Col. Shaw debates choice of careers

ELKLAND TOWNSHIP FIRE fighters responded to, but didn't use a drop of water on this barn fire about 5 miles northeast of Cass City Sunday afternoon. The structure had fallen down and was unsafe, and the owners were burning the debris, a fireman remarked.

Refuses to cooperate

Accident victim jailed

A Deford man who fell off his bicycle, refused to go the hospital and then refused to get off the ambulance cot he was lying on was arrested Sunday in Cass City for disorderly conduct. According to a report filed on the 1:51 p.m. incident, Cass City police were hailed by a passing motorist, who reported that an elderly man apparently had fallen off a bicycle and was lying partly in the roadway in front of Mutual Savings on Main Street west of Weaver Street.

Police identified the man as Frank G. Skripick, 63. Reports state Cass City-Mercy Ambulance personnel arrived at the scene and began to give first aid to Skripick, who sustained an abrasion above his right eye in the fall. The attendants then attempted to get Skripick to lie down on a cot for transport to the hospital, according to police, who said the victim became irate, saying there was nothing wrong with him. Ambulance personnel then asked Skripick to get off the cot, but he refused. Both the police officer and a Tuscola County Sheriff's deputy ordered Skripick to leave the cot or be arrested. Reports state Skripick then suggested that they "go for it". The officers obliged, transporting him to the county jail in Caro. Also arrested over the weekend was an Ohio man whose vehicle was stopped by police on Woodland Avenue north of Garfield Avenue early Saturday morning. Reports state Trevor A. Tyfair, 22, of Waterville, Ohio, was stopped at about 1:50 a.m. because of a loud exhaust. Shortly thereafter he was arrested on suspicion of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, subsequent offense; being in possession of open intoxicants in a motor vehicle, and driving while his license was suspended.

Michigan's most experienced astronaut, Cass City native Brewster H. Shaw Jr., is keeping his career options open following the successful completion of his third space shuttle mission. Regardless of what he chooses to do next, however, it's likely the 44-year-old U.S. Air Force Colonel will continue to contribute to the space program.

Contacted Friday at his office at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas, Shaw said it's uncertain whether he'll fly another shuttle mission. "I don't know; that remains to be seen. I'm keeping my options open right now," he remarked. "I could stay here in this office as a civilian. I could go into management as a civilian," Shaw, a 20-year Air Force veteran, said. He added he could also do either and remain in the service, or retire and enter private industry.

"I do believe in the space program and I plan to continue to support the program. The only thing we have to figure out is what's the best way for me to do that. It's going to come down to what's best for the country."

Turning to the latest space shuttle mission, Aug. 8-13 aboard the shuttle Columbia, Shaw said there were very few problems and that he "felt real comfortable with this mission."

Shaw acknowledged he felt a certain amount of healthy fear in taking off aboard the 125-ton winged spaceship.

BUTTERFLIES

Asked if he experienced some butterflies, he replied, "You bet I do. In fact, it makes me afraid."

"If you don't respect the nature of the beast, then I think you don't understand what you're doing or you're a fool, one or the other," he said. "There's always potential for problems, serious problems."

Still, he added, "On launch morning there's a lot going on in your head. I've got too much to think about doing right."

Few details were released by NASA regarding the recent flight, which carried a dedicated Department of Defense payload. Wire service reporters, however, quoted sources as saying the 5-man crew deployed a 10-ton reconnaissance satellite designed to gather intelligence information.

Shaw noted he felt comfortable with the work done to prepare Columbia, NASA's oldest space shuttle, for the mission.

Columbia, which flew the first shuttle mission in 1981, spent the past few years as a "hangar queen," stripped of its parts to keep the shuttles Discovery and Atlantis flying after the Jan. 28, 1986, Challenger explosion. The shuttles underwent some 250 safety modifications after the tragic accident.

"We have done more than just make modifications to the hardware," Shaw commented. "We also modified our management structure.

We also modified, to a certain degree, our approach" to the space shuttle.

STRONGER, BETTER

"I think the program is stronger and better than it was."

As for the future, Shaw said the space program will continue to move forward. How quickly that movement occurs will depend largely on how much money Congress is willing to spend, he said.

"There are a lot of things to do. We've got a lot of shuttle missions to fly," Shaw continued, adding flights are planned for October, November and December this year, with another 9 or 10 missions scheduled for next year.

Also planned are construction of a space station in the 1990s, and, eventually, a manned space flight to another planet, probably Mars. "It's going to take awhile," Shaw said. He added that the space program and space exploration must continue to receive support if planned advances are to be realized.

While the space program consists of a variety of projects and missions, each is proposed and implemented with one idea in mind, according to Shaw, who added, "The goal is to continue to explore space... for the betterment of mankind."

Shaw hopes to share his work again in person with area school students and residents. Although no firm date has been scheduled, he said he hopes to return to his hometown this fall.

50 years ago

World War II vets tell how it was

If Adolph Hitler had been more patient in his quest for world domination, could he have succeeded, and if he had, what would life be like today in Cass City? Area resident Jack Esau, a retired U.S. Marine, still wonders. Esau, 71, and 4 other area veterans recalled some of their experiences during World War II Friday, the 50th anniversary of the invasion that started it all. Although the war may be little more than a series of chapters in a history book to those who weren't born yet or who were too young at the time to remember, it is vividly remembered by those who fought it.

As Esau recalled, few, if any, realized that Germany's invasion of Poland Sept. 1, 1939, would mushroom into a world war. "I think most people were caught by surprise" by the announcement, he remarked.

"My feeling is they didn't expect for it to start in Poland or to start that quick. They were looking more for a war, say, with France or eastern Europe. I don't think the leadership of any country thought it would get as big or as widespread."

Indeed, by the time the killing ended nearly 6 years later, destruction and death had spread across 6 of the world's 7 continents, with more than 50 million people -- two-thirds of them civilians -- killed. "I was working for Young and Maier's Meat Market and it was a beautiful day," Esau recalled of when he heard a radio report of the invasion.

"It was all over in 2 weeks -- Poland was crushed," he continued.

Esau noted he joined the Marine Corps in 1940. "It was quite evident that it was going to get bigger," he said, adding that when Hitler's forces began putting pressure on France, Belgium and the Netherlands in the spring of the same year, "You knew they were playing ball for keeps."

LANDINGS

Esau, who served as a marine through 1946, took part in 2 amphibious landings in the South Pacific Theatre -- Bougainville in 1943 and Guam in 1944.

One of the landings holds a particularly strong memory for the area resident, who remembers being aboard one of several transport boats in a convoy headed for Guam during the summer of 1944.

One of 3 Japanese torpedo bombers flying at tree top level towards the convoy dropped a torpedo, striking a nearby landing craft carrying about 150 marines, Esau said. "Very few survived," he added. "I had both hands on the rail, and when it was over, I could hardly let go of it. I guess I wasn't the only one."

Another marine, William H. Guinther, Cass City, was 22 years old when he enlisted in Caro in December of 1941.

He recalled hearing the news of the invasion of Poland 2 years earlier while working at the Reed and Patterson Meat Market in Cass City. "I didn't think we were going to get that far into it," he said of his initial reaction.

But 4 years after enlisting, the chief cook found himself among the fifth wave of marines who landed on the island of Iwo Jima. Guinther was among only about 35 marines out of some 200 in his group to return from the battle.

WOUNDED

He remembers that day well because within an hour of landing on the island, he was wounded.

"We were cleaning up the debris around there in order to get the tanks and heavy artillery in," he recalled. Suddenly, a mortar hit a nearby landing craft, sending bits of shrapnel into his left hand. "I didn't know it," he said. "My hand was getting warm and a guy said, 'You've been hit.'"

Guinther said he was transported off the island, but volunteered to return 4 days later with his arm in a sling.

Having seen many others killed on the beach during the landing, the retired Fuelgas Co. truck driver still remembers not being able to sleep for a week after returning to the island.

Retired road contractor Norman Gray, 69, could relate to those memories.

Gray, who was working as a farm hand when the war broke out, joined the Army in 1942. In April 1943 he joined the invasion forces on Attu Island off the coast of Alaska.

SNIPER

"The day I got hit was worst," he commented. Gray explained that he was working as an Army engineer and was running a bulldozer up to the front line to build a road May 29, 1943, when a sniper shot him.

"I knew what happened. It felt like getting hit across the stomach with a baseball bat," he said. "I got him and then passed out."

While Gray, Guinther and Esau recalled battles in the South Pacific Theatre, 2 other area veterans, Robert Stickle and Robert Speirs, relayed their memories of Please turn to page 5.

To sleep, perchance

by Melva E. Guinther

People who fall asleep as soon as their heads hit the pillow probably don't realize how blessed they are. You really have to have experienced sleeplessness to appreciate it properly.

MacBeth was a guy who understood the value of a good night's sleep.

He said, you'll recall, "Sleep that knits up the ravell'd sleeve of care, the death of each day's life, sore labour's bath, balm of hurt minds, great nature's second course, chief nourisher in life's feast...."

Who knows how long he might have gone on if Lady MacBeth hadn't interrupted him?

MacBeth no doubt realized that when you don't get that knitting, bathing and balm, you suffer the next day, and so do those around you.

I experienced some sleepless nights a while back due to a painful knee, and I suspect that I wasn't my usual vibrant, vivacious, congenial self.

Without sleep, it's impossible to be creative. It's difficult to do anything productive, and just being civil takes a monumental effort. Students would be well-advised to take sleep seriously.

"If It Fitz..."

I'm not Ralph Nader

By Jim Fitzgerald

My phone rang and Larry Jackson, an employee of Pontiac Motors, complained that the Oakland County Friend of the Court had deducted child support payments he didn't owe from his vacation paycheck. He said the court did the same thing to several co-workers, assuming they owed money they didn't, and forcing them to go to the court to get their money back. Jackson said deductions even were made from the vacation pay of a man who hadn't owed child support for several years because his child had died.

As soon as I hung up, my phone rang again, and Catherine Brozowski of Ferndale complained that the state Department of Social Services, in Oakland and Wayne Counties, is regularly overdue in paying money owed her for providing day care for the children of low-income working mothers. She said the lethargic, who-cares? attitude of some DSS employees threatens to put her out of business.

The next phone call came from Jane Clark of Livonia, who said people should be told that Michigan Bell sales representatives don't tell customers that, if they have the right type phone, they can buy a push-button service — often called "Pulse" — that's a couple of dollars cheaper than Touch-Tone. Clark said when she griped about this to Bell, she got a refund, but not enough.

Those are just 3 typical examples of the way it goes at my desk: One complaint after another about poor service provided by government and business. By phone or mail, I get gripes about Blue Cross, parking tickets, Immigration, courts, water departments and grocery stores that refuse to pay bottle refunds. I even got a beef from a guy who said radio station WJR's "Ask a Lawyer" program advised him to call me. Some complaints are absurd. One woman wanted me to give her landlord hell for refusing to accept her monthly rent in 2 installments. She didn't want to be forced to manage her money. Other gripes ring more true, such as those from Jackson, Brozowski and Clark.

But much of the time I'm never sure, because there's no way I can investigate every complaint received and still have time to write 4 columns a week. It can take days, even weeks, to get a straight answer out of some bureaucracies and corporations, and sometimes even longer to determine that a complainant has more button holes than buttons.

Besides, I'm not Ralph Nader. I have no consuming passion to be a consumer advocate. I'd rather write about really important things — the death of mustard pickles in supermarkets, and "poke" as a TV-acceptable euphemism for the "f" word. And — some of you will barf — there are actually readers out there who get angry when I go 2 weeks without writing about my grandchildren.

But some complaints hit me where the pain won't go away until I make those endless phone calls. And too often I end up angry about one damn more instance where an ordinary Joe got jerked around, but it would never have happened if he'd been a newspaper columnist.

Latest example: John Zacchi of Detroit has 4 young children "who are often made fun of in the neighborhood because we're on welfare." Zacchi enrolled in a DSS job training program, but was told no training was available — he'd have to find his own and then apply for funding. So he did find his own training — a 5-month emergency medical technician course offered by Detroit Public Schools.

All Zacchi needed from DSS was the proper forms filled out and about $60 for books and lab fees; there was no tuition. All he got was incredible ho-hum incompetence and run-arounds from some DSS employees. His complaints were ignored. As the delays mounted, it looked like he would miss the start of the medical course.

Desperate, Zacchi wrote to me. I called his case worker, who refused comment, but promised to have her supervisor phone me. He didn't. But 3 days later I received this note from Zacchi: "Thank you for responding to my letter and for the phone call you made on my behalf...on July 20 I received notice that my training choice had been approved. I also received a written apology.

"Thanks to you I will be attending classes in August. Thank you for caring."

Onward and Upward, sometimes.

MICHIGAN DSS Director C. Patrick Babcock (right) congratulates Tuscola County DSS employee Diane Stahl, Caro, after she was named the statewide administrative support employee of the year.

Tuscola DSS employee receives statewide honor

Caro resident Diane Stahl, a clerical employee of the Tuscola County Department of Social Services (DSS), was recently honored as the statewide administrative support employee of the year.

The award was presented at a department-wide conference last month in Traverse City.

C. Patrick Babcock, state director of the DSS, made the presentation, saying, "She is respected as a leader among her peers and is looked to for advice from other staff."

DSS has in excess of 13,000 employees across the state. The department's employee recognition program honored employees in 7 categories and volunteers in another 4 categories.

Stahl has been employed by the state for 16 years, 14 of them with DSS. Tuscola County DSS director Onalee Detwiler described her as having "a marvelous sense of humor, never at a loss for a funny story to liven the atmosphere."

Stahl is married with 2

young daughters. She enjoys golf, bowling, swimming and camping, and is very active at St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

It seems as if everyone has a comment about the Pete Rose affair. Unless you've been space walking on the moon, you know that Rose was banned for life from baseball for gambling. The commissioner says the ban is for betting on baseball, a charge which Rose denies, although the evidence against him appears conclusive.

But during this entire controversy, it never has been alleged that Rose bet on his team to lose. That's an important distinction.

You can make a strong case for the doctrine that major league baseball has adopted as one that it is good for the game. Certainly the rules were clear. Bet on baseball and you are out.

That Rose needed to be set down can hardly be questioned. The question is for how long?

Drug users and players with a criminal record are treated much more leniently than a gambler. Are they less of a threat to the integrity of the game than a gambler? Perhaps. But dope addicts have been known to do anything to get money to support the habit, and if a guy comes out of jail, there is at least a question about the way he okays society's rules.

Of course, they need another chance. If it's earned, everyone does. Including one of baseball's all-time greats.

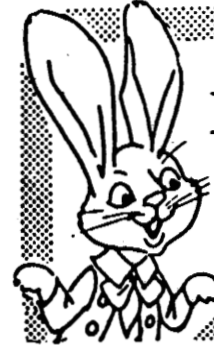

Rose doesn't seem to be helping his cause much by continuing to claim innocence and then signing away his baseball career for life. Even worse in my book is that he refuses to acknowledge that he is hooked on gambling.

You can have all the sympathy in the world for the man and still feel that he shouldn't return to baseball until evidence is clear that he has come to grips with gambling.

That may never happen. Some experts claim that addiction to gambling is harder to cure than addiction to alcohol. A gambler in debt is under severe pressure to do whatever is necessary

It could have been a whole lot worse department: According to a release from the governor's office, the new state aid to schools will jump Cass City's state aid from $1,797,459 in 1988-89 to $2,074,700 in 1989-90, an increase of $177,241 or 15 percent.

To raise that much from local taxes would require about 1 3/4 mills. Compare that with Unionville-Sebewaing, which didn't gain a cent, or Millington, which actually lost 2 percent, and Cass City comes up smelling like roses.

You'll have to show me department: According to that GTE booklet with predictions for the year 2001, motorists can expect this: "Automobiles will be smaller, lighter, sleeker and more fuel efficient. Built to last 20 years, they will feature sonar reversing aids, radar autocruise devices, in-dash video 'map' systems, and 'heads up' holographic projections of instrument read-outs."

Last 20 years? The industry will never let it happen.

In one of the metro dailies there was a glowing report about a new restaurant just north of Boyne Falls. The Haire's tried "A Place at the Table" and the result is a mixed review.

To me it was just fair, to Dorothy it was good. She had a doctored up chicken dish and I had fish.

The cost? Plenty if you are used to the bargain prices in Cass City. Slightly less than average for a good restaurant in Northern Michigan resort area. Slightly less than $30 with tip. (No alcohol.)

SEEING DOUBLE

Q. Is seeing double serious?

A. The sudden onset of double vision can be the sign of a major health problem, or just an easily correctable vision defect. There is no way of knowing without a thorough eye examination.

In older adults, the simplest cause of double vision may be a poorly made bifocal or trifocal. However, double vision can also be a symptom of a serious medical problem, such as a tumor or slight stroke.

In young children, crossed eyes and eyes that are not working as a team often cause double vision. To avoid uncomfortable double images, a child suppresses the vision in one eye, turning it into an amblyopic eye that is not used to see with. It is easiest to correct this type of vision in childhood with eyeglasses and/or vision training. This kind of treatment strengthens the unused eye until it begins to function with the other one. It is much harder to make this kind of correction in adults.

If you begin to see double, consult your optometrist right away.

Commissioners adopt 5-year update to county waste plan

Tuscola County commissioners last week adopted a 5-year update of the county's 20-year solid waste management plan, which will guide officials in their effort to implement a long-term solution to the refuse disposal crisis.

Towards that end, the board also took action on a motion related to creation of a multi-county waste authority.

Tuscola County's 5-year waste plan update, prepared over the past year by the Tuscola County Solid Waste Planning Committee, was presented last week by Caro Village Manager Don Duggar, chairman of the special committee.

Duggar later commented that the updated plan calls for exploration of more than one possible solution to the growing problem of shrinking landfill space and soaring waste hauling and disposal rates.

"Basically it says we'll go towards a regional landfill but at the same time investigate having one of our own in the event we can't reach agreements with surrounding counties," he said.

The possibility of another county closing its doors to out-of-county waste, such as what's happened in Sanilac County, prompted the decision to also look into a county-wide landfill. Some members of the committee, as well as Cass City and Caro village officials, have pushed for that concept.

Regardless of which avenue is eventually chosen, recycling and composting are expected to play key roles in future waste management, and the plan calls for stepped up individual efforts in these areas.

tentative timetable built into the 5-year update is designed to insure that some form of action is taken over the next 5 years.

For example, if efforts to establish a regional landfill are unsuccessful after a certain length of time, officials will turn their efforts towards a county-wide landfill, he said.

Duggar noted the update will now go to each of the county's cities, villages and townships for action.

Upon approval by at least two-thirds (23) of the 34 local units of government, the plan will be forwarded to the Department of Natural Resources.

In a related matter last week, commissioners tentatively approved a set of by-laws for a multi-county waste authority, and okayed payment of $5,000 as the county's share of the cost for the regional effort to date.

If final approval is given, the authority would be the result of several months of discussions among officials in Tuscola, Sanilac, Huron and Lapeer counties regarding establishing a regional landfill for the 4 Thumb counties.

Final action will be taken following another presentation of the document which will focus on the details of the proposed organization.

Duggar, who along with Commissioner Robert Russell (D-Vassar) was appointed to represent Tuscola County on the multi-county solid waste authority, said officials in the other 3 counties have already approved the by-laws.

sion, commissioners scheduled a Truth in Taxation hearing for 10 a.m. Sept. 12.

County Controller Michael Hoagland said the hearing was called because an increase in state equalized valuation in conjunction with anticipated increases in the amount of cigarette and hotel/convention tax monies received are expected to translate into more revenue being generated in the county in 1990 than in 1989, assuming the same amount of millage is levied.

An increase of 7.65 percent is expected, he said.

The board also:
 *Approved funding a proposed senior citizen flu shot and hypertension screening program through the county Health Department. The cost, $8,125, will be paid for with money from the Senior Citizens Fund.

*Rescinded a motion requiring three signatures on General Fund checks. Commissioners earlier this summer passed a motion adding the board chairman's signature to that of the treasurer and clerk's signatures as a requirement for payment with county checks. The measure was approved during a feud with circuit court Judge Patrick R.

Joslyn over finances, particularly control of equipment purchases, related to the court.

*Voted to rescind the existing policy of appointments by commissioners and directed the Executive Committee to draft a new policy for review at the next regular meeting.

*Approved an increase to the Probate Juvenile officer's salary, effective Oct. 1, 1989, in the amount of $612.

*Authorized funding from the Friend of the Court's 215 Fund to provide for contractual help for up to 3 months in that office at a rate of $5.64 per hour (not to exceed $2,750).

*Met in a 20-minute executive session to discuss labor negotiations.

*Approved hiring a part-time drain inspector.

*Accepted the resignation of Co-operative Extension Service employee Vickie Merchant.

*Concurred with recommendations to grant a partial leave of absence to Probate Court Office employee Janet Tomlinson, and a leave of absence to Annette Schneider, who works in the county clerk's office.

*Received an annual report from Veteran's Administrator Larry Spiekerman.

We made $522+ for Jerry's kids

Labor Day is special in many ways. Foremost, it is a time to honor our nation's work force, from steel worker to secretary and everyone in between.

It is also a time to get those little chores done around the house, as Labor Day unofficially earmarks the close of summer and the kickoff of colder weather.

For many, the 3-day weekend provides a chance to visit relatives and friends, or an opportunity to travel north.

But for most, the first Monday of September, plain and simple, means a day off work.

But for your neighbor, Lauretta Cleland, Labor Day was spent in a very special way.

"We made over $522 for Jerry's Kids," said the 30-year-old Ubyly resident.

Cleland, co-owner of Sampson & Delilah in Cass City, told us that her beauty shop crew washed over 30 automobiles and donated more than 40 haircuts to help fight muscular dystrophy.

"Hopefully it's something we can do every year," says Cleland. Continuing, Cleland added, "Next year the group hopes to add a dunking tank."

Cleland and her husband of 5 years, Bob, a corporal for the Sanilac County Sheriff's Department, concluded by remarking on the community's support of their idea.

"I'd like to thank all the people that came out and donated."

65 attend reunion

Sixty-five relatives of the John Y. Brown family met for their annual reunion and potluck dinner Sunday afternoon at the Cass City Gun Club.

Beth Hubel, 1 1/2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hubel Jr. of Flint, was the youngest member present. Marion Brown Guinther Whitefoot, 89, of Cass City was the oldest.

John Brown and Sandra Busutil of Taylor came the greatest distance.

The group voted to hold the reunion the Sunday of Labor Day weekend again next year at the Gun Club.

2 charged with drinking and driving

Two persons were arraigned recently in Tuscola County District Court on drinking and driving related charges.

Michael R. McGrath, 36, of Troy, faces charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third offense; driving while his license was restricted, and no valid registration Aug. 30 in Wells Township.

Bond was set at $6,000 for the defendant, who was scheduled for a preliminary examination Wednesday (Sept. 6).

Caro resident James A. Calley, 32, 207 W. Adams St., is charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, subsequent offense, and violation of license restrictions Aug. 13 in Fairgrove. His preliminary exam was scheduled for 9 a.m. Sept. 13.

GLJC to offer new curriculum

Local farmers and agriculture experts will soon have the opportunity to receive agri-business educational training at Great Lakes Junior College of Caro. GLJC officials are developing an agri-business curriculum which will begin winter term. The college will offer a 2-year associate degree and certificate program in agri-business.

The agri-business curricula, which will begin Dec. 11, is currently going through the development stages. A notice of its finalization is expected by the end of October.

No one hurt in mishap

No injuries were reported in a minor 2-vehicle accident Friday on Main Street west of Oak Street in Cass City.

Cass City Police reported that a vehicle driven by Bertha M. Shagena, 4314 Maple St., Cass City, had turned right onto Main Street from Oak Street and was attempting to change lanes when she struck another westbound vehicle, driven by Steven R. Jones, 4182 Pringle Rd., Snover.

Both vehicles sustained slight damage in the 4:10 p.m. mishap, reports state.

the fighting in Europe. Stickle, who was a high school sophomore when Germany invaded Poland, entered the U.S. Army after graduating in 1942.

In June of 1944, he landed with the second wave of troops during the invasion at Normandy about 2 hours after the initial assault.

A demolition technician with the 301st Combat Engineers, Stickle noted that the possibility of getting killed was "foremost in your mind" during the battle, which proved to be a turning point in the European Theatre.

LOST 14

"We lost 14 from my platoon," the former long-time intermediate school principal remarked. "It was kind of a shock. I think we were all hepped up about saving the world for democracy."

Like Stickle, Speirs was a teenager when the war began. He joined the U.S. Air Force in 1943 at the age of 20.

The next year, about 2 months before the D-Day invasion, he became a prisoner of war and spent much of the following year at the infamous Stalag 17.

A B-17 machine gunner, Speirs said he was on his 14th combat mission as a member of the 8th Air Force in England when his plane was shot down April 18, 1944.

"We were over Berlin when we were overcome by a massive fighter attack," he recalled, adding the German fighters were Messerschmidt 109s. "The plane was crippled. We tried to make it to Sweden, but had to bail out over northern Germany."

CAPTURED

Speirs and the rest of the crew parachuted safely to the ground, but were promptly captured by civilians, who turned the Americans over to the German Army.

Despite remaining a prisoner until May 2, 1945, Speirs says he believes he would have been worse off as a prisoner in the South Pacific Theatre.

"I was starved at times (and) never heard from home," he commented. "There were times when I wasn't sure how I was going to make it. But I've always counted myself lucky."

He recalled a particular incident when a German soldier put a gun to his head. "He was wanting a labor force that morning and I was playing dumb, pretending not to understand him," Speirs said. "I understood him when he put the gun to my head."

Speirs, who attends reunions held every 2 years for members of the 8th Air Force, pointed out that the war also holds some good memories for him. Travel, fellowship with crew members and USO shows are examples, he said.

Guinther agreed, adding, "I wouldn't take a million dollars for it, but I wouldn't do it over."

Youths invited to explore

High school boys and girls from age 15 who are interested in engineering will have an opportunity to explore this field during the coming year. The exploring program will be sponsored by Wal-bro Corporation, according to L.E. Althaver, president of the company.

The first meeting for prospective new members and last year's members of the Exploring Post in engineering will be held Monday evening at 6:45 p.m. at Walbro Corporation, 6242 Garfield Ave., Cass City.

Dave Knight, the post advisor, explained that as Explorers, the members will develop their own program of activities and take advantage of the opportunity to meet and associate with many successful engineers. The post members will work closely with qualified advisors on several interesting engineering projects during the coming year.

Singers announce December concert

The Tom Thumb Singers will break with tradition in presenting their next annual concert in Cass City.

The community choir, featuring singers of all ages, is planning to perform a Christmas concert during a weekend in early December this year instead of waiting until spring, when the weekend concerts are usually scheduled.

No specific date for the concert has been set yet, but persons interested in taking part are asked to attend the group's first practice this month, slated for Monday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the Cass City High School band room.

Registration will be conducted during that meeting. Additional information is available by calling 872-4151.

Mayville falls 39-6

Hawks face Marlette in first Thumb B test in home opener

The Cass City Red Hawks get down to the serious business of becoming a factor in the Thumb B Association title race as the team entertains Marlette in the first home game of the season Friday.

Coach Don Markel expects a tough game against the Red Raiders, who handled a good Kingston team in the opener. The Hawks should be favored on the basis of the team's performance in its opener at Mayville, where the Hawks were not seriously challenged in a 39-6 decision.

Markel isn't deceiving himself about that win, which came against a team with obvious weaknesses and one which had limited practice time before its opener.

The coach says that the Raiders are big this year and with Ryan Rivard in the backfield, they also have exceptional speed.

The Hawks may not have a back as fast as Rivard, but the opening game showed that they have 4 backs who can carry the ball. That's the reason why we will be more run oriented than we were last season, Markel said.

Although Cass City made only 7 net yards passing, the one completion was a big one. It led to the Hawks' first touchdown and came on the team's first possession.

A bad pass from center gave Cass City the ball on the Wildcat 15. After 2 line plays, the ball was on the 8 and Jason Robertson found Greg Graham in the left flat for a touchdown with 8:54 left in the opening quarter.

The Hawks had another opportunity to score early in the period when Robertson intercepted a deflected pass on the Wildcat 48. Running plays moved the ball to the Mayville 24, from where Tim Englehart ran to the 8, only to have the ball called back and the drive stopped by a holding penalty.

The Hawks didn't score again until there was just 5:38 left in the half, but in those closing minutes shoved 2 touchdowns across to settle the outcome of the game. The Hawks' second marker of the game was posted by Scott Dillon, who ran over from the 9-yard line. To score the second TD in the closing minutes, the Hawks overcame a crippling penalty after moving to the Mayville 4-yard line. Englehart got most of that back with a 14-yard gallop to the 7. Graham dashed over to score.

The Hawks added 2 more touchdowns in the third quarter on a 4-yard plunge by Dillon and an 8-yard scamper by Englehart. Englehart ended the Hawk scoring for the night with a 20-yard run. The Wildcats scored a consolation marker on an 11-yard run by Ryan Zsolnai with just under 5 minutes left in the game.

Dillon was the workhorse among the backs with 16 carries good for 67 yards. Englehart was the leading ground gainer with 101 yards in 12 attempts for an 8.4 average.

It was a team defense with no player credited with more than 6 tackles and assists.

O-G rolls over Arenac Eastern, North Branch Wesleyan next

Fresh from a convincing 34-0 victory over Arenac Eastern, Coach Arnie Besonen's charges take to the road for their last non-conference game of the season at North Branch Wesleyan.

Based on the first game, the Bulldogs should be favored to add another game to the win column.

Besonen was pleased that the O-G line came through, but added that it still needs work. But the line was tough enough to keep Arenac from scoring when they had a first on the Bulldog 4-yard line, and that pleased the veteran coach.

The secondary was never seriously tested, Besonen said, but when the losers tried to pass, it was equal to the challenge. Arenac passed 5 times and the Bulldogs intercepted 2.

Owen-Gage removed all suspense from the game in the first quarter by scoring twice. The first came with 7 minutes left in the period as Graham Besonen went 17 yards. Chris Abbe's kick was good. The second marker came with 1:19 left on a 42-yard run by Andre Damm on a trap. The fleet halfback broke a couple of tackles on his way to the end zone. Brad Susalla kicked the extra point.

The Bulldogs tried only 2 passes all night and one of them, from Susalla to Mike Kady, covered 19 yards for a touchdown. It came with 6 minutes left in the first half. Besonen scored his second 6-pointer of the game in the third period in a 20-yard run with 7:58 left. Abbe kicked the extra point. With 3:33 left in the game, Damm scored his second touchdown. This time he covered 44 yards.

The Bulldogs had 2 backs with over 100 yards in the game. Besonen picked up 125 yards in 12 carries and 2 touchdowns. Damm netted 103 yards in 7 tries and also scored 2 touchdowns.

Mike Errer led the defense with 10 tackles. He also recovered 2 fumbles. The only blemish on a fine football night for the Bulldogs was an injury suffered by Chris Pavlichek, starting right tackle, who suffered a shoulder separation. It was not known how long he would be out. He is not expected to play Friday. Taking his place is Junior Scott Norcross.

Roller eyes cage talent in tourney at Caseville

Coach Dean Roller's Owen-Gage girls' basketball team split a pair of contests last week in pre-season tournament play held at Caseville.

Roller expressed that the tourney served as a testing ground, allowing the veteran coach to try different combinations on the floor, and also gave Roller an opportunity to look at unproved players before the upcoming North Central Thumb League race, which began on Tuesday.

In the Bulldogs' season opener against Mayville, Roller's cagers battled the Mayville Wildcats for 4 quarters before bowing 47-46.

Owen-Gage was led by seasoned point guard Vicki Ricker, who topped a balanced attack, with 14 tallies. In the consolation game of the annual Caseville tournament, the 'Dogs had little trouble with host Caseville, winning 52-37.

Again it was Ricker leading the way with 16 markers. She was followed by Marla Goslin and Brandy Salcido, who posted 11 and 10 points, respectively.

The Bulldogs' next game is Thursday with Port Hope.

The Blue Stars defeated Mayville 52-34 in the tournament's championship round.

New books at the library

TROPHY FOR EAGLES by Walter Boyne (fiction). This story revolves around the competition between 2 men, Frank Banfield and Bruno Hafner, who first meet on Long Island in 1927 - to participate in the race to Paris eventually won by Charles Lindbergh - and encounter one another for the last time in the skies over Spain in 1937, enemies still. The account of the protagonists' competition during those 10 years goes beyond action in the air to provide a fascinating look at airplane production, design, and sales.

SUMMER PEOPLE by Marge Piercy (fiction). For over a decade, Willie Dewitt, a sculptor and sometime carpenter, and his wife, Susan, an emotionally fragile fabric designer, have maintained a harmonious marriage while each has been the lover of Dinah, a flutist and avant-garde composer. This unusual ménage a trois occupies adjoining houses overlooking a pond on Cape Cod, sharing a compound with manipulative wheeler-dealer Tyrone Burdock and, this summer, a Boston doctor and his seductive wife. Susan's envy of the summer people erodes her hitherto stable relationships and leads to a slowly gathering but inevitable tragedy.

SOUL/MATE by Rosamond Smith (fiction). Dorothea Devereil is a widow in early middle age. One evening, at a friend's house, she meets Colin Asch, a beguiling man considerably younger than she. Colin is attractive, she knows; but what she doesn't suspect is that he is a cold-blooded killer. Colin becomes so infatuated with Dorothea that he appoints himself her guardian - a role that entails eliminating people who stand as impediments to her progress and happiness. And then he kidnaps her.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Michigan's prepaid college tuition plan already has troubles. A year ago the state's swinging treasurer, Robert Bowman, toggled up a deal whereby parents could plump down $6756, and lo! the state would guarantee that a newborn child could have 4 years of tuition paid at any state college, 18 years hence.

Already the price has gone up. New price will be $7431, and maybe more.

Bowman and Governor Blanchard did a great job of selling the stunt. Some 40,000 Michigan people forked over their money, not stopping to read the fine print.

For instance, if Junior didn't go to college, his parents didn't get back their money with interest. Oh, no. Just the principal. In 18 years the compounded interest would have amounted to 4 times the original investment. So in effect they would get back 20 cents on the dollar.

Only escape hatch was to transfer the plan to a brother or sister. But suppose the siblings, if any, were all older, and had already finished school. Or didn't want to go. Or weren't college material.

Four-fifths of the investment had gone down the bureaucratic tube.

Another catch developed afterward. The IRS said the imputed income was taxable each year to the parents on this locked-in investment with the state. And when the pay-off was finally made, that too was taxable.

When the scheme first came out this simple country boy pointed out that zero coupon bonds would be much better for a family to start its own college fund.

With current bond prices, here is what Ma and Pa could do for a child who would be ready for college in 2007, 18 years hence:

Buy $40,000 of gov't zero-coupon bonds, due 2007, 2008, 2009 and 2010 - - $10,000 each year.

Cost, assuming 8.5% yield...$7434.

That happens to be just $3 more than Michigan is going to price its 4-year guaranteed tuition for.

But there are some advantages to the do-it-yourself plan:

1. Bonds can be put in a custodial account, with either Ma or Pa or both in charge of the account. Until he is 14, Tiny Tim will pay his low tax rate of 15% only on the part of the imputed income over $500.

The first year that will be $131 net taxable, at 15% or $19.65 tax.

The home-made fund is completely under the control of the parents, and can be sold any time if funds are sorely needed. Or if Junior doesn't go to school. After all, only 50% of the high schoolers do go on to college, and only 15% go the full 4 years.

Meanwhile the family investment is in good ol' government bonds - - not something a stock-oriented state treasurer will buy. And maybe his successor will be even wilder.

A basic flaw in the state plan is that tuition rates are assumed to climb 8 or 9% a year, from now on. That means they'd double every 8 or 9 years. I don't think the public will hold still for that.

There are 11 states at last count with some sort of a prepaid college plan like Michigan's. I haven't seen one yet that is better than a simple do-it-yourself model just described.

Better yet the states should hop on the colleges for kiting their costs at a rate twice that of inflation. But then, the teachers unions are a powerful union, and they've either sold or intimidated the people and their government that the way to education is a pavement of gold.

Gold extracted from the pockets of a gullible public.

In Michigan, hospitals don't monkey around with patients who give them trouble. You shape up or they ship you out, feet first.

HDC slates food distribution

The Human Development Commission will be having a Surplus Commodity Distribution at the following locations Sept. 21 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., or until the supply is exhausted:

and Tuscola Counties, from the federal government and is intended for personal consumption by eligible low income families.

Streeter convicted after 3-day trial

A 42-year-old Tuscola County man was recently convicted of operating a motor vehicle with a blood alcohol level of .10 percent or more, third offense, in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

A jury returned the verdict against James R. Streeter, Fairgrove, Aug. 24 following a 3-day trial.

Bond was continued and a pre-sentence investigation was ordered. Sentencing is to be scheduled.

Streeter waived a trial on and pleaded guilty to a supplemental charge of violating license restrictions, according to court records, which state the offenses occurred Dec. 16, 1988.

Cass City seniors set Sept. 14 meet

The Cass City Senior Citizens held their Aug. 10 meeting in the meeting room of Hills and Dales Hospital. There were 14 ladies present with one guest.

A short business meeting was held and the group heard a tape on how to feel good about ourselves.

The next meeting will be Sept. 14. There will be a talk on Medicare and a pharmacist will discuss medications. Members should bring a list of medications.

Calka: College building needs basement

Dear John:

The construction has started on the new building for Jordan College. I have a deep concern as one of the school's financial supporters on its construction.

When we had the meeting concerning the building, it was my understanding that it would include a basement. Now that building has started there is no basement.

The building has limited area and a limited lot size for future construction. Basement area for storage is the cheapest of the building's cost.

There is 14,500 square feet in the building and without the basement it will be reduced considerably. Floors would be warmer with a basement.

It is still not too late to put a basement in and I feel that it should be done now for a better building and a better facility in the years ahead for Cass City.

Also, the building should have the support built in to it now to allow for construction of a second floor if required. There is no room for building addition in the present lot other than another floor.

I have heard from several local contractors, who are taxpayers, asking why the building was let without at least 3 bids.

B.A. Calka

Letters to the editor

Rev. Robertson plays editor for stand

Dear John,

Since I was the one at the August School Board meeting who suggested we consider a personnel committee format for hiring teachers in our Cass City School system, your comments in "The Haire Net" sounded rather personal.

The logic of your comments in "The Haire Net" deserve rebuttal. Since when have we found it safe to leave any self-contained system without some sort of review or with no checks and balances?

The genius of government by the people for the people allows for checks and balances at every level - - the court of final appeal is the ballot box.

Leave politics to the politicians? Sure. Results like "Watergate" and Jim Wright's resignation are examples of checks and balances that work. Someone was minding the store.

Yes, leave religion to the religionists. But I'm glad Jim Bakker is on trial in Charlotte, N.C., and Jim Swaggert's flaws have been made public.

Leave dictating to dictators and you have to deal with the excesses of a Marcos or Noriega. Leave reporting to reporters and editing to editors. Need I go on?

In your "Haire Net" you set up a straw man and then knocked it down. It appears to me you had a "knee-jerk" reaction to an idea which needs a fair hearing.

Leave education to the educators? For the most part, yes. But maybe we need a few more weary meetings to insure a fairness to all concerned. By the way, a committee of 3 would not be all that cumbersome and it need not involve a board member. As it is, the hiring policy now in place says "administrators" plural which could be interpreted to mean a committee of administrators rather than the decision of one person in any given local school.

I believe we need to explore this issue more carefully and your putting it down before we think it through does more harm than good.

Thank you for listening,
Joe Robertson

Lyme Disease: A Treatable Condition

Lyme disease is an infection that is caused by a spiral shaped bacterium called a "spirochete" which is transmitted to humans by a tick that lives on the white-tailed deer. This condition was first studied in the area of Lyme Connecticut - hence the name Lyme Disease.

Adult ticks receive blood, which is necessary for survival, from deer and other hosts. In the fall, after mating, the female tick falls from the deer to the ground and deposits her eggs. The following summer newly hatched ticks emerge. As these ticks mature they feed on humans, deer, or mice. People may come in contact with deer ticks as they hike or camp in wooded areas.

Although deer tick bites are painless, they can cause a red "bull's-eye" rash, stiff neck, and aches in the joints and muscles. Weeks later, shaking, joint pain, and thinning of the skin may occur. Months later, arthritis-type symptoms may occur.

According to a recent article in the journal, Postgraduate Medicine, tick repellents containing permethrin will kill ticks on contact. If Lyme Disease is contracted, treatment with antibiotics has been shown to be effective in eradicating the disease.

HEALTH TIPS

How antibiotics work in body

As the weather turns colder, runny noses appear, sore throats become commonplace and a trip to the doctor's office usually isn't far off.

Depending on the aches and pains associated with these common symptoms, the doctor may call for additional tests to determine the exact cause of infection. For instance, if an ear infection is causing a problem, specific tests to determine the bacteria, or pathogen, may be ordered by the physician. With that information in hand, a specific antibiotic treatment can be initiated.

There are several families of antibiotics, each made up of a number of compounds that differ as to how they work and which bacteria they affect. Some of the families include penicillins, lincosamines, cephalosporins, tetracyclines and the aminoglycosides. In addition, there are individual antibiotics such as spectinomycin and vancomycin.

Some antibiotics work on specific organisms or groups of organisms. These are called narrow-spectrum antibiotics. Those that kill a wide range of bacteria are known as broad spectrum.

How Does A Doctor Decide Which Antibiotic to Prescribe?

The first step is to determine which bacteria are causing the infection. Various tests are given to analyze the organisms involved.

To positively identify the type of bacteria, laboratory tests must be done. Samples of infected tissue, urine or blood are examined. One of the most common tests used is the Gram's stain. A sample is taken and the bacteria that retain a violet color alter exposure to a staining agent are said to be gram-positive; those that lose the color are gram-negative.

Location also provides a valuable clue about the type of infection. If the patient complains of a sore throat, for example, the most likely culprit is a bacterium in the Streptococcus family. Intestinal problems are often caused by different kinds of bacteria, such as Salmonella and Shigella, and pneumonias by still others. Once the tests are completed and analyzed and the infection's location pinpointed, the doctor can determine which antibiotic will be most effective.

Tests to identify specific bacteria can sometimes take days to complete. If the patient's symptoms are severe, the doctor may elect to give a broad-spectrum antibiotic for immediate relief, then switch to a specific narrow-spectrum drug once sensitivity tests on the bacteria are complete. If the patient is responding well to the broad-spectrum drug, the doctor may decide not to change the treatment.

Pneumonias, for example, often respond well to penicillin therapy, and penicillin G is particularly effective against certain pneumonias. Aminoglycosides are very active against intestinal infections. Some abdominal and pelvic infections resulting from anaerobic bacteria (those that can live without oxygen) are effectively treated with clindamycin of the lincosamine family. Of the cephalosporins, the first generation is more effective against gram-positive bacteria, while the third generation works best against gram-negative infections. The second-generation cephalosporins treat certain types of both. Tetracyclines are another commonly used broad-spectrum antibiotic.

How Antibiotics Work in the Body

Antibiotic drugs work in 4 primary ways to fight bacteria in your body:

*The penicillins and cephalosporins inhibit bacterial cell wall synthesis, in effect stopping bacterial growth and multiplication.

*The polymixins and polycenes damage the membrane of the bacterium's cell wall, killing the organism.

*The lincosamines, aminoglycosides, tetracyclines and erythromycins disrupt the bacterial cell's ability to synthesize proteins necessary for its existence, basically starving it to death.

*The sulfonamides and other miscellaneous antibiotics disrupt the bacterium's basic genetic machinery, preventing the organism from duplicating itself.

Host Factors

Aside from the basic questions of what kind of infection is present and where, another major element considered by the physician is host factors. These include the patient's characteristics and conditions such as age, prior adverse drug effects and physical condition. Most important are kidney and liver functions, which affect how the drug is eliminated from the body.

Many times, an extremely ill, elderly patient will not be given the same antibiotic as a young person with the same infection. With age and decreased kidney flow, elimination of some drugs, like penicillin G, is reduced and the risk of toxicity increases.

Sulfonamides, as an example, can be used to treat urinary tract infections. However, sulfonamides do not kill the bacteria, they merely keep them from multiplying. Those remaining are usually destroyed by the body's own immune system. In a very sick patient, however, the immune system may not be able to kill the bacteria. An alternative antibiotic would probably need to be prescribed.

In addition, all drugs have potential adverse side effects. A patient's physical condition will often determine whether he or she can tolerate the side effects of a chosen antibiotic.

Drug Combinations

In a number of situations, doctors prefer to treat a patient with a combination of antibiotics. The reason is that not all infections are caused by just one organism and many different bacteria may be present.

For an extremely ill patient with an infection of unknown origin, the doctor may use more than one broad-spectrum drug to control the symptoms until the specific bacteria are identified.

Occasionally, the bacteria infecting a patient rapidly become resistant to an antibiotic; that is, they are no longer affected by the drug. Combination therapy may be chosen to help delay bacterial resistance or prevent it from occurring.

Finally, antibiotics are sometimes given together to achieve an effect not possible with either drug alone, or to decrease the size of the dose. This diminishes the possibility of unwanted side effects.

Other Factors

The infection's location and severity can influence how much drug is given and by what means. In a severely ill patient, for example, injecting the medication directly into the bloodstream would produce faster results than giving the drug orally.

New ag. director soon?

Members of the Agriculture Commission say they hope to name a new department director in early September.

The commission is seeking to fill the post left vacant by Paul Kindinger, who left in mid-July after 6 years as director to take an appointment with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The 5-member Agriculture Commission will intensify its selection process when it begins interviewing the final candidates, commission chair Elwood Kirkpatrick said.

Over 80 people applied for the $80,300 a year post, according to commission secretary Jean Valley, and Mr. Kirkpatrick said less than 20 candidates remain.

Kirkpatrick said commissioners intend to fill the director's job "shortly after the interview process. I would think by (early September) we would" have chosen a new director.

Commission member Vernon Kretzschmer said it is important that the commission choose a new director as quickly as possible. "We need a director," he said.

The commission will choose its new director based on an 8-part selection criteria that requires: a bachelor's degree or leadership experience in agriculture or a related field; an understanding of the food and agriculture industry, including a vision of the industry's role in the state and national economy and international markets; the ability to manage and administer the department and work with the governor and Legislature; the ability to represent the department in public meetings; the ability to develop coalitions between conflicting parties; understanding political issues; the ability to analyze issues and situations, and the ability to coordinate and manage issues and strategies.

Kretzschmer said the commission is staying "pretty close" to the criteria during the selection process. "We're looking for basically somebody that's got some management skills and knows how to move in government circles, an all-around kind of team player," he said.

Kirkpatrick said he has been in contact with Governor James J. Blanchard throughout the selection process and "early on" asked for his input. "I've talked to the governor a couple of times. I think it's appropriate to keep the governor aware of what's going on," he said, but added "The Commission is the one who has the responsibility" of naming a new director. Kindinger had not been the governor's first choice, but subsequently was commended by the governor for working cooperatively with the administration.

The governor appoints the 5-member commission, but Kretzschmer said the governor's office has "not put a lot of pressure" on commission members to choose anyone in particular.

"We feel we have to have someone that can work with the governor. He needs department heads in departments that he can work with," he said.

KELLEY JOINS FIGHT ON RESTITUTION FROM BANKRUPT CRIMINALS

Attorney General Frank J. Kelley announced that he has joined with several other states in a U.S. Supreme Court brief opposing a lower court order that would allow criminals to escape their fines and restitution orders by filing for bankruptcy.

The issue arose out of a Pennsylvania case in which the Third Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals found that restitution ordered in a criminal case could be discharged by filing for bankruptcy.

The amicus brief filed by Mr. Kelley and Connecticut in support of Pennsylvania's position said in part that they view criminal restitution as an important sentencing option in their criminal justice system.

And, they argued the Third Circuit's decision, which construed restitution as a dischargeable debt in Chapter 13 bankruptcy proceedings, threatens to deprive states of this option in many cases.

With the option of seeking restitution significantly compromised, states will have greater difficulties in devising punishments to fit the crime and in meaningfully dispensing criminal justice, they argued.

"It is outrageous that criminals who are ordered to make restitution as part of their sentence in a state can then file for bankruptcy in federal court to avoid payment," Kelley said.

"If allowed to stand, this ruling will be a major setback in sentencing for crimes such as welfare, consumer, or business fraud in which the property of others is taken," he concluded.

What Do A 33-Year-Old Farmer And A 59-Year-Old Interior Designer Have In Common?

They were both surprised by a disability, but were prepared with Income Protection coverage from Time Insurance. Disability respects no age, sex or occupation, but these people planned ahead.

Income Protection offers basic, affordable coverage to insure your income... and the standard of living for you and your loved ones. Benefits are paid if you are sick or injured and unable to work.

Think about it — you insure your car and your home, but how would you pay the bills if you lost your income? Don't wait. Call (or write) today for more information on protection for your most valuable asset — your income.

Jaycees seek recruits for community service

The Cass City Jaycees are seeking young men and women between the ages of 21 and 39 who are interested in getting involved in the community.

Interested persons are invited to attend an informational membership meeting set for 7:30 p.m. Sept. 19 at the Charmont.

The Jaycees, formerly the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce, is a nationwide, non-profit volunteer community service leadership organization comprising some 250,000 young people across America.

Aside from socializing with other young people, members strive to develop and improve leadership and management skills through their activities.

About 20 persons are involved in the local chapter, which in the past has been involved in sponsoring activities such as Fourth of July Festival events, Christmas baskets and involvement in the Toys for Tots program.

Additional information on the club as well as the upcoming meeting is available by contacting Jaycees President Paul Brown at 872-2734 or Bill Cleland at 269-7223.
