Staff struggles with system

Computers arrive at post office

The computer age arrived at the Cass City Post Office early last week. The change, part of a nationwide move to computerize all post offices the size of the Cass City branch and larger, is expected to eventually increase the speed and efficiency of postal operations. "They cover every transaction we make and they break down every transaction," Postmaster Bill Zinnecker said of the Unisys Computer System installed Aug. 21. "Down the road, it will eliminate the paperwork." Zinnecker noted computerization will also be incorporated into some smaller post offices in the future. He explained that all transactions—revenue from stamp sales, mail orders, bulk mailings, special service mail and others—are recorded on a daily basis at the Cass City branch. The supervisor then compiles the daily reports, which are then consolidated each month and sent to the Saginaw Sectional Center, Grand Rapids Division. The information, which previously was compiled on written reports, eventually is sent to the Postal Data Center in Minneapolis, Minn., he said. The recorded revenue, which totaled $379,000 last year at the local office, will now be transferred to computer printouts, Zinnecker continued, adding the information may eventually be sent via telephone transfer. "I would say it probably takes us 15 minutes a piece (now) to close out at night," he remarked, referring to himself, the supervisor and a clerk. With the computer system, he added, "We should be able to do it in 5 minutes." Zinnecker pointed out that installation of computers alone won't affect the number of persons employed at the Cass City office. However, he said, computerization in conjunction with other changes may translate into personnel adjustments in the future. He suggested that the decision to computerize smaller post offices was made because postal officials believe it's the only way they can improve overall efficiency. "They've got to get automation into the whole system," he commented. While the changes are expected to net positive results, getting used to working with computers hasn't been easy, Zinnecker acknowledged. Six employees have undergone a crash computer course in Essexville, he remarked, but "Nobody over here has any computer background. We're just learning as we go, really." "It (computer) tells you everything to do if you can find out where it tells you," he joked. "The hardest part about it is when you get rushed." "I think everybody's apprehensive about it, but they realize it's the way to go," he added. "I think now we're scared of it, but in a year we'll all think it's wonderful. As soon as we get proficient with it, I'm sure we'll notice a difference."

Sanilac 4-H hard hit

Cash crunch costs 22 jobs

Sanilac County Commissioners sharpened their budget axe and went to work last Wednesday, eliminating 22 jobs en route to cutting $285,000 out of the county's $5.3 million budget. Notices were delivered Friday to 19 full-time and 3 part-time employees, according to county Administrator John Dean. He said 10 layoffs connected to the Sheriff's Department will go into effect Sept. 12, while the remaining layoffs will go into effect Sept. 8. Commissioners laid off 8 deputies, a sergeant and a detective; a case worker in probate juvenile court; a drain inspector, and 10 clerical positions affecting a number of departments. For county residents, the layoffs will translate into seeing fewer police officers on the road, the loss of a number of county programs and having to wait longer for help in some county offices. District 5 Commissioner Brad Apsey said earlier predictions that the road patrol would be all but eliminated and the Cooperative Extension Service Office hit hard by budget cuts have come true. Massive reductions were approved in both areas by commissioners during their regular meeting last week, about 2 weeks after voters overwhelmingly rejected an additional millage request of .9 of a mill for 4 years for operations. "The road patrol will be gone after Sept. 5," Apsey said. "(But) they're going to try and have somebody in the office for emergencies." First Lt. Charles Bush, commander of the state police post in Sandusky, said the state police will have a difficult time trying to fill in the gap left by the sheriff's road patrol layoffs. FEWER OFFICERS Currently, he said, the Sandusky post has 10 road officers, 3 fewer than a year ago at this time. The number of cars on the road at any one time fluctuates, he continued, but there are times when there is only one during the day shift to cover the County, which has the most land space (some 940 square miles) of any county in the lower peninsula. "We're going to try to pick up the slack, yes. But there are going to be times when we're just not going to be able to get a car to a complaint," he remarked. Bush said complaints will be prioritized at the post, with emergency and high risk calls getting first response. Persons reporting non-emergency calls and minor accidents, such as car-deer collisions, will probably be asked to file reports in person at the Sandusky, Bad Axe or Caro post, he said. Aside from the road patrol, a host of programs offered through the Cooperative Extension Service office, where 3 positions were eliminated, also have been reduced or cut, Apsey remarked. 4-H CUT The commissioner, who represents 8 townships, including Evergreen, Greenleaf, Argyle and Lamotte, added, "Probably the one (cut) that's going to hurt the community worst is the 4-H program. They're going to try to keep that in tact as much as they can, but..." Without the additional millage, Apsey said, commissioners will have to reduce next year's budget by some $500,000. He explained that the county's financial crunch is related to several factors, but that the loss of $500,000 Please turn to page 14.

Millington man dies in crash A Tuscola County man injured in a 2-vehicle crash Thursday in Vassar Township died Saturday morning at St. Joseph Hospital in Flint. Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies identified the victim as Robert D. Smith, 58, of Millington. Smith was a passenger in a vehicle driven by Clara L. Smith, 41, also of Millington, whose vehicle was struck broadside Thursday at the intersection of Hess and Brown roads. Deputies reported that she was southbound on Hess Road at about 2:40 p.m.

Industrial Park expanded

Village buys land for $2000 per acre

The Cass City Village Council Monday voted to take over the planned purchase of 30.5 acres of property, subject to a survey of the land, to expand the village's industrial park. Village President L.E. Althaver told the council last month that the village Economic Development Corporation, during a special session July 19, had decided to negotiate to pay up to $2,000 per acre for the land, located west of Doerr Road across from the existing industrial park. However, in a letter from the EDC presented to council members Monday night, Althaver recommended direct purchase of the land by the village. "Upon review by the village's legal council, we have discovered that the procedure for purchasing the property directly by the Economic Development Corporation is very lengthy and complex," he stated in the letter. Althaver said the price for the property, owned by J.D. Tuckey, is $2,000 per acre for a total price of $61,000. Terms of payment are $10,000 down and the balance at the end of a 5-year period, with interest-only payments of 9 1/2 percent annually. Under the EDC's proposal, some $16,000 in seed funds from the old Industrial Development Corporation would be used in the purchase. The remainder would come from the village's General Fund over the next 5 years. Althaver indicated he believes the price is fair for several reasons. The land is contiguous to the village limits by virtue of a 66-foot piece of land that abuts Doerr Road, he noted, adding the property can be serviced by village water and sewer from the existing industrial park area, and is made up primarily of high quality gravel, some of which could be used for village streets in future years.

Most importantly, Althaver pointed out, more and more inquiries are being received from companies that need a large parcel on which to build. "Having such a parcel could very well make the difference in getting the next Walbro into our community," he remarked. "The name of the game in terms of competition (with other communities) is having the property." In other business during the 70-minute monthly meeting, the council heard a brief presentation from Terry Alexander, sales manager and public relations representative for Pollard Disposal Inc., Montrose. Alexander, who noted Pollard is among the companies planning to bid for the village's residential waste disposal contract for the next year, briefly discussed what his firm has to offer the village. Two areas of particular concern to council members 1990 street program includes improvements to Doerr Road to the south village limits, which will make the property even more valuable. - recycling potential and the mood in Genesee County related to accepting out-of-county trash - also were discussed. WHITE GOODS Alexander said the only form of recycling currently being actively pursued by his company is the recovery of white goods. Recycling of these items removes them from the waste disposal stream, he said, adding there is a market for certain metals at this time. He said recycling of other items would be possible, but there would be added expense to customers because the markets for paper, glass and other items are flooded and remain very unstable. Turning to the attitude towards out-of-county trash in Genesee County, Alexander said the mood is "open." Also Monday, the council approved a resolution designed to keep the village's pension program in compliance with the Tax Reform Act of 1986. Althaver said the resolution will protect village employees' pension plans from being disqualified by future changes approved in conjunction with the federal act.

MORE VALUABLE

Also, he said, the village's

Back surgery needed

Youth loses legs in farm accident

A Kingston area youth underwent surgery for amputation of his legs on his birthday Friday and was to have faced another surgery Monday following a tragic farm accident last week. The youth, Rodney A. King, 14, 2350 Clothier Rd., Kingston, remained in the intensive care burn unit at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor Monday, according to his grandmother, Mrs. William King, 2225 Clothier Rd. Mrs. King said surgeons amputated Rodney's legs below the knee last week and were scheduled to perform surgery on his back early this week. Despite the severity of the burns on his legs and back, Rodney didn't complain until after surgery, she remarked, adding, "He's a fighter, he'll make it." Rodney, the son of Alan and Pam King, sustained the injuries early Thursday evening while riding a tractor in a field off Clothier Road about 2 miles northeast of Kingston. Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies reported the tractor flipped over on top of the youth and burst into flames. Reports state Rodney's 12-year-old brother, Billy, spotted the accident and ran to get his grandfather, William King Sr., who then got another tractor to pull the burning machine off Rodney. He was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital, Cass City, for emergency treatment and was then transferred by FlightCare Helicopter to the burn unit at the University of Michigan Hospital, deputies said.

THREE NEW FACES joined the Cass City School District teaching staff Monday for an annual pre-school luncheon. They are (above, from left) Jeanine McGee, a second grade teacher at Campbell Elementary; Jenifer Gayari, a third and fifth grade teacher at Deford Elementary, and Paula Herron, a kindergarten teacher at Campbell Elementary.

If it's true that "you are what you eat", it's little wonder some of us feel pucker.

According to an article in the latest issue of "Hippocrates", you don't even have to consider the accidental contaminants that are an unavoidable part of eating in the real world. The stuff they put in food on purpose is enough to make dieting easier.

We're not talking here about preservatives or pesticide residues. Take "cochineal" as an example. It's a red dye found in "natural" soft drinks and candies, and it comes from mashed bugs.

Workers gather the insect from cactus in Central and South America and extract pigment from the abdomen of pregnant females.

F. J. Francis, a food scientist at the University of Massachusetts, says, "It's a very potent food colorant, one of the best we have. But it's obviously in short supply. How many insects can you catch?"

Don't feel too smug if you're on a diet and don't eat candy containing cochineal. Maybe you're into diet bread. According to the article, by Lisa Davis, there are only so many ways for bakers to reduce the calories in a slice of bread.

They can cut it thinner, go easy on the oil, or they can add sawdust. If your bread contains cellulose, as many diet breads do, you're probably eating fiber from wood pulp.

Good grief! You might as well go out and gnaw on a tree.

Wood pulp can also be found in salad dressings (It lengthens the shelf life), and in low-cal ice cream and other frozen desserts, where it prevents crystallization.

Another fiber in the wood pulp creates the smell of vanilla and is used in the much-less-expensive-than-the-real-thing artificial vanilla flavoring and in the cheaper brands of ice cream, vanilla wafers, etc.

Carnauba wax, which comes from the fronds of a Brazilian palm, is one of the hardest and shiniest waxes available. It's used for polishing cars and floors...and in candies and cake decorations.

If you chew gum, why not just hack up an old tire? Most gum manufacturers use synthetic rubber.

One researcher has suggested substituting beef plasma for eggs. It reportedly works as well as egg whites in setting up foods such as cake batter, and it costs half as much. A panel of tasters actually preferred plasma cake to one made with eggs...until they found out what they were eating.

Ms. Davis concludes that maybe it's better not to think too much about the food we eat, because even the most conventional foods are a bit bizarre.

She writes, "A bee eats nectar, converts it to sugar, and then spits the whole mess up and leaves it for other bees to pack into honeycomb cells. Eggs aren't any better - you know where they've been. And milk! On second thought, don't even think about it."

Rebecca Crittenden

Alvin and Merlyn Crittenden of Akron announce the engagement of their daughter, Rebecca Lin, to David Caister, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Caister of Cass City. A Sept. 30 wedding is planned.

Historical Society tours home

Thirty-four members of the Cass City Historical Society toured the Wilmot home of Ada Hurshburger and Sherry Seeley Sunday.

The tour included a brief talk by society member Jack Esau on the history of Wilmot. Hurshburger and Seeley then told about their home, a former hotel where 2 railroads met years ago. They also pointed out where the old depot used to stand.

Also during the outing, officers were named for the coming year. They are Audrey Katzenberger, president; Esau, treasurer, and Velma Cleland, secretary. Directors will be Barbara Hutchinson and Elsie Blades.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Whitteburg attended the wedding Saturday of Kevin Frank and Debbie Wutzke. The reception was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

The first annual Fisher reunion was held Saturday at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Les Hartwick and Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Hartwick with 38 attending. Present were the families of George Fisher Sr. and Mrs. Phoebe Klinkman. The oldest was Mrs. Phoebe Klinkman and the youngest was Sarah Langmaid.

Lloyd and Wilma Finkbeiner and their daughter, Pat Holland, visited Jim and Jan Sowden in Clarkston Sunday. They also visited the John Gaudin family in Drayton Plains and the Bill Anderson family in Goodrich.

Shagena reunion held at park

The annual Shagena-McConnell reunion was held at the Cass City park pavilion Sunday, with about 75 family members and guests attending.

A potluck dinner was followed by a brief business meeting. John Shagena will continue as president and Mark Zmierski as vice-president. Rande Spiers was named secretary/treasurer.

Next year the reunion will be the third Sunday in August, as in previous years.

"If It Fitz..."

Goofy grandpa

By Jim Fitzgerald

When the woman having the garage sale said what she said, my mind said: "Uh-oh, I probably shouldn't do this." But I bought the footstool anyway. I justified my action by telling myself I was fighting child abuse.

The transaction was accomplished by phone and I haven't yet seen the footstool. But it was described to me, and I was surprised at what I heard. Modern footstools apparently fall into the ever-growing category of things I'm too old to know about.

What I mean is that, since my children have grown up and moved away and spawned their own children, I've lost daily contact with a lot of strange stuff. I am surprised when my wife drags me to a shopping mall and I see young men wearing shirts that don't come near to reaching their pants, and I'm old that they dress like that on purpose. If they were forced to wear shirts several sizes too small, they would complain to the government.

When did young women start coloring their hair purple and having it styled to resemble a hedge trimmed by a very drunken blind person? I don't know about these things.

I don't know when furniture manufacturers began putting pink tennis shoes on the feet of footstools. And pink, grey and blue knee socks. I swear that is the description of the footstool that my granddaughter Emily fell in love with when she saw it for sale at a neighbor's garage sale.

Emily ran home and told her mother the footstool cost only $5 so Mom gave her a $20 bill and said bring back the change. The change turned out to be only $5 and a closer examination revealed that the price tag said $15. Too much. Emily had to return the footstool and get her money back.

It was an unhappy experience for a 7-year-old. Emily cried a little when she returned the $20 to her mother. And her mother cried a little. And after my wife heard this sad little story during the daily 90-minute phone call, she made the mistake of telling it to me, the great investigative reporter.

In no time I uncovered the identity and phone number of the garage sale proprietor. When I phoned, the woman was kind enough not to laugh at the goofy grandfather buying a dumb footstool from 65 miles away. She said her first inclination had been to let Emily have the stool for $5, but decided maybe that wouldn't be the right thing to do. Maybe Emily's mother was teaching her daughter an economic lesson of life.

Of course, that's exactly what Emily's mother was doing — teaching the child she can't have everything she wants, especially when it costs $15 instead of $5. And along comes big-shot Grandpa to screw up the lesson.

I didn't care. Before my $15 was in the mail, the nice neighbor had put a ribbon and card on the footstool and delivered it to Emily. It was later reported to me that Emily's surprise and joy were unbounded, and I was thanked for my generosity, if not my wisdom.

It should be admitted that such gifts often measure the selfishness, not the generosity, of the giver. The footstool made Emily feel good for a day or so. But 10 years from now, and every day in between, I can make myself feel good just by thinking of the look on Emily's face when she got the precious footstool she thought she'd lost.

Besides, spoiling a child must be the opposite of abusing a child, and there are times when my urge to spoil is uncontrollable. The day before the footstool incident, there was a phone call from a longtime foster mother with a fearful story.

She said a "lazy" Social Services classworks and a "boozier" judge had separated her from a 5-year-old foster child after almost 5 years because she'd allegedly become "too close" to the child. She said the little girl was put with grandparents where she would be abused by her father. She said a caseworker previously assigned to the case would confirm her accusations. She said she made similar protests about the placement of another child but was ignored -- and the child subsequently died because of parental neglect.

When I asked her name, she hung up. I don't know if there is any truth to her story. I worry about it, and wish she'd call back.

What I really wish is that all little children had goofy grandpas who gave them footstools wearing pink tennis shoes and pink, grey and blue knee socks.

The ring-tailed lemur, a primate found only on the island of Madagascar, meows like a cat.

CASS CITY ROTARY Club President Dave Milligan last week presented the club's pledge of $10,000 for the community's new track to Boosters Club President Bob Tuckey.

Donations needed

Seek track surface funds

Construction of a new track in Cass City is right on track with a 2-year work scheduled proposed last spring.

However, organizers say, the project could be all but completed this year if the remaining needed donations are received soon.

Work on the project, which consists of converting the old 440-yard cinder track to an enclosed, 8-lane all-weather metric track with a special rubberized surface, began in the spring and was initially expected to be finished over the next 2 or more years.

The work was prompted by a desire to boost the track program at Cass City High School. Hosting more league meets as well as a state meet are among the goals.

As was planned for this summer, workers have completed the engineering and drainage portions of the project as well as laying base material and, more recently, asphalt. Installation of fencing around the facility also will be done this year.

Cass City Boosters Club officials said the project's biggest expense, the rubberized surface, also could be installed this year if enough funds are received.

Club President Bob Tuckey noted that close to $50,000 has been pledged to the project to-date by service clubs and others. Nearly $40,000 of that has been received, he said, adding another $45,000 is needed to go ahead with the rubberized track surface this year.

The alternative, Tuckey remarked, is to paint the asphalt surface for use next year at a cost of up to $2,000. That would be a wasted $2,000 because the asphalt will later be covered with the rubberized surface, he said, adding the project has stayed under budget so far thanks to local residents and business owners, who have volunteered labor and equipment use.

Persons interested in making a donation can contact Tuckey at 872-3730.

The Haire Net

The Cass City School Board definitely didn't have a better idea last Monday night when it decided to consider 2 changes in school policy.

What will be discussed at a special meeting is hiring teachers by committee and requiring administrators to live in the district to hold a job in the system.

Let's examine both of these proposals. First, making residency one of the requirements for filling a position in administration. I suspect that the idea for that is to make the person more responsive to the community at large.

If so it's doomed to failure. Community interest is not a matter of location, but of commitment. It must be on shaky legal ground to demand that an employee live where directed. It's illegal to ask how old a job seeker is, for heaven's sakes. But even if legal it's a bad idea. A good employee is a good employee and a bad employee a bad employee and spelling out where he or she should live won't change that at all.

There was no suggestion that the teachers be required to live in the district, probably because it's a foregone conclusion that the union would be up in arms and the board couldn't make it stick. Let's not have a double standard in Cass City.

Even more hazardous to a well run system is hiring teachers by committee. Let's say a couple of board members are to help decide teaching jobs at the school. Does that mean that these representatives will take time out to check the credentials of as many as 50 applicants and then be ready for interviews of 4 or 5 at odd times during the day? Board members have regular jobs and how much time can be devoted to school business?

There could be 5 or 6 different jobs to fill and that means 25 or so times that the board representatives would trudge up to the school.

But let's assume that there is time to do the job and the board representatives make every meeting. How much help can they be? If the situation that caused the current controversy arises again, will a committee system help? Tell me how.

If the board members overrule the professional, who is accountable? Not all teachers prove to be competent. What happens when a teacher is given negative marks in a tenure hearing and the 2 board members that endorsed the teacher for the job are asked to terminate the employee. Can they not help being prejudiced? It's a lot to ask. The superintendent and the rest of the administration are hired to run the school. Let them run it.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

Dagmar Brown of Cass City has walked the Mackinaw Bridge on Labor Day for 29 straight years and it's probably safe to say that she has the record by a wide margin of anyone in this area.

If she desires, she can have a special cancellation of an envelope made at special temporary postal stations Sept. 4. There will be post offices at both the north and south exits. It would be even more significant to Brown if the cancellation showed how many years the walk has been conducted, because Brown may have walked them all.

Reminder: Because of the Labor Day holiday next week, the Chronicle will be on the newsstands a day later than ordinary, Wednesday instead of Tuesday. All deadlines remain the same. Your usual good cooperation is always appreciated.

Notes about the holiday weekend ahead. It is estimated that the tourist count will be up 2.3 percent. Just when I figured that the price of gas had declined for the year, it's revealed that unleaded gas along the freeways will be up 6 cents a gallon from last year.

Last year there were 17 persons killed on Michigan roads and 8 of the 16 fatal accidents involved alcohol.

Lottery revenues still lagging

Revenues from the state lottery continue to lag behind last year, serving as a "warning sign" of possible changes that may be needed in its operations, Management and Budget Director Shelby Solomon said recently.

Solomon said he has asked his aides, some of whom worked with a 1988 governor's task force on the lottery, to advise him on whether new strategies are needed to bolster lottery sales.

A top lottery official said changes are constantly under consideration to stimulate sales, including a continued interest in possible success in other states of controversial betting on sports games.

The monthly DMB report noted Lotto game sales are 8.3 percent below sales by the same date a year ago, and sales of the Daily Game were down 1 percent.

The 2 games account for almost 90 percent of the lottery's sales. Sales of the Instant Game, by far the lowest revenue producer of the 3 games, were up 18.5 percent, following 3 years of no growth.

DMB's monthly financial report to the Legislature, covering revenue and economic activity through June, said the lottery's "continued weakness is a major concern."

Solomon expressed it less emphatically, though, saying, "It is a little bit of a concern. We've anticipated revenues being lower all along. But the concern we do have is that they not go further in this direction."

The administration's estimate of lottery revenue for the current year is $438 million, down slightly from the $488.4 million last year. But the monthly report said without "significant" sales improvements soon, that estimate will have to be reduced.

The lottery is the third largest source of funds for state aid to K-12 schools, following the sales tax and general fund.

Solomon said he has asked "my people to put together their thoughts on the lottery, and whether we need a different strategy." He added he would discuss any proposals with Lottery Commissioner Michael Carr.

Deputy Lottery Commissioner Jack Schaffer, who said the decrease in revenues is "in the ballpark" of bureau officials, said it is increasingly difficult to maintain the type of revenue growth in past years as the lottery has built a following, but said officials are constantly reviewing ways to stimulate renewed interest and "add excitement."

"When games mature, you have to look at new products and new promotions. We are doing what we feel is appropriate to modify and make changes," Schaffer said.

He added new promotions and "twists" are being planned for the new fiscal year. He said telemarketing will be tested for Instant tickets and cash and merchandise incentives for agents are in the works.

Regarding possible suggestions from DMB, Schaffer noted lottery officials do already heed advice from an advisory board, set up as a result of the recommendations of the task force.

He said officials are monitoring programs in other states to run professional sports betting, a change to decrease the odds of winning the Lotto but likely producing larger jackpots when a winning number is drawn, and a smaller odds game component which does permit more frequent jackpots.

Schaffer said he does not anticipate Michigan will jump into the sports betting arena until seeing how it works in Oregon, which first came up with that approach, and Kentucky.

National Football League officials have unsuccessfully tried to block such games.

Part of the reason officials anticipated lower sales was the unusual number of large jackpots in the Lotto game last year (including the 3 largest payouts in history), which produced spurts of high ticket sales.

Many of the January, 1988 recommendations of a governor's task force have been implemented already, including returning more of Instant Game sales revenue to winners and improved methods of ticket distribution.

That task force had been appointed because of disappointment by officials because of the leveling off of revenues from the lottery after 15 years of steady growth.

PRENATAL SURVEY SHOWS HEALTH PROGRAMS ARE WORKING

Results of a survey of Michigan women which indicate they are receiving more prenatal care than they did 3 years ago proves that programs implemented by the Department of Public Health are working, said Director Raj Wiener.

Those responding to the Prenatal Health Care Survey said women at all income levels are entering care earlier. While the great majority are not experiencing a problem obtaining care, 7 percent — mostly low income and indigent women — did say they had difficulty.

"I am pleased to see more Michigan women starting their prenatal care in the first trimester as compared to 3 years ago. This tells us that the new programs we started last October promoting earlier prenatal care have been effective," Wiener said.

But she also said those who cannot get care are still of concern. "Some women at high risk of having a poor pregnancy are not getting help, although it is available."

"We know prenatal care can prevent premature delivery and low birth weight and thus infant death, yet some poor women cannot find a doctor to care for themselves and their baby," Wiener said.

Among the programs implemented by both the Department of Public Health and the Department of Social Services are maternal advocates, in some counties, to help pregnant women find a doctor and fill out the paperwork associated with Medicaid, and assisting in providing transportation for prenatal appointments, through taxi fare and bus tokens.

Additionally, the state has simplified the process for qualifying for Medicaid by using a new shortened application form that can be filled out at the local health department, where women are likely to come for other health services as well.

Also, through the implementation of MICH-CARE, all pregnant women with incomes less than 185 percent of poverty have access to prenatal care, Wiener said.

To further promote prenatal care, Wiener said the department, with the cooperation of the health care leaders and the Michigan

State Medical Society, will launch a major media campaign to let women know the importance of proper care and how they can obtain it.

It is hoped a program, modeled after one used in Utah, can be in place by the end of this year.

It is hoped a program, modeled after one used in Utah, can be in place by the end of this year.

Also found through the survey is that 15 rural hospitals in the state, most of which lack obstetricians, are no longer providing services for pregnant women.

Such closings have required pregnant women to travel many more miles in poor road or weather conditions to deliver their children, Wiener said.

Those are among the concerns being addressed through the Rural Health Initiative, in which health leaders are studying the problems of access of rural communities to quality health care, Wiener added.

Christner can sue shareholders

A recent 7-0 State Supreme Court decision that overturned parts of previous Court of Appeals and Tuscola County Circuit Court decisions makes it possible for Gary Christner, formerly of Cass City and now a resident in the Phoenix, Ariz., area, to sue individual shareholders for damages incurred when Christner was fired. The court also reinstated a $991 monthly award for 15 years.

Christner worked for Anderson, Nietzke and Co. Inc. when he was discharged. That corporation was dissolved and has no assets.

When the case was heard in Tuscola County, the court ruled that Christner could not sue individual shareholders.

The high court decision means that Christner can take his case to Circuit Court and sue shareholders individually for the amount of the judgement.

John Tuckey says

Border collies "best hired help" around

by Matt Bach
Staff Writer

A man and his dog. Many people have ordinary dogs that lie around the house, eat and sleep.

However, to 1978 Cass City High School graduate John Tuckey, his Border collie, Coors, is not an ordinary dog.

"I don't think I'll ever have a dog as good as Coors," Tuckey remarked, adding, "He's had a rough life. He should have been killed a number of times, but it doesn't make any difference to him. He just keeps on going."

"He can do as much work as 5 men on horseback when it comes to working cows. Over the years he's saved me from traveling a million miles."

Tuckey's dog was born in 1981 while he was working on a ranch in Texas. "I watched him delivered. I delivered him."

While in Texas, Tuckey was trained by a man named Bill Alexander, to teach horses how to work cattle.

Alexander also got Tuckey interested in Border collies. "One of his Border collies was having puppies and I asked if I could have one of the males. I saw all the work his dogs did for him and said to myself, I need one of those," Tuckey recalled, adding that Coors turned out to be the only male in the litter.

Many stock farmers use the Border collies to help train horses to round up cattle. After Alexander trained him to teach the horses, Tuckey left, with Coors, and worked as a professional horse trainer for 8 years in Oklahoma, Georgia, Virginia, Texas and Colorado.

While in Colorado he attended Lamar Community College and earned a 2 year associates degree in horse production.

GOT MARRIED

Then last year Tuckey got married to Betsy (Ahern) Tuckey from Virginia, who is now 6 months pregnant with their first child. "We decided to come back, get a regular job and train horses on our own," John explained, adding, "We've always shown horses for someone else. Now we're doing it for us."

John added he is working at Walbro in Caro as a technician and Betsy works at Allen Home Care in Cass City.

"Michigan is a good place to raise your family and your dogs," Betsy added. The couple met at a horse show in Virginia. "We've both been involved with horses for all our lives," Betsy noted, adding that she is a professional American Quarter Horse Association judge and flies all over the U.S. judging professional horse shows.

"I've been a judge for 2 years and I've trained and shown quarter horses all my life," she pointed out.

Currently, the Tuckeys live with John's parents, Iris and Charles Tuckey. However, they are in the process of moving just west of Cass City.

Eventually John and Betsy hope to show the Border collies as a hobby. In fact, John has just had Coors breed another Border collie, Sally, in an attempt to have more border collies that he can train and sell.

"I just want to train and sell Border collies and get the stock farmers around here aware of them. They just don't know about these dogs and I would like to change that," John remarked.

The collies are first trained by voice and then they can be trained by dog whistle, which is necessary for shows. "Training them is not a difficult thing to do. You've just got to know how to get their control and teach them the commands," John explained. "Actually the dog, as far as training them to work stock goes, could make you look stupid if you're not careful."

NATURAL INSTINCT

John added the Border collies have a natural instinct when it comes to working other animals. "They're the kind of dog that wants to work."

Although John has used

Vandalism, larceny reported in village

Two reports of vandalism and a larceny complaint were filed recently with the Cass City Police Department.

John Connolly reported 4 punctured tires on 2 vehicles parked at his business, J & C Service, 6268 Main St.

No estimate was available on the dollar value of the damage, which is believed to have occurred between 12 p.m. Aug. 19 and 7 a.m. Aug. 21.

Angel Bass reported that vandals shot 4 holes in the front picture window of her home, located at 6317

Houghton St., sometime Aug. 20. Reports state the vandal(s) apparently used a BB gun.

Damage is estimated at $400.

Also, James R. Johnson, 6620 Third St., reported someone stole a hubcap off his 1987 Chrysler vehicle sometime Aug. 18.

Advertise It In
The Chronicle

JOHN TUCKEY gives his dog a simple command, such as "down," and his Border collie, Coors, will do just that. In this case Coors is bringing the sheep to Tuckey at his command.

Coors to round up horses, cattle, sheep and anything else that moves, he plans to use Sally primarily in shows for gathering sheep. "I bought Sally for pups and to train for working sheep."

Border collies are smart and can be easily trained for just about anything. "They have a real good temperament," Betsy noted, adding, "They're not a hyper dog and they're not at all aggressive towards people. In fact, they'd make a lousy watch dog."

"They make a tremendously obedient dog," John added. "You can teach them tricks in a day. They want to make you happy."

"If you just want a Frisbee-dog to take to the beach, they're good for that and they don't wander off," John said. "All I can do is brag about them."

Border collies are originally from Scotland and England. "Over there these dogs are a living for those people."

John pointed out that he will sell and train his puppies to anyone interested. "I don't train other people's dogs. I don't train hunting dogs or bird dogs. All I train is these stock dogs. This is the best hired man you'll ever find."

"If people are interested and would like to see the dogs work, they can call me."

Your neighbor says Summer always "goes too fast"

As the days grow shorter and the nights get colder, mother nature reminds us that summer is slowly fading away. Any skepticism that the beach time weather isn't almost behind us, could also be put to rest with one quick glance at the calendar, that reveals the Labor Day holiday, typically accepted as the close of summer, is only days away.

With this in mind, we asked your neighbor, Wayne Heckman, to highlight his summer.

"I met a lot of new people to play tennis with," stated the avid racket enthusiast.

Heckman, a 6-year employee of Walbro Corp., told us that it was the Jaycees' 4th of July tennis tournament that ushered in new adversaries.

I met a lot of new people to play tennis with during the 4th. I hope they (the Jaycees) do it again next year, claimed the 29-year-old project engineer.

Another plus for the Mayville High School graduate was the selling of his house.

"I've always lived in the country, but I'll be giving city life a chance here in a couple of weeks," joked Heckman.

Heckman, who also appreciates golf, felt that summer was a little too brief. "It always goes too fast," says Wayne, who classifies himself as a warm weather lover.

Heckman and his wife of 8 years, Cindy, a Kingston native, have one child, Craig, 2 years old.

100 attend 69th annual meeting

About 100 persons attended the 69th annual meeting of the Tuscola County Farm Bureau, held Thursday at the K of C Hall in Caro.

Dennis Engelhard was reelected president and Norman Bergdolt and Maynard Stine were reelected as district directors.

The membership passed county resolutions supporting source reduction and separation of solid waste, and supporting more action on the trespass law.

Resolutions passed which will be sent to the state policy development committee for consideration include support for commodity referendum voting to be decided upon by the commodity group; support for increased employability skills to be taught and related to teaching in the school systems; support for the USDA to change their method of computing supplies of milk, and support for FB national policy on sugar to call attention to the importance of the sugar program.

State policies reaffirmed included animal care, livestock and poultry health, agricultural resource management, drain code revisions, road, bridge and property tax assessment, resource recovery, legislative reform and no-fault automobile insurance.

National policies reaffirmed are support for educating consumers about overcharge in the food system and false media statements; support for the purpose of Farm Bureau, and support for the farm program implementation.

Following the 2-hour meeting, a reorganizational meeting was held and the following persons were reelected as the Executive Committee of Tuscola County Farm Bureau: president, Dennis Engelhard; vice-president, Virginia Papp, and third member, John Foley.

Missionary church to host singers

The Galilean Singers will be in concert Sunday at the Cass City Missionary Church, 4449 Koepfgen Rd.

The church service schedule has been changed due to the concert, which will begin at 10:30 following 30 minutes of Sunday School.

Interested persons are invited to attend the services as well as a potluck dinner that will follow in the church basement.

Class of 1929 meets again for 60-year reunion

More than a third of the members of Cass City High School's Class of 1929 gathered last Wednesday afternoon at Wildwood Farms Restaurant for their 60-year reunion.

It was the 20th gathering for the class, which originally numbered 57 and was larger than all other Cass City graduating classes prior to 1929.

Classmates traveled from throughout the area as well as the Upper Peninsula, Wisconsin and Colorado to attend the event. Also in attendance were teachers Helen (White) Baker and Esther (Tarnoski) McCullough, and coach Jim Lewis.

Caro couple sentenced Friday for welfare fraud

A Caro couple charged with welfare fraud were sentenced Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

Sally A. Londry, 21, and Kevin L. Londry, 24, both of 130 Butler St., each received one-year delayed sentences.

In addition, Kevin Londry was ordered to pay $100 in court costs, and Sally Londry was ordered to serve 100 hours of community service, which was deferred for as long as she remains employed.

The defendants entered pleas of guilty to the charge May 26, according to court records, which state the couple failed to provide the Department of Social Services with certain income-related information while receiving Aid to Dependent Children and food stamps.

Also Friday, Charles A. Clyne, 28, of Caro, entered a plea of guilty to delivery of marijuana Sept. 13, 1988, in Caro.

Sentencing is to be scheduled, and his bond was continued at $4,000.

Millington resident Edward Jobson, 41, entered pleas of guilty to 2 counts of probation violation.

Sentencing is to be set and bond was set at $5,000.

Jobson, who was remanded to the custody of the sheriff, received permission to participate in the work release program.

Records state he consumed alcoholic beverages on or about Aug. 18, resulting in his arrest by Millington police.

Courtney E. Bedell, 20, of Vassar, pleaded innocent to a charge of violating probation by consuming alcohol on or about Aug. 8.

A hearing is to be scheduled in the case. Bond was continued at $5,000.

In other proceedings Friday, Robert DeCoe Sr. withdrew his plea of nolo contendere (no contest) to a charge of resisting and obstructing a police officer.

DeCoe, whose case was continued to the next regular motion day, had been scheduled for sentencing Friday.

He is charged with resisting and obstructing a state police trooper July 23, 1988, in Fremont Township, according to court records.

School hiring policy unfair - Robertson

Dear John:

I appreciate the opportunity to share publicly some thoughts and feelings about the School Board policy currently in place for hiring teachers in our Cass City School District.

Four teaching positions have been available in recent months in our elementary school system. The most recent hiring decisions by our principals resulted in several qualified teachers from our community remaining unemployed. Obviously, the hiring of effective well qualified teachers is one of the most important issues in the life of our community. How we select our teachers is a matter of critical importance to all of us. It is possible that the local teachers may not have been the best applicants for the open positions.

At the Aug. 21 School Board meeting, 3 persons were hired to fill the vacant positions - one who was currently employed in another school district, a second person who was not employed but resides in Caro, and the third person hired at Deford was from another city.

My concern is not as personal as it may sound here even though my wife remains an unemployed teacher. A more important concern is to speak up about an unfair policy or system. The fact is that with such a potentially arbitrary policy in place, persons who speak out have a right to be fearful. By stating my views publicly, it may close the doors on my wife's future chances of employment in this school system. So be it. But not to speak out against an unfair system or policy would be a violation of an important personal value.

Yes, there is a great deal of pressure placed on any principal if he/she must make all of their staff decisions with complete autonomy. I believe their burden should be lightened by forming a committee of at least 3 persons: the principal, the superintendent, and a third person.

I believe that Dave Lovejoy's hiring recommendations presented to the School Board Aug. 21, 1989, showed a lack of sensitivity to the educational climate of our community, especially to the teachers who have worked long and hard in this school system. He may receive a formal grievance from the teacher's union because of his action.

What can we do? Nothing about the hiring decisions that have been made. The School Board acted according to policy:

G. point 4 "Administrators have the assurance that they can offer contracts which will be approved by the Board at the next Board meeting." (11-19-80)

That's it, folks! My guess is that 99% of us did not know the comprehensiveness of this policy or the absolute authority given principals in hiring teachers. In the light of this policy I have more appreciation for Ben Hobart's motion not to sustain the recommendation of a principal. In the light of this policy it took courage for Ben even to attempt the motion. Mr. Kuntz was quick to appeal to Board policy. I only wish Ben had made his motion when Dave Lovejoy presented his hiring decisions to the Board. The chair's response to Ben's motion lacked a sensitivity to the feelings of many in this community, although the hour was getting late.

If you agree that this policy needs to be changed, please contact our school superintendent, Mr. Ken Micklash; school board president, Dr. Ed Scollon; or any other school board member. Let them know you want this policy changed in favor of a personnel committee format. This hiring policy will be reviewed at a special meeting Sept. 12, 1989, at 7:30 p.m. My impression of the meeting on Aug. 21 was that the School Board thinks the community doesn't care about this matter. Please give one or more of these persons a call or send a note to the superintendent at his office and let them know you do care and you want the hiring policy changed.

Thank you for taking time to read this.

Sincerely Yours,
Joe Robertson,
a concerned citizen

Otisville man charged in break-in

A 19-year-old Otisville man was recently arraigned in Tuscola County District Court on a charge of breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny.

The defendant, Robert J. Stimson, faces a preliminary examination at 1:30 p.m. Sept. 8. Bond has been set at $7,500.

Court records state Stimson is charged with breaking into a home at 5640 Hanes Rd., Vassar, May 3.

Cass City police report one arrest

Cass City police reported one traffic related arrest over the weekend.

Police arrested Gerald W. Bennett, 44, 6288 Brenda Dr., Cass City, at about 1 a.m. Saturday on suspicion of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

Reports state Bennett, who didn't have his headlights on, was stopped near the intersection of Church and West streets after he failed to signal a turn.

Twilight bean meet set

The Tuscola County Dry Bean Board of Directors in cooperation with the Tuscola County Cooperative Extension Service have scheduled their annual marketing twilight meeting for Sept. 11, Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension director, announced.

This special activity will be held at the Lynn Hecht farm (location of the dry bean variety plot) at 7 p.m.

The location of the meeting is 1/8 mile south of M-46 on Garner Road (1 mile north, 1 mile west and 3/4 mile north of Vassar).

"The Hecht plot is looking great and growers will have an excellent opportunity to compare the various varieties of beans under good growing conditions," Bortel said.

Greg Varner will be present to summarize the dry bean market report across the United States.

Refreshments will be served to close the meeting.

4-Hers camp out

Members of the 1989-90 Sanilac County 4-H Royal Court and chaperones traveled to Hartwick Pines State Park Aug. 18, spending the next 2 nights camping out in tents at the youth campgrounds.

Attending the trip were Tonya Kamen, Deckerville (Lakeside - Deckerville FFA); Jeff Gillig, Decker (Lucky Stars); Tom Paling, Carsonville (Huron View 4-H Club); Glendna Burgess, Brown City (Flynn Hustlers); Teresa Berden, Snover (Lang Super Stars); Scott Janowick, Argyle (Deckerville FFA); Roxanne Turner, Marlette (Germania Silver Stars) and chaperones Kathy Berden, Charlotte Turner, Aletha Mahaffy and Hal Hudson.

Many attractions, including a midnight tour of Hartwick Pines, were enjoyed.

The group also visited the fish hatchery, took a ride on go-carts and boats and visited Wa Wa Sum and Mackinac Island.

O-G looks to strong line for grid success this fall

If football games are won in the trenches, Coach Arnie Besonen's 1989 Owen-Gage football squad should win their fair share this season.

"We've got experience from right guard to left tackle," Besonen pointed out when asked about his strengths for the upcoming campaign.

But the 21-year veteran mentor's gridders will have their work cut out for them if they hope to improve on last year's 7-2 finish.

Gone from last year's better-than-average season squad are some key players. In fact, Besonen has only one returner, Graham Besonen, to build on in his offensive backfield.

Marc Reinhardt may prove the toughest to replace. As a senior, Reinhardt led the team in both rushing and tackles. Reinhardt possessed the speed to break the big one, and the muscle to run up the middle.

The Bulldogs will also be without the services of Chad Sturrett, the "Dogs' starting quarterback for the past 2 seasons. Sturrett, whose true love is on the hardwood floor, has suffered broken bones during the previous 3 seasons and has opted to play golf this fall. Sturrett's injury a year ago caused the lanky senior to miss all of last year's basketball competition. Also sure to be missed is halfback Jay Susalla.

Despite these losses, there is talent in the O-G backfield. Important game experience is lacking but the team should improve as the season progresses. Brad Susalla should gain important yardage on quarterback roll-outs. Susalla is 5-4 and needs to run to avoid charging linemen. J. Haldane will move from the line to fullback. Andre Damm is the fastest runner in the league and, if he can break loose, is a threat to score from any place on the field.

The Bulldogs could have the guys up front to bust Damm loose. Even though it is the team's strong point, the loss of Warren Voltz, the Bulldogs' best lineman last year, and Bill Ehrlich, the team's best defensive end, will provide shoes hard to fill.

The Bulldogs open the season Friday at home against Arenac Eastern. The game should be a good one for Owen-Gage to start smoothing out the kinks for the season ahead. Owen-Gage defeated Arenac in the non-conference opener last season, 33-6, and figures to have the edge when the teams meet again this year.

Besonen sees plenty of competition in the North Central D League this fall. Deckerville and Kingston rank as favorites, he says. Akron-Fairgrove is a dark horse, while Peck is always very tough at home.

What the coach fears most this year are injuries. We are very, very thin, he explains, and we need to keep our players healthy.

Over the years the Bulldogs under Besonen have been one of the teams to be reckoned with, and if all goes well, they should rack up another year in that tradition.

Farm Bureau protests ban

The Michigan Farm Bureau board of directors, meeting in Lansing Aug. 23 and 24, issued a statement expressing "extreme disappointment" in supermarkets that have imposed a temporary ban on milk from cows treated with Bovine Somatotropin (BST). The board said the ban was the result of "yet another scare tactic" by food safety alarmists.

"Farmers are proud of their role in providing the consumers of this nation with the most nutritious, safest food supply in the world," said Michigan Farm Bureau President Jack Laurie on behalf of the board. "We are extremely disappointed in the unwarranted reaction of some of the major supermarkets to yet another scare tactic which shakes the confidence of consumers in their food supply.

"Our dairy industry now finds itself at the mercy of one more environmental group, challenging the safety of a product the Food and Drug Administration has certified as not posing any risk to human health. Farmers resent being the victims of these food safety alarmists. Farmers have always joined consumers in supporting responsible food safety programs, based on proven scientific research methods," he said.

"The government agency that is responsible for the safety of our food supply has determined that bovine somatotropin (BST) is safe with respect to human consumption. It is a naturally-occurring protein produced by cows. FDA scientists are still testing it for its impact on animals -- not humans. Research shows that BST treatments for cows do not affect the wholesomeness of milk. It remains safe and nutritious. The use of BST is not a health risk to consumers and it could be an economic advantage to them because it allows farmers to produce milk more efficiently.

"We hope other supermarkets will not allow themselves to be manipulated by food scare tactics. We look forward to working with them in the future to continue supplying consumers with the world's safest and most nutritious food supply," Laurie concluded.

Veterans fill key roles

Red Hawks short, but quick

The Cass City Red Hawks will be returning 5 veteran players from last year's team which finished 14-7, but Coach Marty Daniel's charges will need an all-out performance by the entire squad to equal or better last year's mark.

That's because there is not a player on the squad that measures above 5-7 and holding its own on the glass will be a team problem.

Last year the center position was admirably handled by Darlene Monroe, the 6-foot plus all conference performer. She was helped by Cindy Powell, who also was one of the team's top scorers. Also gone are Amy Francis and Andrea Isard, role players that filled a vital niche.

Balancing these losses are the veterans who should be better with another year's experience under Daniel, who was new to the players last season.

Start with Jandi Hillaker, 5-7 junior, who was honorable mention all conference last season. Daniel calls her the best ball handler he ever coached as well as a strong rebounder.

Beth Powell, 5-4 guard, has excellent quickness and is a good outside shooter.

She was honorable mention all-conference last year and already has 12 varsity letters. Sue Papp, 5-6 senior, will be earning her third varsity letter this fall. She's ticketed for the post position despite her lack of size. These 3 girls started every game last year.

Other letter winners include Vicki Robinson, 5-6 senior, who is a good outside shooter and is improving as an inside shooter and rebounder, and Tracey Patera, 5-6 junior guard.

Daniel has 3 players up from the junior varsity that will bolster the team. Jodi Hillaker, 5-6 sophomore, and a pair of juniors, Missy Zinnecker, 5-6 post player, and Jenny Nye, 5-6 guard, will fill vital roles.

Daniel sees North Branch, Marlette and Lakers as strong challengers for the title in the Thumb B Association. However, he feels that over-all the league is more balanced than it was in 1988, when North Branch dominated with some outstanding talent.

Daniel says that the team's strength is its quickness and the leadership provided by the seniors on the team.

Healthy Hawks ready for grid opener at Mayville

In the annual pre-season scrimmage with other area schools last week, Coach Don Markel discovered some pleasing and some not so pleasing areas as the 1989 squad prepares for the opener Friday at Mayville.

Running plays in the scrimmage that included squads from Brown City, Ubyly and Akron-Fairgrove, Markel said that his offense played better than expected, but the defense had areas that needed correction. We will be working on that this week, Markel promised.

Markel was pleased with the offense, even though a pair of linemen were not suited for the scrimmage. Everyone will be available for the opener. The team has come through the pre-season without serious injury as of Monday. Scott Marshall has a minor injury but is expected to be able to play.

It will be a veteran team that takes the field in the opener. Markel says that the starting team on both offense and defense will have 8 seniors and 3 juniors. Five of the players are expected to go both ways.

The Mayville game should offer Markel an opportunity to see a lot of players in action under actual game conditions.

The Hawks defeated Mayville last season, 32-0, and the Wildcats got a late start on the practice field this fall. The football program was up in the air until a second try for millage was passed about 2 weeks ago, giving the team a later start than other teams enjoyed.

The Hawks have a more favorable schedule than the one they wrestled with at the start of the last season. Last year they played the league powerhouses early in the season and lost the first 3 league games.

This year the teams that figure to be strong, Caro, North Branch, Millington and Lakers, aren't scheduled until the last half of the season.

Cass City's home opener is against Marlette. Most years the Red Raiders are not football powerhouses, but have come up with strong games against Cass City.

CO-CAPTAINS OF THE Red Hawk football varsity this year are Scott Dillon and Jason Robertson, senior letter winners.

Isla Sowden

Isla H. Sowden, 75, Owendale, died Thursday, Aug. 24, at Sunny Acres Nursing Center, Bad Axe, after a brief illness.

She was born Jan. 30, 1914, in Grant Township, daughter of Roy and Anna (Jarvis) Russell.

She married Clark Sowden Aug. 22, 1938, at the Methodist parsonage in Elkton. He preceded her in death Sept. 11, 1960.

Mrs. Sowden lived and farmed in Grant Township most of her life and had been employed at Anrod in Cass City for more than 20 years, retiring in 1986. She was a member of the Elkton United Methodist Church.

Surviving are a son, Lee Sowden of Owendale; a daughter, Janet Lackie of Elkton; 4 grandchildren, and one great-granddaughter.

Preceding her in death were a grandson, Eric, and a sister, Ardis MacAlpine.

Funeral services were held Saturday at Elkton United Methodist Church. The Rev. Jim James, pastor, officiated. Burial was in Grant Township Cemetery.

Dorsch family holds reunion

The 7th Dorsch reunion was held Sunday afternoon, Aug. 20, in the Owendale school cafeteria. Sixty-seven descendants of Charles and Augusta Dorsch of the Linkville and Owendale area attended a noon potluck dinner.

Following dinner, a short business meeting was conducted by Howard Dorsch. The family voted to meet in 1991, at the same place the second Sunday in August.

Officers reelected were president, Howard Dorsch, and secretary-treasurer, Clarence Gaeth, both of Owendale.

The Dennis Schweitzer family of Auburn and the Jim Metzger family of Au Gres were in charge of games for adults and children. Prizes were awarded.

Game committee volunteers for 1991 will be Heather, Lisa and Dawn Dorsch.

Family members attended from Sebawaing, Pigeon, Bay Port, Flint, Au Gres, Auburn, West Branch, Millington, Cass City, Davison, Turner, South Branch, Haslett, Unionville, Pontiac, Rochester, Lapeer, St. Louis, MO, and Owendale.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Five years ago last month, a fellow I know bought 50M par value zero-coupon U.S. government bonds. The acronym was CATS.

Cost: $9.85 per bond, total ... $4,925.

Value now, 5 years later, $32.62, total ... $16,310.

Since they were zero-coupon bonds, no interest has been paid during this 5-year period. All the return is in the gain in value.

In this case they've tripled in value.

Since the owner was a youngster (under a custodian account) there has been very little income tax due. In 2002 the 50 bonds will mature, and Tiny Tim will be in college.

The original investment of $4,925 will have grown to $50,000 - 10 times as much as the 1984 gift when Tim was not yet weaned.

Let any of the college tuition schemes in Michigan, Florida and other places top this one.

Another big advantage is that the investment is available any time by just calling up the broker. No strings attached. No obligation to go to college if the boy doesn't feel like it. Solid cash growing bigger every year.

How many 18-year-olds do you know who have $50,000 in cash?

*****

Most mayors when they quit their jobs sing the glories of what they have done for their beloved city. Not so in Lapeer, Mich., where the County Press quoted Mayor Barry Shoultz as he resigned:

"If I thought I was abandoning a sinking ship I wouldn't leave. In fact, this ship is floating high and dry."

Uh huh.

*****

Thinking of buying bonds in a garbage plant (pardon me, an energy-conversion facility)? Forget it.

Detroit has one starting up. Combustion Engineering designed it, so it's likely a good one. The cost, including bond interest, is over $400 million.

Already the Detroit News environmental reporter is expressing concern about "toxic chemicals" in the ash, and cancer-causing fumes or residue. And in spite of millions spent in planning, and hundreds of millions in engineering and construction, the Feds haven't yet given all the necessary o.k.'s for continued operation.

Assuming these approvals come through, and the papers and the telly and the neighbors don't call in the EPA, there is the little matter of the city of Detroit operating the thing properly. If they do, it would be the first successful enterprise of the 16-year administration of Mayor Coleman Young.

There are a number of good utilities if you choose revenue bonds that are tax exempt. My favorite is the AA-rated Intermountain Power of Utah, then Jacksonville, Fla., Electric, and the Georgia Municipal Electric Authority (MEAG'S, they call them).

Bill Myers is a retired editor and investment counselor.

Next several months most hazardous, farmers warned

The next several months will be a most hazardous time for farmers because of the pressure to complete corn silage and corn grain harvest before harsh weather develops.

Howard Doss, Michigan State University Extension agricultural safety specialist, says that being prepared to meet emergencies during harvest can substantially reduce the risk of a serious accident.

Part of the preparation to reduce risk includes designating specific responsibilities to people who will assist in repairing broken or stuck equipment.

The farm manager can considerably reduce downtime and consequent irrational activity by specifying what aspect of a job he or she or an employee will perform.

Keep the number of people involved in getting equipment unstuck to a minimum, make sure towing equipment is hitched low, and use a heavy chain, matched to the pulling power of the towing equipment to free stuck equipment. Avoid the use of fiber ropes, nylon straps or nylon ropes because of their tremendous recoil and whipping action when they break.

Never trust the equipment's hydraulic system when doing any repair or maintenance. If the combine header breaks or plugs, block or lockout the header before doing any work. Falling headers have killed or maimed farmers in Michigan each harvest season during the past several years.

When the harvester plugs, turn off the power. Use nothing softer than wood or metal to remove the plug. A harvester can take in a corn plant at a rate of 12 feet per second. At that rate of speed, the harvester could sever an arm before a person could even think about reacting.

Most important during harvest is the human risk factor.

Regardless of how smoothly the harvest may be going, no one should remain on the job for more than 8 hours at a time.

Beyond 8 hours of work, a person's mental alertness and physical capability begin to drop noticeably even when working conditions are good. When working conditions are harsh, those mental and physical capabilities decrease more quickly, increasing the fatigue risk that can lead to a serious accident.

One way to reduce fatigue risk is to take frequent rest breaks. Breaks lasting 5 to 10 minutes are more effective than longer rest periods, especially if they are accompanied by nutritious, high-energy snacks. Trading jobs -- the combine operator and the grain hauler switching places for a couple of hours, for instance -- can also help reduce the fatigue risk.

Someone associated with but not involved in the harvest work routine should be designated to watch for indications of worker fatigue. Sudden clumsiness, slow responsiveness when spoken to, irritability and le-annually in Federal Revenue Sharing Funds, eliminated in 1986, is a key factor.

Among most adults there is almost no difference in eye size. Some appear to have larger eyes because of such factors as position in the skull or prominence of eyebrows.

Instead of making cuts then, county officials began using the revolving tax fund, now nearly exhausted, to offset the lost revenue sharing funds, he said. "Our county really never had an emergency fund set aside," he commented. Now, he added, "It's time to pay the piper, you might say."

YOUR EYES

Dr. Ronald R. Watson

RETINAL PROBLEMS

Q. Can a blow to the eye cause damage to the retina?

A. A blow to the eye -- whether from a heavy object or a speeding ball -- may cause damage to the retina, as well as normal swelling and discoloration from broken blood vessels around the eye itself. Signs of possible retina damage include a shadow looming across your normal vision, blurred vision, a loss of side vision or sudden flashes of bright light.

Your eyes should be examined as soon as possible after it's hit. By looking at your eyes through the ophthalmoscope and other instruments, your optometrist will be able to see whether there has been any retinal damage and determine the nature of treatment which may be indicated. If you have only suffered a simple black eye, the swelling and discoloration will disappear in a short time.

In many situations, especially sports activities (such as racquetball) and when working with power tools, eye injuries can be avoided by wearing safety goggles.
