisonous gas classification would have resulted in millions of dollars in added product costs due to higher handling and insurance expenses," Almy said. "Despite a good safety record in the transportation of anhydrous ammonia, a 'poisonous' classification would increase public concerns over the routine uses of the fertilizer."

"The department responded positively to the concerns of the farm community, but we have not quite won the battle yet," Almy continued. "There are people who oppose the decision who will work hard to change the final rules. We still need letters from farmers to the Department of Transportation supporting the latest proposal."

The proposed regulation is subject to a 90-day public comment period. In a minor rule change, the department ruled all containers must carry a new inhalation hazard warning.

Almy said farmers should send their comments on the proposed regulations, referred as Docket No. 181, to Dockets Unit, Research and Special Programs Administration, Department of Transportation, Washington, D.C. 20590.

According to U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates, the job classification with the most openings likely between now and 1990 is that of computer service technician.

THE NEWLY CROWNED 4-H King, Bob Battel of Cass City, and Queen, Shawna Phillips of Silverwood, ride past spectators at the Tuscola County Fair Sunday night.

New book at library

THE NIGHT THE BEAR ATE GOOMBAW by Patrick F. McManus (non-fiction). What Erma Bombeck is to the American housewife and mother, Patrick McManus is to the outdoor enthusiast: an antic chronicler of the trials and tribulations that, in his case, confront he who would rather fish and hunt than work. As a hairy-chested but often lame-brained authority on the conduct of the ongoing chase after nature's creatures, McManus has a full bag of tricks and tackle to even up the odds. Unfortunately, the advanced technology frequently fails, and the animals often prove less stupid than the humans on their trail. McManus drifts back to boyhood adventures and provides updates on what such adult acquaintances as Alphonse P. Finley and Retch Sweeney are up to.

DENNIS FOX, 11, appears to be slightly tired after swimming nearly 24 hours during the swim-a-thon for Muscular Dystrophy.

Some 50 kids raise $1,800 at swim-a-thon

Approximately 50 kids raised over $1,800 at this year's swim-a-thon for Muscular Dystrophy. The event was sponsored by the Cass City swim team.

Although the number of participants was down from last year by nearly 40 kids, the amount of money raised was up by some $500, commented lifeguard Adam Suzor.

Suzor attributes the success to the kids' working harder in getting pledges. "I guess there was a better incentive for the highest pledge raised," he remarked, adding, the 2 people who received the most pledges were given radios. The 3rd place finisher was given a season pass to the pool for next year.

The only prizes awarded last year were free T-shirts given to all who raised over $35. The T-shirts were also given out this year.

But the fewer participants may have been the reason why they did not reach their goal to swim 150 miles in 24 hours straight. Suzor explained that the kids fell short of their goal by swimming only 125 miles. In addition, the swimmers, who started at 10 a.m. Thursday and were supposed to finish at 10 a.m. Friday, had to stop around 7:30 a.m. Friday because of the weather.

Nevertheless, Suzor pointed out that they still did much better money wise and that alone made the swim-a-thon worth it.

Caro woman faces 2 welfare related charges in court

A 48-year-old Caro woman was arraigned Monday in Tuscola County District Court on charges of welfare fraud over $500 and failure to inform regarding income over $500.

A preliminary examination for Mary Ann Brown, 620 Allen St., is slated for 8:30 a.m. Aug. 11. Bond was set at $4,000.

Court records state both counts charge Brown with failing to provide the Tuscola County Department of Social Services with information regarding income while receiving Aid to Dependent Children and food stamps Aug. 13, 1986.

Also arraigned recently was Daniel M. Schwab, 26, of Vassar, who faces charges of malicious destruction of police property and no valid license.

His preliminary exam is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. Friday. Bond was set at $2,000.

Schwab is charged with damaging the left rear passenger window of a Tuscola County Sheriff's Department patrol vehicle, and driving without a license July 25 in Vassar Township, records state.

Dominick A. LaLonde, 19, and Kurt W. Holden, 49, both of Caro, face charges of manufacturing marijuana May 1 in Caro.

Both men face preliminary exams at 8:30 a.m. Friday. Bond for LaLonde was set at $2,000, while Holden's bond was set at $4,000.

Area students return from space academy

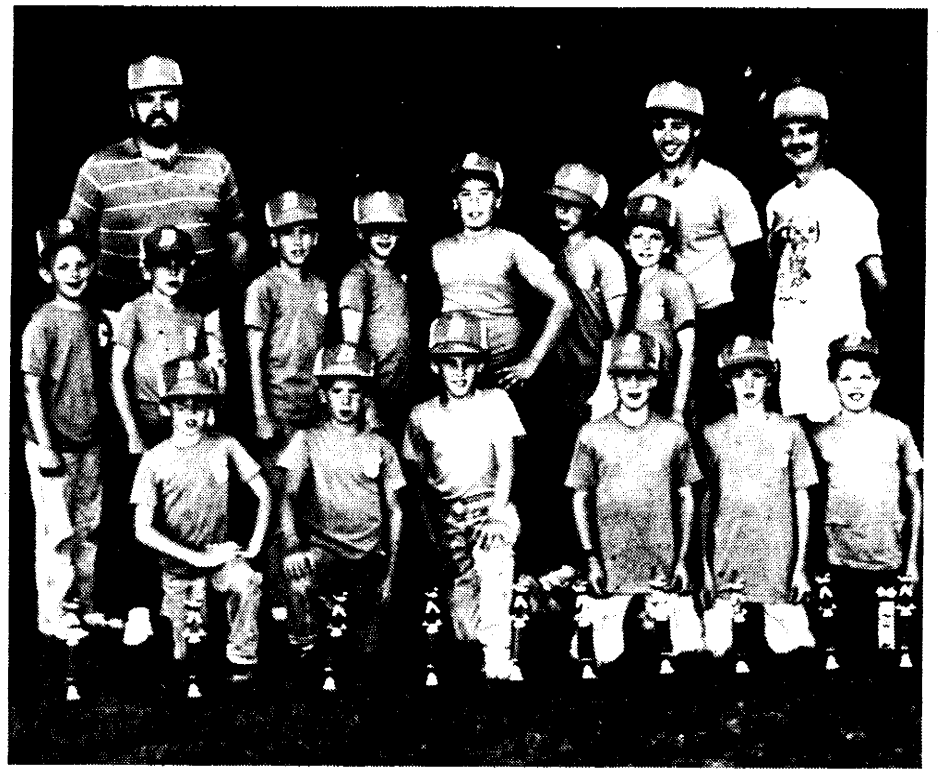

Cass City High School students, Nicola Kuperus and Melissa Micklash, recently returned from the U.S. Space Academy in Huntsville, Ala., where they saw astronaut Alan Shepard. Shepard was at the academy in tribute to the 20th anniversary of the moon walk.

The girls were at the academy from July 16 to July 22. While at the academy they explored the future of space travel while training for realistic space shuttle mission simulations.

Overall some 16,000 young people from all 50 states and around the world will participate in the space camp program this year. However, the camp is not restricted to teens. The space academy is divided into 3 separate sections according to ages. Kuperus and Micklash were in level 1 which was for trainees in grades 7 through 10.

In addition there are camps for youths in 4th through 7th grades and for high school juniors and seniors, and college freshmen. There is also an adult space academy course and a space course for teachers.

In level 1 Kuperus and Micklash toured NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center, where the U.S. Space Station is being developed, and experienced the sensations of astronaut training simulators.

Tuscola County teens ages 14 and up and adults are invited to attend a 4-H photography workshop Sept. 8 and 9 at Kettunen Center in Tustin.

The workshop will feature the "Kodak Photographic Seminar," a fast-paced, fact-filled program designed to teach better picture taking with an adjustable 35mm camera. Participants will see hundreds of first class slides presented live by a Kodak photographic specialist.

Additional activities include nature photography treasure hunt, preparing youth for a high tech and global future through photography, fun photo activities for kids, and an introduction to the new photo guideline.

Reservations are due Aug. 28, 1989. More information is available by contacting John Wurm, extension 4-H youth agent, at the Tuscola County Cooperative Extension Service office, or call (517) 673-5999, Ext. 228.
